Fear All 79 Dead In Mexico Plane Crash

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — Seventy-nine persons, including Mexico's hope for the Davis Cup and a former president of the nation's ruling party, are believed to have died in the crash of a Mexican jetliner on a mountain.

A helicopter pilot who flew over the wreckage of the Mexicana de Aviacion plane reported debris was scattered across the side of the mountain 30 miles west of Monterrey and was still burning hours after the crash Wednesday. He said there was no chance anyone survived and no sign of life on the cloud-covered mountain.

Rescue workers were within eight miles of the scene when bad weather and rugged terrain halted them Wednesday night. Military authorities said 300 soldiers, police and volunteers would try to climb the mountain today and hoped to reach the crash site by early afternoon.

Two U.S. Coast Guard helicopters from New Orleans, La., and Corpus Christi, Tex., and several helicopters sent by the Mexican government were to try to reach the scene this morning if there was a break in the rainy, foggy weather.

Authorities said if the choppers couldn't land on the mile-high mountain, climbers would try to bring the bodies out by "sheer manpower." There are no roads on the uninhabited mountain in the Sierra Madre, and the climb is a dangerous one.

The Boeing 727 jet was approaching Monterrey airport on a flight from Mexico City Wednesday morning when the pilot was told the landing strip was closed due to bad weather. He headed northwest, and it was thought he might have landed at an alternate airfield.

But when there was no further word of the plane, more than a score of aircraft joined a search of the desolate region around Monterrey.

Rogers Talks U.S. Pullout And Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said today that the training of South Vietnamese forces to take over more combat—and release American troops—is "moving along at a rapid pace."

Rogers also told a news conference in response to questions about peace negotiations on Vietnam that "We're not wedded to any government in Saigon."

"We're wedded to the principle that the people of South Vietnam will decide their own future," he said.

"Any government that the people of South Vietnam choose is all right with us."

Rogers refused to say whether or not President Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu would announce any plan for U.S. troop withdrawals from South Vietnam when they meet at Midway Island Sunday.

SPECULATION

There has been speculation—which Rogers refused to support today—that they might announce a timetable for withdrawal of 50,000 troops or more.

Rogers was in South Vietnam three weeks ago and talked with top U.S. and South Vietnamese officials. Asked what his conclusions were about the readiness and willingness of the South Vietnamese to replace U.S. forces he said:

"I have no doubt in my mind that the government of Vietnam is moving in this direction. They are willing to take over more of the responsibility. The training of the army of Vietnam (South Vietnam) is moving along at a rapid pace."

TRAGIC HOURS

On other questions Rogers said:

"It would be a tragic thing if our relations deteriorated with Latin America and this administration does not intend to let that happen."

Rogers made that comment in summing up demonstrations against President Nixon's special envoy, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, in Latin America in the last few weeks. Rockefeller had to cancel visits to the three countries, but Rogers noted that he had visited 10 countries, and Rogers said he thought even the demonstrations would help bring about improvements in U.S.-Latin American relations.

"There seems to be general agreement" between the United States and Russia and some other countries that a final plan for settling the Middle East crisis "has to be a package—a total agreement." Rogers did not explain this except to say that a step-by-step process is no longer considered feasible.

Assassination: One Year Later

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Wounds suffered by the five persons shot with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy a year ago today have healed. But for three of them, pain or occasional numbness remain.

Elizabeth Evans, 43, a housewife, says that sometimes when she brushes her hair she forgets for a moment. The bristles saw roughly across the Z-shaped scar at her hairline. The pain is brief, but intense.

Ira Goldstein, 20, has recurring pains in his left leg. Sometimes it goes numb or stiffens after he drives a car to work, forcing him to limp.

Irwin Stoll, 18, also has a bum left leg now. It freezes now and then, seems to be without feeling. Once he almost fell down the stairs when it went numb.

Every time William Weisel, 31, takes off his clothes a foot-long scar on his stomach is a reminder of the night Kennedy was slain just after proclaiming victory in California's Democratic presidential primary.

Paul Schrader, 44, labor union organizer, was hospitalized the longest—six months. Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, now on San Quentin's death row, was convicted of shooting them and Kennedy.

Of the group, only Weisel, a newsman from Washington, D.C., agrees with the death penalty for Sirhan: "If you do something like this you should be ready for the punishment."

Weisel thought he was going to die. A bullet lodged near his spine.

"The assassination gave me a new outlook on life—live now, enjoy now, sort of," he says.

Goldstein, an electronics company employee, had been thinking of a political career. He says he is disillusioned now, perhaps may change but wonders "if there are enough sick people running around to completely destroy your efforts for anything good."

Stoll, an art student, says that in the last year "I've become more aware of the problems the senator was trying to explain. I'm waking up to the fact that you have to change the world because no one else is going to do it."

Water District Plans To Seek Rehearing

The Colorado River Municipal Water District will file a motion for a rehearing in the wake of the Texas Supreme Court's refusal to review a case that involves condemnation of almost a fourth of the acreage in the new E. V. Spence reservoir.

No decision in the case will be made pending a ruling on the motion, which would be the last procedural resort in state courts.

The court said it could find no reversible error in a Court of Civil Appeals decision that condemnation of more than 4,000 acres for the Robert Lee Reservoir in Coke County must be retried.

A Coke County jury awarded Mrs. Helen Harris Wilcoxon $545,580 for 4,014 acres plus a flowage easement on another 442 acres.

Mrs. Wilcoxon appealed.

saying the award was not big enough and did not take into full consideration the oil production on her land.

The 3rd Court of Civil Appeals here ordered a retrial on grounds the trial judge had erred in telling the jury it could consider the Colorado River Municipal Water District's promise to provide drilling mounds and connecting dikes for the oil and gas wells on the land. This, the appeals court said, was a comment on the weight of the evidence.

The landowner's attorneys argued the promise was unilateral and was not embodied in any agreement with Mrs. Wilcoxon.

Attorneys for the water district urged the Supreme Court to review the case and strike down the civil appeals decision.

The results of the civil appeals ruling, they said, "could be extremely harmful to Texas' efforts to develop its surface water resources."

The necessary effect of the decision is to make it impossible for governmental bodies with water supply responsibilities to avoid large expenditures for mineral damage when lake must be built at a reservoir site which contains oil and gas production.

The attorneys said a water district would be faced with the prospect of paying tremendous damages, considering minerals at a prohibitive cost or abandoning a project if the decision were allowed to stand.

They contended the district's offer of drilling mounds to rescue the oil wells was a good faith effort to salvage Mrs. Wilcoxon's mineral production.

'Dragon Fly' Rockets Aloft

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A "dragon fly" spacecraft rocketed aloft today on twin missions—one as abstractly scientific as cosmic rays, the other with the down-to-earth goal of putting more food on the world's tables.

The 1,393-pound OGO 6 is the last and largest of a series of orbiting geophysical observatories. It was fired at 7:43 a.m. by a Thorad-Agena booster—a long-tank Thor rocket with solid rockets strapped on its side—into an orbit around the earth's poles that will range from 245 to 680 miles high.

"It's traveling very, very well," said a government spokesman. "A total of 25 experiments, some with antennas and booms extending to a span up to 80 feet, will sample radiation trapped in the earth's magnetic field and measure the intensity of solar flares occurring during its expected lifetime of more than a year."

At a launch news conference, TRW scientist Eric Burnett said the 6-by-3-by-3 foot craft could be adapted to carry color television and other sensors that would be able to pinpoint vast schools of fish for commercial fleets, detect crop disease before it becomes widespread, spot tidal waves and forest fires in the making, and locate remote regions likely to contain rich mineral deposits.

Task Force Releases Report On Violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are a rather blood-minded people who "are likely to remain so as long as so many of us think violence is an ultimate solution to social problems," a task force for the National Commission on Violence reported today.

The 300,000 word report by two scholars was released on the anniversary of the fatal shooting of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, whose assassination led to formation of the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence.

It's the first of several task force reports to be issued by the commission, which already has published investigative studies of several civil disorders in the United States in 1968.

The main body of the bulky two-volume report is a collection of historical and sociological studies delving into violence in the United States since its founding.

A brief summary—by historian Hugh Davis Graham of Johns Hopkins University and political scientist Lee Robert Gurr of Princeton—contained these observations:

"Americans have always been a violent people, although this violence has assumed different forms and has involved different groups."

"But Americans have been a part to a kind of historical amnesia that masks much of their turbulent past. Probably all nations share this tendency to sweeten memories of their past through collective repression, but Americans have probably magnified this process of selective recollection, owing to our historic vision of ourselves as a latter-day chosen people, a New Jerusalem."

But, Graham and Gurr say, "the 1960s rank as one of our most violent eras." Added to the black-white confrontations of recent years, the scholars said:

"Contemporary antiwar protest is unprecedented, both in scope and magnitude, as is universal unrest and the chilling recent contagion of political murders of national leaders . . ."

"Rates of violent crime may have generally declined as the industrial metropolis matured, only to have spiraled alarmingly in recent years—much of it reflecting the pathology of the black ghettos."

The report offered these statistical measures:

"In numbers of political assassinations, riots, politically relevant armed group attacks, and demonstrations, the United States has been among the half-dozen most tumultuous nations in the world."

"But despite its frequency, civil strife in the United States has taken much less disruptive forms than in many non-Westerns."

"Eleven of every thousand Americans took part in a civil strife from mid-1963 to mid-1968."

"Six of these 17 had higher rates of participation than the United States, including Belgium, France, and Italy."

"Although 220 Americans died in violent civil strife in the five years before mid-1968, the rate of 1.1 per million population was infinitesimal compared with the average of 238 deaths per million for all nations, and less than half the European average of 2.4 per million."

"In total magnitude of strife, taking into account the unusual frequency and duration of strife in the United States as well as its more moderate levels of participation and casualties, the United States ranks first among the 17 Western democracies, and 24th among the 114 larger nations and colonies of the world."

Graham and Gurr said a primary reason why violence persists in the United States is that "some fundamental grievances in the United States have not only gone unresolved but have intensified in recent years."

The ethnic and cultural mix of the U.S. population, they said, "has meant all but inevitable group competition, friction and conflict."

Paris (AP) — North Vietnam accused President Nixon today of outdoing former President Lyndon B. Johnson in intensifying the Vietnam war in pursuit of "neo-colonialist aims."

South Vietnam at the 20th session of the expanded peace talks accused the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong of trying to delay negotiations "because you expect a military victory."

The United States was more restrained, asking North Vietnam whether it was prepared to withdraw its forces in a peace settlement.

Ha Van Lau, North Vietnam's deputy representative, devoted almost his entire speech to an attack on the Nixon administration. He sat in for chief negotiator Xuan Thuy, who is in Hanoi for consultation.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, who leaves later in the day en route to Midway Island for the meeting of Nixon Sunday with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam, asked a series of questions about the Viet Cong's 10-point peace plan.

He asked North Vietnam and

West Point Weddings

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Twin daughters of a retired Army colonel married West Point graduates Wednesday making it three daughters now that he's given in marriage to Military Academy men. All the weddings resulted from blind dates the colonel maneuvered.

"We had moved into a new neighborhood in Bowie, Md., and the girls didn't know anyone," said the father, Lt. Col. Richard P. Cassidy. "I was feeling sorry for them so I called up the hostess at West Point and asked if there was anyway she could have them introduced around."

The Cassidy's, now of Aurora, Colo., brought their two West Point for a weekend in 1967. The girls took it from there.

Jo Ann, 19, married 2nd Lt. Larry B. Main last June after graduation ceremonies.

The twins, blonde Constance and brunette Lorretta, both 22, were married in the same church a year later.

"I almost didn't think I would make it," said Lorretta. "Connie got engaged in November. I didn't get the letter proposing until February."

Lorretta's husband is 1st Lt. Robert E. Keenan Jr. of Mountain Home, Idaho, a 1967 graduate, who recently returned from Vietnam and is scheduled to return June 26.

Constance married 2nd Lt. Stephen William, of Cincinnati, who was one of 800 cadets graduated Wednesday morning. He reports soon to Ft. Sill, Okla.

The logistics of a double wedding presented no special problems for the Army family, but it was discovered that the girls, in their identical white organza dresses, could not walk down the aisle beside their father without sweeping the pews with their dresses.

The girls settled the question by having Lorretta, 15 minutes older than her twin, take their father's arm. Connie walked behind them.

The wedding was one of 59 scheduled this week after graduation.

CHURCH CONFERENCE Court Order Forbids Students To Interrupt

HOUSTON (AP) — Three Texas Southern University students have been placed under a temporary restraining order to prevent them from interrupting the Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Dist. Judge Thomas J. Stovall Jr. granted Wednesday the order against James Shorten, 21, R. E. Shaw, 22, and Foy Briscoe, all of Houston.

The conference's governing cabinet had asked for the order against the three who interrupted a conference meeting Tuesday with demands for $29 million from the organization for services to blacks, including a black library.

The suit asks that the students be restrained and enjoined from interrupting, harassing and interfering with the regular business of the conference. An injunction hearing was set for Friday.

Plainclothesmen sat in the audience Wednesday to head off any disturbance. The conference unanimously rejected as unrealistic demands for "reparations" presented by the three, members of the Organization for Black Student Unity.

In other action the conference delegates rejected full support of Project Equality, a nationwide ecumenical effort which promotes equal employment opportunity.

The conference accepted an amended report which called for "the personal involvement of laymen with the needy and poor, the laymen of the Negro church, and the youths of our land who are in trouble."

Project Equality had been endorsed, however, by the Gulf Coast Conference, a virtually all-black United Methodist Conference which merged with the all white Texas Annual Conference Tuesday.

Bishop Kenneth W. Copeland urged Methodists not to allow the racial incidents to affect the $20 million fund for reconciliation, a nationwide Methodist social action program.

"This fund will not be turned over to James Forman," he said.

Forman heads the Black Economic Development Conference which has issued a "black manifesto" demanding $500 million from religious groups in this nation.

Instead, he said, the church would put the money to work in areas of ecumenism, race, poverty, communications and the "rehabilitation and reconstruction in Vietnam following the cessation of hostilities there."

Mrs. E. M. Decker Jr., president of the Texas Conference Women's Society of Christian Service, delivered a speech on brotherhood and dignity.

"I must be honest," she said. "If I were a black person, I would hate all of you here."

Survivors Of South China Sea Collision

Two unidentified American sailors, clad in borrowed Australian shirts and still showing evidence of their ordeal, are shown aboard the Australian carrier HMS Melbourne this week, shortly after being hauled from the ocean. The carrier sliced their ship, the U. S. Destroyer Frank E. Evans, in half during SEATO maneuvers on Tuesday. Seventy-four American sailors were lost in the accident.

Few Survivors Tell About Heroism Among Shipmates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veteran U.S. naval officers say the burden of responsibility to avoid collision normally rests on the aircraft carriers they escort.

When changing station a destroyer is supposed to avoid crossing the bow of an accompanying carrier and is required to take a wide swinging course to its new position, the officers said in interviews.

While saying they did not want to prejudge an investigation, these officers indicated they accept the Australian version of the South China Sea collision Tuesday in which the Australian carrier Melbourne sliced in half the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans. The bow of the Evans sank and 74 American sailors were lost.

"It sounds so much like what's happened before," one U.S. Navy man said. "The Australians have sent the U.S. Navy a classified account which reportedly pictures the Evans as turning one way when she should have turned the other."

The secret report also describes the Evans as running under the bow of the Melbourne, sources said.

In a public statement, the Australian Navy Department has claimed the collision occurred after the Melbourne ordered the Evans, ahead of her in a screen, to change station astern of the carrier.

"Evans approached on a collision course, and, despite urgent action by Melbourne, a collision occurred," the Australian navy said.

Unlike the Australians, the U.S. Navy is saying virtually nothing in public about the incident pending the outcome of a joint U.S.-Australian investigation arranged Wednesday.

One reason for this, sources said, is that the Navy Department hasn't received a report from the Evans' skipper, Cmdr. A.S. McLemore, or other officers who survived.

Most survivors were sleeping when the destroyer was chopped in two.

In their first official account of the disaster, none of the survivors interviewed reported any prior warning. But naval officials at Pearl Harbor emphasized it did not necessarily mean there was none.

"A large part of the crew was asleep," a Navy spokesman said, "and everything happened so fast. There may have been sirens and bells—we don't know."

The forward section of the Evans sank within minutes, engulfing 71 seamen, within the severed hull. Another was killed. His was the only body recovered.

All but two of the 199 survivors, five of them injured seriously, now are aboard the U.S. carrier Kearsarge bound for Subic Bay, Philippines. The other two survivors were flown to a hospital in Cam Ranh Bay, South Vietnam.

Aboard the Kearsarge draft document calling for Communist unity against imperialism, there were indications from some delegates that an internal struggle might develop before the conference ends. It was expected to begin late today and last from one to three weeks.

A significant percentage of the world's Communists are not represented at the Kremlin-organized summit, including those from Red China, North Vietnam, North Korea, Yugoslavia, Albania, Japan and the Netherlands.

In a front-page editorial Pravda said: "All those who really uphold the sacred revolutionary ideals, not just pay lip service to them, wish the conference every success in the attainment of the tasks facing it."

Many of the conference delegations apparently have accepted Moscow's effort to sidestep such controversial issues as the invasion of Czechoslovakia last August.

But some Western Communist sources indicated their delegations might attempt to win changes in the basic document to be submitted for approval, especially where it concerns "questions of sovereignty" and Soviet domination of other nations in the Communist bloc. They would like to include a provision barring intervention "without clear qualifications."

Clouds Thin Over Texas

By The Associated Press
Clouds thinned over much of Texas and light south breezes fanned a good part of the state today.

It was clear nearly everywhere except the southeast and south central sections, where there were still many areas of low clouds. There also was some early morning fog around such places as Lufkin, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Victoria, Killeen and San Angelo.

Fair weather returned after more than two inches of rain fell in the preceding 24 hours in Galveston, College Station, Laredo and Midland, while Houston received an inch and a half and more than an inch was measured at Beaumont and Cotulla.

Rising temperatures were promised throughout the state. Wednesday's top marks went no higher than 67 degrees at Beaumont and Houston, but the mercury climbed to 95 at Pecos in the Big Bend country.

International Communist Conference Under Way

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev opened the Kremlin-dominated International Communist Conference today with a charge that imperialists of the world are afraid of Communist unity.

The conference, boycotted by China and several other major parties, has been promoted by Moscow as a step toward Communist unity. Seventy-five of the world's Communist parties are attending.

Tass said the delegates were greeted warmly by Brezhnev at the opening session in St. George Hall of the Great Kremlin Palace. There has been no word on how long the conference will last.

Tass quoted Brezhnev as saying the unnamed imperialists "will do all they can to belittle the importance of the conference and to present its proceedings and results in a distorted light."

But he added that the mere fact that the conference has been convened "testifies to the realization by Communists of their great responsibility for the destiny of peace and social progress."

WAGES LABELED KEY ISSUE

Grape Boycott Brews Trouble

By JIM CHURCH Associated Press Writer

DELANO, Calif. (AP) — As new grapes grow in the vineyards, Cesar Chavez and his union members are busy organizing the second season of what they hope will become a nationwide consumer boycott of California table grapes.

But the growers contend that Chavez does not have the support of the majority of the workers, that the workers are not oppressed as he maintains and that this summer's harvest will not be severely hurt by any boycott or strikes. The grapes will be ready for picking in early July.

How in the world did they get the grapes picked last year if Chavez has the support he says he has? asks one farmer. The long bitter dispute not only has driven Chavez people and the growers into polarized camps that don't communicate but also has split politicians, clergymen, townspeople and many of the workers themselves.

And there is no sign of a settlement. Chavez spends much of his time in the run-down union headquarters in bed, convalescing from a spinal bone disease and a kidney ailment aggravated by his 25-day fast a year ago.

I sent letters and proposed elections," he said in a quiet but angry tone during a recent bed-side interview. "Now it's too late. We're not just having elections, we're having a referendum. All we need is just one meeting. That's all it took with the wine producers."

He said the workers have no job security, are poorly paid, lack disability benefits, that some growers use pesticides harmful to the workers, that some growers have no sanitary toilet facilities in the fields.

But he said back when "La Causa"—the movement—began the farm worker averaged $1.50 an hour whereas now some get $1.90 and all the table grapes growers are paying higher wages.

STAYED IN FIELDS "I'm convinced our activity has prompted the increase," Chavez said. After bitter strikes in 1966 his group got union contracts with a dozen wine and raisin producers but with just one large table grape grower, DiGiorgio Corp.

One of the world's leading producers 10 years ago, DiGiorgio since has sold all its vineyards. Anti-Chavez people say it was because of the union.

The growers, of which there are about 70 in the Delano area in southern San Joaquin Valley, say they are not antionion but that they are against the closed shop. They are afraid of strikes at harvest time, of an increasing influx of South American grapes.

Lou Caratan, who with his partner operates a 1,000-acre farm, talked about the dispute. "My workers stayed in the fields," he says. "With the boycott Chavez is trying to tell us: We can't organize your workers, but we will make you wish we had."

He said there have been no elections "because Chavez wants elections only on his terms. It's also our understanding that union membership is mandatory. "I've never had any talks with him. The only contact was a letter saying, 'I represent your workers.' That's ridiculous.

Relatives Of 39 Crewmen Reject Settlement Offer

NEW YORK (AP) — Relatives of 39 crewmen lost on the ill-fated tanker Marine Sulphur Queen reportedly turned down a settlement offer of 17.5 cents on the dollar Wednesday in the trial of a $20-million damage suit against the tanker owners.

In seeking the $20 million, the relatives charged negligence. They were said to have been offered $3.5 million out of court.

The trial began Tuesday and was recessed while lawyers for both sides met outside the courtroom. Federal Judge John M. Cannella is hearing the case.

The ship vanished Feb. 4, 1963, northwest of the Dry Tortugas in the Gulf of Mexico. The nature of her fate was never determined. She was carrying 15,000 tons of sulphur from Beaumont, Tex., to Norfolk, Va.

The Sulphur Queen's owners and operators, Marine Sulphur Transport Co. and Marine Transport Lines, Inc., are asking the court to rule there was no negligence on their part.

Unless they are exonerated of negligence, damages would be fixed in a subsequent trial.

support for him I don't see how we could withstand his efforts. To hurt us there had to be a shortage of help. There wasn't and I don't think there will be this summer."

The union contract with the wine and raisin producers has a charge for nonunion members, but does not force them to join a union official says. It provides a minimum of $1.62 an hour.

Wages are a key issue. A growers pamphlet says that in New York State, where many stores refused to stock California table grapes, farm workers earned 24 cents a hour less than the average of $1.90 in Kern County. The South Central Farmer Committee says the average hourly pay is $2.30 at harvest time.

"We live by the year, not by the hour," Chavez retorts. "A grape picker's average annual income, according to the Kern County Farm Bureau, is $4,500. There is employment directly connected with grapes about eight months of the year and other farm work is available during slack grape periods the barest scrap."

NOT STARVING "We're not starving," says union pickers, "but the farm workers are on the very bottom."

Another question open for heated debate, as indicated by Caratan's comment, is how much support Chavez and his union have among other workers.

Chavez' union discriminates against those who aren't Mexicans. A 25-year-old nonunion worker charges Chavez denies any discrimination but he does agree that he lacks strong support from white farm workers.

"I don't really know why the Anglo workers are against us. I suppose you can't blame them after what happened in '49 and '50" when braceros brought in from Mexico broke strikes by domestic workers.

The growers show pictures of Mexican-Americans in the vineyards and maintain that persons who managed picket lines in the past strikes were outsiders—clergymen, hippies, campus militants and pod professors.

The union shows pictures of Mexican-Americans on the picket lines and maintains the growers used migrants and what they call "green carders," workers from Mexico who come by special permit to work a short time. The growers answer the migrant labor charge by producing payroll records that say they pay 70 per cent of the workers in the fields at the peak of last year's harvest west from the Delano area and the rest from other parts of Kern County.

STRIKE CRY The union claims a 2,500 year-round membership and 5,000 members at harvest time. There are about 20,000 farm workers in the county in all kinds of farm jobs, according to the Farm Bureau.

The strike cry of "La Huelga" will be heard again in the vineyards in July, Chavez says, but adds that the future of the union depends on a nationwide consumer boycott.

Work organizing the boycott is going full blast. In union headquarters 8 p.m. one night recently, Elaine Elinson, 21, typed boycott lists and instructions aimed at stores and chains that continue to stock California grapes. She had just returned from Sweden where she helped longshore unions stop the unloading of three ships carrying grapes, which were eventually unloaded at Hamburg, Germany. Juanita Brown, 24, was busy answering a stream of telephone calls. Others ground out publicity releases.

"We feel encouraged," Juanita said. "We have people from Delano in 50 cities." She listed Chicago, New York, Boston, Detroit, Baltimore and others among those where stores have agreed not to stock the green Thompsons, black Ribbers, purple Muscatis and Concord.

Juanita has pictures she says show dumping of grapes at Lou Caratan's farm. She said the farm could not sell them, and that over-all the boycott cut 10 to 15 per cent into the grower's profit.

But the growers say they were unaffected by last summer's boycott and look toward July with confidence. And Caratan denies dumping any grapes because he couldn't sell them.

Denies Odessa Swindling Rap

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Home E. Koon Jr. of Gainesville pleaded innocent Wednesday to charges of conspiring to swindle an Odessa savings association of over a million dollars.

Three others named in an indictment have already pleaded innocent. A federal grand jury in Odessa indicted Koon, along with Kenneth L. Musgrave of Dallas, Marshall Womack of Bedford and Jack Bryant of Abilene, on May 22. They were charged on seven counts of conspiring to defraud $1.2 million from the Home Savings Association of Odessa.

Koon, Womack and Bryant are all free on $20,000 bond. Musgrave was released in $250,000 bond.

Musgrave was, until September, 1968, the majority owner of the savings and loan association. Bryant was the firm's attorney.

The four are charged with arranging two loans of $600,000 on collateral which the government says was grossly inadequate.

Suspect Held Without Bond

Arthur "Bunny" Eckert, 35, was arrested Tuesday in San Antonio on the same charge. An all-points bulletin has been issued for the arrest of Donald R. Weimer, 33, of San Antonio. The three were charged in the killing of Henry C. "Champ" Carter, 51, who was found shot to death in Medina County on Oct. 14, 1968.

Grenades Rip In Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (AP) — Hand grenades exploded in Jerusalem today as a group of soldiers outside a police station in the El Ma'azi refugee camp south of Gaza City. Three Israelis were wounded.

Tension was high in Gaza, and some shops were closed.

A hand grenade was lobbed over the Old City's walls near Herod's Gate. One Israeli soldier and three Arabs were wounded, a police official reported.

Steel-helmeted troops carrying machine guns were on the spot within seconds. They moved into the walled city and began a house-to-house search. Six Arabs were arrested as suspects.

Troops in light trucks and troop carriers patrolled the perimeters of Old Jerusalem while police set up checkpoints outside. They stopped Arabs entering the area to look for explosives or weapons.

Police later broke up a procession of 50 Arab school girls who tried to march and lay wreaths at a cemetery of Jordanian war dead. They arrested six of the girls.

A business strike also was reported in Nablus, but other West Bank cities were reported quiet.

Arab guerrillas also opened bazooka and light arms fire on an Israeli army patrol on the Jordan River in the Beisan Valley. It was reported.

Israeli forces returned fire. There were no Israeli casualties or damage, the army said.

Cut In Impacted Area Funds To Cost El Paso

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Richard White said Wednesday that a cut in so-called impacted area funds will cost El Paso, Texas, $3 million it has been promised by the federal government.

An impacted area is one in which government facilities — usually military based — place a heavy strain on local government systems, especially their education systems.

Under changes in the impacted area program proposed by President Nixon, funds would go only for students actually residing on federal property.

White said that in the El Paso area only 3.378 of the 25.1 students whose parents work at U.S. installations actually live on base.

White said El Paso is a major center for anti-aircraft missile training, the training center for the Safeguard antiballistic missile system, and an Army basic training center.

The parents of 20,000 students living off base pay taxes on homes or live in rented houses on which the owners pay taxes, White said.

But the federal installations, where they are employed do not pay school taxes. These students, therefore, place a substantial load upon our hard-pressed school districts without the same compensating factor which would be present if the parents were employed at any tax-paying enterprise," White said.

In El Paso County military installations occupy 65,000 acres or more than 106 square miles of non-taxable land — land which has been declared by the state legislature to be a part of the various school districts and yet which cannot be taxed by them," said White.

He testified before a closed session of a House Appropriations subcommittee on education.

Both the El Paso and Ysleta school districts in the city of El Paso are taxing within a few cents of the legal limit, White said, to meet increasing demands.

For 20 years, the districts have relied upon impacted area payments as part of their budgets.

Officials Charge Ranch Worker In Rape-Slaying

MEXIA, Tex. (AP) — Carlos Don Stultz, 26, a Mexia ranch hand, was formally charged Wednesday in the rape-slaying of a pretty, 17-year-old high school girl.

Stultz, whose wife is pregnant, underwent several hours of questioning and lie detector tests at the Waco Department of Public Safety regional headquarters before he was charged. Justice of the peace Sam Bonner, who sat for the arraignment, said he would not set bond in the case "for the safety of the defendant."

The body of Cathy Jones, partly disrobed and wrapped in a quilt, was discovered in a clump of bushes on a farm three miles south of Mexia Tuesday. Police said she had been raped and stabbed 18 times, apparently with "a small, sharp pocket knife."

Police arrested Stultz Wednesday at the J. I. Riddle ranch, where he had worked about two months.

After being questioned and tested, Stultz told newsmen he had confessed to the slaying. Officers said he had agreed to show them where he had disposed of the murder weapon.

Miss Jones, a twirler with the Mexia band, left school Tuesday at noon to go home for lunch. She did not return.

"She was stabbed 18 times that we know of from her neck to her abdomen," Bonner said. "It was probably a small, sharp pocket knife. The stab wounds didn't look very big."

The girl was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jones.

Blast Kills At Least Four

CARNEYS POINT, N. J. (AP) — A series of chain-reaction blasts, their origin still a mystery, ignited more than 100 tons of gunpowder Wednesday, leveling three storage buildings at the DuPont Co.'s explosive plant and killing at least four men. Three others are missing and presumed dead.

The structures in which the seven men were moving burlap bags of powder like sacks of potatoes just disappeared, leaving only shallow crater on soft grassy marshland along the Delaware River. They were one-story, corrugated iron buildings, 30 by 60 feet.

Investigators probed the charred earth and searched the underbrush for clues to the missing, and to the cause of the detonations that sent shock waves as far as 30 miles breaking windows and tumbling dishes, and furniture.

Flying glass and debris inside the 830-acre site of the 78-year-old plant injured 36 workers.

An unknown number of other men, women and children — struck by pieces of broken glass in schools, homes and stores — also were injured.

POST MORTEM-2

Study Pains Utility Giants

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (P) — To a legislator, an interim study is often half a loaf. It's better than nothing.

He would like to pass his bill, but can't, so he asks for a special committee, or existing state agency to study the subject between sessions. The request is almost always granted.

This means it is a fairly easy task to get an interim study set up, and dozens are created each session, making them at important link between legislative sessions, carrying old problems from year to year until a solution is found.

The topics may be a state agency that spends millions of dollars where a legislator parks his car. The recent session had its share, or more, of the special study groups established, and most were adopted without open controversy.

THAT HURTS

One, however, touched the nerves of Texas' public utility giants, and their spokesmen—cluding former House Speaker Claude Gilmer of Rock Springs and former Sen. Searcy Bracewell of Houston—opposed it.

The resolution creating the committee proposed that five senators appointed by Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes should "study the feasibility of establishing a public utilities rate commission."

That was Lufkin Sen. Charles Wilson's half a loaf. His bill set up a nine-member state agency to regulate utilities per se, and the Senate State Affairs committee after separate hearings that stretched over three months.

When the utilities, which had protested the proposed agency, came back to object to the study committee, Wilson fumed: "It's the first time I've ever known a study resolution to be opposed at a committee hearing."

STRONG VICTORY

Sen. Jack Strong of Longview also won a consolation victory after he failed on the Senate floor to insert a "reasonable consolidation" plan for public

Sand Springs Lions Sponsor Sale For Blind

The Sand Springs Lions Club will sponsor a Texas Blind Shops Caravan Saturday at the Marshall Day Body Shop.

Household items manufactured by blind workmen in Texas Blind Shops and Light-houses will be sold. Items include ironing board covers and pads, door mats, brooms and mops.

Proceeds from the sale will be used for Lions Club community projects in Sand Springs. Johnny L. Zetterkopf will be in charge of sales.

tion calling for a nine-member interim committee to review "school district organization" was approved without difficulty.

Speaker Gus Mutscher's opposition killed a bill deleting the requirement of courses in American history and Texas and national government for degrees from state universities. So a study was approved on what should be done.

WILL CHECK

Three senators and two private citizens will check out and report to another session the possibility of creating a state consumer protection department to operate in today's "multi-billion dollar world of high-speed, high-pressure advertising and selling."

Five House members will try to determine if Texas needs a special agency to control treasure hunters.

Legislators also decided a between-sessions look needs to be taken at slums, welfare reforms, water safety, wildlife resources,

Concessions Are Available

Organizations interested in operating the concessions stand during the Starlight Specials July 13-19 may submit applications to Harry Brooks, 267-2953, or at Webb AFB, extension 2511. Assignments will be made on a first-come, first served basis, he said.

Barnes Makes Another Pitch

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes got another chance Wednesday at convincing Gov. Preston Smith he should sign a one-year spending bill which Smith has said he doesn't like.

Barnes told a news conference Wednesday it would help him plan his summer travels and vacation if he knew what Smith planned to do with the $2.84 billion appropriations bill.

Smith has hinted he might veto the bill because he wanted a traditional two-year spending proposal. The governor also could let the bill become law without his signature.

Barnes said he has been invited to speak to the Lions Club International meeting in Tokyo July 5. He said he also plans to attend the national Lieutenant Governor's Conference in Denver in late June and that this is scheduled to preside over the national legislative conference in St. Louis the "last of August."

Barnes said Smith would have to approve fund transfers and fee bills totaling some $25 million for the $51.0 million teacher pay raise to be certified by the state comptroller. The comptroller already has said the general appropriations bill can be financed out of the expected revenue.

If Smith vetoes the spending bill, Barnes said, "I hope he'll call us back (into session) very quickly." He said it would be "very difficult" to write an appropriation bill if Smith vetoes the bill and waits until after the

Aug. 5 constitutional amendments election—as some have speculated—to call a special session.

Barnes' aides passed out an eight-page report on the "accomplishments" of the recent public school study committee.

were listed as "major legislative not enacted": constitutional revision, a legislative ethics code, a measure to lower the voting age and the "majority" of the recommendations of the public school study committee.

A GREAT AMERICAN...

Dwight David Eisenhower was a man of great accomplishment. For the first time, here is the complete biography of the general, politician and statesman who became a legend in his own time.

Relman Morin, the AP's two-time Pulitzer Prize winner, provides a detailed and colorful 140,000-word account of the Kansas farm boy who rose to become a hero of World War II and the 34th President of the United States in "Eisenhower: A Gauge of Greatness." Morin, who knew Ike for a quarter of a century, measures the man by the gauge of greatness Ike set up himself.

The result is this handsome volume illustrated by more than 85 pictures in color and black and white. It is available to you through this newspaper at the special price of only $3.

... A GREAT BOOK!

This special edition costs only $3 and contains:

- It is hard-bound in a handsome green cloth cover and gold lettering, an outstanding addition to your home library.

Expos Set Record For Expansionists

By The Associated Press. The Expos set a record for expansionists by winning their first game, a 4-3 victory over the Montreal Expos. The game was a sell-out, and the Expos' performance was widely praised. The team's expansion into the National League East was a major event in baseball history.

Negro Linksters Can Win, Insists Eder

WASHINGTON (AP) - Lee Eder says there are many Negroes who could be successful on the professional golf tour but they can't get the necessary financial backing. Eder, one of the few Negroes on the pro tour, also says racial taunts at some of the tournaments he's played in California, Tennessee and Florida have persuaded him to consider bypassing those events.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

SAN FRANCISCO - It's generally acknowledged in the golfing world, and not denied by the accused, that Deane Beman keeps his hand in the game mainly to promote his burgeoning insurance business. In a way, crooner Don Cherry reasons the attention he occasionally draws in competition with the touring pros doesn't do his career in show business a bit of harm.

Shell goes to tremendous expense to film these matches around the world. Simply by doing his thing against DeVicenzo, Sikes picked up a check for $20,000. Along the way to the finals, Dan received for another $17,500 and put in some sightseeing at the expense of the oil company in spots with romantic names. DeVicenzo was consoled with a $10,000 consolation prize.

Shell tossed a pre-match reception for the linksters, members of the Olympic Club and visiting news media that must have cost at least $5,000. Their operation is first class all the way. Shell couldn't have picked a lovelier spot to film the final sequence of his series. Olympic is built into a hillside that fronts on the gentle Pacific Ocean and there's no level terrain to be found on the course, not even the putting surfaces.

The "Wonderful World of Golf" series segments are filmed in one day now whereas it used to take three or four. The crews do an amazing job. The size of the crowd here, obviously handicapped their operation, they like to work with more manageable turnouts, say 500 to 1,500. A planning team went into the area three weeks in advance and the crews had the layout impeccable for the adventure.

Carew Relishes Life At Home

Minnesota Manager Billy Martin says stealing home is not a forgotten art, but American League pitchers are having trouble getting the picture where Rod Carew is concerned. The Twins' second baseman swiped home for the fifth time in five attempts this season in Minnesota's 4-2 victory over the New York Yankees Wednesday night and closed in on a couple of records. He also rapped out three hits and raised his major league-leading average to .399.

Yankees Decision Lions, 11 To 7

Dennis Simmons received credit for the Yankees' 11-5 National Little League victory over the Lions here Tuesday night. The contest was called in the midst of the fifth due to rain after the Yanks had scored five more runs.

INSURANCE TALLY

Carew doubled in the sixth and eventually scored the winning run on Graig Nettles' sacrifice fly to ignite Baltimore's victory over Oakland. Boog Powell also homered in the first. Clay Dalrymple connected for the first time as American League in the fourth, Powell doubled home another run in the seventh and Brooks Robinson hit a pair of sacrifice flies as the Orioles won for the 15th win in 18 games and boosted important. But I can't tell their lead over Boston in the AL, you all my secrets because I might get caught."

DEAR ABBY: Every time my wife and I go to visit a friend or relative, my wife thinks she has to bring a little gift for the children. I think it's a nice idea when the children are appreciative, but I put my foot down when it comes to a certain family.

My wife's sister married very well and she has three spoiled, selfish children, under ten years of age. No matter what we bring them (and my wife always spends a little more on them just to make a good impression) it is received with, "Oh, is that ALL?" Or, "I have one just like it."

I told my wife that from now on, we'll bring those children nothing. She says she agrees, they don't deserve anything, but if she came empty-handed her sister would look at her funny. What would you do?

TILLIE'S HUSBAND
DEAR HUSBAND: I would let my sister look at me any way she wished, and would discontinue bringing gifts to ungrateful children.

DEAR ABBY: What does a wife, who really loves her husband, do when he asks for "permission" to spend one night with his old girl friend to find out if he has really gotten over her or not?

Boyd and I have been married two years and have a small baby and I want this marriage to last. I am 23 and Boyd is 24.

I knew Boyd went steady with a girl all through high school, but I assumed that after we were married he would forget about her. Now he tells me that she had an unhappy marriage and is back in town again.

Abby, I have my pride, I don't want Boyd wondering whether he still cares for his "first love." I will say this for him, at least he was honest with me. He could have seen this girl again without telling me.

Agnew Denies Wrong-Doing

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has denied any implication of wrong-doing or faulty judgment in the transfer of valuable state tidelands to a private developer a month before he left office as Maryland governor.

Agnew said he has asked Maryland officials to prepare a full report on the transaction involving 190 acres of marshland sold by the state to developer James B. Caine of Ocean City, Md.

"I am astounded at the thrust of these accounts and am particularly resentful of the implication that I furtively signed these deeds, shortly before leaving office," Agnew said Wednesday in a statement released from his Washington office.

Caine subdivided the 190 acres and an adjacent 300 acres at the Maryland seashore resort into more than 2,000 lots selling at prices which his real estate agent quoted as $4,000 to $8,000 each.

State officials had estimated the cost of purchasing the land and paying the state for dredged fill from Assawoman Bay at $300,000.

A study of records involved turned up no evidence that Agnew personally profited from the transaction, financially or otherwise.

Three Texans In Spell Bee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Texas youngsters spelled their way through the first day of the final round of the 42nd National Spelling Bee that started Wednesday.

Only 23 youths, from an original field of 73, will compete in the final round "spell-off."

The Texans are Susan Yoachim, 14, of Dallas; Genevieve Araiza, 14, of Houston; and Nyla Medlock, 14, of Lorenzo.

The annual competition, sponsored by Scripps-Howard newspapers and 56 other daily and Sunday newspapers, this year attracted seven million entrants. Those in the first round of competition in Washington ranged in age from 11 to 14.

The winner will receive a $1,000 cash prize and a trip to New York City.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠ Declarer's premature decision to draw trumps in today's hand proved ultimately fatal to his four heart contract.

West opened the jack of clubs which was ducked by all hands. South ruffed the club continuation and proceeded to draw trump in three rounds. A small spade was led and the ten was played from dummy. East took the queen and forced declarer again in the club suit.

South led another spade to North's king, and East, who was about to take the ace, pushed that card back into his hand and played the deuce instead. From the count already obtained in the heart suit, East knew that South had only one trump left. Inasmuch as declarer was apparently intent on establishing his spade holding, East reasoned that the latter would not relish the idea of being stuck in dummy at this point.

South was indeed in serious straits. If he ruffed himself in once more in order to drive out the ace of spades, he could never hope to regain access to his hand in order to run the suit. The best he could do was to take the two high diamonds which together with one spade and six hearts added up to nine tricks—one short of the mark.

Declarer should have commenced operations on the spade suit first, retaining dummy's trumps for reentry to his hand. Once the spades became established, South can draw trump, losing in all two spades and one club.

Even after his initial slip, declarer could still have recovered had he played the king of spades from dummy on the first lead of that suit. He can subsequently drop the ten of spades under his jack in order to retain the lead in his hand at the crucial moment. The success of this maneuver, however, hinges on a three-three division in spades.

COLLEGE PARK BEAUTY SALON OPEN EVERY MONDAY

Hints From Heloise

Dear Folks: Anyone who has a hungry teenager in the family will appreciate this time-saver.

You know those little Vienna sausages that come in a can? Well, try just ripping off the top, pouring out the juice and eating it right out of the can with a fork.

My teenage daughter likes to pour dripping mustard over hers. I like mine plain or maybe with a little catsup.

Give 'em a few crackers and they've got it made. Whoopee, no dishes to wash. Heloise

P.S. Why is that first sausage so hard to get out of that can? That's the way I discovered this snack treat.

Dear Heloise: Here's a tip for anyone who is slightly spray-paint happy.

When you have to paint light switch plates, put the screws through a shirt cardboard and spray away.

It won't clog the threads of the screws and you don't end up with painted fingers. And the result is screws to match the plate itself. Mrs. C. Henry Flemer

Dear Folks: You know those glass pie plates? Well, I just discovered that most of them will fit on top of nearly any pot or pan we cook dumplings in.

Removing the lid to test the dumplings (and if you use the same recipe ten straight times it never comes out the same) is what causes them to "fall" and get soggy.

If you see that glass pie plate as a lid you can SEE how they have risen and just what they're doing. Heloise

Dear Heloise: This morning I was sitting at my kitchen table getting ready to mend a pair of my daughter's stretch pants. The stitching had pulled out from part of the waistband and since both the material and the band were elastic, I had to stretch it while sewing it by hand.

So I opened my kitchen table where the leaves are inserted, slipped in the waistband and closed it.

There I had my own little "sewing vise" which left me with both hands free to sew. Mrs. Dorothy Anderson

Oh, Dorothy, how we thank you for this hint.

With all the stretch clothes today, more and more of us have mending that needs to be stretched while sewing. And now you have given us the answer.

Dear Heloise: I keep a roll of double sticky tape, (sticky on both sides) around the house because I find it so very useful.

Works great on the back of stamps that have lost their glue. It also holds my First-Aid chart on the inside of my medicine cabinet door, bows-on packages, and pictures in albums. Lillian Wilkinson

Dear Heloise: When putting a zipper in a curve or bias seam, I clip the cloth edge of my zipper with my pinky scissors and it sews right up, with no puckering at all. Margaret Ambler

A LOVELIER YOU Use Special Formula For Oily Summer Skin

By MARY SUE MILLER

A teen lovely writes: my skin is oily at all times. But it's much worse during warm weather. After a tennis game I've got a gusher on my nose. Any suggestions?

The Answer: Experts are agreed that, whatever the weather, the first step in the control of oily skin is absolute cleanliness. As a cleanser, nothing replaces a wash with medicated or pH suds. Makeup has to be floated away before you wash, because modern products are largely water-resistant. Most cosmetic removers — cleansing creams or lotions — are formulated with a heavy concentration of oil. This, of course, makes use on an oily skin less than ideal. Hence, special formulas have been sought and found to suit oily skin. One type takes the form of a liquid cleanser, wherein non-oily ingredients remove both makeup and surface

MRS. CHOC SMITH

Housewife Bakes Pies By Dozen For Husband

By RHODA LEMONS

Mrs. Choc Smith has been busy making preparations to attend Grand Temple of the Pythian Sisters in Pampa and will leave tomorrow, to remain through June 11.

She holds down a number of offices in the local Pythian Sisters, and has been sewing on formal and getting her clothes in shape for the trip. Mrs. Smith and her husband reside at 402 Bell with their son, Louie Ross, 15, a sophomore at Big Spring Senior High School. Louie was on the freshmen football team, so the Smiths didn't miss a game.

Smith is employed as dispatcher for the distribution department at Texas Electric Service Company. Mrs. Smith works part-time for Al's Barbecue. She puts in a limited number of hours but works six days a week.

In times past, Mrs. Smith has baked as many as 14 pies and taken them out to her husband and his co-workers on the job. She enjoys baking but does less of it now.

Mrs. Smith cooks a large breakfast, and the family eats lightly at night. She goes out to friends' garden patches in the country and gathers peas, beans, okra, corn, peaches, apricots or whatever is available. She prepares these for the freezer during the harvest season, and the family enjoys them all year long.

Smith's favorite hobbies are hunting and fishing, and if the family doesn't "eat it as fast as he can catch it," Mrs. Smith puts it in the freezer for future delicious meals.

Mrs. Smith plans her schedule at home around the hours she works. She has no set plan but does what needs to be done when it is necessary.

"We don't like to camp out or rough it," said Mrs. Smith, "but we love the outdoors and picnics and go as often as possible."

"Both my husband and son are good cooks," said Mrs. Smith, so when she is away for a few days as she plans to be soon, she knows her family can take care of itself. "I seldom prepare anything in advance for them," she said.

Mrs. Smith does mainly alterations in sewing and embroideries and crochets for herself and friends. She has an interesting home, which is very "livable," and the family enjoys having company.

Mrs. Smith is president of the Dorcas Sunday school class at Wesley United Methodist Church, where the family has membership. She is active in the Pythians and the Nomads of Abadaka in Lubbock.

Plenty Of Recreation

Big Spring shouldn't be sold short on its provision for recreation for the younger generation during early summer months.

The citywide Summer Recreation program, financed in the main through the United Fund and administered by the YMCA, is off to a good start, and is due to provide worthwhile recreational training to hundreds of boys and girls. They are getting swimming instruction, direction in arts and crafts, and are helped in the general area of just having wholesome fun.

The YMCA itself is in the midst of a concentrated program, including swimming, tap and ballet, baton twirling and gymnastics.

And of course there is the tremendous program of the Little League, reaching hundreds of youngsters and putting them into competitive baseball and giving them a chance to sharpen their skills.

The Summer Recreation program (indeed, the others, too) is reaching into the low income areas of the city and youngsters sometimes designated as "underprivileged" are receiving just as much attention as those from the better neighborhoods.

The whole effort owes much of course, to capable and devoted volunteers. Many people are giving many hours to supervisory work. They have support of the City, the School District, and several welfare agencies. In sum, there's a wholesome vacation atmosphere around the city, and if parents will have their youngsters participate, they'll be helped to great degree.

The Tax Bite Is Still To Come

Only time will tell as to the wisdom of the decision of the recent Legislature to provide only a one-year spending bill, and then face up to the unpleasant task of voting taxes next year.

Traditionally, Texas has operated on a biennial budget, and Governor Preston Smith (who could veto the one-year spending bill) favors its continuation. Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and House Speaker Gus Mutscher were able to prevail in their plan for the one-year program.

They hope that a changed picture in revenues could come about by next year, so that possibly the tax load would be lessened. Everybody hopes the same thing, but there is no assurance. If the inflationary pressures continue, the need for more revenues could be even greater.

The average Texas taxpayer is not too concerned, we feel, about a one-year or two-year program. What he is concerned about is what he will have to dig up.

He is going to have to dig up plenty. The Legislature just adjourned, while it accomplished many things the people desire, also established programs calling for heavy state outlay. These include the several new colleges and the increased pay for teachers. There are many others.

Taxpayers may have escaped, for a year, a boost in their taxes. It is doubtful that they have more than a year's grace.

David Lawrence Nuclear Confrontation In Europe

WASHINGTON — News that has portentous implications for the American people isn't always explained. There was, for instance, a meeting in London of a committee of the member nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to consider just when nuclear warheads should be used by conventional armies in Europe if there is an attack by the forces of the Soviet Union. The Defense Minister of Great Britain, the Secretary of Defense of the United States and the defense ministers from five other countries attended.

this might "snowball" into a general pull-out by other NATO countries. They would reason that there was no need to spend money on conventional forces, since a nuclear war is thought to be inevitable anyway if a clash comes. The British minister of defense has expressed the hope that the Ottawa government will reconsider its policy and retain its current forces in Europe.

AMERICAN OFFICIALS are saying that this country isn't committed to the use of the big nuclear bombs if the land armies of the East and West come into conflict with each other. But such an argument evidently does not seem as yet to alter the inclination of NATO countries to depend almost entirely on American nuclear power.

The North Atlantic Treaty obligates the United States immediately to respond to an attack against any member country in the alliance. No declaration of war has to be proclaimed, and the decision to order a nuclear retaliation would have to be made within a few hours.

SINCE CANADA has just announced an intended withdrawal of a part of its land forces from Europe, there is a fear now that other members may wish to do the same thing. If there is a gradual diminution of the conventional armies, Moscow could undertake an invasion of West Germany — a member of NATO — or any other West European country. The chances of victory for the Communists would be increased substantially. Unless tactical nuclear warheads were used promptly, it could necessitate the employment of the most lethal of all nuclear weapons or a surrender by the western armies.

THE UNITED STATES, of course, would prefer to see conventional armies employed to defend Europe and avoid the use of nuclear bombs and missiles. This is where the deterrent power of the anti-ballistic missile comes into the picture. Yet a congressional debate is going on here as to whether such weapons will even be manufactured. There are some representatives and senators who would rather see the money spent for social welfare projects in their states or districts. It seems incredible that they underestimate the need for nuclear equality or superiority as a means of preventing a holocaust.

Billy Graham

We haven't joined a church because we found so many of them filled with worldliness and error. Can't we live a Christian life without being members of a church?

E. S.

Yes, I fully recognize that there is worldliness and error in many churches today, but after all is said, the church is the best organization in the world. What would the world be if it were not for the churches? The churches with all their present imperfections, are the institutions that save society from utter corruption. Even more, the church is God's institution upon earth. Any Christian can accomplish more for the salvation of souls and the upbuilding of Christian character and the good of the community by uniting with some church than he can by trying to live a Christian life by himself.

In the early church there was much corruption and immorality and yet Paul did not hint that members withdraw from it. He wrote them to judge the evil and put it away. Even Jesus did not withdraw from the synagogues of His day until He was put out of the synagogues on the Sabbath Day. Even the Apostle Paul attended the synagogue on the Sabbath. Many earnest Christian men and women today have lost all power and influence for God and good in the community by withdrawing their fellowship with other less instructed believers whom they harshly criticize.

INSTEAD OF speech-making in Congress against the anti-ballistic missile program, a more constructive purpose would be served if the peoples of the world were to be fully informed about the present dangers of a nuclear stockpile. If the Soviet Union and the United States agreed to destroy all nuclear weapons, and representatives of an international body were to be permitted to witness the process so that the inspection would satisfy both sides, there would be an opportunity for mankind to enjoy a lasting peace.

Anchorage A Center

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Anchorage, Alaska's largest city, is the center of commerce and transportation in the state.

From its beginnings as a railroad construction camp in the early part of the century, Anchorage has been continually linked with transportation and the resultant business it attracts.

The oil discoveries in Cook Inlet south of town gave the economy of the area a boost.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Dear Dr. Thosteson: Recently I have been hearing things about diabetes and large babies. I am 34 and just had my fifth son, 10 pounds, one ounce. The others were from nine pounds to nine pounds, eight ounces.

I have always been so proud of having such nice big babies. Now I feel (I guess) a little deflated, the more I hear about this. I wonder if there is something wrong with me.

Well, probably your husband popped some buttons with pride, too, but don't either of you feel too "deflated." You've had a possible — not a positive — warning — not a guard, and that's about it.

D-DAY PLUS 25 YEARS—

John Cunniff Stormy Weather Lies Ahead For Jets

NEW YORK (AP) — Above the clouds, where today's big commercial aircraft cruise in a tranquil, congestion-free atmosphere, the sun shines all day long, even if dark storms blow over the landscape below.

The situation is analogous to that faced by the nation's airports. They have tremendous potential if they can rise above their problems. If they can't, they and the economies they serve will live under a cloud.

The potential is this: Tremendous increases in air travel are in prospect for the next few years. The Federal Aviation Agency forecasts a doubling of passenger miles by 1975 and a tripling by 1980.

BY THE END of this year the Boeing 747, capable of seating nearly 400 passengers, will be in operation. In addition, personal and commercial craft are expected to increase by 100,000 before 1980.

Traffic of this sort can bring big economic advantages to an area, for whatever else travelers do they spend money. Whether for business or pleasure, they almost always take along their checkbooks.

But there are problems. Aircraft technology has far exceeded airport development during the past few years. The big jets are advanced; the airports are caught in a web of human, technological and financial problems.

AMONG THEM: Suitable sites are difficult to find; the cry of suburbanites against airport noise is becoming shrill as a jet's problem of ground transportation has not been solved; money for improvements is lacking.

Congestion at airports, complicated by a lack of controllers, was pointed up this week by federal limitations placed on flights into and out of airports serving Chicago, Washington and New York metropolitan areas.

Delays already are costing the airline industry heavily. The cost of overtime, extra crews, fuel and lost time is estimated by the industry to cost more than $100 million a year.

This figure doesn't include losses to regional economies resulting from poor service, and these losses can be enormous. Corporations, for example, are

Hal Boyle His Bet Paid Off

BY HAL BOYLE, successful conductor and arranger for such popular singers as Mandy Patinkin and Lisa Kirk.

He also composed musical scores for half a dozen Elvis Presley films and wrote some 200 songs, among them such hits as "Wonderful, Wonderful," "Broken Hearted Melody," "See You in September," and "Johnny, Get Angry."

Throughout his successful musical career, however, Edwards was bothered by guilt pangs.

ALL HIS LIFE Edwards has been torn between the desire to make music and the desire to teach history.

"But as a kid in the slums of Manhattan it looked more like I'd wind up a hoodlum," he recalled. "I was running with a street gang and getting into trouble."

The starting of piano lessons at the age of 10 in a neighborhood charitable institution saved him from the streets.

The piano helped him earn his way through college and he spent a year and half teaching history in high school.

"Then I chickened out," he said. "The glamor of show business drew me."

"MY CONSCIENCE bothered me because I had turned my back on history," he said. "So in 1961 I finally made up my mind to do something about it."

"I had always been interested in the American Revolution, so I decided I'd write an original historical musical about the adoption of the Declaration of Independence."

"I WANTED to base it on my own hero, John Adams, the holder guy who kept things stirred up. Holler guys don't get the reward, but without them things don't get done."

Deciding that the project had to be a total commitment, Sherman dropped all his other activities, living on his savings while he researched the period and wrote the score.

That took several years. It took Edwards several years more to find first an agent, Flora Roberts, and then a producer, Stuart Ostrow.

To Your Good Health 'Deflated' By Her Big Babies

We know that about one-third of all babies born to diabetic mothers are big, weighing 10 pounds or more.

weight, you should be checked periodically for diabetes.

If the disease appears, you'll detect it early and it can be controlled effectively. Detect it late, and you'll have more trouble.

Meantime, besides periodic tests, there's nothing you can do except make sure that you are not overweight, because excess weight can bring on diabetes sooner.

STARS Never take a chance on diabetes. For better understanding of this disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Big Spring Herald for a copy of the booklet, "Diabetes — The Sneaky Disease." "CONGRESS IS constantly telling the city it has to live within its budget. If it does not X amount of dollars, then the district shouldn't come back and ask for Y."

"It does," said Doyle, "in every department but defense. What is the most popular word in the military-industrial complex?"

"Overrun."

"EXACTLY. Whenever a defense contractor finds that it's going to cost him more money to make something than he originally thought it would, he charges it to overrun. This is something Congress understands. No one in this country expects a defense contractor to stay within the price he originally bid to win the contract."

"Of course not," I said.

"OK," Doyle said. "Congress is getting used to overruns. One hundred million dollars here, 350 million there, a billion dollars someplace else. It is all part of the game."

"But what has that got to do with Mayor Washington?"

"INSTEAD of the mayor going up to the Hill and pleading on his hands and knees for extra money to see him through the long, hot summer, he should go up there and proudly announce he's had an overrun on the recreation program of $10 million and

Around The Rim The Secret Censor Weapon

I'm never quite sure whether to take the self-styled censors seriously. So often, they appear only interested in promoting some personal belief — that is, prejudice.

THE MOST recent censorship flap, at least the best publicized, concerned the television networks and their programming. There are those who would dictate to the networks what programs they can carry, and deny them the right to select and reject their programming. That the networks carry some programs of questionable taste, that the popularity of these is measured by a system open to considerable doubt, has rightly earned the industry the sobriquet of "boob tube."

No entertainment industry could hope to build much of a reputation on the basis of pap such as "Family Affair," "Doris Day," to mention only the more horrible.

IN NEWS coverage, the medium has yet to live up to its great expectations. Its best work in this field has come in non-controversial areas; unfortunately, the cameras often take sides in where some points at issue are not clearly defined.

Many dramatic presentations have been exceptional, where writers of merit have drawn plots of substance and seen them brought to life by performers of talent. These have not been often enough, but they have been valued.

WHATEVER THEY offer, I feel the networks should be left to their own devices, to offer whatever programming they desire. For the most part, I doubt that any government bureaucrat, or select group of intellectuals so-called, would manage the job better.

QUITE SIMPLY, no new censors are needed to look after the network programming. The best conceivable regulation exists, and it works for persons of all prejudices and persuasions. It's free and costs nothing to maintain.

It is built into the television set when we buy it, and is handy to operate. It's the "off" switch.

Holmes Alexander Getting The Word To The Ghetto

WASHINGTON — Operation Ghetto Grapevine is not much more, as yet, than a gleam in the chilly eye of Professor George Schultz, Secretary of Labor. It illustrates how the Nixonites often keep a bright idea in cold storage rather than let it hatch prematurely.

Schultz has been a teacher and dean of graduate students, with a specialty in industrial relations. His approach to his job in Washington is cerebral and not very cordial. That is, he appears to like ideas better than he likes human bipeds, and he's more the tight-lipped philosopher than the open-mouthed politician you might expect in this particular Cabinet post.

THE most important sources of information about jobs are informal, consisting of friends, neighbors or relatives. If Negroes are highly concentrated in ghetto areas and interact with others who are unemployed this clearly implies that special measures — measures that tap the grapevine — will have to be taken to expand the quantity and quality of labor market information available.

THIS IS SPOKEN like a professor who has considered other alternatives. Another method for cracking hard-core unemployment has been mulled over by the Schultz Labor Department. It is one that would make the Government the "employer of last resort." The disadvantage of instituting something like the New Deal's WPA with leaf-raking jobs for "everybody" is political as well as economic. The labor unions and private enterprise would object. The layout of a large and wasteful experiment for temporary relief would lead the road of living inflation. It might lead into wage-and-price controls.

SCHULTZ BELIEVES that backstreet word-of-mouth is the best communications system for Darktown. The jobless rate for young Blacks still hangs at a dismaying 20 per cent, while jobs and job-programs go begging. Schultz doesn't accept the theory, sometimes expressed in this column, that these idlers are idle by choice. Mr. Secretary thinks that they loaf out of ignorance and would go to work if they knew how to get there.

THE LABOR DEPARTMENT has been poky, even by the slow motion standards of the administration which it serves. Had the New Frontier or the Great Society thought up a bright idea like Ghetto Grapevine, it would have been launched into orbit like the Peace Corps, the War on Poverty and the Beautification program.

Ghetto Grapevine might work. The Salvation Army long ago proved that evangelism, preached with tam-barnes and soup-kitchens, can get the good word around the slums. But evangelists, in this and all other areas, would rather be slow than sorry.

WASHINGTON — The District of Columbia almost had a crisis on Memorial Day weekend. The recreation department of the city decided not to open the 15 municipal swimming pools because the department did not have the funds. Mayor Walter Washington, who was informed of the decision by a newspaper reporter, angrily ordered the pools opened and said he'd get the money somewhere.

SINCE CONGRESS is in charge of the city's budget, the mayor could find himself in trouble. The reason is that Mayor Washington will probably appeal to Congress for funds for recreation facilities on the grounds that he needs the money to cool off the summer and give the kids in the district something to do to keep them out of trouble.

My friend Doyle believes this type of appeal is a waste of time.

"But what's the solution?"

"The solution," to Washington's recreational budget problems can be found in the Defense Department."

"I don't understand."

"Would Congress go for it?"

"Of course if the mayor explained it. He could say the overrun was caused by inflation, spare parts for recreation centers, labor problems and mistakes made in his department in estimating the recreational needs of the district."

"He'd be speaking their language," I admitted.

"THE MAYOR would continue by warning that Moscow now has more playgrounds than Washington, and the playground gap might become insurmountable by 1975. When Congress hears that Moscow is building more playgrounds, it will not only demand parity but superiority in the stock-piling of playgrounds. The mayor will not only get his money, but they'll insist he take more than he needs."

"It could work," I said.

"Of course if the mayor explained it. He could say the overrun was caused by inflation, spare parts for recreation centers, labor problems and mistakes made in his department in estimating the recreational needs of the district."

"He'd be speaking their language," I admitted.

"THE MAYOR would continue by warning that Moscow now has more playgrounds than Washington, and the playground gap might become insurmountable by 1975. When Congress hears that Moscow is building more playgrounds, it will not only demand parity but superiority in the stock-piling of playgrounds. The mayor will not only get his money, but they'll insist he take more than he needs."

"It could work," I said.

What Others Say

The scramble for distinction among the states of the American Union continues. And where distinctions exist, they are guarded jealously, and will continue to be so.

Thus New Hampshire stands ready to repel any attempt by another state (the most immediate threat is from Nevada) to rob the Granite State of the honor of having the first-in-the-nation presidential primary. If Nevada goes through with its proposed intention of setting an earlier primary date than that now on the books in New Hampshire, the latter vows that it will move its own still further forward. At present New Hampshire holds its primary on March 2.

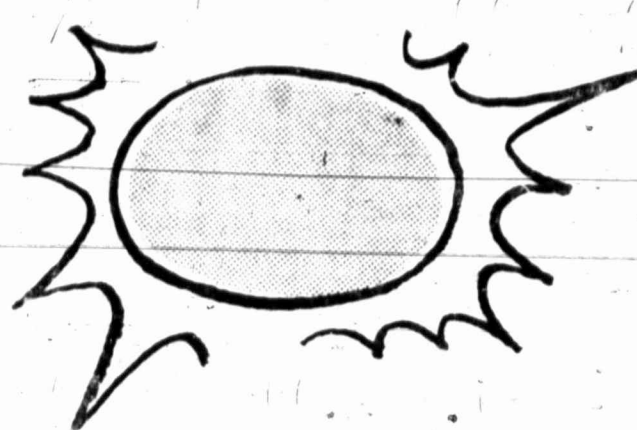

Who can foresee where this might end? The time might come when presidential primaries were being held a year, a year and a quarter, a year and a half before the election itself.

Spy Jet Shot Down Over North Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — An unarmed American reconnaissance jet was shot down over North Vietnam today by antiaircraft artillery, the U.S. Command announced.

It was the first such downing reported in nearly six months.

The two crewmen of the $2 million Air Force RF-4C steered their crippled plane out over the Tonkin Gulf and parachuted into the water. A rescue helicopter picked them up three miles off the North Vietnamese city of Dong Hoi, about 45 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

One of the fliers was injured and was flown to the hospital ship Repose.

The U.S. Command said it did not know the exact location in North Vietnam over which the plane was hit. But it said the plane's two F4 fighter-bomber escorts attacked the enemy antiaircraft guns with "unknown results."

It was the fifth American plane shot down over North Vietnam since the United States stopped bombing the North last Nov. 1 and the first since Dec. 9. When it stopped the bombing, the United States announced it would continue reconnaissance flights over North Vietnam and they would be escorted by fighter-bombers.

It was the 920th American plane shot down over North Vietnam since Feb. 7, 1965, when the United States began full-scale bombing of the North.

Military sources said North Vietnam has built up a major supply depot around the coastal city of Dong Hoi since the United States halted the bombing and has ringed it with antiaircraft guns.

The U.S. Command also announced that a small Army observation plane and two Army UH-1 helicopters were shot down Tuesday and Wednesday in various parts of South Vietnam. Thirteen Americans aboard the three aircraft were killed.

One helicopter was downed Tuesday night near the headquarters of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division 40 miles north of Saigon. Seven Americans were killed.

The second helicopter was shot down Wednesday 35 miles southwest of Da Nang, killing five Americans. One crewman was killed when the observation plane was hit Tuesday night, four miles northwest of Pleiku, in the central highlands.

In Saigon, meanwhile, South Vietnamese police were put on a 100 per cent alert following the worst rash of terrorist explosions in nearly a month.

Police sources said the all-out alert would continue until Tuesday, two days after the Midway Island meeting Sunday between President Nguyen Van Thieu and President Nixon.

The sources said allied forces had captured instructions to Viet Cong terrorists to step up their activity over the weekend and to carry out some sort of spectacular attacks on Saturday and Sunday nights.

Police were ordered to increase security measures throughout the city. Checkpoints were set up, and suspicious persons and vehicles were searched.

Six incidents of "enemy terrorist activity" were reported in the capital today, U.S. headquarters said.

Five were explosions that killed three Vietnamese civilians and wounded seven. In the sixth incident, a U.S. serviceman was wounded when a blasting cap exploded as he was disarming a two-pound mine planted in the central market.

The Viet Cong claimed today that it has established a "people's revolutionary committee" — a sort of local government — in Saigon. The Viet Cong Radio said the seven-member committee was set up following a series of meetings late last month. Among committee members named in the broadcast were a professor, a pharmacist and three engineers.

The Viet Cong has been attempting to establish such committees all over South Vietnam in preparation for political action after the war. A government spokesman said it was

Says Property Can Be 'Taxed Out Of Orbit'

FORT WORTH (AP) — An orbit unless broad-based taxes begin to bear more of the burden, said Joe Perrone, chairman of the Texas Association of Realtors Legislative Committee.

The average homeowner's property can be "taxed out of distribution," said Perrone, here is broad based.

for the realtors 49th convention. "We realize that real estate needs to carry its fair share of the burden."

But he said he would like to see a tax "that would be fair to all types" of persons, not one that singles out one in particular—the homeowner.

Copter Crash Claims Eight

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Eight airmen were killed Wednesday when an HH-43B Air Force Husky helicopter plummeted into a scrub brush field on a return flight from Avon Park bombing range to MacDill Air Force Base.

Base officials withheld identification of the victims, five crew members and three passengers, until relatives could be notified. Air Force S. Sgt. Dennis Surratt who had a part-time job on an egg farm near the crash site at the hamlet of Picnic, said "I looked up as it passed overhead and I saw the blades let go—they just came apart in the air."

Base officials said the cause of the crash had not been determined but Lt. Col. Charles Riley of the 836th Combat Squadron said it apparently was caused by "failure of a major internal component." Surratt said the helicopter fell about 200 feet to the ground. He said he heard two explosions on impact and the helicopter burst into flames.

The Highway Department awards included over $38 million in contracts for April, however.

A new award of the club "Civitan of the Year" was presented to Mike Hull as the 1969 recipient.

Auxiliary officers were also announced: Mrs. Mike (Jeanette) Hull, president; Mrs. Tom (Lois) Hammond, vice president; Mrs. George (Veta) Colvin, secretary; and Mrs. Eddie (Pat) Trice, treasurer.

The New Isolationists' Rap President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate critics of administration military policy, including at least one Republican, are taking strong issue with what they see as President Nixon's implications that they are "the new isolationists."

Sen. J. W. Fulbright led the expected outcry from Democratic opponents of the Vietnam war and the proposed Safeguard antiballistic missile system—

ABM—after Nixon's speech at the Air Force Academy.

But joining the barrage of Democratic dissent was Republican Sen. James B. Pearson of Kansas who said he doesn't know any fellow critic of high-level military spending who wants unilateral U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam or to disarm alone.

"I disagree with the President," Pearson, an ABM critic, said in an interview. "What we want to do is to prevent the start of a new nuclear arms race. And I don't think it's isolationism to oppose excessive military spending."

Nixon said new isolationists have declared "open season on the armed forces" and were charting a disastrous course posing a false choice between meeting responsibilities at home or abroad.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Nixon's references to new isolationists offended him greatly.

Nixon's speech came the same day that Fulbright appeared before a Senate House subcommittee to advocate a crackdown on defense outlays.

At an impromptu news conference, Fulbright accused Nixon of trying to make critics appear unpatriotic.

"Neither I nor this subcommittee is attacking the military forces of this country," Fulbright said. "We are questioning the political judgments that led us into this quagmire."

Another Democrat, Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, said it was unfortunate Nixon implied that "those who are vigorously opposing the ABM and defense boondoggles are unilateral disarmers and new isolationists."

"It is not unilateral disarmament to urge that we get down immediately to the business of arms control negotiations with the Soviet Union and, in the meantime, hold up the deployment of new weapons systems such as ABM which threaten to accelerate the deadly and costly arms race," Nelson said.

"And it is not isolationism or unilateral disarmament to insist that the war in Vietnam be ended and our troops brought home."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said that no responsible American advocates that the United States lay down its arms alone.

"What is sweeping America is a demand that we readjust our priorities and our goals so that we tackle the immense problems we face at home and abroad with realism and not with rhetoric," Cranston said.

War Deaths Last Week About Same

SAIGON (AP) — American battle casualties in the Vietnam war last week remained at almost the level of the previous week. Those of South Vietnamese government troops and enemy forces were less.

The U.S. Command reported today that 261 Americans were killed in action, four less than the 265 combat dead in the previous week.

A total of 1,810 Americans were wounded last week, compared with 1,863 the preceding week, the command reported.

The reporting period covered cease-fire periods proclaimed for Buddha's birthday, but, as the weekly casualty figures indicated, the truce was broken repeatedly.

South Vietnamese headquarters said 325 government troops were killed last week and 1,021 were wounded. In the previous week, the toll had been 413 killed and 1,694 wounded.

The two commands reported 2,637 enemy killed last week. In a revised report, U.S. headquarters said 4,087 enemy were killed in the previous week, 119 more than were reported last Thursday.

The summary raised to 35,791 the number of Americans killed in action in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961, U.S. headquarters said. In that same period, there have been 229,383 Americans wounded, and another 1,328 are listed as missing or captured.

With the number of Americans killed or wounded in action in the Vietnam war at 265,174, the toll has surpassed the American combat total for World War I. The recorded number of American casualties in the first world war is 320,710, but 63,195 of the deaths were from causes other than battle.

As of May 24, the number of American deaths in Vietnam from other than battle causes was reported to be 5,965.

The total enemy dead reported since Jan. 1, 1961, now stands at 507,262.

The latest casualty counts raised to 12,840 the number of Americans killed in Vietnam since May 13, 1968, when preliminary peace talks began in Paris. Of that toll, 5,794 have died since South Vietnam agreed last Dec. 7 to take part in the talks.

The South Vietnamese government has reported 15,945 men killed in action since the preliminary peace talks began, with 6,866 of those killed since last Dec. 7.

Summing up last week's action, the South Vietnamese Command said enemy activity was "at a moderate level and primarily consisted of indirect harassing, fire attacks." A communique also said that South Vietnamese forces had "intensified offensive operations" during the week.

Bids for lining the terminal storage reservoir at Midland were opened at headquarters of the Colorado River Municipal Water District this morning.

One company, Al Gatson, bid only materials for the lining at $35,427, while Globe Lining Co. had a proposal which included materials and installation of the lining, plus a protective four-inch concrete cover for $98,661.

R. W. Currie, John L. Taylor and H. W. Wright, local members of the CRMWD board, were present for the opening and indicated that a recommendation would be made to the full board here a week from today.

Satori House Doors Closed

DALLAS (AP) — Satori House for the Creative Arts, a controversial ministry for young adults sponsored by Presbyterians, has closed its doors.

This was done after a committee of the Dallas Urban Council of the Presbyterian Church recommended an end to the project, which drew criticism for ministering to hippie types.

Controversy swirled around Satori House starting last summer after some Presbyterian laymen alleged the place was harboring teenage runaways. There also were charges involving sex and dope.

Satori staff members agreed to halt special ministry to hippies and received permission in February to continue operations.

The Rev. Andrew Short, director of Satori House, said, "We began to get the idea that we were going to be closed last April. The end was part of a natural course of events."

Closing of Satori House does not mean the Presbyterian Church intends to withdraw from this area of ministry, said Dr. Dan Foster, chairman of the Dallas Urban Council.

Chile Says No Thanks To Mission By Rocky

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A third South American country—Chile—has shut the door to Gov. Rockefeller's mission.

The Nixon administration shows no sign of calling off the dog.

President Eduardo Frei's government decided Rockefeller had better stay away after two days of clashes between police and students in the capital.

Wednesday a group of students stoned the U.S. Consulate and burned an American flag.

A Foreign Ministry communiqué said: "The Chilean government has informed Gov. Rockefeller of the convenience of suspending his visit to our country."

The communiqué added that Foreign Minister Gabriel Valdes would be in Washington later this week and would call on President Nixon. Valdes also will get together with Rockefeller to discuss "the purposes and objectives" of Rockefeller's visit to Chile, the communiqué said.

Thurber To Get Marker

THURBER — A historical marker will be dedicated here Saturday, 2 p.m., by the Texas State Historical Survey Committee. This dedication will coincide with the annual reunion of the Thurber Historical Association held annually by the residents of that once thriving industrial town 7 1/2 miles west of Fort Worth on Interstate 20.

Thurber, once the largest town between Fort Worth and El Paso, with a population of some 10,000 people around the turn of the century, is now essentially a ghost town. All that remains is a 148-foot smoke stack and a few old buildings. This was the only company-owned town ever known to exist in the State of Texas. Its principal industries were coal mining and brick manufacturing.

"In the feedlot the steers receiving the ration containing micronized grain gained 12 pounds more per day at 2 1/2 pounds than the steers fed the ration containing steam flaked grain," explains Schake.

"However, those on the steam flaked grain required 2 pounds less feed per pound of live animal gain at 8 1/4 pounds."

Grain is micronized by heating it to about 200 degrees with gas fired infrared burners and rolling it. The resulting grain has about seven per cent moisture and weighs 38 to 40 pounds per bushel. Steam flaking is accomplished by heating the grain with steam to bring it to about 18 per cent moisture prior to flaking. Flaked grain weighs about 22 pounds per bushel.

Biafrans To Free 18 Foreign Oilmen

LISBON (AP) — Heeding a Portuguese request, the Biafrans are going to release the 18 foreign oilmen they sentenced to death, the Portuguese Foreign Ministry announced Wednesday night.

A spokesman said the men—14 Italians, three West Germans and one Lebanese—would be free after some procedural matters are worked out. He did not elaborate.

Portugal, one of the secessionist state's most important allies, protested the death sentences Tuesday in what a government spokesman described as "the strongest possible language."

The oilmen were captured by the Biafrans last month in the state of Midwestern Nigeria where they were working on a drilling job for AGIP, an oil exploration firm run by the Italian state petroleum company and Phillips Petroleum Co. of Bartlesville, Okla.

Eleven other foreign oilmen—10 Italians and a Jordanian—were slain when fighting between Biafran and Nigerian troops reached their camp near Kwale. The bodies of the 11 were found last week when the Nigerians regained the oil camp.

The Biafrans claimed the foreigners were fighting alongside the Nigerians, but AGIP denied this. Nigerian army officers and Bob Lester of California who recaptured the campsite said the bodies had been buried by the Biafrans.

There had been speculation that Biafran leaders would demand aid from foreign governments or petroleum firms as their price for freeing the men. But the Portuguese announcement made no reference to a deal.

Biafra has accused foreign oil companies of collaborating with the Nigerian government in the civil war. Biafran Information Minister I. Y. Eke asserted Wednesday: "The moment oil companies stop paying royalties to the federal government, at that moment the war will stop."

Nigeria's oil is in the eastern region where the Biafrans declared their independence, but much of the oil lands have been regained by the Nigerian army.

Meanwhile, a Canadian oilman reported Wednesday that he and three American companions were robbed of $1,000 Sunday by Nigerian soldiers who roused them from their beds in an isolated camp about 25 miles southwest of Kwale.

Donnis McCaughey of Ponoka, Alta. said: "We were thinking about what happened at Kwale, but we didn't talk about it until the men left."

The Americans were Leon Fitzsimmons, Sallisaw, Okla.; Deland Camalau, Stillwater, Okla.; and Bob Lester of California.
