Eclipse Of Moon Sunday

Should you not be able to go to sleep Saturday night, or if you are one of the all-night movie ouris, you may be able to see the total eclipse of the moon Sunday morning.

This will be your last opportunity until 1975 in the United States to view a total eclipse of the moon. There will be partial eclipses but no total eclipses before then, according to Gary Carlson, astronomy professor at Big Spring High School.

terested in Big Spring is: Moon enters umbra at 3:11 a.m.; totality begins at 4:35 a.m.; mid-eclipse at 4:53 a.m.; totality ends at 5:12 a.m.; moon leaves umbra at 6:35 a.m.

Carlson explained that umbra is the darkest portion of the earth's shadow. Totality is when all of the moon is covered with the umbra.

At mid-totality, 4:53 a.m., the moon should present an unusually vivid "diamond ring" effect.

"This eclipse is likely to be a colorful sight and well worth the effort to watch," said Carlson.

Because of the moon's path through the umbra, the color during totality should be a reddish tint. The red is caused by the bending of the long wave lengths of light by the earth's atmosphere into the umbra. This is the same effect that makes sunrises and sunsets red. Carlson said that a lunar eclipse is safe to watch with the naked eye. Sunday morning look for the eclipse high in the western sky at 3:11 a.m. and low in the west-northwest at 6:35

Filing Fees 'Crisis'

WASHINGTON (AP) - The State of Texas was left holding an unconstitutional filing fee law today after the U.S. Supreme Court refused to delay even temporarily a lower court ruling against the law.

Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell said Thursday that after consultation with the court it was decided to deny a plea to grant a stay of the order.

The denial of the requested stay leaves most Texas counties without a means to finance primary elections since filing fees are used for that

High Court Blocks Redistrict Order

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court blocked temporarily today a plan for redistricting Texas' U.S. House seats. The court acted at the re-wipe out the judicial plan. In asking for a stay, the Texas officials told Justice Lewis Powell Jr. Monday there was doubt whether elections could be held under the plan. The deadline for filing for political office in Texas is Feb. 7.

Powell, who has jurisdiction over courts in Texas, turned the plea over to the full court. The court's ruling said simply:

Panel Knocks Out Texas' 1971 House Remap System

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - A three-judge federal court today declared Texas' 1971 house redistricting plan unconstitutional and ordered a system of singlemember districts this year for Dallas and Bexar (San Antonio) counties.

The decision knocked out the reapportionment plan written by the Legislative Redistricting Board, which preserved the traditional multi-member urban districts everywhere but in Harris (Houston) County.

The court held the entire redistricting plan unconstitutional because of population variations totaling 9.9 per cent between the most and the least populous districts.

The court said the state had made no effort to justify the variations.

Single-member districts were ordered only in Dallas and Bexar counties, the court said, because evidence was presented showing the present multimember system discriminates against blacks and Mexican-Americans in those areas.

NASTY WEATHER Freezing Rain,

Fog Plague Much Of Texas

Ice storms intensified over much of Texas today as dense fog compounded the winter miseries of freezing rain, snow and bitter cold.

Some of the worst icing plagued the central part of the state around Corsicana and Ennis, putting a treacherous glaze on streets and roads. The cold front bringing the nasty weather shoved all the way past Galveston on the Upper on the Mexican border and northward across the west side of the Texas Panhandle. For a second day light snow fluttered down on parts of the Panhandle, extending southward past Childress. Freezing rain caused warnings against hazardous driving conditions in North Central and Northeast Texas. There also were moderate thunderstorms in an area embracing Brownwood, Denton, Paris, Marshall and Temple.

Texas Coast, stretching from there to Del Rio

Thick fog dropped visibility to zero in places over the Panhandle-Plains sector and far downstate along the coast, prompting further warnings to motorists.

Early morning temperatures went as low as 3 degrees above zero at Perryton in the north edge of the Panhandle, where the same mark was recorded the day before. The mercury dropped to 10 at Amarillo and Dalhart, 14 at Childress, 21 at Mineral Wells, 22 at Abilene, 25 at Dallas, 26 at Fort Worth, 27 at Lubbock and 32 at El Paso.

Readings elsewhere ranged from the high 30s into the 60s, staying as high as 65 at Alice and 66 at Corpus Christi and McAllen.

Continental Die Casting Division of the F. L. Jacobs Co. voted 128-49 for the cut Thursday because the auto-industry supplier had announced Monday that the plant would be closed permanently today, blaming large operating deficits. The company agreed salaried employes would take an equal pay cut. Prior to the cut, the average hourly rate at the plant was $3.75, according to a union official. Continental, however, agreed to pay a 15-cent hourly increase in February, 1973, and another 10-cent raise in June of 1972, the spokesman added.

Train-Car Tragedy

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP) - Four young people were killed Thursday night when their car and a Texas & Pacific Railroad train collided just outside the Midland city limits.

They are identified as Valerie Brown, 17; her sister, Rebecca, 15; Laura Van Pelt, 17, and James A. McHargue, 22, all of Midland. Investigators said the four were pitched from the car on impact and were cast beneath the iron wheels of the train. It took workers several hours to identify the mangled bodies.

An Over-Due Policy

President Nixon has announced a significant change in policy toward nations that expropriate American-owned property without adequate compensation.

The change is one in attitude which should be a warning to all nations, particularly some in Latin America, who are considering taking over American investments.

Previously, U.S. policy had been to operate on a case-by-case basis on cutting off economic aid to nations who seized property. While the Hickenlooper Amendment to the Foreign Aid Act requires that aid be cut off to expropriating nations, it actually has been involed only once, against Ceylon in the early 1960s.

Now the presumption is that all economic aid will be cut off unless the President finds that overriding national interests call for an exemption. The President has told the world that the U.S. has established a regular policy of denying

WASHINGTON - President Nixon around the globe. Although cannot cure the deficit in his budget merely by cutting expenses. His only hope is that business recovery will someday exceed current estimates so that revenue will be larger than now

THE OFFICIAL forecast of a Deficit of $38.8 billion for fiscal year 1972, which ends on June 30, is to be followed by a $25.5 billion deficit for the year ending June 30, 1973. But the administration doesn't know the extent to which employment will rise and what the increase in production will be in the country. There is no accurate way of forecasting profits. The revenue which the government gets is 18.4 per cent of the national output.

But meanwhile Mr. Nixon finds it necessary to budget big sums for certain requirements. Less will be spent on defense than on human resources, and every effort will be made to stimulate the economy to 'full employment." For this would mean a considerable rise also in income of the U.S. Treasury. The word "deficit" is a sad one. Mr. Nixon happens to be chief executive at a time when revenues from taxpayers are not keeping up with the needs of the government. EVEN THOUGH Mr. Nixon has and is allocating a larger part of the budget to human resources, it has become important to increase the dollar amount for defense. This decision was based upon an intimate knowledge of the dangers that are arising in the international situation as the Soviet Union spreads its power, Union may be planning. particularly its Naval strength,

But the President is up against an economic problem which he cannot remedy unless the business operations of the country are stimulated and thus given a chance to increase the revenues collected by the treasury.

ONE OF THE unfortunate facts of the last two years is the decline in tax receipts from corporations and from individuals. The treasury needs greater business activity in order to get more revenus.. The President cannot ignore the conditions existing in a recession period and must help stimulate employment wherever possible and thus assist indirectly to

But notwithstanding the economic dilemma within the United States, the problem in international affairs. The Union is unquestionably spreading its influence in Asia and Europe and is at the present time concentrating on the building-up of its navy. Moving day is fast approaching for me. I'll be leaving an apartment in which I've been living for nearly two years since first coming to Big Spring in June, 1970. (In February, Linda will acquire a husband - and larger apartment. - Ed)

I HAVE FOUND that the amount of junk one can accumulate in that space of time and especially with the limited apartment space I have is phenomenal. Do you want to know where you can find almost a year's worth of Redbook Magazines? My apartment, that's where. I'm an avid reader and accumulate all kinds of magazines. Unfortunately, I'm not as avid about throwing them out. I'm saving them for recipes which I'll never clip.

FURNITURE has also crept insidiously into my possession. I moved into a furnished apartment so I would not accumulate furniture that would have to be moved. Yet, since moving in, I have acquired a hassock, one large bookcase, one color television, and I brought a cedar chest with me. All this has to be carried down from a second-floor apartment.

OTHER ODDS and ends include drapes which will never fit another window or match another color scheme, a bedroom rug, a stereo and record collection and junk that sits on tables and waits to be dusted. All of these will be packed and moved, somehow, probably all in a box marked miscellaneous with everything I need immediately at the very bottom.

Assorted junk that has no classification has also accumulated, such as half-finished "hobby" projects, art supplies to delight the non-artist, a non-working typewriter and pounds of half-used stationery.

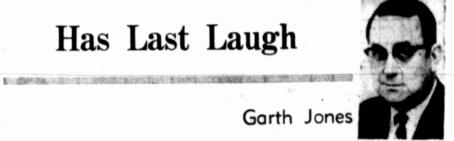

ALL OF THIS does not include a full set of stainless steel cookware, three sets of dishes, three sets of glasses and other kitchen paraphernalia. I find that I don't own my possessions, they own me, and I have to do the moving.

On moving day, I plan to set around an assortment of large boxes, fill them up and move. Anything that does not fit into the boxes will be junked. Then I will get to start a brand new collection at another apartment from which I will have to move eventually, starting the whole process over again.

WHY CAN'T people be more like turtles and snails, and take their houses with them when they move, with no packing?

Garth Jones

Martin Dies Jr. really must be having a good chuckle up the sleeve of his back judicial robes.

DIES, NOW a judge on the Beaumont Court of Civic Appeals, told the Texas Legislature and everyone more than a year ago what would happen if Texas stuck to its outmoded and unfair system of political filing

And Dies, with the backing of election experts in his Secretary of State's office and several other agencies, of suggested legislation that even now most everyone thinks would be accepted by the federal courts.

What happened? Texas senators and representatives approved instead a filing fee law that copies most of the disadvantages of the old law plus a so-called "pauper's oath."

A DALLAS federal court knocked wn the new filing fee law just as quickly as they did the old one. One judge remarked that it might take a candidate trying to file a pauper's oath more money to get the required 10 per cent of the voters on a petition than it would cost him to pay the

Gov. Preston Smith quickly reminded Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and Speaker Gus Mutscher that he had backed Dies' recommendations for reform, and the legislature had not followed his advice. It's quite likely Smith will extend his remarks on this subject into his gubernatorial campaign with Barnes.

BEFORE THE 1971 legislature began, on Dec. 10, 1970, Dies appeared before the House Interim Election Code study committee and said that the cost of primary elections should be borne by the state and counties, not the candidates.

He pointed out that filing fees paid by candidates ranged up to 30 per cent of year's salary of the job they sought, as much as $8,900 for some candidates for district judge just to get on the ballot.

Dies recommended that Texas Democrats and Republicans do their voting at the same place, using the same officials, instead of the separate polling places now used. He said Texas is the only one out of 50 that still uses two primary systems.

DIES, AND others studying the problem, said they believed the federal courts would accept "reasonable fees" of up to $500 for county officers and up to $1,000 for statewide jobs, and U.S. Senator.

Dies told the House study committee, and later told other House members and Senators the same, that unitary primary system the 1972 primary elections should not cost more than a total of $1.5 million. Each county would be expected to pay about half the cost of that county's elections with the state paying about $100 a precinct - meaning about $500,000 each. This would leave candidates to pay the remaining $500,000 from the 'reasonable fees."

THE FILING fee law passed by the 1971 legislature and struck down last week would have the candidates paying all the $1.5 million or whatever the total cost.

Now, the legislators have the whole mess in their laps again, in a crucial

Some officials think that party leaders can call on local partisans to volunteer for much of the election day duty with the remainder of the cost being squeezed or borrowed from different state slush funds.

Others, including Texas Republicans, who can't see themselves getting an even financial break, and think a quick special session on filing fees - and maybe redistricting - ville once. You stir up people's emotions, and people do things they wouldn't normally do. Is this right? Should people make a decision under stress of emotion? I wish you would explain this in one of your columns. Some of my critics criticize me for the absence of emotion in our crusades. Actually, I rake no effort to stir up people's emotions. I would consider myself a charlatan if I were to deliberately play upon human However, there is a certain amount presented with the love of God, and ere confronted with the fact they are lost without his saving grace. When we reach the point of decision and are not willing to act upon it, such an experience can be frustrating. After all, a minister of the Gospel is dealing with eternal truths, which are a matter of life and death . . . and even without manipulation there is bound to be some emotion present.

It has always been interesting to me how people allow for emotion in sports, in entertainment, and in just about every human experience, but they rebel against any kind of emotion in religious experience. If Christ is who he said he was, and I believe he is, following Him should be the most emotional and exciting thing in the world. If he gives us life everlasting, and I know he does, then we should experience the emotions of joy and gratitude. If He forgives our sins, and takes away the burden of guilt, then our hearts should well up with thanksgiving and praise.

A Devotion For Today . .

He will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths.

PRAYER: Father God, help us to walk this day with awareness of Your guidance. Grant us alert minds and loving hearts that we may be obedient to You by walking in Your ways. In Christ's name.

Altho South's leap to six hearts was somewhat impulsive, East should have been content in the knowledge that he had probably pushed his opponents beyond their liimts. Facing a partner who had taken preemptive action, the prospects for a substantial profit were meager and no action should be taken that might provide the declarer with a valuable clue in planning his campaign.

West opened the deuce of diamonds, and when the dummy was spread-East was somewhat unsettled that a high heart honor did not appear which would have assured him of scoring at least one trump trick. The four of diamonds was played from

The trick was won by North's king and the ten of hearts was led and covered by the jack and king. When West showed out, discarding a spade, East's trump holding became fatally exposed. Dummy was reentered with the king of clubs to put the seven of hearts thru-covered by the eight and nine. The ace of clubs provided access to repeat the finesse against East's queen and the latter's trump trick vanished. South drew the remaining heart and claimed his slam, having lost only one diamond.

If East had played the nine of diamonds at trick one, it would have deprived his opponent of a key entry to dummy. South can get to the North hand only twice-with the ace and king of clubs-to lead hearts. By covering each time, East assures himself of scoring a trump trick. Altho the declarer can discard one of his small diamonds on the ace of spades, he must ultimately lose a diamond also and therefore go down to defeat.

If East had quietly passed six hearts, West would probably have led the king of spades which provides South with an extra entry to dummy. It is doubtful, however, that he would have taken a first round finesse in hearts.

The more normal play is a heart to the king, for if West has either the singleton jack or queen. The North hand can be reentered later to finesse against East for the other
