

SEARCH FOR PEACE

Rogers Will Visit Israel, Arab Nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers announced today he will visit Israel and four Arab nations early next month in his search for a Middle East peace settlement.

"We have an opportunity to explore ways to maintain and, I hope, to accelerate peace in the Middle East. . . . We believe this is an exceptional opportunity — an opportunity that must not be lost," he said.

At a news conference, Rogers declared he does not look for "a breakthrough" in the course of his trip but he will discuss with Egyptian and Israeli leaders the possibility of an agreement on opening the Suez Canal. He believes such an agreement could be an interim step toward a final settlement.

The Arab countries involved are Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and Saudi Arabia.

The order of his visit was not announced.

Rogers also announced that he will visit Paris for talks with Foreign Minister Maurice Schuman on April 29 and will stop in Italy on his way back to the U.S. from his Middle East Swing. The Rome visit is expected to be about May 8.

His schedule so far calls for a flight from Washington to London next Monday and attendance at a Southeast Asia Treaty Organization conference of foreign ministers April 27-28. He will leave London April 29 on a flight to Ankara, Turkey, with a stopover in Paris.

He will meet with foreign ministers of the Central Treaty Organization CENTO April 30-May 1 and then begin his Middle Eastern Swing.

Gunman Burns Three To Death

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Three members of a family were tied up, soaked with cleaning fluid and burned to death early today by a gunman who robbed their dry cleaning establishment, police said.

A janitor also suffered burns over 50 per cent of his body and was in critical condition at a hospital.

The charred bodies of Alfred and Ida Lizzio and their son, John, 14, were tentatively identified by police in the ashes and debris of Cantell's Cleaners.

Police said the fire was reported shortly after midnight by people near the cleaners. A floor safe in which the Lizzios normally kept $400 to $500 was broken open and left empty, police said.

The janitor, Jake Wright, told police a man armed with a pistol tied his hands and those of the Lizzios behind their backs. Clothing was piled on and around them, soaked with cleaning fluid and ignited, he said.

He's Hard To Please

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A Texas man serving a five-year term in Leavenworth Penitentiary for threatening the life of President Johnson in 1968 was indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday for threatening to kill President Nixon.

John Wesley DeShazo, 32, was accused of writing a letter, intercepted before it left the penitentiary, making the threat on Nixon. DeShazo was to have been released from prison in August.

He pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court in San Antonio, Tex., on June 14, 1968, on the charge of threatening Johnson.

Charged With Beating To Death His Stepson

GARLAND, Tex. (AP) — Ronnie Joe Press, 21, was charged Thursday with beating to death his stepson, Lance Chambers, 2½, who died from injuries in a hospital.

Hospital officials said the child suffered multiple bruises over his entire body and head.

Press allegedly gave police a voluntary statement in which he admitted beating the child with his hands and a leather belt. He was ordered held without bond pending further investigation.

Sentenced To Death For Pistol Slaying

DALLAS (AP) — McCoy Jamerson, 31, of Fort Worth has been sentenced to death in the pistol slaying of Mrs. Lottie Waddle during an armed robbery Feb. 7, 1970, of an Irving service station.

The jury deliberated about two hours Thursday before returning with the conviction verdict and then required about the same time to decide on the death sentence.

Jamerson was accused of shooting Mrs. Waddle four times during a robbery at the Bell Co. Service Station. The shooting came during a wave of slayings of women in the Dallas and Fort Worth area.

ATTEMPT TO DIVERT JETLINER FOILED

MIAMI (AP) — A Florida man was foiled in an attempt to divert a jetliner to Italy because a pre-boarding search by suspicious officials disclosed he was armed, an airline spokesman said.

Frank F. Anle, 37, was being held in the Dade County jail today in lieu of $100,000 bond after he was charged by the FBI with conspiracy to commit air piracy.

DEPOSITS, RESOURCES HIT NEW MARK

Bank Records Shattered

	April 30, 1971	April 30, 1970	Increase
Loans and discounts	$26,734,984.15	$26,539,926.05	$ 195,058.10
Deposits	61,456,696.92	50,099,704.56	11,356,992.36
Cash	10,299,668.00	9,657,206.29	642,461.71
Total resources	$87,709,668.96	$85,523,598.67	$2,186,071.29

All records for deposits and total resources for the four Howard County banks were scattered in response to a U.S. Comptroller of Currency call of condition as of April 20, 1971.

Deposits of $61,456,696 were well over the previous record of $59,494,308 at the end of 1970. More amazing, they were 22.6 per cent over the $50,099,704 a year ago.

This was the first time that the combined deposits had crossed the $60,000,000 mark here.

Total resources of $87,709,669 were above the previous record of $65,071,555 as of Dec. 31, 1970, and were 21.9 per cent above the $55,523,598 call on April 30, 1970.

Gains were modest in loans and discounts, also in cash, but the trend there also was up.

Loans amounted to $26,734,984, or $195,058 more than the comparable date a year ago, but under the record of $27,664,447 at the end of last year.

Cash of $10,299,668 was up, $642,461 over April 30, 1970, but it also was under the record of $16,221,582.

The four banks held

$22,853,966 in bonds ($5,944,406 U.S. and $16,119,560 county, municipals and others). In addition they had $6,800,000 in federal funds.

Bankers said that while federal income tax payments had pulled deposits down some, there had been a fairly steady recovery. The deposits on the call date did not represent the high-water mark which may have been about 5 or 10 per cent above that.

The figures by individual banks showed:

and discounts $14,637,092.05, deposits $30,099,459.69, cash $5,307,834.75; total resources $33,474,605.70. In addition the bank had $883,094.91 in U.S. bonds and $9,693,166.89 in other bonds, also $1,500,000 in federal funds.

STATE NATIONAL — Loans and discounts $7,348,268.07, deposits $17,972,518.37, cash $2,934,230.60, total resources $19,543,048.01. In addition the bank held $2,938,970.40 in U.S. bonds and $3,719,825.53 in other bonds also $2,500,000 in federal funds.

SECURITY STATE — Loans and discounts $3,043,265.15, deposits $10,959,005.26, cash $1,656,599.18, total resources $11,883,368.65. In addition the bank held $1,560,341.14 in U.S. bonds, $2,583,844.41 in other bonds, also $2,800,000 in federal funds.

COAHOMA STATE — Loans and discounts — $1,706,358.88, deposits $2,425,713.60, cash $401,003.47, total resources $2,808,647.60. In addition the bank had $562,000.00 in U.S. bonds and $122,723.25 in other bonds.

Big 'Barrel Of Pork' Smokes Up Hassle

AUSTIN (AP) — A $6.9 billion (b) two year state budget bill, variously described as "progressive" and "pork barrel," has passed the House after nearly 13 smoky hours of debate.

It was nearly 11 p.m. Thursday when the House voted final passage of the massive appropriations measure, 114-24.

Now the measure will go to a conference committee of five representatives and five senators who will negotiate a final compromise bill to support state government for the next two years.

'JUDICIAL REFORM'

The Senate also held a marathon session Thursday. Sen. Henry Grover, Houston, filibustered for more than 13 hours against a "judicial reform" bill that would, among other things, permit 10-2 jury verdicts in civil liability cases based on fault.

The bill finally was passed at 3:30 a.m. this morning. It now goes to the governor for his signature.

Senators passed their version of the budget last Friday.

To the average Texan, the biggest decision the negotiators must make is the size of the tax bill to finance new spending.

The Senate version of the budget would require $694.4 million in new taxes over the next two years, while the House bill would require $604.4 million. Most of the difference is because the Senate voted more money for colleges, universities and welfare than the House.

Both bills appropriate funds for only one year of welfare, in the hope that Congress will assume all welfare costs next year.

TIME OUT

Thursday's House debate on spending was the longest in over a decade, running from 10 a.m. to almost 11 p.m. with two short breaks for meals. House members voted on 68 amendments, defeating 53 of them.

Most of the amendments were proposed by a loose coalition of liberal Democrats and conservative Republicans who call themselves the "Dirty Thirty."

Smith Urges Nixon To Look Again At Drouth Situation

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith asked President Nixon today to take a second look at Texas' request for major drouth relief for more than half of the counties of the state.

Smith gave reporters copies of a letter asking that a total of 175 counties be declared a major disaster relief area by presidential order. Smith asked major disaster relief for 60 counties on March 31.

GIGS TOWER

"Although I have never been officially notified I am under the impression, particularly from statements made by Sen. (John) Tower, that at this moment the President is against granting us this relief. . . . We still have hope we can convince him different," Smith said.

Smith said he was "very sorry to see that John Tower has abandoned Texas' request for disaster relief and is now defending the position of the President."

Tower told a news conference in Washington Thursday he thought such presidential declarations should be reserved for quick developing catastrophes such as tornadoes and hurricanes. He said that declaring a disaster area of all the counties might "open a Pandora's box of troubles."

TEXANS SUFFER

Smith said he signed an agreement today between the state and the Department of Agriculture allowing farmers and ranchers to obtain emergency loans for livestock feed and hay.

"However, a presidential proclamation (under public law 91-606) would give us much more relief, including such things as a $2,500 loan that could be forgiven under certain circumstances. . . . We need a cash flow to our farmers and ranchers in addition to the feed and hay," Smith told a news conference.

In his letter to the President the governor said, "Our farmers, ranchers and agricultural workers especially are suffering extensively from the effects of this drouth. These workers have little or no income on which to support their families outside of the work they can find on Texas farms and ranches."

Also in the news conference, the governor:

—Distributed copies of a letter mailed to all daily and weekly newspaper editors saying that his original recommendations to the legislature, if passed, would have resulted in a need for $320 million new taxes plus a state college tuition increase. He said his plan could have been financed by increasing the sales tax from 3.25 to 4 per cent and the pending liquor-by-the-drink taxes.

—Estimated Texas might save as much as $30 million by not approving a second year appropriation now for public welfare and waiting until a special session in 1972. He said his recent trip to Washington convinced him chances were good for some federal relief on welfare by Sept. 1, 1972.

—Asked for all information available on the "judicial reform" bill that was filibustered for 13 hours before it passed the Senate early Friday. Among other things it would permit 10-2 jury verdicts in civil liability cases based on fault.

—Said "We're considering" a third term, but was not ready to make any announcement.

YOUNG ECOLOGIST MIGHTY CONCERNED!
Shawn Faught, 13, transports dying fish from spring

Lad Adds A New Wrinkle To Earth Week Fish Story

By BRIAN PEAY

Unaware of the close relation of his project and the national theme for this week, Shawn Faught, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Faught, old San Angelo Highway, set out at the beginning of the week to save fish that were dying due to the lack of water in the "big spring."

Earth Week, proclaimed by President Nixon, began last Monday, the same time Shawn was engrossed in his operations of moving fish from small pools of water left in the drying spring.

"The emphasis this year is to focus on local environmental problems, as opposed to the world at large, and to point out what individuals can do to solve these problems, said Dr. Robert Sweeney, director of the Great Lakes Laboratory at Buffalo, N.Y., State College.

"The first time I became aware of the fish was when a friend of mine and myself were noticing some small fish in the aquarium at school," said Shawn. "They were using some small catfish to help clean out the tank and my friend told me where we could get some more."

Upon finding the fish at the spring, Shawn became concerned about their welfare and being an amateur fisherman himself was also concerned about preserving these potential morsels for a future fryer pan.

"We have always tried to teach Shawn to do things on his own and be an individual that will carry through on ideas and projects he has started," said Mrs. Faught.

And that he did by first getting in touch with the Cosden Country Club lake caretaker, Ernest Lee. Then the young ecologist inquired at city hall of the legality of moving the fish from the spring to Moss Creek Lake.

"I was told I could move the smooth fish to the lake, but I couldn't tell the smooth fish from the rough. The Moss Creek caretaker told me he would help

CHANGE THE CLOCK HANDS SUNDAY

It's Just A Matter Of 'Fast Time'

DEAR BOSS:

Guess what time it is? That question may not do more than stimulate a mild curiosity today but Sunday it may have you going around in circles.

Because all of a sudden Sunday at 2 a.m. it will be 3 a.m. (I think). I never have been exactly sure what to do with my clock when we switch to Daylight Savings Time.

For a while there everybody was wondering whether or not Texas was going to join the time-switchers this year, but eventually the legislators gave in (or gave up) and thus Texans will again this year follow DST.

But just think for a minute, boss, about what would have happened had we not decided to join DST. There are only three states — Michigan, Arizona and Hawaii — who stick to their regular times while the rest of the nation plays around with the clock dials.

MEANWHILE, BACK IN TEXAS

Now Hawaii away over there in the blue Pacific is all right. Besides, who pays attention to time in Hawaii?

But in Texas there are a few things to think about. For instance, your nightly newscast would come on at 4:30 p.m. And the television station would go off the air after about 30 minutes with your favorite late-night talk-show host (although for some of them that might be 30 minutes too much). In addition to figuring out what time it is in another time zone when you want to make a long-distance call, you would have to figure in the effects of DST, DDT, or which is it? Now I have enough trouble figuring out what time it is in another zone without going to all the trouble of figuring out whether or not they observe daylight savings time and if not what that does to the time schedule.

IT WON'T BOTHER COWBOYS

And just think what would happen to the football and baseball time schedules. You'd never know what time it was when the Cowboys played the Senators, Redskins or whatever, come to think of it the Cowboys sometimes didn't seem to know what day it was.

I just wanted to remind you that there has to be some merit to the system, because after all it was foxy old Ben Franklin who came up with the idea while he was ambassador to France.

Supposedly he awoke early one morning and seeing daylight thought of moving clocks ahead one hour in order to conserve and lengthen the working day (you remember what a thrifty old codger he was). DST wasn't really used however until World War I, and it wasn't until 1967 that Congress set a national timetable for DST.

NEVER ON SUNDAY?

Oh, yes, boss. I wanted to remind you that just in case you don't want to stay up until 2 a.m. Sunday morning to change your clock, just set it ahead one hour when you go to bed Saturday night.

If you forget to change the clock you may get a few strange glances Sunday — like when you show up for church just as everybody else is leaving, or you arrive for lunch just as everyone is dusting off the napkin.

There's one good thing, though. We've got all day Sunday to try to figure out what it is. And hopefully I'll be at work the right time Monday morning.

JEAN FANNIN

Federal Attorney Whacks 'Justice' In Brownsville

HOUSTON (AP) — An investigation may be made into the prosecution of a Brownsville man in a case involving the victim in an upcoming civil rights trial, U.S. Atty. Anthony J.-P. Farris said Thursday.

Farris referred to the case of Juan Paz, 19, who entered a plea of guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Paz was fined $5 and given a six-month probated jail term.

STICKY CASE

Paz was arrested June 11, 1970, on a charge alleging he gave Victor Nava, 14, some glue.

The incident allegedly occurred in a Brownsville alley, where six months later Nava was shot to death by Cameron County Deputy Nem Bryan.

Brownsville in U. S. district court next Monday on a charge alleging he violated the civil rights of Nava.

Farris said, "I feel that the prosecution of this individual on what I consider to be a questionable case is not out of character with the quality of enforcement by the district attorney of that county."

DIGS 'DUT'

Farris earlier claimed there was a lack of "vigorous local prosecution" of Bryan by Cameron County Dist. Atty. F.T. "Dut" Graham.

Farris ordered a federal investigation of the Nava slaying. The investigation resulted in the indictment of Bryan.

Farris also was critical of the timing of the prosecution of Paz, saying, "You don't have this sort of a thing happening just because they're just getting around to it because of the heavy docks. I can't believe that."

"I don't know what they hope to gain by it. I think it's unfortunate that they've done it and I also think it's very possible that we might seriously consider subpoenaing all the people involved," Farris said.

FAIR WARNING

"If the fellow was arrested in June of last year, either the case should have been dismissed before now or he should have been tried long before now," Farris said.

"This is now nine months later. This sort of coincidence is just... does not ring true... does not ring right," Farris continued.

"This thing could develop into a violation of a federal statute called obstruction of justice and I will not tolerate anybody obstructing justice," Farris said.

SEC Probe Report Due About May 1

AUSTIN (AP) — Commissioner of Insurance Clay Cotten says that department's investigation of National Bankers Life Insurance Co. of Dallas is expected to be ready shortly after May 1.

Cotten wrote Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin Thursday that the insurance board began its investigation of NBL last Sept. 1, or before the U. S. Securities and Exchange commission started probing the "various Sharp enterprises."

Cotten said the board's investigation was nearing completion when the SEC filed a stock fraud lawsuit in January naming among others, National Bankers Life and Frank Sharp of Houston.

The board investigation covers from June 30, 1970, through December, 1970.

"I feel certain," Cotten wrote Martin, "that the examination report will be in considerable factual detail setting forth all relevant transactions and matters" involving National Bankers Life. "Additionally, I plan to furnish your office with a complete copy of the stock records of National Bankers Life Insurance Co. over a period of the last three years."

Cotten said, however, "There may be transactions by individuals or non-insurance corporations that would not be reflected on the life insurance company's records but may be related to transactions by the insurance company."

Dull-Bladed Cold Front Triggers Rain

A dull-bladed cold front reached from Texarkana into South Central Texas today with predictions it would shove into the Gulf by Saturday leaving mild and fair conditions in its wake.

North and west of the frontal system, skies were generally clear with cool temperatures. Ahead of the cell, cloudiness mixed with fog dominated the area from Corpus Christi to Port Arthur.

The front touched off rain showers with some hail reported in Northwest and North-Central Texas during the night as the unruly weather marched off into Louisiana. The populous Dallas-Fort Worth area was advised to be alert for possible tornadoes for a period Thursday night but none developed.

Temperatures before dawn today ranged from the lower and mid-40s in the Panhandle to the 60s in central sections of the state.

House Approves $5.5 Billion Public Works, Economic Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ignoring hints of a presidential veto, the House has approved a $5.5-billion public works and construction program offered as part of the Democratic plan for boosting the economy.

By a vote of 319 to 67, the House sent to the Senate Thursday a bill authorizing $2 billion for public-works projects in depressed areas; extending special programs for Appalachia and other regions for four years at a cost of $1.54 billion, and earmarking $1.95 billion for upgrading local economies with loans and construction aid.

Cancer Special Gifts Beginning

Less than 10 per cent of those receiving letters of appeal for a helping hand for the Cancer Crusade have responded, but they have been generous.

Mrs. Clyde Angel, special gifts chairman, said that 649 letters were mailed, and the returns have accounted for $811 thus far. She urged those who have overlooked investing in the fight against cancer to mail their gifts to American Cancer Society, Box 2121, Big Spring.

Looking toward the annual fund appeal, which climaxes next week with the house-to-house calls, chapter volunteers have placed bulletin covers in most of the local churches for use Sunday — which is being observed as cancer Sunday.

In addition, 10,000 covers for clothes hangers have been put in the hands of local cleaners so that when patrons get their

Says Fine Arts 'Show Emotion'

"Sculpture is the expression of a thought or emotion in stone, wood or plastic materials," said Mrs. Jim Benet to Alpha Beta Omicron Chapter of Coahoma, Beta Sigma Phi, Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Tommy Fambrough, Crestview Trailer Park.

In her program on painting and sculpture, Mrs. Benet discussed several methods and techniques used in each, and members discussed items displayed by the speaker.

"Painting is composing and organizing natural forms into an expression," said Mrs. Benet, quoting Robert Wood, artist. "One should not conflict actualities in nature with artistic representation; it is the essence of the thing more than the thing itself." Mrs. Benet displayed several landscapes and seascapes done by Wood.

Mrs. Jack Owens presided, and announced that BSP City Council officers will be installed May 6 in the Pioneer Gas Flame Room. Plans were also made for the installation dinner for chapter officers at 7:30 p.m., May 18 at the Brandin Iron Inn.

Members will meet at 6:30 p.m., April 27 in the home of Mrs. Bill Fryrear to assist with the cancer drive.

Parables Show Spiritual Truths

Mrs. C. L. Kirkland read a parable of "A Sower, the Seed and the Soils" for the Women's Bible Study Group, Tuesday at the Westside Baptist Church. She related Christians to the sowers; the Bible to the seed; and the soil to the people who hear about the Bible through the Christians.

Assisting with the program were Mrs. Loyd Murphree, Mrs. Leroy Minschew, Mrs. Ben Boroughs and Mrs. J. O. Murphy. Veterans Toss Medals Away

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several hundred angry and dissembling Vietnam Veterans Against the War lined up on the steps of the U.S. Capitol today and tossed away their bronze stars, combat infantry badges, and other "symbols of shame" they were awarded in the Indochina conflict.

The first veteran to dispose of his ribbons and medals was Phillip Lavoie, of North Dighton, Mass. Lavoie, wearing olive green Army fatigues, walked with the aid of two crutches as a result of wounds he said he suffered in Vietnam.

GET OUT

Before the medal turnbacks began, Mrs. Evelyn Carrasquillo, a Miami, Fla. transplant, Puerto Rican whose son was killed in Vietnam Feb. 8, 1968, addressed the crowd saying "I will not turn my back on my country for which he died."

"But," she said, "it's time to get out and stop the war now." She was carrying a U.S. flag, a bronze star and other medals.

Mrs. Anna M. Pine, of Trenton, N.K., whose son was killed as a member of the 1st Air Cavalry Division Jan. 2, 1968, turned in a bronze star. The mid-morning ceremony on the west front of the Capitol followed a brief and peaceful march from the veterans' encampment site on the Mall to three blocks away.

It climaxed the veterans' four-day campaign in Washington, a prelude to massive antiwar rallies planned by other groups for the weekend.

Thursday's climax came when U.S. District Court Judge George L. Hart lifted his ban against the vets sleeping on the Mall and lashed the administration for first seeking the ban and then failing to enforce it.

"These men are men who have served their country honorably," said Asst. Atty. Gen. Patrick Gray III in explaining the administration's switch. He also noted that the vets have been orderly and peaceful.

Judge Hart, scowling and shouting, told Gray "this court feels that one equal and coordinate branch of government, the judiciary, has been dangerously and improperly used by another, the executive."

OVERRULE COURT

"You have put the veterans in the position of openly defying the laws and the courts of this country," added Hart, himself a decorated veteran of World War II.

Regents May Ax The Daily Texan During Meeting

AUSTIN (AP) — University of Texas regents confer at length today on the future of the student newspaper, The Daily Texan.

Regents have indicated in the past that the paper on occasion has proven embarrassing to the university and should be curbed.

The paper operates under a Texas Student Publications charter which expires July 6. The charter must be renewed, revised or extended now or at a regents' meeting June 14.

Regent Jenkins Garrett of Fort Worth has said he would oppose renewal of the paper's charter.

Regent Frank Erwin Jr. of Austin said earlier that if the Texan wants to remain independent of university control "they had better have a down town and find another way to finance subscriptions."

CHURCH ALTERS CLOCK CHANGE

While most people will be setting their clocks ahead one hour when they go to bed Saturday night, the people who attend Hillcrest Baptist Church, Twenty-second and Gregg, won't.

Instead of setting the clocks ahead Saturday night to fit in with the switch to Daylight Savings Time, that congregation will wait until noon Sunday and change their clocks to 1 at that time.

"Most people lose an hour of sleep, but by waiting until noon Sunday we'll lose our hour in the middle of the day," the Rev. Collins Moore said.

Church services will start at 11 a.m. Central Standard Time and noon DST.

Sen. Tower Swings Mean Backhand At Red China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The table tennis match was an "interesting experiment" in international relations, Sen. John G. Tower says, but he doesn't think it will have much effect on relations between the two super powers.

"I don't think the hospitality shown a few Ping-pong players is going to influence the course of human events," the Texas Republican told a news conference Thursday.

"I don't think anything will normalize our relations with China until some of the currently irrational thinking in Peking has ended," Tower said.

Neither, he said, does the favoring of China being admitted to the United Nations under current conditions.

On other subjects, Tower said he expects all but a residual ground force and air support forces to be withdrawn from Vietnam by the end of this year.

He said he doesn't think demonstrations by Vietnam war veterans this week will alter President Nixon's policy.

Two groups of veterans visited Tower's office but he was out both times.

Tower said he feels the answer to unemployment among returning veterans is "a higher level of defense employment."

The large aerospace companies which usually have large defense contracts are laying off people, Tower said.

He said he was against public service jobs, calling them "make-work" jobs.

"I don't think that's terribly practical," Tower said. "I favor manpower training and incentives to industry."

Tower voted last year to uphold the President's veto of a large manpower training bill sponsored by then Texas Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough, a Democrat.

Tower said that bill exceeded what the President considered adequate spending on manpower training.

W. R. (Bill) Combs, Sweetwater Burial

COLORADO CITY (SC) — W. R. (Bill) Combs, 70, formerly of Sweetwater, died in the Roland Nursing Home in Lorraine this morning.

He was a retired service station operator and had lived in Lorraine the past five years. He was born in Willis Point, Tex., Dec. 9, 1900.

Funeral will be at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Kiker and Son Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Ray Copeland, Lorraine, officiating, and burial in the Sweetwater cemetery.

Survivors include three brothers, Jesse Combs, Odessa, Ed Combs, Sweetwater, and Howard Combs, Lorraine; and one sister, Mrs. Charles Alcorn, Andrews.

'WE HAVE ONE LAST MISSION' Vet Tells Of Viet War Horrors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 27-year-old former Navy lieutenant, his shaggy black hair curling over the collar of his green fatigues, talked in quiet tones of Vietnam horrors carried out by GIs "in the fashion of Ghenghis Khan."

When John Kerry, a Yale law student who heads the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, finished, members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee were nearly speechless.

"You have a Silver Star?" asked Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

ROWS OF RIBBONS

"Yes, sir," said Kerry who was wearing the Army's third highest award for valor at the top of four rows of campaign ribbons.

"You have a Purple Heart with two clusters?" asked Symington.

"Yes, sir."

"You were wounded three times?"

"Yes, sir."

"I have no further questions," said the senator.

As it has been since the committee opened hearings on proposals to end the war Tuesday, the room was packed with some 120 green-clad veterans, youthful peace demonstrators and tourists.

They applauded Kerry more than a dozen times as, in the New England tones of his native Waltham, Mass., he denounced two administrations and predicted growing numbers of GIs would refuse to fight unless Congress acts to halt the war.

TO CHANGE DOCTORS

"There's a GI movement within this country as well as over there," he said. "We're going to change doctors. We're going to take our prescriptions to someone else. We're not going to fight."

Kerry spoke for 30 minutes or so when the hearing opened.

THIS TOWN FOR HIRE — More than 1,000 persons in the financially-troubled town of Tyrone, Pa., stand on Pennsylvania Avenue, the town's main street, for a photo which will be published in a full page ad next month. Residents hope the picture and the ad campaign will bring business to the town of 7,000 and lift it from its economic problems.

Ward County Water Adequate

AUSTIN — Ground-water resources of Ward County are adequate to supply the present rate of demand and to support a two- or three-fold increase in withdrawals, according to a new Texas Water Development Board publication.

An estimated 10 million acre-feet of water is stored in the Allurossa aquifer, the main natural underground reservoir in Ward County. Much of the stored water, especially that in the alluvial deposits along the Pecos River, is too salty for drinking and can be used only to irrigate salt-tolerant crops or for secondary oil recovery.

The publication, TWDB's Report 125, "Water Resources of Ward County, Tex.," was written by D. E. White. It was prepared by the U.S. Geological Survey in cooperation with the Water Development Board.

Copies of Report 125 are available at no charge from the Texas Water Development Board, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Tex. 78711.

Three small calves were reported wandering loose this morning just east of the Holiday Inn on the south service road of IS 20 East. A deputy sheriff was dispatched to the scene, but reported that the calves were gone on his arrival. A check determined that the calves had not escaped from the livestock sale barns on East Third.

me weed out the ones he didn't want," said Shawn.

Shawn, who is also a Boy Scout in Troop 16 here in the city and attends school at Forsan, then began to devise ways to catch the fish. The rain the end of last week had put more water in the holes, and it is not just a simple matter of catching the slimy critters by hand.

First, when the water was somewhat lower, he could just scoop them up, which was a good idea, but the container he used was not clean enough and most of the fish he caught died.

Not to be jolted by premature "bad luck," Shawn secured a cleaner fish-keeper and then began to catch them with a net, but not with much success, because the water was too deep in the holes by that time.

"I think now I will dig a trench from one pool to the main body of water in the spring and catch the fish through the trench to the fresher water," Shawn explained.

By the time Shawn can catch a good stringer to transport to Moss Creek, Earth Week may be over. However, the time, effort and concern put forth by the young ecologist will be appreciated by future fishermen.

Dinner To Honor CRMWD Directors

The Odessa Chamber of Commerce will host an appreciation dinner for present and past directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Exhibition Hall "A" of the Ector County Coliseum.

Big Spring directors planning to attend the event are H. W. Wright, R. W. Currie, John L. Taylor and Dr. Lee O. Rogers. The only living past director from Big Spring is Willard Sullivan. Deceased directors are Robert T. Piner, R. L. Cook, George Mims, Curtis Driver and Ward R. Hall. Also planning to attend is Joe Pickle, editor of the Big Spring Herald, who has acted as secretary-treasurer of the water district since 1949.

The event will take place 20 years after the first spade of dirt was turned in the Colorado River bed in southwest Scurry County to launch the building of the most unique water districts of its kind in the country.

Highlight of the Chuck Wagon Gang steak dinner will be the appearance of J. B. Thomas, Fort Worth, as the principal speaker of the evening. Thomas, retired president of Texas Electric Service Co., is the one man who envisioned and motivated the formation of the CRMWD.

Tickets to the affair are available from the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce for $7 each. Reservations should be made with the chamber by 5 p.m. Monday.

Stanton Squares Dance Saturday

STANTON — Martin County 4-H club square dancers, who have completed 13 weeks of dance lessons, will hold graduation ceremonies at 8 p.m. Saturday in the St. Joseph Catholic Church recreation hall in Stanton. The dancing has been an outgrowth of the 4-H project, "Share the Fun."

Sponsors who have assisted the group are Billy Reagor, county agent, and Mrs. Mildred Eiland, county home demonstration agent. The caller has been Roger Fleckenstein.

One square within the group was chosen to enter last week's competition in Odessa, and placed second, enabling them to enter the state competition in June at Texas A&M University.

Follow A Plan Of Plant Irrigation

By JOHNNY JOHANSEN
City Parks Superintendent
These are challenging days for citizens in this community who are interested in keeping their home grounds in attractive appearance.

It is a problem to keep trees, shrubs and grass alive due to the weather conditions. The drought conditions, not to mention the dust-laden winds, have made it difficult for a home owner to maintain his home grounds satisfactorily.

Perhaps at this time we should not strive to force our plants to a luxuriant growth by the use of over-abundant irrigation. Pruning and fertilizing normally goes along with irrigation in order to produce healthy and attractive plants in the landscape.

MORNING CHECK

A guide to follow in determining when to irrigate is to observe the plants in the morning. If they are wilted in the mornings then they need more water. A succulent plant will normally appear wilted in the hot summer afternoons and evenings, but it will freshen up overnight. They are not suffering from lack of moisture when they follow this pattern.

Many people follow prescribed schedules in maintaining good care of lawns and plants. The schedule should be followed religiously or a yard man should be employed to do so. It is best to have a specified day each week to irrigate lawns, although sometimes the lawn grass could go another week or two without this water.

WATER DEEPLY

Irrigating it is advisable to water deeply and not too often. For instance a tree would be watered adequately if a hose is left barely trickling water on a tree all day or night, and perhaps would not need watering again for months. This should be done during the winter as well as in the summer months.

Shrubs and flowers also benefit from this method of applying water. It will of course require a longer time to complete the task, but it will not have to be done so often. Also the loss of water from run-off is less likely.

Some suggested golden rules to successful gardening and landscaping are:
—Garden for the fun of it.
—Read the experts and follow their advice.
—Find out what plants do well in your area.
—Don't be afraid to think for yourself and experiment some, but don't go overboard on some of these ideas. They may not be practical and could be expensive as well as a waste of time.

A Choice Spot For Begonias

Do you have a shady back porch or balcony that needs perking up with a dash of color and gaiety? Then, dress up this important spot with brilliant red and pink begonias, says the Society of American Florists. Quick-color in the shade is possible if you suspend potted fibrous begonias of the hanging type from a tree limb or outer edge of the porch roof. Begonias should receive direct sun only in the morning. And, remember that on warm summer days, they need frequent watering.

Plants That Will Grow In Yard's Shady Areas

By EARL ARONSON
AP News Columnist

Why not a wild garden, especially if there is a shady area, or a spot on the north side you'd like to beautify, or where conventional items won't bloom? Once established, such a garden needs little tending.

For a so-called woody, or shaded garden, condition the soil properly. Work into the top 8 or 9 inches of ground a large helping of decayed leafmold or peatmoss. You really can't overdo this. About four inches would be excellent. Then add as a mulch several inches more of rotted leaves or, if you want an acid garden, pine needles.

An acquaintance at Union Fork and Hoe suggests white and purple trillium, white baneberries, bloodroot, eximia bleeding hearts, wild ginger for ground cover. Jack-in-the-pulpits, turtleheads and flaming cardinal flowers.

Jack-in-the-pulpits and trilliums grow from bulbs, which should be planted six inches deep. The others should be set in the same depths they were before.

Less showy are ostrich and cinnamon fern. Growing lower are Christmas ferns, graceful maidenhairs or 6-inch rock polypods.

The selection is less for a pine-needle garden. If your soil is sandy, there are dwarf junipers, low-bush blueberries, lupines from seed, birdfoot violets, wintergreen and partridgeberry vines.

If the area is sunny meadowland, dig deep, but skip the mulch, and try lavender and white liatrises, tall and moss phlox, daisies, black-eyed Susans, lychnis, spiralee spires, golden coreopsis and gaitardia.

GARDEN BOOK

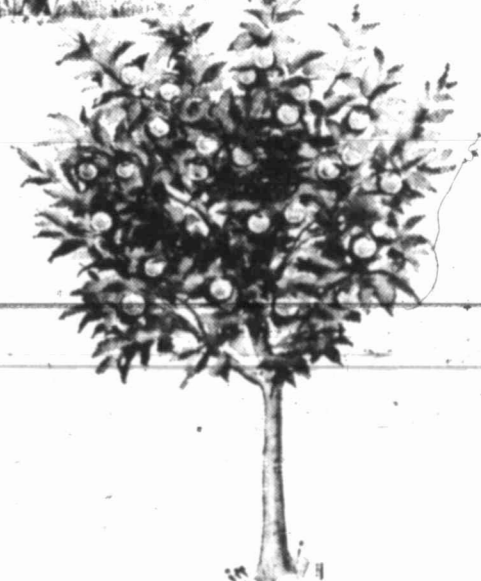

Shakespeare often turned to flowers to add color and life to his writing. Jessica Kerr tracked down many of the flowers the famed English author mentioned and with artist Anne Ophelia Dowden blended the information into a pleasant little book, "Shakespeare's Flowers," Thomas Y. Crowell Co.

Some of the flower items had to be shipped to Connecticut (the author's home) from England for proper identification. How else could the author and artist tell whether a cowslip from the time of "The Tempest" and a Yankee cowslip resembled each other?

Carnations were called gilly flowers, and a harebell and a bluebell were alike. The plants, Shakespearean source, and his plays are indexed in the book.

Plenty Of Good Tools To Aid In Gardening

By PAUL GROSS
Howard Co. Agri. Agent

Garden tools for today's gardener have become just as sophisticated as tools for any trade or industry, yet the old standby, the garden hoe, is probably used just as much today as it was 50 years ago.

Today's gardener may select most any kind of power equipment for the job to be done: rotor tillers, mowers, edgers, hedge trimmers, or automatic watering systems. Most of this equipment is powered by electricity or gasoline — driven motors.

Most of today's gardeners use many hand tools. That favorite, and many times well-worn, spade or rake hanging in the garage or utility house may even have been handed down from another generation to the present user. Garden tools, like any other tools, should be kept in top shape to perform satisfactorily. As an example, the blades of grass mowers that are not kept sharp will crush the blade of grass instead of cutting, and consequently, the yard will have a dead appearance after mowing until new growth begins. The eye bolt in pruning shears should be tightened, of course the shears should be sharpened periodically to get a good clean cut and not "strip" the bark from the limb. In fact, all tools, regardless of how large or small, will not give satisfactory results unless they are sharpened and adjusted as the need arises.

where is the gardener that has not, at some time, stepped on a hoe or rake only to have the handle fly up and swat him in the face?

PROPER STORAGE

Proper storage of garden tools should always be observed. Winter storage of metal tools, such as hand shears, hoes, rakes, spades, etc., may be stored in a sand box. The sand should be lightly oiled throughout and the tools then covered in the sand. This will prevent rusting and preserve the tools. Gasoline powered equipment should have the gasoline drained from the tank and carburetor and a light coat of oil applied in the gasoline tank and carburetor. After a period of time, gasoline has a tendency to form "gums" that will clog up fuel lines. Inspect all electrical cords and connections and replace if frayed or worn.

Gardening today appeals to both young and old. It is one of our most popular pastimes. The tools to garden may cost from a few cents to hundreds of dollars, but most people feel this money well spent, depending, of course, on whether you want to have the greenest yard on the block, or whether the little woman has been nagging you to leave the TV and easy chair and go mow the yard.

Safety with garden tools is a must. It is reported that the most dangerous tool or equipment around the home is the power mower. In 1970, more injuries were reported as the result of its misuse than any other home equipment; and

No Green Thumb?

You Still Can Learn By Reading

NEW YORK (AP) — Is there really such a thing as a green thumb?

Yes, believes internationally known horticulturist Dr. Donald Wyman. But he adds that people who were not born with this useful appendage can still become successful gardeners by reading and doing.

"Many people have a feeling for growing plants," explains the former president and director of the American Horticultural Society. They're observant of nature, know by instinct how far down to plant, when there's too much water, or not enough. But anyone can learn to make things grow, whether in a tiny window pot or a large outdoor plot."

READ UP

The secret is to select as a start one plant that interests you and read everything available on how to grow it, advises Wyman who has been with Harvard University's Arnold Arboretum for the past 35 years and is the author of numerous articles and books on horticulture.

His latest book is "Wyman's Gardening Encyclopedia," a volume crammed with information on some 9,000 plants, including hardiness ratings and proper selection for various climates, and advice on use of pesticides and fertilizers. "Growing things brings a feeling of creation, of personal accomplishment," declared the author on a visit to New York. "From 25 cents worth of seeds you're able to get 50 feet of zinnias to cut bouquets and bring beauty into the house."

ANNUALS FIRST

"Before you plant take a few minutes and decide why you want a garden," he urged. "Do you want it for beauty, for recreation, for cut flowers or a combination of these things? All are factors in whether you broadcast seeds and wait to see what comes up or whether you plan carefully."

He suggests that if you're a rank amateur you might start with annuals, so you can see the whole thing happen in one season and if you've made a mistake it won't be perpetuated. But with perennials, which come up year after year, a little more forethought is needed to make sure, for instance, that the taller flowers are in the back.

THIN PLANTS

"The greatest mistake people make in outdoor gardens is failure to thin plants enough," Dr. Wyman points out. "Plants need lots of room. One will grow well in a given space but let 12 struggle there and they may not even flower. You've got to have the guts to pull out those extras or you'll have scrawny plants."

The most common error in indoor gardening, he says, is watering too much or too little. The soil shouldn't be muddy, with water remaining in the pan at the base. On the other hand, if the leaves appear to be wilting the plant isn't getting enough moisture.

"For fertilizer, there's nothing like good well-rooted manure, but nowadays people don't even know what a cow or horse is," says Wyman. "So you have to go to dried manure products or to a complete commercial fertilizer."

NOT TOO MUCH

"The trick is not to apply too much," he continues. "If two pounds will make things grow, why wouldn't four pounds make them grow twice as much? The truth is, twice as much could kill them."

Recognizing the dangers of pesticides, Wyman nevertheless sees the need for using them with discretion. "If you've ever grown beans in a vegetable garden you know you have to put something on them to kill the Mexican bean beetle or you won't have any beans," he explains. "Certainly, don't spray everything indiscriminately. Know what insect or disease you're spraying for and what you're spraying with."

ANDERSON AND FRIEND
... Featured In Trinity Revival

Ventriloquist-Preacher Is Featured In 5-Day Revival

Jim Anderson, aided by Leigh Roche as singer, will lead in a five-day revival meeting at Trinity Baptist Church starting Wednesday 7 p.m. through May 2, — but he has some other aides, too.

They happen to be Harry Kinder, an impish dummy, and Roscoe, a talkative hound. Anderson is a ventriloquist who uses his skill to entertain and then explain the Gospel to children.

Harry constantly keeps the preacher in hot water, with his banter and quick retorts, and if this were not enough, Roscoe, who wouldn't hurt a flea, enters the picture. He just can't seem to get things right. But when it comes to telling the story of Jesus, they both are eager to help explain how God gave His Son to save boys and girls.

Anderson has been presented with his pals on the Ted Mack Original Amateur Hour, the Children's Hour, and Perspective Exposure. He has made countless appearances in hospitals, schools, camps, etc. — But Anderson is first of all a preacher, a career begun when he was a teenager in Kansas City, Mo. During the past 16 years, he has pastored several churches, including South Side in Fort Worth, and spent four years in full-time evangelistic service. He was chairman of youth for a Billy Graham Associates crusade.

Legless Veteran Wins Walkathon

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Gene Roberts was the first of 4,000 persons to complete a 25-mile March of Dimes walkathon.

Only Roberts didn't walk. He pushed himself along by his arms for 16 hours, the lower part of his body wrapped in a canvas bag.

His wife Lisa walked at his side during the night. A police car provided escort and his twin brother James accompanied him during the last few miles.

LOST LEGS TO MINE
Roberts, 25, a father of two, lost his legs five years ago when he stepped on a land mine one month after arriving in Vietnam with the Marines.

A former high school athletic champion, Roberts completed the 26-mile Boston Marathon in a wheelchair last April and swam 12 miles across the Chesapeake Bay and back the following August.

This September he said, he will try to swim the English Channel.

PRaise THE LORD

"Losing my legs never really bothered me that much. I had the same problems then that I had already. I'm not going to blame anything on my legs."

A Bible reader since his Vietnam tour, Roberts' conversation is punctuated with frequent quotations, religious maxims and "Praise the Lord."

"The reason I have to talk about Jesus so much is that no one else does. I have to spread the word. The only thing that keeps me going is my faith," he said.

PHYSICAL TESTIMONY

Roberts began testing his physical endurance as testimony to his religious faith. "I felt like quitting so many times it was a shame," he said after the March of Dimes walkathon. "I was coming down the road and I was crying. I said to myself, 'Why am I doing this?'"

The marathon march raised $150,000, but Roberts said, "It's not the money that's so important. The most important thing is that people got together."

Move Clock Hands Up, Time Changes Sunday

"The times they are a'changing" — from standard to daylight savings, that is. There will be no 2 a.m. Sunday. Instead, it will call itself 3 a.m.

In order to insure that the family will arrive on time for church and Sunday school services, the clocks should be moved one hour ahead Saturday night, but for once, latecomers will have an at least partially pardonable excuse.

Everyone will be short-changed one hour's sleep, but it will be made up when the shift back to standard time is made in October.

With these young pups, that worried look isn't real. You might call it a physiological illusion. The whole problem is that their heads haven't grown enough to fill out the wrinkles in their brows.

But with people a worried look is usually real. It reflects the deep concerns that trouble our world and lives.

Yet worry isn't going to improve the world. Its only real value is that it encourages us to seek solutions where they can be found. The best thing to replace worry with is FAITH.

Through the centuries man has found hope and courage in the truths of religion. God never meant us to solve our problems alone. Perhaps our most perplexing problem today is that too many people have been trying to do just that!

Political Future Of Agnew Remains Very Much In Doubt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The political future of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew remains very much in doubt following his reported uneasiness about President Nixon's new approach toward broader travel and trade relations with China. The White House officially says Nixon has full confidence in Agnew, but one source in the executive mansion has suggested that the vice president had ended his usefulness to Nixon by challenging the administration's new China policy.

VEEP ISOLATED

Other White House sources emphasized that Nixon's move to ease relations with Peking was not a sudden decision—that the President had long felt the United States should renew ties to the mainland severed more than two decades ago.

At the moment, Agnew might seem to be isolated inside the administration councils on the China question.

For example, Secretary of State William P. Rogers went out of his way earlier this week to counter Agnew's reported statements about Nixon's policy decisions.

Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, Republican national chairman, told newsmen Thursday night the decision to allow the table tennis team to accept the invitation to visit China was "obviously well thought out."

"As the President said about this," Dole told a news conference preceding a GOP fund-raising dinner in the Philadelphia suburb of Springfield, "there is more to it than meets the eye."

RIFT RUMORS

The party chairman said he did not think there was a rift between Nixon and Agnew.

Agnew was quoted as saying after sessions at Williamsburg, Va., Monday with reporters and Republican governors that he felt the Chinese had scored a propaganda breakthrough by virtue of the visit there by representatives of the U.S. Table Tennis Association.

Further, he was said to have argued, Nixon's new efforts to be conciliatory toward Peking would undercut the position of the Nationalist Chinese on Taiwan.

Nixon, it was learned, hopes to welcome Communist Chinese table tennis players to the United States in the relatively near future.

He has even said he would like to go to Peking or another major mainland city himself. Spiro T. Agnew has yet to express the like longing—which may or may not be relevant to his political longevity.

Horoscope Forecast

TOMORROW

—CARROL RIGHTER

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There are difficult influences of work today that require care on your part, particularly in travel, as well as in conversations with others, so it behooves you to be on your toes at all times. Show others that you are an understanding person. Do nothing to irritate others or you could get in trouble. Caution is the keynote today.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Avoid not to be subservient with mate or you will lose respect of this person. Being more independent will be the dangerous as well as expensive. Take salvation you need from today's problems. Then the evening becomes ideal.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Control the temper, and you get along much better with everyone. If you have any grievances, put them in writing and then be reasonable. As a result life becomes far more tolerable.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) One who works with you is most valuable, so don't pull any fast tricks with this person or you come out the loser. Show gratitude for loyalty instead. Being more moderate in drinking and eating habits is wise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) One of whom you are most fond could be adversely influenced by another today. Show patience—but get—of the cause of things. Arguments could lead to a severance of connections that would be most regrettable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) This is a day when you can express yourself easily and with little tension. You can get much accomplished now that was difficult before. Use diplomacy at home and you find the evening can be easier also. Take time for study.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Use that data you obtained yesterday and get the benefits you want. Others have been imposing upon you for a long time. Don't permit them to do that today. Go to bed early tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You should concentrate on work almost exclusively today so that you accomplish a great deal. There are important tasks of hand which you should not put off any longer. Satisfaction comes tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A situation at home is best handled by taking a firm stand tonight. Don't permit an envious person to push you around. Do something about your health condition. Stop, being so self-sacrificing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good friend gives you a fine idea that you should adopt immediately and get the right benefits from it. Stop getting so upset over person who likes to taunt you. Walk away and smile.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Don't take it out on your mate or family because you are being imposed upon in the business world. Stand up for your rights and you become more successful. Remember that a man is worthy of his hire.

AND THAT'S A GOOD DEAL American Airmen Losing Their Blood Every Day

SAN ANGELO (AP)—There's no war here but American airmen are losing their blood every day.

Without Goodfellow Air Force Base, hospitals within 150 miles of San Angelo would be hard-pressed to acquire enough whole blood to operate.

For a year and a half, volunteers from Goodfellow AFB have been cooperating in Operation Life—described as one of the most efficient blood donor systems in the nation.

'OUR SALVATION'
"Without the air base, it would have been extremely difficult to build up an effective donor program," said Elmer J. Martin, agent for the blood service in San Angelo.

"The airmen have been our salvation at times," he said. M. Sgt. Bill Riley, stationed at Goodfellow, said he impresses each new base assignee with the importance of participating in Operation Life.

"It could be anyone out at the base who might need blood for surgery or a transfusion and there might be a shortage if the airmen didn't donate," he added.

Blood is only good in storage for about 3 weeks. After that, it can't be used in transfusions, Martin pointed out. He emphasized that once blood has expired, it can't be frozen or stored in the way many people believe. More has to be donated to restore the supply.

WAR ON DEATH
To encourage airmen at Goodfellow to donate their blood, free transportation is provided into San Angelo for that purpose.

The San Angelo blood service provides complete stocks for 12 surrounding hospitals and partial supplies of blood to others. Delivery requires swift and constant transportation.

The national rate for blood expiration—that rate, for more than 21 days and therefore which has become unusable—is 15 per cent. The rate here is 3 per cent—lowest in the nation, Martin said.

Much of this success is due

Workshop Here On Adolescents

The fourth annual adolescent workshop began Thursday at Big Spring State Hospital and will conclude today.

More than 80 persons attended the Thursday sessions designed for school principals, teachers, counselors, county judges and other people closely involved with services and programs for emotionally disturbed children.

The Thursday sessions broke up in the afternoon into small groups that discussed specific problems. Today's session got under way with a talk on drug research by Dr. Timothy Sharma. At noon the group was scheduled to hear a talk by Dr. Mary Bulbis and Dr. Sharma about talking to children. A question and answer session with Dr. Bulbis was scheduled for the afternoon.

'DEEREST SPOT ON EARTH'

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP)—Les Hamilton of Palestine, contributing editor for the "Trinity Valley Progress" magazine and a director of the Trinity Improvement Association, recalls that some years ago, Leon County was the Black-eyed pea "capital of the Trinity Basin, if not the whole country."

Each year the folks down at Centerville held a Black-eyed Pea Festival which attracted large crowds.

But, it seems that as the county produced more blackeyes, it attracted more wild deer, as the deer found the peas excellent browse.

Today, as noted in the mast of J. E. Dickey's Leon County News, the county is the "deerest spot on earth," and hunting has somewhat replaced the blackeyes in the county's economy.

When public welfare is competitive with low-wage employment, welfare will win. Such a condition was projected by President Nixon in support of his family assistance proposal.

His diagnosis of public welfare is a monumental failure. His cure: make work worthwhile. The President's speech was to Republican governors and it had more of a bite to it than previous pleas for welfare reform. He said it is incredible that "we have allowed a system of laws under which one person can be penalized for doing an honest day's work and another person can be rewarded for doing nothing." That is probably oversimplified, but the truth is all big cities and most states are faced with doing something rather drastic soon if the welfare program remains operative.

A part of the problem is the mass migration of poor and low-skilled persons to cities in the past two decades. They have migrated to places where welfare rates are highest. In addition, federal assistance (matching funds) has boosted state shares sharply. That's Texas' current problem.

Yet, maintenance of poor people, as distinguished from those physically or mentally unable to work, is not that big a problem. The number of persons who would rather be on welfare than on the job is smaller than the President indicated.

Gov. Ronald Reagan, whose state has a big welfare problem, has suggested automating a cash flow to persons unable to work. That saves money, eliminates case-worker verification of the obvious, reduces the size of the rest of the problem.

The rest of the problem is to devise a system that motivates a move up from poverty. That is a difficult assignment, no doubt, but it's worth tackling.

Sticky Issue

Not long after the bitter battle which ended in the death of government subsidies for the supersonic transport, Congress may be asked to shore up Lockheed Aircraft Corp. by guaranteeing up to $300 million in loans.

Lockheed, a major defense contractor, has had difficulties with the C5, the Cheyenne helicopter, ship building and a short-range missile. Despite cost overruns and development problems, the government has an interest in Lockheed's survival to deliver weapons systems.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally came up with the plan for government-guaranteed loans. If the decision is made to ask Congress for approval, Connally faces a tough selling job.

Bankruptcy by Lockheed would be a blow to our defense system. Yet should public money be used to support the salvaging of a company's commercial effort? Are the country's and Lockheed's interests so intertwined that there is no stopping place? Congress may have to answer that difficult question, and soon.

Mideast Tension

Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON — Whether the brief interlude for negotiating a peace in the Middle East is now at an end is the deeply troubling prospect raised by the current headlines. From Cairo comes news of the new Arab federation with heated rhetoric of "no negotiation" and not a single inch of conquered Arab territory to be retained by Israel.

ACCOMPANYING the political news is word of the most-advanced Soviet weapons, planes and anti-aircraft hardware, shipped in quantity to Egypt. This seems to add up to a new and far more savage war in the not-too-distant future.

Nevertheless, the attitude of American policymakers is still one of relative optimism. They read the new Arab federation — Egypt, Libya and Syria — as more form than substance. For Egypt's President Anwar el-Sadat, concentrating since he took over following the death of Gamal Abdel Nasser on internal reforms, it is an effort to broaden his image in the Arab world.

SO CRITICAL is the picture reflected in the news that the official spectacles may be rose-colored. The men who have been trying to get negotiation going, persuading Israel to make a concrete reply about territory in response to Sadat's offer of peace with recognition of the rights of the Israeli state, readily concede that each passing week adds to the shakiness of the cease-fire along the Suez Canal.

The statement 10 days ago by

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird touched off a violent reaction. Laird said that the United States would, through military aid to Israel, insure that a balance is maintained. Arab diplomats in Washington descended on the State Department to protest that this was, in effect, giving Israel assurance that she need not make any concessions to get a settlement.

WHAT ABOUT all the reports that the department was working hard to coax Israel to make minor territorial concessions? Was the Laird statement not a repudiation of that effort? These were the questions put in the sharpest fashion to Assistant Secretary for the Middle East Joseph J. Sisco and others coping with the whole delicate and dangerous business.

The recent Soviet arms shipments to Egypt have not upset the power balance, in the view of officials here. Israel concurs in this view, they say. While Soviet shipments are widely advertised in Cairo and Jerusalem, with a strong assist from the Pentagon, the continuing flow of Phantom F-4E fighter bombers and other advanced war material is unobtrusive.

BOTH SIDES are looking seriously toward a partial settlement, with the opening of the Suez Canal and at least a symbolic pullback by Israeli forces from the east bank. That will be facilitated when Israel makes the soon-to-come response to the questions put by United Nations negotiator Gunnar Jarring on the issue of territory.

LET'S BE SURE TO WATCH HIS BACKHAND

The FBI's Job

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — In the furor over Sen. Ed Muskie's charges that the FBI did political spying at Earth Day rallies across the country last year, J. Edgar Hoover and his men have a much stronger case than Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell — at this writing — has chosen to present.

MITCHELL'S FORMAL reply to Muskie's attack was confined only to the Washington rally. He noted almost off-handedly that the FBI does have "a most legitimate interest in the activities of persons whose known records reveal a likelihood of violence, incitement to riot or other criminal behavior." Mitchell mentioned only one person "who was actually out on bail for Federal conviction of inciting to riot."

Actually, as government records show, the FBI had advance information from informants that "more than 50" individuals awaiting trial on assorted riot-connected charges hoped to use the rallies to foment violence. Because of FBI surveillance, there were very minor incidents of disorder.

MUSKIE'S UNDERSTANDABLE concern to the contrary notwithstanding, it seems to me the FBI merely was doing its perhaps distasteful but absolutely mandatory job in keeping track of potential troublemakers.

Moreover, the FBI would have gotten hell from these critics had there been serious outbreaks of violence. It requires no prodigious memory to recall that after the April, 1968, Martin Luther King riots, there were bitter outcries from various quarters asking, "Where was the FBI?"

HOOVER'S OPPONENTS now ask why the FBI should have been interested in peaceful rallies designed to focus public attention on dangers to the environment. The answer is that a lot of vicious revolutionary nuts use such respectable occurrences as a screen behind which they attempt to incite riots.

It is all very well to say that 99 per cent of the demonstrators are decent, peaceful people. The FBI's job is to deal with the 1 per cent bent on trouble making. In doing so, the agency fulfills its statutory obligation to function as the intelligence arm of the nation's law-enforcement forces. Put simply, if the cops know who the potential rabble rousers are, they already have won half the battle to keep the peace.

THESE FACTS of life are well known to Ed Muskie, Sen. George McGovern, other candidates for President and assorted lesser politicians who have expressed varying degrees of sympathy for those subjected to "FBI surveillance." Muskie, McGovern and most of the others are decent, thoughtful, well-intentioned men, but they must know that their support can be construed by the calculated lunatics as quasi-official approval of an anything-goes policy.

Expert Expects More Suicides

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The chairman of the local Suicide-Prevention Center expects an increase in the country's suicide rate if there is an economic slump this year. Sam Bloomberg said "if there is a decline in our prosperity, it will lead to a general loss of hope and security — both causes of suicide — and this, coupled with the continuing decline of the stock exchange, will have an effect on the suicidal person and therefore we can expect more suicides."

My Answer

Billy Graham

Whenever I go to a certain church I feel uneasy, restless, and have a guilty feeling. I don't know why I should feel this way as the sermon is challenging and the people are friendly. Can you explain this please?

A.D. I think I know what your problem is. You are possibly hearing the Gospel in this one church, and the preaching of the Gospel always gives us a feeling of guilt. This is as it should be until we have our conscience cleansed through the blood of Christ. It is when we come to Christ with our sins and accept Him as our Savior that we find a release from these times of guilty feeling. If you were at peace with God, this would not likely happen. Rather than to leave off attending that church, I would suggest that you give special attention to the message and to your own personal need. Let Christ take over in your life and the peace of God will take the place of the guilt consciousness. This uneasy feeling is possibly the convicting presence of the Holy Spirit. You should be thankful He is bothering you. Without this conviction no man can come to God.

A Devotion For Today...

If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place: and it shall remove. (Matthew 17:20 ASV)

PRAYER: Great in me, O God, a confidence in Thee and in my fellowman which shall remove every hindrance to Thy will, for Thine is the kingdom and the power. Amen.

The School Rulings

David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court has at last clarified its position on the power of the nation's judiciary to exercise broad authority to do away with what is known as "de jure" segregation. This is the kind which is imposed by state law or other governmental authority, as distinguished from "de facto" segregation which is the result of neighborhood patterns in an area that may naturally give a school a larger population of one race or another.

Four major decisions issued by the high court in unanimous opinions this week were devoted to cases that arose in the South where antibusing laws and other restrictions to integration had been applied.

WHAT THE Supreme Court has decided about busing does not make in mandatory in all parts of the country. Steps taken in the South, for instance, to transport students to distant schools had led to enactment of a state law in North Carolina prohibiting busing, but that statute has now been proclaimed invalid. The high court ruled that to assign children to a particular school and use the remedial technique of bus transportation "as a tool of school desegregation" is within a district court's power to provide equitable relief. The Supreme Court, however, made this comment:

"AN OBJECTION to transportation of students may have validity when the time or distance of travel is so great as to risk either the health of the children or significantly impinge on the educational process. . . . Limits on time of travel will vary with many factors, but probably with none more than the age of the students."

On the whole, the four opinions upheld the right of the lower courts to deal with the desegregation problem and to determine whether the local authorities were assigning students in a manner to eliminate "state-imposed segregation." The Supreme Court further said that it rejects the contention that "the Constitution prohibits district courts from using their equity power to order assignment of teachers to achieve a particular degree of faculty desegregation."

IN ANOTHER PART of the same decision, the high court held that the Civil Rights Act of 1964 "does not restrict those powers or withdraw from the federal courts their historic equitable remedial powers." This significant statement followed:

"Existing policy and practice with regard to faculty, staff, transportation, extracurricular activities, and facilities were among the most important indicia of a segregated system. . . . The first remedial responsibility of school authorities is to eliminate invidious racial distinctions. . . . Normal administrative practices should then produce schools of like quality, facilities, and staffs."

WHILE THE Supreme Court in its four unanimous opinions — all written by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger — made clear what is needed to abolish state-imposed segregated public school systems, the rulings do not apply to what is known as "de facto" segregation.

The probability is that many parts of the United States will continue to have all-black schools and all-white schools. Congress, incidentally, stipulated in a 1968 appropriations act that no public funds could be spent to correct racial imbalance. The interpretation now will be that this refers only to the retention of "de facto" segregation wherever it has naturally occurred.

Foreign Aid Faults

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Does foreign aid from an industrially advanced country really help an underdeveloped nation move toward a goal of economic equality? Or could it retard that nation's advance?

Not just Americans, but officials of many other nations have long believed that the question provided its own self-evident answer, and that if the economic answer wasn't convincing it could be buttressed by the moral imperative.

Now a growing segment of businessmen and others concerned with such matters appear to have growing doubts that the assumption is correct.

The chief factor in their doubts is a little publicized speech made last year by a professor at the University of Edinburgh, and condensed recently in a Chase Manhattan Bank publication "without endorsement."

The address by Prof. Harry Johnson of the University of Chicago and the London School of Economics and Political Science, was sharply critical of the Pearson Report, made late in 1969 and widely acclaimed.

The report, sponsored by the World Bank, was allegedly an effort to revive enthusiasm for foreign aid, and it carried a suggestive title intended to advance that goal: "Partners in Development."

Johnson maintains that the report was "the inevitable result of the conflict between moral conception and the facts of reality that arises with any charitable operation such as development aid or the relief of poverty."

In other words, the moral interpretation distorted the picture. It led to fictions, such as the one, Johnson states, that asserts that nations are really equals, even if one is less endowed by nature. Propaganda, says Johnson.

The professor states that there is a real question of whether development aid has promoted or retarded development, and if it has promoted it, how significant its influence has been.

He argues that some critics believe aid has encouraged developing countries "to pursue counter-developmental policies and permitted them to preserve archaic social and political structures, and so has retarded rather than promoted modernization."

The Pearson Report, he stated, "is unable to adduce any clear evidence that aid has promoted growth. The usefulness of aid in promoting development remains an act of faith."

Johnson believes that the trend of the future may be away from dependence upon the powers of government "to promote development by the use of its powers of control and planning and its economic powers of taxation of its citizens."

She Never Showed Up

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Life has its good days and its bad days. Not all our hours are lit by wine and roses.

We are not always a bonfire or a bouquet to ourselves. Sometimes a clinker in the eye obscures a rainbow.

There are the bad days to keep even the largest ego humble.

Such as when:

Times were so bad that when you lost a tooth you woke up the next morning and found a nickel instead of a dime under your pillow.

You asked her for a date and she told you frankly that she was going to be terribly, terribly busy for a long, long time.

It was the last hurdle in the race and you thought you were home ahead, but then your hind foot hit the hurdle and you landed on your elbow and when you got up your arm dangled oddly awry and you felt dizzy and sick at your stomach.

She said she'd meet you there, but she never showed up.

The doctor said the bifocals would give you a different outlook, but when you put them on and stared at yourself in the mirror all you saw was wearing bifocals.

She said when you married her that you could have all your wishes, and how does that bear on the fact that now you do all the dishes?

You never had acne in your life before, and then on the morning of the senior prom you awoke with a face that looked as if it had been bombarded by strawberries.

Five years to the day after you told the boy you didn't want him as a son-in-law, he and your daughter took you and your wife to dinner and showed you a paycheck twice the size of your own.

And then there was the day that the third consecutive red-head in your life told you goodbye even before you had felt you had given her an adequate hello, and you realized that you were just one more of those guys doomed to be unloved by a red-haired girl.

Yes, there are days on which the only reason to get up is so you can lie back down in bed again and count your wounds.

Tale Of Artists

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I do not get along very well. In fact, if it weren't for the kids, I wouldn't live within 1,000 miles of this idiot. We are both artists and my husband specializes in Western art now, and he has been selling his paintings before the oil is dry on the canvas. I don't mean to put him down, but my work is much better than his even if it doesn't sell half as well. The public just happens to be going for gimmick art.

I can hardly stand it when my husband sells a painting. For one thing, he has a way of gloating that makes me want to put my fist right through his face. I wish I knew how to get love my own mother more. She and her new husband visited us last Christmas, and during the evening he made me a little uncomfortable just by the way he kept looking at me. He followed me into the kitchen once and said he wanted to give me a little Christmas kiss. I gave him my cheek but he grabbed me and said, "No, not THAT kind..." then he tried to kiss me on the mouth. I got away from him and kept my distance all evening.

Now he calls me on the phone when he knows my husband is at work. He says he wants to talk to me. I am afraid of him. He is 70.

Please tell me how to handle this. PAPA PROBLEM: DEAR GROOM: Tell him that if he doesn't leave you alone you will tell your husband that he has been bothering you. And if that doesn't straighten him out, make good your threat.

DEAR ABBY: When my girl and I started going together, I asked her to please get her teeth fixed as she needed it badly. I even offered to pay for it. She agreed to see a dentist but she never did. I know she hasn't been to a dentist in a good many years. We are planning to be married in a few months so last night I reminded her of her promise and told her to start right away so she would look nice for our wedding. She turned very cold on me and said she didn't want to discuss it.

Abby, she's a very pretty girl but her teeth are ugly, when she smiles it spoils her looks. She's a wonderful person in every other way, but her teeth are so bad I would even postpone our wedding until she gets them fixed. What should I do?

THE GROOM: DEAR GROOM: The only logical reason for your fiancée to duck the dentist is fear! She needs to be assured that dentistry has come a long way since she was a little girl. Offer to go with her, and let the dentist examine her mouth and explain exactly what must be done. A neglected mouth is not only unsightly, it's unhealthy. She may be a "wonderful" girl, but she needs to grow up and face reality. Help her.

nothing you can do to prevent them. However, there is no reason to think that if you have more children they necessarily will have this trouble.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I know many people would be interested in knowing this. When you lose quite a bit of weight, exactly where do all those lost pounds go? —M.W.

The same place pounds go if you work very hard and lose weight — away.

If you eat more than you need for energy, warmth, and supplying other needs of your body, the excess amount is converted into fat which the body stores for future needs.

Now suppose you go on a diet and eat less than you need. Your body will take a little of that stored fat, convert it into energy, and you'll use it up.

This is aside from the fact that it is possible to lose weight (but only temporarily) by losing moisture from the body — a "drying out" process. If your system really has too much water in it, treatment can advantageously remove some of it.

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level that best suits your individual needs. For a copy, write to Dr. Thosteson, care of The Herald, enclosing 25 cents in coin, and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Summer Jobs Hard To Find

Students Should Take Initiative

By RICHARD BLYSTONE
Associated Press Writer

If you are a college student without a summer job sewed up, you could be in for a couple of months of unwelcome leisure unless you take the initiative fast, say placement advisers across the country.

You're at the bottom of the pile in the worst youth employment market in recent years, the advisers say, but they offer some tips on how to give it the old college try.

Get to your school's jobs placement office right away. The people there will have information on specific employers in your area.

But they and you are up against it.

No summer help wanted signs already adorn the doors of several businesses in Cambridge, Mass., home of Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The number of summer jobs offered received by our office last year was down 20 to 25 per cent, says R. F. Gibson, student employment counselor at Harvard. "I would guess the situation would be still worse this summer."

Most firms don't want to be in the position of bringing in a young person when they are laying off people with 10, 15 or more years of experience," says J. Douglas Sluder, placement director of Indiana University's business school.

The outlook is bad enough for June graduates, and worse for undergraduates, says Jack Shingleton, placement director at Michigan State. Not only are corporations and businesses cutting back on summer programs, he says but the drought reaches into areas that normally abound with summer jobs.

"I think we'll find the resort business will be down this year — at least the early indications suggest that — camps are down and funding for parks seems to be less."

Last summer there were many students who did not get summer jobs — or the type that paid the money they needed. That will be compounded this year, both because we've got more students and because their parents have not been doing so well this year."

Kids are really caught in the middle," says Pamela Morehead, associate placement director at Macalester in St. Paul, Minn. Lower summer earnings, she noted, mean more demand for hard-pressed financial aid funds.

Given the situation, you'd better shed any rigid preconceptions about the kind of job that suits you.

"Students shouldn't expect to get a professional level job plus great salary, plus good location. They might get one of these but not all of them," says Lucy Kennedy, summer employment counselor, "and that any available jobs will go to those who put out the energy."

"We're advising students to make personal contacts and sell the idea of the student making a contribution to the organization at lower cost," says Shingleton.

One good selling point is to portray yourself as a potential career employee of the company you apply to, says Stephen Cohen, associate placement director at Tennessee State University.

Summer oriented businesses are obvious prospects. Try plant nurseries, food resort facilities and tourist attractions.

The head of the student-run Harvard Student Agencies, senior Chuck Talmage, has these tips:

Publishers of tourist guide books often need investigators to check and update their information on prices, schedules, entertainment possibilities and the like. Because many tourist areas don't gear up until summer, much of the information has to be gathered during vacation time.

Moving companies usually need lots of summer help but are often overlooked by students.

"Try every possible source," says Miss Morehead of Macalester, including the Yellow Pages.

"Tap all the resources of your family — including your 32nd cousin twice removed," says a spokesman for the New York State Division of Employment.

Other counselors say don't overlook small businesses and try corporations that have had a rough year or two but now are recovering.

Compromise on the grooming bit. Your hair or beard will grow back.

"If you're in desperate need of a high paying job and you're not willing to part with your long hair — well, that's the choice you're making," says Miss Morehead.

Unless you have an "in" or an angle, shun glamor areas that will be swarmed with your contemporaries.

The San Francisco Bay area is one of these, says a counselor at the placement center at the University of California, Berkeley. The head of Cornell's career center, John Munschauer, added Boston and Denver to that category.

Alaska might once have been a gold mine but no more, says Chip Hayden, Harvard junior from Detroit, who says he earned $1,200 one summer on a crab processing boat but isn't going back. Too many other students seeking summer fortunes up North.

The best idea if you really need money is to stay in your home town, especially if it's a sizable city, says Stanford's Miss Kennedy. Your living costs will be minimized and you'll net that much more.

Some counselors say the only alternative to a summer in the old hammock may be starting your own business. The perils are roughly commensurate with the rewards.

There is no lack of possibilities: yard work, a childcare center or day camp, giving guitar lessons, tutoring in algebra. There are plenty of openings for magazine and Bible salesmen if you have the personality.

Radcliffe sophomore Lila Richardson says she plans to bake pastries, cakes and breads and sell them from a Cambridge street stand on an alternative to "grossly overpriced" commercial bakery products.

Don David, University of Kansas senior, says he has made as much as $200 a day stenciling house numbers on street curbs. He advises painting a block at a time, then asking householders for payment. They usually pay from $2 to $10.

The young and those who like to think themselves young are a prime market for college-age artists, craftsmen and businessmen.

Boutiques, like Lepidoptera Creations near the University of Kansas in Lawrence, can be lucrative for student salesmen and seamstresses. Lepidoptera sells student-made clothes for $15 to $30 and splits the take with the creator.

No reason they couldn't set up in a resort area for the summer, say placement counselors.

For the model of a successful student-run summer enterprise, take Call Us Inc., on Martha's Vineyard Island off Massachusetts. "Call Us" is preparing for its fifth summer of providing lawn care, painting, carpentry, window washing, opening and closing summer homes and the like.

Promotion can be the crucial factor in a summer enterprise, says Ruth Lembeck, whose forthcoming book "Teenage Jobs" lists ideas that have worked for many young entrepreneurs.

"A good idea or a good service of a good cause can just fall on its face and die if it's not put over properly," she says.

"You've got to let people know."

Filipino 'Bombas' Give Censors A Hard Time

MANILA (AP) — The Philippine movie industry took off its clothes to compete with the foreign nude craze and now censors are having a rough time putting them back on in this hip, if heavily Catholic, nation.

The "bombas" — the local answer to cinema sex — outstripped even Sweden in the battle of the box office, and authorities up to President Ferdinand E. Marcos called a cease-fire.

And now, while some filmmakers are grumbling about going back to interminable musicals and boy-meets-girl clichés, "bomba" impresarios keep grinding away, storing their self-suppressed footage in hopes for the future.

Bombas totalled about one-fourth of the 234 Philippine films produced last year, one of the world's largest outputs though only 33 million people inhabit the archipelago and some tribal groups still live in the stone age. They competed with 491 foreign films.

WAITING LINE

Filipinos, who will spend their last six cents on a movie as fast as a plate of rice, left about $35 million at the box office last year, lining up sometimes at 6 a.m. to fill the islands' 424,000 cinema seats.

The nation's first flicks, two biographies of national hero Jose Rizal, were made just after the century turned. Jose Nepomuceno, the industry's recognized "father," started making silent operettas in 1917. Now there are around 80 companies, some sinking without a trace after their first film.

The hottest property today is Nora Aunor, a dumpy teen-aged girl-next-door who falls decently in love, usually to music, with a succession of young men who become instant stars simply by the exposure. She makes up to $15,000 a picture.

Bombas take a week to two weeks to film, with story lines loosely stitched around love scenes matching all variations of human liaison.

'BOMBHELL'

The word "bomba" means bomb or bombshell in Tagalog and Spanish. It first had wide political usage as a short form of "bombastic," shouted by congressmen at colleagues in heated moments of debate.

Big-time bombas hit the screens early last year and soon became a national institution. One province's authorities reported their family-planning program was thrown off schedule by too many bombas shown in local movie houses.

Finally, the outcry in this 85 per cent Roman Catholic country forced national leaders to put to use an old censorship law giving wide powers to interpret what offends the public morality.

EXPLICIT SCENES

Board of Censors spokesmen say they now cut explicit sexual scenes and allow bare breasts on the screen only if there is no suggestive accompanying action.

It is, though, a serious problem to producers who must gross three times their investment — an average outlay of $22,500 — just to break even, with 40 per cent going to various taxes.

If a producer guesses wrong and can't pass the censors, and the cuts kill the picture, he is just out.

Some get by, by adding a touch of that wispy ingredient — "redeeming social value." Others just evade the censors, though it can mean six months behind bars.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT

Manila's film critics say the bombas had just about run their course when the crackdown enhanced their popularity through the forbidden-fruit syndrome. The next stage was expected to be musical comedy and better drama.

So far the main crop has been Westerns — where cowboys wear chaps among palm trees and ride carousel-like horselets and horror films complete with garlands of garlic to ward off the evening vampires.

Mary Walter, who began in silent films here 42 years ago, has forgotten how many she has made. Her latest role is the mother of a girl — Yvonne — who is pregnant by a mystery man to whom she succumbed under the effects of LSD at a party. A 36-year-old Filipino physician is producing it, he says, for its message.

"Bombas are all right if they are accepted by the crowd, as long as they don't go beyond the limit," says Miss Walter. "This is the atomic age."

Success Means Pressure, But That Makes Diamonds

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Success means pressure to remain a success. But Diana Ross doesn't mind.

"If it's hard right now, that's all right," she says. "Pressure made the diamond."

Diana has been chasing success since she was a "wiry skinny little kid" in Detroit. The pressure has been extra high in recent months since she broke away as lead singer of the immensely popular singing group, the Supremes, to seek stardom as a single.

How is she faring?

She has her own television special on ABC. She'll soon star in her first movie, a biography of the late singer Billie Holiday. And as a solo performer, she has broken attendance records in recent months at top night clubs.

TOP VOCALIST

Billboard magazine named her the top female vocalist for 1970 in record sales, as did England's New Musical Express. She recently signed a three-year agreement for appearances at lavish Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas.

How does the willowy black beauty feel about so fast a start? Cautious.

"In show business," she said, shy and smiling in an interview, "you never know what your future will be like. I've never counted my gold records — I'm afraid I'll stop getting them."

A Motown Records official says Diana has collected two dozen gold albums and singles, each signifying a million copies sold, since she started singing with the Supremes after leaving high school 11 years ago.

EARLY BEGINNING

Diana sang along with records, performed at family parties and the Brewster Community Center and harmonized with two girl friends after school. With a young male group called the Primes they became the Primettes, singing concert dates around Detroit.

Diana worked as a cafeteria bus girl in a department store and designed and made stage clothes for the trio. Motown Records, meanwhile, was starting in Detroit.

"I auditioned for them at a young age, about 14, and they turned me away, told me to go back to school," Miss Ross remembers. "I was very determined, as I feel most young people should be, and are today, and I kept going back and auditioning."

"Finally they let me do a little background work until they noticed me and realized that I was a wiry little skinny kid that was going to do something, and I started recording with the Supremes."

FIRST HIT

The Supremes, as the Primettes had become, recorded a few little-noticed singles, then hit the top of the charts with "Where Did Our Love Go?"

In 1967, Florence Ballard quit the trio, was replaced by Cindy Birdsong and the billing became "Diana Ross and the Supremes." When Diana decided later to go out as a single, her replacement, Jean Terrell, joined Cindy and Diana's girlhood chum, Mary Wilson.

There were, Miss Ross says, no ill feelings at her departure.

SOME HOSTILITY

On the way up Miss Ross has met hostility: cries of "nigger" in a Southern pizza parlor... four shots fired into the front of the Supremes' bus in their early days.

Last January she was married to a white man, Robert Ellis Silberstein, 25, vice president of a public relations firm. They had met two years earlier on a public tennis court. At the wedding in Las Vegas she gave her age as 26.

There's talk of an eventual Broadway show for Diana.

"Broadway would really be exhausting," she says, "but also an education. And I haven't lost my zest for learning."

2.9 Million Chicanos Counted In California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—California's Mexican-American population is the largest ethnic or racial minority in any state, says a Mexican-American group.

The Mexican-American Population Commission of California said that a private census shows California has 2.9 million Mexican-Americans, compared to 2.1 million blacks in New York State, the state with the largest Negro population.

The group said the report was based on unpublished California State Department of Education school statistics for 1970, state parochial school statistics and federal labor statistics.

Louis Garcia, president of the Mexican-American Bar Association and chairman of the seven-member commission, said the independent census was essential because "The official 1970 census specifically counted blacks, Chinese and American Indians but not Mexican-Americans."

He claimed that "non-counting is the equivalent of non help."

AFTER THE REVOLUTION—THEN WHAT?

Democracy Is Revolutionary Creed

By RICHARD BLYSTONE
By The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Okay, the "revolution" is over and you've got 200 million people on your hands. Now what do you do? Many young radicals call that question irrelevant, but Yale Prof. Robert Dahl says they should look into it.

In his book "After the Revolution?" political scientist Dahl addresses himself to the young, and to the difficulties of creating, even in theory, an ideally just and effective government.

Like his best-selling faculty colleague Charles Reich, "The Greening of America," Dahl says much is wrong with the country's power structure.

Dahl's approach to a solution, however, is not a matter of "consciousness" or of "tinkering with a few institutions," but "to do more than talk of the need for change or to speak facetiously of revolution and think hard about the kind of society we want."

"Because democracy has never been fully achieved," he wrote, "it has always been and is now potentially a revolutionary doctrine."

Unfortunately, Dahl said, disenchantment with the Establishment has made many of America's ostensible future leaders "unable to think coolly and honestly with themselves about the urge for power — because it's a taboo subject."

Failure to consider "what the part of authority would be in a decent society leads often to utopian and unrealistic and dishonest solutions," he said.

"People who talk about revolution as casually as they talk about a new bridge may easily satisfy themselves with gestures and never get around to all the gubby things that even revolutions are made of," Dahl wrote in his introduction.

That squares with his view that Americans in general are all too prone to fill the gap between ideals and reality with rhetoric.

What does exist, Dahl said, "is a crisis of authority in the United States, a psychological crisis in the minds of people when they begin to doubt the rightness, the legitimacy of authority in their society."

"I think a great many American institutions ought to be changed, but I think it would be a great mistake to go about it with simplistic and one dimensional ideas about authority."

Dahl's book examines the criteria for just authority and concludes there can be no rigid pattern, but rather a flexible framework of balances and compromises between personal interest, competent leadership and the amount of effort an individual wants to invest in his governance.

'I GUESS I'LL BE MOVING ON IN A COUPLE OF DAYS'

World's Wandering Youth Searching For Selves

LA ENTOSA, Mexico (AP) — Shaded by a thatch-roof from the blistering sun outside while glistening ocean waves spend themselves onto the clean sandy beach, some of the world's wandering youth stop here for rest and meditation.

"I guess I'll be moving on in a few days," said Paul, a discharged military helicopter pilot, as he relaxed in a hammock. "But it's so peaceful here, I'm not in any hurry."

This isolated village, where Spaniards built sailing vessels centuries ago, is on the Pacific Coast near the Gulf of Tehuantepec at the narrowest part of Mexico. The beach is on a small inlet and the only access is a dry, dirty road full of holes.

Paul, a handsome lad in his early 20s, is heading for the Yukon.

"I'll work there a while, save my money and then I think I'll go to Australia," the Garden City, N. Y., native said.

"Why don't we go to Europe?" said Stan, a tall, slim blond Canadian who teamed up with Paul somewhere south of Mexico. Stan's hair is a bit long and he wears a wide mustache. He's been on the road for a year on money he saved from working. "and if I watch my pennies I won't have to work for another year."

"It's great here," Stan said. "Can you just imagine being back home and getting up every morning at the same time, driving down the same streets, going to the same office and then returning at the same time to watch the same television set every day? I'd go out of my tree if I had to do that."

Peggy and Ted sauntered in about that time after a four-mile walk from Salima Cruz, the nearest city.

Peggy, 23, comes from a suburban family near San Francisco and has been on the road a year. She's blonde, cute and makes what little clothes she travels with, other than the jeans she sometimes wears.

Generally quiet, Peggy likes to be nearby when people sit about and discuss everything from drug usage to Indian ruins. When the conversation gets around to suburbia and those who live there, she quietly comments, "Boy, do I know suburbia." But she never explains and it's common practice not to pry.

Ted is taking off in the morning and heading for Canada while Peggy says, "I think I'll hang around a few more days and then head on." Peggy travels alone and, like the others, has her own money and frequently calls home "to make the folks happy and let them know I'm safe."

They all gather at "El Paraiso," one of five thatch-roofed shacks on the beach where you can rent a hammock for 2 cents a night, take a shower for 16 cents and eat freshly caught shrimp or fish for about 50 to 60 cents.

Henry, a curly haired Canadian from Saskatchewan, joins in and the chitchat turns to past travels. Henry's just returned from New Zealand, Australia, the Near East and Europe and he holds everyone's attention as he relates his experiences.

"I'm going to Mexico City tomorrow for a couple days, then go home, pick up my winter clothes and on to Alaska," he told the relaxing youngsters.

"But when I take off again next year I'm coming back through here."

Location of these hideaway places of rest are passed on by word of mouth as is all kinds of information.

Vic, 21, is a serious boy from Santa Ana, Calif., with two years of travel behind him. Eike most, he's been to college and expresses a cool intelligence and a concern for the future.

"I believe I can tell you the mistakes in the U.S., but I'm here as an observer," he said during a serious moment.

"There are family ties here I'd like to understand. I won't pass judgment, but later on in life it will all fall together."

In the evenings as all sit together enjoying a beer or a soft drink, Miles usually drops by. He's friendly, pleasant, humorous at times and a self-admitted drug user.

Long, soft blond hair hangs to the shoulders of his small, frail body. His face is covered with an equally long blond beard and a full moustache, and small, gold-framed spectacles hang on his nose. He carries a staff and spends much time carrying the words "love and peace" along its length.

"I came down here to find out where my friends were and I think I've found a home," Miles explains. "The biggest decision I have to make each day is whether to brush my lousy teeth or not."

He tells of his "junkie" friends and how they were "busted" through trickery by the local "fuzz" back in his small hometown in Massachusetts.

"The government should regulate drugs like they do everything else," he says. "Remember this: a 'junkie' never makes trouble when he's on a trip. It's when he needs a few 'bags' that he's dangerous."

"I don't think anybody should be bothered as long as they do their own thing and don't hurt anyone else," he argues.

Janine and Marsha come from Washington State and travel together to "look out for one another."

After they said good night, someone commented on how innocent they look.

"You know," said Stan, "you can tell they come from nice families and a society that sets all the rules for them. But they see their friends taking drugs, sleeping with each other and doing what they want. They feel left out of their own generation and so they come to places like this and they feel 'with it.'"

The group dwindles down to five young men who talk some more.

Finally, one laughs and asks, "Say, any of you guys know what a hippie is? When I came across the border one of the Customs officials asked me if I was a hippie I told him, 'I tell you if I'm one.'"

FOSTER DRILLS LIGHT — Bob Foster shadow boxes before a mirror, as he held a light drill Thursday in preparation for his world light heavyweight title fight against Ray Anderson at Tampa, Fla., Saturday night.

Nicklaus Aims To Make Waves In San Diego

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — When Jack Nicklaus won the Masters golf tournament to Charles Coody two weeks ago, it might have cost the rest of the fouring pros a bundle of money.

"I no longer have a shot at the grand slam, so I decided it's time to get back to my regular schedule, to get back on the tour," Nicklaus said Thursday after taking a share of the first round lead in the $165,000 Tournament of Champions.

He and Miller Barber matched 69s on the extremely demanding La Costa Country Club course, a 7,114 yard par 72 layout.

With Nicklaus back on the tour, he'll be taking his usual king-sized bite out of the regular weekly purses. Had he won the Masters, he hinted, he may have played a very, very restricted schedule.

"If I had won the Masters, I probably wouldn't be here," said the Golden Bear, the PGA champion who had announced his hopes of making a sweep of the world's four major titles—the PGA, the Masters and the U.S. and British Opens—in a single year.

Steer Golfers Pacing Regional Tournament

ODESSA — Although District 5-AAAA medalist Mark McCraney had his problems on a windswept Odessa Country Club course, Big Spring took a five-stroke lead after the first 18 holes of competition in the Class

AAAA Regional golf tournament here Thursday. The tournament will be concluded today and Big Spring can assure itself of a trip to the State tournament only by finishing first over the 36 holes.

HI-JUNIOR TRYOUTS SLATED NEXT WEEK AT STONE PARK

Tryouts in the Hi-Junior Teen-Age Baseball league will be held next Thursday, Friday and Saturday (April 29-30, May 1) in the John Stone park.

Hours Thursday and Friday will be from 5 p.m. until dark. The drills get under way Saturday at 2 p.m.

Thirteen-year-olds coming into Teen-Age ball for the first time or those moving from the Sophomore to Hi-Junior league need to make at least two of the three workouts, association president Jimmy Felts has announced.

Parents are being asked to gather at the park for a "work day" Saturday, when final preparations for the beginning of play will be undertaken.

Those who will join the work force are reminded to bring their tools with them.

Felts said the league is still short of managers for the Sophomore league.

Those who would like to work in such a capacity can call Felts by dialing 263-3929.

Dierker Eyes 20-Win Year

CHICAGO (AP) — Pitcher Larry Dierker of the Houston Astros may be on his way toward matching his 20-victory season of two years ago.

The powerful 24-year-old right-hander Thursday made his first start in seven days as a five-hit, 6-1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs, after expecting a free-scoring game in the Astros' road finale at chilly Wrigley Field.

"Usually I'm wild on a seventh-game start, but I had good stuff even though I pretty nearly came out of the game in the ninth," said Dierker, who now has a 2-0 record in four starts.

Dierker held the Cubs to a pair of singles and a two-bagger and had a shutout wrapped up until the Cubs suddenly filled the bases with none out in the ninth.

Astro manager Harry Walker was on the verge of yanking Dierker after Glenn Beckert's leadoff double, a walk to Billy Williams and Ron Santo's base-loading single.

"Dierker talked me out of pulling him," said Walker. "He told me 'just give me one more batter, I'll get him out.'" Dierker did just that on Joe Peppers' sacrifice fly which scored Beckert with the only Cub run. Then Dierker got Jim Hickman on a foul pop and struck out rookie Har Breen in the end game.

Dierker, who started last season, but wound up with 16-12, said he expected trouble after his long layoff and 44-degree weather. "But it worked out the other way with the in-blowing wind helping my fast ball," said Dierker who struck out six and walked only two.

The Astros returned home to open a long home stay Friday night against the Montreal Expos with a 4-5 record on their first road trip.

Buc Stargell Hits Tenth Home Run

By The Associated Press

After giving up eight home runs in six games, the Atlanta Braves have finally learned how to pitch to Willie Stargell.

Very carefully.

The Pittsburgh fence-wrecker continued his siege on Atlanta Thursday night, ripping his 10th homer of the young season to tie a major league record for circuit smashes in April.

Stargell, himself, wasn't overly impressed—although he's made a big impression on the Braves this year.

"I'm not even going to let myself think of records," said the bull-strong leftfielder.

"What happens when I break a record, other than it goes into the record book? Do they make a statue of me?"

LONG DRIVE
Stargell's fourth inning misdeed, which may still be in orbit, carried over the center field fence—more than 400 feet away. It drew an enthusiastic response from the fans at Three Rivers Stadium, but just a large yawn from big Willie.

"I've hit longer drives in Forbes Field," he said after joining Baltimore's Frank Robinson and Cincinnati's Tony Perez in the record books.

Stargell hit 10 homers in April of 1969, and Perez, last year.

Truthfully, Stargell has hit longer drives in Forbes Field. He hit seven over the right field roof, which had a meager total of 18 placed there in its ancient history.

But never has he gotten away to a quicker start. As a matter of fact, he usually waked up later in the season. For instance, last year at this time he had a microscopic .063 batting average that included one homer in his two hits.

Teammate Richie Hebner appears to be more excited about Stargell's blazing getaway than Stargell.

Stargell's homers mean we're winning... and that's important," said Pittsburgh's third baseball, who also helped out things Thursday night with three RBI on two triples and a single.

St. Louis beat Philadelphia 5-2 and Houston topped Chicago 6-1 in Thursday's only other National League games. In a light American League card, it was Chicago 4, Milwaukee 2, and Oakland 7, California 3.

Pittsburgh broke it open early, scoring six runs in the first four innings. Stargell's leadoff homer in the fourth off Ron Reed and Hebner's run-producing triple in the same frame gave the Pirates a 6-0 cushion.

Hebner produced another run in the sixth with another triple.

Steve Blass pitched seven strong innings, but needed eighth inning relief help from Dave Giusti after three straight Atlanta singles.

SETTLED EARLY
Left-hander Steve Carlton, off to his best year ever, handcuffed Philadelphia on six hits to give St. Louis its third straight victory.

Carlton gave up single runs in the seventh, when the Phillies scored on only one hit in the ninth, when the Phils reached the tiring southpaw for three straight singles.

Carlos May drifted a three-run homer in the eighth inning to bring the Chicago White Sox their victory. Milwaukee had just taken a 2-1 lead in the seventh inning, with Mike Hegan scoring on Dave May's sacrifice fly.

Yida Bled pitched a five-hitter, winning his fourth game of the season, as Oakland beat California and completed a sweep of their three-game series. Blue struck out eight and had a comparatively easy time of it after the A's scored five runs in the fifth inning against Andy Messersmith.

3-Year-Olds In Spotlight

SUNLAND PARK, N.M. — Eight three-year-olds — including three last-time winners — will battle over six furlongs in Friday's twilight headline at Sunland Park.

The sprint, honoring Calvert Canadian Masterpiece whisky, will top a 10-race agenda which gets moving at 3 p.m. Regular 12-race cards are slated for both Saturday and Sunday with a first-post of 1:30 p.m.

Friday's feature is expected to put Brother Ernie in the spotlight. The colt, owned by Mamie Mezen of Ruidoso Downs, looks like a lukewarm favorite in a tough assignment.

So far this season, Brother Ernie has been to the post three times, scoring a pair of seconds and a win. The victory came by a neck margin last time out to whip a band of New Mexico-breds as an even-money choice.

He'll be hooking much tougher competition in Friday's feature. The group includes Norbelle, who led from start to finish last time out while beating a band of allowance fillies; and Pappa Gem, who used his quick speed to good advantage while leading all the way in his last appearance.

Here's the field in post-position order: 1—Motsaball (no boy), 107; 2—Norbelle (John Evans), 114; 3—Toot Yout (no boy), 122; 4—Pete (Jim. Bannowsky), 122; 5—Whirling Memories (Willie Lovell), 117; 6—Pappa Gem (Richard Bickel), 122; 7—Brother Ernie (Jack Wallace), 119; 8—She Canbee Sweet (Tony Trujillo), 110.

Steers Tangle With Permian

Stumbling but not yet laid out by the undertaker, the Big Spring Steers return to the friendly confines of their park Saturday for a 2 p.m. game with Odessa Permian.

The Longhorns are 0-2 in second half standings but coach Oakley Hagood says the locals are as good as the best when they put it all together.

The resident nine has blown second half decisions to Midland

High and Abilene High. In neither game did the Bovines mount much of an offensive punch.

Permian hasn't been doing too well either. The Panthers are 1-1 in second half competition and 12-8 over-all but in their last assignment they stumbled before Abilene, 7-1.

Bill Wirahn will likely take the mound for Permian while Hagood may counter with David Englert, who defeated San Angelo recently, 6-1.

Other starters for Big Spring will be Pete Shaffer behind the plate, Grady Ray at first base, Roddy Caffe at second, Tommy Fletcher at third, David Carter at shortstop and Randy Womack, Gatlin Jopes and Diamond Brewer or Rickey Steen in the outfield.

The Longhorns will be seeking their sixth win of the season in the imbroglio.

Big Spring also plays at home Tuesday, hosting Midland Lee.

Permian's second half win came at the expense of Midland High, 6-3.

Tiger Cubs Play Singleton Sunday

The Big Spring Tiger Cubs, a sandlot baseball club which is now working out a minimum of three times weekly at a diamond at San Antonio and West Fifth streets, will play a return game here at 2 p.m. Sunday against the Lamesa GI Forum.

B. Y. Garcia, manager of the contingent, has issued a blanket invitation for aspirants to places on the club. The club presently averages out to 23 years in age.

Some of the men are sons of players who formerly performed for the old Big Spring Tigers. Until the Tigers disbanded a couple of years ago, they were West Texas' oldest sandlot baseball club.

Workouts get under way at 6 p.m., Garcia said.

Jim Wiechers Leader At 64

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A little known golfer can be expected to lead a satellite tournament, so what's surprising about Jim Wiechers being out front going into the second round of the $60,000 Tallahassee Open today?

One thing surprising is that Wiechers' 32-32-64 is five strokes better than Lee Trevino, whose name is a household word in golf circles and who was leading money winner of 1970.

True, Trevino had to battle rough weather that interrupted play three times while Wiechers finished before the thunderstorms. But the way Wiechers' putter was working, he might have played his record-setting round under any conditions. He had eight one-putts.

He finished fifth in that tourney and with nearly $14,000 won this year is almost up to his past year's total of just under $18,000.

Wiechers nearest challengers in the first round were former Masters champ Gay Brewer, former national amateur champ Bob Dickson, bubbling young Randy Wolff and veteran Bert Yancey. Each had 66, six-under-par for the 7,124-yard Killcare Golf and Country Club course.

With 67 players below par 72, the battle to survive the cut after today's round was rugged. Eight were at 68 and 16 at 69—a mixture of veterans and younger players striving for the $12,000 first prize here and escape to the much richer Tournament of Champions next year.

LOOKING 'EM OVER
With Tommy Hart

Sports Illustrated magazine, whose editors pretentiously project the idea that there is but one authority in sports and all other oracles are operating with bogus licenses... tossed out the idea recently that by any measuring rod, Sancy Koufax should be regarded the premier baseball pitcher of all time.

Trace the suggestion to its roots and one gets an idea why the publishing blunderbuss would make such a ridiculous claim: Koufax once graced the uniform of a New York team. The most unfortunate of athletes, in the eyes of the Sports Illustrated people, are those who never play on behalf of one of Gotham's clubs. They are somewhat unlicker than those who dare to challenge the supremacy of New York talent, but both are more fortunate than the people in the boondocks who never come in contact with the exalted of Gotham.

A thing of beauty can be a joy forever but it will have lived for naught if it stays in the backyard in the eyes of most New York journalists.

Koufax peaked only briefly, then bowed out gracefully due to miseries in his throwing arm. If the jury is going to judge a man on the excellency of his efforts in a short period of time, why not give the accolade to Johnny Vander Meer, who threw two straight no-hitters, or Bobo Holloman, the only game Bobo ever won in the big leagues was a no hitter.

Baseball historians, those with a sense of justice, can make a pretty fair case for a fellow who is still firing bullets at enemy batters — Juan Marichal.

Koufax won 165 decisions and lost 65. He carefully pieced together an earned run average of 2.65. He pitched, however, only 2,324 innings.

Marichal, on the other hand, has already won over 205 games while losing 98. His earned run average is about 2.65 and gives signs of falling still more. He has pitched more than 2,825 innings.

Koufax took a relatively long time to climb the mountain. He was wild and ineffective, so much so that there were those who wondered why the Dodgers didn't trade him for three broken bats.

Life hasn't been a case of always sailing in serene waters for Marichal, either. He's weathered the ordeal of physical misery and mishap to become perhaps the finest hurler in the game today, and he's not nearing the end of the trail by any means.

Although he failed to win any district championships, Stewart Bunn of the 1971 team must rank with the finest netters in Big Spring High School history.

Bunn has a terrific serve, volleys well, knows how to throw an opponent off balance and gets a lot of mileage out of his backhand.

Quite likely, Stu can go just about anywhere he pleases on a scholarship.

Does any team in professional baseball have a more colorful pitching staff than the Oakland A's? Consider the names: Rolie Fingers, Vida Blue, Catfish Hunter, Blue Moon Odom, Jim Panther, Bob Lecker and Diego Segui.

The A's must have and vice-president who does nothing but dream up nicknames for the club's personnel.

Then the Oaklanders have a reserve catcher identified as Gene Tenace, an infielder who answers to Sal Bando and an outfielder who was christened Rick Monday.

More than 65 million people have attended events in the Los Angeles Coliseum over the past 25 years.

No sports stadium has done so famously at the gate but the Astrodom in Houston is working on it.

SMASHES RECORD - Marsha Talley (left) of Garden City, shown here being narrowly defeated by Ann Meador of Eldorado in a relay event in the recent Permian Basin Relays in Big Spring, set a new District 23-B record in the 220-yard dash at Snyder Thursday when she was clocked in 25.8.

The Kittens won first places in the 440-yard relay, 220-yard dash, 60-yard dash, 880-yard relay, 800-yard run, mile relay and triple jump.

The Kittens were prepping for Regional and State competition. First three finishers in each event qualified for Regional and Garden City had 11 girls who made the grade, including members of the Kitten relay teams.

The Regional meet takes place in Robert Lee starting at 11 a.m., Tuesday, while the State meet is scheduled May 14-15 in Abilene.

Records fell in ten events including the 80-yard hurdles, which were being held for the first time. Garden City entries accounted for five of those.

Summary: 440-yard relay - 1. Garden City (Debbie Pearce, Twila Coffman, Laurie Lange, Marsha Talley), 51.2 (New record). Old record, 53.4, by Garden City (1970); 2. Sterling City, 55.4; 3. Hermi-

BULLET OWNER Leads Talks NEW YORK (AP) - Abe Pollin, owner of the Baltimore Bullets, apparently has as many moves as his superstar, Earl "The Pearl" Monroe.

His latest move is to get the pro basketball merger talks going again, without the knowledge of Walter Kennedy, the National Basketball Association commissioner.

Kennedy disclosed Thursday night he had just learned that Pollin has been heading a committee of four NBA owners who've been secretly meeting with several owners of the rival American Basketball Association.

Talks between the NBA and the ABA aren't really new, but this apparently is the first time the owners themselves have taken the initiative. The league officers and attorneys previously were the main parties in negotiations.

The two leagues were about to approach Congress last November for permission to merge when their talks broke down. Now, Pollin, along with Ned Irish of New York, Sam Schulman of Seattle and Herman Sarkowsky of Portland, has started the merger ball bouncing again.

After a five-hour meeting of NBA owners Thursday, Kennedy told a new conference that the talks between the NBA and ABA owners were held without knowledge of the league office. But, he said, the idea of the talks was warmly received by the owners at the general meeting.

"The NBA owners listened to the report from the four members who have held dialogue with the ABA owners the past two weeks," Kennedy said. "The NBA owners voted to have the four owners continue to talk with the ABA."

More Scholarships Being Discussed

SAN ANGELO (AP) - Lone Star Conference faculty-athletic representatives will consider a scholarship increase in Saturday's business meeting on the Angelo State University campus.

LSC secretary-treasurer, Dr. W.J. Bell of East Texas State, said, "I expect the question of scholarship increase will be the main topic of discussion in the conference meetings this week. Of course, there is more on the agenda. But some schools strongly favor an increase and others are strongly opposed."

At present, each member school is allowed 60 scholarships to divide among its football, basketball and track and field programs. The scholarship limit was set at 55 in 1931 when the league was founded and raised to 60 in 1965.

BREAKING THE VICIOUS CHAIN-VI

'Amateurs' Spread Pain

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.
(Sixth of Seven Columns)

A girl recently wrote to me, saying that too many others have been writing: "I am 15 and think I have venereal disease. Will any doctor treat me without my parents' permission? I would die before I would let them know. Another thing: Do I have to give out any names, and if I do, will their parents be contacted? I cannot go to a doctor until I find out for sure."
There are at least two things wrong with this attitude. First is postponing treatment. Nobody, including 15-year-old girls, should go on having — and spreading! — VD.

OLD ENOUGH
If these young people are old enough to demand their "sexual freedom," they ought to be old enough to follow through, and get treatment at once for their diseases.

In passing, many states now have laws permitting physicians to treat minors for VD without consent of parents. But that evades the more basic issue.

Perhaps that's part of what Edwin Wicks, M.D., of Kansas City, means when he calls for "more education of lay and professional people."

I suggest this: That parents let their sons and daughters know that they want them treated promptly if they contract VD.

I don't mean they should say, "Sure, go out and play around." I do mean something on the order of, "I know if I were the mother (or father) of some of these youngsters, I'd want them to go to the doctor at the first hint of trouble. Health is more important than hiding your head in the sand."

SANE THING
And what about giving the names of sexual contacts?

That information is absolutely vital if we are to make any progress against VD. Health departments have trained investigators who know how to handle the matter circumspectly. The sane thing is to be glad to give that information.

As John W. Lentz, M.D., of Philadelphia, points out, VD control programs aren't getting the funds they need to do a thorough job. (What agencies are, these days?) But people can help stretch the money by not making it harder for health investigators to get the information they need.

THE ONLY WAY
These person-to-person chains of VD have to be cut! Learning who is involved is the only way to do it.

Yet we aren't cutting the chains, especially in gonorrhea. J. R. Pate, M.D., of Washington, finds "some apparent progress in controlling syphilis, but GC (gonorrhea) seems to increase."

Incidentally, the term "clap" for gonorrhea comes from the French word "clapier," or brothel, because prostitutes used to be the principal source of VD.

Today only about 10 per cent of the VD problem emanates from prostitutes. It is everywhere. In the schools. In the "nice" social circles. Among amateurs and play girls.

It so happens that today the professional prostitute, exposed as she is to venereal diseases, recognizes what so many others do not: Tests can detect VD, and it can be treated effectively and quickly.

But you can't have that help unless you go to your doctor for the tests and for the treatment.

Otherwise the disease would pass unnoticed until the germs had time to invade a woman's tissues deeply, and do damage that no longer can be repaired by either medicine or surgery.

We've got to break the chains of infection, but we also have to get VD treated before it can do irreparable harm.

(Tomorrow — "A New Strain of 'GC'? — Other Forms of VD")

Three Soviet Cosmonauts To Join Space Station?

MOSCOW (AP) — Three Soviet cosmonauts hurried into earth orbit aboard the space-ship Soyuz 10 today and prepared to rendezvous with the unmanned scientific station Salute launched four days ago.

The manned flight was the second stage of a major space experiment, another advance toward the Soviet goal of a manned orbital space laboratory.

The director of West Germany's Bochum space tracking station, Heinz Kaminski, predicted one or two more spacecraft would be sent up to be attached to Soyuz 10 and Salute. He suggested tonight or Saturday night as possible launch times.

LOCKED IN

Soyuz 10 will conduct "joint experiments" with Salute, the official Soviet announcement said. It did not specify whether this would include docking, but Soviet spacecraft have docked in space before, and it appeared a likely step in the orbital laboratory program.

The huge, three-stage carrier rocket lifted off its launching pad at the Baikonur space complex in central Asia at 2:45 a.m. or 6:45 p.m. Thursday EST. Aboard were Vladimir A. Shatalov, the commander; Alexei S. Yeliseyev, the flight engineer, and Nikolai Rukavishnikov, test engineer.

The rocket jettisoned its first stage shortly after liftoff and then locked into earth orbit with a high point of 154 miles and a low point of 129.8 miles.

This was very close to Salute's orbit which ranges between 137.9 and 124.2 miles above the earth.

Kaminski said this indicated the current operation is a rehearsal, not an attempt to establish a manned space lab in orbit. He said for that the orbital height would have to be lifted to between 185 and 215 miles to avoid overheating the spacecraft.

Meet Honors
Ex-Trustees

Former trustees of the Moore school will be honored Sunday when the ninth annual Moore reunion is held from 1 to 4 p.m. in the Howard County Junior College cafeteria.

Those to be honored are M. L. Rowland, W. L. Harrell, Ed Hull, Verde Phillips, Jeff Grant, Milton Newton and O. D. Engle.

Letters were mailed to Moore residents, trustees and faculty reminding them of the reunion, according to Mrs. Zirah LeFevre Bednar, reunion president, but she urges anyone who might have failed to receive a letter to attend.

Music for the meeting will be provided by Mrs. Doyle (Alpha) Turney and Truett Thomas, who will perform a duet, and the Melody Makers Choir of Jack and Jill Kindergarten. The choir is under the direction of Mrs. Ray McKinnon.

Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

Opening lead: Deuce of ♠
The declarer in today's hand overlooked a simple safety play which would have placed his four heart contract safely beyond the reach of the unkind fates.

West opened the deuce of spades and East played the queen which South ruffed with the deuce of hearts. A trump was led and the queen was played from dummy.

East was in with the ace and the king of spades forced declarer to ruff again. A club to the ace put North in to lead a heart. East followed with the seven, and South after a momentary hesitation played the king. This cost him the hand, for he could not avoid losing two diamond tricks as well as two hearts.

There was no way for declarer to know that the trumps were divided three-one; nevertheless, the proper play by South on the second round of hearts is to finesse the ten in his hand. For, by so doing, he can assure his contract. If the finesse succeeds, the gain is obvious but, if West wins with the jack of hearts, it is with the last trump held by the opposition.

There is no damaging return that West is in position to make and, when South regains the lead, he can discard three of North's diamonds on the top club honors. A diamond is led to the king and ace, and declarer can now cash the queen and ruff his remaining diamond with the dummy's nine of hearts.
