LT. GOV. BEN BARNES

BARNES TO SPEAK Hospital To Observe 30th Birthday

It was in June, 1939, that Big Spring and all West Texas thrilled to the opening of a new institution to serve the mentally ill of this area.

And on June 22, Big Spring State Hospital plans an elaborate ceremony to mark the 30th anniversary of its formal opening.

The affair will be highlighted by an address by Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, who has accepted an invitation to appear. Special guests will include state senators and legislators whose districts are encompassed within the 45-county area served by the hospital, as well as all these county judges, plus other state and area notables.

The program is to begin at 2 p.m. in front of the main building on the hospital campus. Arnold Marshall, mayor of Big Spring, is to be master of ceremonies, and Barnes will be introduced by David Raloff of Stamford, senator from this district.

The formal part of the afternoon will be brief, limited to Barnes' talk, recognition of special visitors, greetings by Dr. Preston Harrison, hospital superintendent, and a brief review of the institution's history.

Following these ceremonies, the public is invited to tour the hospital.

Dr. Harrison emphasized that the 30th anniversary affair is open to the public, and said he hoped local people will be on hand to help greet visitors expected from all over the area.

Wants To Lift Trade Embargo

SAN ANTONIO Tex (AP) — The United Presbyterian general assembly called upon the U.S. government today to recognize Fidel Castro's Cuban government and lift the trade embargo against Cuba.

A paper on Latin America, sharply critical of United States policies concerning Latin America, called for a complete rethinking of Washington's actions and programs in that part of the world.

The statement of Latin America was approved by a standing vote of more than half the voting commissioners at the annual meeting.

"Consistent with the right of self-determination," the United Presbyterian recommendation said, "and to demonstrate that the United States intends to avoid punitive politics in Latin America, the United States government should immediately take steps to re-establish normal relations with the government of Cuba.

"This should include the lifting of the trade embargo against Cuba."

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched another unmanned satellite in its Cosmos series today but, as usual, kept silent on the purpose of the craft.

NIXON, THIEU TO TALK POLICY ON MIDWAY ISLAND JUNE 8 Capture Mountain Fortress

Withdrawal Of Americans Major Topic

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and South Vietnamese Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu will fly to Midway Island in the Pacific June 8 to discuss a common policy toward a peaceful solution to the Vietnam war.

"The two presidents had decided to hold such a meeting as soon as feasible in order to establish personal contact and discuss together the conduct of the war in Vietnam and the search for a peaceful solution," said the announcement made here and in Saigon.

The one-day meeting, suggested last Saturday by Thieu, will be the first session between the two chief executives. Thieu met in Honolulu last July with then-President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Although the announcement did not mention U.S. troop withdrawals and South Vietnamese elections, these topics probably will be on the agenda, qualified sources said earlier.

"The groundwork for the first meeting of the Vietnamese chief of state and the new U.S. President was laid in Saigon last weekend when Secretary of State William P. Rogers held extensive talks there with Thieu.

The Vietnamese president said in a statement Saturday he hoped to meet with Nixon because he felt it was necessary to set up a common policy.

Midway is the scene of a turning-point battle in the Pacific in World War II—a dot of an island 1,149 miles west of Hawaii.

Nixon had to reshuffle his schedule to arrange the session with Thieu.

One casualty is his commencement address at Ohio State University June 7. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will substitute for him, the White House said.

The Nixon departure point will be his newly-purchased Spanish-style residence on the Pacific shore at San Clemente, Calif.

Before leaving Saigon Monday, Secretary of State William P. Rogers agreed a summit would be useful, Rogers spent four days in Vietnam attempting to reassure the Thieu regime about Nixon administration policies.

Vietnamese diplomatic sources here showed concern over a section of President Nixon's latest peace program for Vietnam which called for elections to be held as soon as possible under international supervision.

The Vietnam officials contend that elections held before 1970 would upset the constitutional process and open the door to an unconstitutional coalition form of government.

The United States has reassured South Vietnam that it would not take part in any plan to impose a coalition government, but there was no agreement as to the timing of the election.

On the issue of troop withdrawals, the Vietnamese want assurances of appropriate U.S. air and artillery support before American combat divisions are replaced by Vietnamese on the fighting front.

Second Marathon Hearing On Parks Proposal Fizzles

AUSTIN (AP) — A Senate committee has completed its second marathon hearing on a proposal to split the Parks and Wildlife Department into two agencies—but postponed action until Wednesday.

Opponents of the House-passed bill got their turn Monday before the Senate Parks and Wildlife Committee. Supporters of the bill testified May 12.

Two of the three Parks and Wildlife commissioners, Harry Jersig of San Antonio and Paul Gilvin of Amarillo, testified against the bill.

"If you want to get something done, leave it in the hands of men who are dedicated, to men who do not get paid," Jersig said.

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Racing "right down the slot" toward a Wednesday rendezvous with the moon, Apollo 10 explorers today studied lunar maps—doing their "homework" for 2 1/2 dangerous days in moon orbit.

Their target, a sliver of silver light, loomed larger and larger as their home planet, earth, shrank in the distance, nearly 200,000 miles away.

As the astronauts spent a leisurely day coasting deeper into the black void of space, Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford reported they were studying the charts and flight plan for the critical lunar orbit portion of the pathfinder mission.

"We've got a little time to kill here," Stafford said, "so we're going over our lunar activities, just doing our homework so we'll be ahead of the game when we get there."

Navy Cmdr. John Young spent much of the morning exercising Apollo 10's navigation equipment, charting a course by the stars.

With Navy Cmdr. Eugene Cernan handling the camera, Apollo 10 beamed an unscheduled television show to a tracking station at Madrid.

Mission control and commercial networks did not receive the picture because satellite communications—and land-line systems were not activated at the time.

The capsule communicator at mission-control, astronaut Jack Loušma, passed the good word that Apollo 10 was on such an accurate path that a course change planned for early afternoon would not be necessary.

"You're riding right down the slot," Loušma reported, "and we recommend deletion of the midcourse firing."

The astronauts said their sleep was not bothered by thruster firings as it was on their first night in space.

helmet as she tries it for size while at play at the Cernan home near the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Tex., today.

On this flight, Stafford and Cernan are to detach their LEM and descend to within 9.3 miles of the moon, over the same spot in the Sea of Tranquility where astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin hope to land.

The engine that put Apollo 10 on course is the same that must fire to shoot it into lunar orbit—and fire again to propel the astronauts back toward earth.

$220 MILLION RAISE KEYED TO ONE-YEAR BUDGET

House Debates Teachers Pay

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas house members, debating a $220 million two-year teacher pay raise bill, rejected today an attempt to base local school costs on the market value of real estate.

A 90-55 vote tabled an amendment by Rep. Joe Shannon, Fort Worth, that would have based local fund assignments under the minimum foundation school program on fair market value of real estate and a statewide equalization rate of 20 cents in 1969-70. Shannon's amendment would have raised the rate by a penny a year until it reached 30 cents.

"This is an opportunity to rectify a wrong that has existed for many years," Shannon said. He claimed that urban districts are losing millions of dollars annually in state school aid because local school financial burdens are based in part on assessed property valuations, which are far below actual values in many rural districts.

Rep. Raul Muniz, El Paso, opposed the amendment, saying rural legislators would kill the teacher pay raise if it went on. Rep. George Hinson, Mineola, began explaining the bill at 11:10 a.m.

Also expected later in the day was a final house vote on a bill creating a new state university at Corpus Christi.

Hinson presented a substitute teacher pay raise bill written by his House Public Education committee. It deletes provisions in the original bill that would have based local school payments on the market value of real estate in a school district. Instead, the bill would set up a special committee to study school financing.

Latest word from Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and speaker Gus Mutscher was that a $61 million one-year salary increase for teachers could be passed without the need for a new tax bill. This would be about $7 million less than the teachers requested for the coming school year.

Hinson said last week he hoped to fund the remainder of the full $220 million program in the 1970-71 school year.

The original bill provided an average increase of $1,800 over the coming two years.

House members tentatively approved the Corpus Christi State University bill 80-58 Monday. The school would offer only the junior and senior years of undergraduate work, plus graduate work.

On this flight, Stafford and Cernan are to detach their LEM and descend to within 9.3 miles of the moon, over the same spot in the Sea of Tranquility where astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin hope to land.

The engine that put Apollo 10 on course is the same that must fire to shoot it into lunar orbit—and fire again to propel the astronauts back toward earth.

The firing put the astronauts on a course that will enable them to orbit above the moon's equator, the pathway that Apollo 11 hopes to follow.

"Beautiful," replied mission control in Houston.

Ray Receives Death Threat

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Harry S. Avery, state commissioner of corrections, says fellow prisoners in the state penitentiary have threatened to kill James Earl Ray, the admitted slayer of Martin Luther King Jr.

Avery said Monday word of the threat, which came in a telephone call, "had a lot to do" with his decision to keep Ray in a maximum security cell after his normal six-week stay which finished at the end of April.

W. E. Hopton, director of the Tennessee Bureau of Criminal Identification, said he had heard nothing about the threat. The FBI normally would be called upon to investigate any such incident, especially one involving the Tennessee state prison where Ray is serving a 99-year sentence.

"I thought it was a good plan then and I still think it's a good plan," Timmons said.

Timmons recalled the advice of a football coach long ago: "When you get out ahead and you're winning the game, don't forget how you got there."

Mrs. T. S. Currie Dies; Widow Of Bank Founder

Mrs. Temp S. Currie, widow of the founder of the State National Bank and a resident of Big Spring for well over 60 years, died at her home, 501 Hillside, shortly after noon today.

Mrs. Currie, 91, had been in declining health for several years, and just a few days ago had suffered a crippling stroke. Funeral arrangements had not been completed. River-Welch Funeral Home is in charge.

Mrs. Currie was a native of Wisconsin and was married there to Mr. Currie in 1903. He previously had come to West Texas and acquired ranching property, but after he came back to this area with his bride he established the State National Bank and was its chief executive officer until his death April 29, 1952.

43 Gls Die During Fight For Position

SAIGON (AP) — American paratroopers and South Vietnamese infantrymen captured a North Vietnamese mountaintop fortress overlooking the A Shau Valley today in the 10th day of hard fighting for the position.

The U.S. Command said 426 North Vietnamese and 43 Americans were killed in the siege of 3,000-foot Dong Ap Bia mountain, close to the Laotian border. Another 273 paratroopers were wounded, including 45 in the final push today.

The allied force was increased nearly five-fold during the night, bringing it to more than 1,000 paratroopers and 400 South Vietnamese. Then they stormed the mountaintop from four sides, killing 75 North Vietnamese in the drive.

Sharp fighting was reported between the mountain and the Laotian border less than two miles away. As the North Vietnamese troops tried to move back into Laos, one battalion of paratroopers intercepted them and battled to block the retreat. Helicopter gunships raked the fleeing enemy with rockets and machine guns.

There were no immediate casualty reports on today's fighting. Earlier U.S. spokesmen had claimed 353 North Vietnamese killed on the mountain overlooking the A Shau valley, a major North Vietnamese supply and staging area.

U.S. losses in the first nine days of fighting were put at 39 killed and 228 wounded.

Firing rocket grenades and machine guns from deep bunkers that withstood bombs and napalm, an estimated 800 North Vietnamese had driven back 10 previous assaults by the Americans from the 101st Airborne Division.

About 300 paratroopers got to within 200 yards of the crest of the mountain after an all-day battle Monday in which 28 North Vietnamese and two Americans were reported killed. Nineteen paratroopers were also wounded.

The paratroopers ran into a complex of about 20 well-constructed, interconnected bunkers. As darkness fell, the Americans set up bivouac positions and reinforcements moved up to join in renewal of the assault at daylight.

Meanwhile, the North Vietnamese apparently decided to pull out. A U.S. spokesman said the advancing Americans and South Vietnamese met only light resistance as they moved up to the top.

"But the hill is not completely secure," said one spokesman. "They're still meeting small pockets of resistance and cleaning out each bunker. Most of the North Vietnamese bugged out to try to get across the border."

"I guess they were sick and tired of getting the hell kicked out of them," said one officer of the 101st Airborne.

The brunt of the fighting for the mountaintop was borne by the division's 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry, commanded by Lt. Col. Weldon Honeycutt, 38, of Columbus, Ga.

was very active in her church until ill health forced her retirement.

Survivors are two children, Robert Currie and Miss Agnes Currie; two grandchildren, John Currie and Mrs. Ann McComb, and six great-grandchildren.

The small slam contract in hearts is a sound undertaking, and we admire the direct method employed by North and South to get there.

Particular attention is called to North's rebid of three hearts. Altho a raise to the three level of responder's take-out normally announces extra values—and North's opening bid is in the minimum range—an exception is to be noted when the response has been in a major suit. Since only 26 points are needed for game in hearts and South presumably has a minimum of 10 for his response at the two level, North is warranted in taking slightly more aggressive action on the second round.

Once the heart fit is established, it was routine for South to check back for controls via Blackwood, and when he was assured that the opposition could not cash two fast tricks, he proceeded to slam.

West opened the four of clubs and East put up the ace. When declarer followed with the ten, East decided that a continuation of the suit might not be safe and he shifted to the deuce of diamonds. There was a temptation for South to out-in the ten and take a free finesse against the queen, however he decided that North's ace of diamonds would serve a more useful purpose as an eventual entry to the spade suit which he planned to establish.

Declarer put up the king of diamonds from his hand at trick two and then cashed the king and queen of hearts. When West showed out of the second lead, South drew the remaining trump with North's ace. A spade was led to the ace, felling West's queen and a spade was returned to the king—on which West failed to answer the call. The ten was now returned thru East for a ruffing finesse. South trumped out the jack of spades, entered the North hand with the carefully preserved ace of diamonds and discarded his remaining diamonds on the established spades.

If South plays the ten of diamonds from his hand at the second trick, West can dislodge North's ace by covering the queen and declarer must now find a parking place for the six of diamonds which is a prospective loser. Altho the dummy's side entry has been dislodged prematurely, declarer can still recover with careful play.

He draws two rounds of trumps with the king and queen and then stops temporarily to develop the spades. The ace and king of spades are cashed and when West shows out, fortunately for declarer he is also out of trumps. South now ruffs out East's jack of spades, enters dummy with the ace of hearts—drawing the last trump in the process, and discards the losing diamond on a high spade.

First Recorded Fatality, Gunfire At Jefferson City

By The Associated Press

Gunfire erupted at Lincoln University in Jefferson City, Mo., as three campus buildings burned, while a man shot Thursday during rioting in Berkeley, Calif., died Monday night, the first recorded fatality in this year's wave of campus-connected unrest.

Two hundred National Guardsmen and 100 Highway Patrolmen patrolled the Lincoln campus early today, after police were fired on from dormitory windows and responded with a salvo of shotgun blasts in the air. No injuries were reported.

CLUBS, GAS

In Berkeley, James Rector, 25, of San Jose, died in Herrick Memorial Hospital, where he was being treated for a "gun-shot wound in the abdomen," a hospital spokesman said. Earlier, police used clubs and tear gas to disperse about 1,500 demonstrators for a "People's Park" on a lot owned by the University of California, the starting point of Thursday's riot.

The Lincoln University library was extensively damaged in one blaze and the interior of a lounge in the new student union was destroyed. A fire in Memorial Hall was quickly extinguished.

The gunfight began when about a dozen highway patrolmen started walking across the campus to the student union. Police said gunfire, mostly from shotguns, erupted from three men's dormitories. Police returned to their cars for shotguns and returned fire.

NOT A STUDENT

Lincoln has 2,300 students, half of them black. Most of the white students live in town, while most of the blacks live in the dormitories.

About 75 students filed out of two dormitories from which shots had been fired. They were taken to the gymnasium and kept under guard.

Peaceful demonstrations began two weeks ago on demands for off-campus housing at reasonable rates, elimination of compulsory Reserve Officers Training Corps courses, and visiting privileges in dormitories. A sit-in on the demands lasted three days.

National Guardsmen helped police and sheriff's deputies control the streets in Berkeley, where protests have continued since Thursday over the University of California's decision to fence in a lot it owns on which people had constructed a park. Protest leaders called for a moratorium on protests and a day of mourning for Rector. He was not a student at the university.

SHOTGUNS

During Thursday's disorders, police fired birdshot-loaded shotguns into crowds of protesters, wounding at least 50 students. Police said no rifles were issued to officers. A hospital spokesman said Rector had a bullet in his liver.

The hospital said Rector died of "acute heart failure."

At other campuses, Big Rapids, Mich.—About 70 found 186 sticks of dynamite on state and local police were ordered to the Ferris State College campus early today after black and white students clashed and 10 persons were injured.

Groups of blacks and whites hurled bottles, bricks, boards and firecrackers at each other, Charles Venagh, editor of the student newspaper, said the brawl began after 11 blacks entered a predominantly white dormitory to see a black student and got in an argument with whites.

DYNAMITE

New York—City College canceled classes to hold workshops and meetings on demands by black and Puerto Rican students for a separate school of ethnic studies and enrollment of more blacks and Puerto Ricans. Negotiations on the demands continued among students, faculty and administrators.

City College has 20,000 students, 4,500 of them black and Puerto Rican.

Livermore, Calif.—A man exploring abandoned mine shafts found 186 sticks of dynamite on property owned by the University of California's Lawrence Radiation Laboratories. Police said the explosive, minus detonating caps, had been hidden recently.

New Orleans—About 100 policemen in riot gear rushed to after a group of students hurled a vial of acid and a potted plant at a dean's office window, school officials said.

One campus security guard said he was burned by the acid, which hit the side of the building.

The incident followed a day of demonstrations at the predominantly Negro school against recent suspensions of students for earlier protests.

Oil Allowable Revised Upward

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas' record high oil allowable for June has been revised upward by 40.64 barrels a day.

The Railroad Commission estimated last Thursday, when it set the June allowable of 63.5 per cent of potential, that the maximum production would be 4187,253 barrels a day.

But Monday the agency revised that estimated allowable to 4,227,927, an increase of 307,364 barrels a day from May.

Speaker At AAUW Banquet

Mrs. Marvin Pedlar of San Antonio, Texas Division president of the American Association of University Women was guest speaker for the installation banquet held Monday at the Brandin' Iron Inn. Mrs. Wilbur Cunningham, president, and Mrs. Robert Nickel, president of San Angelo AAUW, introduced the speaker.

"Choice — the Imperative for Tomorrow," was the topic as Mrs. Pedlar described four "c's": change, choice, challenge and chance. Noting that change has come to AAUW, she said the organization is challenged to bring education "up to what it should be." She said the chance to do so is offered in the AAUW program of action, and that members should use their education to help the community.

The "outstanding member" presentation was made to Mrs. Gary Sims by Mrs. Dale Vaughn. Mrs. Sims has served in the local branch of AAUW for six years, two of that as president and two as Area Representative for World Affairs for the Texas Division. She was cited for having made many contributions to the community through AAUW, First United Methodist Church, Planned Parenthood and Faculty Ma'ams.

Officers installed by Mrs. Pedlar were Mrs. Cunningham, president; Mrs. Star Warford, Mrs. Don Turner and Mrs. Walter Wheat, vice presidents; Mrs. Richard Rossmiller, secretary; and Mrs. John Annen, treasurer.

Mrs. Ben Faulkner was introduced as a new member, and guests were Mrs. Tom Crofts, Mrs. Paul Peterson, Mrs. Art Schmidt, Mrs. Patty Helena Delander, Mrs. Larry Cheatham and Mrs. George Furquerson, the latter of Commerce.

Hostesses were Mrs. Ron Pemberton, Mrs. Thomas Ross, Mrs. Vaughn, Mrs. M. A. Webb, Miss Helen Willard and Mrs. Ira Williams.

Mrs. Cunningham used the theme, "Study In Action," to encourage members to "be more active and become involved." A board meeting was held at 4 p.m. at the high school May 26. There will be no more meetings until September.

A LOVELIER YOU PH-Factor Explained To Correct Skin Care

By MARY SUE MILLER and supple skin, too. EYES OF YOUTH You are not lost to youthful beauty because of dark circles, puffiness, or wrinkles around the eyes. These problems can be brought under control by proper skin care, cosmetic applications, health habits and facial expressions. Methods are detailed in my leaflet, "The Eyes of Youth. To obtain your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing 15 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

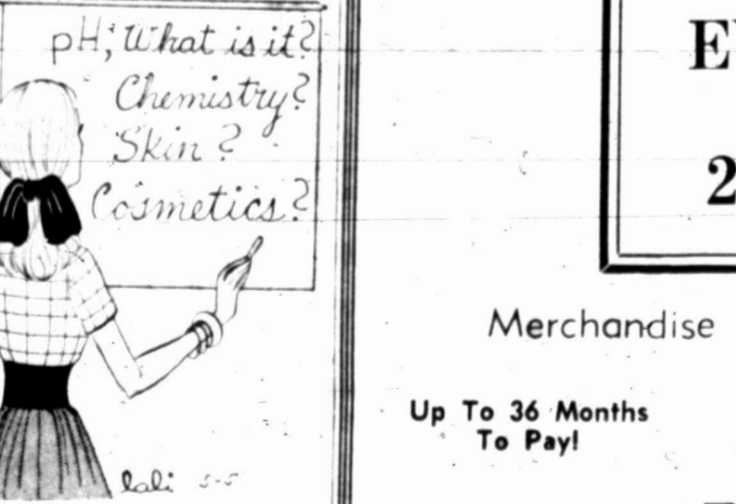

At present, there is renewed emphasis on the value of the pH-factor in skin-care products. What is meant by the term and how it relates to the skin mystifies many a Lovely. Let's clear up the confusion.

In chemistry, pH is an arbitrary measure of how acidic or alkaline any substance is. Water, for instance, has a pH of about 7.5 which is considered neutral. Acids are lower in the scale, while alkalines are higher. The scale ranges from 0 to 14.

Now, how does pH apply to your skin? First off, nature provides your skin with an "acid mantle," an invisible, protective film. On a healthy skin, the film is slightly acidic, with a pH of about 5.5, and forms a protective barrier against infection from simple blemishes to staph germs.

So how does pH apply to skin-care products? Many preparations have the same pH — 5.5 — as normal, healthy skin. Use on any type of skin reduces bacteria and the possibility of irritation. On oily and dry skin, there's a normalizing influence. As proof of effectiveness, many surgeons wash with a 5 pH liquid cleanser for pre-surgical scrubs. This helps preserve the anti-bacterial mantle.

Chemistry? Skin? Cosmetics?

Say Vows In Home Ceremony

Mrs. Ruby L. Read, 502 Edwards Blvd., and Charles Raymond Dunagan, 1110 Nolan, were married at 11 a.m. Monday, in the bride's home with Dr. Gage Lloyd officiating at the ceremony.

The couple exchanged wedding vows before a fireplace flanked by baskets of white gladioli and pink peonies interspersed with greenery.

The bride was attired in a fitted navy blue dress styled with elbow-length sleeves and a soft scarf collar tied with a bow at the neckline. Her costume was accented with white accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Dunagan, a retired railroad man and farmer, and his wife left immediately after the ceremony for a trip to Ruidoso, N.M. Upon returning, they will reside at 502 Edwards Blvd.

Mrs. Mignonette R. Siverling, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a black and white print sheath dress with pink carnation corsage. True Dunagan of Elbow, the bridegroom's brother, served as best man, and his wife was a guest.

Justice Douglas Shares Big Las Vegas Jackpot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The foundation headed by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has cashed in a $2 million jackpot in selling its stock in a firm which owns three Las Vegas casinos.

A foundation official said Monday the holdings were sold in early March—two years after Douglas had described the stock as "an irrevocable gift."

The Supreme Court justice has drawn fire in Congress over his salary as president of The Albert Parvin Foundation and its ownership, ties with plush Las Vegas gambling palaces.

PAID $85,000

Douglas has been paid approximately $85,000 over the last seven years as the Foundation's only salaried officer, tax records show.

Justice Douglas, reached in Bellingham, Wash., where he was speaking Monday, declined comment.

Justice Abe Fortas resigned from the Supreme Court last week amid congressional rumblings of impeachment in the controversy over a $20,000 check from the family foundation of convicted financier Louis E. Wolfson.

Congressmen have called for an investigation of Douglas and his foundation's stock in Parvin-Dohrmann Co., which owns the Stardust, Fremont and Aladdin hotels and casinos.

The foundation's secretary and treasurer, Harvey Silbert, disclosed in a telephone interview Monday that 21,791 shares in Parvin-Dohrmann were sold during the first week of March at $91.75 each. This would result in a purchase price of just under $2 million.

FIVE TIMES

The $2 million price was five times the value listed for the foundation's Parvin-Dohrmann stock when Justice Douglas' role first became known to the public in 1966.

At that time, Douglas wrote Chief Justice Earl Warren: "There has been criticism of the (stock) portfolio of the foundation. Except for minor items, the selection of the portfolio was made solely by Mr. (Albert) Parvin and was transferred by him to the foundation as an irrevocable gift."

Sen John J. Williams, R-Del., entered the letter to Warren in the Congressional Record this month in charging that Fortas had not returned the Wolfson check in 1966 "until after Justice Douglas had been caught with his hands in the same cookie jar."

The foundation's latest public tax records covering 1967 reported Parvin-Dohrmann holdings totaling 31,291 shares. When the other 9,500 shares were sold is unknown. But Silbert said the 21,791 sold in early March were the last ones held by the foundation.

Tax records show the foundation sold its stock two years ago in Del E. Webb Corp., which operates other casinos at Las Vegas and Lake Tahoe, Nev.

RED MENACE

Douglas has said Parvin, a Los Angeles business executive, organized the foundation in 1960 after reading the jurist's lectures on the growing menace of communism. The foundation provides fellowships for foreign students at Princeton and UCLA.

"We're training the future prime ministers of underdeveloped countries in our democratic institutions. It is a tremendous project and I commend it to you," Douglas said last Saturday.

Parvin sold his stock in the Parvin-Dohrmann Co. last October when the firm was taken over by Chicago executive Delbert W. Coleman.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn has promised an investigation of holdings in the company by owners of the Atlanta Braves and Oakland Athletics.

DIRECTORS

Three Braves directors, including Coleman and club president William C. Bartholomay, are members of the Parvin-Dohrmann board. Athletics owner Charles O. Finley bought an estimated $2.7 million of stock last month.

The foundation's sale of its stock did not figure in any of the baseball purchases, according to Securities and Exchange Commission and Nevada records.

Parvin was named by the government in 1967 as a co-conspirator in one of the stock charges against Wolfson. He remains listed as vice president of the foundation headed by Douglas.

Among the present owners of Parvin-Dohrmann listed in the SEC and Nevada records, in addition to the baseball executives, are officials of a Canadian mining firm, the endowment funds of the University of Vermont and the University of Syracuse, and actress Jill St. John.

Experts Go To Bat For Income Surtax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration spokesmen went to bat for extension of the income surtax today as the House prepared to debate a closely related proposal to clamp a lid on government spending.

President Nixon is pushing hard for extension of the 10 per cent surtax past its current June 30 expiration date, but is opposing the proposed $192.9 billion federal spending ceiling.

The House Ways and Means Committee called administration witnesses in today to support the Nixon proposal to retain the surcharge at the 10 per cent level from June 30 through Dec. 31, then lower it to 5 per cent for the following six months.

Those scheduled were Treasury secretary David M. Kennedy, Treasury undersecretary Charles E. Walker, Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, and Budget Director Robert P. Mayo.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, told newsmen he has not changed his view that the proposed spending ceiling is a necessary condition of any extension of the surcharge.

Mayo, previously testified before a Senate committee that the spending ceiling is unnecessary. And, he said, it would be extremely difficult if not impossible for the government to operate under its terms. House debate on a $3.8 billion catchall money bill that includes the ceiling provision was scheduled for later today. Included in this measure is $1.9 million for the lawmakers to give themselves the pay raise they approved effective March 1.

The Ways and Means Committee is interrupting its tax reform deliberations to take up the surtax which is scheduled to expire June 30 unless Congress acts by that time.

Mills' goal is House consideration during the first week of June. He has not committed himself to extension, but is believed to favor it on his terms.

The budget ceiling proposal before the House today differs from one imposed by Congress last year against the wishes of the Johnson administration.

The new spending limit would provide flexibility when Congress itself exceeded the budget in its appropriations. But it would not have the specific effect of providing for a 1968-1969.

Mayo has been urging that extensions be provided for what he called uncontrollable expenditures, such as interest on the public debt, farm price supports, welfare, social security and veterans' benefit payments, and for what he termed unpredictable Vietnam expenses.

Mayo said it is not good management for Congress to grant authority for spending agency "and then to establish an arbitrary limit on the total that can be paid when all the individual bills come due."

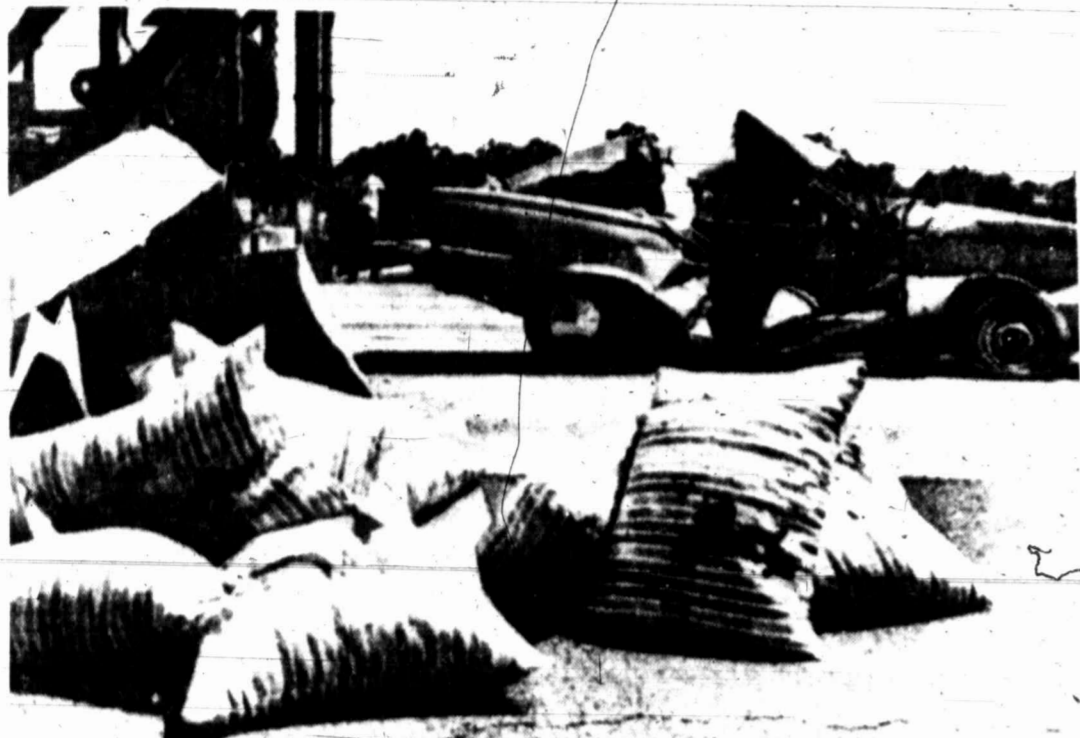

GENERAL IDEA "To insure that any such spending ceiling is not exceeded," he said, "the President typically must reduce programs below levels that have been approved by the Congress."

Discussing the general idea of ceilings with still another committee before the present proposal was formulated, Mayo suggested it may not be a good idea to ask a man who has shown he can hold his breath for two minutes to hold it for four. "He may drop dead on you," Mayo said.

Again, he compared the process with trying to stop a leaking faucet by putting a finger up the tap—"you are bound to get kind of wet in the process."

This testimony to a House Appropriations subcommittee April 17 was made public today.

Box Of Pillows Causes Fatal Accident

A 33-year-old Mesquite, Tex., woman, Sue Johnson Garner, was killed on a freeway in Dallas Monday afternoon when her car went out of control as she tried to avoid stalled traffic. The cars had stopped to avoid a box of pillows that had fallen to the street. Mrs. Garner's car hit the back of a truck and then continued on to hit two other autos.

Chicago Teachers Expected To Stage Walkout Thursday

In Denver a record 100,000 teachers were expected to turn out for a school board election which could decide the fate of 83,000 public school pupils a full city school integration program. The president of the Chicago Teachers Union says he has turned down a six-point peace plan offered by the Board of Education and the 19,000-member union will definitely strike the city school system Thursday.

Powered to tame Texas summers! Dependable electric air conditioning. There's no denying Texas summers can be hot. That's why most buyers insist on electric air conditioning. They know it has the reserve power to keep them cool on the hottest summer days, as proved in hundreds of thousands of installations all over the Southwest. And that's only one of many reasons electric air conditioning is the overwhelming first choice. It's lower in first cost because of economies made possible by mass production. It costs less to install because of its simple, compact design. And it's available in a wide variety of sizes and types to exactly fit any cooling requirement. A Devotional For The Day

There are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit; and there are varieties of service, but the same Lord. To each is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good. (I Corinthians 12:4-5, 7, RSV)

PRAYER: Father, help us so to dedicate our lives to You that whatever ability we have becomes a blessing to others and a glory to You. In the name of Jesus we pray. Amen.

Shameful Loss

What is one to think of a nation that kills 50,000 people a year on its streets and highways, yet fails to conduct adequate traffic safety programs? Is it fair to say that such a nation is carrying folly to ridiculous extremes? Is it fair to say that, especially when the cost in lives must be added a monetary cost amounting to many billions of dollars each year?

Under present circumstances our response appears to be getting worse rather than improving. This has just been pointed up afresh by Howard Pyle, who as president of the National Safety Council has a better chance than almost anyone else to assess the situation. The springboard for his comment was word that traffic accident deaths during the first two months of 1969 were up four per cent over the same period last year (4,470, or 310 more persons).

Pyle's criticism focuses on the failure of numerous states to move ahead on traffic safety even though federal law enacted in 1966 offers help. This law, she notes, "opened the door for the greatest progress in history against their menace. Instead, too many states are delaying badly needed action and even resolutely marching backwards."

An air of irrationality pervades this matter. State governments claim not to have the money for better safety programs, yet as Pyle points out "the loss to society from only two months of this year's crashes is estimated at $1.5 billion."

This makes it a matter of simple economics. That is, effective measures to improve traffic safety will, in the long run, save large sums of money. Even if financial loss could not be substantially reduced, there would remain the all-important fact that lives are being sacrificed daily on the altar of inadequate safety programs.

Encouraging Signs

There seems to be an encouraging trend toward sanity in handling of campus disorders. There may be more upheavals before reasons drop back to a time when reason is the accepted means of threshing out differences or seeking changes.

Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, who took over the administration of the beleaguered San Francisco State College six months ago, has set something of an example in how to deal with the situation. His school had been hit by faculty strikes, student strikes, student battles with police, disruption and cessation of classes. He has set formula but he did offer some advice, including being alert and ready and knowing what you are willing to do; don't let a little violence be rewarded — don't delay the use of adequate force if required; listen to students, for something of what they are saying may make sense, be willing to make concessions to meet today's needs if they are warranted.

There's a lot of common sense wrapped up in this.

Another hopeful sign comes from SMU where responsible students have presented the university with counter-claims following the recent, short-lived black student takeover of administrative offices. Without rancor or racism, the student leadership accused the administration of settling an issue purely on ethnic grounds, of considering demands which had no basis in logic or conscience, of being intimidated. Apart from whether their claims are sound is the more important fact that responsible student voices are being raised in opposition to the disrupters.

Another Judge Resigns

WASHINGTON — As one of nine judges at the Hickory Hill Pet Show which was held last Saturday, I would like to explain why I have decided to resign rather than subject the pet show to vicious rumors and unsubstantiated charges that have been circulating in Washington for the past few days.

First, I would like to explain that although I accepted a fee of $20 a year for life (which would go to my basket) from the Kennedy Foundation, at no time did I use my office as judge to influence the awarding of blue ribbons to the Kennedy children.

THE MONEY offered by the Kennedy Foundation had been given to me because of the work I had done in animal husbandry, and I believed that I could make a contribution to the foundation particularly in the area of canine-feline relations.

Having accepted the first check of $20 11 months ago, I decided that I did not have the time to devote to the work and, therefore, I returned the fee to the foundation.

THAT IS ALL there was to the story. But after an article in Animal World alleging that the money had been paid to me because I could in some way be instrumental in helping the Kennedy children win prizes, I felt it incumbent to point out that one thing had nothing to do with the other.

It's true that I did speak to Mrs. Ethel Kennedy about her children getting blue ribbons in the canine, bird and fish competitions, but at no time did I guarantee that any of her children would be treated as special cases. If they did win six blue ribbons, it was only because their pets deserved them.

IT WAS PUBLISHED in the Pet Home Journal that I also had conversations with Sen. Teddy Kennedy concerning the hamsters and turtles his children were entering in the contest. This is true. But here again I did nothing to justify Sen. Kennedy's saying later that he "had one of the pet show judges in the bag."

Sometime in April I received a call from Pat Lawford, who said she was sending her children down from New York for the pet show, and since it was such a long trip she hoped the children would not go back empty-handed. I said I also hoped that this would not be the case. A day later Mrs. Stephen Smith, another Kennedy sister, got in touch with me by mail and sent me some material relating to the pets her children were entering. I naturally declined to read the material.

THE LAST PERSON I heard from was Jackie Onassis, who offered me a free trip to Greece if I could arrange for John-John to win a blue ribbon for his guppies. I declined the offer.

The fact that this series of events took place one night after another has been interpreted by the public and the press as wrongdoing. I don't believe I have been helped by Atty. Gen. Mitchell's office of animal corruption which has been leaking stories to Field and Stream that there's a lot more to the iceberg than meets the eye.

I LEAVE my judgeship regretfully, but I have to put the welfare of the pet show above my own personal feelings. It is my opinion that the public controversy relating to my association with the Kennedy Foundation, as well as the awarding of so many first prizes to Kennedys on Saturday, could only harm the pet show, which is held for a noble and charitable cause. Billy Graham

My husband tells me that because he works hard all week I should stay home with him on Sundays instead of going to church. This is causing dissension in our home. What should I do, P.C.

When your husband married you he did not buy your soul. Five dollars or so he paid for the marriage license didn't entitle him to make all of your spiritual decisions for you. Being a husband myself, I don't believe that an average, normal man would respect his wife completely if she lowered her convictions to conform to his whims and desires.

In the marriage ceremony when you were married, the minister said: "What God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." If God is the One which holds you together, do you think it would be right for both you and your husband to ignore Him? It is bad enough for your husband to live apart from God. It seems to me if he wanted to be with you, that he could join you in attending the church. From all that you say, I feel confident this is what he needs. In church he may find Christ and that could change his whole life.

'The Love Machine' Sells

NEW YORK (AP) — "Success robs you of a lot of fun," said Jacqueline Susann, the television actress turned author. "When I was 18 I used to dream of being able to eat caviar every day of my life."

"Now I can't eat caviar at all because it makes me fat."

However, Jackie, the current sensation of the publishing world, can afford to buy caviar by the barrel if she chooses to.

HER FIRST novel, "Valley of the Dolls," sold more than 356,000 hard cover copies and over 10 million in paper back.

Her second, "The Love Machine," threatens to equal or surpass "Valley of the Dolls" as a best seller. Within a few days after publication, some 300,000 copies have been printed.

Miss Susann also has received a $250,000 advance against expected paperback royalties, and she and her husband, Irving Mansfield, the television producer who acts as her business adviser, have turned down a million-dollar offer for the film rights.

"THE LOVE Machine" details the rise and fall of Robin Stone, a brilliant and ruthless television executive. It is sprinkled with lively sex episodes, as was "Valley of the Dolls."

Jackie vehemently resents any implication that these episodes are put in merely to satisfy reader curiosity about the boudoir behavior of celebrities. "I have never been clinical in a sexual description," she insisted. "Whenever I use sex it is not for a prurient reason, but because it advances the plot and has an even higher tomorrow."

This rate, which commercial banks grant to their most credit-worthy customers—almost always corporations—is a basic rate from which almost all other lending rates are scaled upward.

For the ordinary individual, however, the effect may be to reduce the availability of loans, for in some areas of the country mortgage and personal loan rates already are at the usury ceilings and can go no higher.

the story."

Using only one fast-flying finger on each hand, Miss Susann can type out as many as 30 pages in a daily work session that lasts from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m.

"I work in a den in the back of my apartment and keep the drapes closed. It's always night there. I find it impossible to write if I look out the window and see the weather is nice."

SHE METHODICALLY rewrites each novel four times, using a different colored paper for each draft.

Already she has turned out

400 pages of her first draft of a third novel, tentatively entitled "The Big Man." In it, she said, she will explore again her basic theme—how bare life is at the top among people who have lost the essential ability to communicate with other human beings.

Having achieved financial success, why does she still drive herself so hard?

"I don't know what I'm trying to prove," she said. "It simply is a compulsion. I don't know myself what keeps me cooped up writing in a lonely room when I might be leading a lovely life on the Riviera."

Money Crunch Fears

NEW YORK (AP) — Some bankers wouldn't be at all surprised to see a brand-new increase in the prime lending rate within the next few weeks. Should it come it would be the fifth since last December.

The current rate, a record, is 7.5 per cent. As recently as last Dec. 2 it was 6.25 per cent. It was raised to 6.50 per cent on that date, to 6.75 on Dec. 18 to 7 per cent on Jan. 7 and to 7.5 per cent March 17.

THE THREAT of another increase is evidence of tremendous business pressure for expansion funds, and to some extent may represent borrowing now on the assumption that rates will be even higher tomorrow.

This rate, which commercial banks grant to their most credit-worthy customers—almost always corporations—is a basic rate from which almost all other lending rates are scaled upward.

For the ordinary individual, however, the effect may be to reduce the availability of loans, for in some areas of the country mortgage and personal loan rates already are at the usury ceilings and can go no higher.

THE UPWARD pressure on rates, despite efforts of the government to slow the pace of expansion to a sustainable pace, was revealed sharply late last week by a surge in demand for business loans here.

Federal Reserve figures show that this demand rose $214 million in one week, although there was some decrease in the amount of money sought by businesses in Chicago.

Evidence of a deeply entrenched inflationary psychology—the very thing the Nixon administration wishes to uproot—is being read into the figures by some bankers. They reason that some of the demand is coming from companies that fully expect interest rates to continue rising and therefore feel they must commit themselves to projects now or face even higher costs later.

THIS ATTITUDE was said also to be a major factor in a big increase since last year in capital spending plans by business, an increase revealed by private surveys and the Commerce Department to be about 12 per cent.

Almost inevitably, these big spending plans will clash with Federal Reserve policy, whose aim is to slow the demand for goods and services to a rate more consistent with the nation's ability to produce.

The Fed, which has great powers over the amount and price of money permitted to flow into the economy, has persisted in a restrictive policy for many weeks now, and more than a few observers feel a money crunch is near.

Enlarging The Breasts—And Why Not

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Much has been said about methods of increasing breast size. Is it true that this can be done by injections? Is it safe? What would the later consequences be?—Mrs. L.V.W.

I wouldn't belabor this subject, except that letters from readers continue to belabor me. There has, indeed, been a lot of talk about increasing breast size by injections, the words having been much encumbered by mistaken ideas.

At the present moment, the United States' government no longer—hence the use of silicone for such injections, even under experimental conditions, which was the most it ever did. If any such treatments are now being given, they are with bootleg silicone.

Efforts are still being made to find some satisfactory method, but none has been devised.

A physician who keeps track of this field of work tells me that the go-go girls, whose attempts with this method seem to have inspired much of the talk about silicone, have to wear brassieres night and day, except for their professional appearances.

The problem is that no other way has been found to insure that the silicone will stay in position without sagging or changing shape.

This in itself would seem to be adequate reason not to want to fool with this method at present. What further problems may have to be solved, years after such injections have been made, is an interesting and important question.

For the present, all I can say,

The Fellow Responsible For It All

I picked up a copy of a small magazine which is published for and about West Texas newsmen.

In it I found a paragraph which read:

"Henry A. Stroud of Dallas, a pioneer Electra newspaperman, has a new book, 'Conquest of the Prairies,' recently published by Texian Press of Waco. Stroud started his career in Harrold where he published the Harrold Gazette which was moved to Electra in 1919 and became the Electra Leader, a forerunner of the Electra Star."

I do not know a "Henry" Stroud but I certainly know a "Harry" Stroud and this Henry fellow has to be the Harry I know.

PROBABLY, if I could blame anyone for it, I would have to put the finger on Harry as the one man most responsible for my adopting newspaper work as a career.

He laid the foundation for this dreadful deed one day in 1920 or thereabouts. As editor of the little weekly paper he offered a $3 prize for the best poster on something or other (I can't remember what). I won the prize and went to the Star office to collect. Harry talked to me briefly.

Later I wrote something about the high school. He printed it. Worse than that, he put a by-line on it.

And that, friends, was the fatal blow. The fascinating appeal of seeing something you have written, in type, and with your name over it as author is mighty heady stuff.

A LITTLE LATER, Harry let me work on Saturdays on the paper.

When I finished high school, he was publishing a small oil news weekly. I worked on that. He left to take a job with the long since defunct Lawton News. He found a job for me on that paper.

When the News died peacefully, he went to Ardmore to become editor of the Ardmore Press. I went back to Electra and became editor of the Star. Three months later, Harry was on the phone. Would I come to Ardmore and help him out for just six weeks?

That was the episode of which I wrote two weeks ago.

I DIDN'T tell how in that article within two months, Stroud became editor of the competitive newspaper in the town and I became editor of the Press. Nor how I lived in his home, and how we maintained an amicable truce despite the bitter journalistic competition our respective publishers pursued.

Later Harry founded a paper in Shawnee and I went there to work for him. This newspaper didn't survive too long. It folded after six weeks. I returned to Ardmore. Harry went on to other fields.

YEARS PASSED and then I ran into him again. He was working for the University of Kansas Extension service. When the war came, I read in the paper where his only son had been killed in action.

From that time until I read only this little paragraph I quoted, I lost all trace of my friend.

Now I find him still very much around and, of all things, writing books! —SAM BLACKBURN

Laird The Communicator

WASHINGTON — Melvin Laird, Secretary of Defense, is Alias Mr. Outreach of the Administration.

The bulky-browed master of the Pentagon is doubling in brass. His secondary role is to reach into the provinces of his colleague, HEW Secretary Bob Finch, who hasn't quite found the wave-length when it comes to communicating with the people.

THE BRIGHT Young Men around the President have recalled that Laird has a communications facility which shouldn't be wasted. When he was in the House, Laird was just as active on the HEW Appropriations committee as on the Defense Appropriations committee. He authored much legislation, and received much recognition for his work in sociology.

NO OTHER Defense Secretary has remotely approached him in temperament and experience for the business of humanizing at-home military activities. Laird has recently established a Domestic Action Council at the Pentagon. It is the military counterpart of the Urban Affairs Council at the White House. The Domestic Affairs Council will report directly to Laird. It consists of Joint Chiefs of Staff assistants and Assistant Secretaries of Defense. It will try to change the subject of public conversation from military industrial to military-civilian. The outreach into HEW includes the following items:

HEALTH: The Dr. Frank Berry Plan, originating in the Eisenhower Era of '56, last year deferred the military service of 2,059 medical interns, and every year turns more than 5,000 well-practiced physicians back into civilian life. In addition the Veterans Administration has a large rehabilitation program for those handicapped in military duty.

Education: Laird says that this year the U.S. Armed Forces Institute will grant 90,000 "equivalency" high school diplomas, and that more than 800,000 service men will attend some kind of formal training. Project Transition in 1969 will provide 60,000 rotating men with skills needed for civilian jobs.

WELFARE: Project Valor, a new program is aimed at job preparation for 5,000 "disadvantaged" youth, and the Pentagon will hire 30,000 for summer jobs. 75 per cent of whom are "disadvantaged." Laird has ordered military base commanders to cooperate with Mayors' Youth Councils for recreation and on-site training.

The Secretary has directed that "portions of contracts" in the $40-billion annual Defense Department shopping list be used to assist areas of concentrated unemployment.

ALTHOUGH it's far afield from his normal duties, Secretary Laird has become a designated presidential spokesman on White House social programs. Laird said in a recent speech although his major responsibility in the Nixon Cabinet is national security, I do not intend to put my knowledge and concern about domestic matters on the shelf. As a member of the cabinet, my advice is sought by the President on local areas.

NOTE OF THIS relates to rumors of the Armed Services, but it does relate to the Administration's communications effort. One of the Bright Young Men was saying that most of the White House staffers are between 35 to 40 years old, probably younger than the staff that John F. Kennedy brought aboard. Half the population is under 25 years old, and 32 million of those are in uniform. The Defense Secretary has much to do with youth, their problems and their parents.

Laird's a great communicator. This Bright Young Man told me.

Pressure Stepped Up For ABM

WASHINGTON — The big guns of the military-industrial-political complex are being leveled at opponents of the Nixon Administration's Safeguard antiballistic missile program. The latest blast comes from the National Strategy Committee of the American Security Council, a conservative organization heavily weighted with those who over the years have been professional cold war warriors.

Of the 30 members of a special subcommittee signing a report entitled, "The ABM and the Changed Strategic Military Balance," 13 are retired admirals or generals. Of the generals and admirals several have had connections with defense industry.

STRESSING NOT only Soviet capabilities but Soviet intentions, as interpreted by the committee, the report makes some astonishing statements. The Soviets are "outpacing the United States" in strategic weaponry, according to the report, "because they exercise over-all control over the economy and can suppress public opposition that might arise. Such is the nature of the Communist system of control." Then the report adds: "In the United States, on the other hand, the needs of national defense can be obscured or delayed by emphasis on domestic needs or wants."

THIS SEEMS to carry the implication that if this country could only suppress opposition, the nation's domestic needs would not get in the way of spending for weapons. The report also notes that of the 360 members of the Central Committee of the Communist party in the Soviet Union 36 are active-duty, flag-rank officers, most of them four or five-star admirals, generals or marshals. Active-duty officers in the United States cannot serve in appointive political offices, the report implies, the Soviet Union has the true military-industrial complex.

THE REPORT states that the United States has carefully tailored its nuclear arsenal to exclude all weapons designed to initiate an attack or with which such an attack could even be credibly threatened.

ANALYSTS FAMILIAR with the complexities of the weapons debate say this is not correct. Dr. John S. Foster Jr., director of Defense Research and Engineering and one of the principal backers for Safeguard, testified last year that ways had been found to improve the accuracy of the Minuteman and Poseidon missiles "so as to be able to get much greater kill capabilities even though the war-head yields were reduced and so, in fact, we are beginning to get a rather effective damage-limiting capability." In the outer language of the weapons, limiting "damage-limiting capability" can include counter-force attack against adversary forces, in short, first strike capability.

AS THE ABM dispute gathers momentum, with a vote in the Senate likely in mid-June, it is bound to become more divisive and venomous. One of the conspicuous targets of the forces pushing for the missile system is Sen. Stuart Symington (D., Mo.). The reason is not hard to find, since Symington has been for 16 years a member of the Armed Services Committee. He was the first Secretary of the Air Force.

His wide knowledge of "modern weaponry" has been augmented by his travels to Vietnam and military bases around the world. This is the first time he has opposed a weapons system put forward by the Pentagon. (Copyright, 1969, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Looking 'Em Over

With Tommy Hart

Sports dialogue:
RICHIE ALLEN, controversial player for the Philadelphia Phillies, after missing a plane and a game in St. Louis: "I told them to get rid of me last winter. They had their chance. I don't feel sorry for them."

ADOLPH RUPP, veteran basketball coach of the University of Kentucky: "I see these young coaches come along with theories opposite to mine. So I go to the farm and think things over. Then I figure out that if these coaches begin at the age of 25 and win at least 20 games a year... then it's going to be 45 years before they're able to catch me in wins. Then I start having renewed faith in the way I coach."

DON DRYSDALE, pitcher for the Los Angeles Dodgers: "When Frank Howard was with us, he was the champion handshaker of them all. We were short of batting helmets one night. After Frank struck out, he walked to the dugout. Tommy Davis, coming forward from the on-deck circle, reached for the helmet. Frank shook his hand."

FURMAN BISHOP, Atlanta columnist: "Andy Granatelli may never have driven a car at Indianapolis, may never have owned a car that he may never have done more than constantly antagonize the USAC board, but he has the great capacity for imagining that all eyes are trained on him."

CHUCK BEDNARIK, former All-Pro footballer, on why he would never accept a coaching job: "The job isn't stable enough, and I'm a stable person."

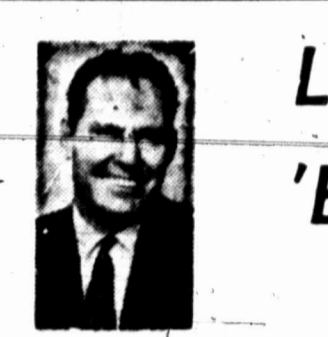

RALPH GUGLIELMI, former All-American quarterback for Notre Dame: "I once was kicked out of school for coming in 25 minutes late. Nowadays, a student can bust up a school and the authorities beg him to come back."

BOB BROEG, baseball writer: "As the first 100 years of professional baseball were reached, there was a tendency among some to ease Tris Speaker out of that mythical all-time lineup in favor of Joe DiMaggio or Willie Mays. With Mays still playing, all the returns aren't in for any comparison with Wonderful Willie and Speaker, but Spoke, as they called him, had considerable career advantages over the great DiMaggio if you'll accept what Branch Rickey would call quantitative quality. Speaker played nine more seasons than Joe, scored 491 more runs, made 1,301 more hits. He had 404 more doubles, 93 more triples and 403 more stolen bases. DiMaggio owned a sizable home run advantage, 361 to 115, but Joe didn't hit against the dead ball that was used more than half Tris' career... No one would ever have to apologize, in fact or fancy, for Speaker's wizardry afield and even counting the added outfield depth necessary because of the livelier ball, it's remarkable that Spoke would have been credited with three times as many assists as DiMaggio and nearly that large an edge over Mays. Four times in a big league career that had started in 1907 and finished in 1928, Speaker threw out 30 or more men a season, twice getting 25, the American League record."

VINCE LOMBARDI, new coach of the Washington Redskins: "The most difficult part of a new job is analyzing and understanding the personality of each player. This got most of my attention in my early days at Green Bay, and it's the top priority thing in Washington. You can't begin to coach a 40-man team until you understand each of the 40 men. You can't coach without criticizing—and it's essential to understand how to criticize each man individually. For instance, some can take constructive criticism in front of a group and some can't. Some can take it privately, but others can take it only indirectly. Football is a pressure game, and on my teams I put on most of the pressure. The point is that I've got to learn 40 ways to pressure 40 new men."

Souped-Up Fords Plentiful, Rugged

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—down the engine and rebuilding it between qualifying and race day. But this year that period will be only five days at most, with qualifying scheduled Saturday and Sunday.
"It would be impossible to re-qualify were rained out for the first time in history."
The usual routine on a car that qualifies includes tearing proved to be the most powerful of this year's engines, and there are 22 of them.

On the track Monday, drivers Sammy Sessions of Nashville, Mich., and Roger West of Joliet, Ill., wrecked their cars.
Sessions suffered a minor fracture of his left kneecap but may be able to resume driving late this week.
West scratched himself from 500 activity this year, although he was not hurt. He went high into a turn and hit the wall while nearing the end of his rookie driver's test.
Sessions, ninth in last year's race, hit a wall after a universal joint broke. He has another car available.

THERE ARE SIX CUBES, RIGHT?

It depends. Stare at them for a few seconds and the 6 cubes suddenly become 7. It's just a visual illusion. Muzak is like that. It's what you might call an aural illusion. It sounds like music but it's actually a scientifically conditioned musical environment. One that people don't really listen to but react to psychologically and physiologically.

Lockheed Feels Cancellation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft, builder of the controversial C5A transport, has been declared in default of a contract potentially worth $1 billion to produce the new Cheyenne helicopter.

Army Secretary Stanley R. Resor announced the cancellation Monday, saying legal experts ruled Lockheed failed to meet original specifications for building the 250-mile-per-hour helicopter. Lockheed board chairman D. J. Houghton called the cancellation "unfair" and said: "We will vigorously contest the Army's contention that they have a default basis for cancellation, and we will take appropriate legal action to protect our financial position on this contract."

The Cheyenne was supposed to be the first rotor gunship designed for Vietnam from the ground up, but Resor said it is afflicted with stability problems "for which the contractor has developed no adequate solution."

Houghton said "the development problems—which are normal and to be expected in achieving a major technological step forward—can be solved."

One of 10 prototypes which Lockheed has built at its Van Nuys, Calif., plant crashed on March 12, killing the pilot. The crash was said to point up flaws in the Cheyenne's unique rigid rotor system.

Cancellation of the contract means an indefinite delay in Vietnam for an advanced helicopter gunship. It stands as an apparent warning the Pentagon is cracking down on defense contractors who fail to live up to agreements for developing multibillion dollar weapons systems.

Lockheed also is having problems in Washington because the contract to build the jumbo C5A transport is costing far more than original estimates—now up to some $5 billion for 120 planes. The first Cheyenne was built in 1967 and the Army on Jan. 8, 1968, picked up an option with Lockheed to buy a minimum of 375 models. Full production was to have started next September with first units becoming operational in June, 1970.

Army officials said Monday the full production run would have cost an estimated $875 million, with spare equipment pushing the price over $1 billion. Of the $875 million, Lockheed would have gotten around $600 million, the rest going to subcontractors.

Far less than that, however, was actually committed at this point. The Army said it has obligated $120 million toward production with expenditures amounting to only $45 million. Lockheed has spent more than the $54 million and stands to suffer a direct loss in that category.

Lockheed also is threatened with loss of a big research and development contract for paperwork on the Cheyenne concept. The company has received $90 million under this pact.

Youth Council Declares War On Plans Of Panel

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Youth Council declared war Monday on plans of a blue ribbon committee to reform the TYC following a lengthy investigation of alleged brutality at state juvenile schools.

The council also defended TYC Director James A. Turman and said criticism of Turman by a Wichita Falls district judge "not only undermines public support of the Texas Youth Council and its efforts to serve the children of this state, but are unbefitting to persons holding office of public trust."

Dist. Judge Arthur Tipps, Wichita Falls, a member of the Senate Youth Affairs Committee appointed by Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, said Turman should be replaced because "he does not seem to have the know-how to perform a difficult program such as this."

Tipps said Turman's primary concern seemed to be security and control and not rehabilitation of boys sent to the Gatesville schools.

Tipps and other members of the study committee recommended that the Youth Council be enlarged from three to six members. Other recommendations included a proposal that any investigation of alleged mistreatment of juveniles at correctional schools be done by a three-member special commission, containing no legislators. Bills to carry out the committee recommendations were introduced by Sens. Criss Cole, Hous. Barnes, said Turman should be replaced because "he does not

Okay $50 Million Campaign For Poor

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — In spirited debate at a night session lasting until early today, the United Presbyterian General Assembly authorized the planning of a $50 million dollar fund-raising campaign for the poor, to start at least one year from now.

The 840 voting ministers and elders also approved giving during four hours. The meeting focused on only one portion of the lengthy report on the Church and race.

An interfaith foundation doing community work will get $100,000, while Church-owned lands in New Mexico will go to Spanish speaking groups along with $50,000 to help them with land claims before the U.S. Congress. The debate and voting pattern indicated strong suspicion of the validity of Forman's claims, as well as worry about what United Presbyterians back home around the nation think of the pressure Forman has put on their church.

Forman and his counterparts in two Spanish speaking groups presented lists of demands to the United Presbyterian annual meeting last Thursday. They added up to well over $50 million.

The general mood among the 2,000 persons in the hall was against too swift an outlay of church money to satisfy black and brown power demands.

The report was the work of a standing committee that did its basic drafting before Forman became a nationally known figure in late April with his "black manifesto," but the final submitted version, rewritten here over the past week, reflected awareness of him.

Church Merge Vote Slated

HOUSTON (AP) — Delegates to the first session of the all-Negro Gulf Coast Conference of the United Methodist Church will vote Wednesday on a proposal to merge with the all-white Texas Conference.

The Gulf Coast Conference, which convened Monday, represents 18,000 members in 164 churches. The conference also was called the Texas Conference until the name was changed last summer at a jurisdictional meeting.

The present Texas Conference represents 235,000 members.

Bishop Kenneth W. Copeland of Houston, head of the Gulf Coast Conference, told the Monday session the church must respond to key issues in society.

"Our responsibility is to respond to the needs of others in every possible way," he said.

"We need to have the ability to respond to our own inner convictions with respect and dignity, and at the same time respond to the call of God who tells us to serve those inside and outside the church," Bishop Copeland said.

Amendments from the floor that would have meant immediate massive outlays were rejected again and again.

Help Asked In Preventing Disorder Here

Chief of Police Jay Banks today asked the co-operation of all local citizens, including those of minority races, in helping prevent incidents which might lead to civil disorder. During the weekend, two explosive situations developed here, he said, but these were largely due to the actions of one or two "militants."

"We want to continue having excellent relations with our own minority races here," he said, "and we will continue to afford them every protection of the law. The best way they can help us is not to become inadvertently involved in incidents by being part of an unruly crowd, because of their own curiosity."

In the event of a large gathering surrounded a police officer doing his duty, Banks urged all law abiding citizens to clear the area immediately when the order is given to disperse. There will be no second order and no repeated warnings, he said.

"We can handle the problem of agitators," but we are concerned about the welfare of innocent bystanders."

Twice last weekend, police officers were confronted by near violent situations while handling routine duties which brought them into close proximity with groups of people infiltrated by agitators. No serious problems developed from either one, Banks said, but officers had to call support to avert it.
