Nude Photos Hassle Leads To Kidnaping

By The Associated Press
Two young victims of separate kidnap incidents were free and unharmed today after the parents of one paid a $5,000 ransom and the father of the second met a demand for removal of four nude photographs from an art gallery.

The victims were Michael J. Register, 11, of Macon, Ga., who was held in handcuffs for nearly 20 hours while his parents arranged the ransom, and Richard E. Batey, 13, son of an official of the gallery in Memphis, Tenn.

Macon police said most of the $5,000 paid by Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Register was recovered because Michael managed to "appropriate" an identification card from one of his abductors and later led police to the house where he was held.

The arrested John Thomas Plummer, 20, who lives next door to the house, and charged him with kidnaping. Police said other arrests were expected.

In Memphis, the Batey boy was abducted from his home by a bearded gunman at about 8:30 p.m. Thursday and released 2½ hours later after his father went on local television and radio to report that the photos would be taken down.

The gunman had told him the boy would be released if he broadcast such a statement. There was no immediate arrest in the case.

The photos, part of a show of more than 100 works that went on display at the Memphis Academy of Arts March 1, had been the subject of local controversy for the past week after one resident complained they were obscene.

Police said the gunman entered the home of Dr. Richard C. Batey, a part-time instructor in humanities at the academy and director of the exhibition and ordered the father and two sisters to lie down on the den floor.

In the Macon case, police said young Michael was abducted when he went out to a neighborhood grocery store at 6 p.m. Wednesday. Four hours later his parents received a call demanding the $5,000 ransom.

IN ASPERMONT When It Rains, It Pours Woes

ASPERMONT, Tex. (AP) — One of two would-be rainmakers said Thursday denial of a permit to produce rain is "pure discrimination by the Texas Water Development Board."

The TWDB, headed by Harry Burleigh, has refused to issue a permit to Homer F. Berry of Little Rock, Ark., and Charles Abernathy, Abernathy said.

The pair was engaged by area ranchers and farmers to produce five inches of rain for a $10,000 fee. The rainmakers have been trying since early last month.

Abernathy said he and Berry have been using a generator to seed the sky with silver iodide.

"We've brought up some mean-looking clouds but it's so dry, the humidity is so low that if it's been raining, it dries up before it hits the ground," Abernathy said.

To add to their woes, Abernathy said, Burleigh has notified them by mail that their request for a weather modification permit has been denied and that to further pursue their operation might get them in trouble with the law.

"He says we aren't qualified to try to make rain," Abernathy said. "That doesn't make sense. What does the board care whether we're qualified or not? It's no skin off their backs. They've said nothing about polluting the atmosphere. They just say we aren't qualified. They have approved applications for other rainmakers."

Abernathy said the $10,000 fund has been withdrawn and the pair is working on its own.

Tax Program Won't Fly?

AUSTIN (AP) — Another series of witnesses told Senate tax bill writers today that the House-passed $492.5 million general tax program won't fly.

"We estimate this proposed stock transactions tax would bring in about $1.5 million instead of $10 million for the next two years," said Charles Kirkland of Dallas, spokesman for the Texas Investment Bankers Association.

"We're afraid this proposed state hotel occupancy tax increase would endanger the $123 million that was paid last year directly into the state treasury by out of state visitors," said Herbert Wilson of San Antonio, spokesman for the Texas Hotel and Motel Association.

The 40-minute session of the Senate State Affairs Committee followed an initial meeting Thursday during which they heard warnings and recommendations of a state corporate income tax.

DALLAS (AP) — Sheriff Clarence Jones is holding conferences of North Central Officers, frustrated by their inability to solve slayings on women in this section.

Jones said Thursday he hopes that if the officers pool their information they may find a "common denominator" leading to the killer or killers.

Nixon Will Lose South In '72 If ...

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will lose the South in 1972 to a Democratic ticket headed by Sens. Edmund S. Muskie or Henry M. Jackson if inflation and employment are the major issues, Southern Democrats say.

But most of the Dixie leaders say the Republicans probably will sweep the region if the Democrats nominate Sens. Birch Bayh, George McGovern or Hubert H. Humphrey.

Interviewed during a meeting of the Democratic State Chairmen Association, all but one of the Southern party officials listed Muskie of Maine or Jackson of Washington as having the best chance in the South next year.

The exception was Aaron Henry, state chairman from Mississippi and a Negro. He said any of the leading Democrats would do equally well in the South and beat Nixon.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts would be the clear favorite among southern blacks, he said.

None of the officials interviewed, however, would rule out victories in the South by other personalities mentioned so far as possible nominees, including Kennedy and Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa.

He was talking to one of them outside their car, Beall said, when a man inside the vehicle shot Boortz in the head.

The marshal was a son of Malone's mayor, Bill Boortz.

Civil War Raging In East Pakistan

NEW DELHI (AP) — Pakistan's military government cracked down on rebellious East Pakistan today, and an Indian news agency reported fierce fighting in Dacca, the provincial capital, with heavy casualties.

Radio Pakistan said the army had taken control again, all political activity was banned and an indefinite curfew imposed throughout the eastern province of 70 million people.

STREET FIGHTS
The troops were ordered to shoot up anyone who violated the curfew.

The Indian government radio said reports from East Pakistan indicated "civil war rapidly developing."

Radio Pakistan said the army action was taken because "the law and order situation had reached alarming proportions."

A United News of India dispatch from Assam said fierce street fighting had broken out in Dacca and the port city of Chittagong. The report said casualties were believed heavy.

Another report said Pakistani army troops had crossed into Indian territory in the remote northeastern state of Tripura. But Indian army sources in Calcutta said the report was "incorrect."

They said it probably originated from a misunderstanding.

RESIST THE ENEMY
Monitors in Calcutta said they picked up an appeal from Sheik Mujibur Rahman, leader of the East Pakistani rebellion, "to resist the enemy forces at all costs." The monitors said they believed the message came from Chittagong or Khulna. Sheik Mujib's message charged that the army had attacked two bases of the East Pakistan Rifles, the provincial militia, at midnight, "killing a lot of unarmed people."

"Stern fighting is going on with the EPR in Dacca and the police force," the message continued. "The people are fighting the enemy gallantly for the cause of the freedom of Bangladesh," the Bengali nationalist name for East Pakistan.

Earlier today Pakistan's military president, Gen. Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan, flew back to Karachi from Dacca after a breakdown in negotiations with Sheik Mujibur Rahman.

AMBUSH MONEY TRUCK Masked Raiders Escape With Million In Cash

LONDON (AP) — Masked raiders carrying shotguns ambushed an armored money truck today and police said they escaped in a high-powered car with more than a million dollars in cash.

The gangsters abandoned another $10,000 in unwieldy coins as they rushed to make their getaway. It was described as the biggest cash haul in Britain since the Great Train Robbery in 1963.

Police were puzzled that there were no marks of forced entry on the yellow security truck.

One report said the eight-ton truck had parked at the side of the highway in the south London suburb of Croydon while its crew "spent a penny" — a British term for going to a public lavatory.

The raiders — some said, five, others six — then pounced from a large maroon-colored truck and forced its crew at gunpoint to open up.

They bundled 28 green sacks of notes worth 458,240 pounds — $1,099,776 — into a red Jaguar limousine and sped off — leaving their truck blocking the road.

A reward of $108,000 was swiftly posted for their capture.

Police said at first $1.8 million was stolen, but it was found to be less when financiers checked their books.

Detectives said, however, it still could be the biggest cash haul since the $6.2 million in the Great Train Robbery.

Wildlife Commission Hires Ex-Personal Pilot For LBJ

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission voted unanimously today to hire retiring Brig. Gen. James Cross, pilot of Air Force One under President Lyndon Johnson, as executive director of the Parks and Wildlife Department.

Chairman Pearce Johnson said Cross will assume the $25,000 job as soon as he retires from the Air Force April 30.

The decision to hire Cross was made in a closed-door session prior to the commission's regular meeting.

Cross, 45, is now commander of Bergstrom Air Force Base near Austin.

Cross takes over from Ron Jones, 30, who has been acting executive director since Robert Mauermann was fired recently after taking sides in the Mustang Island controversy.

Mauermann succeeded J. R. Singleton, who resigned in January.

Singleton's resignation reportedly also had to do with the argument over whether the state should buy part of Mustang Island, near Corpus Christi, for a state park.

VOTE TO BUY
The commission voted 2-1 to buy the land, but Johnson blocked it with a federal suit.

A ruling favorable to Johnson is now on appeal.

The commission majority on Mustang also has apparently changed with Gov. Preston Smith's appointment of East Texas banker Jack Stone to replace Amarillo contractor Pete Gilvin.

Gilvin had joined with the third commissioner, brewery executive Harry Jersig of San Antonio, in opposing Johnson on the Mustang purchase and most other departmental affairs.

Johnson reportedly persuaded Jersig and Stone on the Cross appointment on Cross' management experience and quoted former President Johnson as saying that Cross "is the best damn administrator I've ever known."

Under President Johnson, Cross became the only military man ever to be both chief pilot on Air Force One and as chief military assistant in charge of the President's briefings and papers on most defense department matters.

COMBAT VET
Cross and the President became good friends in 1962 when Cross became personal pilot for Johnson, then vice president.

Cross volunteered for Vietnam duty shortly before Johnson left the White House.

He became commander of the 75th Tactical Reconnaissance Wing at Bergstrom in February, 1969. As chief executive of Bergstrom he is in charge of $200 million worth of airplanes, $59 million in other property, 6,100 personnel and an annual operating budget of more than $55 million.

Pool Clues In Hunt For Women Killers

DALLAS (AP) — Sheriff Clarence Jones is holding conferences of North Central Officers, frustrated by their inability to solve slayings on women in this section.

Jones said Thursday he hopes that if the officers pool their information they may find a "common denominator" leading to the killer or killers.

At least five young women have been slain in North Central Texas and officers appear no nearer a solution to the crimes today than when they took place.

The first meeting was held earlier this week but Jones would not reveal details of the discussions.

Warnings Of Corporate Income Tax Echo In Ears Of Senators

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas tax bill writers returned to their task today with warnings and recommendations of a state corporate income tax ringing in their ears.

The Senate State Affairs Committee begins its second session of public hearings on the House-passed tax bill at 9 a.m.

Both houses were in recess until Monday.

At the first session Thursday the Senate State Affairs Committee got widely divergent views of a corporate income tax, reportedly favored by the liberal majority of the Senate.

The House-passed $492.5 million general tax bill for the next two years has no reference to either personal or corporate income taxes, relying instead mostly on a 3.25 to 4 per cent increase in the state sales tax.

SURE THING

"As sure as night follows day, a personal income tax bill will follow a corporate income tax," warned Tom Sealy, Midland attorney who in 1961 was a leader in the drive for a state sales tax. "Our economy will be slowed if we levy a corporate income tax."

Sealy said "business today pays 34 per cent of the state sales tax... just hold it down. Let us catch our breath. It won't hurt to wait two years."

"This tax before you is nothing but a motley collection of consumer taxes," said Hank Brown, Texas AFL-CIO president. "Texas needs a corporate profits tax. It is both a broad-based tax that will meet the revenue needs of the state and a tax that will create a balance between corporate and consumer taxes... the time has come."

MUST BE PASSED

Brown suggested a 6 per cent

corporate profits tax, which he said would bring in $600 million the next two years.

Jim Yancy, representing the Texas Manufacturers Association, told the committee "it is really rather pointless" to talk about consumer and business taxes. A business tax, he said, "must be passed on some way—if not passed on to the consumer, then back to labor through reduction in wages or to the stockholders."

The TMA suggested increasing college tuition and reducing farm to market road construction by $30 million a year as a partial solution to the state's financial woes.

GAS TAX

Harold DeMoss of Parker

Monday afternoon the committee is scheduled to hear testimony on portions of the House bill that would levy a new 5-cent a gallon tax on fuel used in jet airplanes and on Tuesday afternoon the increases in entertainment and franchise taxes.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes told the opening meeting of the committee that he hoped a subcommittee of the group could have a Senate version of the tax bill ready for debate by April 12.

Robison Charges Crowd To Witness For Others

The average professing Christian does not know how to win souls for Christ," said James Robison at a cold fifth night Thursday of the James Robison Crusade in the Memorial Stadium.

Robison's sermon for the cold evening centered around the plan of salvation put forth in the book of Romans, as he told the shivering group that attended "it might be bitter cold on the outside, but it is warm on the inside knowing Christ as savior."

"Jesus did not win everyone, but he won a man up a tree, Jesus did not win everyone, but he won a man on the cross next to him at Calvary," Robison said. "However, most professing Christians do not know how to tell others of the plan of salvation, because they do not know it themselves."

"Many of your members have met the pastor, but they haven't met the master," Robison said to the pastors attending. "There are people just waiting to be saved and they do not see any Christians caring enough for their souls to witness; all they can see is the big show Christians put on when they go to church."

"In spite of the uncomf of the moment, I hope there are those present who are more concerned with the possible discomfort of living an eternity in hell," Robison told the crowd.

Approximately 100 to 150 of the 3,000 persons attending came forward to make some kind of decision Thursday night. There were 118 professions of faith in Christ at Wednesday's meeting and 289 persons have made decisions this week.

John McKay, song leader, led the large choir composed from various churches in the area and also sang two solos for the service. The expense of the revival was met in the first four nights, and Thursday night was the first night for a call for a love offering for the Robison team.

one back to the king, East discarding a diamond on the second round.

Trumps were temporarily abandoned and attention was shifted to the side suits. Rather than risk everything on a successful spade finesse, declarer decided to cash out his high clubs in order to determine how many trumps could be obtained. When both the king and queen of clubs went thru, he was able to throw two spades from dummy.

A spade was led to the ace next, and dummy's remaining spades—the jack—was returned to the king in the closed hand. The stage was now set for declarer to rid himself of his losing spade, and he quickly led that card in order to ruff with the dummy's jack of hearts.

Unfortunately for him, West chose this moment to discard his singleton jack of diamonds and, when declarer tried to return to his hand by leading a diamond to the ace, West ruffed in. Another diamond had to be conceded, and the contract was set down by one trick.

Declarer's haste in ruffing out his losing spade is an understandable error, but it seems unfortunate in light of his cautious play up to that point. All he had to do was put down the ace of diamonds first, and then trump the seven of spades. A diamond is now conceded to the opponents and South has nothing but high trumps left.

New Brassiere Kneads Breasts

BRUSSELS (AP) — Among the inventions presented at this year's International Inventions Show is a new kind of brassiere.

Instead of having the usual textile cups, it has a metal structure which spirals around the breasts and fastens at the back.

In the center of the front is a small, electric massaging apparatus which can be activated when the wearer pleases.

The brassiere, invented by a Belgian, is said to strengthen and develop the bust.

Lubbock Police Say Forced Resignation Triggers Union

LUBBOCK (AP) — Members of the Lubbock police department decided Thursday to join a union because of what a spokesman said was the forced resignation of a veteran lieutenant.

He reported 120 of the city's 143 policemen voted to become members of Construction and Municipal Workers Local 1253, which is affiliated with the Laborers' International Union of North America, AFL-CIO.

It was believed that this is the first unionized police department in the state.

An officer who did not want to be identified said he and others discussed taking a vote for three days and the matter came to a head Wednesday when a lieutenant on the force for 23 years was forced to resign.

"They just want protection and representation for grievances, working conditions and salaries," labor organizer R. D. Williams said.

Police Chief J. T. Alley called a departmental meeting for 3 p.m. Friday.

"This is going to be a meeting to see if we can find out what is going on," Alley said.

Alley was ordered Thursday to reinstate a patrolman he had suspended for alleged labor activity. City Manager Bill Blackwell told Alley the suspension was in conflict with administrative regulations which permit municipal employees to engage in labor activity as long as it is not conducted on city property or during their working hours.

There are 77 police departments which have officers belonging to the Texas Municipal Police Officers Association. The organization has 6,000 members.

By state law, municipal employees are not permitted to go on strike or picket.

One officer said the situation at Lubbock "has gone to the extent that instead of talking to a man, they (the administration) pass out memos and we do as it says or else."

"We can catch burglars," he said, "but if we don't come in with so many tickets there is pressure."

"It's an unfortunate combination of circumstances, the most unfortunate being that we're a small old group and we're just not up to it," said Thomas O'Connor, president of the Sunrise Service Committee.

"We've never been able to get young people into this. I don't think it turns them on very much," he said.

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Easter sunrise services which have been held about 40 years at Memorial Stadium will not be conducted this Easter.

$54 Million Aid At Stake

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless last-minute accommodations are reached, two states will lose a total of $54 million a year in federal welfare aid next Thursday.

Welfare aid programs in four other states are in various stages of jeopardy.

The cutoff—the first such in 20 years—would culminate a two-year Nixon administration drive to bring states into compliance with the complicated maze of federal welfare regulations.

Facing the fire next week are Indiana, with $39 million at stake, and Nebraska, with $15 million.

The two states are scrambling to correct what the government ruled in January were violations in their welfare systems.

Remedial legislation has passed the Indiana legislature and awaits the signature of Gov. Edgar D. Whitcomb, who has said he favors the bill. Similar law has advanced to final reading in the Nebraska legislature.

The Indiana legislation contains an emergency clause putting into effect immediately, but some government welfare experts doubt the changes, can be implemented quickly enough to avert next week's scheduled cutoff.

The government's main com-

Warning Yarn Wins Freedom In Death Case

DALLAS (AP) — John L. House, 57, who said he fired what was intended to be only a warning shot, was acquitted Thursday of murder in the death of Nathan Simpson, 14.

House, a retired post office employee, testified he was trying to detain the youth and two companions after they took a trash container from behind his home and tossed it into a pond.

A jury of six men and six women returned the verdict after deliberating nearly three hours.

Mrs. Charles Simpson, mother of the dead youth, sobbed loudly on hearing the decision. She was escorted from the courtroom.

House told the jury there had been frequent acts of vandalism at his home and police had told him he must detain one of the offenders if charges were to be pressed.

He said he shouted for Simpson and two other youths—Jerry Clark and Doug Statler—to halt, warning that he had a gun, and then aimed a .22 caliber pistol at a clay bank 10 yards behind them.

Simpson's companions said they heard House yell but did not understand what he said.

Another boy, Billy Walker, testified he walked down the alley seconds after the shooting and heard House say, "I guess that'll teach 'em not to mess with my trash cans!"

INCOME TAX JOY DOUBLED

PARIS, Tex. (AP) — Theo Griffie got his income tax refund check in the mail twice.

Griffie received the check from the postman and went to the bank in downtown Paris to cash it. On the way, he lost it.

Three days later, Griffie found the check in his mailbox again. An anonymous but honest person had found the check and mailed it back to Griffie.

KIDNAPED BOY'S FATHER — Richard C. Batey, right, an official of a city art gallery in Memphis, is escorted into a television studio by Police Chief Henry Lux, left. Batey, to comply with a kidnaper's demand, went on the air to say a display of nude photos had been taken down from the gallery walls. Batey's son, Richard E. Batey, 13, was released unharmed shortly after the broadcast.

Letter Writing By Kids Fails To Capture Plant

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — The multi-million dollar plant to produce urethane foam would offer jobs to 1,000 construction workers and, when completed, employ 150 persons. It is expected to be the beginning of a "major new chemical complex," Olin said. The foam is used in a number of industrial and consumer products and in packaging. "We asked the youngsters in our schools if they wanted to participate in a letter writing campaign," Assistant Beaumont School Supt. Ed Silverberg said. "And they did. They wanted to tell Olin about our city's good points."

Dedication Slated For Middle School

LAMESA (SC) — The new $1,400,000 middle school, representing a new concept in educational approach, will be dedicated here Saturday at 2 p.m.

This forward step also will signal the end for two other educational plants which have served the district for as long as 50 years. The old Central elementary and old junior high buildings will be demolished, according to present plans.

Dr. Glenn Barnett, executive vice president of Texas Tech University, will be the speaker for the dedicatory exercises. Bill R. Reid, president of the board of trustees, will bring greetings, and Alvin R. Canady, superintendent of schools, will introduce the speaker, Charles Bratcher, vice president of the board, will introduce guests.

The new middle school, according to its designers, may grow old like other buildings through the years, but is not due to become obsolete. Within the permanent walls are movable partitions so that "a new school could be built inside" constantly without great effort or expense.

The accommodations center around teaching pods, rather than rooms. These will permit teaching, instead of a single teacher holding class in a conventional room for a specific grade level of subject matter. Small groups of pupils may break off the pod for independent study depending on rate of progress.

A focal point of the split-level building is the learning center. The upper level contains books and other materials. The lower level has auxiliary materials such as film strips, transparencies, tape and disc recordings, and other types of visual and instructional aids, including wireless headset which permits free movement of the pupil.

Provision also has been made for future developments such as closed circuit television, etc. The learning center also has 40 carrels for independent study. The school encompasses fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade levels.

Board Hails Hope For Entertaining

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The County Board of Supervisors has honored comedian Bob Hope with a special scroll for entertaining American servicemen and charitable work with hospitals and fund-raising organizations.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said Thursday he urged every citizen "from Abilene, Tex., to Albany, N.Y., to pay tribute to Hope, who was proposed for and later denied the New York City Council of Churches' Family of Man Award this month.

The church group gave its award to the late civil rights leader Whitney M. Young Jr. after a faction of antiwar ministers contended Hope did not deserve the accolade because of his "uncritical endorsement of the military establishment and the Indochina war."

FIVE VICTIMS IDENTIFY 'SOUTHWEST RAPIST'

HOUSTON (AP) — Police said today they may have in custody the man known the past four months as Houston's "southwest rapist."

Harold Wilson Jarrell, 39, an unemployed auto mechanic, was charged with eight counts of rape Wednesday night. Police said the charges were filed after five victims of the man called the "southwest rapist" viewed a police line-up and identified Jarrell as the man who attacked them.

Jarrell also was charged with two counts of sodomy, four counts of robbery by firearms, two counts of assault with intent to rape, one count of attempted robbery by firearms, four counts of burglary and three counts of misdemeanor theft. Jarrell was arrested last Sunday after a high speed auto chase with police.

Couple Charged In Deer Park Bank Caper Jailed

HOUSTON (AP) — The FBI said today that Charles Alexander Aldrich, 44, and his wife, Anne, charged in the Tuesday robbery of the suburban Deer Park State Bank, have been arrested in Los Angeles.

Thomas Jordan, agent in charge of the FBI here, said the couple were arrested in a motel.

Aldrich had been sought on a federal warrant charging him with bank robbery. Mrs. Aldrich was charged as accessory to bank robbery.

Norman Paul Chapman, 38, was arrested shortly after the robbery. He is being held under $50,000 bond.

Three persons robbed the bank and escaped with $2,415. Police said the robbers came to the bank in a hijacked taxicab and forced the cab driver to enter the bank. They left in the cab, leaving the driver behind.

Police said one man got out of the cab and ran through a field and took refuge in a bar, where he was arrested.

Police said $900 of the loot was recovered in a trash can in the field.

'INNOCENT' MAN FREED 'I Prayed Nine Years And Four Months For This'

HOUSTON (AP) — Amos Gaines, 46, who served more than nine years of a 99-year sentence, was free today after being found innocent by a jury that retried him.

"I prayed nine years and four months for this, knowing that I'd been falsely accused," the Houston machinist said Thursday after the verdict in Judge Sam W. Davis's court.

"I want to get a big steak and find a nice bathtub to get in," he added. "All we had in prison was showers."

Then, he said he wants to sleep for a while. "I lost a lot of sleep over this," he said.

Gaines has been in jail and prison since Dec. 5, 1961, the night he was charged with fatally stabbing Ruby Lee Harris, 43, during a quarrel. He was convicted March 1, 1962 and transferred to the state prison to begin serving a 99-year term.

'I HIT WHAT I SHOOT AT' — Gray-haired and 67 years old — and a grandmother — Mrs. Caroline Papp, right, sits at a table in a Philadelphia police station and tells how three bandits entered the North Philadelphia grocery store operated by her husband and her, held up a shotgun and demanded money. Mrs. Papp, who practices on a pistol range, fired with a .25 caliber pistol and one of the men, identified as Jack Randall Terrell, 25, at left, fell with a bullet in his head. The other two fled empty-handed. Terrell was pronounced dead at a hospital. Said Mrs. Papp: "I usually hit what I shoot at."

Fire Truck Accidents Traffic Meeting Topic

The study of fire truck traffic on one way streets in the city was discussed to some extent in the Traffic Commission meeting today at 10 a.m.

"I don't think we are in a position to make a quick decision on the issue without making a thorough study of the matter," said Nolen Chafin, director of public works. Don Crockett, commission member, agreed the commission needed more time to gather information on the issue and come to a decision.

The issue was placed on the agenda due to recent accidents which have occurred involving the fire trucks when on emergency runs. Fire Chief H. V. Crocker and Fire Marshall A. D. Meador were present in the meeting to discuss the fire department's views on the subject.

"Most of the accidents involving the fire trucks have happened from citizens coming off side streets, and there have been no head on collisions on the one-way streets," said Meador. "This can happen going with or against traffic."

Chief Crocker explained the amount of accidents involving fire trucks in proportion to the length of time the streets have been one-way is very slight, and the advantage of going against traffic is that the citizens can see the trucks and use the proper precaution.

No formal decision was made concerning the problem by the commission, but the board did agree to make a thorough study of the matter to present some conclusion to the city commission.

In other business the commission approved an ordinance on the recommendation of the State Highway Department and the city director of public works concerning speed zones on US 87 at the North city limits, south of the town to the southernmost city limit. Upon Chafin's endorsement of the recommendation the ordinance was passed and will go before the city commission at their next regular meeting.

A T-Man report by Louis McKnight was tabled and ordered put on the next meeting's agenda. Also the commission examined two call-in recommendations, one that the red blinking light at the intersection of Wason Road and Connally be exchanged with an amber blinking light and another that a yield sign be placed at the intersection of Wason Road and Webb AFB Village road. The commission approved the amber blinking light suggestion and the second will be studied further.

Big Springer Gets Tennessee Well

Ray A. Albaugh, Big Spring independent oil operator, appeared today to have another oil discovery to his credit, this one in Putnam County, Tenn.

Albaugh No. 1 L. H. Bohannon, eight miles southeast of Cookeville, which is about 75 miles east of Nashville, was shut in after tapping free oil in the Knox dolomite. Albaugh picked top of the Knox at 1,698 on a ground elevation of 1,102, which would make it the highest in the area. Operator drilled to 1,745 with rotary, then shifted to cable tools and halted at 1,753 when the hole filled with 600 feet of fluid in 30 minutes. Gravity of oil was reported at 40 and the casing pressure at 350 pounds. Albaugh said he planned to reopen the wildcat Saturday morning and prepare for production tests. Location is NE section 17-75S, 50-E.

Still another strike was in prospect in the general area. Ray A. Albaugh No. 1 J. R. Mullan, two miles east of Cookeville and the first venture he drilled in Putnam County, had shows of oil in the Knox, but it has been tied up in an extended fishing job after the shift from rotary to cable tool was made at 1,825. Operator lost circulation at that depth after topping the Knox at 1,785 on an elevation of 1,092. The cable rig dropped a stockpot, and then two strings of line. While the fishing job was underway, Albaugh moved to the Bohannon location in the Dry Hollow community. Albaugh said Friday he hoped to complete the fishing job and move in soon on the No. 1 Mullan for efforts at completion.

The only other oil production in Tennessee, he said, was in Scott County, 60 miles to the northeast. The nearest Knox production is in Kentucky.

Albaugh had made two previous attempts to block acreage in Putnam County prior to this year, but had been unsuccessful in getting a sufficient spread. A native of Pennsylvania, he also had wildcatted in Pennsylvania.

Until now, however, the wildcatter's discoveries have been in this area of West Texas. His major and first discovery was the Welch field in northwest Dawson County, which he found in 1935. He also brought in the Dean pool in Dawson and Borden Counties in 1950; the Albaugh (Fusselman) pool, since depleted, in southwestern Mitchell County in 1954; the Albaugh (Yates) pool, which eventually became part of the Howard-Glasscock field, in 1957; the Albaugh (Mulliply) field on the Elwood Ranch in 1967; the Albaugh (Cole) Wolfcamp strike in northwest Sterling County in 1968. The same year, he also brought in a well in southwest Mitchell County in what may have been the Spraberry or Wolfcamp.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain or showers with some snow in the mountains is the forecast today from the Pacific Coast to the North and Central Rockies. Some rain is expected for the Carolinas with snow likely for Virginia and the upper Great Lakes.

Convention At Colorado City

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The annual convention of the Mesquite District, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, met at Colorado City Wednesday, with 126 registered for the two-day meeting.

Registration began at 1 p.m. at the fellowship hall of First United Methodist Church, and the convention opened in the church auditorium with Mrs. A. J. Smith Jr. of Anson district president, presiding.

The group selected Jess Cleveland of Albany for its scholarship award of $100. Cleveland is a 1970 graduate of Albany High School and is in a pre-med course at the University of St. Thomas in Houston.

In the poet laureate contest, Mrs. Harrell Cheeves of Clyde, a member of the Thursday Club, took first place in humorous and inspirational verse and second in poetry, any style. Mrs. Donald Young of Hamlin was first in poetry, any style, and Mrs. Earl Donaldson of Snyder was second in humorous verse. Mrs. Sam Cannon of Moran was second in inspirational poetry. Mrs. W. B. McSpadden of Snyder announced the Atheneum Study Club of Sweetwater as winner of the outstanding club award, with the Art Guild Study Club of Snyder, second.

The Diamond Jubilee Dinner was held at 6 p.m. at Civic House and featured on the program was recognition of Pioneer Clubwomen by Miss Nettie McCollum of Haskell, recognition of past district presidents by Mrs. Bernie McCrea of Abilene and recognition of life members by Mrs. John P. Ward of San Angelo and Aspermont. The presentation of the district scholarship winner was by Mrs. Frank Windham of Baird and a book review, "The Santa Fe Trail," was by Mrs. L. E. Dudley of Abilene.

The group convened Thursday at 9 a.m. at the First United Methodist Church.

Rainbows Are Visited By Official

Miss Jean Sauze of Midland, member of the Order of the Rainbow for Girls, Grand Assembly of Texas, made her official visit to the local assembly Tuesday at the Masonic Temple.

Gayle Webb, worthy advisor, presided, and initiated Jill Odom into the order. Members were reminded of the balloon sale Saturday to help with the Easter Seal drive. The balloons will be sold in the downtown area and at the Highland Center Mall.

The girls will sponsor a bake sale at 10 a.m., April 3, with locations at the Highland Mall, Furr's Supermarket and Safeway at College Park.

Also taking place April 3, the girls will meet at 9 a.m. in the home of Mary Alice Terrazas, 1101 Bell, to color Easter eggs for the hunt planned for children at Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center. In the evening, the girls will attend a joint meeting with other area assemblies in Seminole.

To observe Founder's Day of the organization, the girls will meet at 9 a.m., April 4 at Coker's Restaurant for breakfast, and will attend church at Prairie View Baptist Church.

Refreshments were served by Sheila Fryar, Mrs. Orbin Daily, Mary Wieb, Patty Swindell and Angela Hodnett.

MR. AND MRS. FLOYD A. DIXON

Floyd A. Dixons Will Be Honored Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd A. Dixon will be honored Sunday afternoon on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

A reception will be in the Fellowship Hall of East Fourth Street Baptist Church between the hours of 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. All friends are invited to call.

Hosts for the affair are members of the families of the couple. Included are the mothers, Mrs. B. J. Dixon and Mrs. Lloyd Kinman; also, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Looney, Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Locklar, Odessa; and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Kimzey, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Place, Mr. and Mrs. James Kinman, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kraus, Miss Ethel Trotter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Percifield, and Mr. and Mrs. Jones Lamar, all of Big Spring.

Floyd Dixon and Betty Kinman were married in Big Spring in 1946. He was in the U.S. Navy assigned to Wake Island and was taken prisoner of war when the Japanese overwhelmed the island, being freed four years later. After their marriage, he was stationed in Lakehurst, N.J., and in Corpus Christi. Upon his discharge they lived in Burwood, La., and Lubbock prior to returning to Big Spring where he became associated with Cosden as an engineer.

They have two sons, Benny Lloyd Dixon, who is in the U.S. Army at Ft. Belvoir, La., married to the former Bette Barron of Coahoma; and Roger Dixon, a student at Howard County Junior College.

Mr. and Mrs. Dixon are members of East Fourth Street Baptist Church.

Wide Choice In Bonded Fabrics

Bonded fabrics are available in abundance. Some coats or suits have two layers bonded together. Some have acetate or nylon to a wool face. Others are bonded to make them reversible.

In the case of bonded fabrics, cautions Gerda Peterson of the University of Nebraska, selection makes a difference in satisfaction after continued wear. Check the grain carefully.

Faculty Ma'ams Get New Slate

New officers were elected for the Faculty Ma'ams Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Larry Reese, 2704 Rebecca. Taking office in April, the officers are Mrs. Don Box, president; Mrs. Ralph Dowden, vice president; Mrs. M. D. Whitley, secretary; Mrs. Dan Shockey, treasurer; and Mrs. Arthur Capps, reporter.

VFW Auxiliary Gains Members

Mrs. Wynell Rayburn and Mrs. Rip Smith were accepted for membership in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Homer Petty, 707 N. Gregg.

In other business, it was announced that the national convention of VFW posts and auxiliaries will be Aug. 13-20 in Dallas. The local auxiliary received a pattern for fabric scissor holders which the women will make to be sold at the convention. Proceeds will go to a children's home in Grand Rapids, Mich., and to the American Cancer Society.

The district meeting is April 3-4 in Andrews, and the state convention is June 17-20 in San Antonio. The auxiliary also announced a benefit bake sale April 10, with location to be announced.

The next meeting is at 7 p.m., April 14 in the home of Mrs. Petty.

Weekend Art Exhibit Set At First Federal

The Big Spring Art Association Open Exhibit begins today at First Federal Savings and Loan Association Building and will continue through Sunday. Three winners of each division will remain on display in the building until April 5.

The exhibit will be open to the public from 1 to 5 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday. Entries will be received until 6 p.m. today and may be removed no earlier than 5 p.m. Sunday.

The divisions are: Professional — Teachers and those who have won recognition in any outstanding state or national exhibition; Non-Professional — amateur (one who has not won recognition in any outstanding exhibit) and adult student; Student — those through high school.

Each artist may submit six entries. The professional and amateur division fee is $2 per entry, and the student division fee is 50 cents per entry. Any medium is eligible, and work must be framed or matted and wired for hanging.

Judging will be done Saturday morning by Charles Bleick, art instructor at Angelo State University, and awards will be made Sunday at 4 p.m. Fifty dollars will be awarded for "Best in Show," and division winners will receive cash prizes and ribbons. Bleick received an MA degree in art at Chico State College in California and has had exhibitions at Mt. San Antonio College, Chico State College, Ft. Devens Art Show, Northern California Art Show and the Beaumont Art Museum. His one-man shows have been at the Arts and Crafts Gallery, Chico, Calif.; Master's Show, Chico State College and Kendall Art Gallery, San Angelo. He was art instructor at Chico State College prior to taking the same position at Angelo State College.

Some Other Implications

The consequences of the defeat of the SST financing proposal in the Senate is difficult to assess. Its proponents have predicted dire things in store as a result of this development — its opponents contend that it's all to the good because the same amount of money can (or will) be diverted to other programs. The results themselves now will supply the right answer.

One consequence, however, is that of a blow to the President's prestige. President Nixon had gone all out on this issue, and it failed despite considerable pressures. This is not a mortal blow to presidential power, by any manner of means, for chief executives have surmounted far more critical issues than this. To lose in the face of unstinted effort is to invite defection on other matters.

There is no doubt that the suspension of the SST program will mean dropping out or dropping far back in the race for development of this mode of transportation. It also will mean a future effort to reactivate the program will take longer and be more costly because of the atrophy to a highly skilled and technical organization. Apparently, however, a majority of the Senate concluded that the program was not as imperative as described, and that it got down principally to whether to subsidize thousands of jobs in this endeavor. The immediate returns, senators decided, did not warrant the investment. This should not make the proponents of the space program breathe any easier.

Who's Afraid Of Fags?

Those who deplore cigarette smoking as a hazard to health, and entertain the notion that the anti-smoking campaign has been a big success, should take a close look at some figures from the Tobacco Tax Council. Their general import is that cigarette smoking is not on the run as much as lots of people seem to think.

The reference is to the council's monthly state cigarette tax report. It is noted that "22 jurisdictions showed increases and 29 showed decreases when the January, 1971, package count was compared with January, 1970." When it was all figured, last January's package count was down eight-tenths of one per cent.

That is not a momentous drop. Moreover, cumulative figures for the seven months from July, 1970, through last January show that the volume of cigarettes taxed was up 3.6 per cent over the corresponding period a year earlier.

Even when the percentage of increase is weighted for population growth, it is plain that response to the health hazard argument has not been as strong as many have supposed. The anti-smoking drive has a long way to go.

Phinley's Phunnies

Around The Rim

Walt Finley

Overheard in the coffee shop of Big Spring's largest hotel:

"Did you know that half the world is ignorant of how the other half lives?"

"Not in this town they ain't."

BOB ROGERS, chief mogul of Roberite Weather Service, is in with a late flash:

"When the Pilgrims complained about the hard first winter in this country, the Indians told them, 'Love it or leave it.'"

My drinking cousin, Bobby Harris, has a pair of friends named George and Fannie Bagwell, who received as a gift from their daughter a real live cook book called "How to Gorge George without Fattening Fanny."

A. J. VAUGHN, Sage of Scurry Street, suggests:

"Clean your finger before you point at another's spots."

And right on:

"Myron Scarborough's Roto-Rooter jokes are boring."

"And concerning Dr. George Ladd's male ecstasist, Vincent, his manager fired him, loaded the dancer and his few possessions onto a truck, and made the Vincent van go."

I keep telling you to pay attention.

GOOD OL' Bill Factor reports that a visitor in the Klamichi Mountain area of Little Dixie in Oklahoma asked an old-timer the age of a nearby mountain.

"Three million and eight years," he replied.

"How do you know that?" the first man asked.

"Because eight years ago a guy was here," the old-timer said, "and said it was three million years old."

Was Andy Hardy?

PRINCIPAL: "I am sorry to tell you this, but your son has been stealing pencils at school."

Father: "I can't figure why he'd do that — I bring plenty of them home from the office."

Or to put it another way, Jimmy Ladd, my calculating cousin in New York City, said:

"If Adam came on earth again, the only thing he could recognize would be the old jokes."

WHEN I ASKED, earlier this year, for details on pulling the wishbone, I figured I'd be swamped with answers. Not so.

I got one. Fortunately, it was from pretty Polly Davis, who has a book called "Strange Facts" which blames it all on one of France's King Louises. (Just to avoid talk, that is the plural of Louis, not Louise.)

When he had a decision to make — guilty or innocent, fight or retreat, to be or not to be — he'd call for the front breast bone of a chicken — or whatever those days.

Then the accused (or whoever) would take one end between his thumb and forefinger and King Louis would take the other end, and they'd pull.

IF THE DEFENDANT got the big end, he went free. If not, off with his head.

That explains why all the people at the palace referred to King Louis as "Old Greasy Fingers."

Tommy Jordan, golfer-race horse fan-printer, still wonders:

"When is this better-educated-than-ever generation going to advance to five-letter obscenities?"

Twisted Thinking

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — I had thought it better to ignore the adolescent, look-how-liberal-we-are action of the New York City Council of Churches in rescinding its Family of Man Award to Bob Hope to give it to Negro leader Whitney Young, posthumously.

MY FEELING was why give those creeps publicity? Besides, I should not have liked anything I said to reflect on Whitney Young, one of the really great black statesmen.

But I am moved to comment by a communication from a foolish clergyman who shall remain nameless — to protect the guilty. In his letter, this man of the cloth gloated over the "compearance" given "that fascist Hope, who has been making huge profits out of American wars for nearly 30 years." The action of the NYCCC, he wrote, "deserves a place alongside the Declaration of Independence as an example of a free people's determination to discredit the saberrattling military and its satellites."

THIS CURIOUSLY neurotic letter requires public airing because it reflects the kind of twisted thinking typical of the crazies who have infiltrated American religious sects of virtually every denomination. They are the nuts you find at seminars talking glibly of free love, raising funds for the murderous Viet Cong, and suggesting that young people be permitted to smoke marijuana to soothe nerves shattered by being forced to live on monthly checks from home.

They are the Roman collar boys who excuse violence on the grounds the nation's fathers play too much golf and the mothers too much bridge.

They apologize for the bombing of the Capitol as an action that mirrors the times. They weep over the "persecution" of Angela Davis.

FOR ONE thing, the award was rescinded because Hope was declared to be "an uncritical supporter of the military establishment." I don't know how accurate that adjective is, but I would point out that both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution permit an individual to be as "uncritical" as he pleases.

Presumably, Bob Hope is on good, golfing terms with assorted generals and admirals, but I refuse to believe that generals and admirals by definition are fascist beasts. In all the senseless chatter, I can discern only one charge against the 87-year-old comedian: "I can't since before World War II he has given up his Christmas holidays with his family to entertain GI's in North Africa, Europe, Korea and Vietnam. I suppose this would be considered good if he happened to be named Jane Fonda."

CHARACTERISTICALLY, Hope wired the NYCCC that he was "glad" Whitney Young "got the award instead of me."

I'm not. I go along with New York State Sen. John Marchi, who said "I resent the use to which Whitney Young's memory is now being subjected." Marchi added that the substitution "demeans the memory of the late civil rights leader" (who "deserves to be the starting pitcher in any observance, rather than the role of relief substitute assigned to him by the exigencies of political turmoil").

Presidential View

David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — An interview with President Nixon by a single news commentator, broadcast live on television and radio, is a novelty. Such an informal conversation with one person certainly affords an unusual opportunity for the chief executive to get his side of the story across.

UNFORTUNATELY, lots of subjects cannot be touched upon even in an hour's talk. Thus, on the Monday evening presentation over the American Broadcasting Company network, with Howard K. Smith doing the interviewing, no questions were raised about our policy in the Mideast or about the economic recovery programs on which business improvement depends so much. Mr. Nixon was asked about his relations with Congress and whether or not he might be running in 1972, but there was really nothing surprising in his answers.

The President's explanation of what is going on in Indochina shows clearly that, in his judgment, the news dispatches from Southeast Asia have not always given the whole story and may have left a misleading impression. Mr. Nixon feels that the South Vietnamese army has been making progress in both Cambodia and Laos, and that the over-all military strategy is working successfully. He believes it has been worthwhile because it means that "the American withdrawal will continue" and that "the danger to America's remaining forces has been reduced."

MR. NIXON DOES not talk of any "complete" withdrawal because he may conclude that a residual force of Americans in South Vietnam will be necessary, as was the case in Korea.

"If the United States now were to throw in the towel and come home and the Communists took over South Vietnam, then all over Southeast Asia, all over the Pacific, in the Mideast, in Europe, in the world, the United States would suffer a blow... would suffer a blow from which it might not recover," he said.

THE PRESIDENT declared that the South Vietnamese operation in Laos could not be described in "traditional terms of victory or defeat," though it has fulfilled its purpose of disrupting the enemy supply lines. But, he pointed out, the three long-range goals were "first, to insure the continuation of the American withdrawal; second to reduce the risk to the remaining Americans as we withdraw; and, third, to insure the ability of the South Vietnamese to defend themselves after we have left." He is convinced much progress has been made toward achieving those goals.

Mr. Nixon referred to some television reports which might leave a different impression and said that, "while a picture doesn't lie, a picture may not tell all the truth." In his view, for example, emphasis has been given to the experiences of the four South Vietnam battalions which have been in trouble, but little attention has been paid to the 18 other battalions which have done "extremely well" in Laos. Mr. Nixon feels that the morale and capability of the South Vietnamese army have been greatly strengthened.

AS TO HIS OWN relations with the news media, Mr. Nixon made it clear that he is not complaining about his treatment, though he acknowledges he probably has "less supporters in the press than any president" in this century.

The President's interview this week may mark a new approach by the White House in responding to criticism.

SST Issue Still Cloudy

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — The cessation of government funding of the supersonic transport plane is being called a victory for antitechnology elements of society, a conclusion that seems too simple for such a complex issue.

If such a conclusion is accepted, we would have to believe that the following unlikely companions belong to the same brotherly commune, when we know in fact that some are hardly on speaking terms:

—The ecologist who fears that the interrelationships of the physical and biological worlds is being distorted, with many known consequences and more to be feared.

—The city dweller, who cannot understand how so many millions can be spent on making a faster airplane when the nation cannot afford to provide proper housing for its citizens.

—The commuter, who ponders why he should want to go to Europe or the Orient at supersonic speed when his cold and dirty train lays idle between stops, affording him a view of the nearby jammed superhighway.

—The economist, who fears that the big plane would be a financial disaster and asks why, if it is such a good business proposition, a consortium of business interest didn't attempt to fund it.

—The public official, who suspects that some sort of a tide is sweeping over the nation and, though he doesn't understand it, realizes he must ride it or be swamped.

There are many other opinions and attitudes lumped together in the catchall antitechnology argument, but it should be clear that they hardly constitute one group.

There may, in fact, be no one substantial and powerful antitechnology group in the country—at least one capable of swaying public opinion to its own ends on such a major issue.

What is often called antitechnology is simply the desire to see technology used more clearly for the benefit of mankind rather than simply to prove that something is possible or financially profitable.

Much of the background for the defeat in Congress of the SST funding grew spontaneously during the debate of the 1960s, in which Americans both benefitted and were penalized by their devotion to technology.

Technology has been worshipped in America. For years, men in the street seldom questioned or failed to take pride in the boast that technology built America.

There was an erosion of that belief in the 1960s, a period in which the Gross National Product doubled in terms of current dollars, transforming the lives of millions: Two cars, two homes, three television sets, European vacations, art, good food. For the first time in man's life it was said seriously that nothing in the physical world was impossible to him.

At the same time: war, deteriorating cities, polluted water and air, rising noise levels, civil discord amazing contrasts between wealth and poverty, lost ideals, generation gaps, confused goals—all of which contributed to the feeling that the attempt to do everything might accomplish little in human terms.

Will we need this plane someday? Will American prestige be hurt? If someday it is to be built, who will finance it? And build it: America, or Japan, which still is enamored of technology?

Matter Of Priorities

Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON — Whether the supersonic transport is funded for further development depends in the last analysis on the support of organized labor. The waverers have been influenced by the backing of the AFL-CIO with the claim that the SST will create jobs not only in depression-ridden Seattle but in other aerospace centers.

THIS IS once again an illustration of the influence of labor where jobs are concerned, regardless of other considerations. Economists of the first rank, such as Walter W. Heller, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers in the Kennedy-Johnson years, have riddled the exaggerated job claims made by labor and industry. They have pointed to a dozen other ways far more effective in creating employment.

They have also undercut the contention that the SST is essential to America's balance-of-payments position. The British-French Concorde is lagging, and while the Russians claim that their SST, the Tupolev-144, will be flying domestic routes this year, it is most unlikely that it will be ready for transoceanic flights in the foreseeable future. Furthermore, it is inconceivable that American Airlines would purchase a plane that has not been subject to testing by international standards.

THE AMERICAN carriers on intercontinental routes are simply in no position to put up money for a plane that will cost $50,000,000 or more. Their jumbo 747 jets are flying half-empty and the financial pages tell the story of a sharp downturn in profits, with no immediate prospect of an upturn. The recession hit travel hard and it has not yet come back.

American carriers obviously expect the government to put up the purchase money for reasons of prestige.

Despite the gloss supplied by organized labor, it is class legislation of the most blatant kind. Only a small fraction of one per cent will be able to use the SST in order to save two or three and a half hours on the flight to Europe and four or five hours across the Pacific. An essential surcharge will put the cost beyond the reach of all but a tiny traveling elite.

THE PRESSURE applied by the Administration on wavering Republicans and on doubtful Democrats has been extraordinary. This may swing the balance. But one of the most articulate Republicans, Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, is a leader of the opposition. His background of success in business underscores his attack on the economics of the giant plane.

Percy recently toured his home state from north to south. On his return to Washington he said he was amazed at the grass-roots opposition to the SST. He found the people he talked with at country crossroads and in the urban areas well aware of how very few Americans would benefit from a government subsidy of at least $2 billion to $3 billion.

AS WITH EVERY issue, Presidential politics is a factor. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey is reported pro-SST. He has reason to be grateful, since labor was one of the few sources of money and support in his hard-pressed race for the Presidency in 1968. Looking ahead to 1972, labor support for the nomination would be a big help. The Administration is thus stuck in a year when far more vital legislation should take precedence over what is increasingly rated a white elephant.

As a symbol, the SST may have disproportionate emphasis as a gauge of national priorities.

Sneak A Peak At Sex Book?

NEW YORK (AP) — Just how sane are you?

Are you that one out of every 10 who will spend some part of his life in a mental institution, or are you among those three out of four who on some days think it would be restful to be in one?

Before you start paying $50 an hour to have a mental massage by an expert, you might make a preliminary estimate of your normalcy quotient. Simply answer the following questions, compiled by the poor man's psychiatrist:

When you try to overhear what people are saying about you, do you feel let down when you discover that they usually are talking about something else?

Does it embarrass you if someone at the office asks you,

"Isn't that the same shirt you wore to work yesterday?"

If you can stick to a diet, do you like to brag about it? If you can't stick to a diet, do you still like to brag about it?

If you drop a piece of breakfast toast to the floor, do you have a conviction that nine out of 10 times it will land with the buttered side down?

Admittedly, your boss isn't the most talented guy in the office, but if you had a choice, wouldn't you rather simply have his salary than his title or his duties?

As you get older, are you oppressed by the feeling that each U.S. Congress does less than the one before?

If you were browsing alone in a bookstore and no clerk was looking, wouldn't you sneak a peak at an illustrated sex book rather than an illustrated copy of "Alice in Wonderland"?

Whenever you write a check to pay your life insurance premium, don't you invariably feel a bit melancholy and say to your wife, "I'm worth more dead than alive?"

Every once in a while, even in the midst of a denunciation of modern teen-agers because they're "getting away with murder," don't you have a grudging envy of their independent attitude and wish you had more of it yourself?

Have you written a live letter in the last 10 years to someone you shouldn't—and then torn it up unmaild?

Those are the questions. Now to your score. If you answered "yes" to each of them, you are as sane as your neighbors. But, in this kind of world, is that enough?

SENATE REJECTS THREE APPOINTMENTS

Advocated Undercover Agents In Classroom?

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Don Kennard of Fort Worth said he opposed the confirmation of Berl Godfrey to the North Texas State University Board of Regents because he advocated undercover agents in the classroom.

Godfrey of Fort Worth, H.B. Zachry Jr. and John Steen, both of San Antonio, were rejected Thursday by the Senate as Gov. Preston Smith appointees. Senators approved 73 others.

Zachry, son of construction magnate H.B. Zachry Sr. was up for confirmation to the Air Control Board and Steen for the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission of Texas.

those extremes. Academic freedom is truly in danger." In a letter to Sen. Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells in February, Godfrey, who has been a regent 13 years, said Kennard voted for him under Gov. Price Daniels' appointment.

Godfrey is actually in Creighton's district, but lives one block from Kennard's district. "My philosophy of life as a regent has not changed since his vote of confirmation except in one respect, I supported Joe Shannon and not him in the last election," Godfrey said.

"My philosophy has been that the control of the schools ought to be returned to the regents as contemplated by our statutes and that we should have the right to discharge any faculty member that we think is tending to cause impressionable young men and women to lose confidence in his country and respect for the democratic principles for which you and I stand," he said.

NICE YOUNG MAN
Godfrey wrote Creighton after an English teacher was fired, and her dismissal upheld by the regents, because she had used what the university considered obscene language before a group of students during a high school orientation period.

Sen. Joe Bernal of San Antonio, in his third term, said he has never had the occasion to reject any nominees. He rejected two Thursday, Steen and Zachry.

In Steen's case, Bernal said the man was a member of the Texas Cavaliers in San Antonio, which restricts its membership. "In other words, they don't allow Mexican-Americans," he said. "I don't want to aid and abet anyone such as this in a community where our people need to be pulled together."

"Zachry is a nice young man, but we don't see eye to eye on air pollution," he said. A Dallas asphalt batching plant owned by the Zachrys was closed because it didn't meet the city health department regulations, he said.

Senate Confirms 73 For Key Tasks

AUSTIN (AP) — The following appointees by Gov. Preston Smith were confirmed by the Senate to various agencies, boards and commissions Thursday:

Texas Air Control Board—Willie Lee Ulich of Lubbock, two-year term; William P. Hobby Jr. of Houston, four-year term; Herbert Whitney of Corpus Christi and Fred Hartman, Baytown, six-year terms.

Texas Water Quality Board—Lester Clark of Breckenridge, four-year term.

Texas State College Coordinating Board—Sam D. Young of El Paso and James Hollers of San Antonio, six-year terms.

Texas A&M University Board of Directors—S. B. Wittenburg of Amarillo, H. C. Bell Jr. of Austin and William Lewis Jr. of Waco, six-year terms.

North Texas State University Board of Regents—Bruce Street Sr. of Graham, Gus S. Wortham of Houston and Davie Lawson of Dallas, six-year terms.

University of Houston Board of Regents—Travis Johnson of El Paso, Leonard Rauch of Houston and James Greer of Houston, six-year terms.

Texas Tech University Board of Regents—John Clinton Formby of Hereford, John James Hinchy of San Antonio and Bill E. Collins of Lubbock, six-year terms.

Midwestern University Board of Regents—George Moffett of Vernon, six-year term.

Texas State Technical Institute—Harold Tate, of Austin, Francis Wallace of Amarillo, and Russell Watson Jr. of Tyler, two-year terms; Richard Thomas of Dallas, Henry Schulte of Mexia and Joe Garza of Harlingen, four-year terms; John Nigliazzo of Hearne and John Kuitgen of Waco, six-year terms.

Veterans Affairs Commission—John Edward McKelvey of Electra, six-year term.

American Revolution Bicentennial Commission of Texas—Dr. George Woolfolk of Prairie View, Mrs. Marcella Perry of Houston, two-year terms; Sam Kinch Sr. of Austin, four-year term; Charles Ray Ritcheson of Dallas and Frank Tolbert of Dallas, six-year terms. Mrs. Ina May McAdams of Austin, four-year term.

Antiquities committee—Denver Wendorf of Dallas, William Newcomb Jr. of Austin and William Holden of Lubbock, two-year terms.

Animal Health Commission—Ralph H. Flesher of Vernon and George William Apple of McKinney, six-year terms.

DANGER AHEAD

"Godfrey has urged the board of regents to hire investigators to enter the classroom to monitor the philosophy of teaching professors and to keep an eye on the kids, the so-called troublemakers," said Kennard.

VA Employee Heads Committee

William C. Ruppert, procurement agent, has been designated by Jack D. Powell, director of the Big Spring Veterans Administration Hospital, to head a group of young employees concerned with making VA more attractive as a prospective employer of youth.

The youth committee is part of a national effort by President Nixon to attract younger people into the Federal Government.

Probe Of Sharpstown Bank Failure Slated For Debate

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas representatives are taking a long weekend to decide how they should go about digging for facts about the alleged "stock scandal."

They came to work Thursday, geared for battle over the issue, which they had avoided meeting head-on for almost two months.

But the sponsor of the "investigation" resolution, House Speaker Gus Mutscher, decided to hold off debate until Monday.

The sponsor is Carl Parker, a Port Arthur liberal.

Various other proposals are expected to be offered as floor substitutes for the resolution.

Mutscher later indicated to newsmen a resolution creating the House General Investigating Committee—which the speaker would appoint—also would come up for debate Monday.

"DIRTY 30"

Members of the self-labeled "Dirty 30"—a group of liberals and Republicans who have pressed for two months for an immediate investigation by the legislature—said Parker pulled back because he didn't have the votes.

"I think they couldn't even sell it to the (speaker's) team, it was so weak... based on past performance, I think they would have run with it if they could have passed it," said Rep. Dave Allred of Wichita Falls, one of the "Dirty 30."

But Mutscher said he thought "there were sufficient votes on the floor to pass his (Parker's) resolution."

Parker's resolution asks the state attorney general, State Securities Board, State Banking Board, State Insurance Board and professional associations for accounts and investment bankers to look into the collapse of Sharpstown State Bank and "related matters."

BORROWED MONEY

It contains no provision for an investigation by legislators.

Mutscher, Gov. Preston Smith; Rep. W.S. Healy; House appropriations chairman; Rep. Tommy Shannon of Fort Worth; State Democratic Chairman Elmer Baum and two House aides said they borrowed money from Sharpstown in 1969 to speculate in stock of National Bankers

Villanova And UCLA In NCAA Title Game

HOUSTON (AP) — Jack Kraft believes his scrappy Villanova Wildcats are ready for the game of their lives against defending NCAA national basketball champion UCLA Saturday, but he isn't so sure about himself.

Drained but smiling after Thursday night's nerve-jangling 92-89 double overtime victory over Western Kentucky in the semifinals, the Wildcats coach said "I know my players will make it ... I'm just worried about myself."

UCLA's poised Bruins placed themselves in position for an unprecedented fifth consecutive NCAA title with a 68-60 victory over Kansas in the second semifinal as a record 31,428 fans looked on in the Astrodome.

The gray-haired Kraft, who suits up only nine players and seldom plays more than six, said his Pennsylvania "Iron Men" are "a bunch of fine physical specimens. They are durable and they'll be ready for Saturday."

Forward Howard Porter and center Hank Siemionkowski shared heroics for the slightly favored Wildcats. Siemionkowski, a 6-foot-7, 230-pound junior scored 51 points before he fouled out with four seconds remaining in regulation play. The foul could have given him the goat's role, but Western Kentucky's Jerry Dunn blew the shot on a one-and-one situation to send the game into overtime 74-41.

Porter hit a baseline jumper with 11 seconds remaining to send the game into double overtime 87-41. The 6-foot-8 senior blocked two shots in the double overtime and his bucket gave Villanova the lead to stay at 87-41.

UCLA coach John Wooden, who has 27 consecutive NCAA playoff victories to his credit, unleashed All-America 6-foot-8 forward Sidney Wicks one-on-one against Kansas' 6-foot-10 Dave Robisch in the battle of full court presses.

Wicks brought the ball up court and set up the Bruin offense.

Wicks scored 21 points and guard Henry Bibby added 18 from the outside.

Robisch has held to 17 points by the swarming UCLA press.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Since it vacated California, the Super Bowl game has become an annual sellout. Getting tickets for the biggest show offered by professional football can only be likened to coming by a couple of offers to break bread with our leader in Washington.

The Super Bowl, however, might have more trouble disposing of all its duccats were it not for the fact that the hot polloi gets just two chances at them — slim and none. There's nothing that whets the appetite of the average buff like being told he's not on the list of people eligible for an event. Chances are he immediately starts to consult the Yellow Pages, looking for the number of his favorite scalper.

The Super Bowl pastebards are hard to come by because 50,000 seats are allocated to NFL clubs and major corporations outside the playing area.

Big business buys the tickets secure in the knowledge, of course, that he can be written off on their taxes as a legitimate business expense. Big time golf tournaments operate much the same way. So, you see, because they can be deducted from the tax bite, you and I are helping sustain the big time sports events. Don't you feel noble about it all?

Of course, you and I are thrown some crumbs. We are told we can watch such attractions on television but, in time, even that may be deprived us, if those jackals lusting to limit the shows to closed-circuit coverage have their way.

Miami, where much of the nation's wealth is represented during the winter, would like to serve as host city for the Super Bowl each January but Pete Rozelle, the Marshall Dillon of the NFL, does not desire to be bound by or to any single city. He likes the sun as well as anyone but he doesn't relish the heat that would be turned on by resident Chambers of Commerce in other sun-drenched communities if the Florida Garden of Eden won exclusive rights to the attraction each year.

For that reason, the piece d' resistance will be rotated to cities around the country. It usually will be located in some community in the south, although it could occasionally go to Palo Alto, Calif., where Stanford University has stalls for 90,000 of the curious.

What chance does Dallas (or more properly Irving) have to land the bauble in the next few years? Not much, if you believe people close to the Cowboys. Dallas can sometimes be colder than Amarillo or Bismark, N.D., in January and the NFL people don't want to face the prospect of brushing snow off the sidelines before the big one.

I don't know whether there's anything to it but I hear Muhammad Ali is petitioning the court to change his name back to Cassius Clay. I'm told King Hussein has been trying to draft him.

I trust, too, you've heard about the fellow accused of breaking into a sporting goods store.

"I'll take the case only if you're innocent, and the fee will be $200," he was told by a rather unusual lawyer.

"I'm innocent, alright," said his prospective client, "but your fee is too steep. Would you take $50 and a matched set of golf clubs?"

A doctor of engineering psychology who lent a great deal of study to the project, after studying 150 professional baseball players, said the main requirements for a major league player are:

1. Speed.
  2. Fast reflexes.
  3. Exceptional lateral movement.
  4. Exceptional eyesight; not just 20-20, but 20-15 or 20-10.
- If you should be selling your son on the idea of becoming a professional ball player, study his physical attributes and his propensity for hustle. Unless he shows a natural bent for getting down that first base line in jig time, even on ground balls that appear to be cinch outs, he won't get a second look from scouts. And such hustle should be manifested on every play, not just occasionally to impress the gallery.

Tarheels Try Georgia Tech 5 Saturday

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Hoffman stood in the runway under the stands at Madison Square Garden and sighed.

"Well, listen," the St. Bonaventure junior said, "there's always another game, another season. And it was just another foul shot."

Only minutes before, the 6-foot-1 guard from Hazelton, Pa., had stood at the foul line, preparing to eliminate Georgia Tech from the National Invitational Tournament and propel the Bonnies into Saturday's championship against rugged North Carolina.

But it never happened. His first shot whipped around the rim and out. The second one barely touched the iron and, though Hoffman didn't know it at the moment, the Bonnies were on their way to losing the double-overtime game 76-71 before 18,812 frenzied fans Thursday night.

North Carolina had a much easier time of it against Atlantic Coast Conference rival Duke, belting the Blue Devils 73-67 in the first of the two semifinals.

Duke will face St. Bonaventure in the consolation game preceding the nationally televised 1-p.m., EST, championship contest.

After a 67-67 tie, Jim Thorne's basket on a goaltending call and two foul shots by Tommy Wilson and Bob Murphy put the Engineers on top 72-67 and they coasted home. Thorne finished with a game-high 27 points. Carl Jackson had 18 to top the Bonnies.

Tech Coach John "Whack" Hyder said he was surprised his Engineers were able to keep up with the usually hard-running Bonnies. And he acknowledged that, for a while, it seemed neither team really wanted to win.

He recalled losing to St. Bonaventure by a slim 70-68 last Dec. 29 in the Gator Bowl tournament and, after the game, kidding with Bonnies' Coach Larry Weise about having a rematch.

"I guess neither of us really believed we'd get it but, boy we sure did," Hyder grinned.

Then someone asked whether he'd joked similarly with North Carolina Coach Dean Smith after the Tar Heels walked Tech 87-58 earlier this year.

Dogies Edge Permian, 4-3

A walk to pinch hitter Willie Williams forced in David Carter with the run that enabled the Big Spring JV's to edge Odessa Permian, 4-3, in a baseball thriller here Thursday.

None was out at the time. After Carter had walked to open the inning, David Newman singled and John Knoepfel walked to load the bases.

Big Spring charged from behind with three runs in the fourth inning only to have Permian tie the count in the fifth. The Dogies had several chances to break the game wide open after that but couldn't get a run in.

Jeff Murdock went all the way on the mound for Big Spring, limiting Permian to six hits. The Shorthorns collected nine blows, including three by shortstop Carter, who may have earned a promotion to the A team with his performance. He showed to advantage fielding the ball.

The win was the fourth in five starts for Big Spring. Murdock batted in two runs for Big Spring.

The Big Springers return to play in Odessa Saturday afternoon against Ector.

Newmark Captain

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Brian Newmark, a 6-foot-7 junior center from Brooklyn, N.Y., has been elected captain of the 1971-72 Harvard basketball team. Harvard also announced Thursday that Collin Namgum of Salt Lake City, Utah, has been elected captain of the wrestling team.

Pitchers Taking Charge In Camps

By The Associated Press

The major league teams must be getting in shape for the opening of the regular baseball season April 5. Or, at least, they're working at not scoring more runs than necessary.

There were six scoring games Thursday decided by one run with three ending in 2-1 scores.

Of course, some teams aren't in shape like Cincinnati and Cleveland. The Reds belted Los Angeles 10-5 with 18 hits; the Indians got 20 hits in dispatching the Milwaukee Brewers 13-8.

In other games San Diego edged San Francisco 2-1; the Chicago White Sox nipped Minnesota 2-1; Philadelphia clipped Houston 2-1; Pittsburgh defeated Detroit 3-2; Atlanta downed Washington 8-7; California took Oakland 7-6; Boston beat St. Louis 6-2; and the New York Yankees topped the New York Mets 4-2.

REDS ON TARGET

Tommy Helms and Woody Woodward slammed home runs for Cincinnati as the Reds got 13 and seven run hits off Los Angeles' Bill Singer. Helms, Lee May and Bernie Carbo each got three hits.

Richie Allen of the Dodgers also got a hit on the head. He was injured before the game when he ran into a palm tree while chasing fly balls. The team doctor reported Allen had a mild concussion and some severe contusions. He is expected to be out a week.

Eddie Leon got four hits, including a home run and a double, Ray Fosse homered and Ted Ford and Buddy Bradford got three hits with two doubles each in the Cleveland victory over Milwaukee.

Ed Spiezio, playing for the first time since ending his hold-out six days ago, blasted a home run in the 10th inning for San Diego's victory.

Walt Williams, Rick Reichardt and Bill Melton strung singles together in the 10th inning for Chicago's slim victory over Washington.

Wood Fryman pitched eight innings for Philadelphia. He got the victory when Terry Harmon doubled and Willie Montanez tripled in the eighth off Houston's George Culver.

Gene Clines' triple drove in two runs in the sixth for the Pittsburgh margin of victory. Al Oliver homered for the Pirates' other hit.

PINCH-HIT HOMER

Pinch-hitter Hal King hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning for Atlanta's triumph over Washington. Earl Williams also homered for the Braves and Joe Foy and Ed Stroud each hit their third of the spring for the Senators.

Alex Johnson, fined recently for lack of hustle, showed a lot of it as he bolted home with the winning score for California when Oakland second baseman John Donaldson dropped a relay from the outfield.

Jim Fregosi homered for the Angels while Reggie Jackson, Rick Monday and Gene Tenace hit circuit shots for the Athletics.

Boston jumped on St. Louis pitcher Jerry Reuss for five runs in the eighth inning. The big belt for Boston was a bases-loaded single by Rico Petrocelli. George Scott homered for the Red Sox.

STEERS ARE SECOND McFaul Has Low Score In Meet

ODESSA — Big Spring's Black team posted an 18-hole score of 319 at the Odessa Country Club here Thursday and moved into a tie with San Angelo No. 1 for second place in District 5-AAAA golf standings.

Midland Lee widened its lead to 20 strokes by registering a 312 Thursday for a 36-hole aggregate of 619.

The teams resume conference competition next Friday in San Angelo. Each member city hosts the golfers before the end of the season. The golfers go to Abilene April 9 and wind up at Big Spring April 16.

Defending champion Odessa Permian is in fourth place after two rounds of activity, three strokes back of Big Spring and San Angelo.

Robert McFaul of Big Spring's Gold team led all scorers in the race for individual honors Thursday with a 36-38-74. One stroke off McFaul's pace was John Adams of Midland Lee, who was out in 38 and came home in 37.

Adams has the best two rounds in district action with a 147. McFaul opened with an 81 last week.

Howard Stewart and Mark Slate were on the team for Big Spring's Black team. Each had a 79. Mark McCraney posted an 80, Jarrell Carroll an 81 and Mark Peters an 81.

Big Spring's Golds, after opening with a 328 at Midland last week, settled for a 334 at Odessa and is in eighth place.

Steer Tracksters Enter San Angelo Track Meet

Big Spring and other West Texas schools open competition today in the annual San Angelo Relays.

Today's schedule calls for finals in 10 field events and preliminaries in some running events. The cinder show winds up about 4:40 p.m. Saturday.

Abilene High is back to try and defend its championship in Division I. In all, 56 schools are competing in four levels of competition.

In the division with Abilene and Big Spring are Abilene Cooper, Odessa Permian, Odessa High, Midland, Midland Lee, Borger, Plainview and the high school.

Snyder and Colorado City are among the entries in Division II, which has lured 13 entries, in all.

Big Spring should score well in the two-mile relay, sprint medley relay, mile relay and perhaps the sprint relay. In addition, sophomore Walter Jordan is prepared to make a splash in the 100-yard dash.

'Dogs Oppose BS Saturday

Coach Oakey Hagood plans to make several lineup changes when he sends his Big Spring Steers against Midland High in a 2 p.m. District 5-AAAA baseball game here Saturday.

David Carter, a junior, likely will go to shortstop for the locals for defensive reasons. David has been showing to advantage in JV games. He has played first base in previous varsity action.

Dick Barnett Upstages Top Field In Tilt

NEW YORK (AP) — In any vote on the player least likely to outflash both Pete Maravich and Walt Frazier, high up of the balloting would be Dick Barnett.

A stoic individual who methodically goes about his job without the slightest change of expression, Barnett normally leaves the heroics to his teammates on the New York Knicks.

But Thursday afternoon was different. Barnett upstaged everyone on the court, including Maravich and Frazier, and while he still didn't crack a smile, he did lead the Knicks to a 112-101 victory over the Atlanta Hawks in their opening playoff game.

While Maravich hit only 9 of 25 shots from the field for Atlanta and Frazier only 7 of 24 for the Knicks from the backcourt, Barnett exploded in the final quarter for 17 of his 20 points and almost single-handedly carried the Knicks from a 90-83 deficit to victory.

The teams play again in Madison Square Garden Saturday night in the best-of-7 game National Basketball Association quarter-final series.

Baltimore plays at Philadelphia and Chicago at Los Angeles tonight in two other playoff series. Philadelphia and Los Angeles each lead 1-0. The fourth series, between San Francisco and Milwaukee, opens Saturday night at Oakland.

Barnett, who usually leaves the scoring to Frazier and Willis Reed, came alive with 13 of 14 New York points for a 97-95 lead, and then added another basket in a run of seven points in a row for a decisive 104-97 spread.

So hot was the 33-year-old guard that he even called his own play. "I asked for the ball a few times and I called my play a few times," he admitted almost sheepishly. "I guess the basket just looked bigger."

MAILING COST WOES

Publishers To Raise Subscription Prices

NEW YORK (AP) — A proposed 142 per cent increase in mailing costs for magazines and newspapers is prompting publishers to raise subscription prices, cut page size and study alternate means of delivery.

"I'm considering every alternative to the U.S. Post Office from newsboys to milkmen to large dogs with dry mouths," says John Mack Carter, editor of the Ladies' Home Journal.

TO KILL SOME

Mail delivery costs now account for about 5 per cent of the total cost of the average magazine, according to the Magazine Publishers Association.

The proposed rate boost, which would be made in stages over the next five years, would raise mailing costs for magazines and newspapers from an average of 2.4 per cent per copy to slightly under 6 cents at the end of the period, the association says.

And the increase could drive some marginally profitable magazines out of business, the association claims.

Reader's Digest, which in Britain distributes more than 50 per cent of its magazines outside the postal system, is reviewing alternate delivery systems here. The magazine says it expects a $1.4 million jump in magazine delivery costs in the first year of the proposed rates if it uses only the Post Office.

Some magazines are now using multiple mailing points as a way to cut existing postage costs.

Thus, if a magazine is printed in Chicago, it might be trucked in bulk to Cleveland, Denver and Memphis for mailing at post offices in those cities.

TRIM SIZE

Such a practice reduces mailing distances and saves postage, magazines say.

Esquire met its increasing postal cost problem by reducing its page size more than 30 per cent to dimensions of the newsweeklies and boosting subscription prices 13 per cent and rates to advertisers 5 per cent. McCall's and Holiday also have trimmed their publications to the smaller size.

"If you can reduce weight 5 per cent, postage will go down 5 per cent," says David G. Jensen, vice president of manufacturing for McGraw-Hill, the giant business magazine publishers. The company's Business Week is now being printed on less heavy stock than five years ago.

"I intend to pass along most increases to the reader," says Carter, who has announced a 50 per cent increase in subscription prices at the Ladies' Home Journal.

Webb Class To Graduate

In ceremonies Saturday scheduled for 9:30 a.m. on the Webb AFB flight line the members of undergraduate pilot training class 71-06 will be graduated.

Included among the "New Tigers," a class which numbers 53, are 48 Air Force officers, 3 Marines and 1 Air National Guardsman plus one foreign student.

Class 71-06 entered preflight training here March 24, 1970. The "New Tigers" started flying the T-37 May 13, and moved to the T-38 Talon Sept. 21.

Pacific Air Forces (PACAF) will receive the largest share of the class graduates with 12. Military Airlift Command (MAC) is next in line with 11. Eight grads move on to the Tactical Air Command (TAC) and the same number have been assigned to Air Training Command (ATC). The Aerospace Defense Command (ADC) will get one member of the graduating class.

Crucial Race With Nature In Dust Bowl

WASHINGTON (AP) — A large section of the Great Plains is in a crucial race with nature to determine if wind or spring vegetation will win the perennial battle of the dust bowl.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday more than seven million acres of crop and pasture land in the vast plains area stretching from Texas to Montana were "in condition to blow" as of March 1.

That compared with 4.8 million acres a year ago. It was the most since the middle and late 1950s when about nine million acres of volatile plains soil was ready to be triggered into dust clouds.

The report, issued by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, was based on field reports in 248 counties, the most wind-prone areas of 10 Great Plains states.

Actual damage to land during the survey period, from last Nov. 1 through Feb. 28, totaled almost 2.7 million acres, compared with 694,764 acres in a similar report a year earlier.

The damage total also was the most of the period since the late 1950s, an SCS spokesman said.

Most of the damage and potential blowing area was in the southern plains. Texas, where drought has been severe, reported more than 1.9 million acres of crop and range land damaged, compared with fewer than 126,000 a year earlier.

Other damage reports, compared with a year earlier, included: Montana, 163,750 acres this year compared with 137,710 a year ago; Nebraska, 110,260 and 143,580; North Dakota, 321,650 and 85,150; South Dakota, 82,000 and 19,780; Wyoming, 44,340 and 51,750; Colorado, 42,390 and 40,260; Kansas, 9,100 and 70,620; New Mexico, 54,000 and 12,580; and Oklahoma, 23,600 and 7,370.

Verdict By Monday Or Judge Will Ask The Reason Why

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — The jury in Lt. William L. Calley's marathon My Lai murder trial must have a verdict by Monday or the judge will ask the reason why. The deliberations are in their 10th day today.

"It's a touchy matter," Judge Reid Kennedy said Thursday as another day passed without indication a decision is close. "I'm not sure just what I'll say to them. There really isn't any precedent for this. I don't know of any military jury that's ever taken so long."

The trial, too, is the longest court-martial in history, beginning on Nov. 12.

The six combat officers of the jury are considering four specifications against Calley: that on March 16, 1968, when he led his infantry platoon through My Lai, he murdered at least 30 civilians at a trail crossing, at least 70 more at a ditch, plus a man and a child.

On each count the jury can return one of four findings: acquittal, or guilty of premeditated murder, unpremeditated murder or manslaughter.

Premeditated murder is punishable by life imprisonment or death. For unpremeditated murder life in prison is the maximum. Each count of voluntary manslaughter could bring up to 10 years.

The six officers on the jury deliberated through a rainy day Thursday without asking, as they have been doing, for a readback of testimony.

It was only the third day since they got the case March 16 that the jurors have not been back in the courtroom for some legal action.

Folk Choir Featured In Webb AFB Chapel

A new sound is coming from the chapel at Webb AFB — the sound of folk music. Actually, it is an old, old sound being played and sung in a new setting. This is the reason it appeals to so many. "Old timers" recognize their old favorites, while the recently revived folk atmosphere attracts the young set. Each Sunday at 9:30 a.m. mass, the Folk Choir provides a base for congregational singing. Guitars and piano replace the usual organ accompaniment, and the effect is pleasingly folksy yet religious at the same time. The Folk Choir prepares songs which were written especially for guitar masses. It also does traditional and more current folk songs. Kathy Gross was the originator of the choir and her idea has evoked favorable response. Membership is constantly changing because of people being reassigned and the choir welcomes anyone who enjoys signing or playing music to join. Practice is held each Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the chapel annex.

Mother Image Aid To Woman Pastor

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — America's first woman Lutheran minister says she may have an edge in counseling college students.

"It's really that old mother image," explains the Rev. Elizabeth Platz, a chaplain at the University of Maryland. "I rebel against that but if it's to your advantage, you play your strong suit."

But she said when "students really have a problem, they aren't worried about the sex of the person listening to them." Miss Platz, 29, a native of Pittsburgh, Pa., worked five years at the university before being ordained last November. One senior, a male, came in to her to discuss draft problems. After many sessions discussing the nature of war and the Lutheran Church's position on the Vietnam war, the chaplain advised him on draft laws and sent him to see draft experts.

"After talking with others, including his parents," she said, "he decided to declare himself a C.O. (conscientious objector)."

The reverse also happened. One youth discussed his obligations to the military with her at length, then enlisted in the Reserve Officer Training Corps.

"I sometimes think we're looked on as sort of an underground railroad," Chaplain Platz said, "but I don't know of a chaplain who indiscriminately recommends C.O. status. That's just not good pastoral care."

Children's Series To Begin April 4

The Child Evangelism Fellowship will sponsor a television series to be seen over the Monahan-Big Spring station hookup starting at 8:30 a.m. Sunday, April 4. The half-hour show will continue weekly.

It features a colorful puppet show illustrating Bible stories, character sketches, songs, Bible verses, etc. and is designed expressly for child interest. The production is under the format of "Tree House Club."

The First United Methodist Church of Ackerly will begin six days of special services on Sunday at 11 a.m. The Sunday evening service will be at six and services for Monday-Friday will start at 7 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. The special workers are to be Rev. Norman W. Grigsby, Andrews; and Rev. Don Travis, Adrian, Tex. The Rev. Grigsby is a successful pastor, currently in his fourth year at Means Memorial United Methodist Church in Andrews. He has had wide experience as preacher in evangelistic missions, youth camps, and in a nation-wide crusade in Mexico in 1965.

An able Bible teacher, he will be devoting the weekday morning services to interpretations of Biblical teaching. The Rev. Travis is a talented musician and a dedicated minister. Everyone is invited to attend these services. MONASTERY USED WATERFORD, Ireland (AP) — Waterford police are using a monastery as a police station. They rented the building from the De La Salle Brothers at Newtown after the collapse of a ceiling at their station downtown.

Witnesses Set 3-Day Confab For Weekend

Big Spring area Jehovah's Witnesses are anticipating three days of Bible learning this weekend as they make final plans to travel to Midland for their semi-annual circuit assembly. In discussing the object of the coming convention, C. L. Lunsford, presiding minister of the group, pointed to the need of each one in the fellowship of Jehovah's Witnesses to equip himself in the practical use of the Bible to help in fortifying the spiritual morale of people in our community. Lunsford also announced that he has been assigned to chairman the Saturday evening program, and that W. Abernathy of Big Spring will deliver a talk on the model ministry school on Friday evening. The circuit assembly program will begin this evening at 6:45 at the Midland County Exhibit Building. Baptismal rites are scheduled for Saturday morning for the ordination of new ministers. A highlight of the convention will come Saturday evening when E. R. Brandt, district supervisor of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York will bring the program, "Fully Share in the Implanting Work."

of cars and dates

Let's talk a moment, parent to parent. . . .

It's quite an adjustment, isn't it? Your daughter, Jill, is on cloud nine because Jack asked her for a date. Jack's driving his dad's car. That is, you hope he drives it. Maybe he just aims it and takes off.

Yes, it's quite an adjustment. And all the books say there's nothing you can do about it. Kids date. So, watch television, read a book, listen for the muffled "Good nights" and the click of the doorlatch, then stop worrying and go to sleep. Until her next date. . . .

The churches of our community have no simple solution for this problem. They have a complex solution: Through moral and religious training, develop in every boy and girl a mature sense of responsibility, a respect for life and Christian character.

The young people we'll have the greatest confidence in tomorrow are going to church today.

'NOBODY COULD HELP! NOW IT WAS UP TO ME'

From Hero To Heroin And Back

By BILL FISHER
Lancaster New Era

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — "Expect a miracle" proclaimed the small sign on the front door of the big brick house.

Two and a half months ago Brent Hawkins walked through that door at Teen Challenge, his life wrecked.

"There was nothing left," he said later. "I had blown it all. Nobody could help. Now it was up to me."

Brent Hawkins was a heroin addict.

'I BLEW IT'

A lot of people could not believe it.

When they found out, when they saw the forged check charges, when they saw the broken body, their comments were something like: "He's the last kid you would have thought

"I let a lot of people down," says Hawkins. "I had always loved my parents. I loved football. I was a high school hero. I had a lot going for me; and I blew it."

In 1966 at McCaskey High School in nearby Lancaster, Hawkins, now 22, had indeed become somewhat of a local schoolboy legend. He was president of the student council and an all-star football player.

At 6 foot 2 and 210 pounds, he had speed and strength. College coaches were eager over the prospect of recruiting this handsome, soft-spoken young man and the scholarship offers rolled in.

DIRTY DOG

But when he walked through the doorway of the drug rehabilitation home here he was 30 pounds lighter and as a police detective put it later, he "looked like a dirty stinking dog, filthy, an animal."

For more than a year he had brought only trouble and grief to himself and others. He lied. He stole. His marriage failed. He despaired "lying around doing nothing, trying to think where the next bag was coming from."

When the police picked him up the last time, he was existing in a foul rooming house. "I didn't care," he said. "I was depressed. Nothing mattered. My clothes hung on me, but it didn't make any difference because I never wore anything but Wranglers and a dirty old T-shirt anyway."

It started with marijuana, his sophomore year at Virginia Union University in Richmond, Va., where he was on a football scholarship.

TOO PROUD

He got into dope, he said, "because I was too proud to say no. I was in an apartment with some friends, and they said they had something for me to experience so we rolled a joint. I wanted them to think of me as a man. We passed the joints around, and I fell into the clique."

"I had read a lot about marijuana, where the doctors say it has no physiological dependence, only psychological dependence. I thought, if it's not physiological dependence, I don't see why people should be opposed to it then."

"Marijuana. The highs were good. I hate to say that now, but they were. Put me in a pacifist state. I'd listen to music for hours and I was in paradise."

"I stayed with marijuana because I liked it, not because I was physically addicted. I started with nickel ($5) bags, then dime bags, then one ounce bags ($15 to $25)."

At the end of his sophomore year, Hawkins transferred to Millersville (Pa.) State College. He had no intention of getting into heroin.

'JUST SNORT'

"In August, just before entering Millersville, I went to New York with two guys to get some smoke. We went up to an apartment and they asked me if I wanted to shoot some heroin."

"I told them no. They kept talking to me in a persuasive manner, but I told them I hated needles, I wasn't going to shoot. 'Okay' they said 'just snort.'"

"I snorted half a bag and got high and got scared. I thought if I get this high on snorting what will happen if I shoot."

"So I started to shoot, and got unbelievable highs. It's so quick, not like marijuana, maybe 30 seconds is all it takes. "For a while I was just dipping and dabbling. But I glorified the highs. I rationalized a person has to die anyway, so why not enjoy it as you are dying."

FORGOT GAME

He played football for Millersville and was taking dope "and had a pretty good year."

"So I couldn't relate drugs when they say they demoralize you. I'm on heroin some, I thought, and still I'm breaking records."

He set two school pass-catching records that season.

But then, Hawkins said, "I woke up one morning and my eyes wouldn't focus right. That bothered me. It was the morning of our scrimmage against Lebanon Valley. But I think I went out and did okay."

"One Saturday, I think it was the East Stroudsburg game, one of the players had to come wake me up. I had forgotten the game."

Eventually a week before the game with Shippensburg, "I noticed when I went to catch passes that the ball looked kind of fuzzy. I didn't feel too good. I was losing some of my speed. I think I sat out the first quarter of the game, but I remember catching a touchdown pass."

When the football season ended, Hawkins plunged deeper into drugs. But he hung on for his final year of football and showed up in April for spring practice.

'I WAS LIKE DEAD'

"We had a new coach, and he was tough," Hawkins said. "After that first workout I knew I was really addicted."

"It was a cold day, there was snow on the ground and we were in shorts. When I came in it was the worst I had ever felt. I was like dead. I stayed away for a week, telling the coach I had pulled a muscle."

"But he knew otherwise." Coach Gene Carpenter said that when the boy missed practice, "I called him in and he told me he had some problems. I believed we could work things out."

"Then he missed more practice sessions, giving the coach false reasons for doing so."

"I lied to him all the time," Hawkins said. "But I think he knew; I think some of the guys told him I was involved in drugs. But he didn't know how deeply."

WORTH IT?

Carpenter recalls now that "one of the funny things is when I first came here I had lunch one evening with Brent. And I thought after that lunch, 'What a gentleman! There is a real gentleman!'"

In April, finished with spring football, Hawkins quit college.

"I got to thinking, is football really worth it?" Hawkins said. "I rationalized everything. I felt I didn't get the offers I wanted when I got out of high school. My grades weren't bad but I didn't get in a major college. I thought that was the school's fault."

"I thought I'd pull out for one semester then enroll in summer school," he said.

Instead, he got even deeper into heroin.

"My money started to run out," he said. "That's when you really realize you are dependent."

$140 A WEEK HABIT

"I started passing worthless checks."

"I had to because I was up to two bags a day" a habit that was costing him $140 a week."

In June, Hawkins, a Negro, married a white girl. Within a few months they had broken up.

"I stole from home and friends," he said. "I remember the day I stole the radio from my mother's bedroom. It was a good radio, and I took it and pawned it."

"I knew I was killing my parents, but I did it. I thought 'Oh well; if something is missing they would blame me anyway so I may as well take it.' That's how a junkie thinks."

"When the checks started coming back, the police were after me. I promised I would straighten out, but every time, I went right back to drugs."

His parents watched him change but as his father, Joseph, said, "We couldn't believe what was happening. We didn't want to admit it."

ALWAYS THE SAME

"I sensed something last spring. More and more he would come to see me at work and want to use the car or borrow money. And I gave it to him. Then he would go to his mother and ask her for money."

"Always it was the same. A check was overdue, could I lend him to cover it. Or a friend needs some money. I guess I knew. I just didn't want to believe it could happen to my son."

Brent Hawkins recalled one night his father asked him to sit down at the table.

"He didn't ask me if I was on drugs," Hawkins said, "he told me. He said, 'Brent, I hear you are on the stuff!' And he cried. I actually saw my father sit there and cry."

"It really hurt me. But at this point I was where I felt there was nothing I could do about it. I had lost all the compassion I ever had."

CRIED ALL DAY

"When Joe told me, I cried all day," said Mrs. Hawkins. "I guess I knew too, but I didn't want to believe it."

"A big part of it is admitting it," said the father. "People would ask, 'How's Brent doing?' They thought he was still in college. We would say fine. Reacting like that helped keep us from admitting it."

"We finally had to say, 'Brent's not doing fine, he's on drugs.'"

"He got worse and worse," said his mother. "I'd come home from work and the first thing I would do was to look around to see what was missing. He took radios, tape recorders, checks, anything."

The father took Brent to counselling at their church "but Brent wouldn't listen. I guess he had to hit rock bottom before he could help himself."

Hawkins tried, a little. Occasionally, he dropped in at a drug abuse center in Lancaster. To talk, he says.

"An addict has to do something, he has a lot of time on his hands," Hawkins said.

Hawkins felt so bad that at last he walked into the rain and down to the General Hospital and asked if they would admit him for withdrawal.

COLD TURKEY

"They put me on cold turkey and then they put me on methadone. I was there a couple of days and I started to feel better."

He called police detective Luther Henry from the hospital and told him he had forged checks and was "ready to take the consequences."

Henry came out to talk to him and placed charges against him.

"I was surprised," said Hawkins, "that he was so concerned about the drug problem and what it was doing to people. He told me what the charges were against me. He also told me they would try to help me kick the habit. I told him I would help them get the pushers."

DOWN THE DRAIN

"He helped some," said Henry, "but each time he promised to get off dope he would fall back again and we would have to go out and pick him up. It got pretty bad but he had so much potential you hate to see a guy like that go down the drain."

Finally Henry got Hawkins into Teen Challenge, the drug rehabilitation center, where he joined 12 other addicts, a superintendent who runs it and a young minister.

"I was a rock bottom," said Hawkins, continuing:

"I came in the door and those boys ran up and shook my hand and said 'Jesus loves you.' I thought they were really freaked out."

"They sang and read the Bible and prayed. At first I thought it was a farce. I had never believed in a Pentecostal religion. I thought these people were fanatics."

HE RAN AWAY

He ran away. For one day, Lancaster police were notified to pick him up but he returned on his own before the police found him.

Hawkins has been there since before Christmas. He is off all drugs including methadone and has returned to Lancaster twice to testify at trials of pushers. He still faces forgery charges but he wants now to return to college, major in political science and play football again.

"My biggest problem after I had confessed my sins was what I should do to help others," he said. "I had promised the police I would give testimony against two pushers. I knew I would be condemned by others for informing, or maybe I would get shot."

OVER THE HILL

"I finally made up my mind; and when I did then I knew that I was man enough to do anything."

"I have a younger brother. Suppose somebody gave him a bag like I got, and it would wreck his life, and I had done nothing."

Has Hawkins succeeded in kicking drugs?

The people at Teen Challenge think so.

Supt. Jack Schell said: "In our minds he's among those who we feel will make it. He is well over the hill."

But Schell added, "Now it is important for him to progress in the next few months."

PRETTY CITY TURNING INTO PARADISE POLLUTED

Is Man Taking The Magic Out Of Miami?

By BEN FUNK
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — The northern cold nipped at our heels all the way from Denver to the southeast coast of Florida. Then, somewhere south of Palm Beach, we passed through an invisible climate barrier and into the balmy embrace of the subtropics.

The warm air was scented by salty sea breezes and the perfume of orange blossoms. Blue and turquoise surf splashed up on clean Atlantic Ocean beaches. Pelicans soared in formation along the rollers, peering down in search of lunch. The sky seemed filled with birds.

It was January, 1951. Our destination was Miami, that special haven of Northerners seeking respites from the cold and the grime back home. We hoped to remain all of our lives.

Coming from Denver, where the winter days of 1951 were dark with the smoke of coal furnaces burning in thousands of homes, we were struck by the sight of seaside towns spread out in pastel colors over white sands.

And in Miami we found everything we sought. The waters were pure, the air free of man's contamination, the fishing great, the life jolly and unhurried.

The 10-mile drive home from the office was a 15-minute breeze over roads and streets shaded by spreading banyan trees and flowering poincianas.

Key Biscayne was a wild coconut plantation inhabited by raccoons and a small colony of humans who had settled on the island to get away from it all. Its miles of beaches along the ocean and Biscayne Bay were clear of manmade obstructions.

We could stroll through hardwood hammocks teeming with wildlife, swim in any body of water, walk a lonely beach and watch the moon rise out of the Atlantic, sparkling the waters and filling the eastern sky with a golden glow.

One misty morning, a fox which had wandered in from the nearby Everglades stood on our back lawn and eyed us unafraid for a few moments before soaring gracefully over the hibiscus bushes and going on his way.

In those days, the tourist "season" was December to March. The rest of the year, most of the hotels closed and the town belonged to the "natives." It was one great place to live.

But the drumbeaters were busy. Resort owners, land promoters, cities, airlines, counties and the state were spending huge sums of money to lure people to this unique corner of the continent. They were coming in rapidly growing numbers.

And, in the loudly-trumpeted name of progress, began the subtle but sure process of destroying everything we had come here to find.

More and more people meant more garbage, more trash, more sewage, more hotels, more automobiles.

Human wastes poured in an ever-increasing flood into the canals, the Miami River, the bay and the ocean. Fumes from automobile exhausts and jet planes fouled the once pure air. Hammocks were flattened by the bulldozers. Dredges mangled the shorelines.

Five after five, hotels and motels marched up the beaches — gaudy monuments to the tourist dollar — hiding the oceans behind a concrete wall.

Urbanization gobbled up thousands of acres of land each year, wiping out everything natural that stood in its path.

And one day we took a good look around. Suddenly we knew that we had kissed the good life goodbye.

And it all had happened before.

In the 1930s, with 60 outfall lines gushing raw sewage into Biscayne Bay, Miami came dangerously close to polluting itself out of existence as a resort. The situation was played down by press agents and politicians until one angry Miamian, author Philip Wylie, gave it national exposure in a national magazine article called "The Polluted Paradise."

The result — a shower of tourist cancellations — shocked the city into massive reforms. Biscayne Bay was cleaned up and the "Magic City's" image restored.

But the old lessons were forgotten after World War II, when travel restrictions ended and ration-weary Americans ready for a spending spree hit the road.

At a 1952 convention of travel agents, the delegates figured out that in the first five years following the war, Miami Beach built more hotels than all the rest of the world's resorts combined. "Hotel Row" stretched for miles up Collins Avenue, and where it ended a miles-long "Motel Row" began.

With the consent of politicians, hotel owners covered the public's beaches with gaudy cabana clubs, tiled dining terraces and swimming pools until there was almost no beach left in Miami Beach.

Auto license plates carried the slogan, "Keep Florida Green." That meant, everybody joked, "Bring Money."

The off-season for tourists quickly vanished. By 1970, some 10 million visitors were elbowing the natives off the sidewalks, winter and summer. That was 10 times more than descended on us in 1951.

The never-ending drumbeat of publicity also brought a heavy influx of "Yankees" coming down to stay. Condominiums, monstrous boxes of people stacked on top of each other, filled in the few gaps remaining open to the bay and the sea.

In Miami, grand old trees that had graced the tropic landscape for generations tumbled before the bulldozers. In their places, bare asphalt parking lots serving shopping centers and thousands of new apartment houses reflected the hot, glaring light of the Florida sun.

"If it doesn't look like a blasted heath, they think it's not a city," grumbled author Marjory Stoneman Douglas. "With all the high rises, we look like New York now. Miami will never again be like it was."

On Key Biscayne, the life of the early settlers was shattered. Roads slashed through lush jungles, towering hotels rose along the beaches, coconut palms were flattened to make way for housing developments and golf courses.

Ocean outfalls were built to pour millions of gallons of untreated sewage daily into the Atlantic a short distance offshore. When winds and currents are right, some of the stuff drifts back into the surf where the tourists swim.

More than 40 private sewage plants dumped their loads into canals, turning them into foul-smelling sewers.

Herbert Hoover Jr. vacationed in Miami Beach for 20 years, witnessed the rapid spread of water pollution, then created the Hoover Environmental Legal Defense Fund to fight it. The goal is to gather evidence and develop court cases.

"Six months in jail," Hoover said, "will make a fine conservationist out of a polluter."

A report of the Fund said the Miami River was an open sewer, Biscayne Bay was rapidly becoming a total cesspool, and no streams were safe for swimmers.

The pollution and widespread draining and filling of spawning grounds badly hurt the once great sport of fishing.

At the south end of Miami Beach, old men in a big colony of retired senior citizens fish every day from a pier jutting out into the ocean. They catch only little grunts, which are good for nothing but to cut up and feed to the gulls.

"We do not call these fish," says Alfred Gross, who left New York seven years ago to spend his last days in the warm sun.

"There are no fish here. Once, it was 20 fish per man. Now it is 20 men per fish. There's nothing else to do. You go crazy, or you fish. But there's no fish."

Miami has never permitted industrial smokestacks in the city. But automobile and jet plane exhausts and municipal incinerators do a complete job of polluting the air.

There are 10 cars for every 22 residents of Dade County and they double in numbers every five years, more rapidly than humans. Millions of tourist-owned and rented automobiles join them each year on traffic-choked streets.

Twenty-five per cent of the downtown Miami land area was turned over to storage of cars, 25 per cent more to move them, and still there wasn't enough room. Finally, the city went to the ultimate in ugliness — a network of expressways slashing through and over the heart of the city.

But still the drums beat. "As we increase the preference for Florida in the public mind," trumpets a recent bulletin of the Florida Department of Commerce, "we can increase our tourist traffic flow."

If it is increased, says Dade County's pollution control officer, Peter Baljet, the time will come when we will have dense smogs lasting for days, despite the trade winds and the absence of mountains to trap the pollution.

Many days the air looks fairly clean to the eye of a tourist from a smoggy Northern city. But when a temperature inversion traps the fumes on the ground, a whisky-brown layer settles over the city.

Municipal incinerators pour smoke into the atmosphere around the clock. The suburban City of Coral Gables is suing the City of Miami, charging that its trash burner in Coconut Grove is polluting Coral Gables. "The City Beautiful."

At the same time, Coral Gables' own incinerator in an unincorporated area rains greasy black ashes on other peoples' houses.

A study just prepared for the City of Miami Beach projects a 65 per cent population increase by the year 2000, from the present 85,000 to 143,600.

Properly planned, the report said, the growth could result in "the finest of urban living experiences." But the high density, it continued, will add to air, water and noise pollution and "could create conditions of anti-social behavior."

Yes, Miami was a great town, back there in 1951. The doors of our homes were never locked. It didn't even occur to us to lock our automobiles.

"If we had that again," said County Commissioner Hardy Matheson of a pioneer family, "it would be more to brag about than the size of our airport or the number of our hotels."

But, the hammocks we loved to stroll are almost all gone now. Most of the beaches have been taken from us.

The drive home that once took 15 minutes demands 30 to 40, often an hour or more in the rush periods.

And from the beaches, the rising moon sometimes is blood-red as it comes up from the sea behind a curtain of smog.

After a joint federal-state enforcement conference, the Miami Metropolitan Commission was ordered to prepare a master plan for a water cleanup. But, there have been master plans before.

One of them, kicked off with much fanfare in 1960, called for sewer hookups to the homes of 450,000 residents using septic tanks. Today, 800,000 use the tanks, from which sewage seeps into shallow underground water supplies.

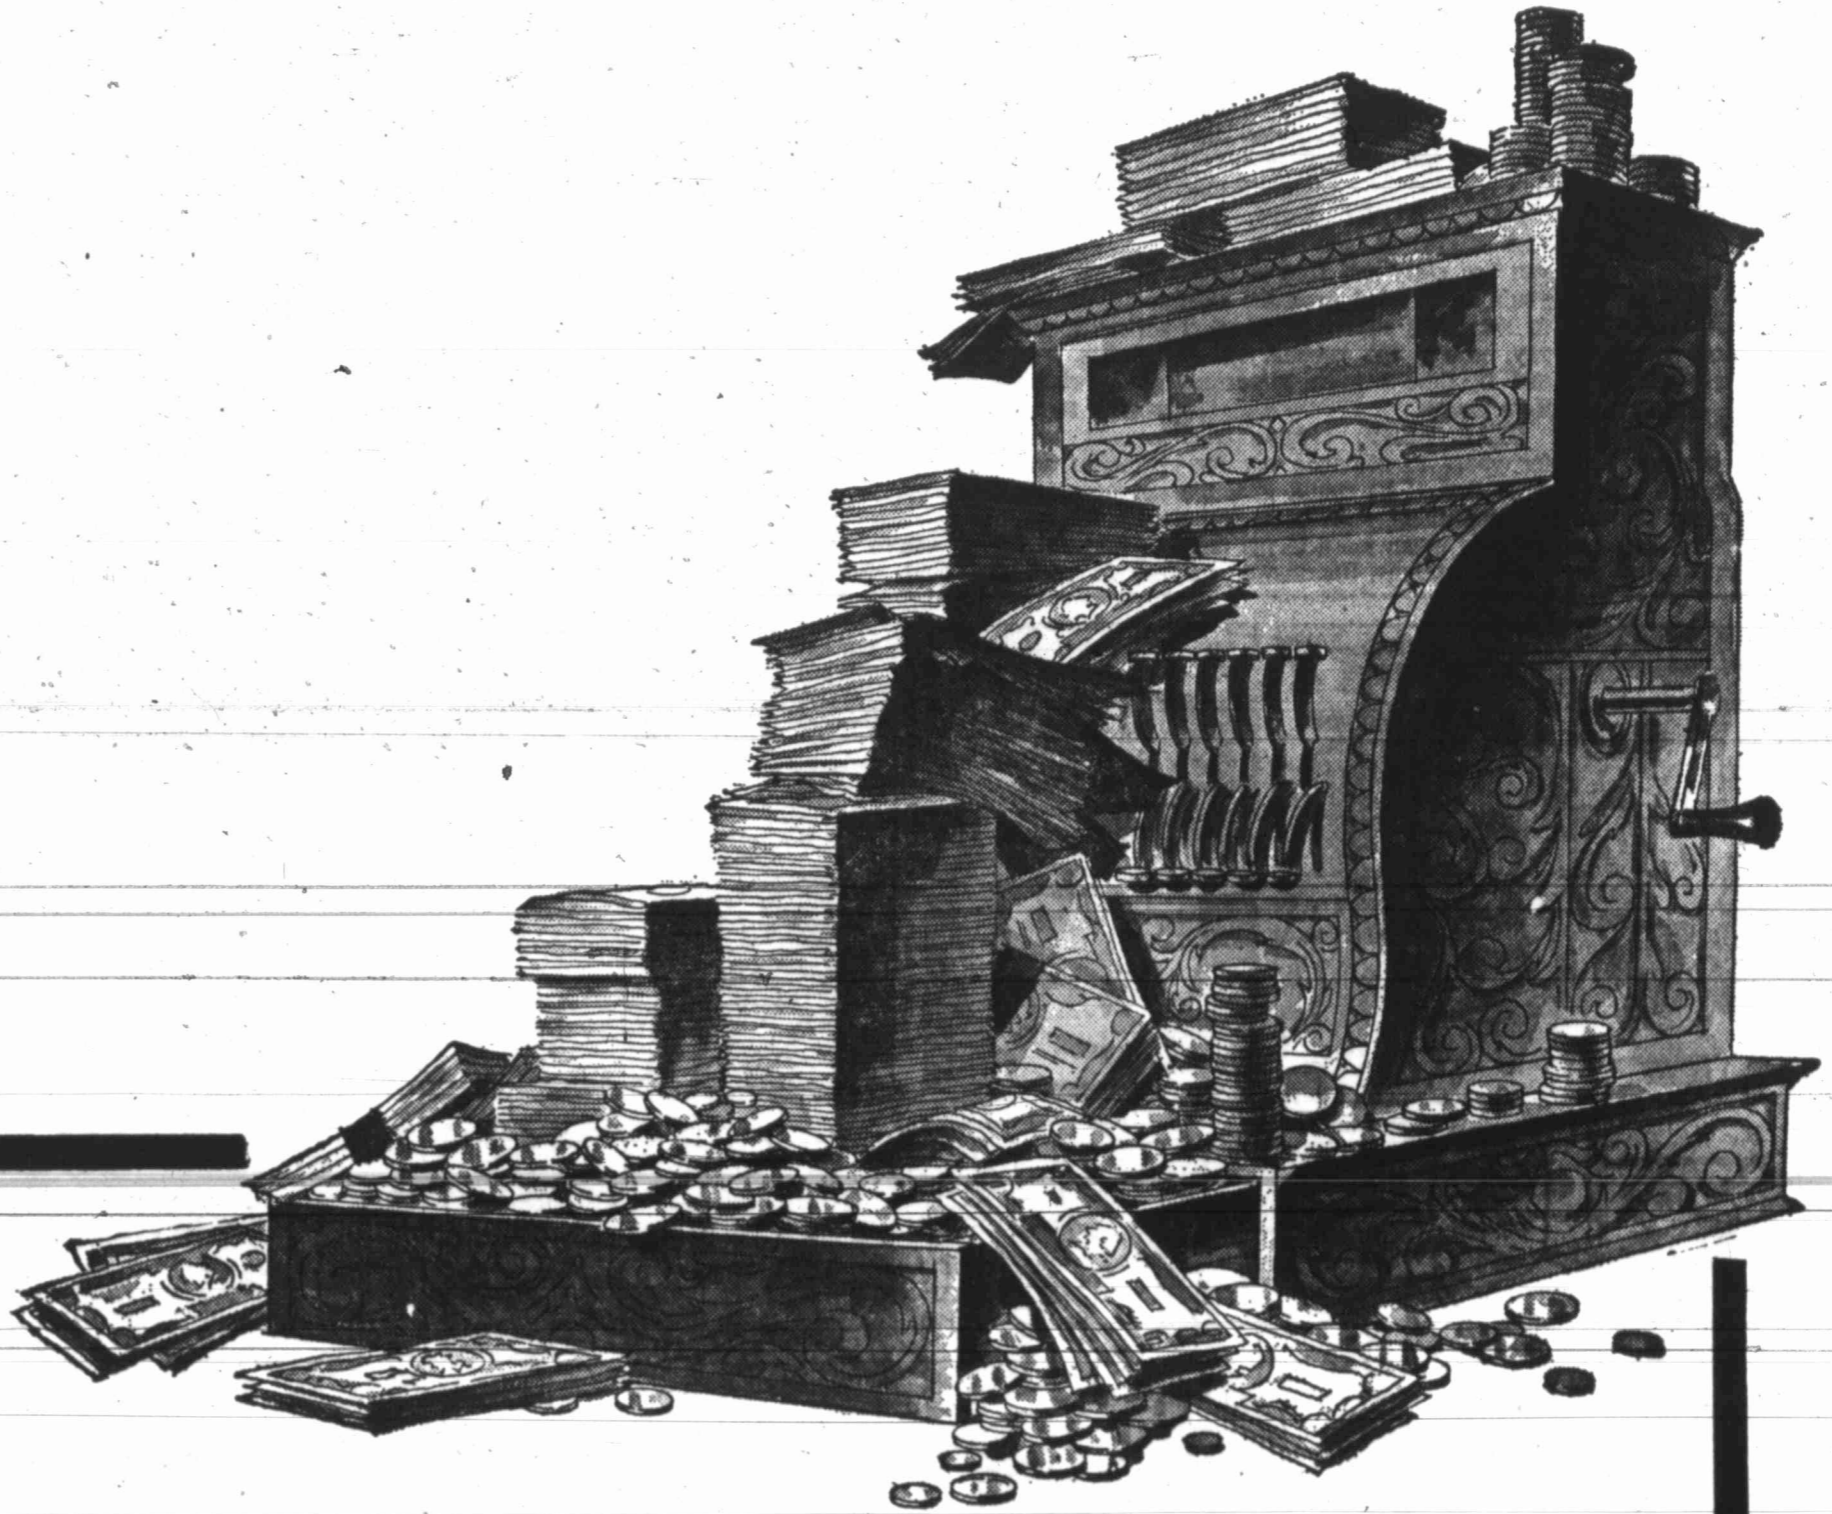

The water pollution problem is so massive, so complex, so expensive to correct, a rational attack on it will take a long time to organize. The cost, Baljet says, will be more than $1 billion, "maybe $2 billion if we wait to get started."

But public pressure is growing and a job once done may be done again.

Only the fact that Miami still is warmer than the rest of the country keeps the tourist tide flowing.

Time To Marry

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 44 years old and have been going with a very nice school teacher for seven years. Myra is 42. We are very much in love and enjoy the same things. I'm sure Myra would make the perfect wife, but here is the problem. She has put it to me cold either we get married this June or it's good-bye.

Well, I just started a new business and I am in debt. I am the sole support of my invalid mother, a responsibility I will have for as long as she lives. I still owe on my car, and I owe the insurance company because I had to borrow against my policy for the car. I've explained this to Mrs. and she says it doesn't make any difference to her. She has a good job and is willing to work after we are married. I still think it would be unfair for me to marry her right now. You're a sensible woman, Abby. Can you help me convince Myra?

FRANK

DAR FRANK: Sorry, I'm with Myra. If you wait until you're clear and free of debt, you'll be wheeled down the aisle to say your marriage vows. I say, marry the woman. At 44 and 42, time is more important than money.

DEAR ABBY: I have tried for years to convince my husband that if he would give me a compliment once in a while it would mean more to me than material things. His answer, "I don't like something, you will hear about it." He means it, too. This goes from the way I do my hair to the way I season the soup. Many times I have deliberately done something contrary to the way I know he likes it, just to get some kind of reaction out of him. Even a complaint is better than dead silence.

Most people will work better if they get a little praise. Even dogs perform better with an encouraging pat on the head. He hasn't been a "bad" husband. In fact, he's been very good, but a few loving words would mean the world to me so many times.

Please don't use my name or town. No sense in rocking the boat after 40 years.

NOT APPRECIATED

DEAR NOT: I suppose it's small comfort to be told that actions speak louder than words, but it's true. A man who is stingy with his compliments is usually the product of inhibited parents who weren't able to verbalize their appreciation and approval, so don't blame him too much.

After 40 years, you're wise. You mention it to him, he may change his course.

DEAR ABBY: I am an unmarried professional woman. I have been going with a widower for several months now and we have a wonderful time together. He lost his wife two years ago but he still wears a wedding ring. I have no objections to that and respect him for his attitude toward his former marriage.

We often dine at fine restaurants and frequently run into people I know; when they stop, I introduce him. If they see his wedding ring, they may conclude that I am out with a married man and am being brassy about it.

Should I ask my friend to remove his ring when we go out? Or should I disregard the thoughts of others?

WEDDING RING

DEAR WEDDING RING: He may have reasons of his own for wearing the ring. Don't mention it.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamp, addressed envelope.

Weight Control

Your Good Health
Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am on a Weight Watchers diet program and have found it really works. I would like your opinion of this program, how it works or enables you to lose weight and still eat balanced meals a day.

I have tried all the other diets such as the water diet and grapefruit before each meal (which didn't work for me). Are these good diets? If not why? Mrs. R.S.T.

I'm thoroughly in accord with the Weight Watchers and TOPS plans of reducing. And equally unimpressed with the "gimmick" diets which usually don't work and sometimes can be actually harmful.

The Weight Watchers and similar systems are good because they are based on sound principles: to lose weight, you have to use up more energy than is contained in what you eat.

Balanced meals are necessary, whether you are reducing or not. While reducing, you still need protein, vitamins, minerals, some roughage. But you need fewer calories! And you need to work off more calories.

All these facts are recognized by the Weight Watchers and similar groups - plus the psychological factor of group therapy. And since over-eating is usually a psychological matter, whether to a large or small degree, or is a matter of upbringing and habit, the psychological aspect of reducing is important. There's the competitive angle - trying to do as well as the next member. There's the element of knowing that if others can do it, so can you. There's the repeated reminder that you have to abide by the facts of life if you are going to succeed.

These factors often are absent entirely when you try to reduce all by yourself. That is, you have to remind yourself - if instead of having the group to bolster your determination and confidence.

You can do it yourself - but there are advantages of having company in your efforts to keep you encouraged.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it possible for prolonged use (four years) of an anticoagulant to induce pernicious anemia? O.M.S.

No, it will not cause pernicious anemia. That is not saying that it might not play a part in a simpler type of anemia. If the anticoagulant led to subtle bleeding (as in the turn) because coagulation of the blood is reduced, the gradual blood loss could contribute to anemia - but not pernicious anemia.

A periodic blood test (prothrombin time test) will tell whether the dosage is too high and should be changed.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is sprinkling black pepper in the mouth of a child as punishment dangerous or harmful to the child? Especially a child in a special education class? -W.M.

To me that's child abuse, cruelly. It can be irritating and cause a sore mouth. I'm sure it's not an effective means of discipline, either. You mention a "special education class." If this is being done by a teacher, it should be reported.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure you are doing all you can to relieve the problem, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Herald requesting the booklet, "How To Deal With Varicose Veins," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover the cost of printing and handling.

SOUTH VIETNAM RUSHING REINFORCEMENTS
Artillery Duels Across DMZ

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam rushed reinforcements to the northern front today as the allied commands reported a buildup of enemy troops and long-range artillery in the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Vietnam.

The U.S. Command announced 20 American fighter-bombers attacked a new North Vietnamese surface-to-air missile site Thursday in the Laotian panhandle, one mile northwest of the DMZ.

UNITS CUT UP

Artillery duels were reported across the DMZ, and U.S. military sources said the North Vietnamese had moved long-range artillery into the northern half of the six-mile-wide zone for the first time.

The U.S. Command said enemy activity in the DMZ has increased 50 per cent.

The Saigon government announced that several battalions of fresh troops were flown to the northern front. Lt. Col. Tran Van An, chief spokesman for South Vietnamese military headquarters, said there are now more than 20,000 Saigon troops in Quang Tri, South Vietnam's northernmost province.

An said some other units that were badly cut up in the Laotian campaign had been reinforced and reorganized to make them combat effective once more.

THREE MEANINGS

An said the buildup could have three meanings:

- Preparation for a new South Vietnamese offensive.
- Defense against North Vietnamese attacks, including one from across the DMZ.
- A rest period for troops just returned from the campaign in Laos.

Asked if the South Vietnamese might make a limited attack into the DMZ in an attempt to neutralize North Vietnamese forces moving in, An replied:

"I cannot say. I never predict what we're doing. I don't know. Wait a few more days."

Some sources felt it would be impossible for the South Vietnamese to mount a big offensive into the DMZ or into North Vietnam after the heavy losses their forces suffered in Laos.

SHELLS SOCK BASE

The U.S. Command said the new SAM site was located by reconnaissance planes in the lower Laotian panhandle one mile west of the North Vietnamese border and one mile northwest of the DMZ.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported that enemy 152mm guns, with a range of 16 miles, opened fire from the DMZ on one of Saigon's bases at Dong Ha, 11 miles south of the buffer zone. Forty shells hit the base, killing and wounding several South Vietnamese soldiers.

COAST TO COAST

It was the first reported artillery attack from the DMZ in several months. But U.S. gunners have been firing at targets in the southern half of the zone all along.

Reporting on the enemy build-up in the zone, one source said "sightings of enemy activity are up 50 per cent over February. These include troop movements, trucks, bunkers and mortar positions."

The source said 90 per cent of these sightings have been in the eastern half of the 40-mile long zone, which extends from the Laotian border to the coast.

About 50 per cent of the sightings were in the southern half of the zone, the source continued, and "we have taken under attack with artillery 40 per cent of the targets in the southern half, compared to about 35 per cent in February."

He said he knew of no artillery attacks in the northern sector, which is North Vietnam's.

He added he knew of no North Vietnamese artillery attacks from inside the DMZ against U.S. units stationed along the frontier.

In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said there have been isolated instances in the past in which North Vietnamese gunners have fired rockets and artillery across the DMZ but this was the first time he could recall the movement of guns into the area.

MORTAR ATTACKS

U.S. fighter-bombers last Sunday and Monday launched an estimated 200 strikes against SAM and antiaircraft batteries and supply depots inside North Vietnam. The U.S. Command said that the bombers destroyed three principal missile sites, triggering more than 100 explosions.

Meanwhile, North Vietnamese forces continued attacks on U.S. and South Vietnamese troops pulling back from the Laotian border in the northwest corner of South Vietnam following the 45-day campaign in Laos.

U.S. spokesmen reported nine Americans were killed and 11 wounded in two North Vietnamese ground attacks today. They said 37 North Vietnamese troops were killed.

Several other Americans were wounded in mortar attacks.

REORGANIZATION MAN — Roy L. Ash believes that the U.S. government will become increasingly unresponsive to the needs of the people unless there is widespread reorganization of government agencies. He headed a presidential council which recommended various methods to streamline operations of the government's executive branch.

By The Associated Press

An early spring storm dumped snow, ice and freezing rain over much of the Southeast today.

Nine inches of snow chilled Clemson, S.C., as the storm swirled through the Ohio Valley into southern sections of Virginia and West Virginia and down through the Carolinas.

North Georgia shivered under a major ice storm which downed trees and power lines and left many homes without heat in below-freezing weather. The snow and ice also closed Interstates 75 and 85 in the northern section of the state late Thursday.

Travel warnings were posted as far north as Ohio and Pennsylvania as the storm reached the southern fringes of the Middle Atlantic States.

Thunderstorms drenched other areas of the Deep South, with Dothan, Ala., recording more than three inches of rain in a six-hour period.

Briefing By Rogers Cheers Up Critics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate critics of President Nixon's Middle East policy say they are pleased with Secretary of State William P. Rogers' assurances the United States won't try to impose settlement terms on Israel.

"He made it clear there were no preconditions on our part requiring the Israelis to leave the occupied areas' before negotiations," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

Sen. Jacob E. Javits, R-N.Y., who, like Jackson, had criticized administration attempts to get Israel back to the negotiating table, said Rogers told 67 senators at an unusual closed session Thursday no settlement would be imposed.

MADE CLEAR

A number of senators including Jackson said they had misunderstood the U.S. position and Rogers had clarified it.

Javits and Jackson sidestepped questions on whether their better understanding of U.S. policy would enable them to back Rogers' efforts.

Jackson remained sharply critical of Rogers' suggestion of a joint U.S.-Soviet peace-keeping force to police any settlement, although he said the secretary had made clear any such force would have to be approved by both Israel and Egypt.

The Washington Democrat, predicting the Senate would reject any such force, said such a joint effort would carry "the danger of the most serious kind of confrontation between the Russians and the United States."

Jackson said the Israel and Egypt should negotiate without the presence of a third party, such as United Nations special envoy Gunnar Jarring.

Rogers confined comment to a statement that the meeting "helped to clarify" the Nixon administration's position, adding: "I would hope the negotiations could continue ... in a period of quiet."

TALKS SHELVED

The talks were shelved at least temporarily Thursday when Jarring left the United Nations negotiating site to assume his regular duties as Swedish ambassador to Moscow.

A U.N. announcement said, however, Jarring intends to be back in late April and would return earlier "if developments warrant it."

Jackson and Javits said they thought the misunderstanding that the United States was pressuring Israel to return to 1967 borders before talks with Egypt stemmed from the secretary's March 17 news conference.

But Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and a leading Senate backer of the Rogers policy, said some senators "had been misled" and implied Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban is at least partially responsible.

Referring several times to Eban's meeting last Friday with 40 senators, the Arkansas Democrat said the Israeli official had "come here and negotiated with the Senate rather than with Mr. Jarring and the Egyptians."

'Passover' Film Will Be Repeated

The television program, "The Passover," is being repeated this year by reason of the remarkable reaction it generated last year. It will be seen in this area at 8:30 p.m. April 5 over Channel 11 (KTVT-TV) Dallas.

The Passover, will be a full half-hour color telecast for families of all faiths to see and enjoy. The festival is unique in its influence, for it is both a source of inspiration for the Jews, and a cornerstone of the Christian heritage. The production was presented by the Beth Sar Shalom Hebrew-Christian Fellowship. The response last season was equally enthusiastic from Jewish as well as Christian viewers.
