

Mystery Victim

DONNA, Tex. (AP) — "We don't know much about the victim," officers said today as they investigated the shooting death of a Houston man.

The body of David Carr, 25, was found face up in a ditch south of Donna Monday in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. An autopsy showed he had been shot three times in the chest and once as officers put it "below the belt buckle."

Carr was a native of nearby Weslaco. He had been living in Houston for some time, McInnis said.

No motive has been determined and the murder weapon has not been found, McInnis said.

Odessa Firm Is Low Bidder

COAHOMA — The Coahoma Independent School District's construction program is within the money.

The apparent low bid of Basin Construction Company, 3702 Mt. Clair, Odessa, for $393,000 will leave enough margin for fees, equipment and furnishings out of the $500,000 bond issue approved by Coahoma voters.

Trustees awarded the contract to Basin, represented by Bob Snead, according to an announcement by Wendell Shive, board president. Gary & Hertz, Big Spring architects, said a work order will be issued as soon as bonds are approved, and that construction likely will start the first week in April.

Seven bids were submitted for the opening in the Coahoma High School auditorium, and they ranged up to a top of $443,717. The second low bid was that of J. W. Cooper Construction Co., Odessa, for $397,300. Kasch Bros. of Big Spring ranked fourth on a proposal of $419,000.

The major end of the work will be to replace the bulk of the junior high plant which had a portion of its roof cave in during heavy August 1971 rains.

In all, 26,300 square feet of floor space is included. This embraces a four-classroom addition to the north side of the high school; eight classrooms in the junior high section together with offices, toilets, book rooms and other auxiliary rooms, corridors, etc.

Also part of this is the remodeling of the junior high library. The remaining parts of the contract call for construction of a girls' varsity gymnasium, and a separate administration building.

'Bugs' Trap Loan Sharks

WASHINGTON (AP) Concealed recorders and wiretaps or electronic eavesdroppers are critically important in fighting the loan shark racket, the head of the Justice Department's organized crime section says.

Edward T. Joyce, acting chief of the section, told a House consumer affairs subcommittee today that enforcers generally must rely on information from a victim, who usually has been intimidated into extortion payments by threats of beating or worse.

"The victim himself may be willing to testify against his hoodlum creditor, but without corroboration such testimony is seldom trial-worthy," Joyce said in prepared testimony.

BOMB BLASTS IN BELFAST

BELFAST (AP) — Two 100-pound bombs exploded in downtown Londonderry today, but the toll was only a fraction of that caused by one 100-pounder in a Belfast street Monday.

Police in Londonderry said they were warned in time to herd people away, but the blasts caused serious damage to buildings.

Eight persons were treated for minor injuries and shock after the two bombs exploded in parked automobiles a few minutes apart. A third smaller bomb exploded in a parcel left in a railroad station.

The Irish Republican Army killed another British soldier in Londonderry during the night, and another bomb exploded in County Down early today.

Muskie Test In Illinois Tiff

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine battles two Democratic rivals in dual Illinois presidential primary contests today, seeking a boost for his shaken White House campaign in the crowded elections ahead.

Two million Illinois voters were expected to cast ballots, well over half of them in the Democratic primary.

The primary matched Muskie and former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota in a presidential preference poll, and Muskie, Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota and an uncommitted slate of candidates in a contest for 160 of the 170 Illinois delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

NOT BINDING

At least half the delegates, and probably more, are expected to be chosen uncommitted to any candidate, but set to follow the lead of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Muskie is expected to win easily in the preferential contest, which is not binding, and to capture more delegates than McGovern.

The question is one of margins, and Muskie needs big ones to regain the campaign momentum he lost in the first two primaries—New Hampshire, where he won with 46.4 per cent of the vote, and Florida, where he ran a fourth with 9 per cent.

65 PER CENT GOAL

In the Democratic preference race, the stakes were only psychological. McCarthy said he expected to get at least 30 per cent of the vote. "Anybody ought to get 30 per cent," he said on election eve.

Muskie managers aimed for at least a 65 per cent showing against what they considered a McCarthy-McGovern tandem in the preferential and delegate contests.

A big two-way showing in Illinois would give Muskie a badly needed lift as he heads into Wisconsin for an April 4 primary that matches the entire Democratic field, with 12 candidates on the ballot.

Nobody appears to have found a national issue to turn on the Democrats in Illinois. In Ottawa Monday, Muskie sounded the national unity theme he has stressed throughout his campaign.

"We must find what will unite us and get us moving in the same direction," he said. "That is the main challenge of this campaign."

TENNESSEE BARRIER

One-Year Residence Rule For Voting Struck Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — On a 6 to 1-vote the Supreme Court today struck down Tennessee's one-year residence requirement for voting in state and congressional elections.

The court, in an opinion delivered by Justice Thurgood Marshall, said the one-year barrier did not serve a "compelling" interest of the state and interfered with the right of citizens to travel and take up homes in new states.

VIOLATION

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger stood alone in dissent. He disputed that it is a violation of the Constitution "to require newcomers to be exposed to state and local problems for a reasonable period such as one year before voting."

In other actions today, the court:

—Refused to overturn the murder conviction of a Florida man even though it said the lower court erred in trying the case. It said the evidence was so overwhelming that any error caused by the admission of a statement by a non-testifying codefendant was harmless.

—Ruled that the Internal Revenue Service cannot tax banks for insurance commissions they are entitled to receive under insurance practices but cannot receive because of federal banking laws.

Marshall's opinion did not state flatly how long a state can require a new resident to wait before voting there, but he suggested 30 days might be proper. "Fixing a constitutionally acceptable period is surely a matter of degree," he said.

Currently, 33 states and the District of Columbia employ a one-year residence rule. Another 15 states require six months. One state has a three-month rule and the fiftieth, 90 days.

Among others, the one-year residence laws of the District, Virginia, and Tennessee, before the Supreme Court acted, have been declared unconstitutional by federal district courts.

The ruling extends a string of major voting decisions by the Supreme Court over the last decade, beginning with the declaration that the states are compelled by the Fourteenth Amendment to see that citizens' votes count equally. This one-man, one-vote declaration has led to reapportionment in all 50 states. Fifteen months ago, in another major move, the court upheld the 1970 law that gave 18-year-olds the right to vote for President and members of Congress.

The Tennessee law required voters to have lived in the state for 12 months and in the county for three months prior to election day.

It was challenged by James Blumstein, a young law professor at Vanderbilt University who was barred from voting in 1970 since he had gone to Tennessee in mid-June, only five months before the election.

Marshall's opinion seemed broad enough to be applied to all durational resident laws in all the states. They are now likely to fall like a row of ducks.

Bob Butler Named Purchasing Agent

A new purchasing agent for the city of Big Spring has been named by City Manager Harry Nagel. Bob Butler officially assumed the duties of the new position Monday.

Butler, a retired Air Force sergeant, will be heading up the newly created department, which was formed with the help of federal funds.

Authorization for the creation of the department was given by the city commission approximately a month ago, when Nagel told city fathers that 90 per cent of the expense in setting up the department and position would be paid by the federal government, through the Permian Basin Planning Council.

"We are taking advantage of the federal funds to initiate the new position, which will bring all the purchasing procedures of every department of the city under one head and department," Nagel said Monday.

Nagel said he felt formation of the new position will make the city's purchasing more efficient.

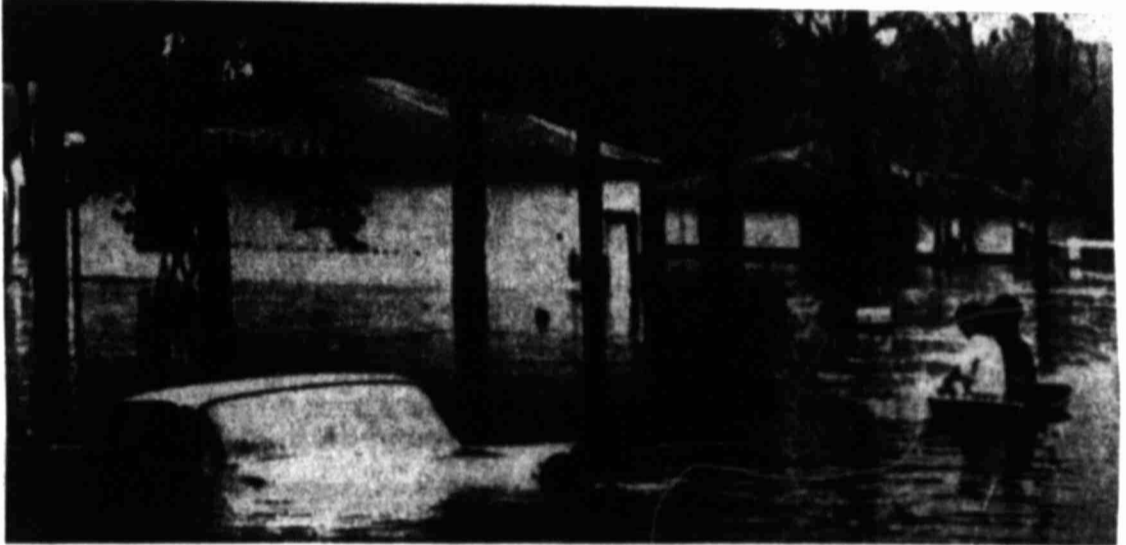

Butler has been retired from the Air Force for approximately one year. After leaving the Air Force, Butler worked for a time in the local insurance business, going then to retail clothing business.

"I feel this will be the job I have been looking for. I handled most of the purchasing procedures for the NCO Clubs in the Air Force, so I know quite a bit about purchasing," said Butler today. During his years with the Air Force, Butler was a club manager.

Also since leaving the Air Force, Butler has become active in civic affairs. He is presently the chairman of the Pride People's Committee, which is a Chamber of Commerce activity.

RESCUED — A man carries a woman, top photo, from her flooded-out car Monday evening as thunderstorms dumped some seven inches of rain on the Houston area. The heavy rains caused a lot of street flooding and some of the bayous to leave their banks, flooding some homes.

Gagged Woman Gunned To Death

DALLAS (AP) — Mrs. Arnold Henson, 19, was found bound, gagged and shot to death in her one bedroom home Monday night.

Investigators said the woman's body, clad in a red bathrobe, was sprawled across a bed, a single bullet wound in the head. It was not at once determined if the young woman had been raped.

TORNADOES

7.47-Inch Rain Soaks Houston

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms ended the first day of spring with flooding rains, occasional tornadoes and assorted other weather violence at a wide area of Texas.

In Houston, hit by a 7.47-inch deluge, state police reported water rising three to five feet deep drove 450 persons from low areas today.

Although one twister unroofed five houses in Fort Bend County and wrecked a small farm house near Wharton, there was no word of injuries.

Galveston and Chambers counties stayed under a tornado warning past midnight and a number of other counties were kept under tornado or severe thunderstorm watches into early morning.

VIOLENT WINDS

Authorities reported at least five twisters touched ground in Harris, Fort Bend, Matagorda, Colorado and Wharton counties, inflicting assorted damage.

Violent winds tore up several storage sheds at a Houston lumber yard and a tornado dipping into the north part of the city damaged two buildings.

Near Iago, six miles south of Wharton, another tornado shattered the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. See, and still others bashed a trailer house at Cleenville in Matagorda County and two homes and a garage 11 miles east of Columbus in Colorado County.

Deadline Nearing For Tag Purchase

Vehicle owners have only eight days remaining in which to purchase 1972 license plates in compliance with state vehicle registration laws. Midnight Saturday, April 1, is the deadline for displaying the new tags.

Last minute tag purchasers may find themselves somewhat thwarted. Saturday, April 1, the tax assessor-collector's office will be closed, and no tags sold. Automobile license plates may be purchased that Saturday at Newsom's Grocery, but Webb AFB Federal Credit Union, the other substitution for license tag sales, will be closed.

To date, $303,002.45 in license sales fees has been collected. The 1971 total for February and March sales was $498,611.81. Mrs. Zirah L. Bednar, tax assessor-collector, is urging that everyone who has not yet purchased 1972 plates do so as soon as possible to avoid a last minute rush Friday, March 31.

Voter Registration

BOB BUTLER

Butler has also been active in recent political campaigns in the city.

"I don't think my involvement with civic activities will conflict with my job with the city," Butler said today.

The new purchasing agent will be working in conjunction with the finance office, headed by Rogers Namby, city finance officer.

For several weeks, city officials have been working on the formation of a complete voucher system and vendor file. All city bid letting, buying and paying will be done through the new purchasing department.

Startling Statistics

The latest Roper Poll reports some surprisingly liberal views in the American public on basic moral values.

The poll also notes a strong tendency toward political conservatism which we mention in passing while directing the principle emphasis to the moral questions. The poll sampled some 1,500 persons.

On the political side, 41 per cent of adult Americans described themselves as conservatives, 24 per cent liberal, and 27 per cent middle-of-the-road.

Not only did the liberals score far behind conservatives, but it is worth noting that they also were outmatched by those who described themselves as middle-of-the-road. Roper said the only groups where there were more liberals than conservatives were among the young, the poor and Negroes.

In the morals area, nearly half those interviewed accepted this statement:

"The institution of marriage and the family as we have known it is becoming outmoded." Forty-six per cent agreed; 45 per cent disagreed.

The Roper Report said of this finding:

"This may indicate a widespread desire to redefine marriage and family relationships or may simply reflect an observed erosion of marital and family ties. Either way, if marriage is under question, there can be little else in our society still taken for granted."

Just a bit less startling is the statistic that 30 per cent agreed with this statement:

"There's no reason why single women shouldn't have children and raise them if they want to."

For a long time we have not accepted various polls as holy writ, but even with their occasional aberrations, the polls often are pretty accurate reflections of public opinion.

If this is true in this instance, there is cause for much more than casual concern.

The home and family are the basic element of American society. Sure, some marriages have foundered even from the republic's early days. But marriage, the home and family give order, stability, dignity and wholesomeness to American life. A deterioration of this ethic inevitably would weaken the nation's fabric.

Precarious Precedent

Precedent is a potent force in law and that is why the contempt citation against a newspaper editor in Texarkana should be challenged.

Judge John W. Goodson cited Harry W. Wood of the Texarkana Gazette for contempt. Wood declined to follow the judge's order to delay publication of a jury verdict announced in open court in Texarkana. The judge's position is that a fair trial takes precedence over a free press, at least in the instance he cited.

There is really no demonstrable conflict between the First (free press) and Sixth (fair trial) Amendments. The conflict is presumed on the assumption that a jury cannot overcome the influence of something it has read or heard. There has been some interesting research to the contrary.

The whole concept of public trials — which the Constitution provides — is to insure a defendant's rights by making the proceeding public. Keeping the proceeding public is important enough to encourage resistance to any encroachment upon that concept.

While the Sixth Amendment aims at preventing star chamber sessions to the detriment of a defendant, the public benefit shouldn't be overlooked, either. The public benefit is to see that the courts work and that justice is sought. Public reaction to the quality of justice is essential to improvements — which are needed in several areas.

We can appreciate the court's reasons, but the court had the power to delay receipt of the verdict if it feared it would affect the jurors in a companion trial in progress. (It didn't. Defense attorneys filed motions claiming prejudicial publicity, which the court denied. There was a mistrial, but from other causes.)

Look At Races

Around The Rim

Jo Bright

George Washington was elected first president in 1789, and the presidential election process is about to be repeated for the 47th time in the United States. Also to be chosen: 33 senators, 435 representatives, 18 governors, plus countless mayors, local and county officials, selectmen, councilmen, members of school boards, judges, commissioners, health and safety administrators, etc.

For your convenience, "Changing Times" provides a political almanac.

THE ISSUES: Pocketbook worries, government spending, minority concerns, foreign problems, help for states and cities, crime in the streets. Plus Nixon's record to date.

THE CONVENTIONS: Democrats in Miami July 10, with plenty of fireworks expected, beginning with demand for recognition by competing blocs of delegates from the same state. Republicans in San Diego Aug. 21 (easy access from Nixon's place in San Clemente). No fireworks — just good fellowship and mutual back-scratching. Note: TV coverage will be much less than it was last time since both voters and broadcasters seem to favor cutting back.

THE VOTERS: Greatest unpredictables will be the new and young voters (under 25), about 25,000,000 all told. So far, their mood is more liberal than conservative — about 2 to 1.

Elder citizens, over 65, also may show more political left than usual and are prone to wait and see who promises the most for them.

ONE FACT TO REMEMBER: All eligibles will total about 140,000,000 voters this time, but based on the last three elections, almost 40 per cent won't go to the polls. Votes of probably fewer than 90,000,000 will decide the outcome.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

I must know the answer to this question: is it permissible to remarry after divorce, if you are the innocent party? I was deserted by my husband, and I have three children. A Christian man wants to marry me and be a father to my children. I must have an answer at once.

A.F. This is a complex question, and we have dealt with it many times in this column. In fact, this question is asked more than any other in the mail we receive.

Perhaps we can clear the air once and for all on this subject.

Some students of the Bible accept Paul's words as final: "So, then if when her husband liveth she be married to another, she shall be called an adulteress." Romans 7:2-3. But, there are other Scriptures which must be harmonized with this. Remember, Paul was not writing about marriage and divorce PER SE. The normal marriage state was used by Paul to show how we are freed from the law. He concluded by saying, "Wherefore ye are become dead to the law . . . that ye should be married to another even to him that is raised from the dead."

Romans 7:4. Divorce was not under consideration in this passage. When Jesus said: "Whoever shall put away his wife let him give her a writing of divorcement. Matthew 5:31. And He proceeded to give the one cause of divorce, fornication. But, He left the matter of remarriage for the innocent party unanswered. But, from the Scripture He quoted, we read: "And when she is departed out of his house, she may go and be another man's wife." So, there you have, not my idea, but the Scriptures. This is on the assumption that she has Scriptural grounds.

How Can He Be Ignored?

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Everyone is concerned about the consumer today because the consumer has his hand in everything—and is, quite literally, forcing institutions to conform to his wishes. How can he be ignored?

Complaining to retailers, suggesting legislation to his congressman, boycotting products, contributing to groups that expose deceit in merchandising, and simply by turning his neighbor's mind, he translates anger into power.

Speaking at the Conference Board this week, Herbert Brunn, vice president-consumer affairs of RCA Corp., provided an insight into this phenomenon from the corporate viewpoint.

Last year, said Brunn, his consumer relations department logged 21,500 written or telephoned "contacts." About 85 per cent of these were simple inquiries, such as "where can I get service?"

The complaint areas constituted only 15 per cent or 3,400 contacts, "such a small percentage of people who have our products, or use our services, that it is almost unmeasurable on a percentage basis."

But then this statistical flyspeck multiplies into a sizable blizzard. The people who take the trouble to contact you, said Brunn, represent a small number of your unhappy customers. The tiny figure is only a symbol.

The impact on the seemingly invulnerable corporation continues to rise if each unhappy customer influences two or three new buyers. "Your dissatisfaction index goes up very fast while your sales index moves in the other direction," Brunn noted.

But often there is still another escalation when the elected official or the one seeking office enters the picture and politicizes the problem either for selfish or altruistic ends.

Politicians are intuitively alert to such trends, said Brunn, who referred not just to product and service problems, but to a broad area of criticism of the business community for its alleged failure to respond.

The end result often is legislation or governmental pressure on industry, sometimes even after it has corrected the defect in its product or service or in its other relations with society.

Brunn notes a distinction between the old laws and the new ones that can have a profound effect on the climate in which business operates.

"More laws will be passed directed not to inducements to change business practices," he said, "but rather to penalties for failure to do so."

Sensitive Issue

David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Congress is somewhat stunned by the outcome of the Florida primary — not because George Wallace of Alabama got such a high percentage of the vote in the Democratic party but because of the extensive anti-busing sentiment that was revealed in a statewide referendum on the subject.

GOV. WALLACE was outspoken on the issue and led all the Democratic contenders with 42 per cent of the vote, while Sen. Humphrey of Minnesota was second with 18 per cent, and Sen. Jackson was third with 13 per cent. The surprise was that Sen. Muskie of Maine got only 9 per cent. Other candidates — Mayor Lindsay, Sen. McGovern, Rep. Chisholm and Sen. McCarthy — each received less than 8 per cent.

On the Republican side, President Nixon got 87 per cent of the vote. Ashbrook, who was second, got 9 per cent and Rep. McCloskey 4 per cent.

There is no doubt that Gov. Wallace spoke a good deal against busing to gather votes in large numbers, and he actually wound up with approximately 516,000 out of a total of about 1,425,000 ballots cast. The Republican vote was small — only around 410,000 — as it doubtless was taken for granted by many voters that Mr. Nixon would win approval.

THE TALK TODAY, however, is not so much about who won the primary as about the full impact of the Florida contest on the rest of the country. The "straw" ballot in Florida Tuesday showed the voters overwhelmingly in favor of a constitutional amendment to ban forced busing and even more strongly endorsing equal opportunity for quality education for all children regardless of race.

Members of Congress recognize that the busing issue has aroused the people. Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic leader, has called on President Nixon to expedite his report on the busing question. The President had been working on his policy statement for some time but its publication was deferred until after the Florida primary.

IN A SENSE, the Florida voters have said that, while they are against enforced busing to correct "racial imbalance," they recognize that not all schools provide a quality education and that transferring students from one district to another often attains the objective of better education.

The administration now seeks to eliminate the whole question of busing and concentrates on supplying funds to the states to improve education, particularly in the city schools, so that the same quality would be available as in the suburbs or other areas. It is a matter, therefore, of devoting money to better schools rather than to transportation.

IN THE NORTH the situation needs attention, too. There are some city schools which will require betterment of facilities as well as more educational aids. If the whole controversy could be focused on the ways of dealing with the quality of education, large-scale busing in any section of the country could cease to be a problem.

GOV. WALLACE'S victory in Florida was not unexpected, but the Democratic party, with its big number of candidates, has by no means yet decided who its nominee will be.

Hal Boyle

R. "MOP" ROSENBLUM (Substituting for Hal Boyle)

SINGAPORE (AP) — When an international newscaster referred to a Malaysian spokesman as "Mr. Inch," five million "Inches" in Malaysia tittered "in merriment for the rest of the week."

It was even funnier when at Bangkok airport, in neighboring Thailand, someone gave for "Mr. Tan Sri."

"Inch" means "Mister" and "Tan Sri" is an honorary title from the King in Malaysia. Both cases point out sharply that in Southeast Asia, there's plenty in a name.

For Malays, the name system is eminently useful. For example, if a man is named Dato Abdul Ibrahim bin Dato Haji Ishak, you immediately know: A man named Ishak went to Mecca and received honors from his sultan. He had a son named Abdul Ibrahim who was also royally feted but who wasn't yet made the pilgrim.

But for foreigners, it's mind-blowing. Take Inche Mohammed Ismail bin Haji Ibrahim. He's Inche Ismail, Mr. Ismail or Ismail. You don't throw a dart and choose, you look for the name before the "bin," which means "son of."

If there's no "bin," it's a matter of deciding by placement. And you must always use the Datos, Tan Sris and Tuns which are knight-like titles, and, most certainly, the Tunikus and Tanukus which are royal.

In Thailand, someone might be named Surin Ruandej. Like the Malays, his real name comes first: Surin. But unlike the Malays, his last name isn't his father's name—it doesn't mean anything.

A past king ordered Thais to have last names, and they simply picked at random. They took their village name, a name from a book or just a meandering collection of unpronounceable letters.

Indians in Southeast Asia, as in India, frequently use the names of gods. You don't call Hari Subramaniam either Hari or Mr. Subramaniam. You call him Maniam.

The Philippines offer some of the most colorful names. Spanish colonizers insisted all inhabitants take a Spanish-sounding surname. Villages were given a letter of the alphabet to choose from.

There are still settlements of Valencians, Valdezes, Villalobos and Valenzuelas.

Traditional Chinese names have suffered a bit in Southeast Asia. Classically, the surname comes first with two pre-noms following. Hence, Mr. Lee How Fook is Mr. Lee.

But what about Robert Tan Chin Khoon? He's still Mr. Tan, but he's either Robert or Chin Khoon, depending upon whether he's talking to you or to his grandmother. Actually, to his grandma, he's probably "Ah Chin."

Filipino Chinese mix the Spanish past with their own ancestry and come up with names like Jesus Tan-Jess to his friends.

And, when you've really got the system down, you can try Vietnam, where the surname comes first or last, depending upon your latitude, and there are more "Ngyuens" than Smiths in New York.

Ubiquitous Gift

William F. Buckley Jr.

A report has been broadcast about my behavior in China, which I hasten to explain, having only just now got wind of it from a correspondent who reproaches me for my "bad manners." And well might she have done so if the facts were as she understood them.

A DAY OR SO before leaving Peking (for other parts of China), members of the press were informed that a gift from the government of China awaited each one of us in the White House press office. Thither I repaired in due course to find one half of the room taken up with what looked like huge individual picnic boxes. I was handed mine, opened it, and examined two pretty, large, Chinese-style vases, made out of metal, and packed in a box approximately the size of Webster's Third Unabridged Dictionary. We were permitted, in China, a single suitcase, plus whatever you could carry on your person. One suitcase is not a lot of space, when you allow e.g. for all the medicines your wife has provided you after extracting a pledge that you will not under any circumstance submit to acupuncture. Mine was so tightly packed that I had to have help in zipping it shut.

THE VASES would not have had a chance of making their way into my suitcase, and I would not have been able to wobble out of the hotel if I had had one extra large package to handle. So . . . I endeavored to "lose" my gift, and precisely the point I want to make is that I went to extraordinary lengths not to hurt the feelings of my hosts. I therefore checked the package in the hotel baggage room, and left the red plastic check in my shirt, intending there to forget it forever. No such luck. The next day a Chinese official from the hotel presented me with the red check, salvaged from the laundry. So I put the check in my overcoat pocket and forgot about it.

At 30 minutes past midnight, in the press bus headed for the airport, a greatly disturbed Chinese found me in the dark surrounded by my paraphernalia, and advised me excitedly that I had neglected to reclaim a package from the baggage room. How he, or anyone else, knew that the package belonged to me I cannot fathom, having stripped the box of the little card designating it as mine.

Can't Decide

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

SCHOOL SUM-UP: (Q.) I don't agree with your answer to the girl who said she hated school. I have just finished high school. You should visit one for a week. No matter what you do, if the teacher doesn't like it, he yells at you. Then the teachers send you to the principal. The principal sides with the teacher. The teacher is always right.

The kids in my class were awful to me. They teased me, called me names, and tried to get me into trouble. I had no one to talk to — no friends. The counselors were too busy with the honor students to talk to me.

I stayed home as much as possible. Going to school made me feel inferior. The only thing the kids at my school learned was to lie, steal, cheat and make other people miserable.

I didn't learn to read, write or spell. That is what is wrong with schools now. They spend too much time on extra activities — not on what they should be doing. The homework is mostly busy work.

I thank God I am out of school. But I don't have a job and can't get one. I wish I could. — A Girl Graduate

In Pennsylvania. (A.) Your letter tells me two things. First is a fact that stands out strongly in letters I get from all over the country. We have too little concern and respect for each other.

This seems to be too true too often, not only of teachers and students, but of other people of all kinds and ages. Until we wake up and start respecting each other and being concerned with each other, we are going to keep on being in trouble.

The second thing your letter tells me is that in the basics you did not get a hopeless education. You did misspell a few words (they have been corrected). But your grammar is good and so is your typing.

Most important, your letter shows you have learned how to think, and to say simply, clearly and forcefully what you think. That is a lot. It is something you can build upon. I hope you will build positively rather than negatively.

Could Put Amtrak Out Of Business

WASHINGTON (AP)—Amtrak, the national railroad passenger corporation, said today new rail service regulations proposed by the Interstate Commerce Commission are impractical and unbearably expensive. "The cumulative impact of the proposed regulations if adopted substantially in their present form could put Amtrak out of business and bring an end to intercity rail passenger service," the corporation said in a brief to the ICC. One of the proposed requirements is that when rail lines converge to form a reasonably direct route between points, all trains must make a daylight connection with a wait of not more than six hours or a nighttime connection to a through car. "It is literally impossible to comply with this requirement with present equipment and route structure," the brief said. "Even if funds were available for massive numbers of new trains to achieve mathematical compliance, the trains would be running on schedules completely out of phase with the requirements of primary markets, causing massive revenue loss. Similarly, the proposal to require Amtrak to maintain sufficient cars to meet periods would impose costs far beyond Amtrak's resources and beyond any appropriation Congress can reasonably be expected to provide. The ICC also proposed to require Amtrak to hold all confirmed reservations until 30 minutes before trains leave. The corporation said this requirement, while reasonable in some circumstances, "would make an absolute reservation system on certain high-demand routes."

Verbal BroadSides Fired Over Texas

By The Associated Press

Nearly as many different campaign topics as there are candidates for governor cropped up in the latest verbal broadsides fired over Texas. And contenders for the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator chipped in with still others. State Rep. Frances Farenthold of Corpus Christi, one of the Democrats who wants to be nominated for governor in the May 6 primary election, appealed in a speech at North Texas State University for young people to join what she described as her "band of insurgents."

NEW MUSCLES Urging a group of students to flex their new muscles as voters, she endorsed a corporate profit tax, relaxation of marijuana laws, equal rights for women and bilingual education for Mexican-American and Anglo children. She said she's backing Sen. George McGovern for president.

After observing that she had been labeled a liberal, Mrs. Farenthold told her audience, "Let's throw away the idea that a liberal will lose and pick up the banner that insurgents will win!"

Gov. Ben Barnes, another Democrat seeking to unseat Gov. Preston Smith, asserted at Houston that if elected he'll veto every bill the legislature passes until it changes its rules to keep conference committees from adding new parts to differing bills approved by the House and Senate.

Referring to the five conferees from each chamber who adjust conflicts in bills covering the same subject, Barnes told students at the University of Houston, "We've got government by 10 people."

RUNNING THIRD The lieutenant governor said legislators can vote only yes or no when an amended bill is returned to them from conference, adding that this system "increases the lobbies' influence and the influence of the presiding officers of both houses, who appoint conference committees." Gov. Smith, in talking to newsmen in Dallas, said he wasn't disturbed by polls showing he is running third in his race for renomination, observing, "You know I've never run very well in the polls. My own surveys show I'm doing fine."

pected no effects on his candidacy from the bribery conspiracy conviction of House Speaker Gus Mutscher. Smith said his candidacy is based on a record of opposition to school busing, a state income tax, to a sales tax on food and medicine and to higher taxes on gasoline, plus support for expanding the University of Texas system and the state's medical schools.

Rancher Dolph Briscoe of Uvalde, another Democrat in the governor's race, told reporters at Bryan that bank deposit insurance bills sought by Houston promoter Frank Sharp were hustled through the Senate in 1969 just as they were in the House—a direct reference to the fact that Barnes was presiding over the Senate then. "They received the same favored treatment in the Senate, with the lieutenant governor easing them along, as they did in the House," Briscoe said. Another Democrat bidding for the Senate nomination, Thomas M. Cartledge, disclosed today plans for a 300-mile hike from Denison to San Antonio as a means of dramatizing his candidacy.

Cartledge said he will start from the Dwight Eisenhower birthplace at Denison and finish at the Alamo in San Antonio. He hopes to demonstrate, he said, that an honest man who, like Eisenhower, isn't a millionaire and hasn't sold out to powerful interest groups, can be elected to major office.

HEAD LABELS PRICE

'Water Boy' On Speaker Gus Mutscher's Team

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Rep. Fred Head of Troup asserted here that Rep. Rayford Price has been a first stringer, beach warmer and water boy" on Speaker Gus Mutscher's team.

Price, of Palestine, and Head are opponents both for re-election from an East Texas district and for speaker of the 1973 house. Representatives elect the speaker.

Mutscher was convicted March 15 of conspiracy to accept a bribe from Houston promoter Frank Sharp. Head said Price's record belies his statements that he favors reform of the legislature.

"Time after time in the last session of the legislature in 1971, reform measures were brought before the house for consideration, and time after time Rayford Price voted against these reforms and for Gus Mutscher and the special interest lobbyists who are furnishing the $50,000 which he said recently it will cost him to run for speaker," Head said. "His efforts to say that he is not in any way obligated to these men who furnished the $50,000 is utterly ridiculous," he said. Head asserted that while he voted for a full legislative investigation of the Texas stock scandal, Price voted against it.

In reply, Price said he did vote for the creation of the House General Investigating Committee to look into the affair and for a companion probe made by the Attorney General's office.

He also said Price voted Jan. 20 against limiting the power of legislative conference committees to write bills any way they choose instead of merely seeking compromises between house and senate viewpoints.

"Rayford Price now has the gall to state publicly that he is for limiting conference committees and for a seniority system. He is either lying now or he had very little courage and judgment when he voted against both of these vital matters a short while ago," Head said. Price, he said, "has been one of House Speaker Gus Mutscher's staunchest supporters. He has been a first stringer, beach warmer and water boy on the Mutscher team."

Photos Hint Life On Mars

HONOLULU (AP) — Photographs taken by the Mariner 9 spacecraft indicate water—and thus life—may exist on Mars, the mission's chief scientist says. "These photographs are a real shot in the arm to those interested in extraterrestrial life," Robert Steinbacher, an official of the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, said in an interview Monday. Steinbacher said one photograph shows "contours of a glacier buildup" that indicate vast ice fields may lie beneath frozen carbon dioxide at the Martian polar regions. He said another photograph shows erosion patterns "that give every indication of having been made by flowing liquid, and evidence points to water."

He said it isn't likely that water usually exists in any quantity for any period of time because of Mars' atmosphere, where pressure normally causes ice to turn to gas rather than melt into water.

State's Claim To Nine Miles Of Territorial Waters Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has given Texas and Florida 60 days to reply to a federal government's bill of complaint that the state's claim to nine miles of territorial waters may damage U.S. foreign policy. The two states claim they have a right to keep foreign vessels out of what they have considered traditionally their territorial waters. The conflict occurs in the definition of territorial waters which the states claim is nine miles and the federal government has established as only three miles. The federal government asked the Supreme Court to prohibit the states from seizing any foreign vessels within the nine mile limit, but beyond the three-mile belt. In its complaint the government charged that the exercise of control over fishing by foreign vessels in the sea more than three geographical miles from the coastline of the United States "threatens to interfere with and cause irreparable harm to the foreign policy and conduct of foreign relations of the United States."

Running Mate Nixon Has Yet To Ask Agnew

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says President Nixon has yet to ask him if he'll be his running mate again this November. "I haven't made any decision about running again for the vice presidency yet," Agnew told a brief plane-side news conference on his arrival Monday from Washington, D.C. Asked if Nixon had asked him to run with him, Agnew answered, "No, he has not." The Kansas City Star quoted Agnew as saying that he would be considering a run for the presidency if he sought re-election with Nixon this year. But the vice president said he didn't think he had been accurately interpreted. "I think I said that the only reason that a person might want to be vice president for two terms would be that if he had at least some potential for considering the presidency," Agnew said. "But that doesn't mean that I've indicated the answer in any sense that I've made a de-

Wildcat Gas Wells Slip

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Railroad Commission says only 54 wildcat gas wells have been drilled in Texas this year, or exactly half the 1971 drilling pace. The commission reported Monday that 11 wildcat gas wells were drilled in the period Feb. 29-March 18, including five in the San Antonio No. 2 district, two each in the Houston and Corpus Christi districts and one each in the San Angelo and Wichita Falls districts. Ten wildcat oil wells were drilled during the same half-month period for a yearly total of 53, or five fewer than at this time a year ago. The new oil wildcats included three in the Lubbock district, two each in the Houston and Corpus Christi districts and one each in the Abilene, Midland and San Antonio No. 1 districts. The commission said 238 oil wells were completed during the first half of March for a yearly total of 1,031, or 207 fewer than a year ago. Ninety-seven gas wells were completed for a yearly total of 374, or 28 fewer than a year ago. A total of 550 wells were plugged, including 136 dry holes.

WS Ranch Sale Chances 'Slim'

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Dr. Thomas Nelson, the U.S. Forest Service's deputy chief for programs and legislation, said Monday the possibility of the government buying the huge WS Ranch is "very slim." Nelson said too many priorities probably will keep the government from buying the property, also known as the Vermejo Ranch, in north-eastern New Mexico. He said priorities stacked against acquisition of the ranch include development of wilderness areas, building of recreational areas, trail building and resource development. The 480,000-acre ranch has a $26.5 million price tag on it.

Mrs. Thomas Elected To YMCA's Regional Board

Mrs. Clyde Thomas was elected to the board of the Southwest Regional YMCAs at the annual regional conclave held in Dallas during the weekend. Mrs. Thomas, who is president of the local Y, will serve a four-year term. Frank Hardesty, past president here, continues on the national council board as a representative from the West Texas area. James M. (Bo) Hardy, former executive secretary of the Big Spring Y and son of Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Hardy, was the resource person for the Saturday morning session on planning and establishment of Southwest regional objectives. Hardy is associate executive director of the national council and is in charge of research and planning. The Southwest region also instructed Gordon Peterson, the regional president, to press for relocation of the national headquarters from New York to the Dallas-Fort Worth area. A national council committee now is considering relocation of the offices. Dr. Robert M. Harlan, executive director of the national council, addressed the meeting, urging that the Christian purposes of the Y be implemented in programs. He stressed need for effective structuring of family life and relationships, creations of a climate conducive to good mental health, promote juvenile justice, pinpoint membership needs. Dr. Paul Wassentich, of TCU, paid tribute to the influence that Grover Good, a retired Y secretary, had on his life. Good formerly was YMCA secretary here. Attending from here were Mrs. Thomas, Hardesty, Ito Arenabia, and Curtis Mullins, executive director of the Y.

The bidding:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ 3 ♥ Dble. Pass
 4 ♣ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♥

When West made a preemptive jump overcall of three hearts over South's opening one spade bid, it presented North with a slight problem. Game was by no means certain and yet a profit appeared reasonably assured on defense, for North could expect to take three tricks and the opening bidder might be counted on for three. Also the double is for penalties, partner is not obliged to leave it in if his holding is not suited for defense.

South was reluctant to settle for a lesser profit on the deal and inasmuch as he had a self-sufficient suit including 100 honors, he jumped to four spades. But for a flaw in declarer technique, his judgment would have been rewarded with a handsome profit on the deal.

West got off to the most effective lead of the ace of hearts, followed by the queen. South covered with North's king and East ruffed with the three of spades. The shift was to the jack of clubs. South played the queen which lost to West's king to complete the defensive book.

West exited with the jack of hearts ruffed by declarer and after the latter drew the outstanding trump, he finessed the jack of diamonds. When this lost to East's queen, South scored the deal up as a washout.

Declarer could have assured success by merely refusing to cover West's queen of hearts at trick two—permitting the latter to hold the trick. If the latter continues the suit, East will presumably ruff the king, but now South can overruff, draw trumps and take the diamond finesse with complete confidence. Even if East turns up with the queen, it is the third and final trick for the defense, for now North's diamond suit provides a discard for the queen of clubs and declarer has the rest of the tricks.

If East ruffs the second round of hearts to make the club shift, South can put up the ace, draw trump and then cross over to the king of diamonds to discard the queen of clubs on the king of hearts. The key to the hand was for declarer to protect his club holding from attack before he was in position to take full command of the proceedings.

Jury Reassembles Wednesday At 10

Jurors are to report at 10 a.m. Wednesday in 118th District Court to hear the case of Continental Insurance Co. vs. Walter Be Estep, a suit concerning workman's compensation.

Jurors were excused Monday when it was announced that a hearing in the case of J. W. Jarrett had settled out of court.

BEIRUT (AP) — A Beirut newspaper reported today that rebel army officers tried to overthrow King Hussein of Jordan Sunday. A spokesman for the Jordanian government said the report was a lie.

the six-story county courthouse, said the prisoners escaped by overpowering guards after a trusty pulled a pistol on a jail officer.

GRAB GUNS
 As the prisoners fled, officials said, they seized four pistols and a teargas gun.

Police at one point arrested 30 suspects but only one was identified as an escapee and the others were released.

A taxi driver reported that three escapees forced him to drive them to nearby Dayton, then fled on foot.

The jail, built for about 175 prisoners, housed about 275 when the break occurred at 9:30 p.m. Officials said seven jailers, the normal complement for the hour, were on duty.

Judge Joseph Luebbers of Hamilton County Municipal Court was working in his fifth floor office and was taken hostage briefly before being released unharmed. A custodian in the courthouse and a night watchman were tied up and robbed, but neither was hurt.

CANDY SELLER
 Harry Culler, the jail's chief deputy, said the break started when a trusty, William Butts, 28, who faces an armed robbery charge, pulled a .32-caliber pistol on a paraplegic in charge of the jail office. Culler said Butts sold candy from a concession area in the jail.

Butts then turned the weapon on other jailers and prisoners were let out of the cells. The prisoners forced jailers to hand over keys to doors from the cellblock, then herded the guards into a storage room.

The prisoners seized four handguns and one teargas gun. The prisoners moved to the women's jail on another section of the sixth floor and let out four women.

Appraisals Can Be Reviewed By IRS

In reviewing a person's income tax return, the IRS may either accept the claimed value of donated property, based on information or appraisals submitted with the return, or make its own determination of fair market value, Ellis Campbell Jr., District Director of Internal Revenue for North Texas, said today.

In either instance, Mr. Campbell said, the IRS may find it necessary to contact the taxpayer and ask for additional information, refer the valuation problem to an IRS appraiser or valuation specialist, or recommend that an independent appraiser be employed by the IRS to appraise the property in question.

Mr. Campbell said that independent appraisers are frequently used by the IRS when the donated property includes books or specialized types of book collections, paintings, stamp and coin collections, jewelry and gems, or miscellaneous collections of phonograph records, guns, antique furniture and manuscripts.

While the IRS is responsible for reviewing the appraisals, Mr. Campbell explained, it is not responsible for making them. The taxpayer is responsible for supporting the fair market value listed on a return.

For additional information on this subject, write for a free copy of Publication 561, "Valuation of Donated Property" to the District Director, Dallas District, Internal Revenue Service, 1100 Commerce Street, Dallas 75202.

Trans-Alaska Pipeline To Survive Court Test?

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. William Egan of Alaska says the Interior Department's statement on the environmental impact of proposed oil pipelines through his state probably will be sufficient for the department to grant a right-of-way permit for the line within 45 days.

But three environmental groups that obtained a court injunction more than a year ago holding up issuance of the permit now say they will demand public hearings on the statement.

Interior Undersecretary William T. Pecora says hearings would be a circus and "would interfere with a more thoughtful and rational analysis." Hearings were held last year after a preliminary environmental statement was issued.

The nine-volume impact statement released Monday was ordered by a federal court after the environmental groups demanded that Interior study the environmental effects of the proposed line that would run nearly 800 miles across Alaska from the oil-rich Prudhoe Bay on the North Slope to an ice-free tanker port at Valdez to the south.

Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., a consortium of seven oil companies, is seeking permission to build the line.

The impact statement considered the Alyeska proposal as one of five possible pipeline routes leading to Alaskan ports and four trans-Canada land routes that would eliminate the need for tankers to carry the oil to the U.S. West Coast.

Egan, speaking at an impromptu news conference in Juneau Monday, said no specific route or system other than the Alaskan overland route had been analyzed and that no specific proposal for a trans-Canada route had been submitted to the Interior Department.

The report said it could not evaluate the potential oil loss from a pipeline break, "but perfect no-spill performance would be unlikely during the lifetime of the pipeline."

Comparing their impact on the ocean environment, the report noted that a Canadian route would have the lowest impact from oil spillage because it would not involve tanker transport at all.

As for unavoidable impact on land-based life systems, the report said a Bering Sea route would have the least impact and a trans-Alaska-Canada coastal route the next lowest.

In their effect on the land itself, the report said, "it appears that the trans-Alaska routes would have less impact than the trans-Alaska-Canada routes."

Care Less!

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad to see that you make mistakes, too. In your column you used the expression, "could care less" to convey indifference. What you meant was "COULDN'T care less."

Just think about it for a minute, and you will realize if one could care less he cares a great deal. And if he COULDN'T care less, he doesn't care at all.

By the way, I could care less about your column. And that's a compliment.

KRISTY IN L. A.
DEAR KRISTY: And I could care less about my choice of words, which is to say that I care so MUCH I couldn't care MORE! Thanks to you and Judge Haworth of Calexico, Calif., and all the others who wrote to good-humoredly chew me out — more or less.

DEAR ABBY: I can't tell you how happy and relieved I was when I read that letter in your column from "Dreamer." (She was the 41-year-old happily married woman who said she was having an "affair" — strictly mental — with an attractive man of her acquaintance.)

You see, I am a happily married woman, too, and I'm also a "dreamer." I have my favorite fantasies about Dean Martin, Paul Newman, and Gregory Peck, and I've always felt a little guilty. I would never cheat on my husband, Abby, and I'd never tell him about these romantic dreams I enjoy secretly.

It was good to know that there are other women who dream dreams like I do. And I felt a lot better when I read your answer saying it's harmless as long as you don't try to make your dreams come true.

Thanks, Abby. I'll sleep (and dream) a lot better tonight.

ANOTHER DREAMER
DEAR DREAMER: Fantasies have always been a part of our lives. They are perfectly normal, and nothing to be ashamed of. Some fantasies serve a very useful purpose. Ask any dreamer.

DEAR ABBY: My son who is 30 years old, misbehaved while married (other women, drinking, and beating his wife.) I know how all this started. His wife refused relations with him after the birth of their third child. I will admit, she went through a bad time with the pregnancy and delivery, but she demanded more of him than any man could tolerate. My son respected her wishes for two years. Finally he couldn't stand it any longer and he strayed. His wife found out about it and they had a row. He went out and got drunk and that is when he beat her. She left him promptly and they have been apart for four months.

My son supports her and the children, but he would like to be a family man again. His wife won't let him in the house, and she won't give him a divorce.

Abby, is there something I can do to get them back together again? She will speak to me, but not to my son.

GRANDMA
DEAR GRANDMA: As long as there is no communication between your son and his wife, there is nothing you (or anyone) can do. Urge her to seek counseling. An impartial third party is always far more effective in mediating domestic problems than a member of the family.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 6970, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Feeling Cold

Your Good Health
Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a problem of having to wear more clothes than I feel I need, or I get chilled and colds. I'm 54 and an outside worker, so it is rather inconvenient.

The doctor explains that it is from not being able to make use of the sugar I eat, but he doesn't seem to think there is anything he can do about it.

I've had this trouble for some time, and it seems to be getting worse. Can anything be done? — A.B.G.

It's true that we get our energy, and body heat, from sugar created from the food we eat, but that may not be the entire answer in your case.

First, a layer of fat acts as insulation for the body, retaining heat. Women have most men, and that is why they can wear thin hoisery and skimpy clothes that would make a man turn blue.

So, if you are lean, adding some weight can help.

Another common cause of feeling cold is hardening of the arteries, retarding circulation. Possibly you have more of this trouble than is average for your age.

In this connection, tobacco constricts the small blood vessels and you get less heat at the surface of the body. A physician friend of mine was a chain-smoker and also an avid hunter. When he went hunting in fall or winter he cut down his smoking drastically. (That was good for him in more ways than one.) But he did it because his feet and body stayed noticeably warmer. If you smoke, there's a valuable tip for you.

Finally, low functioning of the thyroid can make a person intolerant of cold, so a metabolism test might indicate a need for thyroid medication.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a test last week and was told my blood sugar was too high, so if you have a booklet on diabetes, would you please publish the cost? — Mrs. C.C.B.

It's "Diabetes, the Sneaky Disease," and for a copy, send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Doctor: Why in hell don't you come straight out and advise MEN to keep their armpits shaved?

Your column today tells an inquirer (presumably a woman) to keep them shaved and washed with germicidal soap.

But most women know that already. It is MEN who need the advice.

I KNOW. Until my wedding night 25 years ago I had a fierce underarm odor. Over my protest, my bride shaved them clean and I've kept them that way. No odor! Just use common baking soda after shower and through soaping every morning, shave them twice a week usually. Our three sons have done the same since puberty.

PLEASE help eliminate underarm odor among the worst offenders, the MALE ANIMALS. — G.T. y.s.

You sound pretty mad for some reason. If a letter comes from "an inquirer (presumably a woman)" why should I tell her that men ought to shave?

However, to straighten out the record, I have on multiple occasions suggested that men shave armpits if they have an odor problem. After all, there's no great difference whether the problem is that of a woman or a man; the answer's the same.

One more point: occasional use of a germicidal soap is often very helpful, but it may be irritating if used every day, so rinse well.

Randle Signs Application To Attend Howard County

By JOE HINDS

Mike Randle, a basketball whiz at Big Spring High School, yesterday signed an application for admission to Howard County Junior College.

The 6-4 senior, who is a high jumper on the high school track team, will not be able to sign a contract with the Jayhawk basketball team until he completes his eligibility in all high school sports.

He said this morning that he would sign a letter of intention with the Jayhawks as soon as the track season ended. He said, "I decided to stay around Big Spring. Howard County runs and guns and does about the same things that the Steers did. They do about the same things both on defense and offense. In general, I just like their style."

Mike's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Essie Randle, live in town at 803 N. Cherry St.

The three-year Steer letterman was selected to the All-Tournament team in Plainview and the All-District team in the 5-4A District. He averaged seven points as a sophomore, 17 points as a junior, and 17.6 points as a senior at Big Spring. This year he was also the leading rebounder with a 16.0 average per game.

Harold Wilder, head coach at Howard County, said, "I am pleased to have a boy like this playing for us. He is a player who fits into our style of play. He is extremely quick for his size, and he has played the fast break and press at Big Spring, which is similar to our style. He is a dedicated player who does his best at every opportunity."

Ron Plumlee, who coached the captain of the Steers for two years, said, "Mike is a tremendous jumper. He was one of our fastest boys. His best over-all contribution was his attitude. Whenever we went into a game, he would take charge. He was a leader."

Mike leads off the court, too.

He is a member of Big Spring High School's student council and is secretary of the VICA Club. He also had the highest grades on the basketball team according to the Steer coaching staff's grading system.

Coach Wilder continued, "We can use Mike at forward. I know that he can be an active forward his first year with his size and rebounding. I will also use him as the front man on our press defense. He can fit into these things right away. I definitely feel that he has a great opportunity to make the starting lineup."

Mike had several offers from other schools. He had heard from Oklahoma University, New Mexico Junior College, South Plains, Panhandle State, Wayland College, etc.; but he selected Howard County because he wanted to go to a junior college first. Mike said, "I was thinking about Oklahoma, but I can go there after I finish two years at Howard County."

Coach Wilder said, "It's always nice to get local boys, but even if he had been from Kalamazoo, I still would have tried to recruit him."

Track season will wind to a close in April. Harold Wilder, coach at Howard County, stands to the left. Ron Plumlee, coach at Big Spring, is to the right.

Teen Baseball Plans Season

Teenage baseball players can forget the West Texas sandlots and join a real league April 7 when registration begins for the Big Spring Teenage Baseball League.

The Teenage Baseball Association met last weekend and set the registration dates for the coming season. Registration begins at 4:00 p.m. April 7, continues at 8:00 a.m. April 8, and concludes April 15.

Registration will be at Johnny Stone Memorial Park, just north of Interstate 20. All boys who intend to participate are required to sign up. Boys who haven't played in the league before must bring birth certificates.

The association also elected 1972 officers: Bryon Smith, president; J. W. Bickens, vice-president of the league; C. O. Trantham, vice-president of the softball league; and Bill Addy, secretary-treasurer.

Tryouts begin April 17. Actual play begins May 22.

Busceme, Texas Belter, Grabs 4th Golden Title

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Duane Bobick won the heavyweight title on a technical knockout for his 44th straight victory and Texas' James Busceme copped a record fourth consecutive crown Monday night in the finals of the 45th annual Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions.

Pan-American champion Bobick, from Bowling, Minn., fought twice, scoring a third-round technical knockout over Mick Wells of Las Vegas, Nev., in the semifinals and then disposed of Steve Williams of Fort Worth, Tex., at 1:30 of the second round, also on a TKO.

Busceme won a split decision over Norman Goins, Indianapolis, in the 132-pound class as the veteran Fort Worth boxer participated in his 117th fight.

Two champions were dethroned — James Martinez of Fort Worth at 112 pounds and Sam NeSmith of Indianapolis at 156.

Stripping Martinez of his crown on a split decision was Gregg Lewis of Cincinnati, Ohio.

NeSmith, who had scored first round TKO's in the quarterfinals and semifinals, was knocked out at 1:57 of the second round by Lamont Lovelady of Des Moines. Successfully defending his 125-pound crown was Louis Sell of Toledo, with a repeat victory over Greg Whaley of Cincinnati.

Also repeating as a champion, but in a different division, was Marvin Johnson of Indianapolis, who won the 165-pound title with a second-round technical knockout of Donald Rucker of Buffalo, N.Y. Johnson copped the 178-pound title last year.

Las Vegas won team honors with 24 points, followed by Indianapolis with 21 and Fort Worth with 19.

Other winners were Ray Theragood, Roswell, N.M., at 119; Ray "Sugar" Seals, Las Vegas, Mass., at 147; and Verbie Garland, Toledo, at 178.

NIT ACTION Oral Roberts Isn't Patsy

NEW YORK (AP) — The Mad Bomber is loose in Madison Square Garden.

Somebody better stop Richie Fuqua before he does more damage in the 35th National Invitation Basketball Tournament.

"I only hope that we can hold him to his average," says St. John's, N.Y., Coach Frank Mulzoff, as his team prepares for tonight's quarter-final match with Oral Roberts and the high-scoring Fuqua.

Oral Roberts is still in this tournament because Memphis State failed to hold the nation's second-leading scorer in check last Saturday night. Fuqua connected for 42 points, six over his 36.1-point average, as the Midwestern independent Titans upset the Tigers 94-74.

"Nobody has to tell me that Oral Roberts is for real," says Mulzoff, referring to detractors who claim that the Titans don't belong in a post-season tournament because of a patsy schedule.

Princeton plays Niagara in tonight's second game to establish the rest of Thursday night's semifinal final.

Jacksonville stopped Lafayette 87-76 and Maryland turned back Syracuse 71-65 Monday night in quarter-final games to make it to the semis. Fuqua, the big shot of Oral Roberts' run-and-gun offense, has a chance to become the nation's top scorer. He's on the verge of catching Dwight Lamar, who closed out the season with Southwestern Louisiana with a 36.34 average. Fuqua's current mark is 36.14.

If he repeats Saturday's performance, he'll move into the No. 1 spot.

Tonight's matches follow a pair of tense games Monday night.

Clearly superior Jacksonville was really given a battle by underdog Lafayette in the first one and didn't pull away from the Leopards until late in the game.

Lafayette Coach Tom Davis said he was told before the game by one of Jacksonville's assistant coaches: "If you beat us, it'll set basketball back 20 years."

They almost did—until the Dolphins' brawny and quick front line of David Brent, Ernie Fleming and Abe Steward took over.

Lafayette stayed with the powerful Florida independent in the first half and only trailed by 46-44 at intermission.

demonstrated in last season's game against Odessa High in Odessa when he pulled the basketball down from the boards 27 times.

Coach Wilder continued, "We can use Mike at forward. I know that he can be an active forward his first year with his size and rebounding. I will also use him as the front man on our press defense. He can fit into these things right away. I definitely feel that he has a great opportunity to make the starting lineup."

Mike had several offers from other schools. He had heard from Oklahoma University, New Mexico Junior College, South Plains, Panhandle State, Wayland College, etc.; but he selected Howard County because he wanted to go to a junior college first. Mike said, "I was thinking about Oklahoma, but I can go there after I finish two years at Howard County."

Coach Wilder said, "It's always nice to get local boys, but even if he had been from Kalamazoo, I still would have tried to recruit him."

Blue Tugs At Finley Purse

OAKLAND (AP) — Owner Charles Finley of the Oakland Athletics says he and star pitcher Vida Blue are within $20,000 of each other in bargaining for Blue's services in 1972.

Finley says Blue came to see him at 1 a.m. Monday morning and in a three-hour session offered to pitch for Finley's standing offer—$50,000—on one condition which Finley declined to define but said was unacceptable. On Saturday, said Finley, Blue had asked for a $70,000 contract.

Blue, whose salary was $14,750 last year, his first full season in the majors, wound up the biggest individual drawing card in the business with a 24-8 record and the American League's Cy Young and Most Valuable Player awards.

The 22-year-old wonder from Mansfield, La., began dicker with Finley Jan. 8, aided by attorney Robert J. Gerst of Los Angeles, and asked initially for $115,000. Finley says he has stuck with $50,000.

HOUSTON AND DALLAS VIE Next Super Bowl Is Going To Be In.....

HONOLULU (AP) — The Super Bowl VII sweepstakes began today at the National Football League meetings with the strong possibility that the game would be awarded to the city of Los Angeles — the scene of the crime perpetrated against the NFL in 1966.

In 1966, Los Angeles was awarded the first Super Bowl, the much ballyhooed meeting between the Green Bay Packers of the NFL and the Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League. But when super Sunday dawned, there were more than 30,000 empty seats in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

The lingering distaste left in the mouths of the NFL's owners, however, seems to have diminished during the past five years and heading into today's sessions Los Angeles seemed to have an edge over Houston, Miami, New Orleans and Dallas—rated in that order—in a wide-open race.

Here's the way the race looked at a glance: Los Angeles—Rozelle discounted the backing out of the nation's No. 2 television market and past history as major factors, leaving only one strike against the city, the fact the Rams could possibly be in the Super Bowl. But it meets every other prime specification—93,000-seat stadium, warm weather, hotel facilities.

Houston—Rice Stadium is the candidate, and the major factor in its favor is that almost undoubtedly it would be a neutral site. The Oilers don't figure to be in the Super Bowl, and besides the Oilers play in the Astrodome. Weather is warm enough and there are 80,000 seats.

Miami—Has it all—weather, hotels, stadium plus three past successes. But the Dolphins have to be considered Super Bowl contenders, and that could be a major strike.

New Orleans—With neither the weather nor the hotels, New Orleans is a longshot for a second successive hosting, but just might find itself in the running if a deadlock occurs.

Dallas—Biggest strike against the city is the Cowboys, defending Super Bowl champions. If the game were awarded to Dallas, it likely would go to the Cotton Bowl

Reserve Clause Rubs Antitrust

(AP WIREPHOTO)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball's reserve clause, totally binding an athlete to the team that owns his contract, is a violation of antitrust laws and the antislavery amendment to the Constitution, the Supreme Court has been told.

Arthur J. Goldberg, a former Supreme Court justice and now lawyer for former major league outfielder Curt Flood, told the high court Monday the clause is "the most obvious restraint known to man."

Any player who tries to break his contract for a better offer with another team is blacklisted from organized baseball, Goldberg said.

There is "a group boycott and blacklist not only in this country but also in Mexico and Japan," Goldberg told the court.

The court heard oral arguments from Goldberg and lawyers representing baseball club owners and Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. The justices took the case under advisement and are expected to rule on legality of the clause by June.

Lawyers for the major league teams argued that Flood's dispute is not a legal issue but a union-management problem that should be settled through collective bargaining.

They also described the clause as the corner stone of baseball without which all the good players would be bought by the wealthiest teams in the largest cities, destroying the sport's competitive balance.

Specifically at issue is the court's 1922 decision declaring baseball exempt from antitrust laws that prohibit business arrangements to stifle competition.

What's Happening To Women's Liberation?

NEW YORK (AP) — A like wildfire," she said on a tremendous sense of common cause, genuine cooperation and organization on all levels is what's happening to women's liberation today, declares Susan Davis, editor and publisher of the monthly newsletter, "The Spokeswoman."

Ms. Davis, as she prefers to be called, sees her publication as an information service, "a very how-to-do-it thing, a sort of clearing house for national news the mass media doesn't pick up that women need to know about."

Started in June, 1970, it was a spinoff from her work at Urban Research, a Chicago news-gathering service, where she edited a newsletter on minority business. Last summer she bought "Spokeswoman," still published in Chicago, from the parent firm.

The printer is a woman, Ruby Bailey, who at one time was production manager at Urban Research but now has her own printing company. The editor reports the newsletter is already paying its way through subscriptions that have come from word of mouth and praise in women's magazines.

"I hate it when people say women's lib — it sounds so childish," says the ordinarily soft-spoken Ms. Davis, who comes on strong, however, when the subject is women's liberation. "It's worth taking a little extra time to say the whole thing. "The movement is spreading visit to New York to pick up an award from Mademoiselle magazine as one of seven outstanding young women. "The amount of material I get is phenomenal. Every month I receive 40 women's publications and people tell me when I cover something they get 50 to 60 phone calls and queries."

"The movement's not competitive, it's not hierarchical," she continues. "It's strong and powerful — constructive, not destructive power — and it goes across all traditional divisions."

The 29-year-old brunette is active in the National Organization for Women, as well as many other groups. "I try to join everything," she points out. "A lot of the reason women haven't identified with women's liberation," she goes on, "is that their margin of security is so slim they can't afford to join a movement that is not strong. As it gets stronger they can afford to commit them-

Ms. Davis believes that consciousness-raising happens in all kinds of ways and that people go through different stages at different times. "All the inner searching and honesty is very tough," she concedes, "but any woman, married or not, can be a liberated woman, doing things in the whole world — facing power, confronting power, fighting for power in a positive way."

She herself believes in marriage, but only with a marriage contract that is written to suit the lives of two people involved. However, she concedes, "I try to right now she doesn't have much private time. "My social life has always been my professional life," says Ms. Davis, who majored in Russian at Brown University and did graduate work at Harvard. "It will always be important that I have a job that is socially relevant. I want to do 'Spokeswoman' well. I think it is important and will continue to be important. With the profits I hope to find a socially relevant way to finance women's projects."

TASTING THE SURPLUS — Sen. Richard C. Schweiker, R-Pa., samples recipes prepared from Agriculture Department's surplus foods, by nutritionist Mrs. Sophie Leavitt, Hanover, Pa., Wednesday at a news conference held in Schweiker's Washington office. Mrs. Leavitt offered to cook the senator another meal after Schweiker stated in September, 1971, that the surplus food he tasted as a member of a senate committee was "pretty awful." Mrs. Leavitt claimed the foods Schweiker sampled in September had not been prepared right.

A LOVELIER YOU Choose Fabric Color To Complement Skin

By MARY SUE MILLER

The colors created by nature make a strong fashion impression at present. Sun drenches bright shades. Pastels come straight out of the garden. Neutrals are milled from grain — corn, wheat, oats, rye. Ecology holds sway.

Of course the traditional spring shades — navy, black-and-white, smoky gray, purest white — are much in evidence. Flag combinations continue, but with a difference. True red, nautical blue and pale string beige comprise the newiest put-togethers.

Whatever color you elect to wear, it obviously will not lack eye appeal. It will enhance your individual loveliness as well, if it complements your skin tone. As a guide to just-right selections, spring shades and feminine skin tones are matched on this chart:

BRUNET SKIN: True red, undersea coral; daffodil yellow; grass green; turquoise blue; black with white; smoky gray; wheaten beige, creamy white.

BLOND SKIN: Carnation pink, cyclamen; lettuce green; violet, hyacinth; nautical blue; matte black; chalk white; cornsilk beige.

FLORID SKIN: Wild mustard; pine green; dusty miller; water green; navy; violet; larkspur; raven black; oyster white; string beige.

All those shades take to a quiet, clear, natural makeup. And to you!

DRY SKIN BEAUTY For ways to keep past-30 skin smooth and dewy, order my leaflet, "New Beauty For Dry Skin." It tells in personalized steps how to cleanse, correct, protect and make up for dryness. ### Episcopal Guild Hears Rev. Kenneth Patrick James Peier and John were closer to the Lord than the other disciples," said the Rev. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of First Baptist Church, when he was guest speaker for St. Mary's Episcopal Church parish hall.

Rev. Patrick said that when Jesus said "I am the way, the truth and the light," he meant the way to travel, the truth to trust and the light to treasure. "Jesus is alive today," concluded Rev. Patrick. "He lives in our hearts, and he will never die."
