VANDALISM — Woman passes the broken window of the Soviet national tourist offices in Paris Saturday. The director of the office said the vandalism was the work of young Jews protesting the death sentences handed down in Leningrad against two Jews accused of planning to hijack a Soviet airliner.

Tass Dismisses Mass Criticism As 'Fit Of Anti-Soviet Hysteria'

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass rejected Saturday widespread foreign criticism of death sentences passed on two unsuccessful airline hijackers in Leningrad, dismissing the uproar as "another fit of anti-Soviet hysteria."

A tough commentary by the official Soviet news agency was the first reaction to the outcry that followed the Christmas Eve sentencing of two Soviet Jews to be shot for their role in a hijack attempt last June. Nine others were sentenced to labor camp terms ranging from 4 to 15 years.

The rejection of criticism expressed in the Tass article indicated that the defense attorney's appeal to a higher court, expected to be filed next week, will have little chance of success.

Sentences at Soviet political trials in the past several years have been uniformly upheld by appeals courts. Soviet authorities also have a record of total disregard of foreign criticism of their internal affairs.

Tass charged "Zionist circles in the United States" are "interfering in Soviet judicial procedure" by condemning the death penalties—the first ever handed down in a hijacking case—pronounced against Mark Dymshits and Edward Kuznetsov.

Tass said the international criticism "actually is masterminded by Israel" in an attempt to divert attention from the "sinister doings" of the Israeli armed forces in the Middle East.

The news agency also asserted that the 10 Jews in the group were found guilty "for their crime, not because of their nationality." Jews and other ethnic groups in the Soviet Union are considered "nationalities" separate from the Russians. "Interfering in Soviet judicial procedure," Tass said, "they (U.S. Zionists) are trying this time to use the sentencing in Leningrad of participants in an attempted hijacking of a Soviet plane as a pretext for the new hysteria," Tass charged.

It did not mention the criticism by the French Communist party, the Geneva-based International Commission of Jurists, Roman Catholic Archbishop John Cardinal Heenan of London, and a group of British celebrities including Sir Laurence Olivier and journalist Malcolm Muggeridge.

Chilly Weather Cools Off Nation

By The Associated Press
Unseasonable cold weather gripped most of the nation Saturday, sending freeze warnings as far south as Florida.

The freeze was in extreme northern Florida while frost alerts were posted in interior sections.

Sunny but cool weather will linger across the plains, Mississippi Valley and the southeast Sunday. Snow flurries are expected in parts of the Great Lakes area, stretching into the Appalachians.

PROTESTS SOVIET DEATH SENTENCE — Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir addresses a rally of 15,000 people in Tel Aviv Saturday protesting the death sentence imposed by a Soviet court in Leningrad on two Soviet Jews for allegedly trying to hijack an airliner. The rally, believed to be one of the largest ever held in the country of 2.5 million people climaxed 24 hours of nationwide anger over the Soviet decision.

Death Toll Rises Slowly

Traffic fatalities mounted at a slow pace Saturday night, still behind similar counts in previous years' Christmas holiday period.

The Associated Press and the Texas Department of Public Safety began the count at 6 p.m. on Christmas Eve and planned to continue it until midnight Sunday.

The DPS before the four-day Christmas weekend began estimated that 52 persons would die in traffic during the period.

Senators Return Monday; Quorum Is Questionable

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate returns from its Christmas holiday Monday facing a choppy sea of unresolved issues and no idea how it can reach dry land before the 91st Congress runs out of time at noon on Jan. 3.

No one is even certain there will be enough members present Monday to form a quorum and allow the Senate to try to untangle the legislative snarl it left last week. The House is due back Tuesday.

In the few hours remaining to it, the 91st Congress will be asked to ponder—and perhaps to resolve—these issues:

—Should Congress appropriate $210 million to further subsidize private development of two supersonic transport prototypes and keep alive a program designed to give the nation's airlines a 1,800-mile-an-hour plane by the mid 1980's?

Challenging this program are a band of senators who claim the plane is not needed now, will be economically unsound and—through noise, sonic booms and exhaust—may pose pollution problems for the world's environment.

—Should Congress extend the benefits under the Social Security system by some $9 billion a year?

—Should strict quotas be placed on imports of foreign textiles, shoes and other goods, quotas that might, opponents say, trigger a new and devastating trade war?

—Should the government help the Penn Central Railroad—and eventually perhaps other lines as well—out of its financial difficulties?

—Should a constitutional amendment be passed to lower the voting age to 18 in all elections, including state and local balloting, and not just federal elections as allowed in a recent Supreme Court decision?

—Should the Senate seek to re-enforce its ban against the use of U.S. ground combat troops or military advisers in Cambodia, Laos or Thailand?

—What should be the shape of a $1.5 billion program designed to help local school districts pay the costs of school desegregation?

—Should the Senate reject a House-Senate conference report that slaps a work requirement on persons receiving food stamps, a plan allowing them to buy needed food stuffs at discount prices?

There are senators lined up to filibuster nearly all of these issues.

And even the idea that Congress should attempt to act on all of them: at this time has been challenged.

"At a time when the Senate is showing more than ordinary determination to meet its constitutional responsibilities, it has come under attack for its unwillingness to adopt great reams of administration-proposed legislation in the hectic, closing days of the session," Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., told the Senate last week.

"The assumption seems to be," he said, "that any legislation—even bad legislation—is better than none."

Reviewing the . . . Big Spring Week . . . with Joe Pickle

Another Christmas has passed, and by most accepted standards it was a good one. Churches had good attendance and participation in pre-Christmas events; organizations were busy spreading Christmas cheer; city firemen and the Salvation Army combined to remember the needy; and most businessmen accounted the shopping season just about the best ever. To those who had a part in the Christmas Cheer Fund, special thanks; and to the Salvation Army for a labor of Christian love, and all who helped it achieve this ministry.

The City of Big Spring had a nice Christmas present with receipt of $104,467 for the third quarter sales tax. This was about $5,000 more than for last year's corresponding quarter and better than expectations.

The stage for another major development project of the Colorado River Municipal Water District was set last week with the awarding of $3,533,000 in contracts. This is for developing a water well field in Ward County, plus pipelines, to give the CRMWD a capability of about 24,000,000 gallons of water for the summer of 1971. If there are

Nixon's Ambassadors Donate To Republicans Races

Former White House Aide Runs Back-Room Fund-Raising Operation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven of President Nixon's ambassadors made substantial donations to major Republican races for the Senate this fall, piping at least part of the money through a back-room fund-raising operation run by a former White House aide.

The seven diplomats channeled up to $2,500 apiece into the GOP Senate race in Maryland, with other contributions recorded in California, Texas, Ohio and Florida.

Two ambassadors' donations in Maryland and Florida are listed on official records as being sent through Jack A. Gleason, whose name also appears on $114,000 in contributions to the GOP Senate nominee in Indiana.

Gleason left the staff of White House political operative Harry Dent this fall to run the fund-raising campaign from a basement back office in a gray

Washington townhouse. In addition to Maryland, Florida and Indiana, Gleason was reported active in GOP Senate races in North Dakota and Tennessee. But he refused to discuss his role, telling a newsman who visited his office: "Get out. You have 55 seconds to leave or I'll call the cops. You'll be trespassing."

The White House also was mum on Gleason's operations. It would say only that he is no longer on its payroll.

It is traditional for a president to name big political contributors to prestigious ambassadorships, just as it is traditional for wealthy ambassadors to continue to make political contributions while holding the overseas posts.

Several of the seven ambassadors listed as major contributors to Senate races this year had been big donors to Nixon's 1968 campaign.

The seven were appointed last year as envoys to England, Austria, Ireland, Switzerland, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and New Zealand.

Together they gave at least $28,000 this year in five races where records could be traced, with more than half the total going into the campaign windup for upset GOP Senate winner J. Glenn Beall in Maryland.

The givers were: —Walter H. Annenberg, ambassador to Great Britain, a former Philadelphia newspaper publisher, who gave $2,500 each to Beall and losing Sen. George Murphy in California. Beall's report to the Senate lists the $2,500 from Annenberg Oct. 12 as coming "c-o Jack A. Gleason."

—Kenneth Franzheim II, ambassador to New Zealand, a Texas oilman who gave $2,500 for Beall on Oct. 28, another

$2,500 for losing GOP Senate candidate William C. Cramer of Florida the same day, and still another $2,500 for Republican winner Robert Taft Jr. in Ohio. Cramer's report filed in the state capital at Tallahassee lists his Franzheim donation also as "c-o Mr. Jack A. Gleason."

—Shelby C. Davis, ambassador to Switzerland, a New York investment banker, who gave $2,500 for Beall and $2,500 for Taft on the same days. Franzheim made his contributions, then added another $2,500 for Texas Senate loser George Bush.

—John P. Humes, ambassador to Austria, a New York attorney who was the third diplomat to be listed with a $2,500 contribution for Beall on the same day, Oct. 28.

—John D. J. Moore, ambassador to Ireland, a former New York shipping executive who gave $2,500 for Beall Oct. 14.

—J. William Middendorf II, ambassador to the Netherlands, a New York stockbroker, who gave $1,000 for Beall and $500 for Bush.

—Kingdon Gould Jr., ambassador to Luxembourg, an automobile parts manufacturer who is the only diplomatic donor whose home is in Maryland. Gould gave Beall $1,500, second lowest amount on the ambassadorial list.

Gleason, 33, is a political pro who was a top fund-raiser in Nixon's 1968 presidential campaign.

He now operates out of the basement "Urban Services" office of Robert Conkling, who represents cities such as Savannah and Birmingham before government agencies, and who also acts for various corporate clients which his secretary wouldn't identify.

Gleason returned with Conkling from lunch this week to find a newsman waiting in Conkling's outer office. Conkling first tried to introduce himself as "Gleason" while declining to answer questions on diplomatic donations.

But the real Gleason, who had gone to his back-room desk, reappeared and said, "I'm Gleason," then ordered the newsman to leave.

In Indiana, Gleason is listed as the sole contributor to 38 figurehead committees set up for losing Republican candidate Richard L. Roudebush. The total given was $114,000.

Roudebush's campaign manager, Gordon K. Durnil, said the money actually came from other sources even though it was under Gleason's name. Durnil said he didn't know who the real contributors were.

In North Dakota, losing GOP Senate candidate Thomas S. Kleppe was quoted in published accounts as saying Gleason

"was part of our working with the White House. I knew he was working on fund-raising."

Kleppe's campaign treasurer, Harold Anderson, acknowledged he had received a phone call from Gleason about money, but wouldn't comment further. Anderson declined to answer how much in contributions were received through the former presidential aide.

Aides to Republican Senate winner William E. Brock in Tennessee gave conflicting answers about Gleason's involvement there. One Brock aide said Gleason had helped, but another said he hadn't. Other GOP sources in Nashville said Gleason did play a role.

Neither Brock nor Kleppe filed a detailed breakdown of their campaign finances with the Senate, and neither Tennessee nor North Dakota requires state reports.

Fire-Fighting Break-Through Is Announced

CHICAGO (AP) — Achievement of a major breakthrough in fire-fighting technology—involving continuous creation of a chemically generated "slippery water" aboard fire trucks was reported Saturday by a New York chemical engineer.

Dr. Edward H. Blum told a science meeting here that the pioneering technique features automatic chemical conversion of fire-hydrant water to a fluid that flows faster through hoses and shoots twice as far.

He said it should enable firemen to douse blazes more quickly and effectively—with resultant savings in human lives and property damage.

Blum, a private researcher working for New York City's fire department, also reported he and other scientists see promising possibilities for developing a new, atomic-powered "early detection and warning system" for automatically spotting fires. He said such a system could offer significant life-saving advantages over conventional automatic alarm systems.

The scientist, of the New York City-Rand Institute, told of other gains in urban fire protection through a three-year, continuing study of the operations of the world's largest fire department.

He said the "slippery water" technology has been tested by some of the department's pump trucks in actual fire-fighting operations—and has proved so good that more than 100 especially equipped pumps have been ordered.

He said the key chemical to gether with the special equipment should be available to fire departments throughout the country by next fall.

The chemical—a synthetic called polyethylene oxide—is also under consideration as an additive to beer "as a head-stabilizer" to stabilize the foam," he said.

Blum said the new technique looks like the first real breakthrough in fire-fighting technology in the past 100 years.

In an interview, he amplified on a report prepared for the opening here of the 137th meeting of the 130,000-member American Association for the Advancement of Science.

He said dissolving traces of the special chemical in water as it is pumped through the truck "permits the fire department to increase the flow through the hose at a given pressure by 70 per cent or more, and to more than double the reach of the stream."

"With 'slippery water,'" he said, "a fireman can deliver as much water with a 1½-inch hose as he previously could with a (conventional) 2½-inch hose."

"With the lighter hose, fire-fighters can climb stairs and reach remote locations more rapidly and with less strain, and put out fires more quickly and effectively."

"It costs only about $20 for enough material to handle a pretty large fire," Blum said, and tests show the lighter-weight hose means "firemen can cut three minutes from the time needed to climb stairs to a third-story walk-up."

Legendary Bali Is Really Paradise — Or Paradise Lost

DEN PASAR, BALI, Indonesia (AP) — The copper-skinned natives really do wear flowers in their hair. The girls really are beautiful and willowy. The sand on the beach really is as fine as talcum powder. The days really are lazy and peaceful.

This is Bali, the legendary island, east of Java, the Indonesians call Pulau Dewata, the Isle of Light, Paradise.

Or Paradise Lost — maybe. Jets loaded with tourists are invading this gentle land of temples, dancers and flower children. It's only a trickle now, about 15,000 a year. But in the next couple of years this is expected to double.

The Indonesian government is all for the invasion. It's trying to get its fledgling tourist industry going and, because it has little money to spare on building it up, the natural place to start was Bali, a ready-made resort with the exotic palm-swaying allure for tourists and their dollars.

Once the new international airport at Ngurah Rai was opened last fall, major airlines were quick to jump on the bandwagon. Now two or three jetliners a day roar in over the white sands. Several big hotels are planned.

Land prices have skyrocketed. Scrub-covered tracts along the beaches that two years ago were just so much worthless sand now sell for as much as $4,000 an acre.

Bali is on the verge of becoming a playground for the jumbo jet set. Already, it's attracted some big names: Prince Philip, Ingrid Bergman, Vice President Spiro Agnew, Australian Premier John Gorton, Rolling Stone Mick Jagger, Prince Bernhard.

As they do with everyone, the Balinese greeted them with exotic elegance and showered them with fragrant flower petals.

Bali is scores of sinuous men, glistening in the flickering lamplight, swaying and erupting in muscle-trembling dances like

Holiday Cease-Fires End With Little Action

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong's 72-hour Christmas cease-fire ended at 1 a.m. Sunday, opening the way for four days of combat before the beginning of a New Year's stand-down Thursday.

The Viet Cong cease-fire expired 31 hours after American and South Vietnamese forces resumed operations following their one-day respite.

No major action was reported across Indochina, although the U.S. and South Vietnamese commands listed a total of 78 "enemy-initiated incidents" for the 24-hour allied truce beginning at 6 p.m. Christmas Eve.

Twenty-six of the incidents involved American forces, spokesmen said, and four U.S. servicemen were wounded. During the Christmas cease-fire last year, U.S. forces reported 35 incidents and three Americans wounded.

South Vietnamese headquarters said its losses were 13 killed and 45 wounded compared to 14 killed and 23 wounded a year ago.

The allied commands do not acknowledge the Viet Cong-declared cease-fire and therefore don't tally the number of incidents during the full 72-hour period it is in effect.

In another development, Rep. G.V. (Sonny) Montgomery, D-Miss., told newsmen in Saigon that as the United States continues to de-escalate the war, there probably "will be more information on Americans held in North Vietnam."

Montgomery, who had just completed a week-long visit to Southeast Asia, said North Vietnamese officials in Vietnam, Laos, told him American prisoners of war were given special privileges for the Christmas season.

The prisoners are permitted to hold their own religious services and are allowed to receive 11-pound Christmas packages, the congressman said. Normally, he said, they are permitted one 6.6-pound package every two months.

The North Vietnamese also told him, Montgomery said, that the 20 Americans they have list-

No 'Riot' At Ft. Hood

FT. HOOD, Tex. (AP)—There was no riot as rumored at this Central Texas army post on Dec. 20, the public information officer said Saturday. "Nothing to it!" he said.

All that happened, the colonel said, was that 22 inmates in the Ft. Hood "confinement facility" created a disturbance.

"A fire was started using mattresses," Lt. Col. Gus Saul said in a prepared statement, "and extensive smoke and water damage resulted."

"Some of the prisoners entered adjacent compounds where they were joined by other prisoners. Windows were broken out of buildings in the compounds."

"At the peak of the disturbance," the colonel continued, "about 50 inmates participated and confinement facility personnel restored order about midnight," or about two hours after the "brief disturbance" began. There was no riot.

Saul said a few guards were hit with sticks and rocks, "but it was nothing serious."

Asked about an unconfirmed report that the prisoners causing the disturbance tore up property to make weapons, Saul answered that there was "no riot, just a little disturbance."

Saul, speaking in plain English, said there was no information given on grievances of the prisoners, there was no riot, that the provost marshal met the next day with individuals and there has been no unrest since. Nobody was held hostage, the colonel added.

Patrol's Relay Saves The Day

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Master Sgt. French J. Lay was stranded in the wet hours Christmas Day at Lambert St. Louis airport.

He made it 10,000 miles from Vietnam on a chartered flight but was unable to find any way of traveling the final 106 miles to visit his wife and two daughters in Rolla, Mo.

San Diego, Calif. — Datsun has taken over the top spot in Import registration in San Diego County for the fourth consecutive month.

Retail sales for Datsun cars in the U.S. was 91,365 compared to 56,058 for the same period in 1969.

Datsun Truck sales totaled 46,378—up from 27,239 a year ago. Source of information: Automotive News of Dec. 14, 1970.

Local Residence Damaged By Fire

It wasn't a very merry Christmas for Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Cameron and their two children.

The Camerons were left homeless on Christmas Eve when a fire gutted one bedroom of their home at 1700 Laurie and smoke damaged the rest of the house.

"I met the fire department at the door when I returned from a last-minute shopping trip about noon Thursday," Mrs. Cameron said. "We lost everything in the one bedroom and smoke damaged several other things. It wasn't a pleasant thing to face on Christmas Eve, so we spent the holiday with friends in Odessa."

Saturday the family was sorting their belongings and moving them into a trailer in the driveway. They said they will live in the trailer until they can find another house to rent.

"Most of our Christmas gifts were saved, so we pretended nothing had happened to wreck our holiday — but it's not the same when you can't go back home," Mrs. Cameron said.

S. W. McElroy, owner of the house, said he was waiting to hear from insurance adjusters and general contractors before he would be able to estimate the extent of the damages.

Although the exact cause of the fire is undetermined, the fire is believed to have been started by faulty electrical wiring.

British Banker Freed By Chinese

HONG KONG (AP) — David Johnson, the British banker released Christmas Day after 28 months of captivity in Communist China, says the Chinese never officially charged him with any crime and that "so far as I can see there never were any definite grounds for my arrest and imprisonment."

Johnson, 57, told a news conference after crossing into Hong Kong that he had been "accused of spying" in a general way but that no specific allegations of spying were ever mentioned to him.

Visitors Restore Widow's Christmas

INDIANAPOLIS, Idaho (AP) — A parade of visitors Christmas Day restored a 69-year-old Indianapolis widow's Christmas spirit and more than restored the gifts stolen from her home earlier in the week.

An unwelcome visitor broke into her home Monday night and took all the presents Mrs. Lettie Wills had purchased for others with money saved from her pension check. Gone were the penand pencil sets, socks and handkerchiefs she had wrapped for elderly men in the neighborhood. Gone was the frozen chicken she had planned to cook for a motherless family of six.

The story was told in news accounts Thursday. The welcome visitors started arriving Christmas morning.

"I couldn't believe it yesterday when the people started coming," she said Saturday.

"People are so wonderful, but you hardly ever get a chance to find that out for yourself. Well yesterday I did."

The visitors brought gifts to replace the stolen presents, food to replace the canned goods the burglar took from her kitchen, a replacement for the police radio that had been taken.

Mrs. Wills, who is partly disabled, was buying the radio on installments. She used it to entertain many people in her aging neighborhood, and it had special meaning to her because two of her nephews are policemen.

"These people who came were just wonderful," she said. "One woman who lives at Ft. Harrison came and brought me some hankies she had bought for her husband, who is in Vietnam. She said she knew he wouldn't mind if she gave them to me instead."

And so far that family of six, whose mother was killed two months ago in a traffic accident: "One man brought me a ham that I gave to that family," she said. "And another man brought toys."

Inauguration Will Be Music Festival

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith promises his second inauguration, Jan. 19, will be a giant, free festival of country and Western music. It will be "even more fun and more interesting than our first one," the governor said.

The inaugural festivities include country and Western entertainers Buck Owens, who has made the No. 1 spot with every record he has recorded since 1963; Ray Price and Faron Young.

There also will be a square dance at the University of Texas' Gregory Gymnasium and a "top hard rock band and a famed traditional society orchestra" performing the night of the inaugural.

All the inaugural balls are free except the ceremonial grand ball at Municipal Auditorium.

Daughters Of British Empire Guard Heritage

DALLAS (AP) — The names are as English as fish and chips — names like Boadicea, Parliament, Caernarvon Castle, Jane Eyre and Widdicombe Fair — but there's a trace of a Texas accent among some of the members.

The Daughters of the British Empire are as jealous as the Daughters of the American Revolution about preserving their heritage. There are nearly 400 of them in Texas and more than 8,000 throughout the United States.

Each local chapter is named for a British person, place or event. The names above are those of the five Dallas chapters. A new one, Scarlet Pimpernel, was launched at Fort Worth recently. There are 21 in the whole state of Texas.

One demonstrably British grandparent is enough to get you membership of the Daughters of the British Empire, which will be holding its annual convention in Dallas in 1972.

Main object of the daughters is fund raising for four old people's homes where aged British residents of both sexes can enjoy what is called "a genteel way of living."

The homes are at Ossining, N.Y.; Brookfield, Ill.; Sierra Madre, Calif.; and Jacksonville, Fla.

Mrs. Marian Lucas, an English doctor's daughter from Mansfield, Nottinghamshire, who is married to Paul P. Lucas of Scranton, Penn., and who now lives in Dallas, is state organizing secretary for Texas. She says the DBE, which is

Early Integration Figure Succumbs

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Funeral services were scheduled here this morning for W. J. Durham, a major figure in school integration in Texas in the '50s and '60s.

Durham, 60, died Tuesday. Durham took part in more than 40 civil rights cases including those concerning school integration, voting rights and teacher salary equalization.

He was a native of Hopkins County and had resided in Dallas 27 years.

Burial was in Greenville Cemetery in Greenville, Tex.

Pursued By Cops, Two Die In Crash

WINNSBORO, Tex. (AP) — Police said today two men they were chasing were killed when their car missed a curve on Texas 37 and slammed into a tree.

Police identified the victims as James L. McElroy, 21; and Danny Winchester, 24.

Investigators said the men's car raced through Winnsboro at speeds up to 120 miles an hour when officers gave chase.

THE WEEK

spring rains with heavy runoff, this will be insurance for summer peaking; if not, it will be a lifesaver for the entire system.

The Big Spring city commission approved the expenditure of $1,263 as its share to go with a $1,894 grant from the state toward purchase of a videotape unit to be used mostly in building evidence. The police department will be one of the first in West Texas to get this modern equipment.

This area lost a crusty, veteran newspaperman last week with the sudden death of Neal Estes, editor-publisher of the Stanton Reporter, on Wednesday. He went out, as he would want to, in the rush of getting out his paper. And for a newspaperman, that's a pretty good vaudeville.

Southwest Bell Telephone isn't sitting still, waiting to get behind. On the contrary, crews are busy cutting ditch and installing underground conduits for cable which will be needed for expansion. The system is being sized for demands half a century hence. The price tag on this is around $160,000, and studies are being made for additional long-range beefing-up.

Credit the YMCA young people with big hearts and industry. Just before Christmas they gave $200 to the Y's World Services program — equivalent to foreign missions in a church. What is equally impressive is that these young people earned the money.

The Region V junior college basketball tournament is coming back here in early March. This is a tribute to the American Business Club, which did such an outstanding job here when the tournament once before had a two-year run here.

Dr. John E. Hogan has stepped down as city health officer after 26 years of service. This is a job that is necessary, but which is performed largely out of a sense of civic duty. Dr. Henry Butler has now assumed the service.

This may sound monotonous, but it is a delightful kind. For the fifth consecutive week, Martin County has led the Permian Basin in drilling activity with 34 rigs turning — 11 more than the nearest county. For a generation, while other counties enjoyed the fruits of expanding oil development, Martin seemed to have the kiss of death. Now, all that is changed.

No Dividend From Decline Of War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The so-called peace dividend, the billions of dollars the Nixon administration hoped could be channeled back into health and education programs when the Vietnam war wound down, has proved to be a myth in a wave of inflation.

There is no peace dividend, says Robert C. Moot, the Pentagon's comptroller. Inflation and pay raises have eaten most of it.

Moot said that at its peak in 1968 the Vietnam war was costing the Pentagon an added $20 billion a year, but by the end of the current fiscal year the figure will have been sliced to about $10 billion.

Even without a peace dividend, it would seem that defense spending could be reduced as the war comes to a close, and the men and the machines come home.

MORE SPENDING

But that is not to be. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird has already let it be known Pentagon spending will go up next year for the first time in three years.

In an interview, Moot offered an explanation for where the expected savings disappeared and why defense spending is heading up instead of down.

Over the past two years, some savings have already been plowed back into the economy, he says. This is the $6.2 billion resulting from the cut in the 1968 Pentagon budget of $78 billion to $71.8 billion in the current fiscal year.

Pay raises for military and civilian workers in the Defense Department make up another $4.6 billion of the $10 billion drop in war costs.

RETIREMENT PAY

Piled on top of this was $300 million boost in military retirement pay.

With inflation driving up costs, Moot explains, the Pentagon as well as all other federal agencies, are paying more for the same goods and services purchased two years ago.

To keep spending to what Laird says is the "rock-bottom" level and at the same time finance modernization programs, he has trimmed military and civilian manpower rolls. The size of the armed forces has shrunk from $3.5 million when the Nixon administration took office to about $2.9 million today and will drop further to perhaps below $2.5 million.

Still, the pay raises combined with the impact of inflation, will force a reversal in the downward trend of the defense budget next year, Moot says.

UP $2 BILLION

When the President submits his new budget to Congress early next year, the Pentagon's share is expected to increase about $2 billion.

Moot says the emphasis in the new budget will be on more money for research and development to counter Soviet increases in this field, more money for modernization—new ships and planes—delayed by the war and to help offset the manpower cuts in the military services. There will also be more money for foreign military aid to carry out the Nixon doctrine of helping America's allies do their own fighting.

Demonstrators At Angela's Jail

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—Christmas Day in the Marin County jail for black militant Angela Davis included a two-hour and 10-minute visit by members of her family and a demonstration outside by 250 supporters demanding her freedom.

"Free Angela Davis—we need our sister beside us," chanted the demonstrators to the tune of a hymn, but Sheriff's Capt. Harvey Teague said she probably was unable to hear it because her cell is soundproof.

Miss Davis, a 26-year-old former philosophy teacher at UCLA, was extradited from New York last Tuesday to face charges of murder, kidnaping and conspiracy in a shootout here last Aug. 7 which took four lives, including that of a judge. Although not charged with being present at the shootout, she has been charged with purchasing the guns used and was indicted under a California law which makes an accessory equally guilty with the perpetrator of a crime.

Visiting her Friday were her mother, Mrs. Sally Davis of Birmingham, Ala.; her sister, Mrs. Fania Jordan; her brother, Reginald; and her cousin Oliver Pearson and his wife.

"We had a nice long visit with Angela," said Mrs. Jordan. "She's in high spirits. She knows the movement to free political prisoners is going on all over the world. That's why she is feeling good."

Sponsored by the Angela Davis Defense Committee, the demonstration in a parking lot near Civic Center was orderly throughout, and after a day in the 40-degree fog it ended at 4 p.m. There were no incidents.

Connally Is Under Senate Scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John B. Connally's former banking and oil connections have aroused the scrutiny of some Senate liberal Democrats hoping to block his confirmation as Treasury secretary when a new session of Congress opens next year.

The 53-year-old conservative Democrat has intertwined dual careers of politics and business since working his way through the University of Texas law school.

Nothing has been dug out yet which might provide any cause for rejecting his nomination, said the source, who asked not to be identified.

But Senate staff members and volunteers are searching for "covert and overt" conflicts of interest, he said. Of particular interest, he said, is Connally's service as attorney, and later administrator, of the estate of oil millionaire Sid Richardson.

Connally, son of an impoverished South Texas farmer, was an aide to Lyndon B. Johnson, in both the House and Senate. During the 1950s, he returned to manage several business enterprises in Texas, including interests in broadcasting, real estate, oil and gas, mutual funds, ranching and mining.

After a tour as secretary of the Navy, Connally ran for the governorship of Texas and stayed for three terms.

He retired in 1969 to take over key posts in a number of industrial and banking enterprises in Texas.

Salvation Army Totals Show 450 Families Aided

It will take several days yet to get an accurate count, but it appeared the Salvation Army had helped something like 450 families or 1,750 individuals at Christmas time.

Lt. Joseph Saint said Saturday that it appeared the corps here was within about $30 of its goal for helping the needy at Christmastime.

When Eva Munoz dropped in a dime late Christmas eve to become the final contributor to the kettles, the Salvation Army was about $50 short of its goal. The mail Saturday reduced this deficit and Lt. Saint was hopeful other belated gifts would balance the books for this humanitarian project.

Over the state, nearly $400,000 had been collected by the Salvation since early December. This enabled it to provide a measure of Christmas to approximately 175,000 people in 554 Texas communities, according to Lt. Col. Gordon Foubister, the organization's state commander in Dallas.

In 37 cities the Army conducted massive Christmas programs that extend help in the form of toys for children, dinners for families and gifts to individuals in hospitals, old age homes, special schools and over 125,000 toys were distributed, some purchased new by the Army and others donated by civic groups and businesses.

In Big Spring, city firemen help by reconditioning toys given by residents.

RESTRICTED MOVIE THEATER ADMISSION — Movie theater employees frisk a moviegoer outside a Phnom Penh theater. Theaters in the Cambodian capital were closed for several weeks because of terrorist incidents. The theaters are now reopened but everyone entering must be frisked first for weapons and explosives.

Martin Is Still Most Active

Martin County has continued its torrid drilling pace to lead all other counties of the Permian Basin in West Texas and southeastern New Mexico for the fifth consecutive week.

The weekly survey of Reed Drilling Tools of rotaries making hole showed Martin County with 34 active rigs, a gain of two for the week.

This put it 11 ahead of Pecos County with 23, a decline of two rigs. Lea County, N.M., with 21 rigs, was down two. Other counties in this area (with previous week totals in parentheses) were: Borden 1 (2), Dawson 2 (1), Glasscock 1 (1), Howard 5 (4), Scurry 4 (4), Sterling 1 (0).

Pierce & Dehlinger of Midland were swabbing and flowing back load, no gauges, at No. 1 Garner, Borden County searcher, 20 miles southeast of Gail and one location north of the depleted one-well Garner (Clearford) field.

Through Clearfork perforations at 4-181-4,222 feet, which had been acidized with 500 gallons, it swabbed dry. Fluid level was at 3,950 feet. Re-acidized with 5,000 gallons and eight ball sealers, testing continued.

Originally to 4,300 feet, a one-hour drillstem test from 4,180-4,231 feet recovered 420 feet of oil and gas-cut mud and 20 feet of gas-cut mud. Flowing pressures were 133 to 216 pounds; initial shut-in pressure was 1,705 pounds and final shut-in pressure, 1,525 pounds.

The Garner opener, Rowan Oil Co. No. 1 C. H. Garner, was finished April 16, 1951, to pump 133 barrels of 27-gravity oil daily, through perforations at 4,242-4,272 feet, and topped the Clearfork at 3,088 feet, on derrick floor elevation of 2,275 feet.

It spots 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 80, block 20, Lavaca Navigation Co., 25 miles south-east of Gail.

U.S., Cuba Join Hands To Rescue Families

MIAMI (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard and two of Fidel Castro's patrol boats cooperated to rescue seven Americans from a partially submerged boat aground off Cuba on Christmas.

The Cuban patrol craft came upon the 85-foot Sea Rover, bound for Nicaragua, soon after it ran aground on a coral reef three miles off the northwestern tip of Cuba, survivors said after they were flown to Miami.

David Edwards, 30, of Statesville, N.C., said the Cubans offered their help and when the Americans were unable to free the grounded boat, stood by until the Coast Guard could reach the converted PT boat and the four adults and three children aboard.

"The water was only about waist deep inside the boat so we all scurried up to the deck," Edwards said. The Cubans arrived soon after the travelers radioed a distress call.

"The Cubans were very helpful. Five of them came over asking if they could provide us with any assistance," Edwards said. "They made an attempt to help us get the boat off but failed."

A Coast Guard aircraft reached the Sea Rover a short time later, Edwards said, and dropped a salvage pump "that was too small." A helicopter from St. Petersburg—about 350 miles away—picked up six of the boat's passengers late Friday and the seventh, owner Nikola Severdija of Miami, was taken aboard the Belgian freighter Pontos.

In St. Petersburg Coast Guard Lt. Bill Fisher, pilot of the helicopter, and his crewmen said one of the Cubans helped transfer the Sea Rover's passengers and personal gear to a raft.

The only difficulty, Edwards said, occurred when he attempted to go aboard the raft. Edwards said a Cuban officer asked him to remain aboard but subsequently agreed to let him go.

Severdija, 33, his wife Sylvia and their children—Nick, 10, Dean, 8 and Gladys 11—were en route to Nicaragua as settlers, the wife said. Mrs. Severdija said they had planned to operate the Sea Rover commercially as a Nicaraguan river boat.

Cabot Group Aids Fund

As they prepared for a holiday shutdown of their plant, Cabot Corporation employees on Christmas Eve "passed the hat" for the Christmas Cheer Fund, and the result was a healthy $71 additional for the annual program to remember poor children.

This contribution brought the 1971 Fund total to $1,394.50.

Appreciation is expressed to the Cabot employees as well again — to all those who had a part in making the Christmas Cheer Fund a successful operation for another year.

BLISSFUL REUNION — Honorary West German Consul Eugen Beihl embraces his wife Boni after they were reunited at the airport in Biarritz, France, Saturday. Administration Is Great, Congress Is Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of President Nixon's key associates have reviewed the past two years and concluded the administration is doing great but Congress is a problem. Four White House officials gave good report cards to their boss and themselves in background briefings held during the holiday week. Under the ground rules, they cannot be identified and publication of their statements had to be withheld until late Saturday. The officials argued that Nixon on policies have proved enormously successful at home and abroad but they contended Congress too often has been guilty of foot-dragging or obstructionism in handling major legislation. Particular concern was voiced about inaction on Nixon's revenue-sharing plan, tardy passage of major appropriations and the Senate tie-up that has dimmed the chances of enactment this year of welfare reforms. One described as "our greatest single disappointment" the fact that Congress has yet even to hold hearings on Nixon's plan to share some federal revenues with state and local governments on a no-strings-attached basis. This official said the states' financial problems have become so acute that the nation may face an era of one-term governors who will be turned out of office by voters angered about increasing state taxes. He predicted that "depth of support" for the Nixon proposal among governors and mayors will force Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee to hold hearings on revenue-sharing in 1971. The administration, which this year called for gradual increases in proposed revenue-sharing until the total would reach $5 billion after five years, is expected to call for even greater diversion of federal funds when it presents the plan anew.

Cat Saves Family From House Fire

OREM, Utah (AP) — Robert Weaver credits a cat he didn't particularly care for with saving the lives of his family of six in a Christmas morning fire. Weaver said the cat jumped on his bed and continued to pester him until he got out of bed to throw the pet outside. Then he discovered his house was on fire. The family escaped, but its $14,000 home was leveled.

Phase-Out Of Herbicides Begun, Announcement Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said Saturday the government has begun an "orderly, yet rapid phase-out" of all herbicide operations in Vietnam and hopes to complete the job by next Spring. Herbicides now are used in Vietnam as defoliants of jungle undergrowth and to kill other

Jordanians Pushed Back, Arabs Say

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Jordanian tanks and troops fought Palestinian guerrillas for two days in strategic Jordan hills but were repulsed, an Arab Commando communiqué claimed Saturday. The Arab peace-keeping mission in Jordan since the civil war tried to arrange a cease-fire, but the guerrilla commander said its efforts were thwarted by repeated Jordanian mortar and artillery barrages. Later the Arab mission announced that life returned to normal in Salt in the afternoon. The acting head of the mission, Col. Farouk Azizi, said he visited Salt with a number of Arab military observers and agreed with guerrilla representatives and Jordanian troops to end the tension. He said roads leading to the town of Salt and areas where fighting occurred have been reopened and both sides were cooperating in carrying out the recent peace agreements. In recent days guerrillas and villagers near Salt fought a series of skirmishes. Government statements claimed the guerrillas had taken over the villagers' land and but would not let them farm. A government statement Friday said the army overran the guerrilla bases and two soldiers were killed and two wounded. There were no reports on the clashes from Amman Saturday because telephone lines were not working.

Burglar Hits 7-11 Store

A Christmas Day burglar broke into the Seven-Eleven grocery store at Gregg and Eighteenth and escaped with an undetermined amount of merchandise. Mrs. E. L. Fannin, manager of the store, told police that when she opened the store shortly before 6 a.m. Saturday she discovered a panel had been knocked out of the rear entrance, and the safe had been tampered with. "The safe hadn't been opened, and a box of pennies and a canister for the March of Dimes on the counter weren't disturbed," Mrs. Fannin said. "We know some things are missing, but we won't be able to tell exactly how much until the middle of the week when we will complete an inventory." The Seven-Eleven store is closed only one day a year... Christmas.

Teen Arrested For Knife Attack

A 13-year-old boy was arrested by city policemen Saturday afternoon following an alleged knife attack on a 23-year-old woman. The youth was also charged with burglary and theft when officers discovered several items reported as stolen in his jacket. He was released to the custody of his parents at 5:20 p.m. Saturday and will see Keith Jones, juvenile officer, Jan. 4.

Residence Poses Political Problem

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Dean Prosser Jr. lives about 10 miles south of here, about 700 feet into Colorado. And it appears that's going to be a problem. On Nov. 3, Prosser was elected to serve in the state House of Representatives—the Wyoming House.

Dutchman Identified As Soldier For Communists

SAIGON (AP) — Documents found on the body of a 26-year-old Dutchman killed in Cambodia by South Vietnamese soldiers revealed that he had been traveling with the Viet Cong as a guerrilla fighter. Johannes C. G. Duynisveld, of Voorschoten, Holland, was killed Dec. 18 when the unit he was accompanying was caught in a night ambush by South Vietnamese troops near Svay Rieng in eastern Cambodia. At the time of his death, according to a diary and other papers found on his body, Duynisveld had been with the Viet Cong since mid-September. He had left Phnom Penh Sept. 15 on what ostensibly was a secret mission to find out what had happened to several of the 17 Western correspondents missing in Cambodia since last April. According to the diary, Duynisveld became a guerrilla fighter Nov. 28 when Viet Cong officers issued him a machine pistol and gave him some special instructions. The diary, to which The Associated Press obtained access, does not explain what his mission was to be. His death marked the first verified instance in the Indochina war of a Westerner accompanying Communist command troops as a soldier. Duynisveld, a tall man with a full beard, was an adventurer and amateur journalist. Dutch officials here say he had been roaming the world since he was about 16. Last August he appeared at Siem Reap, in northern Cambodia, in the company of several French journalists who had been captured and then released by North Vietnamese troops. He claimed also to have been a captive and to have obtained information on the fate of some of the missing correspondents. Some were dead but others were alive and in Communist prisons, Duynisveld claimed. His story was given little credence by U.S. and Dutch officials in Phnom Penh. His diary, which begins Sept. 15 and ends Dec. 17, a day before his death, indicates Duynisveld went by bicycle, from Phnom Penh to Svay Rieng in eastern Cambodia and allowed himself to be captured by Communist command troops after moving through Cambodian and South Vietnamese lines. He linked up with Viet Cong troops Sept. 19, apparently near the village of Chantrey, some 12 miles north of Svay Rieng and eight miles west of the Vietnam border. "Started at 9 a.m. towards P.P. (Phnom Penh) by bicycle, met a Vietnamese lieutenant who told me where the VC were," says the diary for that day. "About 18 kilometers outside Svay Rieng I turned into a country road with lead on my feet. After cycling for about 2-3 kilometers there it was, two shots were fired and I had to stop and yes, there they were. They checked everything I had and then took my bicycle away. They took me to a village nearby, took everything I had away and put me in a house to sleep." The diary for the next 2 1/2 weeks contains brief entries telling how the Viet Cong moved constantly to avoid allied air strikes and artillery fire. He wrote Oct. 8 that Communist officers "told me that the soldiers from Lon Nol (Cambodia) and South Vietnam were on their way here... Something is coming. They were firing cannon all night. I could hardly close an eye." On Oct. 16, Duynisveld expressed anger about restrictions on his movements. The soldiers even accompanied him to the latrine, he wrote. But his complaints apparently registered because a captain came to see him. "He told me that I was not a prisoner at all, that they only waited for a chance so I could leave without danger." Then, he added, the officer gave him permission to go swimming in a nearby river. On Nov. 26, he told of being taken to a training camp for young Cambodian boys. "There were about 60 boys there in training. The average age was 16 to 18," he said. The entry for Nov. 28 began with a visit by a Viet Cong officer riding a motorbike, who "took me to a place where about six other chiefs were." "One of them spoke fluent English so I could understand everything. Now after all the bad luck they acknowledged me, because they gave me a machine pistol and some kind of passport in the Cambodian and Vietnamese language... I was taken away and given a place to sleep, this time a little house just for me... Then we got some food and in the afternoon I got a bunch of material that I had to learn, which kept me busy all afternoon. "Evening came and more than 40 V.C. soldiers came around to congratulate me. I suppose I got an important function, so let's see. So started my first day as a guerrilla fighter, but now how will it end?" On Nov. 30 he told of Kompong Trom being bombed "and this afternoon a village near to here. It was pretty bad there. The jets really bombed it with I don't know how many bombs before they finally left, at least that's what we thought, but they returned and dropped some more bombs." On Dec. 2 officers showed him a jeep, captured from the South Vietnamese but not in working condition, and asked him to repair it. "They said if I could repair it I could be the driver," he wrote, "and by the afternoon of the next day had the vehicle in running order." The rest of the entries are mainly terse and sometimes mysterious. There is little description of actual combat. Some other diary entries: Dec. 5: "Heard on the radio that the families of the prisoners can send parcels via Moscow to Hanoi, so they will have it good." Dec. 7: "Already a new week... This afternoon somebody came and told me to drive the jeep. It was loaded full of weapons and ammunition and we went on our way." Dec. 10: "This afternoon two fighter-bombers came over and they must have seen me. If they didn't they are blind."

ALL WAS CALM Big Springers Celebrate Very Quiet Holiday

The serenity associated with the Christmas holidays almost completely pervaded Big Spring and her sister Howard County communities. Activity Friday went to the minimum, and even Saturday, with many business establishments taking a long weekend holiday, was a quiet day. People's goings and comings were mostly to the homes of relatives and friends, or, on Thursday night, to church services. As of Saturday afternoon, there had been no major crimes, no major mishaps, no holiday-marring tragedies. Law enforcement officers were able to enjoy a Yule holiday, with only routine activity. The police department log showed only three minor accidents for Christmas Day and a limited number of other entries. "I wish it would be as quiet as this every day," one policeman said. A Howard County sheriff's deputy agreed: "Even though I had to work Christmas, it was a holiday because there weren't any problems. Most residents spent a quiet day with their families — something I wish they would do more often."

Christmas Day Not Exactly As Feared By Elderly, Poor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 250 guests were old, poor and unaccustomed to parties. Many had expected to spend Christmas Day in a hotel lobby. Instead they were laughing, singing carols and shaking hands with Santa Claus.

The party was the idea of Doug Ring, 26, a marketing man, and Ted Clabaugh, 32, a lawyer. It was held in the auditorium of an old hotel.

Elvis Visits Working Police

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley, wearing a white suit and hair down to his shoulders, visited Memphis police headquarters early Christmas Day.

The singer-actor wasn't in trouble. He arrived in the early morning hours to say hello to the men and women who had to work on Christmas.

His visit left telephone operators queuing with delight, but they had one complaint — "He didn't give us any warning so we could get our lipstick on."

The guests came from nine rooming houses and cheap hotels. The letter-sized invitations had said that everyone was invited for entertainment and refreshments-free-Christmas Day.

A dairy donated 25 gallons of eggnog. A bank and an insurance company gave Christmas trees, a bakery the pastry, a bottling company the soft drinks, a printing company the invitations.

Even as they passed out the invitations, people kept asking what was in it for the sponsors. They wanted to know what the "angle" was. A hotel clerk asked for $10 before letting Ring and Clabaugh pass out the invitations.

Most of the 250 people who showed up wore their best clothes. At first they sat quietly at long tables. But soon they were singing carols with guitarist Keith Barbour, shaking hands with Santa Claus, a public relations man named Joel Rubenstein, and talking and laughing among themselves.

Clabaugh and his friends were so pleased with the party they decided to form a group called "Why Not!" which will coordinate business donations and volunteer workers in projects to help the elderly.

As one of them put it afterward, the Christmas party drew strangers together and made them friends—and if it works one day a year, why not the other 364?

Rally To Help Burned-Out Clan

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — Neighbors and others responded quickly when fire left a family of 12 homeless Christmas morning.

There were immediate offers of help, contributions of cash, food, clothing and numerous household items for the family of V. O. Taylor.

The fire, partially covered by insurance, swept through the Taylor home just before dawn. The family was opening Christmas presents but escaped unharmed.

Taylor is disabled and unable to work. He lost his back braces in the blaze. By evening there were two offers to replace them.

LBJ AND GRANDCHILDREN — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson poses with two of his grandchildren, Patrick Lyndon Nugent, 3½, left, and Lucinda Robb, 2, at a Christmas tree lighting ceremony at the LBJ State Park near the Johnson's ranch Wednesday night.

STROLLING STYLES — With temperatures in the high 70's, Christmas is still an excellent season for strolling on Miami Beach—whatever your style.

WWII Veteran Gives Trip Home

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — J. Vernon Harwell paid the air fare home on Christmas leave from Vietnam for a sailor he had never met and took him out for dinner because he knows how it feels to be lonely at Christmas.

Harwell offered to pay the $350 air fare for any serviceman from New Mexico who was eligible but couldn't afford to take advantage of the new Vietnam leave opportunity.

Navy Storekeeper 3. C. Tony Ray Davis, stationed at Cam Ranh Bay, jumped at the chance. Davis, 25, originally from Carlsbad, was one of about 400 servicemen who left Saigon Christmas Day in chartered jetliners for the two-week holiday leave.

"I couldn't believe it at first. This is the best Christmas present I've ever had," Davis said on arrival Friday night in Albuquerque. He planned to go to Carlsbad today to visit friends, then to Port Lavaca, Tex., where his family now lives.

Harwell, whose son-in-law is in the Navy, said he and his family were going to Hawaii for the holidays.

"But we're going to give this kid a good time before we leave," he said. "We're going to take him out to the Albuquerque Country Club for dinner and give him some money to spend while he's home."

"I kind of know how those boys feel at Christmas because I spent three of them in the Pacific during World War II. It wasn't much fun."

Harwell, now a distributor for a peanut company, spent wartime yuletides with the 2nd Marines on Guadalcanal, Tarawa and Saipan.

Davis, who had been in Vietnam 4½ months, said he never will forget his benefactor.

County Dads Won't Meet

Howard County Commissioners will not meet Monday. Some of the commissioners will be out of town for the holidays. The present commission is a lame-duck court and there is no business presently requiring immediate action.

The new court will be sworn in Jan. 1 and is scheduled to open bids for general liability and workmen's compensation policies for the county at 4 p.m.

Minister's Son Earns Doctorate

Perry C. Cotham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry B. Cotham of 2903 Goliad, was among the 74 doctoral candidates who were awarded their doctor of philosophy degrees by Wayne State University, Dec. 22.

The Michigan school, with an enrollment of 35,000 students, held commencement exercises in Detroit's riverfront Cobo Hall for a winter graduating class of 2,703.

Dr. Cotham is a graduate of Grand Prairie High School and David Lipscomb College. He earned his Ph.D. at Wayne in the field of speech. Dr. Cotham and his wife, Glenda, and two children presently reside in Detroit. His father is minister of the 14th & Main Church of Christ.

Agnew's Daughter Plans To Marry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Susan Scott Agnew, the daughter of Vice President and Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew, plans to marry 1st Lt. Colin Neilson Macindoe of the Maryland State Police, a friend of four years.

Their engagement was announced when Macindoe presented Susan with her ring at a family Christmas Eve gathering at the Agnew's hotel apartment here. No date has been set, but Ann Thompson of Agnew's staff said: "I doubt if it will be a big wedding. The children don't care for the limelight."

Macindoe, 36, is assigned to the governor's security detail in Annapolis, Md. He is the son of Mrs. Robert Macindoe of Easton, Md., and the late Mr. Macindoe.

Miss Agnew, 23, is an assistant coordinator of volunteer services at the Eastern Shore State Hospital in Cambridge, Md.

An Agnew aide said the couple probably will live in Easton, Md.

Wisconsin Soldier Wins $5,000 Gift

SAIGON (AP) — Christmas was a day of surprises for Spec. 4 Robert Decker of Green Bay, Wis. He thought he would share the stage with Bob Hope and his beautiful entourage but instead won $5,000 worth of free gifts.

The 21-year-old Signal Corpsman was watching the comedian's show at Long Binh when an officer asked for the identification cards of Decker and four others.

"The officer said we'd get a chance to go on stage with Hope," said Decker, "but that didn't pan out. Then the officer came back and said one of the cards would be drawn from a gift pack—you know, the usual soap boxes and tooth brushes they give soldiers at Christmas."

Decker's card was drawn and he approached the stage expecting to receive a prize worth $9. "There I was, kind of nervous, and Bob Hope started talking about this new car, TV, clothes and a vacation in Vegas," Decker said later. "I thought all the stuff was for him. When he said 'take me with you to Vegas; I suddenly realized 'Wow, that's all for me.'"

The gift pack was the 500,000 issued to a GI in Vietnam, and its suppliers decided to make it special.

When he finishes his tour on Aug. 25, 1971, Decker will receive a new car, a color television set, movie projector and screen, a $250 wardrobe certificate and a four-day expenses-paid holiday for two in Las Vegas, Nev.

"I thought this was going to be the worst Christmas I ever had and it turned out to be the best," said Decker, who arrived in Vietnam four months ago and celebrated his birthday two weeks ago.

Santa Claus Role Doesn't Fare Well

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Taxi-cab driver Paul Dotterer had to make some sacrifices for playing Santa Claus during working hours.

During Christmas week, Dotterer decked out his cab with Yule decorations, sprayed the interior with the fragrant aroma of northwood evergreens and donned a Santa Claus suit.

He greeted his customers with a booming ho-ho and frequently stopped his cab to jump out and wish a Merry Christmas to pedestrians and groups of children.

However, the business of playing Santa Claus caused his cab fares to drop.

"That's why I had to work Christmas Day," Dotterer said. But he added: "It was worth it."

Warm, Happy Christmas Is Celebrated By Old Hermit

HORNITOS, Calif. (AP) — The old hermit of Horseshoe Bend is getting more wood, and that, he says, is all he needs—not all those cards from over the nation.

The stack of mail was four inches thick Friday, said Harry Harris, the state Fish and Game Department warden who has aided Pietro Arata, 88, for several years while making his regular rounds.

"He's almost blind and nearly completely deaf, but still a pretty happy old man," Harris said. Arata lives in a shack above Lake McClure, near here, and needs wood for cooking, Harris said.

"His only means of cooking is on a couple of flat rocks with a hunk of metal across them," he said.

A week and a half ago, a newsman trekked to Arata's place and the story spread around the country.

Since then, several people have made the difficult trip up the lake shore to take supplies to him.

On Christmas, Modesto County Fire Chief Charles Parker and six of his men spent hours cutting wood for him.

Parker also took the old hermit several pairs of glasses, one of which seemed to help.

The firemen said they would return in a couple of weeks to cut more wood and try to repair the roof of Arata's shack because rain has been bothering him.

Other people boating to Arata's rustic abode have brought blankets and clothes.

"But he is not interested in anything fancy," Harris said.

"That improvised stove is in a corner of his shack," he added. "He has the area vented, but it still gets pretty smokey."

Arata's mail has included money, says May Leiman, Mariposa County Welfare Department director who handles the pension Arata earned working more than a half century as a California miner after immigrating from Italy in 1908.

PUTTING THE GAME ON ICE — Mel Renfro (20) Dallas Cowboys' cornerback, juggles the ball as he intercepts a pass intended for Earl McCullouch (25) Detroit Lions' wide receiver in the final minutes of the NFL playoff game in Dallas Saturday. Renfro's interception ended a scoring threat by the Lions and Dallas won, 5-0.

Lions Are Muzzled By Cowboy Defense

John Unitas Leads Colts

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Unitas tossed Baltimore touchdown passes of 45 and 53 yards in the opening and final quarters and the Colts defense throttled the Cincinnati Bengals for a 17-0 National Football League playoff victory Saturday.

The triumph sent the Colts into next week's American Conference title game in Baltimore against the winner of the Oakland-Miami game Sunday.

In ending Cincinnati's Cinderella dream, the Colts permitted the Bengals past midfield only twice while stopping their seven-game winning streak in the nationally televised contest.

SIX COMPLETIONS
Unitas completed only six of 17 passes on a cold, blustery day, but gained 145 yards with the aid of his two long strikes to wide receivers Roy Jefferson and Eddie Hinton.

Rookie Norm Bulaich of Baltimore had his best day as a pro, gaining 116 yards on 25 carries. His running mate, Tom Nowatzke, gained 25 yards on 10 attempts.

Unitas, showing no effects of an injured right shoulder, connected with Jefferson on a third down pass in the final minute of the first quarter.

Jefferson, who also ran from a set position in the backfield — a maneuver tried for the first time last week — caught the pass on the run on about the eight yard line while surrounded by three defenders.

Hinton, who made three receptions for 86 yards, gathered in his TD pass on about the 20 and legged it into the end zone.

The Bengals, the second leading rushing team in the AFC, picked up only 63 yards on the ground with 25 by Paul Robinson, the best performance. Cincinnati made only seven first downs, two in the first half, and the others in the last quarter.

DUMPED 3 TIMES
Virgil Carter, dumped three times for 17 yards in losses and under constant pressure from the Baltimore rush, completed only 7 of 21 passes for 64 yards.

The Colts extended their winning streak to five in a row while running their 1970 record to 12-2-1 as they played before their first home non-sellout crowd in 52 games. The attendance in Memorial Stadium, with temperatures in the low 30s and winds up to 30 miles an hour, was 51,127, or about 9,000 below capacity.

The first TD pass by Unitas came two plays following a dropped interception attempt by Ken Riley on the Cincinnati 35. Each team had a field goal blocked in the first half and Jim O'Brien of Baltimore missed another attempt from 44 yards late in the third quarter.

Baltimore Ace Prefers To Gather In Passes

BALTIMORE (AP) — Wide receiver Roy Jefferson of Baltimore said Saturday he would rather catch passes than run the ball, and he and quarterback Johnny Unitas proved why as the Colts shut out the Cincinnati Bengals 17-0 in their American Football Conference playoff game.

Jefferson, who now occasionally runs from the fullback spot in the Colts new "old look" tight-T backfield, put Baltimore on top to stay with a 45-yard scoring reception late in the first period.

Rookies Had To Fill Roles For Dallas

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Dallas Cowboy head coach Tom Landry called Dallas' 5-0 National Football Conference playoff victory over Detroit Saturday "the best we've ever played in a crucial game" but it took superlative efforts from a pair of rookies "just learning to play" to turn the trick.

And one of the old veterans, cornerback Mel Renfro, contributed his share by intercepting a Bill Munson pass with less than a minute to play that iced the game for the Cowboys and put them into the NFC championship match next week against either San Francisco or Minnesota.

"It was just a stupid rookie mistake," said Dallas safety Charlie Waters of a 39-yard pass to Earl McCullouch that gave Detroit a first down at the Cowboy 29 with less than one minute to play.

TOOK IT AWAY
"I was going for the interception," Waters explained. "I had it too, and he took it away from me. I should have knocked that pass down but I went for the interception. That was my lesson for the day."

Waters, however, was one of the Dallas' defensive stars, recovering two Detroit fumbles, one which set up a Dallas field goal.

"I haven't been making too many big plays this year," Renfro said of his pass interception. "It just feels great. That was my contribution to our team."

Besides Waters, the other rookie "just learning his job" was running back Duane Thomas, who spearheaded the Cowboys' ground game when Dallas decided to go overland in the second half.

Thomas rushed for 135 yards on 30 carries, mostly in the second half, but he was at a loss to explain his success.

"I just can't explain it," the first-year man from West Texas State said. "In that second half the guard was there blocking and I was running and it just went. I'm an opportunist."

VIKES WOULD VISIT DALLAS

DALLAS (AP) — If Minnesota defeats San Francisco Sunday in Minnesota, the National Conference Championship Game will be played in the Cotton Bowl next Sunday.

And if that happens, tickets for the Dallas-Minnesota game will go sale at the Women's Building at the Fair Grounds immediately after the Vikings' victory.

All tickets are reserved and are $10.00 for the championship game. There is a limit of 10 tickets per purchaser.

Should San Francisco win, the Cowboys will play at Kezar Stadium in San Francisco for a berth in the Super Bowl on Jan. 17 in Miami.

IN BLUE LINEUP — James Carver, a native of Big Spring, will be in the North's lineup in the annual Blue-Gray All-Star game at Montgomery, Ala., Monday night. The Kansas State guard will be wearing No. 62. He's the son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Carver, Big Spring.

Devils Head For Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Undeclared Arizona State, tabbed the fastest team in the nation, and North Carolina, a ball-control machine led by All-American Don McCauley, arrive in Atlanta Sunday with only light work remaining before their Peach Bowl encounter Wednesday night.

The Sun Devils, ranked eighth in the nation, rolled past 10 foes in regular season with the nation's most productive offense — 514 yards per game — but were one of the last teams to receive a bowl invitation.

Coach Bill Dooley's Tar Heels became the host team only after Georgia Tech upset Georgia 17-7. Georgia, coached by Bill's brother, Vince Dooley, had been offered a Peach Bowl bid contingent on a victory over Tech.

McCauley cracked O. J. Simpson's single season NCAA rushing record with 1,720 yards. He was second in the nation in rushing — based on yards per game — at 156, two less than Ed Marinaro of Cornell. But the Tar Heel star led the country in all-purpose running with 2,021 yards rushing, receiving and returning kicks.

Much Is Riding On Miami Clash

MIAMI (AP) — Nebraska and Louisiana State will cheer for the underdogs in New Year's daytime TV football dramas and then hope to fight it out at night in the Orange Bowl for the nation's No. 1 ranking.

"No reason we shouldn't be ranked No. 1," said Nebraska Coach Bob Devaney of his 10-0-1 Big Eight champions.

"Considering the mean schedule we've played, I think we should be put with the best," said LSU's Charlie McClendon, whose Tigers won the Southeastern Conference with a 9-2 season.

Both sides have it figured this way: If Stanford upsets No. 2 ranked Ohio State in the Rose Bowl and Notre Dame spills No. 1 rated Texas in the Cotton Bowl, then the Nebraska-LSU winner might get consideration for the top spot.

HUSKERS THIRD

At the end of the regular season, Nebraska was ranked third and LSU fifth and The Associated Press will conduct its final vote after the post-season events are completed.

Two tough running backs, Joe Orduña and Jeff Kinney, are the centerpiece of the Nebraska offense. The speedy 196-pound Orduña gained 834 yards and the Husker workhorse, averaging 4.5 a carry, Kinney gained 661 and matched the 4.5 clip.

Jerry Tagge is a rangy 6-foot-2 junior quarterback from the football hotbed of Green Bay, Wis., who completed 104 of 165 tosses for 1,383 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Tagge's favorite targets are back Johnny Rodgers, 35 catches for 665 yards and seven scores, and an elusive Guy Ingles. The 5-foot-9, 158-pound Ingles had 34 reception for 603 yards and eight TDs.

LSU lost a 20-18 shocker to Texas A&M in its season opener, but the Tigers dropped only a classic 3-0 struggle with Notre Dame in the final 10 efforts. The 61-17 plastering of Gator Bowl-bound Mississippi in the season finale helped boost LSU to No. 5.

LSU has a superior bowl past to the Cornhuskers. The Tigers have an 8-6-1 post-season history while Nebraska has dropped five of eight.

TOUGH DEFENSE

Tommy Casanova is the most explosive LSU man as a daring punt returner who brought back six kicks for a fat 34-yard average. "This might be one of our best-remembered teams at LSU," said McClendon, "partly because we beat Ole Miss 61-17 and mostly because we led the nation by allowing only 52.2 yards rushing a game."

Joining Casanova in the potent LSU defense are brilliant 219-pound linebacker Mike Anderson, who McClendon said "has to rank with the best anywhere."

Offensively, the Tigers split their quarterbacking chores between senior Buddy Lee and sophomore Bert Jones. Lee connected on 73 of 138 attempts for 1,162 yards and six touchdowns and Jones hit 52 of 100 for 864 and five scores.

Lanky 6-foot-3 Andy Hamilton is LSU's banner receiver with 39 catches and a healthy 22-yard average. The junior from Ruston, La., scored eight touchdowns. Ken Kavanaugh Jr. caught 25 for 318 yards and Gerald Keigley grabbed 16 for 277.

On the ground, stocky 5-foot-11 Art Cantrelle was a giant for the bengals. The junior from Larose, La., gained 892 yards and averaged 3.6, carrying the ball almost as much as the other 13 ball carriers combined at LSU.

Kickoff is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. CST, on NBC-TV, but that might be delayed if the Rose Bowl — also on NBC — runs long. A sellout crowd of about 80,000 is assured.

Sixth-ranked Penn (6-0) had to come from behind in the second half before subduing a surprising Syracuse team, which led by as many as five points twice in the final 20 minutes.

Syracuse led 67-66 with 1:27 remaining. Penn tied it on a free throw by Corky Calhoun a second later and when neither team could score, the game went into overtime.

The 5-foot-11 Bilsky, who failed to score in the first half, sent Penn ahead on a pair of free throws at 69-67 with 17 seconds gone in the overtime period. Jim Wolf and Bilsky followed with field goals to up the Penn lead to 73-67.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

Sooner Fans Upbraid Bud

By TOMMY HART

Coaching aides at Southern Methodist say Big Springer Jimmy Farris likely will be one of the Mustangs' regular line-backers next fall, when he first becomes eligible for varsity ball.

BYRL CLAYTON

Farris had a fine freshman season at SMU. The Atlanta Hawks of the NBA may try to move to Houston but the question is: Would Houston want to assume Pete Maravich's two-million dollar contract? Tex Schramm intends to black out Sherman, Denison, Tyler and Waco TV stations next fall, because home attendance of the Dallas Cowboys slumped. The Dallas fans had been able to pick up the games with the help of $5.95 antennas. You'd best count your blessings (if you're a football buff) when you realize Big Spring is as far from Dallas as it is. Large posters displaying action pictures of BSMS basketball games will be offered local merchants for display in their store windows. The Steers play an exciting brand of ball but the fans haven't developed a habit of watching them in person. Good news for followers of the Houston Astros: Pitcher Don Wilson's fast ball has improved in the Arizona Instructional League and some observers are looking for Wilson to have a great year. If Don can win 20 games, Houston could make a run at its divisional championship in the National League in 1971. GAMCO of Big Spring plans to exhibit one of its movie projectors at the coaches' convention in Houston early next year. The coaches say it is a big improvement over anything that has been built before. Catch the brass ring and you've got it made: Brooks Robinson, star of the last World Series, was given 975 shares of Rawlings stock because he used a Rawlings glove to make all those miraculous catches. If SMU follows the Dallas Cowboys to the new stadium in Irving, as few as two college games could be played in the Cotton Bowl next season: Texas vs. Oklahoma and the annual Cotton Bowl classic.

The biggest cheer in a recent six-man football game at Killeen between Central Texas College's Soul Brigade I and Schreiner came when C. Texas' tennis coach, Byrl W. Clayton, retrieved the ball from a nearby tennis court and punted it from the court to the far end of the football field — a feat which the college paper compared to some of George Blanda's derring-do. Clayton, whose brother is Mrs. Oscar (Marie) Johnson of 1202 Pennsylvania, Big Spring, once played football for Gregory High School. His son, Dan, won two state singles and shared one doubles title while in high school at Lamarque. Texan Lee Roy Caffey, who plays for the Chicago Bears, has so many things going for him in Thorndale he may retire from football. He has a 1,400-acre cattle operation, is starting a savings-and-loan association with eight other people and some of his friends have been talking with him about going into politics. If Lee Roy quits, he will be succeeded by another Texan, Ross Brubacher. When people ask Oklahoma City University basketball coach Abe Lemon why members of his team wear a red shoe on one foot and a blue shoe on the other, he replies: "We had to be first in something." Los Angeles wit Jim Murray said the people who drew up the NFL schedule designed it trying for a 26-team dead heat. They almost made it, after 166 games. Actually, the plotters devoted over 1,000 hours to the job. Danny Smart of Big Spring was clocked in the same time in the state cross country meet two straight years. In 1969, he wound up 28th — this year he was 44th, which will show you how times are improving. Danny was bothered with physical problems this year or, no doubt, would have done much better. Jim Carlen, the Texas Tech football mentor who comes here next month to speak at the Quarterback Club banquet, says Texas produces more football talent than any area he knows. He's scouted all regions but California. Carlen is now making about 300 speeches a year around the country. Most of the fees he gets for such appearances go toward the support of summer camps run by the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. I don't think the people of Oklahoma have ever forgiven Bud Wilkinson for quitting as the University of Oklahoma football coach. He later ran for the U.S. Senate and was defeated. His son, Jay, was frustrated in his 1970 bid for a Congressional seat. The other day, 12 names, including Bud's, were projected for places in the Oklahoma Sports Hall of Fame. Wilkinson finished 11th on the list, although his OU teams won 145, lost 28 and tied four in 17 years. Carl Hubbell, Allie Reynolds, Hank Iba and Bob Kurland made the elite group. So did Bloomer Sullivan, a retired basketball player, and Lee Anderson, who coached on the high school level.

Overflow Crowd Due To See OU Play Tide

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Oklahoma and Alabama, bowl game veterans that have seen better seasons, meet Thursday night in the 12th Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl classic.

Selection of Oklahoma with a 7-4 record and Alabama at 6-5 prompted some criticism, particularly with such teams as Arkansas, 9-2, and Houston, 8-3, being among the uninvited for postseason play.

Despite the criticism, an overflow crowd in the area of 55,000 is expected in the Astrodome for the 6:45 p.m. CST kickoff that will be televised by the Hughes Sports Network.

Bluebonnet officials, selecting the famous named teams on the strength of impressive late season play, came up with a game odds-makers have rated as the closest of all bowl classics. Oklahoma started out as a two-point favorite but this had slipped to one point by the time the Sooners and Crimson arrived in town Christmas Day.

Both teams had only 3-3 records after six games. Oklahoma, after switching in early season to the Texas wishbone T, swept four of its last five games and came within a touchdown of tying Nebraska, the Big Eight champions that meet Louisiana State in the Orange Bowl.

Alabama lost a 14-9 thriller to fifth ranked LSU and then the Gator Bowl's Auburn scored twice in the final period for a 33-28 victory over the tide.

Alabama will be playing its 24th bowl game, Oklahoma its 14th. Both teams will be making a second appearance in the Bluebonnet. Alabama played a 3-3 tie with Texas before a crowd of 68,000 in the Rice University stadium in 1960. Oklahoma dropped a 27-28 thriller to Southern Methodist before an overflow crowd of 53,543 in 1968 in the Bluebonnet's first venture into the Astrodome.

The game matches two great runners. Bama's Johnny Musso, a junior, rushed for 1,137 yards, the third highest total for a single season in southeastern conference history. Joe Wylie, a Sooner sophomore, gained 984 yards and Alabama, bowl game veterans that have seen better seasons, meet Thursday night in the 12th Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl classic.

With two other sophomore running backs, the Sooners now prefer to stick with ground plays but quarterback Jack Mildren completed 54 passes for 818 yards and seven touchdowns. Mildren will challenge Alabama's Scott Hunter, a senior who, despite missing two games and being slowed in others by a shoulder injury, completed 103 of 179 passes for 1,240 yards and eight touchdowns to become the Tide's all-time total offense leader.

NAMED BY TULANE — Bennie Ellender, football coach at Arkansas State University at Jonesboro, Ark., has been named head football coach at Tulane.

Plunkett Matches Wits With Kern

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The football field in the famed Rose Bowl New Year's Day will be abloom with red, white and gray. And prominent for spectators in the stands and millions watching television will be jersey numbers 10 and 16.

No. 16 in the cardinal red and white of Stanford will be quarterback Jim Plunkett, the 1970 Heisman Trophy winner, and No. 10 in the scarlet and gray of Ohio State will be quarterback Rex Kern.

Each has outstanding supporting help, of course, and they'll need it in this 57th Rose Bowl encounter.

The 102,000 seats in the bowl are expected to be filled—weather remaining good — for the kickoff at 5 p.m. EST. NBC will carry the game on television and radio.

Ohio State, unbeaten in its nine game schedule and champions of the Big Ten, is an 11-point favorite to win its fourth straight Rose Bowl game under the leadership of Woody Hayes. The Buckeyes prevailed under Hayes over Southern California in 1955 and 1969 and Oregon in 1958.

In previous regimes, Ohio State lost to California in 1921 and won over the same Golden Bears in 1950.

Stanford is 3-1 in the Pasadena Classic.

The Indians, coached by John Ralston, go into the game with an 8-3 season record. They lost to Purdue, 26-14, in the fourth game of the season, and after clinching the Pacific-8 title, were beaten by Air Force, 31-14, and lost to California, 22-14, in their only conference setback.

To at least 16 seniors on the Ohio State squad, the Rose Bowl offers no mystery. They were here to whip Southern Cal as sophomores.

It will be a new experience for Stanford and Ralston. The last time a Tribe team was here was 1952 and it was Illinois 40-7.

The Stanford label is well embellished in Rose Bowl history, however. It was Stanford against Michigan in 1902 in what was later to become known as the Rose Bowl. Michigan won 49-0.

"The expression 'momentum' has become fashionable in football. Ohio State should have it after a perfect season and its epic, avenging victory over Michigan in the final game of the year, 20-9.

But Stanford, loser in its last two contests, has a lot of momentum to regain.

Royal Looks For Trouble With Irish

DALLAS (AP) — Less than two hours after No. 1 ranked Texas' 427 rout of Arkansas Dec. 5, Longhorn coach Darrell Royal's attention was already on revenge-minded Notre Dame and their rematch New Year's Day in the Cotton Bowl.

"I expect they'll be mighty mad," said Royal, referring to Notre Dame's 21-17 defeat to the national champions last year in the Cotton Bowl—first post season appearance for the Fighting Irish in 45 years.

And Notre Dame's All-American quarterback Joe Theismann pretty well backs up Royal's prediction.

"I've never, never in my life looked forward to playing a football game like I am this one," he says. "We are taking it more serious this time. There's the motivation of redemption. It's sort of an encore and it means a lot to us."

Texas, which has won 30 consecutive games, enters the contest a touchdown favorite based, among other things, on Notre Dame's 38-28 loss to a so-so Southern California team in the last game of the regular season.

But Theismann looks on the bright side.

He says: "We blew a possible national championship and the first undefeated season for one of what I feel is the best teams Notre Dame has had in a long time. The Cotton Bowl gives us a chance to show what a fine team we have."

Notre Dame is sixth-ranked and 9-1 entering the contest.

Theismann had an excellent game in the Cotton Bowl last year, hitting 17 of 27 passes for 231 yards and two touchdowns. But he threw an interception in the dying moments to short-circuit a last-ditch Irish drive.

Theismann was second in the nation in total offense this year averaging 281.3 yards per game. He was 14th in passing.

Texas leads the nation in rushing offense with an average of 374.5 yards per game and the Longhorns have the highest scoring outfit in the country with 41.2 points per contest.

Notre Dame is second in total offense with an average of 510.5 yards per contest. Texas is fourth with 468.1 yards.

The Irish are fifth in total defense and fifth against the rush. Texas doesn't appear in the Top 10 in either category.

Pettit Campaigns For Top Talent

LUBBOCK (AP) — The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, in a column for Sunday's edition by executive sports editor Burle Pettit, called for action by the American Football Coaches Association to insure the best possible talent for this summer's Coaches All-America football game.

Last year's contest drew more than 40,000 fans in Lubbock minus Heisman Trophy winner Steve Owens and Terry Bradshaw, the highly rated quarterback from Louisiana Tech who was the No. 1 professional draft choice.

The game was a flop in Atlanta and Buffalo where it had been previously held.

Pettit said in his column "An all-star football game, somewhat inaccurately ledgered as 'salvaged' by its move from Atlanta to Lubbock, is heading toward a test whose results may graphically record its fate through the years to come.

Blue-Gray Game Will Be Under Lights This Year

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — With both teams working overtime on their ground and air games, it's a sure bet the only way that the ball won't travel is by water when the North meets the South for the 33rd annual Blue-Gray football classic.

And on second thought, it may travel by water if it rains Monday night in Montgomery's Cramton Bowl.

The contest—which will be played under the lights for the first time—pits an armchair coach's draft selections against each other.

On the Blue side of the field head coach Bobby Bowden, of West Virginia, will have his own quarterback, Mike Sherwood, to help put legs and arms on his game plan.

This year Sherwood completed 117 of 193 passes for 1,550 yards and 15 touchdowns.

He also will have Boston College back Frank Harris, who was named to the Associated Press All-East second team.

From the other side of the Mason-Dixon, South Carolina coach Paul Dietzel will be fielding Arkansas' Bill Montgomery and his school's Tommy Suggs.

Billy C Runs At Sunland

SUNLAND PARK, N.M. — Mr. Billy C., the second-place finisher in the $45,350 Fall Thoroughbred Futurity at Sunland Park, swings back into action in today's featured Lee Trevino Purse.

The six-furlong headliner enticed a bulky collection of 12 juveniles into a duel over a purse of 1,400.

Mr. Billy C., owned by Elizabeth Wallace of Albuquerque, looks like the stand-out of the field and is expected to go post-ward as a heavy favorite.

But much of the racing action figures to get upstaged by the presence of Lee Trevino, the nationally famed pro golfer from El Paso.

Trevino, the leading money-winner of the 1970 pro tour with winnings of over $156,000, will put his tremendous golf talents to an unusual test during today's program.

Trevino will try to drive five golf balls across Sunland Park's spacious infield lake. The distance of the lake is estimated at about 225 yards.

Since Trevino will tee off in the infield, near the tote board, the flight of each drive will have to span some 240 yards to clear the lake.

The exhibition, of course, is all for charity. For each ball that clears the lake, Sunland will donate $50 to Trevino's favorite charity — the El Paso Boys' Club.

The demonstration will be held immediately after the seventh race. Two officials of the Boys' Club, W. J. McDuffy and Tom Neyman, will be on hand to accept a check in the event Trevino can clear the lake.

Trevino will also be in the winner's circle to present a blanket to the winner of the feature race named in his honor. If the recent Fall Thoroughbred Futurity is any indication, Mr. Billy C. is likely to join Trevino in the winner's circle.

The colt turned on a rousing stretch run in the futurity at nearly 9-1 in the wagering, but lost a neck decision to Tiki Bill. Second-place was worth $9,070.

Mr. Billy C. has been in the post six times so far in his career, scoring an impressive mark of three wins, two seconds and a third.

Another top contender in Sunday's headliner is Misty Quill, whose owners paid a supplemental fee of $2,000 to get her into the Futurity. Misty Quill ran second in the trials, but got away sluggishly in the finale and had to make up considerable ground to wind up fifth. In Sunday's outing, she'll be guided by Danny Whited at a modest 116 pounds.

Her record during Sunland's fall season also includes a sharp two-length victory and a place finish as a 4-5 favorite.

CLASSY FIELD The lineup also includes Whirling Memories, Dama Carbonada, Restored, Dan's Caprice, Grand Tradition, Whitney D., Rodah Bay, Gay

Dan Cobb Plans To Attend ACC

ABILENE — Dan Cobb, line-backer and fullback for the 1970 Abilene High Eagles, has signed to attend Abilene Christian College.

Cobb gained Honorable Mention of last fall's All-District 5-AAAA team. Cobb said he had been contacted by four South-west Conference schools but had leaned toward ACC for some time.

Barney, Chief's Blue Boy and Bergit. The latter was an allowance winner during the fall meeting.

Both Whirling Memories and Grand Tradition scored handsomely during the fall meeting, and both were good enough in the Futurity Trials to get on the "also-eligible" list with fourth-place finishes.

Sunday's co-feature is an 870-yard speed test which brings on the quick-starting mare, Cherry Lake. During the fall campaign, the thoroughbred sprinter scored three wins — all at quarter horse distances.

Her top win of the meeting came in the Sunland Park Quarter Horse Handicap at 400 yards.

In honor of "Lee Trevino Day" at Sunland, the management will give away two complete sets of Lee Trevino golf clubs. Two drawings will be held immediately after the last race.

In order to participate in the drawing, all a fan has to do is pick up a free drawing coupon at the track entrances.

Raiders And Dolphins Tangle In Oakland

OAKLAND (AP) — The last time the Oakland Raiders played the Miami Dolphins, Oakland head man Al Davis proclaimed the Raiders "a bunch of miserable losers." But they went on to become lovable winners, and they're fast Sunday in a National Football League Semifinal playoff.

The Raiders expect their 20th straight sellout home crowd of more than 54,000 for the 3 p.m. CST nationally-televised game in the Oakland Coliseum. The winner will play next Sunday vored to beat the Dolphins here for the American Conference championship and a berth in the Super Bowl.

The Dolphins, under new coach Don Shula, are one of the surprise teams of the year in the NFL. They were 3-10-1 last season, but skied to 10-4 this year and finished second to Baltimore, Shula's old team, in the AFC Eastern Division.

8-4-2 SEASON
The Raiders won the Western Division crown with an 8-4-2 record despite a horrendous start that brought out the wrath of Davis, the team's managing general partner.

"I've got a team that can't beat anyone," Davis said on Oct. 3 after the Raiders lost 20-13 in Miami and dropped to 0-2-1 in the standings.

Davis said later his comment wasn't meant for publication and that he wasn't criticizing Coach John Madden. But he didn't apologize to the players. "Maybe it will wake them up," he said.

Apparently it did. They didn't lose another game for eight weeks. They pulled out several victories in the final seconds, with George Blanda, Daryle Lamonica, Warren Wells and Kent McCloughan among those providing the heroics.

The Oct. 3 game in Miami also was a turning point for the Dolphins, Shula says. The team had an impressive 4-2 exhibition record but opened with a 27-14 loss to Boston.

"After that loss, we turned our deep disappointment to absolute determination. When we followed by beating Houston and then Oakland, I knew this team had the kind of character and drive to be a winner," Shula said.

The 5-year-old Dolphins posted their first winning record and made the playoffs for the first time with vast improvements on offense and defense.

Bob Griese, the fourth-year quarterback from Purdue, led the offense that totaled 297 points.

The Dolphins' running attack, featuring Larry Csonka, Jim Kick and Mercury Morris, averaged 148 yards per game, best in the conference.

Shula added some important new faces to the team, including receivers Paul Warfield and Marv Fleming and placekicker Gare Yepremian.

GAME IS SATURDAY

Gator Bowl Has Top Navigators

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Two outstanding quarterbacks, Pat Sullivan of Auburn and injury-plagued Archie Manning of Mississippi, provide the glitter for Saturday's Silver Anniversary Gator Bowl game between a pair of explosive Southeastern Conference football teams.

Sullivan, a junior, led the nation in total offense, averaging 285 yards per game and accounted for 26 touchdowns as the 10th-ranked Tigers won eight and lost two.

The Auburn star was The Associated Press All-SEC quarterback and a third team All-American selection.

Manning, who finished third in this year's Heisman Trophy voting, played in five games with a painful groin injury and appeared to have been knocked out of action for the year when he broke his left arm against Houston Nov. 7.

However, doctors placed a special polyester resin protective device on his arm and the courageous Manning played most of the first half when Louisiana State smashed the Rebels 61-17 in the regular season finale three weeks ago.

Sullivan watched that game on television, but says it didn't change his opinion about the Rebels.

"I think it's going to be a real tough game," said Sullivan. "LSU really had a fine football team and everything they did that night was right."

Manning, who says he's in much better physical condition now, still has trouble believing what happened at Baton Rouge.

"I really thought we were ready to play as we were against Tennessee last year," said Manning, who led the Rebels to a 38-0 victory over the Vols. "We were mentally ready, but you've got to be physically okay too, and we didn't have much physical going for us."

Manning says he's becoming more adjusted to playing with the cast on his arm, "but if I did it all the time, I'd come up with some bad passing habits. I'm throwing with my arm, not getting any of my body behind it."

Auburn, favored by seven points, also lost one of its top players during the season, All-Conference linebacker Bobby Strickland, who broke his left leg against Mississippi State. He may be available for the Gator Bowl.

Head coaches at the two schools also experienced physical setbacks. John Vaught missed half the season after suffering a mild heart attack, but has returned to work with the Rebels.

Coach Ralph "Shug" Jordan of Auburn underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis last Tuesday, but is expected to be on the sideline Saturday.

Vikings, 49ers Collide In Minneapolis At Noon

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The No. 1 quarterback with 2,941 yards and 24 touchdowns passing, against a Minnesota secondary that intercepted 28 passes.

It's Fred Cox, 30 field goals and 35 extra points for Minnesota, against Bruce Gossett, 21 and 39.

It all boils down to who goes to the NFC championship next Sunday for the right to play in the Jan. 17 Super Bowl in Miami.

"They have a great defense," says San Francisco Coach Dick Nolan. "That front four rushes like a bunch of wild men. They have an offense that doesn't make mistakes, just like the Green Bay offense of old."

Minnesota Coach Bud Grant said the 49ers are "a very confident, impressive team."

"Brodie certainly is a premium quarterback. But quarterbacks can't do it all. They have a defense behind him, a line and outstanding receivers. When you have a great quarterback, that makes him that much better."

Most of the in-fighting will be in the pits. Minnesota's ransacked opposing passers 49 times in the regular season. The 49ers allowed Brodie to eat dirt only eight times, a record.

'Super Aspirin' Help To Horses

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — A number of horses may have been drugged when they helped open Santa Anita's 34th season of thoroughbred racing Saturday. And it was legal because the day coincides with effectiveness of California horse racing board Rules 1887 and 1888. California is the third and largest state to permit controlled use of Butazolidin, the same drug that caused the Kentucky Derby uproar of 1968, by parimutuel racing.

Heavy Drills Set By Teams

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Both fourth-ranked Tennessee and eighth-ranked Air Force planned heavy practice sessions early this week in preparation for their New Year Day's date in the Sugar Bowl.

"We came to New Orleans to win the game though we are also hoping to have a good time," said Tennessee Coach Bill Battle. "But winning is our No. 1 priority."

Both teams arrived Saturday, scheduled hard work early in the week with time allotted later for fun and sightseeing. The Falcons, 9-2 for the season, boast a high-powered offense averaging 424 yards and 32 points a game. But the Air Force defense has been questionable.

Tennessee, meanwhile, was more balanced in posting a 10-1 record. The Vols had the best record in the conference although they didn't win the championship.

men of his profession in the country. One of the students is Tim Winn, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Winn, who reside three miles north of Coahoma. Tim, who got his first training under Sam Aguilera of Big Spring, is now a sophomore at the university. He's enrolled in such courses as chemistry, zoology, sociology, mathematics and English and will take a genetics course and physics in the spring. Tim resides in a university dormitory about a half block from the UT stadium and during football season his "working day" will extend from about 1:30 p.m. until 7 p.m.

Young Winn anticipates no problems in finding employment once he had gained his degree, since the supply of college-educated trainers never seems to catch up with the demand. He hasn't yet made up his mind whether he wants to go to work on the high school or college level but chances are he'll work at some college, at least for a while.

As a member of the UT training team, Tim worked at all home games involving the Longhorns and made one road trip with the club — to Houston for the Rice game. A total of 1,800 hours in on-the-job training under qualified trainers is required of those who aspire to be accredited trainers.

Young Winn will have all that and more before he qualifies for a college diploma. In embarking upon his studies, Tim was encouraged by a $100 scholarship offer extended through the university.

Medina is now in his 25th season with the Longhorns. In the past, he has served as one of the United States trainers for the 1948 Olympic team and as a trainer for the West team in the annual January 1 East-West football classic at San Francisco.

He was the 1954 recipient of the Trainer of the Year Award of the Rockne Club of Kansas City, Mo., and trainer in 1958 for the U.S. track team that competed against Russia. At Texas, he has introduced physiotherapy and diathermy into the training room as well as other scientific equipment and measures which have reduced minor injuries and expedited the return of athletes to their sport.

NORTH STARS WIN, 28-7 Dickey Dazzles South With Aerial Bombs

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Lynn Dickey, with flashy white shoes and long hair, gives the appearance of a Joe Namath with healthy knees. And he's also got an arm of gold. "We hit them up the middle with passes," said the Kansas State quarterback after leading the North to a 28-7 decision over the South in the Christmas Day Shrine All-Star collegiate football game.

"Their linebackers didn't seem to react. So, we kept firing." The handsome 6-foot-4 Dickey hit 14 of 27 passes for 180 yards and was named the game's most valuable player. It was the North's fifth straight success in the event. "These are good athletes, all of them," said Dickey. "But, I think it was a case of the North having a little edge in major college talent."

NBA Protest Is Entered Over Signal

By The Associated Press

A horn is a horn is a horn. Or is it? Friday night's Cleveland-Cincinnati game in the National Basketball Association was played under protest because the 24-second clock signal—a horn—sounded different, at least to Cavalier Coach Bill Fitch, than most other 24-second clocks.

Cincinnati Coach Bob Cousy, whose Royals won 117-100, also filed a protest because the referees, who apparently didn't recognize the sound made by the 24-second timing device in Cincinnati, let Cleveland continue with the ball after the signal. Fitch said the signal for the 24-second clock was the same as the scoreboard signal and that's an NBA rule violation.

"If the rule book means anything, our protest is right," the Cav coach, whose expansion team has a 3-37 record, said. ATLANTA DOWNED

In the other Christmas Day NBA games, Phoenix downed Atlanta 127-115 in a nationally televised contest. Philadelphia won its sixth straight with a 105-100 conquest of Detroit and Los Angeles trimmed Boston 123-113.

Cousy didn't think much of Fitch's protest. "If I were Cleveland, I wouldn't have the guts to protest," he said. "But I guess he does have a legitimate protest. I did, too."

Cousy protested because Cleveland was permitted a field goal after the horn sounded. Tom Van Arsdale and Norm Van Lier each scored 23 points to pace the Royals while Dave Sorenson led Cleveland with 20. Phoenix took an early 17-point lead but had to stave off a late Atlanta rally to beat the Hawks. The Hawks pulled within one point late in the third quarter.

Lou Hudson, the game's leading scorer with 33 points, led the Hawks rally. Rookie Pete Maravich scored 28 points for the Hawks while Dick Van Arsdale was the high Sun scorer with 32. Baltimore's victory over Chicago came despite a 42-point performance by the Bulls' Bob Love.

WILT ON BENCH

Chamberlain sat out the first 10 minutes of the game because he missed Coach Joe Mullaney's team discussion at Friday's practice. The victory snapped a two-game Lakers' losing streak. Mullaney said he told his players they would be benched for not producing. He said Chamberlain was not reprimanded but did not start because "I did not feel it right to pull him out, inasmuch as I had not had a chance to explain."

Chamberlain and Mullaney met for a long talk before the game and Wilt was unable to participate in pregame warm-ups. "It was not his fault," Mullaney said of Chamberlain's missing the practice. He said Wilt was out of town and missed an airline connection because of bad weather.

Matson Entered In Coast Games

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Randy Matson, world record shot putter, has accepted an invitation to appear in the Examiner All-American Games at the San Francisco Cow Palace Jan. 22, meet director Jim Terrill announced today.

Matson, who has an outdoor record of 71 feet, 5 1/2 inches, is unbeaten in 10 meets in 1970. on romps of 13 and eight yards to far outflashed the ball carriers from both sides.

Larry Brown of Kansas grabbed five passes for 24 yards and Otto Stowe of Iowa State caught four for 51 yards. Each represents the Big Eight. "I'd say the difference was our quarterbacks," said Gibson. "My Kansas State boy, Dickey, did his usual fine job, but don't forget Ken Anderson pitched in with some good throwing, too."

Anderson, from tiny Augustana College, hit 8 of 20 for 77 yards. Interceptions — six of them — were the South's bugaboo. Colorado's Jim Cooch was the peskiest defender, stealing two.

Richmond quarterback Charlie Richards, who was playing for his college boss, Frank Jones of the Spiders, connected on 15 of 26 passes for 249 yards, but was intercepted four times. A fat television contract that paid the sponsoring Shriners a record $110,000 turned the game into a profitable venture although only 15,402 persons showed up.

Ex-Hawk Coach Is 16th On U. S. List

D. E. (Buddy) Travis, head basketball coach at South Plains College, ranks 16th on the all-time National Junior College Athletic Association coaching list. Travis began his 14th season of junior college coaching this fall, with a 207-104 record for a .721 percentage in his juno coaching career.

Travis came to South Plains after serving at Clarendon and Howard County Junior Colleges. He was associated with HCJC for 11 seasons. Floyd Wagstaff of Tyler JC ranks second on the list with 626 wins against 191 losses and is his 24th year of coaching. Joe Turner, cage mentor at Kilgore, took sixth place on the list with a 364-118 slate.

Ninth place belongs to L. E. McCulloch of Odessa College with a 336-240 record for the past 24 years. Gene Bahnsen, head mentor at Wharton County JC for the past 11 years, ranks 15th with a 278-135 mark.

The late Johnny Frankie of Wharton JC coached for 11 years and compiled a 201-198 record.

Vincennes U. of Vincennes, Ind., rated number one for the second consecutive week in the NJCAA Basketball poll. San Jacinto of Pasadena, Tex., remained in second place while Robert Morris JC, Pittsburgh, Pa., rounded out the top three. Kilgore, Tex., was the only other school in the top 20. The East Texans were rated sixth.

Vincennes is the defending national champion and is undefeated in nine starts. Eight different schools rated first place votes. San Jacinto garnered four first place ballots, compared to eight for Vincennes. In individual scoring, G. Procell of Panola, Tex., a former Louisiana prep great, leads the nation with a 36.8 average, followed by Sammy Harvey of Kilgore, who is hitting at a 36.3 norm.

Irish Arrive In Dallas

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Irish of Notre Dame arrived Saturday for their Jan. 1 Cotton Bowl clash against No. 1 University of Texas with a heavenly plan to stop the Longhorns' feared wishbone-T offense. "We have all the priests and everyone else praying real hard," joked Irish coach Ara Parseghian, who saw his team suffer a 21-17 loss to Texas in the last Cotton Bowl Classic. Texas rolled for 331 yards rushing in that game.

Parseghian and his players passed up a chance to see Saturday's National Football Conference playoff game in the Cotton Bowl between Dallas and Detroit. The team immediately went to work—watching Texas game films. A night workout was set in the Cotton Bowl following the pro game.

The Irish arrived in near-perfect weather, something Parseghian welcomed for a couple of reasons. Because of bad weather in South Bend, Notre Dame has had only three outdoor drills since its LSU game Nov. 21. A year ago, when Notre Dame made its first bowl appearance in 45 years, cold and sloppy weather in Texas hampered the Irish's pre-game workouts.

"This is absolutely perfect football weather, just perfect," said Parseghian of a cloudless sky and mid-50-degree temperatures. Notre Dame brings a 9-1 record into the Cotton Bowl to challenge top-ranked Texas, which has won its last 30 games. Notre Dame suffered its lone loss to Southern Cal in its final game of the season.

"We're just sorry we couldn't come in here undefeated," said Parseghian. "Texas held up its end of the bargain." The Cotton Bowl, when it signed Notre Dame shortly after its LSU tilt, had hoped for a dream game matching two unbeaten, untied teams for the national championship.

"We just made too many mistakes, something like eight turnovers, to win the contest against Southern Cal," said Parseghian. "If we play like that against Texas, we'll get beat 60-0."

Sooners Practice On Rice's Turf

HOUSTON (AP) — Alabama and Oklahoma — This year's Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl participants—scheduled workouts on artificial turf Saturday. The teams arrived late Friday to continue preparations for the 11th annual post season football classic set for Thursday night in the Astrodome. Coach Chuck Fairbanks of Oklahoma indicated he might send his team through two practice sessions at Rice University stadium, Paul Bryant of Alabama scheduled an afternoon session in the Astrodome.

Roche, Riker Set Fast Pace

NEW YORK (AP) — John Roche and Tom Riker combined for 54 points to lead second-ranked South Carolina to an 83-60 triumph over Cornell and Providence raced by Manhattan 89-69 Saturday to advance to the semifinals of the ECAC Holiday Festival college basketball tournament.

South Carolina and Providence will meet Monday night in part of the semifinal double-header at Madison Square Garden. Providence, seeking its third festival crown, got 25 points from Ernie DiGregorio, and held a 39-32 halftime edge over Manhattan.

DiGregorio, who hit 15 points in the second half, got Providence in front with a pair of fast baskets and the Friars fast breaking offense took care of the rest. Fran Costello scored 11 of his 20 points in the last half as Providence built leads up to 21 points in winning its sixth game in seven.

Brian Mahoney had 29 points for Manhattan, now 4-2. Roche scored 25 points and Riker 26 as South Carolina's Gamecocks outpowered smaller Cornell. Cornell scored the first basket but South Carolina took over from there and poured it on. The Gamecocks' zone defense, fired by the 6-foot-10 Tom Owens, shut off Cornell, with no man over 6-foot-6 in the starting lineup, and the score was 41-24 South Carolina at the half. The winners rolled up a 68-23 lead, then let the subs mop up.

Ken Wiens topped Cornell now 2-7, with 15 points.

A RAP YOU CAN'T BEAT Town Boasts Christmas Trap

MULBERRY, Fla. (AP) — There's a special kind of ordinance in Mulberry—one that usually leaves convicted offenders happy. The "Christmas Law" applies only once a year.

Six motorists from the North fumed and fussed and one even pleaded guilty before he heard about the annual law of Mulberry Friday.

Only after Municipal Court Judge Carl Ellis finished a stern-faced lecture did the motorists learn why Police Chief Norris Nixon had pulled them in.

The judge, who doubles as mayor of this west-central Florida community, told them that police work hard and don't like their efforts going without reward.

"Because you were going to drive through Mulberry without stopping at city hall," Judge Ellis said, "the policeman had to bring you in to receive this gift box of fruit. Merry Christmas!"

The one-day ordinance was passed four years ago, making it illegal for an out-of-state motorist to pass through Mulberry without stopping to pick up a gift from the police department—so long as the supply of fruit holds out.

"Naturally, everybody we pick up thinks immediately that they're about to be fleeced of their vacation money by a small town cop and judge," Chief Norris said.

"I pull them over, ask for their licenses and tell them to follow me to the police station. The fireworks start when I tell them they've broken the Mulberry Christmas law."

Norris and Ellis make no effort to dispel the impression of a speed trap. One driver replied "guilty" when Ellis asked for a plea—without telling the charge.

The driver said he did it because he didn't believe there was a chance of beating a speed trap.

STANDING ON A PROBLEM IN SEARCH OF A SOLUTION — Numerous night workers who parked their cars on Boston streets found themselves in predicaments similar to this one Thursday morning when they attempted to drive home after leaving cars parked on city streets all night. A heavy snowfall followed by freezing rain brought out snowplows during the night which in turn piled the freezing mass against parked cars. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Citizens Finance R&R Trip Home

OLATHE, Kan. (AP) — Seven Olathe servicemen—their trip from Vietnam paid for by local residents—made it home for Christmas—barely.

Eighteen days after the community of 18,000 launched a drive for funds to bring all its eligible servicemen back for the holidays, a private jet landed at Kansas City Municipal Airport. The time was 11:55 p.m. Christmas Day.

An eighth serviceman was to arrive later today.

The men wore summer khaki uniforms. Some were in short sleeves but the glow of being home and with their families apparently helped them shrug off the 26 degree temperature and brisk winds.

Most had a stubble of beard as a result of the long flight from Saigon via Chicago. The arrival was two hours behind schedule.

Spec. 5 Fred Clark saw his three-week old son for the first time just after descending from the private jet supplied for the trip from Chicago by United Utilities, Inc., a telephone company in Westwood, Kan.

Many of the families brought banners. The largest was for Spec. 3 Richard Hoffman. It said: "Welcome to the greatest."

About 175 members of families and friends were at the airport to greet the servicemen.

Members of various law enforcement agencies escorted the caravan from the airport through downtown Kansas City and on to Olathe, about 15 miles to the southwest.

The idea to bring the men home was Harry Welch's, a retired Army captain. Donations have totaled about $4,400.

On Sunday, all the city's ministers will participate in a church service to honor the men.

Cubans Urged To Work On Holidays

MIAMI (AP) — Cubans were urged to work on the Christmas and New Year holidays "to create a new form of revolutionary tradition born from our history and our natural conditions."

In a Radio Havana broadcast monitored here, the state-controlled Cuba's Workers Central said: "We are starting a new year under the sign of work and productivity according to the gigantic effort that the fatherland needs to overpass difficulties and convert the failure into success."

Castro announced that in order to start next year's sugarcane harvest this month Cubans will celebrate Christmas and New Year's holidays next July.

Jews Sub For Christian Cops

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—About 35 members of the Jewish group, B'nai B'rith, performed clerical duties for the Dayton Police Department Friday to give more Christian employees Christmas Day off.

The members, working under a program called "Operation Brotherhood," have previously worked for the department on Christmas Day.

World's Petroleum Industry Suffers Headaches In 1970

By Max B. Skelton
Associated Press Staff Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The 1970 had fewer petroleum industry headaches than 1969, but at least that close second.

After a year of tax hikes, problems at the federal level, continued as the industry, despite recent production and refining operations, battled rising costs and declining earnings.

Two new Gulf of Mexico oil spills of a spectacular nature helped delay until mid-December the resumption of offshore lease sales as consumers clamored for unprecedented oil and gas supplies.

President Nixon fired Interior Secy. Walter J. Hickel and then sought to minimize the effectiveness of mid-November crude oil and gasoline price hikes by increasing production in federal offshore areas and by boosting imports.

At year-end, Nixon's rollback objectives were having no effect at a time of tight world-wide supply but Hickel's departure had clouded the status of the $1.3 billion Trans-Alaska pipeline. The start of movement of oil from Alaska's prolific North Slope area, originally set for 1975, could be years away.

LEAD OUT

Non-leaded gasolines, while prompting controversy, were becoming a reality. Tougher federal anti-pollution auto emission standards were a certainty but some major marketers believe they will have to be backed by legislation to force motorists to have their automobiles tuned-up regularly. Proper maintenance, they contend, could hasten an emission-free atmosphere while poor maintenance curtails the effectiveness of the new gasolines and new emission control gadgets.

Despite problems, 1970 was a record breaker with indication most of the trends will continue into 1971.

HIGHLIGHTS

Here are the highlights: Record U.S. demand for petroleum approximated 15 million barrels a day.

Domestic crude oil production broke the 10 million barrels a day mark the first time in history and had a 12-month record average between 9.6 and 9.7 million barrels daily.

U.S. refineries, for the first time, processed more than 11 million barrels of crude a day, finishing the year with an average in the area of 10.8 million.

But only 30,000 new wells were drilled, compared with a record 58,160 in 1956. It was the eleventh annual decline in 15 years.

Year-end estimates of proved oil and gas reserves will not be released until March but it was certain in view of record production and the prolonged drilling slump both continued their downward trends.

RESERVES DECLINE

Gas distributors in eastern and midwestern areas turned down numerous new customers and gas reserves declined a third consecutive year. Crude oil reserves now have declined in six of the past nine years.

Oilmen contend the new price hikes are essential as incentives to explore for more reserves even though they do not match rising costs. For example, they contend labor costs alone have risen 58 per cent while gasoline prices have increased only 17 per cent and crude oil prices only 14 per cent.

The record demand for petroleum products and gas resulted, in part, from pollution control standards that forces some industries to switch to cleaner fuels.

TIGHT SUPPLY

It also developed at a time of tight world-wide supply. Sabotage of the Trans-Arabian pipeline cut off 500,000 barrels of readily available Middle East oil, and Libya's price-suspected production cutbacks ordered in the name of conservation cut off another 750,000 barrels daily.

Tankers were in short supply and tanker prices skyrocketed, making imported oil more expensive than domestic crude.

Eastern area heavy fuel oil consumers were hit the hardest. In times of plenty, the industry and the federal government had permitted the area to rely on imports for 93 per cent of its supplies of the normally low priced fuel.

A severe winter posed a threat of at least spot shortages of supply. Imported residuals jumped in price and domestic refiners began boosting output with higher prices. By early December, however, both industry and government were confident the supply problem had been solved.

Scout Executive Resigns Post

William M. Tevington, 1606 West 25th, Odessa, has submitted his resignation effective Dec. 31 as district Scout executive of the Sunset Trail district of the Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America. Tevington has served Scouting in the district since September, 1967. Tevington has accepted a position as an associate health planner with the State of Oklahoma department of health and will reside in Vinita, Okla., said Steve Odom, council executive.

But two year-end developments could combine to disrupt such optimism.

An explosion of mysterious origin shut down a major Eastern Seaboard refinery and, by Christmas, there had been little progress in negotiations for new labor contracts for most of the nation's major refineries.

Similar negotiations failed to meet a Dec. 31, 1968, deadline, prompting a strike that lasted two weeks or more at many refineries.

While December inventories were in good shape, another strike could lead to severe January-February supply problems, particularly in eastern and midwestern areas.

RUNAWAY YOUTH — Travis Wendelboe, 17, who disappeared nearly four months ago, was urged by his mother in an open Christmas letter Wednesday to return home. "Christmas won't be the same this year — not without you," the letter begins.

Porpoise 'Agents' On Duty In Vietnamese Waters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Porpoises are swimming in South Vietnam waters in a "surveillance and detection" experiment, the Navy says.

A spokesman indicated the porpoises were among those trained by the Naval Undersea Research and Development Center, San Diego, Calif.

Details of the Vietnam project are classified, he said Friday. A formal public statement from Naval Forces-Vietnam headquarters disclosed only that "an experimental Navy unit has been established for the purpose of evaluating a surveillance and detection system using porpoises."

The San Diego Union, meanwhile, reported there were three porpoises being trained by a team of 15 Navy men in Vietnam.

The paper said, "Porpoises sent secretly to Vietnam can retrieve missiles, guide lost divers back home and distinguish between metals," the paper said. Authorities have refused to disclose what they hope the mammals will accomplish in Vietnam, but porpoises have been used extensively in other military experiments.

In 1966, Naval scientists predicted they could "some day be used in detecting submarines, mines and underwater missile installations."

Porpoises even carried mail and other items back and forth between deep sea underwater laboratories during the Sealab II and III "Man in the Sea" programs.

END OF AN ERA

The frivolity of this year's New Year's Eve celebration at the Cosden Country Club may be underlined with a great deal of nostalgia.

For the occasion Thursday night marks the closing of a facility which, for more than 15 years, has been a focal point of countless gatherings of varied assortment: Civic banquets, high school proms, business group luncheons, wedding receptions, private teas and coffees in the popular "blue room," club gatherings, convention assemblies, and every sort of group or public uses.

A well-planned accommodation staffed with pleasant and cooperative personnel, the Cosden Club has had a unique place in the community's various public affairs.

There have been times when the place was so "booked" that there would be at the same time an affair in the ballroom, another in the blue room, another in the youth recreation area, and still another in the fireplace room. The club has been a scene of social pleasures and a place where civic and business decisions were reached.

Its setting, overlooking the Cosden lake, has made it a most popular gathering place.

As president of the Cosden Petroleum Corporation, the late R. L. Tollett, envisioned in 1951 the area surrounding the old "big spring" as a recreation site for employees. A private corporation, "Big Spring Hunting and Fishing Club," was created with Cosden management as stockholders, and this club purchased from the Texas & Pacific Railway Company 125.1 acres of land Dec. 22, 1951. Four years later the original clubhouse was erected (it was later expanded and remodeled) and put into use. Membership in the Club at that time was restricted to Cosden employees and honorary members nominated by the Company.

The original clubhouse was opened Oct. 1, 1955, when more than 1,000 people gathered for a gala celebration.

There have been many "galas" since that day. While employees have always been given first consideration, the generosity of the club management was such that the facility became a sort of site of major social and public gatherings, and many organizations and individuals in the community have enjoyed the club's hospitality.

An example of the club ownership's community participation is evidenced by the fact that it transferred to the City of Big Spring the acreage around the historic "big spring" so that it could be developed as a public facility.

With all the public use, the club itself has required company subsidy, and employees made less use of it.

This past year, the Dora Roberts Foundation voted to acquire the Cosden Club property and give it to the City of Big Spring, and this transfer takes place January 1.

The concept is for the development of the facility as a public convention and civic center, but definite plans for its operation remain to be worked out. A special committee of the Chamber of Commerce is working with the City Commission to formulate an operational program, and a special consultant has been employed to make recommendations.

So the club building on the lakeside will remain for the use, to some degree, of the public. But there no longer will be a "Cosden Club" so intimately associated with countless social and civic functions.

FOCUS ON FAMILY LIVING

Time To Make Use Of Winter Vegetables

By CATHERINE CRAWFORD
County HD Agent

Vegetables grow in great variety — from A (asparagus) to Z (zucchini). Often they are low in cost and calories and a number of them rank high in vitamins and minerals. One-half cup of most boiled vegetables contains less than 50 calories. Starchy vegetables like lima beans, peas, corn, and plain boiled potatoes supply from 50 to 100 calories in a half-cup serving.

Most dark-green and deep yellow vegetables excel as dependable and inexpensive sources of vitamin A. In fact, unless your meals include several servings of carrots, spinach, sweet potatoes, winter squash, broccoli, kale, or other greens each week, your family may not get enough vitamin A. As a bonus, many dark green vegetables supply valuable amounts of vitamin C, iron and other vitamins and minerals.

The mature dry legumes — dry peas and members of the bean family including navy, pinto, and soybeans — are outstanding among the vegetables for the protein they contain. They also contribute B vitamins, iron, and other nutrients.

And how drab our diets would be without the odor and crispness of fresh-tossed salads, the tang and texture of relishes, and the distinctive flavors of our vegetable dishes.

Vegetables used to come and go with the seasons, but the magic of food preservation methods has made it possible to have most vegetables the year round. Right now, winter vegetables are coming in, a few from nearby sources. Those that are hardy and do not require special handling are usually the most economical, and if they do not have to be shipped a great distance, that's even better.

Raw vegetables are becoming increasingly popular as a low-calorie between-meal snack. Weight watchers do well to keep a supply of celery sticks, carrot sticks, radishes, or green pepper slices ready in the refrigerator to eat when hunger strikes.

Vegetables now in season include broccoli, Brussels sprouts, eggplant, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, dry onions, turnips, rutabagas, hard shell squash (acorn, Hubbard, butternut), and potatoes. In addition, there's an array of leafy greens, such as turnip tops, mustard and collards. Dried peas and beans are favorite standbys, too.

Nutritionally, winter vegetables add much to your family's diet. The yellow ones like carrots, squash and sweet potatoes are rich in vitamins A and C. And winter vegetables are usually excellent sources of minerals, especially iron and calcium.

Winter vegetables are moderately priced, easy to cook, and good to eat. Properly prepared (using the smallest amount of water possible), they will retain most of their valuable nutrients. If there is extra water after the vegetables are taken from the pot, use this water in soup or serve it as "potlikker", since quite a lot of the vitamins and minerals are in the broth.

One winter vegetable available now that adds interest, flavor and good nutrition to a meal is acorn squash. Try this recipe during the coming weeks.

ORANGE-HONEYED ACORN SQUASH
3 acorn squashes, small
1/4 cup honey

1/4 cup orange juice frozen concentrate
1 tsp. salt
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
1/2 tsp. nutmeg

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Cut squashes in half and remove seeds. Place squashes in a shallow baking pan.

Combine orange juice concentrate, honey, and salt. Mix well. Put some of the orange-honey mixture into each squash cavity. Add 1 tsp. fat to each squash half. Sprinkle with nutmeg, if desired. Cover pan tightly with aluminum foil to keep steam in and speed cooking. Bake 30 minutes. Remove foil and continue baking 30 minutes more, or until squash is tender. Makes 6 servings, 1/2 squash each.

Other ideas for preparing vegetables are available in Home and Garden bulletin No. 105, Vegetables in Family Meals, which is available in the County Extension Office.

Miss Linda Roberts Marries A. F. Best

The wedding of Miss Linda Jo Roberts and Alvin Fenton Best was solemnized Saturday evening in the Coahoma Presbyterian Church with the pastor, Rev. David L. Northcutt, officiating.

Miss Julie Choate, organist, accompanied the vocalist, Lewis Lovelace. The altar setting was enhanced with baskets of white carnations and greenery flanked by candelabra.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Sam K. Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Best, all of Coahoma.

The bride and bridegroom, both graduates of Coahoma High School, attended Howard County Junior College. After a wedding trip, they will reside in Odessa.

FORMAL GOWN
The bride was attired in a formal gown of white peau de soie overlaid with Chantilly lace. The gown was styled with a softly gathered skirt attached to a bodice with natural waistline and puffed lace sleeves cuffed at the wrists and fastened with pearl buttons. The buttons were repeated on a row at the front of the bodice. Her tulle veil was shoulder-length and was held by a headpiece of pearl de soie roses. The bridal bouquet was of white carnations and stephanotis showered with satin ribbons.

Miss Valrae Best, sister of the bridegroom, was the maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. Her street-length dress of red velvet was fashioned with a high round neckline and long fitted sleeves. Her headpiece was a red Dior bow of velvet and she carried a nosegay of white carnations tied with red velvet ribbons.

Gary Best of Noodle was best man, and ushers were Tommy Best of Noodle and Jo Best, brother of the bridegroom. Rodney Krause, Big Spring, was ring bearer. The flower girl, Joanna McLean of Big Spring, wore a red velvet dress and red bow in her hair.

RECEPTION
Miss Carol Krause and Miss LaRhea McLean served refreshments at the reception which was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The table was covered with white linen and held a centerpiece of an angel figurine. Punch was served from a crystal service, and other appointments were of silver. A rehearsal luncheon, hosted by the bridegroom's parents, was held in their home at noon Saturday. The couple presented gifts to their attendants.

Serve Squash With Oranges

Top baked squash with orange sections and brown sugar for a flavor treat.

ORANGE SQUASH
2 small acorn squash
Salt
4 tbsps. butter
2 tbsps. light brown sugar
Membrane-free sections from 2 medium oranges
Wash and dry squash. With heavy knife cut in half lengthwise. With a sturdy kitchen tablespoon, scrape out seeds and membranes. Bake according to favorite method until thoroughly soft. Sprinkle squash with salt. Add half the sugar to the squash cavities; add (orange dot) remaining butter and spritz with remaining sugar. Bake at 300 degrees until orange is hot and sugar melts — about 10 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. James W. Carlton, 2605 Carol, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Marjorie Anne, to Mervin (J.R.) Holland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin H. Holland, 4209 Parkway. The couple will be married May 16 in the First Baptist Church.

Broadcloth Shirts

Regular cotton broadcloth is the fabric most frequently used for men's dress shirts. Look for "2 by 2 broadcloth" on the label. This means the fabric is made with two-ply yarns and is extra strong.

'Dynamic Community' Impresses Minister

By BARBARA LORD
 "Big Spring is a dynamic community," said the Rev. R. Earl Price. "It is the most progressive city of this size we have ever been in."

The Rev. Price came to Big Spring Nov. 1 to take over the pastoral duties of retiring Dr. R. Gage Lloyd at the First Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Price followed a month later. Still in the process of getting settled, the Prices did manage to find their Christmas decorations, and their home at 10 Indian Ridge is attractively ornamented with candles, table arrangements, wreaths and a tree trimmed with colored lights and white doves of peace.

The Prices came here from Dallas where he was one of six ministers on the staff of the Highland Park Presbyterian Church, with a total congregation of 6,000. Now he is the only pastor for a church of 600, and he is enthusiastic about the opportunities available.

"I want the people to be interested in the growth of the church," he said, "but I don't want them to be only Presbyterian Church minded; I want them to be community minded."

Price emphasized the importance of lay participation in various phases of the church program. He hopes to have active Christian education programs, youth programs, young adult programs and other mens' and womens' groups.

"My wife and I will attend and take part in these programs, but only as any other member would," he continued. "The people in each group will have their own particular range of interest, and the programs will be planned accordingly. I will serve no function except as that of a member."

GOLFER
 Price likes to play golf, but said there is seldom time for it. He considers his primary hobby studying people.

"I like to meet everybody and be with them in their home, their work and in all of their natural habitat," he mused. "My goal is to get to know all 30,000 Big Spring residents."

The Prices are pleased about their assignment to Big Spring. They like the church, the community, the people and the countryside.

"I love the rolling hills around the city and enjoy being able to look down on the city lights," Mrs. Price said. "And the people are so friendly. Even in the supermarket, people I've never seen before stop and chat with me."

Price graduated from the University of Texas and earned his BD and his masters of theology from Austin Seminary. Mrs. Price earned a degree in home economics from Louisiana Tech University and did graduate work at the University of Texas.

At the Highland church in Dallas, Mrs. Price found herself with a lot of spare time, and she worked six months a year as a fashion consultant for McCalls Pattern Company. She also did free lance work for a Dallas designer.

"I did this strictly for what I could learn from it," she explained. "I've always been interested in clothes design, and with six wives on the staff, I found I had enough time to do what needed to be done in the church and still be a professional woman." She is also interested in painting, crafts and all forms of creative expression. Presently she is experimenting with "country art."

DAUGHTER
 Price is originally from Dallas and his wife is from Winnsboro, La. They were married in 1948 and have one daughter, Betty, a freshman at Trinity University in San Antonio.

Mr. and Mrs. Price lived in the Corpus Christi area before moving to Dallas in 1956. His first assignment in Dallas was to start a new church. With the help of members from other churches he began canvassing the area where the church was to be founded, and gathered a list of prospective members.

For three and a half years they met in a local school auditorium until finally able to move into the new Chapel Hills Presbyterian Church building in 1960. After that, Price worked for the Texas Presbytery Foundation until joining the Highland staff.

'ROUND TOWN

BY LUCILLE PICKLE

The peak has passed, the presents are ready for exchange, the house is still in disarray and most of us have had a good Christmas with our families. But some families are having their gatherings today and are really getting to celebrate twice.

A happy family gathering is the one at the home of MR. and MRS. MARVIN MILLER where Mrs. Miller's children and her grandchildren will all be together for the first time in seven years.

Here from Austin are CAPT. and MRS. JIM WILSON and their children, Judy, Susan, Russell and Richard. MR. and MRS. ROBERT PHELAN and their boys, Robert and Charlie, and the newest little Phelan, Debra Elizabeth, are here from Mt. Pleasant. It's a special Christmas for Robert who remembers five years ago when he was serving in Vietnam, the first Big Spring man to serve in that area. When he went to Southeast Asia there were 16,000 men serving; when he departed a year later there were 100,000.

MR. and MRS. GARLAND SANDERS and MR. and MRS. DERRELL SANDERS have flown to Houston for a visit with MR. and MRS. RONNIE SANDERS.

MR. and MRS. PERRY ORAND of Pasadena, Tex., will be here for the New Year holiday with DR. and MRS. BYRON ORAND and their family.

JOHN L. WILLIAMS of Canyon was here for Christmas with his nephew, IRA D. WILLIAMS, and Mrs. Williams. He planned to return to his home today.

TOM ERHARDT of Denton and GRANVIL MILLER are deer hunting near Robert Lee. Mr. and Mrs. Erhardt came here from Denton to spend Christmas with his mother, MRS. MARVIN ERHARDT, 401 Washington Blvd., who was hostess for the Christmas dinner that included MR. and MRS. GRANVIL MILLER and her son, Roland. Spec 4 Tippie Miller is in Vietnam.

The Erhardts are also visiting her grandparents MR. and MRS. JOHN MILLER.

MR. and MRS. HOWARD THAMES and MR. and MRS. LOUIS MCKNIGHT were in Lubbock Dec. 20 for an award presentation dinner for employees of John E. Gaschen Ins. Agency. Plaques were presented to McKnight and to H. LYNN THAMES, son of the local couple.

MRS. MARY ARNOLD HEFLEY accompanied MR. and MRS. L. B. NEWMAN and Susan to Amarillo for a Christmas visit with his mother, MRS. LYMAN NEWMAN. The Newmans had spent several days here with her mother prior to their trip. Their home is in Houston.

MR. and MRS. LEE A. CRANSTON of Huron, S. D., are the holiday guests of DR. and MRS. M. A. PORTER. They are Mrs. Porter's parents.

MR. and MRS. JOHN JACOBUS and family of Little Rock, Ark., are visiting in the home of her parents, MR. and MRS. TRUMAN JONES.

MRS. ANGY REID of San Angelo was over for Christmas Day with her son, A. M. FARRIS, and Mrs. Farris.

MR. and MRS. ROSS BOYKIN are expected back today from Carrollton where they spent Christmas with her mother, MRS. ARCH HALE.

MR. and MRS. MILLER HARRIS are in Lakeside, Calif., visiting their son and his family, MR. and MRS. JIMMY HARRIS, Dianna, Steve, Toni and Janice.

MRS. ROBERT NICHOLS (Photo Associates)

Couple United In Marriage

Miss Pamela Fern Jones became the bride of Robert Carl Nichols in a ceremony held Saturday evening in the First Baptist Church at Knott with the Rev. Larry Newcomer officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Nichols Jr., Route 2, Big Spring, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jones, Star Route, Knott.

Traditional nuptial selections were played by the pianist, Miss Janette Nichols, and the vocalist was Mrs. Darrell Jackson, aunt of the bride. The altar was graced with a fern tree flanked by altar stands holding white gladioli.

The bride was attired in a full-length gown of white lace with the A-line skirt forming a chapel train. The high neckline was enhanced with ruffled lace, and the long puffed sleeves were ruffled at the wrists. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of orchid carnations centered with a white orchid.

ATTENDANTS

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Miss Rita Jones, and the bridesmaid was Miss Angela Shaw. They were identically attired in purple dresses circled at the neckline with sequins. The long sleeves buttoned at the wide cuffs. Their headpieces were orchid bows with ribbon tendrils adorned with tiny purple flowers. Each carried a nosegay of orchid carnations.

The bridegroom's brother, Danny Nichols of San Angelo was best man, and Bruce Kemper was groomsman. Charles Jones and Dero Shaw served as ushers.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Big Spring High School, is attending Howard County Junior College where the bride will enroll after graduating at BSHS in January. After a short wedding trip, they will reside in the Center Point Community.

RECEPTION

At the reception in the church parlor, refreshments were served by Mrs. Ronald Green, Odessa; Mrs. V. L. Jones, Mrs. Barney Nichols, Mrs. Robert Nichols, Mrs. R. L. Collings of Big Spring and Mrs. Eugene Long.

The bride's table was covered with white linen overlaid with ruffled net caught at the corners with satin bows. The bridal bouquet served as the centerpiece, and appointments were crystal and silver.

Those attending from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jackson of Seminole, grandparents of the bride; Darrell Jackson, Valerie and Kevin, all of Andrews; Ronald Green, Odessa; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Walls, San Angelo; Mrs. John Nichols, Big Spring, and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Merring, Midland, all grandparents of the bridegroom; and Mr. and Mrs. Doy Herring and Mr. and Mrs. Preston Bayes, all of Midland.

Rebekahs Observe Christmas

Big Spring Rebekah Lodge 284 met Tuesday evening in the IOOF Hall where Mrs. E. V. Cokerham, noble grand, presided.

Thirty visits to the sick were reported by the 14 attending.

Members took turns telling Christmas stories of personal experiences at Christmas, and the evening climaxed with the singing of carols.

The group will meet next Tuesday at the lodge hall for the regular business session.

D. Rasberrys Have Holiday Visitors

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Rasberry for the Christmas holidays were their daughters and families, the James Rices and the Howard Woods, all of Dennison. After Christmas the Woods went to Midland to be with his parents, the W. O. Woods, and the Don Rasberrys went to Lubbock to visit his parents and sisters.

Quotable Quotes

Some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"I didn't tell too many people. I didn't want anybody to think I was acting like a little movie star." — Terri Buck, pretty cheerleader for the University of Notre Dame, who was offered a screen test after a TV talent scout saw her during the Notre Dame-Southern California football game.

"I am prepared to renounce my vows of ordination, unless you the parishioners are willing to help me. If you take my ministry seriously, you must affirm your own." — The Rev. Miss Barbara Andrews, to her congregation after her ordination as the first woman minister in the American Lutheran Church.

"I've had it with this nudity bit. . . It's too unnerving. Instead of being concerned with your dialogue, you end up worrying where the sheet is and whether one of your breasts is exposed." — Actress Brenda Vaccaro, in an interview.

"I like nudity — at home. I don't like being bounded by clothes. But I get violent when I see it on screen, when it's not real, not honest." — Actress Angel Tompkins, in an interview.

Bachelor's Advice: 'How To Get A Man'

By VIVIAN BROWN

The "how to get a man theme" doesn't change much over the years.

A handsome twenty-six year old man startled a group of women at a business luncheon by telling them he wasn't married.

"In this day of early marriages . . . gasped one thirtyish married woman. "Why not," the women said in chorus.

"I haven't met the right girl," he answered.

He was a 'sitting duck' for the questions, and they did fly "are you shy," "are you broke," "what kind of girls have you met," etc.

One woman zeroed in by giving the statistics on two "beautiful daughters."

As it turned out, the man wants to get married. He has lots and lots of dates, but he doesn't want to marry "a swinger," he says. He and some fellows with whom he went to college go out with girls regularly, but they don't like

"the modern package," he says. "Be more explicit," was the plea from his listeners. Here are some of his thoughts:

1. He wants a girl who acts like a girl, who is happy she is a girl. (She can wear anything she likes — pants, shorts, midis, maxis, providing she is feminine. But he doesn't want a cigar smoking wife. He'll do the cigar smoking . . .)

2. She should be interested in a home (and if she loves it, she will not mind running it.)

3. She should be able to cook and to enjoy it. (He doesn't want to live with someone who complains every time she must boil an egg.)

4. She can have a career, but he hopes she'll be willing to give it up if they have children — and he wants children.

5. He wants her to make him feel important so that he can get ahead in his job. (He knows older men who have had their masculinity whittled away by wifely criticism, he says.)

6. He'd like her to be cheerful and positive rather than gloomy and negative about life (We are here on earth, let's make the best of it, he says.)

7. He'll join her in a sport she enjoys — skiing, skating, tennis — he is a golfer and fisherman, but he will not demand that she go along with these ideas.

8. They must be a team in everything they do. He "couldn't stand to be married to someone who always wants to go in the opposite direction." The marriage wouldn't last long.

9. He'd like her to have some regard for the money he earns (and she should be a sharer, he doesn't like selfish women — he is a pretty generous type, he says.)

10. She should have respect for his religious views, his politics, his family, and he will respect her interests and associations.

Divorce Rate Soars In 60's

By JUDY ROSENFIELD

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) —

The seven-year lull, traditionally a scapegoat in the story of our climbing divorce rate, may have to share top billing with a new culprit — the 20-year slump.

In 1965, nearly one-fourth of all persons filing divorce in the United States had been married for 15 years or more.

And although current local figures aren't available, experts here seem to agree that the number of divorces among people over the age of 45 is growing.

Why, after enduring 15 or 20 or 25 years, does a marriage dissolve in divorce court?

In most cases, experts say, because that marriage has been disintegrating for years.

"Even physical divorce between husband and wife without a court declaration is not uncommon," said Jefferson Circuit Judge Marvin J. Sternberg.

"They live separate and apart, sometimes even in the same house, sometimes even in the same bedroom, but their emotions, actions and conduct towards one another indicate they are separate and distinct."

BREAKING POINT
For these and other unsound marriages faltering under the weight of years of accumulated conflict, hostility or frustration, the age 45 often represents a natural breaking point, a last chance to strike a blow for freedom.

Under a normal life expectancy people have as many adult years to look forward to as to look back on at that age. By that time, in many cases, the children are grown.

"If they've been the cement that held the marriage together, by then people feel less sensitive and less guilty about their responsibility to the children," observed Glenn Schilling, a Louisville divorce attorney.

Some, said Al Erlen, a social worker and executive secretary of the Jewish Social Service Agency of the United Appeal, come to ask, "What the hell are we doing together?"

"If you like what you look back on to the extent of even 'C plus,' you go on," said Schilling. "If you look at the future as another 20-year sentence, you begin to think in terms of parole."

Simple inertia, as well as fear of being designated a quitter, can still keep unhappy marriages from reaching divorce court.

And, unless there is a crisis to upset the balance of the marriage, it is likely to endure.

DRINKING
In perhaps half of all divorce cases in this age group, one partner's unimproved or aggravated drinking problem is among the crises which upsets the marriage balance, according to Schilling.

"I've heard both men and women say, 'I'd stay if I thought I could help him or her,'" said Schilling. For these people, deciding to seek a divorce means "giving up any hope of any change in your partner or yourself," he said.

Crises for other couples might come when an older parent moves in, or when a child with problems becomes a source of contention and one partner tells the other, "It's all your fault she's that way."

Other crises are spurred by the advice of a friend or that of a child — and, sometimes, by dramatic changes that come with the advent of middle age.

"There are glandular changes, changes in personality, which people don't understand, just as in adolescence," said Erlen. "There can be feelings of revolt, desires for new experiences, desires to live fully before you die."

A wife's vague discontent can focus on her husband, on her marriage. Or baffling, unexplained changes in a man's behavior can puzzle and anger his wife.

Not the least of these complications are vocational crises. Often at 45, "a person's career will take a turn for the better or for the worse, — or perhaps finally simply level off," observed Schilling.

"Not giving enough to the family of yourself" is a common failing of men in this age group who become tremendously involved in their careers, he said.

On the one hand vocational failure can bring unsettling financial problems; and a feeling of failure which can cast shadows upon the whole marriage. On the other hand success also brings problems. "Some couples can stand drouth better than they can prosperity," said James A. Hubbs, a Louisville divorce attorney for 22 years.

EXTRA MARITAL
Given more leisure time and more money, extra-marital affairs become possible, Hubbs said. However, although lawyers and counselors acknowledge the prevalence of extra-marital affairs among both men and women over 45, they emphasize that such liaisons play a greater part in divorce among people ten or 15 years younger.

If a husband faces vocational crises, a wife who has been a career mother faces a similar problem.

The children raised, she is suddenly liberated from her full-time role of mother and, perhaps, housewife, suddenly free to extend her horizons beyond the home front.

If she fails to develop new interests and involvements, she may be in for years of boredom, confusion and dissatisfaction.

Is she decides to strike out with a new career of her own, to return to work or to school, it may be more than some husbands can take.

"No matter how old the man becomes, he wants to be the provider, the numero uno. He feels the woman who works is the wife of a failure," said Philip Katz, a marriage counselor for 24 years.

PHYSIOLOGICAL
Finally, the physiological changes that come with middle age can be upsetting to a marriage. A partner's sudden instability or emotionalism can demand more patience and understanding than ever before.

Tree Lights Created Over 50 Years Ago

By EDWARD S. KITCH

CHICAGO (AP) — Christmas tree lights have created a happy glow in the life of Albert V. Sadacca, who invented them 56 years ago.

As a young boy in 1914, Sadacca devised the first string of lights when he was faced with the necessity for moving large stocks of tiny clear bulbs from his father's New York City novelty shop.

"We lived in an apartment near the shop and I was the errand boy," he recalled in his office in the Merchandise Mart here. "I used to deliver little celluloid canaries that sat on a perch in a tiny cage and were illuminated by battery-powered bulbs."

At about that time he read that a number of children had been burned in a big fire caused by candles igniting a Christmas tree, and the idea occurred to him: "Why not Christmas lights that are electric?" His father had a big inventory of bulbs that he was anxious to clear from the shelves and Sadacca wired a set in series.

"The first sets didn't sell very well," continued the dark-haired, mustached Sadacca, who is of Spanish ancestry. "But the next year we colored the tiny bulbs and they sold better. Electricity was becoming more and more popular in stores and homes. Then we decided to make a series set for use with 110-volt house current using a larger bulb."

IN 1920'S
The Sadaccas — Albert V. and brothers Henri, Leon and Nessim — then launched into the manufacture of Christmas light outfits, as they were called. In the early 1920s they founded the Noma Electric Co., of which Albert became the first general manager.

Now in his 60s, he is president and chief executive officer of a successor company, Noma-World Wide, Inc., which is still manufacturing what he likes to call "festoons of lights." His son, Albert V. Sadacca II, 26, is executive vice president of the firm. He has already showed the family knack for inventiveness by creating a type of battery-operated light to decorate women's formal gowns and elaborate hairdos.

The elder Sadacca also remains innovative in the field. He is now developing a wireless light system and is working on a way to produce Christmas light assemblies by machine instead of the intricate hand assembly now required.

"One of the important things in this business is that the truth of that old adage, 'There's nothing new under the sun,' applies to Christmas lights," commented Sadacca. "We started with little lights and they grew bigger and bigger. Now tininess is coming back. It started in Japan and Italy with the simultaneous development of the tiny elongated bulb."

FLOP AT FIRST
"They were made for novelties and I decided to create a new light set with them," he continued. "So I made the first 110-volt string of lights using miniature bulbs and brought them to the United States. And the same thing happened as in our first effort. People were not accustomed to them. It was a flop the first year."

But the next year the firm produced 5,000 sets. A few years later, after Sadacca convinced several large retail chains to feature the sets, the idea took off.

"The use of miniature lights may displace the larger lights that have ruled the lighting roost for 35 years," he predicts. "And possibly in a period of a few years they will be out entirely."

Wedding Solemnized In Methodist Church

Miss Vicki Lynn Bagwell and Lewis Dale Switzer were married Thursday evening in the Wesley United Methodist Church. Performing the ceremony was the pastor, Rev. Caleb H. Hildebrand.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James C. Bagwell, 255-A March Circle, and Mr. and Mrs. James L. Switzer of Rising Star.

Organ music was played by Miss Connie Gary, and Miss Verna Goswick was the vocalist. Baskets of white carnations and red poinsettias flanked an archway of greenery behind the altar. At the center of the altar, behind a Bible, were three tapered candles; the chancel rail was entwined with greenery.

The bride wore a white, floor-length Empire gown of peau de soie, the waist and Juliet sleeves accented with pearl-centered lace roses. She had a shoulder-length veil and wore small cameo necklace and earrings.

The bride carried a mother of pearl Bible from the Holy Land, and a nosegay of white gladioli centered with two white orchids.

Miss Kathie Bagwell served as her sister's maid of honor and wore a wintergreen brocade gown trimmed with green velvet ribbon. She carried red carnations on a white fan.

Sgt. Stephen McNaught was best man, and ushers were Hoppy Bedell and Ricky Cauble. Stan Bagwell, brother of the bride, was the altar taper lighter.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church parlor with Mrs. Stephen McNaught, the bridegroom's sister, at the guest register.

The refreshment table had a white cloth overlaid with tulle and accented with red bows. The maid of honor's bouquet served as the centerpiece. Crystal and silver appointments were used. The tiered wedding cake was topped with bells.

Presiding at the serving table were Mrs. Raymond Phillips,

MRS. LEWIS DALE SWITZER

Miss Sherry Wooley, Miss Karen Hughes, Miss Cathy Macklin and Mr. Buster Carlile.

Following the reception the couple left for a short wedding trip. The bride's going-away outfit was a navy suit with a white blouse, and a yellow, navy and white vertical striped coat. She wore matching navy accessories and an orchid corsage. They will make their home at 1807 S. Monticello.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and a freshman at Howard County Junior College. She is employed by Montgomery Ward and Company. Switzer is also a BSHS graduate and a graduate of the John Connally Technological Institute in Waco. He works for S & S Wheel Alignment.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Switzer and Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Switzer, all of Rising Star.

MAKE A TASTY SAUCE
Combine apples and mince meat

Enhance Ham Slices With Mince Meat

Pie-sliced apples and mince meat make a tasty sauce for ham steaks. Arrange two ham steaks sandwich-fashion, spread sauce between and over the top of slices. Bake until the ham is fork tender. Mince meat is available in condensed or ready-to-use form — plain or brandy and rum flavored.

This traditional fruit and spice combination of tart-sweet flavor has a fine affinity for meats, particularly pork, smoked ham and poultry. The Borden Kitchen recipe for the mince meat-apple sauced ham steaks follows:

HAM STEAK WITH MINCE MEAT SAUCE
2½ cups (one 1-lb 4-oz. can) pie-sliced apples, drained diced
2 (9 oz.) pkgs. condensed mince meat, crumbled
½ cups water
2 center cut ham steaks, 1-inch thick

In heavy saucepan, combine apples, mince meat and water. Place over medium heat; stir until lumps are thoroughly broken. Bring to a boil; boil briskly one minute. Bake ham in moderate (325 degrees) oven 15 minutes. Remove from oven; spread sauce between slices and over top of ham, return to oven. Bake 30 to 45 minutes or until ham is tender. Serve with square-shaped potato cakes

Grooming Aids

"Emergency rations" should be a part of any office girl's desk drawer contents. These include spray spot cleaners, sewing kit, shoe cleaning brush, and the numbers of items now available in paper packets from throwaway face cloths to hand creams, perfumes, plastic rain scarves and quick-drying hand wipers.

PRESIDENT SAID TO BE 'ENCHANTED'

Nixon: 'Giv'em Hell, Martha'

NEW YORK (AP) — Talkative Martha Mitchell delights President Nixon because she brings color to his administration, says McCall's magazine.

"Giv'em hell, Martha," the President is quoted as frequently telling the wife of Atty. Gen John Mitchell.

Writing in the January issue, Susanna McBee says Nixon "enjoys and even welcomes" Mrs. Mitchell's persistent outspokenness on a variety of subjects because she believes "the often-voiced complaint that his administration is dull."

"And, like Spiro Agnew, Martha Mitchell often says what Richard Nixon would not say himself but what a segment of his constituency likes to hear," the article says.

Not everyone is enchanted with Mrs. Mitchell's reputation. Ely Peterson, assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee, is quoted as noting that Mrs. Mitchell has become a popular figure, then adding that "it makes it more difficult for serious women to be taken seriously."

The magazine recalls one incident when Mrs. Mitchell, playing cards with newsmen aboard Air Force One, said of the Vietnam war, "It stinks" and "The war would have been over 16 months ago if it hadn't been for Fulbright."

Secretary of State William Rogers joined the group, advising Mrs. Mitchell, "Why don't you stick to law and order, and I'll take care of foreign policy."

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise:
When my sister finished her scouting years, I had an idea for her room:

I cut out two pieces of green felt in the shape of the trefol (the Scout emblem) and sewed all of her badges onto one piece of the felt in a scattered fashion. Then I sewed the two pieces of felt together, leaving room to stuff some old nylon stockings inside.

Now she's got the cutest pillow on her bed — a constant reminder of the fun and the work she accomplished during her scouting experience. . . Rita Acree

All you former Scouts start running to your closets, dresser drawers, etc., for those stashed-away sashes. Bet you don't even remember which badges you passed by now . . . and isn't it fun seeing them again?

A simply delightful idea that is bound to provide pleasure for a long time to come . . . and you can "Be Prepared" for a host of admiring friends! . . . Heloise

Dear Heloise:
If you would like to try making a gravy that is a bit different and ever so tasty, crumble up old-fashioned ginger snaps and use them for thickening instead of flour.

Delicious and spicy! My family loves this kind of gravy and always has seconds . . . sometimes thirds . . . Caroline Parlato

Dear Heloise:
Here's something for the youngsters who are struck by the creative urge to decorate and compose marvelous tidbits during the Christmas season.

First take a Christmas card with an embossed design or picture on it and place a plain piece of white paper on top of this. Then take a colored pencil, and using the side of the lead point, stroke back and forth until the design shows through. This design may be glued to cardboard and used as home-made — and — forever — cherished Christmas cards to Momma and Daddy or Gramma and Grandpa, or it may be hung on a wall, placed on the tree or in the window. Even put on a package as a card.

Children can use their imaginations and do just about anything with this one basic idea . . . and no mess! A perfect school project. . . Elena

LETTER OF LAUGHTER
Dear Heloise:
What would you think of a girl friend who put her entire TV dinner — box and all — into the oven to heat? Would you believe? . . . Anna

Yes, indeed, I would believe! That's just why the various companies put instructions on their boxes — to hopefully prevent this sort of thing. But you'd be amazed at how many people won't take time to read instructions! . . . Heloise

Dear Heloise:
When you have a patient sick in bed, here is an easy way to sterilize the thermometer.

Take an empty bouillion cube bottle (small size with the plastic top) and make a hole in the center of the top with an ice pick. Remove the top, fill with rubbing alcohol, replace top and put your thermometer in. . . . A Nurse

Dear Heloise:
I save my plastic bottles from drugstore prescriptions to store my thread in.

I cut a small slit in the plastic lids and put a spool of thread into each bottle. Then I draw the end through the opening in the lid.

When sewing, I just pull out the length of thread I need without opening the bottle. It won't come all undone in my sewing box and I can see through the bottle.

I have at least three sizes of these bottles and they don't take up too much room, being the spool-size they are. . . Blanche Barnard

Dear Heloise:
I wanted a white Christmas corsage last year for a red suit. I couldn't find one for a dollar, so I bought a lovely white candle ring trimmed in gold beads.

It was very attractive and made not one, but three corsages!

Just thought some of your readers who might be having the same trouble locating a special corsage this year could try my idea. . . Lou

R THE GOOD THAT MEN DO LIVES BEYOND THEM

The donation of an organ, such as a kidney or an eye is a prime example of man doing continuing good. Actually it is the last chance for someone to do something for his fellow man. Organ donation knows no economic barriers. It is the great common denominator. Whether a man be prince or pauper he can make the same wonderful gift, and in doing so a part of him endures.

At this time of year when the spirit of giving is so much in our minds, consider making out a donor card or adding it to your will. The more donors the greater the opportunity for matching ideal donors and thus more chance for success.

SEWAGE PLANT IS FAULTY

All Further Construction Banned

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

DOVER, N.J. (AP) — The bulldozers have stopped pushing and shoving mounds of dirt for foundations; carpenters are no longer erecting skeletons of two-by-fours, and, most important, plumbers are not connecting pipes to and from the local sewage treatment plant.

Construction here and in eight other Morris County communities with a total population of about 85,000, is in a state of suspended animation — and has been for more than two years.

The reason for the construction halt is a court-ordered ban on new connections to an overburdened, 50-year-old sewage treatment plant.

In August, 1968, a Superior Court judge in Jersey City ordered a halt on all construction leading to sewer connections. No homes, no factories, no stores could be built. And, but for a few court-approved exceptions, none has been built.

Similar bans have been imposed elsewhere — for shorter periods. Bans were ordered for two sections of San Francisco last spring before an agreement to modify sewerage plants could be worked out by Mayor Joseph Alioto and the San Francisco Bay Area Regional Water Quality Control Board.

There also have been bans imposed on several neighborhoods in communities in southern New Jersey.

The reasoning behind the connection ban stressed that more sewage pumped into the plant would result in more pollution in the vicinity, which was hard pressed to adequately treat the waste it was already receiving.

The plant is operated as part of the Jersey City Water Works, which maintains a reservoir in nearby Boonton. The treatment facility purifies sewage from the nine towns before it can reach the reservoir and the water supply going to Jersey City, some 30 miles southeast of here.

The nine Morris County communities affected by the ban are finding that the solution to one of man's most pressing problems — water pollution — hampers the solution of another problem: the housing shortage.

Morris County was at one time an attractive location for industry and home owners. It had land for large plants relocating from New York and Newark and it also had land for large residential developments.

But as soon as the ban was introduced, word got around quickly and some of Morris County's attractiveness began to disappear.

Builders know of the ban, they say, and, since nearly every structure would include a sewer connection, they are virtually ignoring the nine towns. Approved building applications are indeed scarce.

Rockaway Township Mayor J. John Vandermarck said the ban has "definitely curbed industrial growth." He said one large company decided not to move to the township after the ban was imposed.

Builders who were in the midst of constructing homes must pay taxes on their land while the half-finished structures remain empty. The buildings have been targets of vandals who have smashed windows, knocked down walls and, in one case, burned a building to the ground.

There is no estimate available of the value of these structures. Some of the unfinished homes could have been completed under special rulings issued by the court, but the builders' financial problems intererred.

A director of the Morris-Somerset County Home Builders Association says builders have suffered most from the ban. He also said a number of the communities were not anxious to see population increases that would have meant increased demands on municipal services.

"If some of the builders weren't millionaires, they would be bankrupt," says John G. Reed, the building official.

On the other side of the fence is the tiny town of Victory Gardens, with the dubious distinction of maintaining the highest tax rate in the county, $12.62. Victory Gardens could have lowered its rate with the construction of a proposed garden apartment complex.

But the community had to refuse permission for two years to build the 200-unit complex because of the ban. The permit finally was granted after limited improvements to the sewage plant permitted a num-

ILS Need 'Minimal' For Howard Airport

By LINDA CROSS

An Associated Press report states that 11 airports in Texas, including Howard County Airport, are without modern, sophisticated instrument landing systems.

"Neither the Federal Aviation Agency or the airline using the runway have contacted us about adding equipment. This Commission Court will not have the time to do anything about it. We wouldn't be able to call in engineers to study the problem and make recommendations, nor to advertise for bids on equipment," said County Judge Lee Porter.

Currently, a radio system called Vortac is used to assist pilots in landing. Pilots are able to determine the ceiling and visibility at Howard County Airport by taking readings from the radio beam.

"Our system is good for a ceiling of 400 feet and a visibility of one mile. The ILS is good for a ceiling of 200 feet and a visibility of one-half mile," said James Fryar, Big Spring Aircraft.

"Our need for ILS is minimal because of the flat terrain around the airport. If it were in a valley, we would need the more efficient equipment," Fryar added.

The ILS consists of two parts: a localizer to warn the pilot if he is off course to the right or left; and a glide slope which warns if the approach is too high or too low. The ILS is also a radio beam system.

Fryar added that the number of days that the weather is bad enough to require instrument landing is small. "If the weather is bad, the commercial private planes off the runway lines are not going to fly. Their standards are very strict, and they wouldn't make a run in bad weather," he said.

Could the lack of the more sophisticated equipment cause Texas International Airlines, the commercial line using the airport, to stop landing at Howard County Airport? Judge Porter and Fryar concurred that TIA would stop running only if fares were too few or if the line grew too large to need to make shuttle runs.

REPORT FROM EUROPE

Britain Could Complicate European Common Market

(Another in a series of special articles by a Texas journalist doing graduate research in Europe.)

By FRED DUBOSE JR.
BRUSSELS — The economic history of the Common Market has been a great success story, so that some European officials tend to make starry-eyed predictions of a wholly federated "United States of Europe." The talk is of politically unified nations that eventually could become a third world power.

One impending event — the entry of Great Britain — encourages their optimism. (Britain's membership will make the Common Market the largest trading entity in the world.) But on the other side of the balance sheet is the hard reality of strong cultures and proud pasts — in short, the historical penchant of nations to retain their sovereignty.

MIXED BLESSING
With that in mind, the addition of Great Britain, a nation which colonized one-third of the world and enjoyed a position of power for centuries, may well be a mixed blessing. Economically, a boon; politically, a drag.

Since the Common Market was formed in 1958 — when France, Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium, and Luxembourg came together in a limited economic union — steps of the six nations toward political unification have been halting at best. The drive for union has been a series of stops and starts. Reports are issued, urging "consultation among governments" or full economic and monetary union; conferences are held, with foreign ministers smiling and shaking hands; and then someone, in a burst of nationalistic pride, has second thoughts and calls a halt to the proceedings. The most recent example was seen in mid-December, when France refused to accept full monetary union (creating a common European currency) with the other member nations by the end of the decade.

DIFFICULT MEMBER
With a long history of national identity, France has been the "difficult" member of the Common Market, and most observers feel she will have an ally in Britain in fighting a further handing out of sovereign powers to the sought-after European "federation." The issue is much like that of states' rights in the U.S.

Britain's entry will make the Common Market the largest unified area in the industrialized world, with a population of 250 million (compared to 205 million in the United States). Gross National Product of the enlarged community of European nations almost would equal that of the U.S.

FREE TRADE
But instead of being a step toward a united Europe, Britain's entry could turn the Common Market into simply a large, watered-down free trade area.

Being an island nation traditionally outside European politics, and often playing one continental power against the others, Britain is not likely to merge politically with nations she has always regarded as "foreign."

Also, the British, as inventors of the parliamentary system of government, have little faith in the political maturity of the Europeans." All this may stand in the way of true union. Seven years ago, France's president, Charles DeGaulle, clearly saw this when he vetoed British membership.

On the positive side, British membership may prevent any of the big powers from dominating their new experiment in European relations.

THE LEADER
So far, France has been the undisputed leader, if only because of her nuisance value. Germany, burdened with guilt because of the war, never challenged the French position, and always saw the Common Market as a means of finally burying the hatchet with the traditional foe.

But the smaller partners, mainly Holland and Belgium, have sought to balance France's political domination by advocating Britain's membership.

In an enlarged community of nations, Britain, France, and Germany would virtually cancel each other out. "It'll be better to have three giants than two," says one German official, "and apart from this, it's more likely that Europe — with Britain a Common Market member — will remain close to the United States."

AN ALLY
Germany, secure in its newfound position of economic strength, would not object to this. France, fearful of Germany's resurgence as an industrial power, is looking for an ally. Britain could fill this role, and, at the same time, help brake the tendency toward supranationalism defended by the smaller partners.

So, as long as there is a dream of truly "united Europe," Britain's entry into the Common Market raises the most difficult — and serious — of questions.

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Minis, midis and now pants suits are suitable attire for women employees of the State of Oregon.

But there's been no similar relaxation of rules for men.

This directive appeared recently in the state Highway Division's newsletter.

"The male employe shall be groomed and garbed in a manner traditional to his particular work place. Any male directly serving the public had better continue to come to work in a dress shirt, tie (that piece of cloth designed in the middle ages to keep dust from getting into the tunic and a business suit. No liberation for the male."

Pressure On The Oil Business

By presidential proclamation, the rate of oil imports has been stepped up 100,000 barrels per day, most of it due to come from Canada, and another 30,000 may be allowed in from Mexico.

This is apparently part of an administration plan to modify the recent price increase in crude oil. There is serious doubt that this can succeed, and should it roll back any or all of the recent 25-cents per barrel hike, there is still greater doubt that this would accomplish anything other than penalizing producers.

Even before the crude oil price was raised, fuel charges, particularly retained gasoline, were increased. There is no indication that these would be softened if the crude prices were lowered. Moreover, oil and oil products have come up on the commodity index scale only to 111, whereas the composite of all other goods and services is up to 137.

In this instance, the president seems to be doing more than jawboning, but on a highly selective basis. This, plus stepped up drilling and production from federal oil shore leases, could eventually glut the supply market. Even if prices are unaffected, the rates of production likely would be curbed. In either instance, the domestic producer would be hurt (he already has taken a $700,000 cut through lost tax benefits) and the incentive for exploration further dulled. That would be bad for this area, and for the nation, too.

Nothing Really New

The furnishing of a list of individuals supposedly held prisoners of war in North Vietnam to representatives of Sen. Edward Kennedy and of the Senate Foreign Relations committee has shed no new light on the status of our men unaccounted for in combat.

There were no new names on the list, and perhaps the only significant thing about it is that purportedly this came from a representative of the North Vietnam government. Even this doesn't give it special status.

Understandably, every scrape of information about those known to be prisoners of war or missing in action is eagerly sought, but short of official confirmation none of it is dependable. Most families have had better luck in writing through international channels to communicate with their men.

There is in all this something that skirts on individual efforts at diplomacy, a course that could be confusing, if not illegal. Overtures through individuals rather than through channels is part of the North Vietnam tactic. Too frequently it raises false hopes, or produces more headlines than dependable light.

What Will The Young Voters Do?

WASHINGTON — The eleven million 18, 19 and 20-year-olds in the country presumably are thrilled to learn they will not have to wait as much as three years before being eligible to vote for a President of the United States and members of Congress in federal elections. The states, of course, will still retain the power to set the age for eligibility to vote in local contests.

WHAT EFFECT will the law making 18, 19 and 20-year-olds eligible to vote in federal elections — approved by a 5-to-4 decision of the Supreme Court — have upon the electoral process of the country? In 1968, there were approximately 120 million individuals of voting age out of a population of over 200 million. But only 73 million people went to the polls in the last presidential election.

MORE VOTERS aren't exactly the real need. It is the quality of the voter's mind that is most important. How many will know what is going on in the government and be able to render a judgment as to which party or candidate to vote for? How many persons will become acquainted with the issues of a campaign? How many will be influenced by precinct workers who will tell them all kinds of tales with the usual exaggerations?

THE SAD TRUTH is the American democracy is so big that its elections are influenced in each party by those candidates with enough money to pay for advertisements, leaflets, television time, placards and other forms of campaign communication. Despite the millions of dollars that are spent, however, lots and lots of voters never learn the merits of the questions under consideration. There are, of course, some citizens who are well informed and express issues. But they are a minority. Of the new 18, 19, and 20-year-old voters, there will be those who will be just as well posted as their elders. The percentage of the total will be just as small.

SO THE ADDITION of a few million 18, 19 and 20-year-olds will not affect very much the total who usually vote. It may add some intelligent, knowledgeable voters along with plenty who are misled. But that's the story of those who are 21 or older today. Still, it's better to have the voting process open to as many people as possible so that reforms can be instituted than to deprive persons of the age of 18 of the use of the ballot.

IN VIEW of the conspicuous part played by the youth of the country in public affairs in the last few years, the assumption will be that many of the students will take an active part in politics and that the dropping of the voting age to 18 will add a significant bloc of votes. But in the last campaign it came as a surprise that many of the younger students did not even become active in the campaigns in an effort to line up votes for candidates who sided with them.

Certainly the lowering of the voting age is a constructive development. The reduction of the age limit will be widely approved by the younger generation, and it would not be surprising if the 18, 19 and 20-year-old boys and girls will become active in local affairs in the communities, as this is something which may, in the long run, have an important effect on American politics.

Billy Graham

My father is known as a good Christian and does a great deal of church work. But at home he becomes angry and swears. Do you think this is right? L.B.

No I do not! The Bible says, "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain," and despite your father's profession of religion, his profanity is sinful, according to the Bible. The commandment goes on to say, "The Lord will not hold him guiltless who taketh his name in vain," and your father is no exception.

Many professing Christians grow careless with their language. That is why the Bible tells us to "be an example in conversation and in word." The world judges us by the kind of language we use. Christians should strive to use a spiritual vocabulary, and not emulate those who do not know Christ. Ben Johnson once said: "Language most shows a man; speak that I may see thee; it springs out of the inmost part of us." When we make a full commitment to Christ, it affects our conversation. Peter swore when he was accused of being a follower of Christ, to prove that he was not. It must have been pretty convincing too. But Jesus said to his disciples, "I will give you a mouth and wisdom." (Luke 21:15.) When Peter surrendered his all to Christ, he was given to witnessing and praise instead of profanity. So should we.

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. Robert W. Cannaday Jr., foreign language program specialist for Hawaiian schools, says more than 300 languages and native dialects are spoken in the islands.

"We may be the 50th state in the Union," he said, "but we're number one in language instruction because no other state has equipped its entire high school system with the sophisticated language laboratories."

He said a system known as Versalab has been installed in 37 schools on six of Hawaii's seven islands.

Cannaday said the system enables instruction in modern languages such as French, German and Spanish, as well as the infinite variety of Asian languages and dialects spoken.

Yule Buying Helps Halt Slide

By CAROLE MARTIN
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A round of last-minute gift-giving helped brighten the business scene during Christmas week.

Chase Manhattan Bank started the festivities Tuesday by leading a reduction in the prime interest rate for the third time in six weeks.

Then on Christmas Eve, the federal government announced that living costs rose three-tenths of 1 per cent in November, a sharp slowdown from October's pace of inflation. It was the second smallest monthly rise in 18 months and only half the amount of October's increase.

Chase Manhattan's action, followed by major banks across the country, trimmed the rate of interest charged the most credit-worthy corporate customers from 7 per cent to 6 1/2 per cent, the lowest level in two years.

TEMPORARY LIFT

Since other bank lending rates are scaled upward from the prime rate, changes in the rate have broad ripple effects throughout the economy.

The prime-rate cut gave a temporary lift to prices of corporate and tax-exempt bonds, and while prices of government bonds continued to decline, they fell at a lesser rate than before the cut. The stock market also received a temporary boost, but analysts said the prime-rate move had been widely anticipated by investors and had been factored into previous advances.

The prime rate decrease prompted speculation that the Federal Reserve soon might

TEXTILE TALKS START

But when Congress reconvenes Monday, major issues remain to be resolved. Among these are the dispute over funds for the supersonic transport and fights over import quotas and welfare reform.

White House negotiations with Japan over voluntary curbs on textile imports were suspended until early next year. Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans said American textile manufacturers had advised him that they felt the talks were not developing "the kind of formula that is workable."

Around The Rim

To Those Who Contribute—Thanks

The calendar is about to turn again, and we have the season of looking in retrospect as well as anticipating what might be ahead.

Regardless of personal experiences in 1970 — tragedy or triumph, agony or ecstasy — there is one factor that keeps the human race in some semblance of happiness and progress.

THAT WOULD BE the volunteer work that is put in by so many, many people, in the realm of public service, in civic betterment and in an expression of humanitarianism.

It has become the custom of this corner, on the last Sunday of each year, to make some gesture of public acknowledgment of contributions made above and beyond the call of the routine.

So many of us are content to live in our own little world, unconcerned about what really happens to the betterment of a community, and content to let the Georges do their thing.

THIS BEING TRUE, perhaps the least we can do is to let the Georges know that we appreciate their work.

We have public officials who serve for no pay, and shoulder a tremendous responsibility in operating big concerns like city and school. It seems to me that some of them this year have taken more than a fair share of criticism and even abuse, and that this just might be the season for people of good will to turn this around and say "thanks."

A LARGE CORPS of individuals contributed much time and effort (and we could list blood, sweat and tears) into another annual effort for the United Fund, the biggest undertaking in the community each year.

They didn't get all the support they were entitled to, but they too deserve some public recognition.

Warm-hearted volunteers worked in so many other areas — for our hospital residents, our poorer children. The Christmas season just past may have brought the biggest outpouring of attention in this realm that the city has ever seen. To all the people who shared in this spirit of concern, a salute of commendation.

MANY PEOPLE continued to work in a degree of anonymity but nevertheless in earnest, for organizations such as the Red Cross, the Scouts, the YMCA, the Salvation Army. All of these and similar agencies have an outreach that cannot always be measured, but their work expands because many of our citizenship respond when called upon.

We can be concerned about the economic forecasts, and not improperly so; we can labor to make our homes more happy and our children more responsive to the real values, as we should.

BUT AS WE PUT our attention to our own personal, family and neighborhood affairs, let us not pass by the larger portrait of a community which must have a wholesomeness, a decency, a spirit of working together, a vision for continued striving in brotherhood.

To all those — and they make up a mighty caravan — who have caught the grasp of the larger picture, thanks. And if you want to pass along, by phone, by card, or in person a similar expression, this is an appropriate season.

Algeria Works For Industrial Progress

ALGIERS — The so-called third world is not only hard to define but any definition is of necessity false. The nations in Africa and Asia struggling to find an independent course, a separate identity, between the two great spheres of power are a jigsaw puzzle of hopes and aspirations, prejudices and passions. This oddly assorted collection is far from being a "world" or even, for that matter, a force with anything like unity behind it.

THE PASSIONS of the past — settling old scores — more often than not dictate present policy. The conspicuous example is the Arab-Israeli conflict. Instead of getting on with the urgent tasks of development, trying to raise the level of impoverished peoples, the Jihad — the holy war against Israel — is the all-absorbing preoccupation.

Here on the North African shore of the Mediterranean in three Arab countries — Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia — the Middle East conflict has a somewhat different look. The mere fact of geography separates these Arab nations from the fires burning so fiercely at the heart of the war.

THE LOUD, angry-sounding noises out of a revolutionary government obscure what is really happening. The Algerians are getting down to the urgent tasks that need doing. Leaving after a short stay, this observer believes that Algeria has a better chance than perhaps any third-world nation to become a modern industrial society.

One reason is the dedicated, intelligent younger men in key positions with both know-how and intense drive. At 37, Abdellah Khodja, who got his Ph.D. in economics in Paris, is Secretary-General of the four-year plan. While such plans sprout like jungle growth in all third-world countries, this seems to have real substance.

AHMED TALEB, at 44, is Minister of Information. He was formerly Minister of Education. Although he has never practiced, Taleb got his degree in medicine in Paris and then spent seven years in Fresnes Prison as a leader of the revolt against French rule. He is pushing the use of television in education, especially in the teaching of Arabic.

LIKE THESE younger men, President Houari Boumediene is himself a realist. He is frank in his opposition to American policy in Vietnam and the Middle East. But he would not allow this opposition to stand in the way of resuming relations with the United States, which were broken at the end of the six-day war. That is important to Algeria, seeking capital investment from both private sources and from the Export-Import and World Banks.

PRAGMATIST might be a better term for those seeking to guide this nation toward an independent destiny. So much depends on chance. The intensive prospecting by scientific, computerized methods for a new oil field has not yet produced a bonanza like Hassi Messaoud. Such a strike is essential to future development. But those who labor long hours at every level are sure of the future.

The New Year Will Be Delayed

WASHINGTON — It is with regret that I must inform everyone that there will not be a New Year, at least not on the first of January as originally planned.

The reason for this is that the bill to authorize 1971 is now bottled up in the Senate and is finding tough sledding.

In other years the passing of a New Year's resolution was nothing more than a formality. The House and Senate approved it on voice votes, and the President automatically signed the bill declaring the New Year would start on the first day of the month of January.

BUT THIS YEAR because of bitter feelings, vested interests and some very tricky parliamentary procedures, the New Year's bill has been in trouble from the start.

This is what happened: On Sept. 15, President Nixon sent up to Congress a message asking it to give him authorization to declare a New Year, which would be designated 1971. (By law, the number of the New Year is always raised one digit from the previous year.)

THE SENATE Subcommittee on Calendar Affairs held lengthy hearings on the bill and heard testimony from Administration officials, labor leaders and 1970 lobbyists, as well as conservatives who were opposed to going in to 1971 without a constitutional amendment.

The bill was finally cleared in committee on Nov. 20 by a vote of 8 to 7.

It then went to the floor, where it ran into some very serious difficulties.

Proponents of the SST tacked an amendment onto the New Year's resolution, which provided $210 million to start building the first supersonic airliner in Seattle.

SEVERAL SENATORS, who were having trouble with a trade bill, added an amendment providing that no New Year's bill could be passed unless all imports on shoes and flashlights were halted from abroad.

Doves in the Senate tacked on another amendment saying that the President could not officially declare 1971 until all our troops were out of Vietnam.

Opponents of new welfare legislation added an amendment saying that there could not be a New Year unless all welfare mothers took birth control instruction.

ANOTHER AMENDMENT, added by Southern senators, said there could not be a 1971 until all school busing was eliminated in the South.

A group of senators added their own amendment which called for $200 million to bail out the Penn Central Railroad.

By the time the New Year's bill was ready for a vote, there were 234 amendments attached to it. Twenty filibusters were started at the same time.

A FEW DAYS ago the President warned Congress that the United States had to have a New Year and that he would keep them in session until he got one.

While everyone seemed to agree with him, no senator was willing to give an inch on his favorite amendment.

Despite the President's plea, both Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott have said privately they don't see how there can possibly be a 1971 before the 15th of July.

A 'Joint Mouse' In Her Knee

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you please explain what a joint mouse is? My sister has that condition in her knee, and we had never heard of it before.

What causes it? Is it dangerous? Is it necessary to operate and remove it, or can it be dissolved? Is the operation a major one? —Mrs. H.H.

Occasionally an extra piece of tissue may occur in a joint space (knee or elsewhere). This tissue may be an accumulation of blood that has solidified, after a severe injury. It is not uncommon for the "mouse" to be bone, due to changes that occur with degenerative or osteoarthritic. It may be a fragment of cartilage — also the result of an injury. Any of these is a "joint mouse."

It isn't dangerous in the sense of being potentially fatal or anything like that, but it may (or may not) be painful, and a "trick" or "locked" knee can be the result.

Therefore, in my opinion, it certainly makes sense to have the "mouse" removed before it can incapacitate the joint. Such "mice," by the way, are usually discovered when the joint has been X-rayed.

Surgery is the only treatment. There is no way to dissolve the fragments.

Whether it's a "major" operation depends on what you mean by "major." It isn't the sort of thing that can be done in a doctor's office. It has to be in a hospital, but it isn't the sort of surgery that should alarm anyone.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please send your booklet, "Help for Hypoglycemia (Low Blood Sugar)" for which I enclose 25 cents and self-addressed, stamped envelope. Also, is hypoglycemia more prevalent in pregnancy? —Mrs. C.H.

No. The blood sugar tends to be a bit higher in pregnancy. Pregnancy may actually bring a potential diabetic to light.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I recently heard of a do-it-yourself Pap test. Does such a thing exist? —J.W.

Well, yes, to a certain extent. It is "do-it-yourself" to the extent that the patient obtains the samples to be sent to a laboratory for examination, instead of having the doctor do it. My impression, so far, is that it is better than no test at all, but not as reliable as having a physician obtain the sample and inspect the cervix directly.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 16 and every month when I start my period I have cramps so bad on the first day and sometimes the second day that I have to stay in bed. I can hardly walk.

I have tried pills and they don't help. I have a heavy flow. Should I have this checked by my doctor? —S.B.

Yes, by all means you should be checked. As to the cramps, two rather simple methods may make quite a difference — more than you suspect, until you've tried them for a time.

First, reducing the amount of salt on your food for the week before your period often helps. (Less fluid then accumulates in your tissues, and that can be a big factor in cramps.)

Second, more exercise — calisthenics, sports, whatever — may help. Tests with considerable numbers of college girls have shown conclusively that those getting a good deal of physical activity have noticeably less menstrual distress.

"Tips On How To Stop Smoking," by Dr. Thosteson, will help you give up the habit. To receive a copy of the booklet, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Herald, enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Attend Church Sunday

Select The Church Of Your Choice And Be Faithful
In Your Attendance

as the earth turns

As bells ring and horns blow, a new year dawns around the world. In every land men celebrate its coming, variously, according to tradition.

One custom seems almost universal... an assessment, a review of the past year and the resolution to do better — in one's vocation, in one's attitude toward family and neighbor.

What is this spark that makes men seek a higher plane? It is the yearning that set the Wise Men's feet to follow a star, the longing of the multitudes that thronged the hills of Gallilee to hear the words of Jesus, the thirst of every man to know God's presence in his life.

In this age of chaos and confusion there is no better resolution than to attend our churches where wisdom and compassion are taught.

NEWS EVENTS OF 1970 IN PICTURE REVIEW

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NO MIRTH ON EARTH — Trying to warn of present pollution dangers, Pace College student Peter Hallerman donned a gas mask as a symbolic gesture during the Earth Day demonstration near City Hall in New York in April. The blossoms were magnolias.

COURT DRAMA — Convict J. D. McClain aimed his weapons at Judge Harold J. Haley during courthouse break at San Rafael, Calif., in August. The Judge was killed.

LIFE AND DEATH — Some of the survivors make their way over the devastated island of Manpura in East Pakistan past the bloated body of one of the thousands of victims of the November cyclone and tidal wave. The Bay of Bengal area was the hardest hit.

MASS GRIEF — Black draped pictures of Gamal Abdel Nasser were carried in a Cairo street in October during the state funeral for the United Arab Republic leader.

NEWSMAKER — U.S. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew made the headlines all during the year with his trips, election campaigning and delivering speeches that caused comment.

DEATH ON THE CAMPUS — A girl screamed as she knelt by body of a student lying face down on campus of Kent State University in Ohio. National Guardsmen fired on a crowd of demonstrators, killing four students. (Copyright, 1970, Valley Daily News).

OUT OF WORK — People wait to pick up unemployment checks in a Seattle office. Area was hard hit as aerospace industry waned and the economy sagged in 1970.

IN CAPTIVITY — Political kidnaping became frequent in 1970. British official James R. Cross was pictured while held prisoner by Quebec separatist elements.

EXPLOSIVE ENDING — Palestinian guerrillas celebrated the blowing up of a BOAC airliner hijacked to Dawson's Field, a desert airstrip north of Amman, Jordan. Aircraft was one of a number of commercial jets hijacked by the guerrillas during September.

A NEW TREND? — Salvador Allende, 62, winner in the Chilean presidential election, may be the forerunner of a new type of politics in South America. He's a Marxist.

RETURN COVER — U.S. artillerymen watch 175mm self-propelled gun in South Vietnam hurl its shell toward Cambodia after withdrawal from that nation in June.

TRIP'S TRAGIC OUTCOME — Stowaway Keith Sapsford, 14, is seen as he fell to his death from a Japan Airlines jet airliner taking off from Sydney, Australia, for Tokyo last February. The picture was taken by John Gilpin, an amateur photographer.

SPACE PROBLEM — An entire panel of the Apollo 13 service module was blown away during April moon mission. Astronauts returned safely in the command module.

AS FRANCE MOURNED — Mme. Charles-de Gaulle and her son, Capt. Philippe de Gaulle, stood with local priest as youths carried the tricolor-covered casket of Gen. Charles de Gaulle inside the cemetery at Colombey les Deux Eglises in November funeral.

The

Frank Sinatra Happy With His Mangy Role

Frank Sinatra, who has the funniest role of his career, the lead in MGM's "Dirty Dingus Magee," says he doesn't care how bad his costumes make him look or the screen, as long as they don't make the part look bad.

His role in "Dirty Dingus Magee" has him in a $69.95 wardrobe as probably the most unkempt hunk to ever walk the West. He is a slippery character in the western comedy, a sly con man who could talk a rabbit into spending his vacation at a greynound track. As well as being a part-time ass-breaker for a mule-drawn stagecoach line called the "Jackass Mail," he is a part-time outlaw with a price of ten dollars on his unwashed head.

"As a person," laughs Sinatra, "I look pretty bad, but as for the part, I think it's one of the best-looking I've ever had. And it gives me a great opportunity to work with two of the most talented performers in the business, George Kennedy and Anne Jackson."

Sinatra says there was a time when he thought a star's personal appearance and good looks were his stock in trade. That if the public likes an actor's looks that was enough. "I think," Sinatra states, "many actors make the mistake of waiting for sympathetic roles as the clean-cut hero and will turn down scraggly, villainous portrayals like the one I do in 'Dirty Dingus Magee.'" They're afraid if they play heavies, the public won't accept them as heroes any more. That's as wrong as a busted adding machine. Variety is really the spice of an actor's life and the kick and stimulation of the business is a setup of roles completely different from one another."

Sinatra feels that as far as clothes are concerned, they make the man, but they don't make for the best screen roles. "As far as I'm concerned," says Sinatra, "being sartorially perfect on the screen doesn't mean a thing. And to me, that's a good sign. It means audiences are becoming much more conscious of good old-fashioned acting and not to be diverted by a lot of glamorous camera tricks to catch the eye."

Sinatra has done quite a bit of research on the sartorial screen subject and has come up with some pungent points. Dustin Hoffman, nominated for an Oscar last year for his performance in "Midnight Cowboy," plays a drifting derelict attired in rags that a scarecrow would turn down. Jack Nicholson, also one of the nominees this year for his role in "Easy Rider," wears clothes "right out of a mail order catalogue. Two years ago, many of the Oscar nominees for "Oliver" wore outfits that were rejects from Salvation Army pickup trucks. And before that Lee Marvin snared an Academy Award as the drunken cowboy in "Cat Ballou" in clothes that looked like they were sewn together by Venus De Milo.

There are just as many examples in the past. Humphrey Bogart wore an outfit in "African Queen" that a panhandler would turn his nose up at, and yet it led to an Academy Award. Gary Cooper's one outfit in "High Noon" wasn't exactly a collar ad, but Cooper picked up an Oscar. Ernest Borgnine romped through "Marty" in a butcher's apron to an Oscar and Marlon Brando was no fashion plate, either, for his wonderful performance in "On the Waterfront."

Sinatra isn't comparing himself to any of these setups, but only illustrating his theory.

'Catch-22' Filming One Of Insanity

Alan Arkin has become one of America's most important film stars — on his own terms. He so invades the characters he plays and so few know him well, he has remained a mystery man to much of the film-going public.

Arkin currently is starring in a Mike Nichols' film, "Catch-22," at the R-70 Theatre.

His role in "Catch-22" is one almost every American actor coveted — Yossarian. By common consent, Yossarian is crazy, at least he has all the symptoms.

After eight mind-bending months of shooting which brought him from Guaymas in North-West Mexico to Rome, Italy, and back to Hollywood, Arkin was well qualified on the subject of insanity.

"We felt so removed from reality down there that some of us truly thought that we would go bonkers. Bob Newhart had a fantasy that he would go home and a couple of days later his wife would ring Par-mount and say that he had gone insane while on "Catch-22" and what were they going to do about it."

"Catch-22" stars Arkin, Martin Balsam, Richard Benjamin, Arthur Garfunkel, Jack Gilford, Buck Henry, Bob Newhart, Anthony Perkins, Paula Prentiss, Martin Sheen, Jo Voight and Orson Welles as Dreedle.

Irreverent Look At War In Film

Hailed as "the best American war comedy since sound came in," "MASH," 20th Century-Fox's irreverent look at war, opens Thursday at the Jet Theatre starring Donald Sutherland, Elliott Gould and Tom Skerritt.

The three stars are army surgeons who develop a lunatic life-style in order to function and keep their sanity amid the everyday horrors encountered in a mobile army surgical hospital (MASH) during the Korean War. They are skilled and dedicated in their profession, but they are equally skilled in making a shambles of army bureaucracy.

Among the other players who share or are victims of their antics at the Army base are Sally Kellerman, the rigidly strict head nurse whom they transform into a warm human being; Robert Duvall, the overly pious major; Jo Ann Pflug, another nurse, succinctly described as "the sexiest in military history"; and Rene Auberjonois, the compassionate chaplain.

Nine professional football stars turn actors for the first time in a wild football sequence which figures prominently in "MASH." The pro-gridders were assembled by former Kansas City Chiefs all-pro defensive halfback Fred Williamson. Involved in the "game," in addition to the stars, are Howard Williams and Ben Davidson of the Oakland Raiders; Jack Concannon, John Myers and Tom Woodeschick of the Philadelphia Eagles; Timmy Brown of the Baltimore Colts; and Buck Buchanan and Genevieve Ambas, 10, in pivotal juvenile roles.

'Ark' Completed

NEW YORK (AP) — Cinema Center Films' "The Little Ark" has completed production after 10 weeks of location filming in Amsterdam, Holland. Starring Theodore Bikel, the motion picture introduces Philip Frame, 12, and Phillipine-born Genevieve Ambas, 10, in pivotal juvenile roles.

skilled in making a shambles of army bureaucracy.

(AP WIREPHOTO)

BROADWAY DEBUT EXCITES HER — Amid the flurry of packing and saying her farewells, Yvonne de Carlo talks about her forthcoming debut on Broadway as the star of a big musical, "Follies." She says it's "very exciting" even though it means separation from her husband, former stuntman Bob Morgan, and one son. Another son will join her later in New York and go to school there.

Golden-Haired Actress Darling Of 'Flubber'

Nancy Olson is a golden-haired actress who after becoming a dyed-in-the-wool New Yorker, via Milwaukee, Wis., and Hollywood, has once again succumbed to the lure of filmmaking and returned to Hollywood to make her home.

This all came about when the blue-eyed actress came West to star as Fred MacMurray's wife in Walt Disney's wacky comedy, "Son of Flubber" and realized she would like to resume her movie career on a permanent basis.

Heretofore, she had spent part of each summer with her parents in California and during two of these sojourns was persuaded by Walt Disney to star in "Pollyanna" and "The Absent-Minded Professor." Nancy was also in "Smith!" with Glenn Ford for the Disney Studio.

The talented star was born in Milwaukee where her father, Dr. Henry J. Olson, was a distinguished physician. She attended grade and high school in that city, winning a Wisconsin State Oratorical Contest in high school with a speech telling children how to bring up their parents. In addition to oratorical contests she soon began appearing in high school plays and her experience in these convinced her she wanted to become an actress.

A long-term contract with Paramount followed her discovery and she was an instantaneous success with leading roles in such films as "Submarine Command," "Mr. Music," "Canadian Pacific," "Union Station" and "Sunset Boulevard." For the last named film Nancy received an Academy Award nomination.

She is married to business executive Alan Livingston and the couple has a 5-year-old son, Christopher. Nancy has two daughters, Lisa, 18 and Jennifer, 16, by her first marriage to lyricist Alan Jay Lerner.

On Broadway she starred in the productions of "Tunnel of Love" with Tom Ewell and "Send Me No Flowers" with David Wayne. She also replaced Barbara Bel Geddes in the hit show, "Mary, Mary."

Flicks Distributed On Cartridges

NEW YORK (AP) — American International Pictures, which built its success on sand-and-sex films and horror movies, will sell 15 of its features to Cartridge TV, Inc., a subsidiary of Avco Corp., for distribution on video cartridges, it was announced recently.

At a news conference, James H. Nicholson, also announced that AIP will be listed on the Pacific Coast Stock Exchange.

Traveling Star

NEW YORK (AP) — Mariana Hill, star of "The Traveling Executioner," has left on a six-city personal appearance tour, which included the premier of the film at Montgomery, Ala. Other cities on the tour include Atlanta, Birmingham, Ala., and New York City.
