

TROPICAL STORM EDITH BECOMES HURRICANE

Squalls On Texas Coast, Cold Front In Panhandle

By The Associated Press
Tropical storm Fern drifted slowly and on an uncertain course in the northwest part of the Gulf of Mexico today. It still was too early for weather-wary Texans to tell whether Fern, which grew from a depression in the Gulf only Tuesday evening, would grow into a hurricane and whether it might shift directions and come ashore in the Lone Star State.

Texas Panhandle, shoving southward past Dalhart in early morning. A late advisory from the National Weather Service reported Fern drifted southward during the night and by 5 a.m. its poorly defined center was about 260 miles south-southeast of Galveston and 280 miles east of Brownsville. Winds were estimated up to 50 miles per hour in squalls near the center, with gales likely as far as 125 miles north and east of the center. The National Weather Service said Fern was expected to drift toward the south-southwest at less than 10 m.p.h. during the day and show little change in strength. Meanwhile, a more remote threat developed as tropical storm Edith achieved minimum hurricane force with top winds up to 75 m.p.h. as it approached the Western Caribbean along a route of mighty storms which have dealt Texas mighty blows in former years. At 11 a.m. CDT, the center of hurricane Edith was estimated from satellite pictures to be near latitude 14.0 north, longitude 76.5 west, or 265 miles almost due south of Kingston, Jamaica and moving towards the West, northwest about 15 m.p.h. Highest winds are at least 75 m.p.h. with gales extending out 125 miles to the north and 50 miles to the south. Indications are that hurricane Edith should move on a more northwesterly course at a slightly slower speed during the next 24 hours with steadily increasing winds. Edith is not expected to threaten land areas for at least 24 to 36 hours. However any further strengthening will cause it to become a serious hazard to shipping in its path. As for Fern, official observers reported the surf went five to eight feet high and water started running well onto the beaches on the Gulf side of northern Padre Island near Corpus Christi during the night. They urged all persons to stay away from beaches on that side of Padre and adjacent

Mustang and St. Joseph Islands. Along the Upper Texas Coast, however, forecasters said seas which were very rough this morning would subside gradually late tonight and Thursday. Showers fell near the coast between Palacios and Freeport early today, and a broad area of showers and thunderstorms extended 100 miles offshore in an area from south of Galveston toward the Louisiana coast. Earlier, heavy rain fell for a time Tuesday evening at Beaumont, there was light rain at Galveston and thunderstorms rumbled from Palacios past Houston and Lufkin. Skies were partly cloudy this morning in parts of the Panhandle, around El Paso and in the vicinity of Brownsville and Galveston. It was generally clear in other sections. Near dawn the mercury still stood at 66 degrees in Dalhart, behind the cool front. Readings elsewhere stood mostly in the 70s, ranging up to 80 at Corpus Christi.

OPENING ROUND HANDSHAKE — Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., shakes hands Wednesday with Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally at the start of a House Ways and Means Committee hearing in Washington. Connally was the leadoff witness, urging the Congress to pass the tax portion of President Nixon's new economic program. Key members of the Democratic-controlled Congress have criticized the tax program as heavily weighted in favor of business. (See Page 9).

Protestors Unsuccessful In Bus-Blocking Tries

By The Associated Press
Protestors tried unsuccessfully for the second straight day to block school integration-by-busing in Pontiac, Mich., but the Mobile, Ala., school system, busing more than 6,000 pupils to achieve racial balance, opened for registration without incident. Court-ordered plans for school integration-by-busing have gone in operation in other Southern and Midwestern school districts with isolated incidents of protest. In Pontiac, four men were arrested on disorderly conduct charges after incidents with police at the school bus yard. Buses left nearly an hour late in some cases after police cleared a path through about 175 demonstrators. In Mobile, school officials said pupils reported in orderly fashion. Spot checks showed all was quiet and businesslike in the Mobile city-county schools, largest system in Alabama with some 68,000 pupils, about 40 per cent of them black. In all some 26,000 will ride the buses to school, but most of them will be transported because they live two miles or more from their schools. School officials in Pontiac, Mich., said they were satisfied with opening day attendance Tuesday of about 63 per cent of enrollment. They expressed confidence the figure would grow in the days ahead. The most serious incident Tuesday in Pontiac, where dynamite destroyed 10 buses eight days ago, was the arrest of nine women who sought to prevent the buses from leaving a parking lot. School Supt. Dana Whitmer said security would be increased to prevent a repetition of a rash of attacks by black youths on 18 white students near Pontiac Central High School. He attributed the attacks to outsiders. In Jackson, Miss., public school officials reported 28,277 children attended classes Tuesday under a new desegregation plan, with the number of students riding buses more than double the 2,000 who rode last year. Asst. Supt. R.B. Dayton said attendance was down about 700 from last year's opening day but he attributed this to confusion over bus schedules and routes. "We'll have everything worked out by the end of the week," he said. In Portsmouth, Va., public schools opened under a court-ordered busing plan with first day attendance about 2,000 less than expected. Of 25,000 pupils enrolled about 11,500 are to be bused. A rally during school hours by the Portsmouth chapter of Save Our Neighborhood Schools drew 300 persons, many of them children. A spokesman said if the busing requirement was not lifted by Thursday the group would call for a "boycott of classes." Several SONS groups from the Hampton Roads area planned to march at the Capitol in Washington today and to meet with congressmen. Elementary school classes in Savannah, Ga., began Tuesday under a new desegregation plan. There was a substantial boycott when the secondary school desegregation plan went into effect last Friday. There were no immediate official figures for Tuesday's attendance, but it was estimated at from 27,000 to 30,000 out of a projected total of around 38,000. On Friday 25,500 attended. Several hundred angry parents met with the school board but board President Julian Halligan said there was "no choice" but to implement the plan. In Ville Platte, La., some 200 blacks boycotted classes at Ville Platte High School to protest what they said was a scheme to avoid hiring a Negro as head coach. They pointed to the assignment of one man as both head coach and assistant principal at an elementary school. School Supt. Nat. Manuel denied race was involved but said the school board would discuss the matter.

'One Man, One Vote' Ruling Didn't Okay Splitting Counties

AUSTIN (AP) — The "one man, one vote" rule did not wipe out a Texas constitutional requirement that house districts may not cut county lines, Republicans said Wednesday in a brief filed with the Supreme Court. The court will hold a hearing Thursday on the constitutionality of the 1971 House redistricting bill, which critics said was used to eliminate many of Speaker Gus Mutscher's political enemies. Dist. Judge Herman Jones of Austin ruled in favor of the GOP and held the measure unconstitutional Aug. 10. Jones ruled the bill unnecessarily divided several counties among two or more House districts in violation of the Texas Constitution. The Constitution says that when a county has enough people to justify a representative, the legislature must give it that House member. Excess population must go to a single district, the Constitution says. Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin said in a brief filed Sept. 1 that the U. S. Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" rule invalidated that part of the state Constitution. Buncan Boeckman of Dallas, lawyer for the GOP and Republican state Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland, said in the brief that Martin had failed to produce any evidence to justify dividing 23 counties. Martin defended the bill as a good faith effort by the legislature, which he said had done a "remarkable job" of trying to follow both the state Constitution and the "one man, one vote" rule of the U. S. Supreme Court. "Wasn't it incumbent upon the appellants (the state) to have at least introduced some evidence before making these bald assertions?" the GOP asked. The bill has a population variance of 9 per cent between the most and least populous districts. "If we are going to forget about political subdivisions, why didn't House Bill 783 come within 1 per cent?" the GOP brief asked. Boeckman said the U. S. Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" rule did not invalidate Texas constitutional requirements that county lines must be preserved. In fact, he said, the high court's "one man, one vote" opinion expressly leaves room for maintaining such lines and respecting state Constitutional provisions. He quoted the court as saying "state constitutional provisions should be deemed violative of the federal constitution only when validly asserted constitutional rights could not otherwise be protected and effectuated... indiscriminate districting and any regard for political subdivisions or natural or historical boundary lines may be little more than an open invitation to partisan gerrymandering."

SELECTIVE BUSING Austin School Desegregation Plan Appealed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Austin, Tex., school desegregation plan, cited by President Nixon in his criticism of busing, has been appealed by the Justice Department. In a brief filed Tuesday with the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, the department said busing should be selective to eliminate segregation from schools where it exists but should not be district-wide. It asked the appeals court to reverse a U.S. District Court decision approving a plan drawn up by the Austin school board and to return the case to the lower court for development of a new plan to eliminate discrimination against Mexican-American students. A plan suggested by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare which called for extensive busing was rejected by Nixon who said, "I am opposed to busing of children simply for the sake of busing."

'I JUST DIDN'T THINK AT THE TIME' Henderson Trial Resumes Today

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP) — A former helicopter pilot testified today that at some time during the My Lai operation other helicopter gunships in the area "accused us of shooting civilians." "I don't know what the reply was," said Russell E. Doersam, now a carpenter in Wharton, Ohio. "We made a definite response." Doersam, whose ship escorted the troops that landed in My Lai that March 16, 1968, and should have investigated it thoroughly. Doersam, whose ship escorted the troops that landed in My Lai, said at one point he flew low over a ditch just east of the village and saw 20-30 bodies. Q. Why didn't you report this? A. I just didn't think at the time. Doersam was a warrant officer in his nearly two years as a gunship pilot in Vietnam. He said he saw helicopters kill three or four armed Vietnamese. "Did anyone question you regarding your sightings of the operations?" Maj. Carroll Tichenor, the prosecutor asked. "No," said Doersam. He said that from an altitude of 500 feet—where he was flying most of that day—he could distinguish men from women. The prosecution contends that Henderson, who was over the area much of that morning, should have been able to see the carnage. The questioning that Henderson conducted of the troops returning from the field two days after the operation is a major issue in the case against him. One witness testified that Henderson asked them of the attack only indirectly. "He said: 'Men, do you feel you have conducted yourself in a manner so that the Vietnamese will say the next time they see you come, here come our friends, here come our buddies?'" 1st Sgt. Jay A. Buchanan testified Tuesday at Henderson's trial. There was no response from the group, Buchanan said, adding that Henderson then pointed to him and asked: "How about you?" "I said: 'I have no comment, sir,'" Buchanan testified. "He said, 'Okay,' and we continued down the helicopter path." Q. Was that about it? A. Yes, sir. Buchanan said the questioning took place two days after the March 16, 1968, assault on My Lai. The government repeatedly has tried to show that Henderson brushed off orders to investigate the operation and that his interrogation of the troops was only brief and cursory. Henderson is being tried on four charges: that he failed to conduct a proper and thorough investigation, failed to report allegations of a massacre of superiors and that he later lied twice to an Army investigating panel. Only the first charge has figured in the trial, now in its third week. Buchanan, now stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C., was platoon sergeant of the second platoon which went through the north half of My Lai while Lt. William L. Calley's first platoon went through the south. Calley was convicted of killing 22 civilians, at My Lai.

Residents Keep Wary Eye On Erratic Fern

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Tropical Storm Fern drifted erratically in the Gulf of Mexico today about 260 miles east of this city. It contained no elements of danger at the moment, but coastal residents expressed concern. Officials at exposed coastal points laid plans for emergency action. All residents recall vividly the death and destruction caused in this immediate area by Hurricane Beulah in 1967—considered one of the major storms of history. At a late hour, Fern moved slowly to the southwest, which will send it ashore somewhere on the Mexican coast if it maintains direction. But there was no assurance the ill-defined storm will not turn toward the Texas coast. Weather Service offices, Coast Guard, newspapers and broadcast outlets were swamped with calls from concerned residents. At Port Isabel, a town of more than 3,000 on a peninsula protruding into the gulf about 20 miles northeast of Brownsville, Mayor Arturo Galvan said, "We're just sitting here waiting." He added, "If we have to evacuate, we will." Galvan said school buses are ready to move out residents and vacationers. The town was evacuated completely last year when Hurricane Ella threatened before turning southwest and striking the Mexican coast. Red Cross personnel and other relief workers went on standby in the Rio Grande Valley, said Ersel Lanz, chairman of the Emergency Operation Communication Center for the valley. Hurricane tracking maps were being picked up fast. One man obtained 12 — one each for his employees. Fern's winds were estimated at 55 miles per hour in squalls. Gale winds spread out 125 miles north and east of the center.

TAXI! — Teenagers on the Palos Verdes Peninsula get results when they stick out their thumbs — because that's the signal for a special kind of taxi for them. A civic committee decided one of the reasons why kids fight with their parents is over use of the car; thus, the idea for a free taxi service for the town's kids was born. A local security company furnishes the cars and area teenagers do the driving.

Not Offense; Now It Is Active Defense

BY GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Despite President Nixon's declaration a month ago that U.S. forces in Vietnam are in defensive positions, they are actively engaged in two offensive operations in the northern quarter of the country.

The U.S. Command does not acknowledge the term offensive in its military announcements these days.

"Active defense is what we're conducting," says Col. Phillip H. Stevens, a spokesman for Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam. "A passive defense is sitting and waiting for something to happen."

DRASTIC CUTS

While U.S. offensive operations have been cut drastically in number and size, there have been instances where American forces have been sent in to ball out faltering South Vietnamese troops.

Such moves contradict the Nixon administration's and the U.S. Command's contention that American forces are patrolling only to the degree of maintaining close-in security for U.S. bases.

One little publicized current operation is roughly 30 miles south of Da Nang in the Que Son and Hiep Duc valleys region, dominated for years by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

OCCUPY BASES

South Vietnamese forces were unable to secure the region, and a fresh North Vietnamese regiment was reported over to maintain our own security."

AP NEWS ANALYSIS

U.S. troops from the 196th Brigade in the Da Nang area were dispatched south to reoccupy two firebases that had been turned over to the South Vietnamese last April.

An armored cavalry unit from the U.S. Americal Division also was sent into the region and in the span of a few days lost eight men killed, a score wounded and several vehicles destroyed.

Several hundred troops from the 101st Airborne Division farther north have reoccupied at least two firebases to free South Vietnamese troops for a drive around the old Khe Sanh combat base in the northwestern corner of the country, near the Laotian border.

"We're not engaged in any long-range offensive operations," Stevens said. "Before, the 101st conducted operations way back in the mountains close to the border actively looking for the enemy outside of its own base areas, looking for him and trying to engage him."

"It's true that the 101st moved into two South Vietnamese bases but they were in its own area of operations. The 101st is still responsible for maintaining its own security. Obviously, if the South Vietnamese pulled out and left two voids, we had to take them over to maintain our own security."

STATUS CHANCES — Until this year, coed Martha Wilson was the only white pupil at Crispus Attucks High School where her mother teaches. A court order resulted in 900 more white pupils being assigned to the inner city school where classes began today. Going over an assignment with Miss Wilson is Miss Frances Stout, the school's language chairman. "It's been kind of fun," Miss Wilson, a senior, said of the years she was the only non-black at Attucks. "I guess people were curious about me and I made a lot of friends that way."

U.S. Forces Supporting Drive To Laotian Border

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. forces attacked from land, sea and air today in support of a South Vietnamese drive toward the Laotian border south of the demilitarized zone.

No significant contact with North Vietnamese soldiers was reported in the third day of the operation by some 10,000 South Vietnamese troops, American artillery and 200 U.S. helicopters. Some enemy harassing attacks were reported, wounding an undisclosed number of South Vietnamese soldiers.

The South Vietnamese reopened three fire bases and established four landing zones to the east and north of Khe Sanh. South Vietnamese officers in the field said there were no plans to reopen the Khe Sanh combat base, which served as the main operations base for the allied drive into Laos last February. The officers also said there were no plans to cross the border into Laos.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, a spokesman for South Vietnamese headquarters in Saigon, said the forwardmost government troops were 15 miles from the Laotian border and 10 miles from Khe Sanh at last report. In the heaviest raids in two weeks, more than a score of U.S. B52 bombers dropped 600 tons of bombs on North Viet-name bunker complexes and storage sites encircling Khe Sanh.

Two U.S. 7th Fleet destroyers opened fire with their five-inch guns from positions in the Tonkin Gulf off the coast of Vietnam. And U.S. eight-inch howitzers just brought into Vandegrift combat base on Highway 9 northeast of Khe Sanh blasted suspected North Vietnamese targets in the rolling foothills and mountains below the DMZ and to the west toward the Laos border.

It marked the first time that

U.S. troops had returned to the Vandegrift base since the allied thrust into Laos. The base was reopened for the current operation called Lam Son 810, but is manned by South Vietnamese troops for the most part.

The aim of the drive is to disrupt North Vietnamese supply routes and infiltration corridors leading into South Vietnam from Laos and the DMZ. Hien said it was the first time a major South Vietnamese force had moved as far west along the DMZ since the Laotian drive.

Critics Say Ocean Dumping Bill Running Into Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Critics of a major bill to control what may be dumped into oceans, coastal waters and the Great Lakes claim this environmental protection measure is overloaded and running into jurisdictional trouble.

The bill before the House would bar unregulated dumping of waste; ban transporting and dumping of radiological, chemical or biological warfare agents and high-level radioactive wastes; and authorize marine sanctuaries for preserving conservation, recreation, ecological or esthetic values. Yet, while some congressmen are seeking to slice out the full $30-million marine-sanctuaries section, others are trying to expand provisions even more by adding an oil-drilling moratorium.

A backstage dispute among committees postponed House action before the month-long congressional recess. The plan drafted by the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee was due for floor debate as a first item facing returning legislators today.

Floor discussion could carry over to Thursday before decisions come on expected moves by Interior Committee Chairman Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo., to kill the marine-sanctuaries portion and by Reps. Norman F. Lent, R-N.Y., and Charles Eague, R-Calif., to insert the anti-oil-drilling provision.

Dumping of waste would be prohibited unless authorized by the Environmental Protection Agency or the Corps of Engineers. The corps could issue permits only to dump dredge and fill material—as long as these operations are in line with EPA standards.

Although EPA backs the bill, the Interior Department has attacked the marine-sanctuaries portion.

The Merchant Marine Committee said the disputed section would let the Commerce secretary designate areas up to the edge of the Continental Shelf as marine sanctuaries. A coastal-state governor could veto projects involving his state.

The Interior Department said the Office of Management and Budget and the State and Defense departments "have expressed their concern about the claim to extra-territorial jurisdiction proposed."

The Lent-Teague amendment would authorize the Interior secretary to impose a moratorium on oil-drilling leases in any area under study for designation as a marine sanctuary. Teague's district includes the Santa Barbara, Calif., region involved in an oil blowout in 1969.

The committee-approved bill would implement the Nixon administration's ocean-dumping proposals. But the panel's plan differs by making the Atomic Energy Commission comply with regulations, by requiring the Corps of Engineers to apply EPA standards on permits, and by imposing an absolute ban on CBW agents and high-level radioactive wastes.

TAXES NEEDED California Schools In Finance Trouble

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan and California Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti agree new taxes are needed to equalize financing in the state's school districts, with a statewide property tax likely.

The California Supreme Court ruled Aug. 30 that the present local property tax system of school financing discriminates unconstitutionally against pupils in districts short on taxable property wealth.

The court implied but did not rule expressly that the amount of money spent per pupil is the best available test for the quality of education a school district offers.

DISCRIMINATION

It nevertheless ordered a Superior Court hearing of a suit by 16 Los Angeles residents charging that the state's local property tax system of school support discriminates on the basis of wealth.

State Deputy Atty. Gen. Sanford Gruskis has said it remains for the plaintiffs to prove in court that there is an actual correlation between the quality of education offered by a school district and the property wealth of its residents.

As the California Legislature reconvened Tuesday confronted with the major new issue of public school financing, Reagan said he favored a statewide property tax as part of a new system of school support.

STATE TAXES

Reagan, a Republican, also told a news conference he wants a study of the state's entire tax structure to see if there are any other new taxes that can be levied for schools.

"We may have to accept some statewide property tax," said Moretti, a Democrat, "but by and large I would like to see it (school revenue) drawn from some other source." Moretti mentioned the possibility of an increase in bank and corporation taxes. Other possible sources would be boosts in state income and sales taxes.

In taking the course it did, the Supreme Court supported arguments long advanced by John E. Coons, a University of California law professor, for equalization of educational opportunity.

In a friend of the court oral argument, Coons repeated a view he expressed two years ago in the California Law Review:

MONEY USE

"We accept as a fact the positive relation between the cost and quality of education. . . . This assumption is less risky than might at first appear. The state will be in no position to deny its validity. That relation is itself the justification for the existing financing system, nearly all of which permit districts to apply varying tax rates and to spend varying amounts per pupil in order to implement local aspirations and meet local needs."

"However unsatisfactory it may be as a measure for individual cases . . . money is the only feasible criterion."

Coons declared in an interview that the court's decision says only "that the quality of public education may not be a function of wealth."

"And that," Coons said, "is all it says."

End the SHAME and TEARS of BED WETTING
PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL HAS ENDED BEDWETTING FOR HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS IN THE PAST TWENTY YEARS
When children discover that a playmate wets his bed, the result can be merciless teasing and serious, psychological problems.
The entire family can be effected. The cost and work of taking care of a bedwetting child can cause friction and irritability among parents.
It is quite possible that your child will eventually outgrow bedwetting, but what happens until that time comes? Medical authorities have stated that a bedwetting child feels that he is a disgrace to his family. Statistics prove that a bedwetting child achieves below his real ability in school. And the child is embarrassed and ashamed.
But, now, bedwetting, when not caused by organic defect or disease, can be ended. Safely. Permanently.
Our method is endorsed by many doctors. Read their statements in our 16 page brochure: "Is There A Solution?" Also read what other people say who have had the same problem. Send this coupon for your free copy. No cost or obligation.

Miss America Lovelies 'Down On Boardwalk'

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The 50 Miss America lovelies have ridden in parade along the boardwalk here and tonight they match their charms in swimsuit, evening gown and talent competition.

The contention in the three categories goes on for three nights with each girl vying in one contest a night.

About 150,000 persons turned out for Tuesday night's traditional pageant parade. Aboard a float that colorfully displayed a new flower, the Miss America Gladiola, was the current Miss America, Phyllis George of Texas.

For the first time, this year the parade was taped for television and will be broadcast Thursday on more than 100 stations. The beauty queens had been warned that because of the TV the parade would go on regardless of the weather, but temperatures were mild and there was no sign of showers.

Other than the weather, the biggest worry for the girls was to keep smiling. Petroleum jelly on the contestants' teeth reduced the problem of dry and sore lips.

A&M Given Sea Grant College Rating

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas A&M University has been designated as sea grant college, giving it an important role in marine science and technological research in future years, Sen. John Tower has announced.

Tower's office said Tuesday the designation was made by the Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Also designated were the University of Washington, Oregon State University and the University of Rhode Island. All four were selected because of their accomplishments in marine studies, Tower said.

A&M's Sea Grant program, which recently received a $1.4 million grant includes research in preservation of the marine environment, fish diseases and parasites, engineering projects related to improved instrumentation and offshore construction, resource management studies, technical training and a marine information service program.

"Sea grant college designation recognizes the increasingly important role that Texas is playing in the field of marine affairs," Tower said. "I believe that in years to come, this designation will be as important to Texas A&M as was the land grant designation in the 19th century."

Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans said designation as a sea grant college symbolizes the mutual recognition of the continuing responsibility by the Department of Commerce and the institution to maintain and develop marine resources.

"I know of few other programs which offer as much long-term promise for the nation," Secretary Stans observed.

The formal designation, with official ceremonies scheduled in Washington, D. C., later this month, comes more than three years after Texas A&M and several other institutions received initial grants to begin programs which could lead to sea grant college status.

Texas A&M has been awarded federal funds totaling $3.8 million, including the recently announced $1.4 million grant for support during 1971-72. The university has contributed nearly $2 million to the program, bringing total funding up to approximately $5.8 million.

"We expect to develop a total program which will do for marine resources what the land grant colleges did for development of agriculture," noted Dr. Jack K. Williams, Texas A&M president. "Sea grant college designation clearly reflects Texas A&M University leadership and commitment in marine affairs in the state and nation."

The sea grant program and college act of 1966, patterned after the Morrill Act which established the nation's land grant colleges, is the broadest educational mandate for marine affairs ever created by Congress.

Land-Buyer Denies Interest Conflict

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Still another denial has been voiced here in answer to claims that John Peace, chairman of the University of Texas board of regents, was involved in a conflict of interest.

Charles A. Kuper, who bought land surrounding the new University of Texas site here, said Peace, "has never had any part in any way, shape or form, with any business venture I've ever been in."

The controversy flared Saturday when a student group in Austin, the Legal Research Project, issued a report accusing Peace of a conflict of interest.

The students said Kuper and Alfred Negley, both of San Antonio, began buying about 1,100 acres around the UTSA campus about three months before the regents approved the site in 1970.

They said Peace was instrumental in choosing the site.

Kuper and Negley were officers of La Ventura Corp., the students said, and Peace was an incorporator and initial director. They said Peace filed the firms' incorporation papers.

Kuper and Negley bought the land as individuals and La Ventura is not mentioned in any public records involving the property, the group said.

Kuper, president of La Ventura, said the firm had never bought any land. It was a franchise operation for Mexican restaurants but was unsuccessful and is being closed out, he said.

He also said former Gov. John B. Connally was vice president of La Ventura but resigned when he became Treasury secretary.

'No Room For Human Feeling; Water Rights Board Okays Dam

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Water Rights Commission voted Tuesday to allow construction of a dam on Martin's Creek in Rusk County despite the pleas of bewildered landowners to block the project.

"There's no room for human feeling here," said W.T. Adams, one of a dozen or so landowners who claimed the lake created by the dam would flood their pastures, destroy timber and cut off the creek as a water supply for livestock.

"Our great state and country couldn't have developed without projects of this type," said commission member Joe Carter.

He and chairman Otha Dent voted to approve the dam, Leslie Neal, the third member, was absent.

POWER PLANT
Dallas Power and Light Co., Texas Electric Service Co. and Texas Power and Light Co. asked for permission to build the dam about 17 miles northeast of Henderson, near the Harrison County line, and impound 77,619 acre-feet of water for a multi-million dollar power plant.

(an acre-foot is 325,851 gallons of water.)

"We will do whatever we can to mitigate the damages," said Harris Martin, attorney for the companies. "The companies will bend over backwards, as they have in the past, to be a good neighbor to these people."

Mayme Leadon, who said she lived one-half mile from the creek, described an area around Tatum which will be affected most by the rising water, as one "where people understand each other. If your cow gets out, your neighbor puts it in for you. Those places are life itself."

"If I have to get out, I'll be a very unhappy person the rest of my life."

Her brother, A.D. Finley, another black landowner, said his grandfather first owned the land, and the family had been paying taxes on it for 115 years, handing it down from generation to generation.

HAD SOMETHING
"We thought we had something. Now we find we don't," he said.

He said two women who lived near the proposed power plant, one 82 and the other 92, have "declared if they have to move, they are finished."

"All we've ever done is to work hard, pay taxes and live in peace," said Adams, who claimed that many others would have protested the dam if they had been well enough to make the 250-mile drive to Austin.

He said the Rusk County Commissioners Court who unanimously endorsed the project, had "grossly wronged" the landowners because they had not informed them of the proposal long ago.

J.M. Grant, a resident of Tatum for all his 73 years, said, "I like industry where you can have it without tearing up neighborhoods." He estimated 200 persons might be affected by the construction of the dam. He said the high water would cover 50-60 of his more than 400 acres.

A NUISANCE
Do you think it will enhance the area or be a public nuisance, Grant was asked.

"A nuisance," he replied.

"I've got some cows and a man can't graze them in a lake," said Hugh Wyatt, who read a handwritten protest on notebook paper for his mother, Mrs. W. C. Wyatt.

Reagan Taylor said he and his brother had more than 1,000 acres for grazing cows, and up to 90 per cent would be flooded by the lake water.

Dent said "these things" have come up in each of the 160 reservoirs already built in Texas.

"What we're looking at is that the people who own the land will be penalized... you're going to hurt these people to help others" make money, said W.H. Ross of Henderson, speaking for his father, 79, who will lose about 100 of his 310 acres to high water.

"The only business he knows is cattle ranching, and he's a

Speed Reading Course Set To Begin In Big Spring

Arrangements have been made to conduct a 21 hour course in speed reading. The course is open to anyone above the age of 13 and guarantees every graduate a reading speed over 1,000 words per minute and with at least a 15 per cent increase in comprehension.

After the seven week program a person can read an average length book in less than an hour and understand it better. In addition to speed reading the course also emphasizes improved study techniques, better test taking skills and increased concentration and retention abilities.

The course requires a person to attend one class per week on the evening of their choice. For those who would like more information without obligation to enroll, a series of FREE one hour orientation lectures have been scheduled. These meetings are free to the public and the course will be explained in complete detail including entrance requirements, classroom procedures, tuition, class schedule and location. You need to attend only one of the meetings whichever is most convenient for you. These free one hour orientations will be held as follows:

Thursday, Sept. 9, at 7:30 p.m.
Friday, Sept. 10, 11:30 a.m.
Saturday, Sept. 11, 10:30 a.m. and 2:00 p.m.
Wednesday, Sept. 15th, 7:30 p.m.

Meetings will be held at the Meeting Room, Ramada Inn, Big Spring.

This course is also available to industry and other groups upon request.

Houston Ku Klux Klan Man Faces 12-Year Term

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston area member of the Ku Klux Klan faces up to 12 years in prison after being convicted Tuesday of plotting to blow up radio stations in California.

Jimmy Dale Hutto, 24, of Pasadena, also was found guilty by a jury of six men and six women on two counts of federal gun law violations.

Sentencing was set for Oct. 12. Hutto said he will appeal the convictions.

He was convicted of conspiring to destroy transmitters of radio stations in Los Angeles and San Francisco owned by the non-profit Pacific Foundation.

Hutto is under indictment here in state court also on a charge of blowing up the transmitter of Pacifica's Houston station in 1970.

Jurors found that Hutto bought and possessed a pistol despite the fact that he had been committed three times to mental institutions. The law forbids purchase or possession of a gun by a convicted felon or a person who has been judged mentally incompetent.

FBI agents arrested Hutto with Russell Rector, 18, and Ronford Styron, 20, last Jan. 15 as they drove west from Houston, allegedly heading toward California.

Rector and Styron testified they were fellow members with Hutto in the United Klans of America and he recruited them to help him blow up the transmitters of the California stations. They decided not to go through with the plot and notified the FBI, they said.

Accommodation To New Process

Mass busing of pupils in school districts across the nation, and thus far principally in the southern regions, got under way Tuesday. Although there were some points of friction and a few demonstrations of sorts, the fact remains that these were relatively isolated incidents. The start was achieved with a remarkable smoothness, and most of the difficulties were mechanical, not emotional.

This reflects at least two things. One, that the vast majority of citizens seek to observe the law, whatever it may be or whatever the courts may say that it is, regardless of what personal feelings may be. The other is that by and large the students themselves appeared to be taking an active role in trying to make the transition as smooth and as functional as possible.

When one considers the vast thousands of children being transported under a concept new to the educational process, the record of Tuesday is all the more remarkable. It would be folly to reach a judgment on the basis of a single day or week, but the seeming acceptance or accommodation to the shuffling of student populations is a hopeful sign that reason will prevail pending a clarification of the whole process.

It could be that breaking up of de facto blocks of ethnic groups may in the long run produce a lesson within itself which transcends even excellence in traditional academics, although we have

The Point Is Children

A story in The Herald says that state highway patrolmen and other officers are enforcing the new state law relative to the stopping of automobiles for school buses engaged in loading or unloading passengers.

When the law says stop, this is precisely what it means. Most who fail to do this will be either ignorant of the change in the law or unmindful of what is taking place.

serious reservations that transportation for the sake of racial balance is the wisest course. Perhaps experience will tell us something in this regard; perhaps other decisions will throw more penetrating light into a muddled situation. In the meantime, the country is to be commended for a sober adaptation to the situation. The vast tide is the significant, not a few whirlpools within it.

We hope that bus flashers are so plain and so vivid that there can be no doubt but that they are stopped and taking on or discharging pupils.

Those who disregard this may run afoul of the law, and without much defense. But this is not the point — the point is the safety of children. Even if there is not a policeman or patrolman within a hundred miles, this is a law which should be zealously respected by all drivers.

Eddie Compos may be a hero to some of you for burning his $7,000 "dream car" on the front lawn of the Ford Company's plant in suburban Pico Rivera, Calif., but he and all the rest of you who may be encouraged by his example are a potential menace to mankind and his environment.

CAN YOU imagine the effect such actions would have on our planet if Eddie Compos were allowed to continue his own unique style of criticism?

IMAGINE IF you can the tens of thousands of small and large fires on the front lawns of General Electric, General Motors, Honda, Plymouth, Chrysler, Maytag, Westinghouse, Kodak. Think for a moment of the horrendous effect on the atmosphere the burning of millions of motorcycles, cars, mixers, blenders, can-openers, bicycles, tricycles, tires, tubes, refrigerators, radios, washers, dryers, televisions, hair-dryers, electric toothbrushes, to mention just a few articles you and I would just love to put a match to at one time or the other. Why, the pollution from children's games and toys alone would be enough to choke the life out of you.

THE MERE thought of the possibilities frighten me. I don't know how the various presidents of the manufacturing companies may feel about Eddie Compos and the potential of his movement, but as for me I think he should receive the George Nader Award for Valor ... with three crossed matches.

GOOD SHOW, Eddie Compos. Since I'm chicken could I send you, postage paid, my son's motorcycle and my wife's electric can-opener ... just for starters?

Teddy's Ready

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — "I like John Lindsay," Sen. Teddy Kennedy is telling political intimates these days, "but I for one don't intend to let him take over the Presidential race by default."

This position, made clear to — among others — Sen. George McGovern and Democratic National Chairman Larry O'Brien, is Kennedy's way of assuring the party that he is willing to keep open the possibility the Democrats might turn to him if there is a convention deadlock at Miami Beach next July. Put another way by a National Committee technician, "Teddy is a candidate today — on his own terms."

IT IS KENNEDY reaffirming his pledge to Chicago's Mayor Dick Daley several months ago that he'll make a bid for the nomination at convention time "if necessary."

There was logic, then, in Kennedy's statement at a National Press Club luncheon that he did not intend to endorse any of the contenders for the Democratic nomination before the convention opens. These were the words of a man disinclined to do anything to inconvenience his own chances. No one has to tell Kennedy he would lose a lot of friends if he backed, say, McGovern or Indiana's Sen. Birch Bayh, and then was forced to renege on that endorsement.

OF ALL the candidates, announced and potential, McGovern is closest to Kennedy and the Kennedy camp. Whenever he gets a chance, Kennedy says nice things about the earnest South Dakotan. But like most of those who wield important power in the party, Kennedy doesn't think highly of McGovern's chances.

The flaw in the strategy is the assumption of Kennedyites that their tiger can have the nomination for the asking — that the delegates will anoint him as a matter of divine right. Unfortunately for the young Senator, this is not necessarily so.

ALTHOUGH THE public opinion polls show Kennedy is still a viable candidate despite his personal troubles, his support among party regulars who will cast the votes at Miami Beach falls considerably short of being unanimous. Sen. Ed Muskie's people certainly would not go along tamely with a Kennedy draft, and neither would Sen. Scoop Jackson's. The canny Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, currently enjoying his own Presidential boomlet, has never been a Kennedy fan and would have to be dragged kicking and screaming to the coronation ceremonies.

MOREOVER, Kennedy still lacks a record of accomplishment in Capitol Hill. He served one term as major whip in the Senate, but became so indifferent to the job's duties that he lost the post.

PRETTY, BUT IT'S STILL A SOLID WALL

And Now—A Great Building

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — "It is a simple, efficient building," he said. Later he called it "a good building," and after that "a simple, tranquil building."

"But is it a great building?" architect Edward Durell Stone was asked.

"It's a great building," he replied slowly, either reluctant to give his approval to such an all-encompassing term or simply too modest at the moment for self praise.

Stone, a graceful, powerful man at 69, was speaking of his latest creation, the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, which opened officially today. "It has power with dignity," he said.

MIND AND SPIRIT The personification of architecture not only as a science and art but as a business too, Stone has blended the power of the mind and spirit with capital, planning, and a staff of more than 200 to make a huge, profitable enterprise.

From offices here and in Los Angeles and Palo Alto, Calif., and in Chicago, he and his associates plan hospitals, hotels, museums, libraries, colleges, office buildings, atomic reactor centers, stadiums. And they build them anywhere in the world.

It is so big a business that one wonders how any one individual can impress his personality on it, but his associates claim he does.

The latest project involved Stone's efforts for 13 years, during the last 10 of which he donated rather than charged for his personal services. He attended to minute details, said an associate, and was involved in "every square inch of the building."

"This was an opportunity," Stone said, "a unique opportunity—a monument to a great president and a chance to build a building on a good site. You can't get anything better."

In conceiving of the structure, which is 600 feet long and contains some of the world's biggest rooms, Stone said he kept in mind the personality of the city of Washington, "a city of large white buildings in parklike settings."

The buildings there are huge, he said, and so he felt it was perfectly in keeping with historical tradition—as well as more economical—to build three vast auditoriums into one grand structure, rather than building three separate structures.

And yet, some critics have complained that the building is ostentatious, glittering, glamorous—criticism that Stone over lunch he indicated he was prepared for, although with wrath or good humor it was hard to tell.

"Americans have always had a hangup that anything beautiful was sinful," he said, suggesting that it has bred a type of hypocrisy. "The richest man in town sometimes wears a battered hat and drives an old car," he said.

On a larger scale, he explained, "it results in America not having appropriate facilities to entertain people of distinction. The Queen of England came here in 1939 and she was received in an armory."

We Have A Chance

E. Forrest Copeland

It's a crazy mixed up world ... when you have to junk long held concepts and ideas ... completely reverse your thinking ... to understand what's going on ... what's good and what's bad for the future of our economy.

Take the wage-price freeze ... something normally viewed with abject horror ... by the financial community ... being now accepted almost gratefully ... but with some reservations until details are more fully revealed. Reason for the switch ... painful admission that the wage-price spiral was completely out of hand ... a period of stability urgently needed ... to restore the concept of productivity to our economy ... so that both wages and prices could begin once more to have some value ... some meaning to all concerned.

THEN the distressing news ... that the dollar is holding unusually firm ... not declining in value as much as desired ... in relation to other currencies. Contrast this with the fears ... a few short weeks back ... before the new economic policy was announced ... when the dollar was under severe pressure ... the picture black. Reason for the switch ... within limits ... the more the dollar declines ... in relation to other currencies ... the better it is for American business ... in that our products are cheaper ... more competitive overseas. This in part explains the unusual strength of the dollar ... foreign governments are supporting the dollar carefully ... for fear too large a spread in currency exchange rates will price their products completely out of the huge U.S. market ... causing them severe economic pains ... in terms of fewer exports ... less business with the United States.

SUMMING IT UP ... several major U.S. industries ... steel and automotive among the forefront ... have been given an opportunity to once again become vital ... growing competitive factors ... in the U.S. economy ... and the world. The developing story ... over the next few months will be ... whether labor and management pull together ... to achieve this end.

LET'S FACE IT ... there has been some substantial inflation of values in the stock market too. If the new economic game plan works ... there are several reasonably predictable factors that might transpire. First ... to recall an earlier Money Lines comment ... "austerity and belt tightening will come ... if the program is to succeed." If we accept this premise ... we can then go on to acknowledge the obvious ... that the harder the problem is to cure ... the greater the cross currents and the more volatile the financial markets are apt to be.

MAJOR SEGMENTS of the investment public are already beginning to acknowledge this ... beginning to accumulate debt securities with good yields ... and high yield equities ... on the assumption ... that under these circumstances ... they can count on income more surely ... than they can on capital gains. In line with this ... bond markets continue strong in spite of heavy supply ... and several of the major bluechip growth equities are already under pressure ... a trend I would not be surprised to see continue.

LAYING IT OUT ... if we return to sound fundamental values ... in wages and prices ... would expect the stock market to lead the way ... as austerity and hard nosed thinking returns to national attitude. This could build a base ... for some really spectacular long term economic progress. At this point ... we could then again reverse our thinking ... removal of wage-price restrictions would be bullish ... a strong and aggressive dollar overseas would develop ... we'd be back on the track again. Foreigning comments are the opinion of the writer.

Hal Boyle

By BOB HARING (Submitting for Hal Boyle) EAST BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Fathers deserve protection.

If women's groups are liberating mama and youth organizations are protecting the kids, somebody ought to raise some concern about dear old Dad.

Day care centers spring mother from watching after the kids and new appliances eliminate housework. Boys and girls are pretaught and organized almost from the moment of conception to reach total utilization, full enjoyment, the complete absence of pain or frustration.

With all that going on, daddy ought to get his turn.

There needn't be any such formal association as the National Organization of Women—NOW—or Protection against Parents — PAP. But there should be at least some consideration given to the preservation and even encouragement of fathers, to the elimination of those things which make fatherhood less than totally pleasant sometimes.

Such considerations should be reasonable. It would be totally impractical, for instance, to come out against elimination of leftovers on Friday nights, or for prohibition of TV dinners or cold cuts on bridge club days or for any ban on Parent's Day at the school or Father's Night at the YWCA.

But a rule against more than one kid at a time horse-riding would help a lot. It might even improve the life expectancy averages and certainly should cut down on back ache as a leading cause of employe absenteeism.

And some rule about not jumping on daddy's stomach when he's down, would be useful, too. As would some age limit on playing football with the neighborhood kids and some sort of definition of the rules of playing rough with the old man after supper.

Legislation could help in some areas.

The first law should require that all toys must be sold assembled. No more boxed bicycles or jungle gyms in a carton.

Penalties for violation should be severe. The guy who sells a swing set in a crate ought to be sentenced to assemble an electric road racing set—without instructions. Leniency would be granting him all the parts.

It's possible that Congress and the various state legislatures would react slowly to these proposals, but not really too likely if you think about it. After all, most elected officials are fathers, too.

Billy Graham

I find great comfort and help in reading books on "positive thinking." My son, however, who has turned to another faith believes that these books are "of the devil." Please give me your thoughts on the "positive thinking" philosophy?

M. B. Books on "positive thinking" have obviously helped a lot of people. Positive thought is certainly better than negative thinking.

However, I believe you will find that even the authors of the books on "positive thinking" (Norman Vincent Peale in particular) base their thinking on the importance of accepting Christ. The Bible says: "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." Philippians 2:5. The Bible says: "The natural man receiveth not the things of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them because they are spiritually discerned." I Corinthians 2:14. To teach that troubles can be overcome, bodies healed, and spiritual strength acquired by a mere slant of the mind is unscriptural. The right attitude toward life is the result of a right attitude toward God. The first step toward the right kind of positive thinking is to receive Christ and all the positiveness He brings to our lives.

Sin is negative. It is "missing the mark"; it is failure; it is a negation — the opposite to all God wants to give us. So, it is important to renounce sin, and receive Christ who is the way, the truth, and the life. Then, and only then are we equipped to think and act as we ought.

A Devotion For Today...

Unpruned Hedges Lose Foliage

Hedges should be trimmed regularly. Left unpruned they are soon incapable of producing foliage on the lower limbs. In choosing a plant for the hedge, consider size, year round color, and hardiness. Grass growing beneath trees must also be given special care. This grass should be watered and fertilized more and in greater amounts than the rest of the grass.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to the 73-year-old woman who wondered if a doctor could prescribe something to pep up her 91-year-old husband who hadn't touched her in two years. I don't believe it! Not about the man — the woman.

I am a 69-year-old man and I'm as peppy today as I was 40 years ago, and I show no signs of slowing up. I'm married to a 65-year-old woman who would be happy if I never touched her again. I have been a faithful husband for over 40 years, but right now I would like to meet that 73-year-old reading you really did it. Your statement, "Railroads are becoming as extinct as whooping cranes," is not true for actual railroads, and is less true for the scale-model railroad hobby.

T.J.C. DEAR T.J.C.: I made no mention whatsoever of the scale-model railroad hobby. I was referring to passenger trains. In 1929, there were 20,000 daily passenger trains in the United States; today there are fewer than 400, hence my whooping crane comment.

DEAR ABBY: So that gal who's married to a railroad nut thinks she's worse off than the one who's married to a stamp collector? Well, my husband is not only a railroad fan and a stamp collector, he is a football fanatic!

His idea of heaven could be attending a stamp auction on a railroad train, en route to the Army-Navy football game. From now until the Super Bowl, my husband won't even know I'm alive. But I will know he is because every room of our house will be littered with stamp catalogs, old railroad timetables and football magazines.

When he got the September Playboy, he read the Pigskin Review before he even looked at the centerfold playmate.

Would you say I had a problem? MARION

DEAR MARION: Yup. A triple whammy. Lotsa luck.

DEAR ABBY: PETE IN WESTPORT wrote to say he always sleeps in the altogether, but he keeps a pair of pajama tops under his pillow in case of fire. Then he added, "—and my wife sleeps the same way, only SHE keeps the BOTTOMS under HER pillow."

Tell Pete in case of fire he would be much better off with the bottoms, and his wife with the tops. THINKING AHEAD

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Sleeping Pills

Your Good Health
Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Further, find out, if you can, where she is getting the pills. They are a prescription item, so try to learn whether she is using an old prescription that should have expired or is using prescriptions from more than one doctor without their knowing it. Or obtaining the pills without a prescription — that happens, too.

She can be weaned from the medication, but will doubtless need the cooperation of her physician.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter has been taking three, sometimes four, phenobarbital tablets a night to get to sleep. She has been doing this for about six years now.

When she gets up in the morning, she staggers out of the bedroom, her eyes are glassy and she has a terrible pain in her head. I know it's from the pills, but she says it's from the vessels swelling in her head. Would you comment on this? Maybe she'll listen to you.—Mrs. T.G.

Well, maybe she'll listen to me, but don't hold your breath waiting for her to do so. You didn't tell me the size of the tablets she is taking, which is of some significance, but regardless of that, the groggy hangovers show clearly that she is getting too much.

Sleep is important; phenobarbital, properly used, can be a helpful medication, but it also is a drug which, used to excess, can be habituating and can cause barbiturate poisoning.

People who have let themselves be ensnared by the phenobarbital habit will usually offer any sort of excuse than look at the facts.

What can you do? Tell her doctor about this morning-after effect. He should be made aware of what is going on, and it's a fair guess that your daughter won't tell him.

Diabetes insipidus can be controlled successfully, and it does not affect a child's nutrition or activity as diabetes mellitus does.

What about constipation? Many can be relieved of it, both mentally and physically, by reading the booklet, "The Way To Stop Constipation." For a copy write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope, and 25 cents in coin to cover printing and handling.

One possibility is that she might have diabetes insipidus, which causes ravenous thirst but sugar is not involved. It is a disorder of the pituitary, although it is not a common disorder.

Of course, the little girl may just like water.

With the sugar test negative, you can disregard "sugar diabetes," but if by actual measurement she consumes more than three quarts of water a day, further examination is in order.

Diabetes insipidus can be controlled successfully, and it does not affect a child's nutrition or activity as diabetes mellitus does.

He said a government survey showed the U.S. tax could cost Canada between $300 million and $900 million in annual export sales and between 30,000 and 90,000 jobs, depending on how long the surcharge lasts.

NFL Won't Abandon Pre-Season Tests

By The Associated Press
Two of the game's top quarterbacks, Joe Namath and Sonny Jurgensen, have been hurt in exhibition games but don't expect the National Football League to give up preseason contests. It can't. The owners can't afford to. William Clay Ford, owner of the Detroit Lions, will attest to that. Without exhibition games, "we wouldn't be in the black," says Ford.

LOTS OF LOOT
Last weekend's exhibition games—the NFL officially likes to call them preseason games—were seen by 696,753. At $6, or thereabouts, for tickets, that comes to over $4 million. Multiply that by six—the number of preseason games most NFL teams play—and you see what Ford's talking about. Ford also maintains that exhibition games are necessary for reasons other than money. "Otherwise the coaches wouldn't play a rookie if their lives depended on it." Because coaches do play rookies in exhibition games, zany Mike Battle is no longer a New York Jet. Battle got the ax Tuesday because rookies Chris Farasopoulos, a kick-return specialist, and Phil Wise, a safety, beat him out. The 175-pound Battle was the Jets' punt and kickoff returns leader the past two seasons. He won his spurs in 1969 as a rookie, when, in an exhibition game, he returned a punt 86 yards for a touchdown against the New York Giants. It was the first meeting between the two New York clubs. Off-field antics, such as demonstrations on how to chew glass and turn over cars, made Battle popular with New York fans and teammates. NECESSARY CUT

Battle was a victim of the down-to-44 rule of the NFL which was in effect for Tuesday. Teams had to trim their rosters to 44 players or less. Next Tuesday, prior to the start of the regular campaign, it's down to 40. Surprisingly there weren't too many well-known names among those cut Tuesday. A pair of veteran linebackers, Ed Weisacosky and Ted Davis, were placed on waivers by the Miami Dolphins. The San Francisco 49ers said they wouldn't reveal until today the names of the five players it cut. And the New England Patriots cut rookie Sam Adams, a guard and namesake of a New England patriot of Revolutionary War days.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

The time may not be far removed when telecasts of home games of the Dallas Cowboys might be blacked out in all of Texas. Management has already ruled that a station in Sherman-Denison, 65 miles away, cannot air this year's games. At the time, the decision makers for the club said it was alright for network affiliates in Waco and Tyler to carry the play-by-play accounts. Both stations are more than 90 miles from Dallas. The electronic geniuses who brought the Sherman-Denison broadcasts back to the fringe areas of Dallas are on the verge of doing the same thing to the ones which will be picked up in Waco and Tyler. The Cowboys are already getting upset about the wonders of science, although they realize considerably over $1 million a year for video rights to their games. The Dallas people obviously would like nothing better than to continue to reap the bonanza from TV while permitting no one but Nome, Alaska, and Lewiston, Maine, to carry the live telecasts. The idea of the public getting something for nothing, even though some network is paying through the nose to carry such telecasts, irritates the people in professional sports. It's very easy to get accustomed to a luxury. The only problem is that a luxury like the guaranteed income that TV offers becomes a necessity to a pro team and right away they start looking around for other sources of revenue. Kenneth Neal, who played outstanding basketball for the HCJC Jayhawks last season, will be in school again here this year but he won't be playing. Married and the father of a tot, he'll be spending his afternoons working. Wallace Herring, who drove the team bus for the HC cagers a few years ago (on a volunteer basis), writes from his new home in Orlando, Fla., that he attended the Women's National Softball Tournament held there recently. Stratford, Conn., won the meet by defeating defending titlist Orange, Calif., in the championship game, 1-0. Texas was represented by Houston, which lost two straight games — to Birmingham, Ala., 1-0; and Plainfield, N.Y., 4-2. Stratford captured its eight national championship and finished this year with a remarkable 57-0 record. Straws in the wind: Pro football is feeling some remorse that football on the prep school level is suffering because the mercenaries are saturating the airwaves with their telecasts. The Philadelphia Eagles recently put up $50,000 as part of the last ditch effort to save high school sports in that city. The pros have been destroying their incubator for years. Observers don't expect Glenn Ray, the quarterback who transferred from Stanton to Midland High for his senior season of eligibility, to clock much playing time with the Bulldogs. It's not that Ray isn't talented enough. He can get the job done and at 200 pounds he's big enough. But Hal Guttryer manned the navigator's post for Midland last year and coach Larry Click knows what Hal can do under pressure. A 165-pounder named Randy Blanscett figures he'll play ahead of Ray, too, since he is only a junior and Click wants as much experience as possible there in 1972. The University of Arkansas will find room on its football schedule for the Southwest Conference's newest member, the University of Houston, as early as 1976. Coach Frank Broyles did it by cancelling several oral commitments for games.

Stroup Again Leads Field

Wayne Stroup of Big Spring regained the lead in the race for the season's riding championship at Big Spring Raceways the past weekend when he won both the Trophy Dash and the Australian Pursuit. The field is competing for a color TV set in competition that will extend into November. Wendell Maxey dropped to second place in the standings. He blew his engine in the time trials but stayed in competition by purchasing Autry Moore's car. The best he could do, however, were a second and two third places. Dickey Jones, who had a substitute driver in the person of Raymond Hamby, is third while Billy Bingham has climbed to fourth. Bingham won both the Bonus Race and the Feature. Other winners included: Johnny Puga, Slow Heat; Bruce Miller, Middle Heat; Darrell Pollock, Fast Heat; and David Early, Consolations. In all, 35 cars took part in the competition and another banner turnout of racing buffs attended.

Wilson Hurls Two-Hitter At Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — "There was one thing about it," said Houston Astro pitcher Don Wilson after opening weekend is this for the college football season when no less than 12 of the Top Twenty teams in the preseason poll are in action? Whatever happened to the openers that used to pit old Block & Tackle U. against Breather Poly? The season gets under way Friday night with a classic matchup—fifth-ranked Southern California against 18th-rated Alabama in the Los Angeles Coliseum. In addition, Brigham Young faces North Texas State in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas.

Trojans Porkers Picked In Debuts

Alabama at Southern Cal—The magic number here is 200. Alabama's next victory will be Bear Bryant's 200th and USC's John McKay says the Crimson Tide "is 200 per cent better than a year ago," when the Trojans romped 42-21. The Bear is growing again but will have to wait another week for No. 200 as the Trojans start to make amends for last season's 6-4-1 disappointment. SOUTHERN CAL.

Lowery, Adams Are Appointed Co-Captains

End Cal Lowery and quarterback Mike Adams have been named permanent co-captains of the Big Spring Steers, coach Clovis Hale announced Tuesday. Game captains will be appointed to confer with officials when both Lowery and Adams are on the sidelines. The Steers went through another workout under extremely unpleasant weather conditions Tuesday, seeking to tie up the loose ends for their season's opener with Lubbock Monterey here Friday night. The heat was oppressive.

Blue Leaves Early; Lolich Star Rises

By The Associated Press "The Cy Young Award?" Vida Blue mused. "Maybe I'd vote for Mickey Lolich, too. He's doing better than I am now."

The young flame-throwing left-hander of the Oakland A's had plenty of time to think about the award—presented to the best pitcher in each league—and his fading chances for it. Blue spent most of Tuesday night's game against California on the sidelines after the usually mild-hitting Angels pounced on him for three runs in the first inning, then rode Clyde Wright's six-hitter to a 6-1 victory over the A's. It was Blue's fourth loss in five starts and his eighth of the season, keeping him tied with Lolich of the Detroit Tigers for the most American League victories with 23 and the most complete games with 24.

MICKEY RED-HOT
But of late, Blue's fortunes have been sinking while Lolich, at 31, nine years older than the Oakland ace, has been coming on like gangbusters. It was on Monday that the Detroit workhorse caught Blue in both categories with a masterful six-hit 3-0 victory over Washington. "It would be nice," Blue commented, "if they had two awards—one for the first half of the season and one for the second half."

In other American League games, Kansas City edged Milwaukee 4-3, the Chicago White Sox topped Minnesota 8-7, Baltimore beat Cleveland 3-1, Detroit defeated Washington 3-2 in 11 innings and Boston routed the New York Yankees 9-3. The meager crowd of 6,878 in Oakland has hardly gotten comfortable when Ken Berry singled, Ken McMullen drilled his 18th home run and a walk and singles by Jim Spencer and Tommy Reynolds gave the Angels all the runs they needed. Blue left after three innings, his earliest departure since Washington kayoed him in 1-1-3 innings—in the first game of the season.

Two football games originally booked to be played Saturday in Memorial Stadium here will instead be unreeled on the turf at Blankenship Field Thursday evening. Only local teams will be involved in the competition. Goliad Junior High, who may be coming up with its finest team in years, will tangle with Runnels Junior High at 5 p.m., while the Toros square off with the Brahmas at 7:30 p.m. The Big Spring Sophomores see action for the first time at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, at which time they host Midland Lee at Blankenship Field.

McMurry Tangles With Christians

ABILENE — Those youthful McMurry College Indians get their initiation of college football Saturday night the hard way, tackling seasoned cross-town rival Abilene Christian College in a season opener in P. E. Shotwell Stadium. A large crowd between 11,000 and 13,000 is expected to witness the colorful rivalry which dates back to 1930. ACC owns a 23-1 edge in the series, with victories in 1969 and 1970.

Yearlings Test Mavs Thursday

The time of the Sophs' second game of the season, scheduled Sept. 18, has been changed from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Coahoma's B team will form the opposition at that time. The Big Spring Junior Varsity is scheduled to launch its season at 2 p.m. in Memorial Stadium here Saturday against Snyder's hefty and talented JV team. Goliad, coached by Donald Lightfoot, now has about 68 players in uniform and Lightfoot said he appeared to have ample depth for the first time. Lightfoot's assistants are Rex Schofield, Ben Neel and Jim Rich.

Bucs Can Be Had In Race

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "This club has a lot of pride ... and remember, we've got five games left with the Pirates. The way we're going—who knows?" Joe Torre, the National League's leading hitter with an average of .368, still thinks the St. Louis Cardinals, who have won nine of their last 12 games, have a shot at overtaking Pittsburgh. The Pirates lead a six-game lead over St. Louis, but both teams still have 19 games remaining.

Torre slammed eight hits in 11 at-bats Tuesday night as the Cardinals took a twilight doubleheader from the Philadelphia Phillies, 9-6 in 13 innings in the first game, 7-5 in 10 innings in the nightcap. The opener was the completion of a game suspended from Aug. 1, picked up with the Cardinals leading 6-3 in the 12th.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston defeated Atlanta 5-1, Montreal romped to a 9-3 decision over the New York Mets, San Diego rallied to beat Cincinnati 8-7 and Los Angeles downed San Francisco 9-3. The Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh were not scheduled.

ABILENE — Coach Merrill Green said his Abilene Cooper Cougars aren't as far along as they were a year ago, mainly because the coaching staff has had to shuffle people around more than in 1970. The Cougars took a physical pounding in their scrimmage with Arlington over the weekend but no major injuries were reported. ABILENE — Amarillo Tascosa scored three times in a scrimmage against Abilene High over the weekend but coach Jerry Thormahlen said the Eagles showed character in the workout. GREATEST OF UNEASE? — Remember the line from the "Man on the Flying Trapeze... he flies through the air with the greatest of ease?" LaNorma, featured aerialist of the Shrine Circus, may be giving a new twist to this as she hangs from her hair, all the while juggling a set of bowling pins. This is one of 17 exciting acts in the show here Sept. 13.

Colorful Shrine Circus Coming To Big Spring

The Shrine Circus, replete with elephants, horses, high wire performers, the flying trapeze and numerous other acts, is coming up fast.

The colorful and traditional show comes here Sept. 13 for a matinee performance at 3:15 p.m. and an evening show at 8:15 p.m. under auspices of the Big Spring Shrine Club. All net proceeds go to the Shrine's work with crippled children, including help for youngsters in the order's unique burn center at Galveston. During the past year, Shriners rushed four children, seriously and critically burned, to this special hospital. Happily, these all resulted in putting the youngsters on the road to recovery.

Tickets for children are available through local merchants who are supporting this effort of the Shrine. Adult tickets may be obtained in advance at $1.50, but at the gate they will be $2.

Among the acts in the show are La Norma, aerial space feature; Great Rasini, rocketcar thriller, Capt. Simpson, wild animals act in a steel arena, Polack Bros. elephants; Tommie Hanneford troupe of bareback riders; Lord Sangers riding academy; basketball boxer dogs, matched military ponies, the Aerial Pensons, Peppi the Clown and the Suez Temple Klowns.

World Sharing Plan Drafted

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A senior fellow of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions urges that world governmental organizations be set up to manage such worldwide resources as the atmosphere and the oceans.

In an article in the current edition of the center's magazine, The Center, Elizabeth Mann Borgese says that such a government would abolish the principle of donor and recipient nations, and substitute for it "the idea of rightful and equitable sharing among all nations of what belongs to them in common."

Last Riverboat On Final Trip

NEW YORK (AP) — The Alexander Hamilton, last of the Hudson River sidewheelers, has made her final voyage, ending a steamboat era that began with Robert Fulton's Clermont 164 years ago.

"They know they will never see her like again," said Edward M. Grady, captain of the Hamilton, as he hauled on a brass pull to sound the powerful tenor steam whistle in answer to salutes from other vessels.

About 100 members of the Steamboat Historical Society were among the 2,700 passengers aboard Monday for the final trip up the river to Poughkeepsie and back with stops at Bear Mountain and West Point. The Hamilton will be replaced next year by a twin-screw, diesel-powered excursion boat being built in Jacksonville, Fla.
