FROM POSTFREEZE PRICE CONTROLS

Nearly Fifth Of Major Items Exempt

WASHINGTON (AP) - Government officials say nearly a fifth of the average American's cost of living will be exempt from post-freeze price controls.

The Price Commission was putting finishing touches on those price guidelines, which are to replace the more-rigid freeze rules this weekend. An announcement was expected today or Friday.

But Wednesday the Cost of Living Council, which outranks the price panel, greatly expanded the list of items that will not be controlled. And the council said more exemptions might be made.

It said all used products, including cars and homes, and a long list of lesser things including custom-made items, handicrafts and dues will be free from government ceilings after the freeze period ends at 12:01 a.m. Sunday. New homes will be exempt.

TAXES, STOCKS
The council did not estimate how much of the cost of living the exempt items account for. However, an official at the Bureau of Labor Statistics said used cars make up 2 per cent of the Consumer Price Index, homes make up 6.2 per cent and other items might add a little more.

These are added to items that were partly or wholly free from price ceilings from the start, including raw agricultural products, taxes, stocks, interest rates and imports. The bureau estimated earlier that these make up roughly 10 per cent of the cost of living.

The new and old exemptions added together mean that 18.2 per cent or more of the cost of living will be free from post-freeze price ceilings.

FOR EXAMPLE
The Pay Board also has allowed some exceptions to its general rule that post-freeze controls can't call for pay raises of more than 5.5 per cent a year. For example, existing contracts will be allowed to run their course subject only to rollbacks of raises found to be "unreasonably inconsistent" with the 5.5 per cent rule.

Furthermore, Donald Rumsfeld, executive director of the Cost of Living Council, said at a news conference Wednesday that the Pay Board likely will make other exceptions. He did not elaborate, but the board has left room for inequity adjustments and exceptions for substandard wages.

SPOT CHECKS
In another action Wednesday, the Cost of Living Council announced that post-freeze controls for the vast majority of America's businesses and workers will be policed only by spot checks and citizen complaints. Advance approval of price or wage increases will be required only of the biggest businesses and unions.

However, Rumsfeld stressed that all wholesale and retail prices and wages would be subject to controls unless specifically exempted, regardless of the size of a business or the number of persons covered by a wage agreement. Only the method of enforcing the ceiling will vary by size.

The council established three categories for prices and wages.

Armistice Day Marked Today

World War I ended for the Americans at 5 a.m. (Paris time) Nov. 11, 1918.

The World War I Barracks 1474 will meet today at 7:30 p.m. at the IOOF Lodge in Big Spring.

The organization of World War I veterans meets the second Thursday of each month. Today's meeting falls on Armistice Day.

In 1926 Nov. 11 was established as Armistice Day to commemorate the signing in 1918 of the Armistice ending World War I. On June 1, 1954, the name was changed to Veterans Day so as to honor all men and women who have served America in its armed forces.

(See Page 1-B)
This is the first year Veterans Day has not been observed on Nov. 11. The day was changed to the fourth Monday in October by Congress in order to provide a three-day holiday.

Many of the World War I veterans are unhappy with the change.

L. R. Mundt seemed to echo the feelings on most World War I veterans when he said, "I don't think they should have changed Armistice Day. There are a lot of us that would like to see it changed back to Nov. 11."

OH, WELL - An unidentified park policeman registers his reaction to antiwar protesters lying on the ground near the southwest gate of the White House. There were no arrests Wednesday, the third day in the Daily Death Toll demonstrations.

Women Shear Another Girl

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP) - Another teenage girl was shorn and tarred in Londonderry's Catholic Bogside district early today for dating British soldiers.

A crowd of about 200 watched in silence as a group of women bundled the girl from a car, tied her to a lamppost and set to work with scissors and tar pot. "Soldier Doll" said a cardboard placard hung around her neck.

She was tied to the same post at which 19-year-old Marta Doherty, fiancée of a British soldier, was humiliated in the same way Tuesday.

Earlier in the night Wednesday a crowd of Bogside jeered as Marta fled from her home with a scarf over her shorn head and took refuge across town with friends.

On Friday she is scheduled to marry 19-year-old Pvt. John Larter of the Royal Anglian Regiment, one of the units sent to Northern Ireland two years ago to try to keep the warring Protestants and Roman Catholics apart.

Larter became a Roman Catholic so he could marry the girl.

"He is sick and worried but determined to go through with the wedding," said Father Bernard Jones, an army chaplain who is to marry them.

Bogside said at least four other girls have been marked for the scissors and tar treatment. One teen-ager fled to England Wednesday after "Soldier Dolly Beware" was daubed on her house.

A 20-year-old girl who was shorn but not tarred on Monday told newsmen: "I'll never go with a soldier again. If you live in the Bogside, you must live by the rules."

Elsewhere in Ireland: Belfast police arrested two high-ranking officers of the Irish Republican Army and said they were suspected of killing three young soldiers who were shot in the back of the head last March after they had been drinking in a pub on the outskirts of Belfast.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic survived another challenge to his policy of seeking the reunion of Ireland by peaceful means only. The Dail, the Irish parliament, defeated 72 to 69 a motion of no confidence supported by militants who want the government in the South to take a tougher line.

Senate Rejecting Moves To Make Deeper Aid Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate rejected 64-24 today a move to make deeper cuts in the military aid program after a warning that reductions proposed by the Foreign Relations Committee would jeopardize U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

On the first of two test votes on the size of the arms aid program, it rejected an amendment by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., to make an additional $185 million in cuts on top of the $538 million already included.

Later, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., hoped to restore $318 million of the total cut from the program by the Foreign Relations panel.

The size of the military aid program was the key issue as the Senate worked to complete the second half of the $2.3-billion foreign aid package that would replace the single, $2.9-billion bill rejected by the Senate Oct. 29.

Gunshot Death Is Ruled Suicide

O. V. Christoffer, 59, of 1102 Lamar, was pronounced dead in his home at 12:45 this morning, apparently due to self-inflicted gunshot wounds.

Justice of the Peace Jess Slaughter pronounced the man dead at the scene, and ruled the death "self-inflicted gunshot wound."

A .38 caliber bullet apparently had pierced the roof of his mouth and lodged in his brain, according to police reports.

According to investigating officers, Mrs. Christoffer said her husband asked her early this morning to go to the kitchen and get a glass of milk for him. While she was in the kitchen she reported hearing the shot and returned to the bedroom to find her husband lying on the floor beside the bed.

Police recovered a small .38 caliber revolver lying beside the body, and took the weapon to the police station for tests.

"At this time all evidence and facts seem to bear out that Mr. Christoffer did take his own life," said Jim McCain, investigating detective.

An alert ambulance carried the body to River-Welch Funeral Home where services are pending.

No apparent reason was determined for the suicide, but police reported that a friend of the family, present at the scene this morning, said Christoffer had threatened suicide many times during the past 10 years, and was in poor health.

The Christoffers, former Big Spring residents, moved back to the city on Sept. 7, after a 23-year absence. Mr. Christoffer, a pharmacist, before moving to Big Spring the second time to work at Mory Denton Pharmacy, was employed by Footie Drug in Petersburg.

They have lived in Mabank, Levelland, Petersburg, Eden and Seagoville, owning drugstores in the latter two towns. Mrs. Christoffer, a registered nurse, worked at Sick Child's Clinic in Petersburg before returning to Big Spring.

Agriculture Secretary Hardin Ready To Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin is reported ready to quit, but White House officials say the decision is not linked with the fretting of President Nixon's political advisers over Farm Belt discontent.

For the record, the White House and Agriculture Department were noncommittal on Hardin's plans.

But administration sources indicated Wednesday that it is virtually certain Hardin will resign soon from the Cabinet post he has held since Nixon took office.

NIXON HAPPY?
White House officials, who declined to be named, stressed that Nixon is happy with the job Hardin has been doing.

However, GOP political strategists have been unable to hide their growing concern about sagging Republican fortunes among farmers in the Midwest.

The GOP lost several key

Farm Belt congressional contests in 1970, and the political planners are worried about

30 Kids Hurt By Wild Car

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) - About 30 children were injured when a car out of control plunged through the wall of a school today, police reported.

First reports said it was believed that the driver had suffered a heart attack.

Ambulances rushed the injured children to Mercy Hospital. There was no immediate report on their condition.

One report said the car raced through the south wall of the Alma Pierce School, scattering first grade pupils, and then charged out again through the north wall of the classroom.

what this might portend for 1972.

Nixon carried virtually every farm state in 1968 after a campaign in which he was sharply critical of Democratic farm programs.

Hardin has stressed repeatedly that farmers need substantial boosts in income. However, inflation and the crunch of rising production costs have made the goal elusive.

DEPRESSION DAYS
One of the hangups for Republicans is an historic parity ratio used to measure farm well-being. The ratio, expressed as a percentage, relates prices farmers receive with expenses.

"The parity ratio has shriveled to a mere 74 per cent—the lowest since the darkest days of the depression," Nixon said at Des Moines, Iowa, during the 1968 campaign.

To the consternation of administration farm officials, the parity level has dropped since Nixon assumed office.

'Preacher' Found Innocent Of Slaying Police Informer

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) - David "Preacher" Hicks, described by police as "the most dangerous man in the Southeast," was found innocent Wednesday of slaying a police informer who helped officers crack a drug smuggling ring.

But the 30-year-old Elmira, N.Y., man who sobbed "thank you, thank you" on hearing his acquittal was re-arrested immediately on a charge of killing a pilot who flew marijuana into the United States from Jamaica.

Hicks was found innocent of slaying Clayton Eugene Walker, a 22-year-old Florida Department of Law Enforcement informer, on the orders of Errol Resnick, Orlando gunshop owner.

Resnick was found guilty three weeks ago of ordering Walker's death and was sentenced to die in the electric chair.

The state's star witness at Resnick's trial, Willard Travis

Brunson, also testified during Hicks' trial that he and Hicks were hired by Resnick to "kill" Walker on a lonely road near Orlando Aug. 16.

As Hicks sobbed in his seat after the verdict was read, Stu Hudson of the state police served a warrant on Hicks charging him with the murder of Horace Hartwig, 52, a pilot who flew drugs for the ring.

$71 Billion For Defense Voted By House Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Appropriations Committee today cited "the magnitude and intensity" of the Soviet military buildup as it approved $71 billion in new financing for the Defense Department.

The money is for use during the current fiscal year.

The committee cautioned against "drastic reductions" when the money bill reaches the House floor next week. It said the $2.5 billion it lopped off the $73.5 billion requested by the President would not adversely affect essential programs.

The new funds would provide for 2.5 million active-duty military personnel by June 30, 1972, and 11,924 active aircraft and 396 active warships including 166 attack carriers. New warships to join the fleet this year include six nuclear attack submarines, with five more to be constructed. Active-duty military personnel will drop about 200,000 during the year.

'Mini-Riot' In Juarez

JUAREZ, Chihuahua, Mexico (AP) - Calm prevailed in the Juarez penitentiary Wednesday after 100 prisoners staged what officials termed a two-hour "mini-riot" in the prison yard.

Federico Chacon, prison supervisor, said the riot was led by a group of discontented federal prisoners, serving narcotics sentences.

The disturbance occurred when prison guards were leading the inmates from their cells.

He said no injuries to guards or prisoners occurred during the two hours the prisoners stomped and screamed in the prison yard.

No shots were fired, Chacon said, although billy clubs were used to restore order. "There were a few cracks on the head, but nothing serious," he said.

Chacon said the riot may have resulted from the recent crackdown he initiated on smuggling of narcotics to prisoners and the curtailing of inmate visiting privileges. Chacon was recently appointed director of the penitentiary.

State Tightens Ban On 'Gimmick' Insurance

AUSTIN (AP) — Reportedly heeding a "get tough" appeal from Gov. Preston Smith, the State Insurance Board has tightened its ban on what its newest member calls "gimmick" life insurance policies.

The board cancelled a rule issued in March and issued a tougher and more explicit one in its place, effective Dec. 1.

Policies forbidden by the order are those which purport to make the policyholder an investor in a life insurance company, entitled to share in the firm's profits.

Board member Larry Teaver said he took Smith a stack of letters from customers complaining they were gypped by such policies.

GET TOUGH FAST

"He said, 'get tough and fast,'" Teaver related.

Smith recently appointed Teaver, his former administrative aide, to the three-man insurance board.

"There are 35 or 40 companies writing what I call gimmick policies," said Teaver, a former Lubbock insurance agent.

He said premiums often are excessive, and policies don't live up to promises made in their behalf.

The board said in its official order that its March 10 rule prohibition "special participating policies" failed to define the policies "with sufficient precision to enable the commissioner to comply with its instructions."

The new order does not apply to policies which only promise that the "policyholder may receive back, by way of participation, part of the premiums which he has paid."

'PROFIT-SHARING'

In other words, only policies that claim they give the policy-nature unfair, inequitable, misleading and deceptive and encourage misrepresentation."

The new rule directs the insurance commissioner to consider not only the policy itself but also advertisements, sales literature and the pitches agents use in selling the policy.

If the commissioner finds a policy and the methods and literature used to sell it fail to truthfully explain its terms and benefits, he must disapprove it.

This provision was not in the old rule.

He'll Never Forget Pair Of Eyes Delivered To Lad

DALLAS (AP) — Four years ago, Al Cortez of Dallas delivered a pair of eyes to Alfredo Del Toro Gonzales, 11, in Monterrey, Mexico. He'll never forget it, he says.

Alfredo had been sightless since he was 6 when an accident blinded him.

But thanks to Cortez, his fellow Lions Club members, and an anonymous Dallas man who willed his eyes to Texas Lions Eye Bank, Inc., Alfredo was able to see again.

"I left Dallas with the eye tissue at 8 a.m. one morning in June of 1967," Cortez recalled. "After a police escort from Laredo to Monterrey, the operation began at 7 p.m.

"It was the first pair of eyes sent from one country to another," he added.

Three days after the operation, Cortez went to visit the boy in his hospital room. He found the boy's mother and grandmother in tears.

"They were crying with joy," Cortez says. "When the doctor had changed the bandages, Alfredo had hollered, 'Mother, mother, I can see, I can see.'" Alfredo is just one example of the many people the Texas Lions Eye Bank has helped.

Ex-Mental Patient Accused In Tub Drowning Of Hitchhiker

HOUSTON (AP) — Police charged a former mental patient with murder after five Tennessee teen-agers were imprisoned Tuesday night and one of them was bound hand and foot and drowned in a bath tub.

Charged in the death of Eddie Eugene Seat, 18, of Dyersburg, Tenn., was George Albert Whittington Jr., 26, in whose house the teen-agers were found after one of them managed to escape and alert police.

Officers said they found Whittington in bed asleep after they smashed a locked door to the house and found three of the teen-agers, two boys and a girl, locked in a closet.

The four survivors are Robert Franklin Davis, 16, who escaped and called police; Michael Davis, 18, and his wife, Candy Marie, 16, and Kenneth Colvin, 16.

The Davis youths are brothers. All are from Dyersburg and they told police they were hitchhiking to Beaumont, Tex., to seek work.

Police in Dyersburg said Colvin was wanted there on a warrant charging him with grand larceny and three-degree burglary. They asked Houston police to hold him.

Six young people left Dyersburg Saturday, authorities there said. One of the group—Calvin Colvin, brother of Kenneth—turned back after police stopped them for questioning in Louisiana, they said.

DOPE STORY

The teen-agers said a man gave them a ride from Carthage, Tex., and offered to let them spend the night in his home. After they reached the house, they said, he wanted them to help dispose of a briefcase which he said contained $50,000 in narcotics.

A briefcase was found in the house but police said it was empty.

In a statement to police, Michael Davis said the group went from Dyersburg to Bossier City, La., by bus and started hitchhiking there.

They were picked up by a man named George in a pickup truck near Carthage about 6 p.m. Tuesday, he said.

While in the truck, Michael said the driver told them there were more jobs in Houston than in Beaumont.

"We decided to go on to Houston and if we did not find a job we could come back to Beaumont," he said.

Michael said that on arriving at the Houston home he and his group went to sleep on the porch but were awakened by the man with a pistol and told to line up against a wall.

"While we were standing there he told Candy to take the suitcase to the Trailways bus station. It contained a black briefcase in which he claimed was $50,000 worth of drugs," Michael said.

"Candy was to swap the suitcase for another one and bring it back, but she was to wait until this man received a phone call. He said he would give us $300 for doing it and that he would hold us hostage until she returned. I told the man she was not going to do anything—that if anyone did it, it would be

Farmer Is Not Only One Affected By Soil Erosion

Soil erosion is not just the farmers' business, "it's your business," Bill Fryrear informed the Downtown Lions Club at its Wednesday luncheon at the Settles.

Fryrear, in charge of the United States Experiment Station here, pointed out that soil lost to wind affects everyone. In the five-state high plains area, the loss from drifting sandy soils is estimated at $65 million a year. This not only includes a soil value of $26 per inch per acre, but also lost fertility, reduction of water absorptive capability, dust which attacks machinery and is the bane of housewives and sensitive sinuses.

"When wind blows away your top soil, it leaves the fine sand which has no substance. You can fertilize it, but you can't put back the clay, silt and organic matter. So it won't grow like it once did," Fryrear said.

There is another little explored dimension, namely the equation of farm chemicals — herbicides, disiccants, insect killers, etc. Experiments at the station here have shown that on a dry day 30 per cent of the material applied gets away. Wind tunnel tests showed not only an alarming migration of the top layer, but also that half of the chemicals sprayed on it could not be accounted for.

"Either the farmer is having to put on twice as much chemical as he needs to, or we may be creating a real health problem," he said.

Feasibility studies at the station here — which is the only one in the 40-million acre sandy plains area doing soil erosion research — have indicated that every dollar in basic research of this type has a potential of a $400 return.

Yet the station is in great jeopardy because it has not been funded as a budgetary item and has had to be sustained as a contingency appropriation.

Now contingency funds, along with everything else, are frozen. Moreover, they are on a year-to-year basis, and it is impossible to recruit professional help under that condition.

Fryrear speculated that concerned support by people in this area, the businessmen, the clubs, etc., offers the best hope of Congressional action to see that the basic research is funded. He briefly outlined how RB-87 fly-overs at 65,000 feet had yielded helpful photographs of soil conditions, and how the Earth Satellite to be launched in March, 1972, will considerably broaden the scope of this massive study to more accurately define the problem of soil erosion. Hubert Harris was in charge of the program. Jim Lemons, who presided, announced the Lions will host one of the ward Christmas parties at Big Spring State Hospital Dec. 14.

Smokes Banned

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Smoking is banned in meetings of the American Heart Association convention which starts today. It is permitted only in lobbies, offices and restrooms.

Jurors 'Pump' Allan Shivers

HOUSTON (AP) — A grand jury looking into the fallen financial empire of Frank W. Sharp heard former Texas Gov. Allan Shivers Wednesday, then recessed.

Also Wednesday, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which has taken over the assets of Sharp's defunct Sharpstown State Bank, filed a $22,526 suit against a former Sharp associate.

Shivers sold controlling interest in National Bankers Life Insurance Co. to Sharp in 1968 for $7.5 million. It was a Securities and Exchange Commission civil suit charging stock manipulation of the insurance company stock by Sharp and others which set off the huge scandal.

The FDIC suit filed Wednesday charges that three checks totaling $22,526 given by former Sharp associate Bob L. Jordan to Alan L. Hansen and cashed by the Sharpstown bank were returned by a Galveston bank because of insufficient funds.

The suit asks that either Jordan or Hansen make the checks good.

Jordan also was a co-defendant with Sharp in a $100,000 suit filed in June by American Bank and Trust Co. of Houston to recover losses on a past due note.

'So I Just Did What She Told Me'

WESTFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Linda Hanna gave the instructions as her husband delivered their son in the front seat of the family car Wednesday.

"Fortunately my wife is a nurse," said Thomas Hanna, "so I just did what she told me. There was no time to panic. It was snowing, but the car was warm."

After the birth, Mr. and Mrs. Hanna and son Michael made the last five minutes of the drive to Overlook Hospital.

Martha Unsure When John Will Manage Nixon

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Martha Mitchell says that she and President Nixon "haven't decided yet" when her husband John will resign as U.S. attorney general to manage Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

Mitchell managed the President's successful campaign in 1968 and is expected to take over Nixon's re-election bid.

Mrs. Mitchell made the comment in answer to a newsman's question when she appeared at a Republican women's con-

Teachers Meet Here Nov. 20

Teachers from throughout the West Texas area will meet in Big Spring, Nov. 20, for a TCTA-NEA Political Action School. The meeting will begin at 8:30 a.m. at the Ramada Inn.

The TCTA-NEA Political Action School is part of a joint effort of the two associations to inform Texas teachers of the political skills.

The format of the meeting will include small group discussions on such topics as effective political action, voter registration, and political parties.

Opening speaker of the 1-day meet will be Mrs. Jackie Blackstock, president of the 45,000 member Texas Classroom Teachers Association. Conference participants will have the opportunity to meet with a prominent legislator from the area.

Oleander Honored

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (AP) — The oleander has been named this city's official flower.

The city council adopted it after a chamber of commerce committee pointed out that oleanders on Port Arthur's Seawall Drive, planted in 1932, are a memorial to local servicemen who lost their lives in military actions.

ention Wednesday.
Turning to possible Democratic presidential candidates, she said: "As long as they don't make any trouble for me, I won't make any trouble for them."

Coin Club Meets

The Big Spring Coin Club will have its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in the Settles Hotel. Charlie Wasson, president, said guests are invited to attend.

BROKE — Oklahoma Sen. Fred R. Harris tells a Capitol Hill news correspondent Wednesday he is ending his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination because he is broke. His wife LaDonna is at left.

Presidential Bid Has Ended For 'Broke' Okie

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma says he is broke, $40,000 in debt, and out of the Democratic presidential campaign.

His withdrawal, after a costly six-week campaign could leave Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota and Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York as principal rivals for liberal Democratic support in early primaries next year.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine remains the frontrunner, the man to beat for any Democrat who wants the 1972 presidential nomination.

NOT SATISFIED
Muskie told a news conference in Billings, Mont.: "I'm sorry Fred can't go on, but it is difficult to evaluate the impact."

Harris quit the race saying he is not satisfied with any of the other prospects, but doesn't have the money to challenge them.

And McGovern, now the only announced Democratic candidate, said the early dropouts of Harris, Sen. Harold E. Hughes of Iowa and Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana should help his presidential bid.

"I think there's more potential McGovern support among the kind of people who were backing them," he said in an interview, though he acknowledged it could yield Lindsay support, too.

Harris summed up his situation Wednesday with three words: "I am broke." He said the campaign he announced formally on Sept. 24 cost between $250,000 and $300,000 before the funds ran out.

SUPPORT 'COOLED'
"If I could see $50,000 a month up until primary time, I would run right now," he said.

He said he believes America is ready for fundamental change, for a redistribution of income, a breakup of major corporations, a foreign policy based on idealism.

"There's a great constituency out there for somebody," Harris said.

Harris said that although he will not run for re-election to the Senate in Oklahoma next year, he will keep trying to influence national opinion and issues, perhaps by writing and lecturing.

Democratic sources said the Harris campaign foundered after Herbert Allen Jr., a New

Tapir Is No Cow

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — Robert Troxell thought he killed a cow when his pickup truck struck a large animal that leaped onto U.S. 15.

Later, state police identified the dead animal as a South American tapir. Officers said the rare beast had escaped a week earlier from its owner in Natural Bridge, Va.

York businessman and major supporter, cooled toward his role as a political financier.

Pretrial Scheduled In Lamesa Assault

LAMESA — Pretrial hearings in the McSchooler case here have been set for Nov. 19, Vernon Adcock, district attorney, reported this morning.

In the pretrial hearings the defendants and their attorneys will be brought into court so that they may submit motions concerning the case and formal trial, Adcock said.

"I don't know if any motions will be made, or if there is any conflicting circumstances that may cancel the hearing for that date," Adcock said.

Pretrial scheduling is the latest disposition in the case since three Lubbock lawyers were appointed by District Judge George Hansard Oct. 25 to represent the three adults charged in the case. The actual trial will be scheduled after the pretrial.

The three adults, Jesus Garcia, Christoval Alcora, and Ernesto Garcia, all of Brownfield, are still in custody in the Military Pay Raise Might Be Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $2.4-billion military pay raise, biggest in history, may be delayed from taking effect Sunday unless the President's Pay Board acts this week to exempt the armed forces from its wage guidelines.

The raise, approved by Congress and signed into law by President Nixon Sept. 23 as part of the draft extension act, provides increases averaging 15 per cent in pay and benefits for 2.6 million men and women in uniform. The board's guidelines limit increases generally to 5.5 per cent a year.

Basic pay for recruits will be nearly doubled from $1,612 a year to $3,222.

"The question of military pay is being given the highest priority but as of now the increase will not be automatic," a Pay Board spokesman said Wednesday. "There will be no change in pay until the board rules specifically on the increase."

But the Defense Department said it is prepared to begin paying the new rates next week. However, the department was rebuffed once before when it was forced by the administration to back down from its position that the armed forces were exempt from the wage-price freeze.

Although the board has had no official comment on the military pay issue, sources said a favorable ruling is almost certain—but not necessarily before the freeze ends at 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

South Koreans Building Country's First Subway

SEOUL (AP) — Early in 1974, South Korea will become the second Asian nation, following Japan, to have a subway running.

A near six mile line, the first in the nation's 10-year subway construction program, is scheduled to be completed by the end of 1973 at a cost of about $81.4 million.

The first underground train route will connect the Seoul central railroad station near downtown with Chongyang-ni in the eastern part of the capital.

The over-all program calls for construction of two more lines, running 22 miles and 13.3 miles, by the end of 1981.

Construction on the first route began last April with President Park Chung-Hee breaking ground for the work.

The metropolitan government activated a subway construction office in June last year, and South Korea formally asked Japan's help for the program.

Japan promised to assist and sent a technical survey group which determined the project to be economically feasible. Japan then agreed to provide an 80-million loan for the project.

The South Korean government decided on the subway construction idea after it concluded there was no other choice in solving Seoul's traffic problem.

The population of the capital, now 5.5 million, has nearly doubled in the past 10 years and is expected to reach 7.5 million by 1981. The population of the greater metropolitan area — by that time would be some 13 million, according to experts.

The Seoul government first hesitated to take on the project because of the enormous cost involved, which would force the rates of the subway system to go higher than the present inter-city bus fares.

Seoul citizens now pay 7 cents for express bus service and 4 cents for local bus fares, but city officials fear the subway fare must be at least about 11 cents to be economically feasible.

Despite this factor, the government had to decide on the project because the streets of Seoul's business districts, designed half a century ago for a population of half a million, could not adequately handle the soaring vehicle traffic.

Barnes Obtains $35,000 From Brownwood Man

DALLAS (AP) — Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes obtained the $35,000 to pay off the remaining balance on a $60,000 Dallas bank loan from his longtime benefactor, Herman Bennett of Brownwood, he has told the Dallas Morning News.

Barnes revealed the source of the money in a brief interview before addressing the Dallas chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers.

The $60,000 note had been transferred from Dallas Bank & Trust Co. to the National Bank of Commerce after being described as a problem loan when 1,000 shares of National Data Communications stock, which secured it, dropped to about 10 percent of their value at the time the loan was made.

When Barnes' aide, Robert Spellings, disclosed last week that a check for the final $35,000 had been mailed to the bank, paying up the note in full, he declined to reveal the source of the money, saying only that it came from "Barnes' bank account."

Spellings said last week that Barnes, who is running for governor, still retains 3,000 shares of NDC stock.

LOOK AT BOOKS Gentle Story Of Crude Slums

THE STORY OF A SMALL LIFE. By B. J. Chute. Dutton, $6.95.

Somewhat paradoxically, this is a sensitive novel about a very insensitive and brutal way of life.

The scene is a New York slum. The key figure is Mig, a 17-year-old of uncertain racial background. He is illiterate, a street boy, selfish and full of fear; all he has is an ego and an animal-like cunning; he scrounges a bare existence in his dismal surroundings.

He has attracted a pathetic young girl named Anna, who has come to live with him in an old tenement, worshipping him as mutely as a kitten, even when he treats her as an unwanted stray.

The story of Mig and Anna is told in part by a young man from another world — the Establishment. He is Richard Harris, a privileged middle class college product and a would-be novelist. He has taken a minor job in the slum on a foundation grant, so that in his spare time he can become a writer.

Harris' trouble is that he has no confidence in himself, and wants desperately to believe in something. He feels he has a responsibility to rescue Mig and Anna from degradation, but does not feel up to the responsibility. His dilemma is a counterpoint to the story of the boy and girl.

Though it deals with the crudities of slum life, the low-keyed narrative never descends into sentimentality. It blends wit and a gentle sympathy for human life in all its errors and terrors.

OK $2,275,000 For More Seats

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — City councilmen of this Dallas-Fort Worth suburb voted Tuesday night to issue $2,275,000 in bonds for improving municipally owned Turnpike Stadium, the new arena of the Washington Senators.

The American League club is due to play its first game there next April 6.

Proceeds of the general obligation bonds will pay for increasing the number of seats for the Dallas team's home games from 21,000 to 35,000.

Thais Rant Over Clogged Klongs

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

THONBURI, Thailand (AP) — Traffic in Thonburi snarls as in Bangkok across the river. But here you're not only liable to get run over — you might also drown.

Centuries-old klongs, broad yellow-mud canals, are the streets in much of Thonburi as they once were in Bangkok. They come complete with klonglights, traffic cops and bus service.

The problem is that it's easy to clog a klong. And high-powered water taxis with higher-powered tourists are wearing steadily away at the Buddhist stoicism of the residents along the banks.

FLOATING MARKET
Tourist authorities and operators energetically promote the famed "Floating Market," a waterborne supermarket of silks and sugarcane at a busy intersection where traders in canoes do their own dealing.

All morning an unending stream of fantail tour launches winds among the bobbing boats stuffed with flowers and charcoal. Water-taxis weave in and out, with four-cylinder engines and pole-mounted propellers spewing spray.

An old woman paddling her chilis doesn't miss a stroke as a motorized sampan douses her from stern to bow with chocolate-colored water. Two women deftly ran their boats into the water to keep from capsizing nearby.

Occasionally there is a reward for the suffering. "I've seen many farangs (foreigners) fall in the water," said one Thai with ill-concealed glee. "They find it hard to keep their balance . . ."

Countrymen cause as much exasperation as farangs in the floating traffic jams. Thais generally drive on the klongs the way they drive on the streets — flat out.

But cluttered klongs are just another urban problem around here, and the canals still have their advantages. The kids can jump out the front window and it's as good as membership in a swimming club.

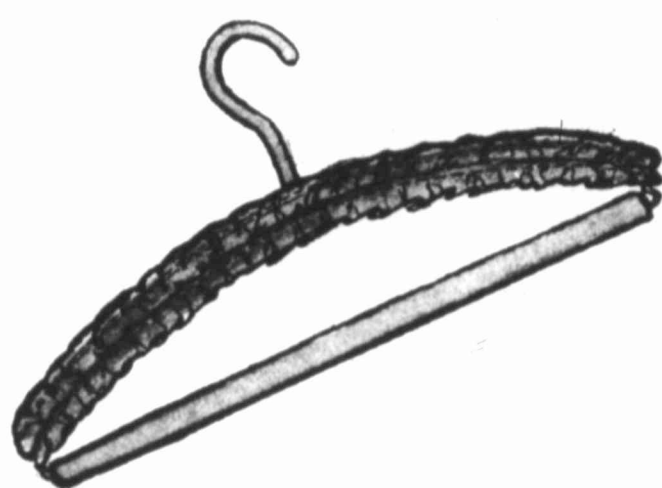

KLONG BATHING
Residents step out of their sagging teak houses and bathe, casually ignoring what the neighbors are doing in the klong upstream. Garbage disposal is never a problem, nor is hauling in water for laundry.

The butcher paddles to the door every day. Two honks of a trademan's horn means the tea man has arrived. Honks in a different key announce the coffee man.

Schoolboats take the children off to classes at the temple. Barges bring cement and timber when any construction must be done. No one worries about flat tires and leaky radiators.

PLEASANT CRUISE
When there's no rush hour, cruising along the klongs is a pleasant way to pursue the gentle life, floating by spectacular temples with gilded conical stupas and ornately peaked roofs set off among flowers.

Bangkok has had to fill in almost all of its klongs to build roads. Now some experts say the city's watery base is dropping underneath and Bangkok might be underwater in 20 years.

Veterans Remember The Not-So-Recent 'Unpleasantness'

By STEVE HULTMAN
It has been said that as the years pass one forgets the bad things and only remembers the good. The fact that it is history may take some of the edge off, but for the men who fought in World War I, all is definitely NOT forgotten.

JAMES S. FLEMING — "I enlisted from a farm near Agry, Okla. and was at Camp Pike, Ark.

"We slept in mule sheds, and during rainy weather we were always wet. The blankets and the mattresses, straw-stuffed ticks, were soaked.

"Thousands were dying of the flu. At one time, I saw 500 to 600 bodies stacked up like cord wood. They had died of the flu and were naked except for dog tags.

"I lost my hair because of the flu. When the Armistice came, I was discharged and went home. My parents were both too sick to get out of bed, and the stock had almost starved to death. I had to chop a hole in the ice on the water trough just to let them drink."

MINTON DIXON — "I enlisted at San Angelo. I went to Austin first, then seven companies were transferred to Montgomery, Ala., for basic infantry training. I was in Company I, 67th Infantry, Third Battalion, Ninth Division. I was a private making $30 per month. After the Armistice, I was sent to Mississippi and folded up tents and closed up the camp there for two months. Then I got a discharge and went home and got married. I went from one war to another."

EDGAR J. WILLIAMS — "I was stationed in the Atlantic fleet out of Brest on a destroyer escort, escorting 6-8 troopships at a time. Later I was on a wooden minesweeper. All these ships were coal fired. When one of the minesweepers was being abandoned, the water reached the boilers while men were still leaving. It exploded and the section of the ship going under pulled 18 of my friends under. You can't ever forget a sight like that."

ARTHUR J. PROFFITT — From Baylor County, Proffitt was sent to Camp Travis in San Antonio. "I was in the 36th Division. We sat by a railroad track most of one night waiting to be shipped out, but for some reason they didn't send us. In the morning they moved us to some tents."

"I was on guard one night when the flu caught me and sent me to a hospital. I also had pneumonia. There were men dead of the flu I could touch in the beds next to me. There just was not enough help in the hospital. I got over it about the time the Armistice was signed, but my parents had had telegrams saying I probably would not pull through."

BOB WREN — From Snyder, he was working for the Fort Worth & Denver Railroad. "My father was on the draft board in Snyder and he wrote me and told me a bunch of boys were going pretty soon. I wrote him back and said to add my name to the list."

"We went to San Antonio, where I was put in the 7th Division. We went to Corpus Christi to train, and then took a train for four or five days and nights to the East coast. We didn't go over 20 miles per hour the whole time. Then we went by ship to Brest, France."

"I was a private first class in the Fifth Engineers, and worked putting up barbed wire entanglements. We were put in listening posts out front to warn if the Germans came."

"A friend of mine and I were cut off with some other doughboys all evening in a rock quarry. The Germans were shelling about 100 yards behind us, and we were betting which tree would be blown up next."

"Then the Germans saw us from an observation balloon and they started shelling us. The first two shells landed right top of us, but they were both duds. We all got out of the quarry, and the Germans put about a dozen shells in it. Then we got back in."

"When it got dark, my friend and I asked the sergeant if we could try and make it back to our lines, and he said OK. We ran for the first trench and made it. We were running through a trench that connected with the second trench when a shell hit in front of us. We ran through the smoke, thinking it was smoke from the explosive."

"The gas alarms were going off all up and down the line all the time, so we didn't pay much attention to them."

"The next morning I couldn't talk. I finally got to the hospital at Toul, and was there for a month and a day. I had the flu there, too. I wasn't worth a dime after that. I didn't get over the gas until during the 1930's. My friend died."

"We were the first unit to pull out of France when the Armistice was signed. We were on a liner with President Woodrow Wilson and Secretary of the Navy Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

"They heard about an assassination plot on the President, so we went to Boston first and let him off before we went to New York to unload."

"I felt all the time I would make it back. Not that I would not get wounded, but that I would make it back."

W. E. MOREN — From Graham, Moren went to San Antonio to Camp Lee, Va., to France. "I was in a remount station as a horse shoer. Most of the transportation was by horses. I was in the Veterinary Corps on the St. Mihiel front for nine months."

"We heard about the Armistice when long lines of French started coming by us from the front. 'Finis la guerre,' they said. 'The war is finished.'"

LESTER WISE — A Big Spring native, Wise started to join the Navy in Fort Worth with a friend, but the doctor would only accept one of the two men, who had been seeing the town. "My friend wanted to go so bad, I let him go. Then I went and worked in St. Louis, where I finally enlisted. I went to France in the signal corps. We lived in dugouts in the trenches. Some of them were so wet that water dripped from the ceiling."

"The food was pretty fair, but one time the Germans sunk so many ships that we only got two slices of bread."

"We started in a section of the front lines with L.E. French. They could get up and walk around outside the trenches, but after we had been there a while, the Germans would shell a single man."

"In the Argonne, some of us went back for some supplies. We went through a valley the Germans had gassed, and ran into a pocket of gas. I got the flu and pneumonia and went straight to the hospital. I got a purple heart and a citation for service in France signed by President Wilson."

"We were on the front almost all the time, except for one month after we lost so many men they pulled us out and replaced us with fresh troops. I was at five of the fronts, including Chateau Thierry and Belleau Wood. There were times I could reach out and touch the dead."

L. R. MUNDT — "I was at Camp Logan all the time, working as a wagoner, a mule skinner, first. I tried to get to be a truck driver. I was from the farm, but I didn't like mules."

"I was in the 15th Division, 80th Infantry. I was a corporal, and the youngest man in my unit at age 20."

FRANK MULLICAN — "I spent two years in Europe in St. Mihiel and Argonne. I was a private in the Fifth Division of the regular army. I was drafted from Big Spring to the 96th in San Antonio and went to the 5th when they needed 1,500 replacements. After the Armistice, I was in the occupation army for 10 months before I went home."

Boys Came Marching Home Again

Armistice Day, Nov. 11, 1918, was a dramatic day in the lives of many Big Spring residents as well as people around the world as World War I, the war to end all wars, came to an end.

Four Big Springers recalled, after a moment's thought, what stood out most in their memory about Armistice Day, 1918.

"The whistle blew down at the T & P shops, and I thought the town was on fire, and a lot of other people thought so too, at first. They just tied the whistle down and let it go. We had quite a celebration," said Walton Morrison, local attorney, who was about 11 years old then.

"I was in Valparaiso, Ind., at school when news of the armistice came. I was living in Altrusa Hall, a girl's dormitory, and we woke up because the boys were outside hammering on large parcel-drop type mail boxes. The boys were hammering and it was just a big commotion," said Mrs. Thomas Helton, 1100 11th Place.

"I don't want to remember it, but I remember that everybody was happy and there was a lot of excitement," said Helton, who was serving in the armed forces in France at the time.

"My husband, who was from old Sparenburg, was overseas, and I was living in Hermleigh with my father and mother. I was teaching school in a little German community not far from home, and I was expecting my first baby. Papa walked home from work to tell us the war had ended," said Mrs. Travis Reed, 911 Scurry.

"I know from experience now that my mother was really happier than any of us that the war was over. My sister's husband was overseas, too, and we were both at home and both expecting our first babies. I know Mama was glad the war was over," laughed Mrs. Reed.

Big Springers Organized Military Company For 'War To End All Wars'

By JOE PICKLE
Today is still Armistice Day to Tom Helton and Johnny W. Miller, probably the only Big Spring men left here from the days when the city furnished the backbone of a Company D, 117th Supply Train, 42nd Division.

Naturally, it brings back a flood of memories to Helton, who was intimately associated with the unit from its inception through the war and its days as part of the army of occupation.

Helton, who was from Rockdale, was working in the T&P shops here as lefthand boiler-maker. The righthandman was George Chollar, who had given up a shops career to become police chief at Fort Worth and then took a job here when he got bounced.

One day while between hoisting 4½-in. tubing for superheating the engines, Chollar said: "Tom, do you know anything about the military?"

"NOT A THING"
"No, not a thing," answered Helton.

"Well, I do. Let's organize a company."

Helton borrowed a tent from Aaron (Yon) Taylor and set it up just north of where the Record Shop is today. In a few weeks, Chollar said he couldn't go after all. Helton protested he couldn't do the job — "Why they'd make a fool of me." He suggested Jim Brooks might be interested, and Chollar, who had pulled strings to get the approved company, got Brooks named lieutenant and commanding officer. Helton became first sergeant.

Within about a month of the start, the company was mustered into service in the first week of August, 1917. Col. Alvin Ousley came out from Houston to swear in the men. The community threw a big party on the courthouse lawn, and Mrs. Anna Pancoast and daughter, Elsie, who ran the Cole Hotel, spread a big feed for the men, most of whom were quartered at the courthouse.

CONVOY

The soldiers went to Camp Bowie, were shuttled immediately to Camp Mills on Long Island, N.Y., being the first contingent there Labor Day, Sept. 2. On Halloween night, they boarded the Mt. Vernon (a converted North German Lloyd liner) and 6,000 men became part of a convoy with three other transports (one of which rammed the other at sea without fatal consequences). Enroute a man was caught flashing light signals from the deck, and Helton said he heard later that the man was executed.

They disembarked Nov. 12 at Brest, France, having been diverted first from Southampton and then from St. Nazaire due to U-boat scares. Immediately they were crowded into one of the 40 & 8 French rail cars and sent to Nancy. Just as the train was pulling out in darkness, the door was pulled back and a voice yelled: "Any of you SOB's from Big Spring?" Everybody responded. "This here's Johnny Dwyer," who had skeeted soda at Reagan's Drug Store.

MEET FRIENDS

For the next three months they could hear bombardment around Verdun, as the French held on doggedly, but in February the company began running ammunition for French 75 mm. up front at night. This continued to the end of the war, along with assorted other odd jobs. One pitch-dark night when the ammunition train was stalled by the 28th division coming out of the lines, Raymond (Pancho) Nell, Helton's first truck driver, let out one of his booming laughs. A voice from a passing truck shouted: "Is that you Raymond Nell? This is Frank Powell" (another Big Spring who had joined another outfit as a replacement). Helton got assigned with Charlie Deats to a Foden wagon, a crossbred locomotive-truck made by the English, and got the job of steaming clothes of all doughboys coming out of the front lines.

'KILLED COOTIES'

"It killed the cooties," laughed Helton, "but it sure did shrink the clothes."

He and others were in the motor room one evening when a soldier stuck his head in and said, "Hey, they signed an Armistice!"

"Who did?" Helton asked. But all hell broke loose. Soldiers joined with the deliriously emotional Frenchmen in a celebration. Alas, dreams of an early return home faded when the company got tapped out for service in the army of occupation. Lee Hardin, who had been secretary for J. H. Elliott, a railroad superintendent, sent for Helton, and thus he returned home apart from Company D.

Among his possession from the World War I days is a roster of Company D, or Motor Truck No. 4. Those from this area (Big Spring unless otherwise listed) are:

Water Roadblocks

The volume of the argument between water developers and environmentalists was raised a few decibels the other day by Otha F. Dent, chairman of the Texas Water Rights Commission. He blamed "ecology extremists" for delaying state water projects.

Dent specifically complained of injunction suits filed by ecological groups against the Cooper, Laneport, Wallisville and North San Gabriel water supply projects. He said the delay in the projects caused by suits increased construction costs by seven to 12 per cent each year.

The argument between water supply developers and environmentalists should proceed at a lower key. The disputants must recognize that their opponents have sincere and strong beliefs.

The need for additional water supplies to keep up with population growth and rising consumption squarely meets the need to preserve our environment.

Roadblocks on water projects are not new, as the Colorado River Municipal Water District can attest. It lost a couple of precious years in a struggle with lower basin interests, and as a result its expansion program cost several million dollars more.

But there were points of law and vested interests involved, whereas in many of the environmentalist cases the charges of harm are nebulous and often based mostly upon conjecture.

Metric System

It now appears that the United States inevitably will join the rest of the world and adopt the metric system. The Commerce Department last summer endorsed a slow — and expensive — switch.

One sign of the inevitability of the change already has appeared. The Journal of the American Medical Association has announced that as of January, 1973, it will publish all measurement exclusively in the metric system.

There surely are valid claims as well as concerns about effects of dams, particularly in the lower reaches or river basins, and these should be given due consideration upon substantiation. Vague, faddish charges, however, should not be allowed to block orderly development of water resources.

This was no sudden decision. Journal editors had, however, been noticing an odd mixture of measurements in their publication, such as a seven-pound baby, 50 centimeters long.

The Journal is following the wishes of the AMA's House of Delegates, which urged a change to the metric system in 1978 — just 93 years ago. Howbeit the rest of the nation is likely to follow. Sooner or later.

Evers' Example

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — In their search for political clout, black Americans have learned that you win some and you lose some. But there are defeats that are conclusive, such as that suffered by Cleveland's black mayor, Carl Stokes, and defeats that enhance a man's image, such as that suffered by Charles Evers, the black mayor of Fayette, Miss.

STOKES PERFORCE must postpone his ambition to wield national power as a result of his failure to elect the black he hand-picked as his successor. But in losing his race for governor of Mississippi, Evers emerged as a man the Democratic Party nationally must reckon with. Indeed, if the party chieftains are smart, they will welcome Evers into their inner councils.

Carl Stokes made the mistake of believing that the times were unchanged — that it was still possible for a party proprietor to proclaim, as did Jersey's Boss Hague, "I am the law." Superficially, Stokes' strategy was sound. He chose to support the successful Democratic candidate, James M. Carney, a white millionaire, in the September primary, and then endorsed Independent Arnold R. Pinckney, promising Pinckney the black vote.

BUT IF THERE was nothing wrong with this strategy, there was a great deal wrong with the way Stokes implemented it. He blatantly announced that his aim in seeking Pinckney's election was to build a nationwide black political machine, with himself as the gauleiter. Even Cleveland's predominantly black wards were taken back by this arrogance; they refused Pinckney the majority Stokes had guaranteed.

In short, Stokes was taught a lesson most bosses learned early, to wit, that it is okay to be boss so long as you don't brag about it. Chicago's Mayor Dick Daley has survived because he has always done his bossing behind closed doors.

CHARLES EVERS, on the other hand, ran a campaign that was a model for the Negro candidates everywhere. He, too, spoke of the need for black power, but his recurring pledge was to employ that power as a means of reconciling black and white in Mississippi. Evers rejected racism as an issue, and his moderate opponent, Democrat William Waller, agreed throughout the campaign that Evers had stated the case honestly.

EVERS, OF COURSE, was bound to lose. It is not at all derogatory of Mississippi to say that the state is not ready to elect a black governor. Even New York isn't. But Evers actually polled 22 per cent of the vote, which is impressive almost to the point of incredulity.

I DON'T BLAME Charles Evers if he is dissatisfied with merely making progress; moral victories are like kissing your sister. And yet the race he made was a very real personal triumph for Evers and at the same time nourishment for the hopes of tomorrow's black candidates. If one black can do that well in Mississippi, where black-white hostility is still high, another black should be persuaded to try his luck in, say, Maryland.

'IT PROVES I CAN COUNT MY FRIENDS ON ONE HAND'

American Buyer Wise

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — It is customary to picture the American consumer as a maligned and helpless creature buffeted about by the powers of the commercial world—used, abused, stimulated, manipulated by sellers wanting his dollar.

That picture, if it ever were true, may need re-examination. Evidence seems to be accumulating that the ordinary American buyer has stiffened his resistance, that he is growing wiser and more self-reliant, that he is trying and maybe succeeding in doing his, rather than the seller's, "thing."

That he is dictating as well as accepting orders is shown in the savings rate, automobile sales, do-it-yourself projects, federal regulation, housing sales, the stock market, vacations, fashions and in a number of other developing customs and patterns.

The savings rate is perhaps the most obvious indication that ordinary Americans use their heads and that they aren't to be tempted when bargains aren't offered. Almost simultaneous with the rise in inflation, many Americans decided to save rather than spend. With billions of dollars literally withdrawn from the marketplace, the nation's automobile dealers, restaurateurs and clothing manufacturers, to name only a few, were forced to adjust their sights downward.

Auto sales have now rebounded, but a large percentage of those sales are being made to buyers seeking to avoid higher prices next year. The current boom may be at the expense of next year's sales.

The do-it-yourself pattern, which you may remember was once called a fad, is now woven into the fabric of life.

Is this because, as we are often told, Americans had to find some use for their growing leisure time? Maybe. But just as likely it was a rejection of the poor but expensive services offered to them.

Growing federal regulation of the marketplace quite clearly has its origins in the discontent of ordinary buyers who feel that the balance of power had tilted too much in favor of the seller and that it must be reclaimed.

Ask any salesman if he hasn't met with a more knowledgeable, more independent-thinking buyer in the past two years. People are far less inclined to let others make decisions for them.

Vacation patterns also illustrate the strong-mindedness of ordinary people. Sure, thousands of Americans are taking expensive trips abroad, but have you wondered why the airlines haven't been able to fill all those seats on flights to exotic commercial paradises?

One explanation is that more and more families are designing their own vacation. City dwellers are buying their own piece of land in the countryside and, if necessary, tenting on it. Sales of mobile vacation homes and trailers are soaring. Thousands of Americans vacation in each other's homes through swap arrangements.

Once it was rather easy to size up the marketplace and the powers that moved it. Now you have to wonder who is in charge.

Pull Yourself Together

NEW YORK (AP) — People are always going up or down in this world.

The summit is the goal but it is a crowded, restless place and hard to perch on for long.

It behooves a man, therefore, to know whether his career is ascending or declining. In a world of sham this isn't always too easy. But there are certain guide marks.

For example, you don't have too much to worry about if — You are the one who gives the ulcers, not the one who gets them.

Your wife belongs to the fur-of-the-month club.

It is no trouble for you to remember the street addresses of all your love nests, but now and then you have trouble remembering the names of the girls you feathered them for.

When you play golf it never rains. It wouldn't dare.

You have acquired a chronic but non-fatal illness so rare that most of your friends' doctors have never even heard of it.

Harvard has asked for your brain after your death—assuming, that is, that the world could survive such a calamity.

Yes, sir, there is no doubt about it. You've got it made, made-made-in every possible way. But what about the other side of the matter? How can you tell if you are on the skids?

Here, too, there are guide marks. Your career is certainly going to hell in a hurry if —

When your magazine subscription expires, they don't ask you to renew it.

Your socks have so many holes in them they look like a fish net.

Eager Yule Beaver

Around The Rim

Jean Fannin

Did you know that as of today there are 51 days until Christmas?

YOU MAY have been misled, as was I, by the decorations in many of the stores to think that Christmas was really much closer.

I had never noticed before that while buying Halloween candy one could get in such a Yuletide mood. I got so excited I went right out and bought my Christmas cards and drew up my first Christmas list. I say first, because my lists always get revised — usually right down until midnight Dec. 24.

ANYWAY, I decided that this year I was not going to be a "Jean-come-lately" as far as my Christmas shopping is concerned.

I drew up the list of all the people that I wanted to give Christmas gifts to. Then I got realistic and drew up a list of all the people I had to give gifts to. Then my pocketbook started pinching, so I drew up a list of all the people who will probably give me gifts. Even that looked a little expensive, but by re-mortgaging my car, cutting out lunches and postponing beauty shop appointments until after the New Year, I figure I can make it.

I EVEN went so far as to try to cut down on expenses by buying one of those "Make Your Christmas Gifts This Year" books. But I'm afraid it didn't do a lot of good. Just who would I give a handmade pin cushion? And potholders just don't seem very Christmassy. A muffler, mittens and tam set was a good idea, but I figure if I start yesterday I won't have it finished until the day after Christmas 1975.

AFTER I decided that the local stores were my only hope, ideas came easily, and I was able to complete my list of gifts matched with my list of recipients.

Now I can relax until long about 3 p.m. Dec 23 (by the way, boss, can I have a couple of hours off that day — I have some shopping I need to take care of?)

The Prayer Case

David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — There has been much confusion about a proposed constitutional amendment which would permit prayer in public schools. In the resolution offered in the House of Representatives, the sponsors of the amendment eliminated reference to "nondenominational" prayers and merely affirmed the right to participate in "voluntary" prayers in all public buildings, which would include schools.

IT MIGHT be asked why such an amendment was even thought necessary. The Supreme Court, in its decisions about prayers, has ruled specifically that public schools were not to allow "prescribed" prayers — those ordered by state or other governmental officials. The emphasis was on the part played by government authorities in placing their imprint on a prayer required for students sometime during school sessions each day.

In a case known as Stein V. O'Shinsky, which was decided in 1963, the Supreme Court had an opportunity to clarify the whole situation, but it didn't.

STUDENTS had asked to be allowed to organize a prayer period on their own for those who wished to participate. The principal of the school refused. A group of parents brought action to enjoin school officials from preventing the recitation of prayers on the children's own initiative. The Court of Appeals ruled against the parents, and the Supreme Court declined to hear the case. It held:

"The constitutional rights to free exercise of religion and to freedom of speech do not require a state to permit 'student-initiated' prayers in public schools."

THE PRAYER the children recited was as follows:

"Thank you for the world so sweet, thank you for the food we eat, thank you for the birds that sing — thank you, God, for everything."

"But even this simple prayer, which originated with the students and was to be used in a period that was not under the auspices of the school at all but in a private recess, was not permitted."

THREE YEARS later, in another case — known as Despain V. Dekalb — a federal Court of Appeals ruled that a teacher could not recite the prayer used by the students — quoted above — even if she left out the word "God" to comply with the decision in the Stein V. O'Shinsky case. But the court held that everyone knows what "You" means and that "the intent is to offer thanks to God."

Rep. Chalmers P. Wylie, (R-Ohio) author of the amendment, commented on these decisions in a recent speech. He declared:

"ALL OF THE decisions seem to say, if you recognize the Supreme Deity in any way in a public school, you are doing an unconstitutional act. If they do, we need a constitutional amendment to assure that my constitutional privilege to say a voluntary nondenominational prayer in a public building shall not be abridged."

There are, in fact, many public buildings in which prayers are said and numerous proceedings of the government itself in which prayers of a nondenominational nature are offered. Both the Senate and House have chaplains who open each session with such a prayer. No real objections have been raised against these practices. The Supreme Court is convened by a cleric who says, "God save the United States and this court."

SO IT IS difficult to understand why students in public schools cannot even have a voluntary prayer initiated by themselves and without any participation by school authorities.

Urges Cleanup

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — Carlos N. Bailey, an executive advisor to the local Goodwill Industries chapter, urges every household to hold a "fall housecleaning." The unwanted items stored in garages, cellars and attics can become tax deductions when contributed to Goodwill, says Bailey.

Busy Laredo

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — This border city has registered its best summer tourist season yet, the American Automobile Association reports.

Velia Uribe, manager of the office, said 209,824 U.S. tourists crossed here en route to the interior of Mexico during the 1971 summer months.

My Answer

Billy Graham

I can't understand why I must admit that I'm a "miserable" sinner in order to accept Christ. I'm just an average person and do want to accept Him, L.C.

I don't read any place in the Bible where one must say he "is a miserable sinner." As a matter of fact, some people are very comfortable in their sins. Our reluctance to confess that we are sinners stems from the common definition of the word "sinner." We usually associate sin with sex offenses, drunkenness and dishonesty. This definition, which deals only with the sins of the flesh is far too narrow. Everyone away from God is not a sex deviate, an inebriate or dishonest. The word "sin" literally means, "missing the mark," or coming short. When we use the word sinner in the Biblical sense we refer to those who have failed to measure up to God's standard for them. He wants us to be free from guilt, free from pride, free from harboring an unforgiving spirit toward others. It is only by His grace and love that we are able to experience such freedom.

You don't have to admit you are a miserable sinner — just a plain sinner who has "missed the mark," and stands in need of the love, mercy and forgiveness of God. The Bible says: "If we confess our sins He is faithful and just to forgive our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

A Devotion For Today . . .

He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. (Psalm 91:1)

PRAYER: Dear Lord, in this day of futility and hopelessness in the lives of so many people, especially the young, help our homes to be constantly in right relationship with You. So may they be Your dwelling places and be Your instruments of love in a hungry and heartless world. Amen.

Modern Egyptians Still Revere Ancient Names

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO (AP) — Some aspects of the long-dead past still are alive in parts of modern Egypt. Names, for example, such as Isis, Nefertiti, and Ramses still are used by some contemporary Egyptians. In the old days, Isis was the mother goddess of ancient Egypt, Nefertiti the wife of the hunter-king Tut Ankh Amun, and Ramses a warrior-king.

In addition to names, some present-day village dwellers also are influenced by the ancient practices of medicine, black magic, and burial of the dead.

Some 30 centuries back, Egyptians worshipped the sun. Today, when a village child loses a tooth he hurls it at the sun and cries: "Oh, sun . . . take this buffalo tooth, and give me another which looks like the tooth of a bride."

BANISH SPIRITS
In Talkha, a village in the Nile Delta region, the family of a sick person places a loaf of bread under his head to drive away evil spirits. This custom, mentioned in the pyramid texts, was popular 3,000 years ago.

Tourists who visit the Cairo Museum find the statue of a noted healer called Zed-her with inscribed formulas for different illnesses. The inscription includes this note: "If you are suffering of an illness, pour fresh water on my statue. The water will run into the inscription and will thus have healing power. Drink the water and you will be cured."

Unfortunately the statue cannot be touched and anyone pouring water on it would be arrested.

WORD POWER
Today, the power of written words still prevails among Egyptian peasants. In some villages sick persons dangle from their necks "Higabs," written prescriptions prepared by holy men and wrapped in cloth. They are claimed to have a healing effect.

Some wealthy peasants wrap their dead in 100 meters of cloth, a protection against speedy disintegration. They are influenced by the ancient pharaonic custom of mummification. Islam forbids the use of decorative or expensive shrouds. When the prophet Mohamed died he was buried wrapped in his cloak.

VISIT DEAD
Like the ancients, Egyptians today light lamps at tombs during feast days, bring food and cookies and go for a family "visit" to the cemeteries in order to "please the dead."

In modern Egypt, the eldest son of a dead person descends into the grave to loosen the wrapping on the body. The origin of that practice was found in the pyramid texts, which say:

"Horus comes to you, to separate your bandages and fling off your bonds."

Horus was the son-god, the eldest boy of Orisis, god of the dead. Isis was his mother.

Sheriff's Posse Play Day Slated

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba has accepted an invitation to visit Hungary, according to Havana radio.

The date of the visit is to be set at a mutually convenient time.

Angelo Packing Plant Shut Down

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Armour and Co. packing plant at San Angelo, Tex., is closed by what management officials here say has been a labor dispute.

Lou Raffel, a company spokesman, said the plant was shut down Wednesday for an indefinite period.

He blamed San Angelo employees with "deliberately" slowing down production which has cost the plant $92,000 this year.

The plant at San Angelo employed 124 persons.

Baylor Prexy In Med Center

DALLAS (AP) — Baylor University President Abner McCall was undergoing tests and observation at Baylor Medical Center here today as an outgrowth of an operation last week.

An aide, Tom Turner, said the university educator was brought to the center last week.

Turner said McCall's condition was termed stable.

She Does Not Dress To Shock

LONDON (AP) — Sonia McMahon, the 39-year-old blonde wife of the Australian prime minister, says people are wrong if they say she dresses to shock.

Mrs. McMahon said it was her 63-year-old husband William who picked out the stunning white dress with ankle-to-thigh slit that caused a stir at a White House reception last week.

"I don't see it as part of my job to try and brighten up the political scene with glamorous dresses," Mrs. McMahon said Tuesday. "I bought the dress I wore at the White House after my husband and I saw it in a Sydney shop window and he said he liked it."

The McMahons are now in London, where the Australian leader is having talks with the British government.

Germans Observe No Speed Limits, Ready For Wrecks

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — If you think driving on the Los Angeles Freeway or the Long Island Expressway on a Friday night is hard on the nerves, try the Autobahn in West Germany.

Bumper-to-bumper traffic zooming along without a speed limit is almost normal. It's almost like playing Russian Roulette with all the chambers loaded.

But the West Germans are prepared. Every few miles along the four-lane super highway, there are aid stations. On weekends, business, for the emergency surgeons is especially good. They have portable operating rooms that can be driven or airlifted by helicopter to the scene of a particularly bad wreck within minutes and the surgeon goes to work on the side of the road.

Volunteer patrolmen of the automobile club roar along the road on their yellow motorcycles, and police in white uniforms driving white Porsches look out for the particularly flagrant violators.

But there is no speed limit and if you have an Opel that can do only 70 miles an hour, you'd better watch for the blinking lights of the Mercedes that hog the road at speeds of 95 or more.

Automobile accidents in 1970 caused more than 19,000 deaths and a half-million injuries. The year before, more than 16,500 motorists were killed and injuries amounted to more than 470,000.

With 89,861,000 cars and 19,138,000 trucks registered in the United States, the National Safety Council recorded 54,800 highway deaths in 1970. There were two million injuries.

The latest count by the Ministry of Transport showed 17 million automobiles registered, one for every four West Germans. Joining the 17 million trucks.

This leads at times to mammoth traffic jams, especially during the summer vacation months, when thousands of Scandinavians, Belgians and Dutchmen head for the sunny shores of southern Europe. The Autobahns are the major north-south routes.

The worst nationwide traffic jam in history occurred last July 31. The country's newspapers reported it with boldface headlines as if West Germany had been struck by a major catastrophe.

"An avalanche of tin rolls southward," reported the mass circulation Bildzeitung.

The tieup was caused when schools closed in north Germany and the giant Volkswagen works with 140,000 workers shut down for summer vacation.

The death toll for that one day along the 2,800 miles of super highways was recorded at 50 and police said 180 persons were seriously injured. There were 830 accidents.

The West German government has periodically considered a speed limit for all highways. This was rejected, however, because it was feared that cutting the speeds now would lead to immense congestions because of the lack of main roads.

Present planning by the Bonn government calls for more than 17,000 miles of additional major highways, to be completed by 1985.

In the meantime, Transport Minister George Leber has announced that he would ask parliamentary approval to establish a 62 m.p.h. speed limit for all two-lane highways and country roads.

But the majority of West Germany drivers still are against all speed limits.

'Big Bang' Doctrine Replaces Escalation

By LOUIS NEVIN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union now believes in launching an instant and massive strike with nuclear or chemical weapons in any European war, according to a British military analyst.

He says the Soviets have abandoned the policy of gradual escalation in favor of a quick "big bang" approach.

John Erickson, professor of higher defense studies at Edinburgh University, gave this assessment in a report published by the Royal United Services Institute.

SOVIET EXPERT

Erickson is considered an expert on Soviet affairs. He has made many trips to the Soviet Union and is said to be personally acquainted with some of Russia's top generals and strategists.

The new Soviet military doctrine, he said in his report "Soviet Military Power," is clearly shown in the Red Army's massive war games held in Central Europe.

The 1967 games, he said, were based almost entirely on conventional weapons but the 1970 exercises were based on a mixture of conventional and nuclear weapons.

SURPRISE IMPORTANT

"Cardinal importance," he wrote, "is attached to the initial strike" and surprise is considered all important.

The Soviets now are capable of advancing by as much as 70 miles a day. They have a highly developed airlift capacity.

During the 1970 war games, 8,000 parachute troops and 160 vehicles were dropped in a space of 22 minutes.

Erickson said Moscow has 630 medium range ballistic missiles targeted on Western Europe. These missiles can be armed with either nuclear or nerve gas warheads.

"Soviet commentary on the nuclear battlefield," Erickson says, "lays great stress on the depth and destructiveness of the initial mass nuclear strike."

MASS STRIKE

He adds: "The crucial nature of this first strike, which is vital to the subsequent evolution of the battle" would certainly impel the Soviet command to commit an appreciable proportion of their available warheads — probably as much as 40 per cent assuming also that this is in the context of a "major" land battle in Europe projected for some 10 days."

The Russians, he says, are far more rigorous in their training than Western forces, especially in training their troops for nuclear combat.

Exercises conducted over "radio-active terrain" are made more grimly realistic by the use of real isotopes," he said.

Tulsa Tip: Bell Girls

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The traditional "bell boy" is being replaced at a motel here and the men probably will enjoy it.

Toing luggage, greeting arrivals at the door and meeting incoming flights at Tulsa International Airport for the Sheraton Inn Motel are two "bell hostesses."

The girls, wearing navy blue and red hot pants, are Pam Walker and Janice Bains. They work five nights a week.

"We did have a few comments about Women's Liberation at first, but that all has passed now," said Don Baumgartner, general manager for the hotel.

"We have had no complaints about the girls. At present we employ two bell men, but the hostesses do not receive any more tips than the boys," he added. "Sometimes the men will carry their own luggage to the rooms and then tip us for showing them to the rooms," said Pam, a tall blonde. "They especially do this when the rooms are upstairs."

'Fishing Not What It Used To Be'

By WERNER VOLLMANN
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA (AP) — They catch fish with nets in the murky waters of the "Blue Danube" at Vienna, dreaming of a better past.

They are some 120 hobby fishermen who have house boats along the northern bank. They are the "Daubelfischer," the Daubel being a squarish net dangling from the boats into the water from a pole.

Their number is dwindling. Younger fishermen use boats and more sophisticated fishing gear instead of the stationary house boats which are anchored to the bank.

The hobby fishers are modest. They like to live close to the river and once in a while catch some fish.

"Fishing is not what it used to be," they say. The fish also are getting scarce in view of the pollution of the Danube.

There is no record when the first Daubel fisherman made his appearance on the Danube.

In the past they were able to catch crabs and even trout, which were carried downriver by floods of the Alpine tributaries. Now the hobby fishermen are happy if they catch some whiting and proud if they land a carp, pike or sheat-fish.

The nets are bigger than the house boats they are attached to.

The house boat is made up of a float and a hut built on top of it. It gives the fishermen a chance to be comfortable in wind and rain as the winch operating the net is usually kept inside. There are some sleeping cots and a small stove on which the catch can be prepared.

Although the Danube fishermen need no bait, they still have a trick as to how to catch fish. Some 50 meters upstream from their house boats two logs are anchored in an upright position below the water line.

The logs produce small currents, the boat sits in the middle of the two streams in quiet water. Fish, which on their upriver travel try to get some rest prefer these spots and once in a while land in the fishermen's net.

Says He Gave Dowdy Money To Stop Quiz

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The man who says he gave Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., $25,000 to help stop a Justice Department investigation was expected back on the witness stand today in Dowdy's bribery conspiracy trial.

Nathan H. Cohen, leadoff witness in the U.S. District Court trial, testified Wednesday he arranged to give Dowdy the money to gain immunity from government prosecution in exchange for testimony before a House committee.

Cohen, the former president of the Monarch Construction Co., a defunct home improvement firm from Silver Spring, Md., contended the money was given to Dowdy in an Atlanta airport Sept. 22, 1965.

Dowdy, now 59, was at the time ranking member of the House District of Columbia Committee, before which Cohen, a disbarred lawyer from Virginia Beach, Va., was to appear.

The former Monarch president admitted from the stand that his firm had violated federal laws in financing home improvements and that split financing was his "major fear of prosecution."

Cohen, who pleaded guilty to fraud charges and was placed on probation last year, said Monarch made about $2.5 million in two years with a "private urban renewal program."

Myrvyn C. Clark, a former sales manager for Monarch, passed the money to Dowdy, according to Cohen, who added he wrote down the serial numbers of about three-quarters of the bills because "it seemed like a good idea."

Stephen H. Sachs, a special federal prosecutor, produced Wednesday a list of the numbers which Cohen said he wrote the night he obtained the money from various banks.

Dowdy instructed Clark to give him a briefcase containing the $25,000 in cash at the Atlanta airport, Cohen testified. Because he did not trust Clark with all the money, Cohen said he sent another Monarch salesman, Julius Levitt, to observe the transfer.

Thrift Days Start Friday

The sixth annual downtown Thrift Days will begin Friday in most of the downtown Big Spring stores.

Thrift Days are a series of special two-day sales in all the participating businesses each Friday and Saturday through Dec. 18.

A special feature of the coordinated sales is a weekly drawing held every Saturday for a $300 diamond ring.

Last year 16 stores participated in the special sales, and more are participating this year with special bargains all week long as well as for the weekend sales.

Group Is Not Local Association

Requests by mail for donations to the Texas Crippled Children's Association are not connected in any way with the Howard County Easter Seal Crippled Children's Association, according to Jack Worsham, board president.

Persons who wish to donate to the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center can do so through the Howard County association, Worsham said. If they wish to contribute to the state group, they may respond to the mailers.

GOOD SCOUTER — Chaplain A. C. Hicks, left, chairman-elect of the Lone Star District, and Jack Alexander, right, district chairman, present Dean Lagerstrom, district commissioner, with an expression of appreciation for the district which he leaves this week. Lagerstrom, on the VA Hospital staff here for years, is being transferred to Arizona. He has been one of the most active volunteers in the district and has performed one of the best commissioners' jobs in the Buffalo Trail Council, Alexander explained.

Eliminating Pox Shots

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Health Department has said that after Jan. 1, 1972, a smallpox vaccination will no longer be required for admission to Texas public schools.

The compulsory school immunization law becomes effective next Jan. 1 and makes it mandatory for all students to have up to six immunizations, but the State Health Department is given authority to modify the program.

The department said it was eliminating smallpox from the required shots because of a recent statement by the U.S. Public Health Service that it felt "compulsory smallpox immunization was unnecessary in the United States."

The last smallpox cases reported in the United States were in 1949 when an outbreak in the Rio Grande Valley killed one person and affected seven others. Almost 250,000 persons were vaccinated in a prevention program.

Former Policemen Turning Detection Powers On Past

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — John Stables, a former Scotland Yard detective, now spends much of his time examining crumbling marriage and birth certificates in dusty English archives.

Derek Metcalfe, once a New Zealand policeman, treks to remote Polynesian villages to record on tape the recitation of family histories by old men of the village.

DETECTIVES STILL
Both men are among 14 genealogical field representatives for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints Mormon, whose collection of genealogical records, headquartered in Salt Lake City, is the largest in the world.

"We're still involved in a huge detective hunt," says Stables. "But now we're searching for dead ones, instead of live ones."

Since 1894, the Genealogical Society of the Mormon Church has been gathering millions of volumes of birth and marriage records, wills, land grants, parish registers, court proceedings and other vital statistics from every corner of the globe.

The society has divided the world into nine different areas, each of which is covered by trained genealogists.

LOCATE RECORDS
"The genealogists go to churches, libraries, record depositories, and state and national archives to locate the records in their area," says Theodore Burton, church official directly in charge of the society. "Then they arrange for the documents to be microfilmed."

"Our eventual object is to gather together microfilms of all the vital statistics we can find in the world," he says.

The society employs about 500 people and spends more than $5 million annually in its work.

FAMILY TREES
Tracing family trees is important to Mormons because of the church doctrine urging baptism of dead family members.

According to Mormon teaching, persons who died without being baptized in the Mormon faith may be baptized posthumously through a proxy, who must be a living relative.

Mormons collect records of their families as far back as they can trace them.

When all members of a deceased family have been assembled into a family unit, then living family members also may participate in a ceremony sealing themselves to their dead relatives.

REUNITES FAMILY
This, according to church doctrine, enables the entire family tree to be physically reunited in heaven.

Genealogical studies also are popular with non-Mormons, who daily come by the hundreds to the church's genealogical library here to pour over microfilms of family records.

Three-quarters of a million rolls of microfilm — equivalent to nearly three million printed books of 300 pages each — are available in the library for public use.

Also on the shelves are six million printed family genealogies, genealogical periodicals, and histories of towns, counties, states and countries.

TREASURE HUNT

"More and more people are taking up genealogical research as a hobby," Burton says. "It becomes a fascinating treasure hunt. Some people get so wrapped up in it becomes an obsession."

Checking family pedigrees is a time-consuming, painstaking skill, which is likely to lead the amateur genealogist up the wrong family tree several times before he climbs the right one.

So the library provides trained researchers, who perform genealogical research for library patrons for a small charge.

FILM DOCUMENTS
The library receives about 14,500 new rolls of microfilm a month — the products of some 60 cameras which are daily filming documents throughout the world.

Negatives of the films are stored in a huge granite vault carved out of the side of a mountain 20 miles southeast of Salt Lake City.

Guarded by grilles bank-vault doors and protected beneath hundreds of feet of solid granite, the microfilm is kept in six caverns.

Only a direct nuclear hit could endanger the records, church officials claim.

Fem Astro Odds Poor

HOUSTON (AP) — The first woman to receive a doctorate in space science at Rice University says she would like to be an astronaut.

However, Mrs. Susan G. Kleinmann rates her chances as poor. "The likelihood of the space agency having a female astronaut is somewhere under the floor," she said. "However, if I thought I wouldn't have to wait 5,000 years for them to get around to my name, I'd volunteer."

Mrs. Kleinmann, whose husband, Douglas, preceded her at Rice by two years, is 26. Recently she completed her degree in her specialty, infrared astronomy.

Not, she hopes to collaborate with her husband on several scientific projects in the Boston area. He works at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge.

Mrs. Kleinmann received her bachelor's degree in physics from Trinity College in Washington in 1967. She came to Rice on a graduate fellowship in space science in 1968 and pursued her doctoral research under Professor Frank Low, an internationally-known experimental infrared astronomer who holds a joint appointment with Rice and the University of Arizona.

RUGGED ON DEFENSE FOR COAHOMA — These boys have made a contribution to defense to Coahoma's fine football record this season. Kneeling, from the left, are Dean Wood, John Best, Tommy Arguello and Glen Washburn. Standing, Wendell Walker, Danny White, Troy Kerby, James Teeler, Tim Tindol, James Blair and Keith Pherigo. The Bulldogs host Crane Friday night, with all the blue chips in District 5-AA riding on the outcome of the contest. The season's largest crowd likely will be in attendance.

Ed Hughes: Critics May Have A Point

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A team with a 1-4-11 record can expect some criticism and Houston Oiler head coach Ed Hughes says some of it probably is justified.

"When you play so many games where we're leading in the fourth quarter and then lose, there's going to be some criticism," Hughes said. "Some of it is justified because we're beating ourselves with our own mistakes."

"I've seen teams as quiet as a mouse play good games," Hughes said. "And I've seen other loud ones go out and stink up the joint. It's kind of an individual thing."

The Oilers did it again last Sunday. They figured out another way to lose, leading New England 20-14 in the fourth quarter before losing 28-20. Hughes is as busy as ever, trying to analyze each facet of the game to get it all rolling. The offensive line has done a creditable job of pass blocking but hasn't been consistent blocking for the run.

"It's true we put more emphasis on pass blocking early in the year," Hughes said. "But that was the most important thing. If you can't protect your quarterback, you're not going anywhere."

Hughes said he couldn't gauge the Oilers' emotional peak from week to week.

GLAD TO PLAY Romanians Poor Bet On Links

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Don't bet the family jewels on the Romanians in the 19th World Cup Golf Championship. A three-legged horse in the Kentucky Derby has a better chance.

"It was worth our trip just to see the Romanian flag raised with all the others," said 61-year-old Pavel Tomita, a pro in Bucharest. "We know we can't win, but maybe someday ..."

The United States team of Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino were top-heavy favorites today as 46 countries attacked treacherous PGA National Golf Club with a variety of strokes as wide as the earth's belly.

"I think Lee and I will win it," Nicklaus predicted with relaxed confidence. "The thrill of winning, though, isn't as big as the thrill of representing your country."

As for the Romanians, the national pride angle had to be especially dominant in these Olympics of the golfing world. The little Iron Curtain team entered World Cup play for the first time in 1970 at Buenos Aires, Argentina. Australia's team of Bruce Devlin and David Graham shot a 32 under par 544 total to capture the cup. Romania had backed its way to a 727, an unbelievable 183 shots behind the Aussies. Tomita led his team with 86-89-82-92.

Golf to some of the countries is as familiar as ice fishing in Hawaii. "My greatest feeling in a World Cup is when they raise the United States flag," said Nicklaus, a man who became thin handsome 20 months ago at the age of 30.

Ten Buffaloes In Last Game

STANTON — Ten seniors will be playing their final high school football game for Stanton High School when the Buffaloes challenge Reagan County here at 7:30 this evening.

The contest was originally booked for Friday night but was moved up because of conflict with other school activities in both communities.

Those making their farewell appearance for Stanton in the game include tackle Mike Adams, guards Charles Alchison, Bubba Standerfer and Steve Douglas, fullback Frankie Barnhill, centers Chip Cogan and Curt Howard, end Walt Haislip and backs Gary Posey and Jackie Swanson.

Bill Young's Stanton team will be seeking its third win of the season.

He said he would possibly start rookie Lynn Dickey at quarterback this week over rookie Dan Pastorini, who has started the past four games. The Raiders have Daryle Lamonia and 44-year old George Blanda, a former Oiler, to give Hughes headaches.

Manipulation of Franchises Scored Congress' Mood Turns Dark

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The public has turned sour on the baseball and football magnates," said New York's veteran Rep. Emmanuel Celler, D-N.Y.

"They keep moving men hither and thither like pawns over a chess board. They are possessed by greed."

"They traffic in athletic franchises like Wall Street brokers traffic in stock," added Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C. "Their attitude is one of public be damned."

"People are getting fed up with the owners," insisted Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash. "If we had a piebiscite, I think the fans would throw the lot of them out."

The mood in Congress is dark and forboding over the phenomenal growth and thrust of big time professional sports. Men in key legislative posts paint it as a ballooning monster with an insatiable appetite for spectator dollars—cold and heartless, spreading its tentacles to all parts of the nation.

"It's a cold-blooded, money-grabbing situation," argues Rep. B. F. Sisk, D-Calif. "To some owners, the dollar sign is becoming bigger than the fans—it's the guiding light of their operation."

Lincoln Leaps To 2nd Place In Grid Poll

By The Associated Press

The doctor bills must be soaring around the Joe Washington residence in Port Arthur these days.

Washington, head coach of the Port Arthur Lincoln football team, has been hospitalized several weeks recovering from an auto accident.

But that hasn't kept him from directing his team via a closed circuit television hookup to the field. Lincoln has continued to win in Washington's absence including last week's 22-14 upset of No. 1 ranked Port Arthur Jefferson.

It vaulted Lincoln from fifth to No. 2 in the Associated Press schoolboy football poll this week but the Washington family is in for more doctor bills.

Joe Washington Jr., the coach's son, is a halfback for Lincoln, and broke a bone in his foot scoring the winning touchdown against Jefferson. He'll be out until the state playoffs.

Washington also has another son, Ken, who happens to be the Lincoln quarterback. So Ken took up the slack against Jefferson, throwing for one touchdown and running for another.

Lincoln's victory pushed Wichita Falls into the No. 1 position in Class AAAA this week and dropped Jefferson to eighth. In the other divisions, Silsbee in Class AAAA, Eastland in Class AA, and Sonora in Class A, remained in command.

Comroe, eighth in Class AAAA last week, and No. 10 Hurst Bell dropped from the top 10 after losses and were replaced by Austin Reagan and Killeen.

Austin Westlake and Bowie were casualties in Class AA with Lincoln, Kildare and Coahoma the newcomers. Iowa Park in Class AAA was the only other ranked team to lose last week.

Here is the Associated Press schoolboy football poll with first place votes in parentheses, based on 10-9-7-5-4-3-2-1 points based on 10-9-8-7-5-4-3-2-1.

Table showing Class AAAA, Class AAA, Class AA, and Class A rankings with team names and vote counts.

Short Says He Needs New Image In Texas

DALLAS (AP) — Bob Short

is not going to be popular coming out of Washington. You can read the Washington papers and you wouldn't read any virtues of Bob Short if he had any."

Short said his biggest shortcoming in Washington was "the failure to convince the community to help. We couldn't get them to recognize the importance of a million persons at the gate and an adequate radio and television program."

He said, "We lost a lot of money, but it wasn't because we were second class. We made some bad trades and good ones. I tried to do the best job I knew how. But there is no way I could be popular and move that team from Washington to Dallas-Fort Worth."

Short, citing his financial success with the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association before he sold them, said, "I operated that club for five years after we moved the Lakers to Los Angeles and didn't want to sell it when I did. I was offered an astronomical figure. I almost had to sell or be committed by my wife."

"I just hope I'm not so successful down here. Everyone wants to buy it (the club). I enjoy baseball or I wouldn't be in it. But the strain was tremendous in Washington, both in the won-loss column and in the financial side."

Short is in Dallas to iron out his financial arrangements with local bankers and the city of Arlington, Tex., where the franchise is located.

He said any talk that Ted Williams might not manage in 1972 "shouldn't be taken seriously. I would have to allow it's always possible that he might decide to hang them up. But there are those who said I couldn't sign him ... and couldn't keep him three years. Now he's on the fourth year of a five year contract. That's four times longer than anybody figured."

JVs End Play Here Tonight

The lights at Memorial Stadium go on again this evening when the Big Spring JVs wind up their season in a 7 p.m. game with San Angelo.

The JVs will be seeking to improve upon a 3-5 record. They were defeated in their last start by Odessa High, 48-14.

Big Spring has beaten Midland High, Andrews and Midland Lee while losing to Snyder, Abilene, Odessa Permian, Abilene Cooper and Odessa.

The Sophomores venture to Sweetwater tonight to wind up their season with a 7 o'clock contest. The Sophs are Big Spring's most successful team, having achieved a 5-2-1 record.

They've beaten Andrews, Odessa and Colorado City, split with San Angelo and Coahoma and dropped a decision to Midland Lee.

Ninth and eighth grade teams wait until Saturday evening to end their seasons, at which time the second of two rounds of competition to determine city championships will be unveiled.

CHICAGO (AP) Leo Durocher won't be the Chicago Cubs' new manager. Owner Phil Wrigley said today.

Wrigley said he had not yet decided on a new manager for the Cubs. He said he would like to see Durocher manage the team.

Durocher, who has managed the Cubs since 1968, said he would like to see Wrigley name him as manager.

Ernie Banks Won't Get Post As Cubs' Pilot

CHICAGO (AP) — Maybe Banks, a Cub playing star since 1953, as potential successor to the Chicago Cubs in 1972, but neither will Mr. Cub, Ernie Banks, make him manager of any thing.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Big Spring will find what is probably its tallest high school basketball team in history the coming season but the Steers won't be especially noticeable on the court because cagers everywhere are growing up . . . and up . . . and up.

This year, 30 men seven feet or more in height will campaign in professional and college ranks around the nation. That's enough for six full teams.

Time was when Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain was the most conspicuous man in the basketball crowd. Nowadays, he has to wear a sweatband around his brow to be noticed.

The seven-footers among the pros, in addition to Chamberlain, are Henry Finkel, Elmore Smith, Bob Christian, Tom Payne, Tom Boerwinkle, Ty Marioneaux, Lew Alcindor, Greg Fillmore, Mel Counts, Bill Smith, Pembrose Burrows, Jim McDaniel, Rich Niemann and Artis Gilmore.

In the colleges, the boys who qualify for membership in the Seven-Foot Club are Steve Lackey, Luke White, Tommy Burleson, Dave Angel, Fred Cox, Roland Grant, Ron Kennedy, Mike Lukavich, Al Carlson, Neal McCoy, Mark Cartwright, Danny Traylor, Norman Russell, David Brent and Bob Rosier.

Some scientists say that, in a few years, it will be possible to "engineer" people to grow awesome heights through proper use of vitamins.

Tell me, though, who would deliberately raise their son to be an Americanized Watusi? It's tough enough being 6-4 and hitting every chandelier that happens by.

This word of caution for society: Keep the growth potions away from basketball coaches. The game would surely deteriorate into a dull exhibition of goal tending. It takes a quick-silver quick guard or two to enliven the proceedings now.

It took the Arkansas game for Southwest Conference football buffs to develop an appreciation for the skills of A&M's Mark Green but District 5-AAAA aficionados were aware of his native talents all along.

Odessa High never drank much from the cup of success when Green was in school there but Mark was a feared player, a boy who could do it all on both offense and defense.

Coach Gene Stallings said he had problems deciding where to play Green, not because he couldn't produce but because he could do so many things so well.

In 5-AAAA, he was a threat to go "all the way" even on defense because he defended against the pass so well. When he was at quarterback, he could almost get a first down by falling down — he stands 6-4.

Frenship, where ex-Big Springer Jimmy Marcus will again serve as basketball coach, has only two lettermen back from last season.

Coach's Wife Fretting, Too

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — While football coaches suffer frayed nerves during weekend mayhem, what do their wives do? Apparently they go quietly to pieces in the wings.

Take Barbara Dooley, wife of the University of Georgia's Coach Vince Dooley. She's convinced that she may have to take her first tranquilizer ever before the Auburn game Saturday.

"I'm so nervous about the Auburn game Saturday that I don't think I can stand it," she said. She's not sure she'll last that long.

"I may start biting my fingernails before the week is over. Generally, when I get real nervous, I cry and itch and I'm already doing that."

"Monday night, right in the middle of the night, I woke up thinking about that game and I shook Vince and yelled, 'It's only five more days,'" she said in an interview.

The dark-haired Mrs. Dooley says she had to take the telephone off the hook because callers "seem to think I've got ten million (tickets) to give away."

She said a woman from Macon called and told her she had cancer and was dying and her last dying requests was tickets to this game. "And she didn't want just one. She wanted to bring a friend with her," said Mrs. Dooley, incredulously.

"Another lady called from somewhere in South Carolina and claimed she met Vince 15 years ago. She thought this would get her some tickets."

"I asked her that if I had some and let her have them, who she'd yell for and she said, 'Auburn, of course.' Now that took the cake."

The mother of four says the "whole town has gone stark crazy about this game. This is all they talk about. I'm not going to read another line in any newspaper. That just makes it worse. And I've told Vince not to tell me anymore about the game."

She says people can't tell from her husband's appearance whether he's nervous or not. But she says, "He's got to be nervous. Let's face it. They're working so hard. But they've been working so hard all year. I really haven't seen all that much of him since August."

Short Cuts A Must

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The New Mexico Police Board has approved a regulation requiring state police officers to keep their hair cut.

The regulation says officers' hair must be "neat, clean, trimmed and present a well-groomed appearance." It specifically forbids hair that touches the ears or goes below the shirt collar.

Mark is a sort of friend of mine. He has a problem. To call his girl friend, he has to pay. But he can call me free, and I can call her free. So he calls me and I pass messages on to her. And she calls me and I pass messages to him.

It has been going on for four months. It seems to me that if they loved each other enough they could pay for their calls. I'm too kind-hearted to tell them, though. Can you help me? — Middle Girl in Maryland.

(A.) This boy and girl are thoughtless, and inconsiderate. They are imposing on you. You can't be subtle with people like that. Next time either calls, tell them the arrangement has gotten out of hand and you must resign from your messenger-girl job. If it makes them angry, let it.

TOMORROW
—CARROLL RIGHTER

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have a day to spend time on the varied details required in order to put all of your affairs on a more solid and secure structure. Consider items you off-ended and wind them up in a precise fashion, thus gaining deserved respect.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Start early with whatever duties are at hand, gift to those who deserve it, can bring much goodwill. React with more in the evening.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You need only to improve your appearance to make this a happy and productive day instead of just one more day of social obligations. Making plans for the future is fine.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Attend to duties that have to be done, whether at home or out of the home, and establish more harmony. It can be fun if you apply yourself. Remove clutter around you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Put aside anything of a frivolous nature and engage in practical matters that mean so much. Talk over with associates how to be mutually most efficient.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 31) Study your financial position so that you have exactly what you can invest in the near future. Listen to the suggestions of a wise business expert. Follow them. Relax tonight!

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Showing little courtesies to good pals and associates brings fine results now. Don't neglect to improve your appearance. Take more interest in civic affairs. Be wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) In the quiet of your study make a new and better plan for the future and then consult with experts on it. Don't neglect to extend a favor to one who has been very good to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) See what part you can play in a new project that good friends are interested in. This could turn out to be enjoyable and profitable. Meet with a friend and reach a better understanding.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take care of an outside chore which you do not like, but which is necessary if you are to derive benefits. Find implements that make life and work easier.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Do necessary studying that will help you understand a new plan. New contracts have a good idea they want you to go along with. Do so. Relax in the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You would do well to put responsibilities aside and get down to handling responsibilities that are most important. Come to a good understanding with mole. Let it be teamwork.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) If you want to come to a better understanding with an associate, you have to show you can keep promises. Listening to what others say is wise. Show kindness.

Will Try To Solve Racial Problems In Armed Forces

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a 10-week search, Pentagon officials reportedly have persuaded a black New York industrial executive to take over the prickly job of trying to solve persistent racial problems in the armed forces.

Sources said Donald Miller, 39-year-old industrial relations president of Seatrains Shipbuilding Corp., is the leading prospect for the $36,000-a-year job. Miller, who resigned under pressure, a Pentagon spokesman said at the time that Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird felt there had not been enough action to end racial discrimination in the service.

China Will Boost Candidacy Of Fin

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Red China's arrival in the United Nations is likely to boost the candidacy of Max Jakobson of Finland to succeed Secretary-General U Thant, according to diplomats whose governments maintain close relations with Peking.

The Chinese reportedly will give priority to the choice of a new secretary-general, who must be approved by all five permanent members of the Security Council, including China. The diplomats said the Peking regime has indicated it will oppose Jakobson, who has wide support among African and Asian as well as European nations.

Jakobson, Finland's U.N. ambassador, is one of four or five leading contenders for the job. Britain and the United States are known to favor him.

"There are a number of things the United States dislikes about Jakobson," said one source, "but they are willing to support him."

Because of Finland's delicate relations with its big Soviet neighbor, the Finnish government reportedly sounded out Moscow before putting up Jakobson for the post.

Thant, who is in a New York hospital with a bleeding ulcer, is retiring Dec. 31 after 10 years in the post.

Amerasinghe of Ceylon is regarded as the No. 2 contender. The other leading candidates are Ambassador Kurt Waldheim of Austria, former U.N. Ambassador Lij Endalkachew Makonnen of Ethiopia, now a cabinet minister, and Felipe Herrera of Chile, former president of the Inter-American Bank.

Diplomatic sources said another African, Ambassador Nsanze Terence of Burundi, plans to declare his candidacy this week, although he lacks the support of most African nations.

There has been no active campaigning for any of the candidates pending the arrival of the Chinese delegation. It left Peking Tuesday and is due in New York on Thursday.

When Jakobson first declared his candidacy, a number of Arab delegates expressed reservations because of his Jewish ancestry. But African diplomats who support the Arabs on Middle East questions say that when Finland was a member of the Security Council, Jakobson "always voted objectively" on Middle East questions.

Jakobson's supporters claim that the reason he is such a strong candidate is because he is considered forceful enough to "give a new sense of purpose and direction, and bring a new vitality to the United Nations."

A Busy Forest

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Pike National Forest, covering 1,284,710 acres north and west of here, has more than two million visitors annually and is the most heavily used of Colorado's 11 national forests.

In Pike, 300 miles of fishing streams and 800 acres of mountain lakes are open to anglers, and annually, the U.S. Forest Service estimates, 5,000 hunters enter to get a shot at 8,000 deer, 1,000 elk and 300 black bears.

Laird's first choice was Nathaniel Jones, general counsel of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, who prepared a NAACP report last year on the condition of black servicemen stationed with the Army in Europe. But Jones rejected the opportunity.

Sources said he is the likely heir to Roy Wilkins as executive director of the NAACP.

Superintendent's Vag Rap Dropped

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — A charge of vagrancy by lewdness, brought against Pampa school superintendent James Malone, has been dropped because a special federal court overturned the Texas statute as unconstitutional last July, Lubbock County Atty. Tom Purdom said.

Malone was arrested on the campus of Texas Tech Sept. 17, 1969, after a restroom incident at the administration building.

He first pleaded no contest and was assessed a $100 fine plus court costs. Later, however, he sought permission to change that plea and was granted a motion for trial.

A MEAL'S CROWN

Taste-Tempting Desserts

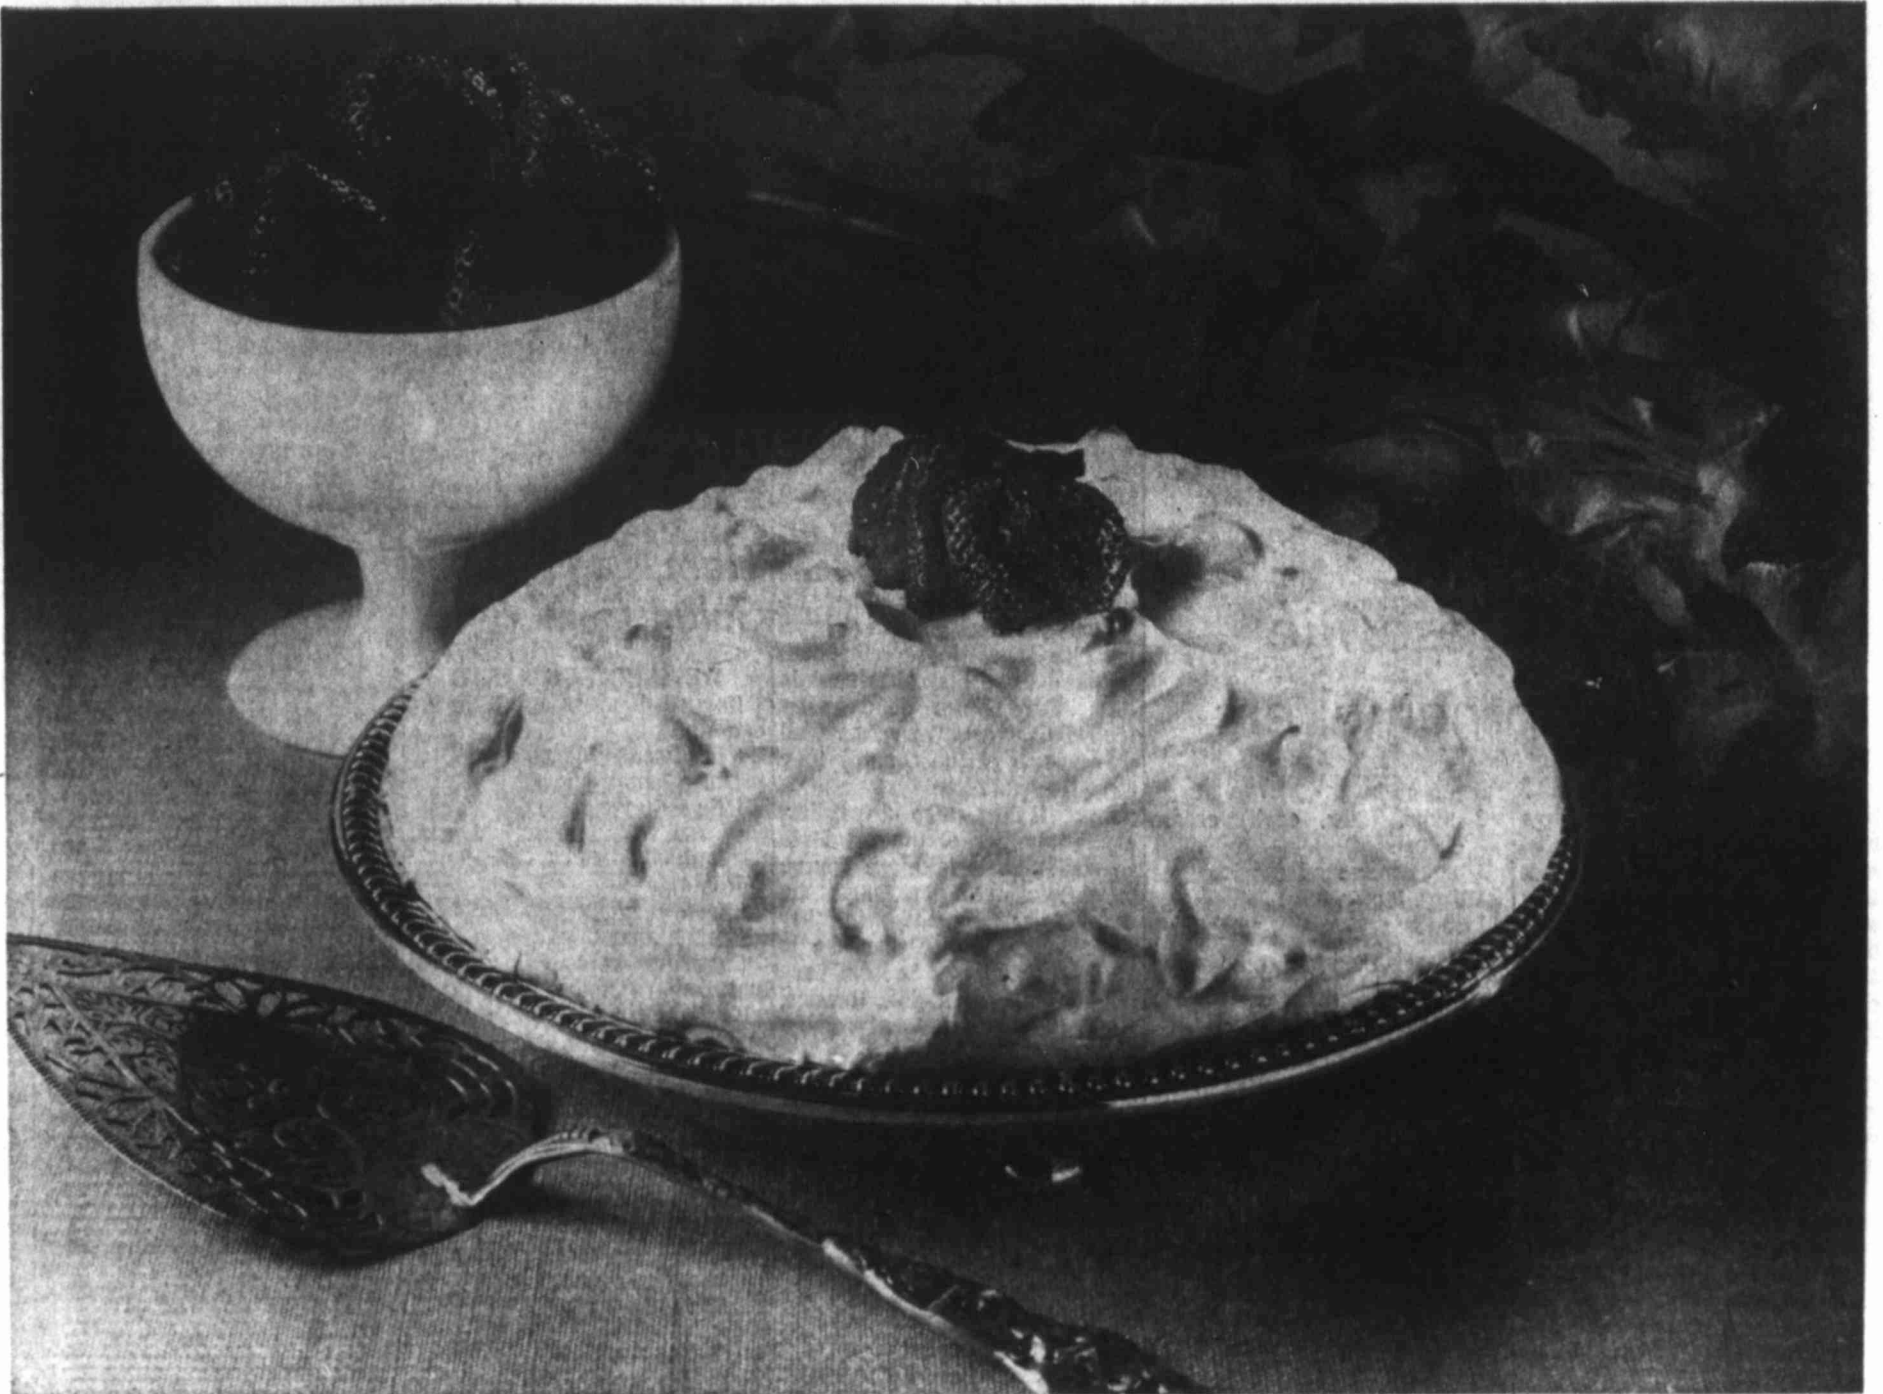

A meal without dessert is like a picnic without salt — just not quite complete. Even if the family is too stuffed full of your other delectables to want dessert immediately after the meal, chances are they will welcome it later in the evening while curled up with their homework, favorite book or television show.

Here are a few dessert treats the whole family will love. And remember too that the holiday season is approaching, when even the most calorie conscious person is allowed an occasional splurge.

PINK CLOUD ICE CREAM PIE

- ¼ cup (½ stick) butter or margarine
- ¼ cup (¼ of 8-oz. can) pure almond paste
- 2½ cups (two 3½-oz. cans) flaked coconut
- 1 (1-quart) container strawberry ice cream
- 40 regular size marshmallows
- 2 to 3 tbsps. reconstituted lemon juice
- 4 egg whites
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ tsp. salt
- 2 to 3 drops red food coloring

In small saucepan melt butter or margarine. Add almond paste stir over low heat, until paste is softened. In medium bowl combine coconut with butter-almond paste mixture; blend together thoroughly. Press mixture firmly into bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate. Freeze until firm. Fill frozen crust with ice cream. Return to freezer until ice cream is very hard. (Pie may be prepared up to this point, wrapped in foil and held in freezer for later use). In medium saucepan melt marshmallows with lemon juice over low heat; stir until smooth. Cool. In large electric mixer bowl beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in sugar and salt. Beat until stiff. Fold cooled marshmallow mixture and food coloring into meringue. Remove pie from freezer. Quickly spread meringue over ice cream; sealing carefully to edge of crust. Bake in a 450 degree oven 3 minutes or until meringue is lightly browned. Serve immediately.

WONDERFUL WORLD OF SWEETS

Here are some sweet recipes guaranteed to delight even the hard to please family. From ice cream to preserves to cottage cheese pie, there's something for everyone.

STRAWBERRY COTTAGE CHEESE PIE

- Lemon-Butter Pastry Shell
 - 1 (3 oz.) package strawberry gelatin
 - 1 cup boiling water
 - ¾ cup cold water
 - ¼ tsp. mint extract
 - 1 pint small curd creamed cottage cheese
 - 2 tbsps. sugar
 - 1 tsp. grated lemon peel
 - ½ tsp. salt
 - Fresh strawberries for garnish
 - Mint or small strawberry leaves for garnish
- Bake and cool pastry shell. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cold water and mint extract. Chill, and when mixture begins to jell, turn into baked pastry shell. Refrigerate until firm. Combine cottage cheese, sugar, lemon peel and salt. Spoon over firm gelatin and return to refrigerator an hour or longer. Garnish pie with halved strawberries and mint or strawberry leaves. Makes 6 servings.

LEMON-BUTTER PASTRY

Resift 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour into mixing bowl with ½ teaspoon salt. Cut in ½ cup shortening (using 2 tablespoons butter for part of total measure). Add 1 teaspoon lemon juice and 3 to 4 tablespoons cold milk, mixing gently until pastry gathers together. Roll out on floured board to about 10-inches diameter. Fit into 9-inch pie pan and build up a fluted edge. Carefully prick sides and bottom of shell a few times with tines of fork. Be careful not to make large holes or break pastry. Bake in a very hot oven (400 degrees) 10 to 15 minutes, until pastry is crisp and golden brown. Cool, then chill in refrigerator until ready to fill.

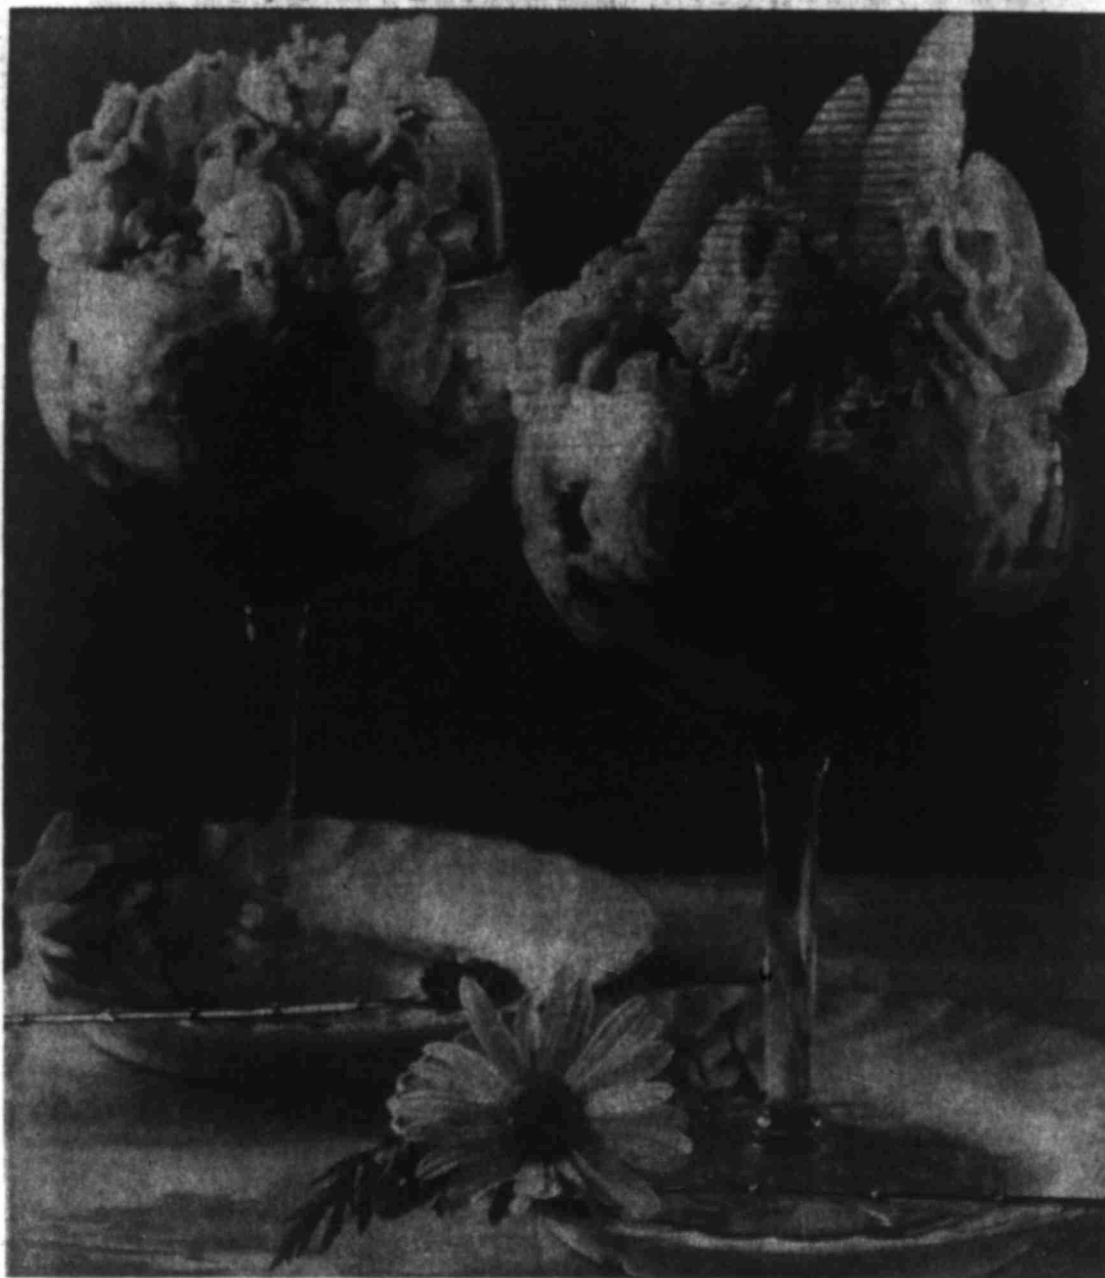

'STRAWBERRY LADY FINGER SHORTCAKE'

- 2 pints strawberries
 - ¼ cup sugar
 - 1 4¼ or 5-oz. package frozen whipped topping
 - 8 lady fingers, split
 - 4 whole strawberries
- Wash and hull strawberries. Halve 3 cups of the berries; place in a bowl. Place remaining 1 cup of berries and sugar in blender; buzz until pureed. Pour over fruit in bowl; chill well. To serve, on each plate place a scoop of whipped topping and then berries; repeat. Place 4 halves of lady fingers around dessert. Top with a dollop of whipped topping and a whole strawberry. Makes 4 servings.

COCONUT MACAROON JAM CAKE

- 1 (12 oz.) baked unfrosted pound cake
- 1 jar (12 oz.) raspberry, apricot, peach or strawberry jam or preserves (about 1 cup), or use 6 ounces each of a light and dark-colored preserve.
- ¼ cup toasted sliced almonds
- 1 can (3½ oz.) flaked coconut
- ½ cup sweetened condensed milk

Slice off top of cake to make it level, if necessary. Cut cake into 4 even layers. Place 2 stacks of 2 cake slices each on baking sheet. Put 2 slices of cake together sandwich fashion using ¼ cup preserves for filling. Repeat with second set of cake slices. Spread sides of each cake sandwich with preserves using 2 tablespoons preserves for each sandwich; cover preserves with toasted almonds. Combine coconut and condensed milk and spread mixture in 2 lengthwise strips along outer edges of each loaf. Spoon remaining preserves down center of each loaf between coconut. Bake in moderate 350 degree until coconut is lightly browned, about 12 minutes. Cool. Cut diagonally into slices. Yield: 16 slices.

SUPER SUNDAES STAR ICE CREAM, FRUIT
For colorful top to any meal

ICE CREAM PARLOR SUNDAES

- 1 (10-oz.) jar Strawberry Preserves
 - 1 (16-oz.) package frozen whole strawberries in syrup, thawed
 - 1 (1-qt.) container strawberry ice cream
 - 3 large bananas, peeled, sliced lengthwise, halved
 - ½ small fresh pineapple, peeled, sliced into 32 spears
 - ½ cup heavy cream, whipped
 - 1 (3½-oz.) can flaked coconut, toasted
- In medium saucepan, over low heat, melt strawberry preserves. Stir in strawberries. Remove from heat. Cool. Into each sundae dish, spoon 3 tablespoons strawberry sauce. Stand 2 pineapple spears and 2 banana spears to one side of dish. Place 3 scoops ice cream over sauce. Spoon strawberry sauce over all. Top with dollops of whipped cream; sprinkle with toasted coconut. Serves 6.

NO BAKING REQUIRED
Crumb shell adds taste

Delicious Cheese Pie For Busy Homemakers

Everyone loves cheesecake — but not all cooks have the time to make it. For the busy homemaker, No-Bake Cheese Pie is a boon. Its blessing is twofold: as the name implies, there's no baking involved. And to further add to its charm, the cheese-cake-like filling reposes in a mellow crumb shell.

Thanks to unflavored gelatin, there's no risk involved. Because of the presence of this reliable product, each time you make the pie it comes to the table equally fluffy. The dissolved unflavored gelatin combines with beaten cream cheese and whipped cream — to name the basic ingredients — goes into a crumb shell, and simply chills until firm. It's as easy as pie!

NO-BAKE CHEESE PIE
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 tsp. salt

1 cup milk
2 pkgs. (8-oz. each) cream cheese
1 tsp. lemon rind
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Mix together gelatin, sugar and salt in saucepan. Stir in milk. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved, about 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Cool. While mixture is cooling, prepare graham cracker crumb shell according to package directions. Then beat cream cheese, lemon rind and lemon juice together on high speed of electric mixer. Gradually beat in gelatin mixture. Chill until mixture mounds, about 15 minutes. Fold in whipped cream. Turn into crumb shell. Chill until firm. If desired, garnish with graham cracker crumbs. Yield: One 9-inch pie.

Modern Methods For Old-Fashioned Dessert

There are so many popular recipes for pudding in England that the word pudding is often used to mean dessert. They range in kind from the poor man's bread pudding to elegant Apple Charlotte which was named for the wife of King George III.

Although the colonists carried their love of baked puddings to this country, they have become less popular in recent times with the advent of canned and frozen desserts and dessert mixes. We've innovated and used some of these convenience products to produce two of the most luscious puddings to ever come out of the oven.

The first, related to Apple Charlotte, is made by lining a buttered bowl with moist slices of canned nut roll; then filling with a mixture of canned sliced apples and pitted dates. It's baked, turned out onto a serving dish and served with a sauce made from a package of vanilla pudding and pie filling.

The second pudding starts with cubes of orange pound cake made by substituting orange juice for milk in a pound cake mix. The cake cubes are layered with canned peaches, nuts and raisins; an egg milk mixture is poured over all before and during baking.

Both puddings are best served warm, but could be served cold.

APPLE PUDDING
1 (3 1/2 oz.) package vanilla pudding and pie filling
2 1/2 cups milk
1 (8 oz.) can Orange or Banana Nut Roll
1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
1/4 cup granulated sugar
1/4 tsp. ground cinnamon
1 (1-lb., 4-oz) can sliced apples
1 cup pitted dates, quartered
1 tsp. grated lemon rind

Prepare vanilla pudding and pie filling according to package directions, using 2 1/2 cups milk. Place wax paper directly on surface; chill. Cut nut roll into 9 slices. Dip in butter or margarine; then coat with combined sugar and cinnamon. Use seven slices to line bottom and sides of a 1-quart casserole. Cut up 1 slice to fill in empty spaces. Combine next three ingredients. Turn into casserole. Top with remaining nut roll slice. Bake in a preheated 400 degree oven about 25 minutes. Cool slightly; then loosen around edges and turn out on serving dish. Serve with custard sauce. Makes 6 servings of about 6 ounces pudding and 1-3 cup sauce.

PUFFY PEACH BAKE
1 (1 lb. 1 oz.) package pound cake mix
3/4 cup orange juice
4 eggs
1 (1 lb. 13 oz.) can sliced peaches, drained
1/4 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup seedless raisins
2 cups milk
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. ground mace
1/8 tsp. ground cinnamon

Prepare and bake pound cake mix according to package directions, using orange juice in place of milk and 2 eggs. Cool on rack. Cut 5 1-inch slices (use remainder of cake for another dessert). Cut slices into cubes. Layer with peaches, nuts and raisins in 2-quart casserole. Beat together remaining eggs, 1 1/4 cups milk and remaining ingredients. Pour over casserole. Bake in a preheated 350 oven for 1 to 1 1/4 hours, or until brown, adding remaining milk during baking time. Makes 8 servings.

Early Big Springers Relate Past, Present

By BARBARA LORD
Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eaker have seen Big Spring grow from a small untamed western town to the medium-sized city it is today. She moved to the area with her parents in 1903, and he came in 1905.

"It was an eerie feeling to walk down the street at night during those days," said Mrs. Eaker, "because there were board sidewalks, and it always sounded like someone was following you."

There were no paved streets in Big Spring at the time. She remembers her mother used a wood-burning stove, and recalls that when they got their first kerosene stove, it was a special occasion.

The Eakers like the modern conveniences of today, because they allow time for other interests. Water painting is a favorite pastime of both Eakers. Since his retirement in 1962, Eaker has done many scenes of West Texas, as well as of parts of the country they have traveled.

Mrs. Eaker, also a painter, has a number of other talents as well. She is taking a course in flower arranging, and the many arrangements in her home are evidence that she is a good student. Several are made with artificial flowers, and some with natural foliage of the area.

Near the top of her list of interests is Mrs. Eaker's love for cooking, although she claims her husband is the better cook of the two. Consequently, cookery is a joint effort, and the results are always good.

"I think the frozen and boxed foods today are real nice for convenience when you have to make something in a hurry," said Mrs. Eaker, "but when it comes right down to it, we still prefer to snap our own beans."

The Eakers cook as well with a camper stove at a campsite as they do at home, and they get plenty of practice at it. Eaker built a camper on their pick-up truck which comfortably accommodates the couple's sleeping needs. During the past year, they have traveled 10,000 miles and spent only one night in a motel.

"We live about the same when we are camping as we do at home," Eaker said. "We enjoy the outdoors and being able to visit friends and places around the country."

Many of the Eakers' trips are oriented to visit friends they met during a trip to Europe in 1964 when World War I veterans from almost every state and their wives, gathered

Ham, Eggs Are Salad Combo

DEVILED EGG SALAD
Deviled ham is used in the egg stuffing.

6 hard-cooked large eggs
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. mayonnaise
1/2 can (2 1/4 ounces) deviled ham
Romaine
Sliced cucumber
French dressing

Cut eggs in half lengthwise and remove yolks. Mash eggs with lemon juice, mayonnaise, mustard and ham. Arrange egg halves (3 per portion) on romaine on individual salad plates; add cucumber. Spoon French dressing over romaine and cucumber. Makes 4 servings.

for a "muster." They were the only couple from Texas who attended.

Eaker served with the Army Air Corps in France during the latter part of the war, and can still recall the joyous feeling of "hearing the last shot" fired.

Mrs. Eaker was in Stanton when the armistice was signed, but her most vivid memory is from when she was attending business college in Tyler when the first veterans returned.

"It wasn't a very big town," she said, "but everybody in it ran out to greet the men. Sweethearts and wives joined right in the parade of marching soldiers. It was a happy time. Of course, the men were pretty wild and wooly back in those days, but they've settled down now."

The Eakers married in 1945. She retired in 1969 from Texas and Pacific Railway Company where she worked for 40 years "and one day" in the clerical department. Until 1962, Eaker owned a garage where Hughes Motor Company now stands.

Besides painting, camping and flower arranging, Mrs. Eaker does china painting and makes decorative angel dolls from old magazines shaped into a cone base. She is a past president of Ladies Auxiliary to Veterans of World War I Barracks 1474, and participates in an American Association of University Women study group. She and Eaker are past patron and matron of Big Spring Chapter 67, Order of Eastern Star.

Those ruddy, crunchy, juicy, crisp and delicious apples are appearing in our markets now, harbingers of a new fall season. The red delicious apple is the perfect "fresh-use" apple, for salads, for dunking and dipping, and for the most refreshing low-calorie snacking. You'll want to use apples frequently, as their orchard-fresh flavor is especially good now, and their fragrance when cooking will naturally attract your family to the breakfast table.

And, if you need a mid-morning snack, one that's low in calories but high in satisfaction, choose a medium-size fresh apple. It will have about 80 calories and assuage that hungry feeling.

APPLE DONUT-MUFFINS
1 1/2 cups flour
1/4 tsp. salt
1 1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/4 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. ground nutmeg
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup milk
1 egg, beaten
1 apple, pared, cored and grated to measure 1/2 cup
1/2 cup butter, melted
1/2 cup sugar
2 tps. cinnamon

Sift flour with salt, baking powder, cinnamon and nutmeg; add 1/2 cup sugar. Cut in 1/2 cup butter. Add milk, egg, grated raw apple all at once to dry ingredients and mix quickly, but thoroughly. Fill 12 greased muffin cups two-thirds full. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. Remove and let cool about three or four minutes. Roll donut-muffins in 1/4 cup melted butter. Combine 1/4 cup sugar and 2 teaspoons cinnamon. Roll donut-muffins in sugar mixture. Let set for 10 minutes, then roll again in cinnamon-sugar. Yield: 12

APPLE-NUT MUFFINS
3/4 cup butter or margarine
2 tps. granulated sugar
2 tps. brown sugar
1 egg
2 cups sifted flour
4 tps. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1 cup milk
1 to 2 apples, pared, cored, finely diced to measure 1 cup
1/4 cup chopped walnuts

Cream together butter (or margarine) and sugars. Blend in egg. Sift flour with baking powder, salt and cinnamon. Stir into creamed mixture alternately with milk; fold in apples and nuts. Fill 12 medium well-greased muffin tins one-third full; sprinkle with 1 tablespoon of topping mixture and fill with remaining batter. Sprinkle with remaining topping mixture. Bake at 425 degrees about 25 minutes.

TOPPING MIXTURE
1/4 cup brown sugar
2 tps. flour
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. nutmeg
2 tps. butter or margarine, melted
Combine all ingredients and blend well.

MARGARET DANA'S Consumer's Question-Box

By MARGARET DANA
COMMENT: Instead of a question here, this is a special "alert" to the reader who wrote to me requesting 21 copies of the "Bike Book," for use by 21 Scouts in their club work. This is the booklet prepared by the National Safety Council to help all bike riders, of all ages, choose the correct type of bike for the specific rider, and to maintain it correctly, and ride it safely. This reader enclosed a check for $2.10 for the 21 booklets. By unhappy accident the check and a copy of the wrong leaflet were returned in the reader's self-addressed envelope. Will that reader please drop Margaret Dana a note, with the name and address to which to send the leaflets? My apologies and thanks.

Q. Is there available an up-to-date booklet that gives reliable information about the needs for vitamins in our foods, which foods give what vitamins and nutrients, etc.? I need a copy, if so, to help me plan the right meals for my family.

A. A new booklet, published only a few weeks ago, is called "Vitamin, Food and Your Health." It was written by Marcella Katz, who is Nutrition Director of the Health Insurance Plan of Greater New York. It describes what foods the body needs, how processing of foods affects them, how vitamins work, what advantages, if any, "natural organic foods" have, and so on. The booklet is 25 cents per copy, and it may be ordered from: Public Affairs Committee, 381 Park Ave., South, New York, N.Y. 10016.

Q. I am a teenager and we had an argument the other day among friends as to where "denim" got its name. Some said it was because it was from some foreign word meaning "tough." Since everybody is buying denim these days, could you explain what its name comes from?

A. Denim originated in France a long, long time ago. By definition it is made of all cotton, but a variety of combinations of fibers is now used. It got its name from the French factory town which produced it first — Nimes. It was called "serge de Nimes," meaning a fabric called "serge" from the town of Nimes. So, eventually "denim."

You might be interested, too, in the origin of another popular teenage and fashion fabric — corduroy. That was originally called "corde du roi" — meaning "the king's cloth." The U.S. Department of Agriculture says we have used so much cotton for these two fabrics in the past year that it took the crop from 200,000 acres to supply the extra cotton.

Q. I have an old recipe for cooking a ham and it says to soak it first overnight. This seems strange. Why should it be necessary?

A. It wouldn't be, unless you bought a "country-cured" ham. This type of ham is cured with heavy salt addition so it is recommended that it be scrubbed, then soaked overnight to remove excess salt, and then simmered 15-20 minutes per pound before being baked. This gives the authentic "country ham" taste. Watch your labeling in buying ham, however. There are different kinds of cures, some using more water than others.

Q. Will you settle a neighborhood debate for us? Should small children be allowed to ride mini-bikes, and where? Some of us think streets are not safe for children to ride on.

A. In all parts of the country the growing popularity of mini-bikes has a lot of people worried. There are about 1 1/2 million of these bikes being used by children in the country today and the accident rate is becoming serious. What parents, and all adults, should understand is that these bikes are not intended for road or sidewalk use. They are strictly recreational or "fun" bikes. Many communities have ordinances against their use except off-road.

The U.S. Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration opposes vigorously all use of mini-bikes on roads and sidewalks and is asking the help of parents to enforce and teach this rule of safe mini-bike use.

Q. I have been buying ice cream that is labeled "96 per cent fat free." Even the chocolate and chocolate marshmallow varieties are labeled this way. Yet, I know chocolate is high in calories. And what about the sugar? That adds calories, too. Isn't this misleading labeling?

A. It depends on the honesty and expertise of the company making the ice cream. Remember that fats and calories are not synonymous. By removing cream, the ice cream mix can be made 96 per cent free of fat, but may still have a high calorie count from eggs, sugar, chocolate, etc. that is included. However, by using cocoa instead of pure chocolate, fewer calories and less fat can be obtained. So even "chocolate" ice cream could be 96 per cent fat free, and still be high in calories. But are you sure it is labeled "ice cream" — and not "ice milk"?

Q. I have had it up to my ears with misleading advertising and labeling. I am enclosing a bag from which I emptied exactly 18 pieces of bite-size candy bars, with a discount label giving the "special" price as 79 cents. This makes each "bite" cost 4 1/3 cents. But how can a store call this a discount price when you can buy the five-cent bar in a package of 10 for 39 cents — or 3 1/2 cents per bar? Why is this kind of labeling allowed?

A. The candy bars that were in the package you sent me are sold by weight, not by price per bar. The bag is labeled "9 1/2 lb." for 79 cents. To compare prices correctly with the other package you must compare weights, with price per ounce. Without knowing what the other package weighs, I can't advise you but suggest you check this out carefully yourself.

(Margaret Dana welcomes opinions and questions on buying and will use them in her columns as rapidly as research and space permit. Personal answers are impossible due to large volume of mail from readers. Address Margaret Dana in care of, the Big Spring Herald.)

The next board meeting will be at 7 p.m., Dec. 6.

Legion Schedules Holiday Activities

Holiday events were planned when the American Legion Auxiliary met last week with Mrs. Ernest Grubaugh presiding.

A Christmas party for Legionnaires and their families will be held at the Legion Home Dec. 17 with a "Santa Claus" giving treats to children. The New Year's Eve party will be held at the Legion Home, and reservations must be made there. A band has been obtained for the dance, after which breakfast will be served.

Mrs. Leta Metcalf was accepted for membership, and Mrs. Farrel Felts was elected historian. Mrs. Ted Groebel Jr. was named assistant sergeant-at-arms and member-at-large of the executive board.

Miss Helen Ewing, who is in charge of the volunteer program, announced a need for two more volunteer piano teachers. Five students are now taking the free two hour lessons once a week. However, there are 13 more children who want to take lessons.

Tentative plans were made for a neighborhood Men's Game Night. It was reported that the adult sewing classes are concluding, and the center would like to offer these classes to a group of teenage girls. Dub Bryant of Bryant's Auction Company has donated two filing cabinets for the sewing patterns, as well as 200 Halloween masks to be used next year. There is still a need at the center for dominoes and card tables.

Letters of appreciation from the board and children at the center will be bound and sent to Mrs. Don Wiley, a former board member who now resides

Hairdressers Slate Installation

Family 'Movin' On?' Make It Go Easier

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States is a nation of movers, and after the peak moving months of June through September are over, more than 40 million Americans will have changed their place of residence.

Anybody who has ever moved knows what a harrowing experience it can be, but James P. Harley, who is impartial chairman of the Moving and Storage Industry of New York, says it isn't nearly so bad if a family knows what to expect.

"We have found that an informed customer, one fully prepared for his move, is far less likely to have a complaint than someone who is unaware of what moving will be like."

Harley has several tips which he says can help the prospective customer through a smooth relocation:

DO discuss with the mover the services he offers and the costs, and decide exactly what services you can afford.

DO arrange with your mover in advance for credit. Otherwise be prepared to pay immediately on completion of the move.

DO number all cartons to be moved and record the contents to simplify checking and settling in your new home.

DO ask the driver to note any damaged or lost articles on the bill so you can make a claim to the mover.

DON'T allow valuable items to be moved unless you arrange with the mover or your insurance broker for additional insurance coverage.

DO save one carton marked "load last" for essentials you will need right away in your new home.

DO attach colored marked tags to your furniture so the movers will be able to place each piece in the appropriate rooms in the new residence.

DON'T move during the summer or at the beginning or end of the month, if you can avoid it. These are the busiest times.

DO dispose of items which are not needed and which add to the cost of the move.

DO transfer to your new residence: fire and household insurance policies; telephone, gas and electric service; milk, laundry and newspaper deliveries and children's school records to their new school. Cancel telephone, gas and electric service at your old home and get final bills and refunds of deposits.

DON'T pack valuables or money with other household effects to be moved. Take them with you.

DO ask your doctors and specialists for copies of prescriptions before you move to your new residence.

DO notify the post office of your change of address. They have free cards which you can send to magazines, friends and stores.

Public Can Attend 'Fall Activity Day'

STANTON (SC) — The Martin County Fall Activity Day for the home demonstration clubs will be held Nov. 16 at the Cap Rock Electric Auditorium. The public is invited to attend, and tickets may be purchased at the door. Lunch will be served from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

A style show will follow the luncheon, and club members will serve as models.

Home baked products, as well as home preserved foods and household gifts will be for sale.

SEE CATTLE 'WORKED' Women Tour Ranch Of Lorin McDowell

Lorin McDowell III conducted a tour of his ranch and talked about ranching conditions now as compared to the 1920's (when his grandparents first came to Big Spring) for members of the 1970 Hyperion Club Tuesday.

The women saw calves being herded into pens for weaning, and later separated from their mothers, weighed and vaccinated for feed lot protection. They also saw the tack room which contains the forge and separating pens.

Mrs. McDowell read "Pioneer Days Now and Then," which was written by her husband's grandmother in 1924. It offered a personal view of how the area was when she arrived in 1886. L. S. McDowell Sr. came to Big Spring in 1883 with his brother, an ex-Texas Ranger, and they homesteaded on the land where the ranch still lies.

McDowell III also spoke about modern cattle raising and how herds are improved through performance selection. He said the quality of beef is directly related to the age of the cattle and feeding methods. He also discussed some of the farm labor problems of today.

Mrs. Robert Knight presided, and gifts were turned in for "Operation Santa Claus" at Big Spring State Hospital. The members will collect candles, tin cans, egg cartons and other items which can be used at Westside Community Center in their arts and crafts projects. They will also save and collect old sheets, pillow cases and white shirts for the American Cancer Society Service Committee to use in making bandages.

A ranch-type luncheon, including beef and beans, was served. The next meeting is at 9:30 a.m., Dec. 14 in the home of Mrs. Garland Braun, 2512 Lynn, with Mrs. Ronald Medley as cohostess.

Party Honors Bride-Elect

STANTON (SC) — Miss Darla Dowden, bride-elect of Robert Casella, both sophomores at Lubbock Christian College, was honored Saturday with a bridal gift tea in the home of Mrs. Preston Morrison.

N. Sharma Explains Palmistry

Niranjan Sharma of Midland discussed the art of palmistry for members of Potpourri Club Monday in the home of Mrs. Wesley Deats. He told briefly how the study of palms can tell fortunes and judge character. Mrs. John R. Coffee presided, and members agreed on two welfare projects. They will contribute to the fund for redecorating day rooms at Big Spring State Hospital, and will also furnish refreshments at Christmas for a unit of the hospital.

Members, their husbands and guests, attended an "after-the-game" party Friday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Coffee. Cohostesses were Mrs. Jimmy Ray Smith and Mrs. Noel Hull.

The next meeting will be a Christmas party Dec. 18, time and place to be announced.

Women Discuss Use Of Money

"Money and Tithing" were discussed by Mrs. J. W. Bryant for Lalla Baird Circle, Wesley United Methodist Church, Tuesday morning in the home of Mrs. David Pohl, 1900 Alabama.

Mrs. M. O. Hamby presided and reported that Christmas gifts were bought for patients at Big Spring State Hospital. A district leadership meeting is scheduled at 9 a.m., Wednesday at First United Methodist Church.

The circle will be host group for a covered-dish supper and installation ceremony of Women's Society of Christian Service at 7 p.m., Dec. 7 at the church. The next regular meeting is at 9:30 a.m., Tuesday in the home of Mrs. W. D. Lovelace, 2200 Carl.

ASK DR. BROTHERS

Single Young Mom: 'I Can't Stand Men'

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS
Dear Dr. Brothers: I am 19 and have a two-year-old son whom I love very much. After I married, but it was a total failure and it really turned me off men. I don't see any advantage in marriage, other than financial, and I want to be able to make my own living and have my freedom. I feel very violently about this right now; however I don't want to hurt my son. Do you think it's possible for a single woman to raise a healthy boy?—L.F.

BOYS NEED FATHERS
Dear L. F.: Ideally, every child, male and female, should have two parents, but very few things in our world are ideal and somehow we survive.

The identification with the parent of the same sex is a basic psychological process in growing up. Usually, the little boy gets from his father his sense of pride, and of being at peace with manhood.

Many little boys grow up without fathers and they may turn into healthy, well-adjusted adults. As we all know, little boys may grow up with fathers and become very unhealthy and maladjusted, so it is not simply the presence of a male that is important.

I think it is quite possible for a single woman to raise a healthy boy, but it is difficult and demands special thought. It is best if you can establish some consistent male figure in your life with whom the boy can identify and to whom he may eventually be able to take problems that might be difficult to discuss with his mother. This might be a brother of yours or a friend of the family you trust and admire.

DON'T JUDGE
You must also realize that you have apparently been emotionally torn by a bad marriage, and hopefully, your present attitude toward men will change. It is important for you to see your former husband as an individual and not to judge all men by this one.

It is imperative that you work out these hostilities and relate them specifically to your husband, for if you carry this feeling over to all males, your son will certainly be psychologically damaged by this prejudice.

Even though you are very bitter about your former husband, you must try not to pass this feeling on to your young son. After all, he is part of this man, and if you criticize him and tear him down in front of the boy, he is bound to feel that you are attacking part of him.

One of the most emotionally damaging things that can happen to children is to have parents tear each other down in front of them. Let him honor and respect the memory of his father even though you do not feel this. If you want your son to be healthy, you will avoid making any derogatory remarks about his father at any time.

BEWARE!
Mothers who raise their sons without husbands make them intensely close companions and to lavish all affection on them.

If they are lonely, they may have a tendency to share too many adult responsibilities with the child and they may sometimes treat him more like a husband than a son.

One way to avoid this is to include other boys his age in any excursions or special holidays. Help him to cultivate his own interests and hobbies, rather than just sharing yours.

If it is at all possible, it would probably be very advantageous to your son if he can see and correspond with his father when he is older. It will give him the opportunity to share some of his unresolved conflicts with him.

If this is impossible, then it is even more essential that you start building some other male to whom he can be a surrogate father.

If you cannot resolve your own antagonistic, hostile feelings toward males in the near future, you should seek professional help so that this will not jeopardize your son's welfare.

(A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

"Marriages Are Made in Subconscious, Not Heaven," is the title of an interesting leaflet by Dr. Joyce Brothers. For a copy, send 15 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Brothers in care of The Big Spring Herald.

Crayon Colors In One-Bath Homes

Geometric patterns in crayon colors appeal to all. This fresh new look in bath rugs and shower curtains is especially good for the one-bathroom family.

The new interest in geometrics and crayon drawing is leaping the general gap between juvenile and adult bathroom ensemble designs. Geometric motifs in finger painting effects and stylized patterns of flowers in bright colors are being shown.

Sweater Revival Short, Clingy

Sweaters from a few years back were long and loose. But today's sweaters are clingy and short to go with the slinky dresses and longer skirts. You can store those old sweaters in a closet until they're back in fashion or you can update them. Just cut the old sweater down to bolero length. If it's a pullover cut two seams down the front to make it into a vest.

Rainbow Girls Schedule Trip

Plans to attend a seminar Nov. 20 in Odessa were made by Big Spring Assembly, Order of Rainbow for Girls, Tuesday evening at the Masonic Temple. Pam Wheeler, Hope station, asked that all postage stamps be turned in by Saturday in order to present them at the Odessa meeting. Proceeds from selling the stamps will go to a scholarship fund for Rainbow Girls. Hosiery collected by the girls is also due to be turned in Saturday. The hose are used for various projects at Big Spring State Hospital. Members will meet at 8 a.m. Nov. 20 at the Greyhound Bus Terminal to attend the meeting. Principal speakers will be Mrs. Martha Marie Whitfield of Dallas, and Mrs. Jean Sauze of Midland. A picnic for children of the special education classes will be sponsored by the girls at 3:30 p.m., Nov. 18 at Birdwell Park. Mary Alice Terrazas presided, and Susan Smith distributed 1972 calendars which members will sell. A Thanksgiving dinner is scheduled at 5:30 p.m., Nov. 23 at the temple. Each girl is to bring a covered dish.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise: I'm a fairly new bride and just had to pass along this suggestion to you. My husband and I completely forgot that we had to buy groceries when we got back from our honeymoon. We came back very happy but also very broke. This grocery buying was something entirely new to us and we just hadn't made allowances for it with payday still a week off. We had a brand new furnished apartment and a kitchen equipped with every new gadget (all wedding gifts) that had come out on the market — everything but Food! I was telling one of the girls at work about our catastrophe and she said that they didn't have that worry. She had received a gift certificate from a supermarket as a shower gift and couldn't have been more pleased. This took care of that first week's grocery buying and they had no worries on that score. I thought this was the greatest idea I had ever heard and decided that it might help someone who is trying to decide on a shower gift for one of the favorite brides. How it would have saved the day for us! It would have been a gift we would have never forgotten, not in a million years! Since then we have learned to budget our money just a little better — believe you me, there's always money set aside for the groceries. You'll never find our cupboards bare — live and learn! . . . Bride

LETTER OF LAUGHTER Dear Heloise: I think you are the greatest thing that's happened to the young housewife since the automatic washer . . . Judi Fleming Dear Gals: Here's a handy hint on how to save your backs! Why do we struggle with a long-handled broom to get the dust up off the floor when we are holding the dustpan in one hand? Well, there is no need to. You have to stoop anyway to pick up the dust pan so why not use your whisk broom? Ooooooh, it's wonderful! And another thing is, don't put that whisk broom up separately but put the two up together so you'll be ready for the next time. I put a cup hook near the bottom of my broom handle and hang my whisk broom there. . . . Heloise

Dear Heloise: Keep the cost down — that's my motto — and I have a sneaking idea that you are just the gal who will appreciate my money-saving tidbits. When you have bras that have given their all — before you toss them in the discard pile, check those stretchy straps. See if there's still life in 'em, and if there is, give them a full pardon from life in a rag bag. They make the greatest waistband elastic for children's shorts, slacks or pajamas! And, like I told you about the cost — the money stays in your pocket. . . . Mrs. A.A. (Write Heloise in care of the Big Spring Herald.)

OES Holds Dinner At Tea Room

Past Matrons of Big Spring Chapter 67, Order of Eastern Star, met for Thanksgiving Dinner Tuesday evening at the Downtown Tea Room, with Mrs. G. C. Graves, Mrs. Carl McGlothlin and Mrs. Rogers Heley as hostesses. Tables were decorated with garlands of bronze mums, greenery and miniature turkey candles. A large basket of yellow and bronze mums centered the head table. Invocation was by Mrs. R. D. Urey.

Mrs. Orbin Dailey, vice president, presided, and members agreed to send a memorial fund to Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center in memory of Mrs. Euta Hall.

Honored for their birthdays were Mrs. Heley, Mrs. Russell Stringfellow and Mrs. George Stringfellow. Mrs. George visited to the sick. The women will meet for a Christmas party and gift exchange at 7 p.m., Dec. 14 in the Tea Room. Hostesses will be Mrs. Fred Eaker, Mrs. Raymond Dunagan and Mrs. Bair.

Gospel Contains Social Doctrine

"All doctrine is social doctrine," said Mrs. Barry Gautreaux for Immaculate Heart of Mary Mothers Club Tuesday evening in the school cafeteria. Mrs. Gautreaux showed a film relating belief in the gospel to charity, and love of God to the brotherhood of man. "Every teaching of the gospel has a social aspect," said Mrs. Gautreaux. "The crucial things of the gospel are overtly social. Social charity and justice are the badge of a Christian." Mrs. Louis Puga presided, and opening prayer was by the Rev. Louie Moeller. The club will sponsor a rummage sale from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday and Saturday in the parking lot of Spanish Inn Restaurant. The next meeting is at 7:30 p.m., Dec. 14 in the school cafeteria.

Forsanite Honored At Gift Party Saturday

FORSAN (SC) — Mrs. Archie Riffe was honored with a baby shower Saturday. Hostesses were Mrs. Bob Wash, Mrs. Dee Higley, Mrs. Brooke Jones, Mrs. T. J. Walls, Mrs. Jerry Garrett, Mrs. Elbert Strickland, Mrs. J. W. Pickett and Mrs. Don Murphy. The honoree was presented a corsage. The serving table was covered with a white linen cloth edged with gold, and centered with a blue and white bannist encircled with assorted flowers. Crystal appointments were used. Guests from Sands Springs, Coahoma and Big Spring. Mrs. Beauford Hodnett recently visited her mother, Mrs. Donald Andrews, in Odessa. D. E. Scudday has been released from a Big Spring hospital. Mrs. Dee Higley recently underwent surgery in a Big Spring hospital. The Larry Hodnetts of Odessa have been guests of the Gordon Hodnetts. Mrs. Vera Harris is visiting her daughter and family, the James Craigs of Robert Lee. Mrs. Bunk Bishop was recently released from a Big Spring hospital. Jim Miller is a patient in a Big Spring hospital. The Dave Griffiths have returned from DeLeon where they visited her sister, Lena Miller, and her brother and family, the Lester Morgans. Mrs. John Kubecka was recently dismissed from a Big Spring hospital. Guests of the C. V. Washes are Berta Shaw and Sam Arnold, both of Weatherford.

Rights, Respect

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Teen-agers have a very common problem. Will you help us, please?

I asked my very understanding grandfather why so many teen-agers hate their parents, and he said, "Probably because of the parents' snooping."

I think my grandfather is right. Lots of parents (especially mothers) open their children's mail. My grandfather says it is a federal offense to open another person's mail. Does this include teen-agers?

If kids have a legal right to such privacy, how can they enforce it?

DEAR STEVE: My legal beagle says, "It is federal offense to tamper, interfere with, or improperly obtain possession of mail addressed to another."

However, if a minor resides with his parent, the parent may (a) open the minor's mail without his consent, (b) destroy the mail of the minor without his permission, (c) instruct the postal authorities to send the minor's mail directly to the parent instead of to the minor (d) instruct the postal authorities to withhold the mail from the minor.

In plain language Steve, parents DO have a legal right to open their children's mail.

But HAVING a right, and exercising it are two different things, and since children learn from example, the best way to teach children to respect the privacy of others is to respect theirs.

DEAR ABBY: Recently at my mother-in-law's house, my child showed up anyway, were not asked me a direct question given the same cordial welcome about sex. I gave my child a as those who responded in the direct answer. My mother-in-law was horrified. She let me know in no uncertain terms that she thought the child was too young to be told. I then replied that if a child is old enough to ask the question, he's old enough to be told the answer.

My husband sides with his mother by saying, "Nobody ever told us kids anything, and we never got into trouble."

I say, it's darned lucky. What do you say?

DEAR MOTHER: I'm with you.

DEAR ABBY: We recently married off our youngest daughter at a lovely church wedding. We had a reception and sit-down dinner for 364 guests. Since this was our third wedding, and we were more experienced, we would like to tell you how we handled guests who failed to acknowledge our R.S.V.P. invitations but showed up anyway.

First, we did not telephone those who failed to acknowledge our invitation to ask, "Are you coming?"

Those who didn't respond, but showed up anyway, were not given the same cordial welcome as those who responded in the affirmative.

No last minute rushing around to set more places at the table, and no hastily scribbled place cards for them. They were treated like "drop in" guests, and had to wait until they could conveniently be served.

Care to comment?

NO ULCERS IN N.Y. If anything could cure one who ignored an R.S.V.P., but showed up anyway, this would. But too few hostesses have the courage to follow your example.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FRIENDSHIP RUINED": What did you expect? The only person lower than a woman who would live it up with her best friend's husband while she was in the hospital having a baby, is the husband who would confess to "get it off his chest."

FOR BEST RESULTS, USE THE HERALD'S WANT ADS!

BUZZ SAWYER

I WOULDN'T THINK OF INTERFERING WITH MY DAUGHTER'S WEDDING, KELLY, MY DEAR. NOW LET ME MEET THIS YOUNG MAN OF YOURS.

OKAY, THIS IS RODRIGO, DADDY.

HE'S A SMUGGLER!

DELIGHTED TO MEET A SMUGGLER OF SUCH ARISTOCRATIC LINEAGE, SEÑOR CASTILLO Y BRAGANZA...

... A NOBLEMAN! THE OWNER OF THIS MAGNIFICENT CASTLE.

HOW DID THE CAR'S LICENSE NUMBER CHECK OUT, LIZZ?

"THIS CAR BELONGED TO ANOTHER NARCOTICS AGENT NAMED JAY WALJO."

CONTACT THE STATE DIRECTOR. ASK HIM TO COME OUT HERE, PRONTO!

MARY WORTH

WELL, NOW! YOU DO EVEN MORE FOR THAT DRESS THAN I EXPECTED!... AND VICE-VERSA!

I... I'VE DECIDED TO KEEP IT, MR. PENDLETON!... AND I THANK YOU VERY MUCH!

I'VE ALSO DECIDED TO CONTINUE WORKING HERE... FOR AS LONG AS YOU WANT ME!

THAT MAY BE FOR YEARS AND YEARS, LOR!

REX MORGAN

HELLO, SCOOTER! IT'S BEEN A LONG TIME, REX... AND I'M GLAD YOU'RE HERE.

TAKING DR. LARSON'S PLACE? PERHAPS I CAN GET SOME ACTION FROM THIS STUDENT HEALTH CENTER.

I'M HERE ABOUT MY SON JUSTIN! HE'S A STUDENT AT THE UNIVERSITY AND I'M WORRIED TO DEATH ABOUT HIM!

WORRIED IN WHAT WAY?

I JUST DON'T KNOW HIM ANYMORE! HE'S HAD A COMPLETE PERSONALITY CHANGE! IN HIGH SCHOOL HE WAS AN ALL-STATE END... AND I KNOW HE COULD MAKE ALL-AMERICAN HERE AT STATE... BUT HE WON'T EVEN GO OUT FOR THE TEAM!

PERHAPS HE'S INTERESTED IN OTHER THINGS... SCOOTER?

THERE'S SOMETHING WRONG WITH HIM, REX! HE HAS THE POTENTIAL OF BEING THE GREATEST ATHLETE EVER TO COME TO THIS CAMPUS!

TERRY

AFTER DINNER AT ANDREW ARCOVE'S WEEKEND PARTY...

WHERE THE DEVIL DO YOU FIND A CHEF LIKE THAT, ANDREW?

MY LAST POST ABROAD SENATOR WILL YOU EXCUSE ME FOR A MOMENT?

I'VE MANAGED TO CHECK WITH THE OTHERS, TERRY. WE ALL THINK ALIKE. OUR HOST IS UP TO SOMETHING VERY QUIET AND VERY POLITICAL.

PEND, I'LL BE BRINGING MY GUESTS IN HERE, ONE AT A TIME, FOR A CHAT. SEE THAT THERE ARE NO INTERRUPTIONS.

KERRY DRAKE

THAT BRUISE ON MISS CULVER'S FOREHEAD! DID THE MEDICAL EXAMINER NOTICE IT?

YES, HE ASSUMED SHE FELL FORWARD WHEN SHE LOST CONSCIOUSNESS, SGT. DRAKE... AND STRUCK HER HEAD ON THE INSTRUMENT PANEL!

THAT COULD HAVE HAPPENED, BUT...

KERRY! I'VE BEEN GOING OVER THE CLOTHES MISS CULVER WORE WHEN THE BODY WAS DISCOVERED...

YES, HAPPY?

I WONDER WHY SHE WASN'T WEARING SHOES?

BEEBLE BAILEY

DON'T THROW AWAY THAT PENCIL! I USED IT ON THE SCORE CARD WHEN I BROKE 90 TODAY

I'LL GET IT BACK

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO WITH IT?

OH, I DON'T KNOW... MAYBE I'LL MOUNT IT ON SOMETHING

MORG WALKER

Unlikely Cancer

Your Good Health

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am the male but it is rare, substituting less than 1 per cent of all breast cancer cases.

When I was 14, a lump about the size of a nickel developed in both breasts. Some of my friends had the same thing. They were very sore at first but within a year the soreness subsided but the lump and swelling remained.

A general practitioner said they would probably go away when I was in my early 20s, but I am 24 now and the lumps are still there. I am worried because a lump is one of the signs of cancer. Have you any advice? Could I have the lumps removed? — J.A.

Breast cancer is possible in breast lumps that have to be identified.

Or, perhaps preferably, have the lumps removed. There would be little disfigurement, and the exact nature of the lumps could then be ascertained positively.

Several years ago I had the same experience. Those particles are worse than the "jokers" "itching powder," and they do make the skin burn.

I tried washing and rewashing, rinsing and running in the dryer. This made them even worse.

Then it occurred to me that it is static electricity in the particles that makes them cling. Fabric softener is used to take the static out of nylon, etc.

I filled the washer with clear water and added a bottle of fabric softener. It worked wonders. Don't throw things away. An inexpensive bottle of fabric softener will save the day. — L.S.

My thanks in behalf of anyone who can use this novel suggestion. At our house, after one sad experience, we learned not to wash anything else along with fiberglass fabrics.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother-in-law is in her 70s and being treated for high blood pressure. She has nose bleeds about once a month and the doctor says it is caused from the high blood pressure. She wanted me to ask if that was true. She has a soreness in her nose at the time. — C.M.

High blood pressure certainly can contribute to this trouble, but if she's still doubtful, it wouldn't be any trick to ask her doctor, next time, to see whether there is a visible ulcer or a tiny blood vessel near the surface that could be cauterized in the nose.
