BOX OF CIGARS Penniless Skyjacker Grabs Plane

ROME (AP) — Mario Victor Maimone, a penniless Italian-American who has passed himself off twice in the past five months as a big spender, was arrested today after he hijacked a Swiss airliner.

The 30-year-old native of New York took over a Swissair DC9 with 20 persons aboard shortly after it took off from Geneva for Rome. He demanded to see Pope Paul VI and the U.S. Ambassador to Italy and told the pilot to land at Rome's military airport instead of the civilian field "because it is nearer to the United States Embassy and the Vatican."

Maimone brandished a package which he said contained a bomb, and the pilot complied.

Police surrounded the plane when it landed, and a plainclothesman got aboard posing as the American ambassador. Other officers slipped aboard and took Maimone into custody.

Nobody was hurt. The bomb turned out to be a box of cigars.

The police took Maimone to a psychiatric hospital first, but when they found out who he was the party went on to Rome's Regina Coeli — Queen of Heaven — jail. There he was charged with sequestering persons and threatening violence.

Maimone, born in New York of Italian parents, appeared last December in the Val d'Aosta and announced plans to bring prosperity to the poor, mountainous region by investing several million dollars to build a winter resort there. He told newsmen he had inherited a big box of diamonds from his father, a Cosa Nostra boss in New York.

Mayors of several mountain towns received him with full civic honors and high hopes. These evaporated when Italian relatives described him as a penniless exhibitionist.

Big Forgery Ring Cracked

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Police working in with Texas Rangers swooped down on three persons here Sunday, confiscating what they said were forged checks and credit cards in the largest Fort Worth area.

Two women and a man were taken into custody along with blank credit cards, check stamping machines and photographic equipment.

Officers said they seized about 35,000 checks, 50 to 700 credit cards, a number of Texas driver licenses, military discharge papers, auto titles, birth certificates, Social Security cards and other documents which police said had been forged or stolen.

Police said the raid was prompted by an incident Friday night in which officers found some forged documents while serving an arrest warrant. Officers were fired upon at the apartment Friday night and wounded a man living there when they returned the shots.

Car Hits Dead Cow, Woman Killed

MIDLAND Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Helen Wallace, 51, was killed late Sunday when the family car hit a dead cow in the road. Her husband suffered serious injuries.

The Wallaces were thrown from their car by the impact.

The cow had been killed a short time before when a motorcyclist hit it. The cyclist was not injured.

Hunt For Three Following Crash

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Coast Guard resumed its search today for three men, including millionaire builder Jack Sobie, believed killed when their small twin-engine plane crashed in the ocean Sunday.

Others aboard were identified as the pilot, Hugh Goforth of Linwood and copilot William J. Ladd of Somers Point.

Sobie, 52, made a fortune building housing all through the country.

Secretary Of State Rogers Charges 'Naked Aggression'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said today the Nixon administration "has no intention to permit South Vietnam to be taken over by force."

Rogers said the United States will not permit the North Vietnamese offensive to succeed.

Rogers said the air offensive against Haiphong and Hanoi is in keeping with President Nixon's prior assertions that the United States would not permit North Vietnam to take advantage of the withdrawal of U.S. forces.

The secretary of State appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to defend the Administration foreign aid budget but immediately was quizzed by Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., about renewed American assaults in North Vietnam.

Fulbright said he did not think that the interest of the United States merited such a counter-reaction.

Rogers said there are three purposes primarily for the renewed air and naval strikes against North Vietnam:

1—To protect American troops still in South Vietnam.

2—To make certain that the withdrawal of American forces can continue.

3—To give South Vietnamese a chance to defend themselves against the massive invasion.

Rogers said the United States does not intend to reintroduce ground combat forces into the action in Vietnam but that the air and naval strikes should make clear to the other side that America is going to take any action necessary to support the people of South Vietnam.

Rogers said that although 450,000 troops have been withdrawn from the Vietnam conflict, there still are 85,000 Americans there.

"If the Communists took over South Vietnam militarily," he asked, "what about the 85,000 still there?"

GIANT LIE

Rogers said that the new North Vietnam offensive, involving 12 of its 13 divisions, shows that the North Vietnamese were "lying in their teeth" in their claims that there were no North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam.

Fulbright said he could not understand how the new attacks on North Vietnamese supply bases promote the interest of the United States with Russia and China.

Rogers responded that the President's record is good.

He said the administration was severely criticized by members of the committee for incursions into Laos and Cambodia on grounds that it would make it difficult to improve relations with China.

He said that the President's recent successful visit to Peking showed that "the President was right."

Rogers called the North Vietnamese drive into the South a "naked aggression of the most flagrant type."

"The South Vietnamese have risen to the challenge; they have demonstrated their determination to resist aggression. They deserve, now more than ever, our steadfast help and encouragement," Rogers said in a prepared statement before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Rogers appeared before the committee to request $2.15 billion in foreign military assistance for the coming fiscal year, including $780 million in grant military assistance, $527 million in foreign military sales credits, and $344 million for security supporting assistance.

Lamesa Murder Conviction Reversed By Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court voted 7-2 today to reverse the murder conviction of a Texas man, Rudy Gonzalez, because the sheriff doubled as the chief prosecution witness and the court's bailiff during the trial.

Writing for the majority, Justice Potter Stewart declared that "the neutral role of the court must be kept separate and distinct in a criminal trial."

"When a key witness against a defendant doubles as the officer of the court specifically charged with the care and protection of the jurors, associating with them on both a personal and official basis while simultaneously testifying for the prosecution, the adversary system of justice is perverted," he said.

Gonzales was convicted of a 1956 murder during a gas station holdup in Dawson County (Lamesa), Tex. The conviction was based on the sheriff's testimony about the validity of a confession which Gonzalez, who has difficulty with the English language, signed with an "X."

"Today's ruling bids fair to swell the ever mounting of constitutional litigation with which the courts of this country must deal," wrote Justice William H. Rehnquist in dissent. He was joined by Justice Byron B. White.

Rehnquist noted that much emphasis was placed on the fact that the sheriff had lunch with the jurors from the small community of Lamesa, Tex.

"I find it impossible to conclude in this record that the sheriff's casual lunchtime conversation with people he already knew deprived petitioner of his constitutional rights," Rehnquist wrote.

Explorers Continuing Toward Moon Landing

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 16 hurtled onward today toward a Thursday landing on the moon's mountainous rooftop while engineers on earth wrestled with the mysterious peeling of protective skin of the lunar lander Orion.

Particles of the outer aluminum foil and mylar thermal blanket were observed Sunday flaking away from an area several square feet in size near Orion's reaction control system fuel tanks.

Navy Capt. John W. Young and Air Force Lt. Col. Charles M. Duke entered the lunar lander Sunday night a day ahead of schedule, turned on its power and conducted a one-hour inspection.

PONDER 'SKIN'

Nothing appeared amiss in the spacecraft's systems and there were no plans to alter the mission.

At Grumman Aircraft in Bethpage, N.Y., engineers worked with a lunar lander mockup seeking an explanation.

While engineers pondered the problem, the astronauts slept. They retired shortly before 4 a.m. and weren't scheduled to awaken until noon.

Nothing appeared amiss in the spacecraft's systems and there were no plans to alter the mission.

"At this time there is no undue concern about it," Mission Control said after the inspection apparently ruled out troubles with major spacecraft systems.

The skin problem was the first flaw in an otherwise perfect mission that began at 12:54 p.m. EST Sunday when a towering Saturn 5 rocket thundered the astronauts into space.

'FACILITY OUGHT TO BE NICE' Bill Crooker Refuses To Sign Barn Bills

By LINDA CROSS

It was a routine meeting for Howard County Commissioners today — two commissioners became embroiled in a discussion concerning the amount of money spent in the remodeling and construction work on the Howard County Fair Barns. Commissioner Bill Crooker refused to sign the bills.

"I am appalled at the lack of control in this. We've committed ourselves to bills that were not even discussed beyond the $17,500 for construction by Jones (Jones Construction Co.) and some miscellaneous bills for other minor repairs. We committed the road and bridge department to $10,000 worth of labour," said Commissioner Crooker.

"I'm not denying we've got a nice facility out there. We ought to. We've spent enough for it," retorted Commissioner Crooker when County Commissioner Simon Terrazas said that Crooker ought to be appreciative of the work that was done.

Crooker began questioning the expenditures on the barn after $2,800 in bills for work done on the structure came to his attention during the bill paying session in commissioners court today.

NEARLY $50,000
"Our original objective was to take it (improvement of the fair barns) in steps. Perhaps taking two or three years to complete it. We've now spent nearly $50,000. Who authorized all of it?"

Crooker said that beyond one meeting with representatives Future Farmers of America, the 4-H and Bruce Griffith, county agricultural extension agent, there has been no more

Venus Shows Off For Big Springers

Area residents joined with millions across the country in ogling a celestial show when Venus sided up to the moon Sunday evening.

When the planet and the earth satellite moved to near confluence, Venus appeared brightly to the upper right of the moon. Later it moved downward into a position so that the display resembled the emblem of the Turkish flag.

Calls besieged defense establishments and observatories across the country. The North American Air Defense Command reassured the public the heavenly coincidence posed no threat.

"We've gotten calls from people saying they'd seen antennas on it," a NORAD spokesman said. "It's not so and it's nothing to worry about."

The bright planet was seen by persons in several different parts of the country during the evening hours. In Arizona, some telephone callers feared the moon was breaking up or that an object was about to strike the moon. Others said they thought it was the Apollo 16 spacecraft.

In Cambridge, Mass., the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory's satellite tracking service had said that close proximity of Venus and Mars, as viewed from earth, would be visible Sunday near the moon.

The observatory said the phenomenon was the highlight of a week of celestial events where Venus, Saturn, Mars and a bright star cluster were within a few degrees of each other as viewed from earth, creating a single bright light in the skies.

Dr. Bart J. Bok, University of Arizona astronomer, noted that the moon and Venus line up 17 times a year but rarely are viewed together because this usually occurs during bright daylight or is visible only in remote areas of the earth.

STAR LIGHT, STAR BRIGHT — Danny Valdes, Herald photographer, made this photographic record of the near confluence of the moon and the planet Venus in the western skies Sunday evening. There were numerous calls, some suggesting that this might be the astronauts on their way to the moon. Valdes took the shot through a 500mm telephoto lens with a second exposure on an F8 opening on Tri-X 400 ASA film.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Taxpayers should be paid for all the headaches of keeping records and figuring out their income taxes, says a California lawmaker who would like to sweeten tax time a little for the paying public.

State Sen. Anthony Beilenson proposed Friday that the state give each taxpayer a 25 cent credit to pay for "his time, trouble and expense" in preparing and filing his annual state income tax return.

Huge Diamond Discovered

NEW YORK (AP) — The third largest diamond ever found—weighing almost half a pound and valued at $11.7 million—has been discovered in the West African republic of Sierra Leone.

Tiga Selsay, the republic's consul general here, said the 969.8-carat diamond was found Feb. 14 on a conveyor belt in a diamond-processing plant in the Kono District of Sierra Leone.

He said the unpublished gem is about the size of a hen's egg and resembling "a lump of frosted glass or a piece of chipped ice."

Only two diamonds, both found in South Africa, have been bigger. They were 3,106-carat Cullinan Diamond, discovered in 1905, and the 995.2-carat Excelsior Diamond, found in 1893. Both have since been cut into smaller gems, making the new find the largest known existing diamond.

Life Of Welfare, High Rent, Unemployment, Poor Education

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Her eyes brimming with tears, the wife of a Mexican-American charged with hijacking an airliner last week said the real crime is the lifestyle of her family and other Chicanos in East Los Angeles.

Celia Chavez-Ortiz, the mother of eight children, said it's a life of welfare and unemployment, high rent and poor education.

She said her husband, Ricardo Chavez-Ortiz, 36, was trying to get people to understand because he desperately wants to help his family and other Mexican-Americans.

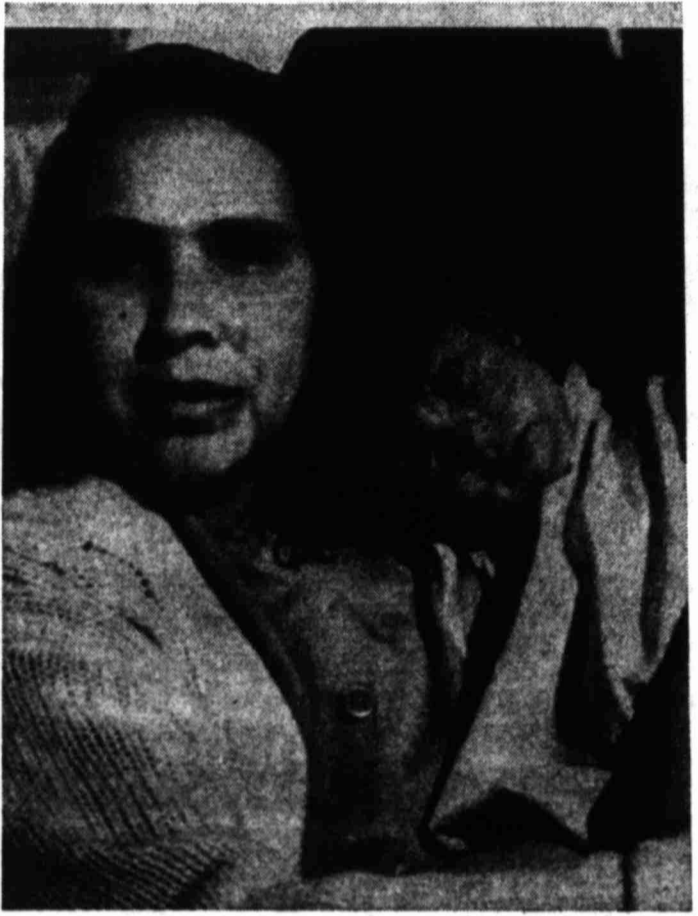

WANTED TO TALK
Chavez-Ortiz is charged with hijacking a Frontier Airlines Boeing 737 jetliner last Thursday. But, instead of demanding ransom, he sought and got radio and television time to air grievances. Then he surrendered.

Residents and officials agreed that the sprawling, smoggy East Side teems with problems that have no easy solutions. They also think that Ricardo Chavez-Ortiz and his family are more typical than unusual of the estimated one million Mexican-Americans in East Los Angeles.

These "typical" circumstances, in Chavez-Ortiz' case, are a large family, recurring unemployment, little or no ability to speak English, welfare, rent of $110 a month for a modest house and worries about his children's education and gang fights.

Like many in the community only 120 miles north of the Mexican border, the Chavez-Ortiz family immigrated. He admits he first entered as an illegal alien but says a dozen years ago he re-entered legally and brought his family.

to turn loose the powerful Agent Orange, a chemical defoliant banned for use in the Vietnam war, for widespread application on American ranchlands.
Government sources say ranchers have urged that the chemical be declared military surplus and sold to them at cut rates for use in killing sagebrush on millions of acres of livestock grazing land.
Some members of Congress also have asked that the chemical be made available to ranchers, according to a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency.
But the EPA says it is unlikely government stockpiles of the chemical will be declared surplus.
Agent Orange was used for years by the Air Force to denude Vietnam jungles before the Defense Department halted the practice in 1970. Laboratory tests showed the chemical retarded growth and caused birth defects in rodents.
The government has about 1.6 million gallons of Agent Orange in South Vietnam and another 800,000 gallons in U.S. storage it would like to destroy.

Cancer Drive Due Tuesday

The Howard County Unit of the American Cancer Society will conduct its annual home Crusade Tuesday.

Besides the many adult volunteers the following youth groups will participate: Key Club, TARS, Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and the Goldiggers.

The emphasis of the Crusade this year is to urge all women to have a yearly Pap test. Along with the drive for funds for cancer research, volunteers plan to provide educational material for as many homes as possible in order to alert people to the seven cancer danger signals. Many cancers can be cured if found in time.

The Big Spring Life Underwriters have been conducting a crusade of the local businesses this month.

Mrs. Joe Smoot is Crusade chairman; Mrs. Edman McMurray, vice-chairman; Mrs. David Hodnett, house-to-house chairman; and Mrs. James Coates, county communities chairman.

Forsan Crusade To Coincide

FORSAN — The Forsan Cancer Crusade will be held at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, according to Mrs. M. M. Fairchild, local chairman.

The crusade will involve about eight local volunteers in a door-to-door fund drive.

Cosden Acquires Intech Interest

LTV Aerospace Corporation announced today the sale of 20 per cent ownership of its wholly owned subsidiary, International Technovation, Inc. The sale was to Cosden Oil and Chemical Company of Big Spring.

Intech Technovation produces polystyrene egg cartons and meat and poultry trays in plants in Big Spring, Malvern, Ark., and Nesquehoning, Pa. Cosden is a major supplier of polystyrene and the sale amounts to a consolidation of a previous Cosden interest.

Intech operates as a unit of Service Technology Corporation, another LTV Aerospace subsidiary, also of Dallas.

Bottles, Orphans

PEARL RIVER, N.Y. (AP) — A Boy Scout troop in this Hudson Valley community is using the proceeds of a glass recycling drive to support two orphaned children.

The youngsters — a Korean girl and a Brazilian boy — were "adopted" by Troop 34 through an international relief agency.

Funds for their support are provided by used bottles and jars collected by the scouts and delivered to a nearby bottle-making plant under a glass recycling program sponsored by member companies of the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute.

LBJ 'Getting Along Fine'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson remains secluded in his penthouse hospital suite as he continues to recover from a major heart attack, officials report.

Spokesmen said Sunday that he was still "getting along fine" at the Army's Brooke General Hospital.

Messages of good will have been arriving steadily, including some from children at Stonewall, Tex., near his LBJ Ranch.

Janet Smith, teacher at a kindergarten established there by the former president, said her youngsters worked for hours last week on get-well cards for him.

Their messages included one that advised him: "We miss your jelly beans." Another echoed the thoughts of many well-wishers: "We want you to feel good, Mr. President."

One of the children, Tyree Burns, 4, keeps asking when the former chief executive will bring more of his bags of jelly beans to the school, the teacher said.

Johnson flew to Brooke last Wednesday after he was stricken on April 7 in Charlottesville, Va. Doctors described his condition as "quite good" in the only medical bulletin released since his arrival here.

Limit Is Lowered

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. Francis W. Sargent has signed into law a bill lowering the state's minimum drinking age to 18 effective March 1, 1973. The present minimum is 21.

ON SECRET DEFENSE EXAMS Officers Cheated?

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — An Army lieutenant says the military and Congress have failed to properly investigate his charges that a group of officers cheated on secret exams qualifying them to control nuclear-missile-firing units.

Lt. Earl M. Bricker III first filed his charges with the Army two years ago while serving in a Nike-Hercules missile battalion at Homestead Air Force Base, Fla. The base is headquarters for prime defenses against attack from Cuba and for protection of air space over the Key Biscayne vacation White House.

DANGER AHEAD
Early this year, while Bricker continued trying to air his allegations, a House armed services subcommittee called U.S. air defenses of the Southern border area virtually useless. The subcommittee report followed an investigation of how a Cuban plane was able to fly undetected through the sophisticated U.S. defense system and land in New Orleans.

Bricker cites indications that cheating on the written examinations may have been more widespread than just the Homestead incidents.

Bricker, now in the Army Reserve, said national security could be endangered in a crisis because "an unqualified officer might fail to be able to react properly in case of attack."

An Army investigating board which looked into some of Bricker's allegations questioned a number of witnesses to establish that an unqualified officer could not precipitate a crisis by accidental firing because he would be unable to launch a Nike without proper knowledge.

BRIEF INQUIRY
Bricker contends an unqualified officer indeed could not launch the missile—even if it should be launched to defend against attack. The Nike-Hercules is designed to intercept enemy missiles or aircraft.

The Army responded to brief congressional inquiry about Bricker's charges in April 1971. It quoted the mixed findings of the investigating board, which, however, had not questioned a number of persons accused by Bricker.

The Army said the written exams were only a minor portion of the qualifying for duty as a missile-battery control officer.

Bricker, still pursuing the matter on a full-time basis from his home in Norman, said congressional interest ceased following the Army reply.

WRITTEN EXAM
In an affidavit eventually filed in April 1970, Bricker said that while he took the written missile exam, the battery commander and executive officer coached two other officers through the test.

Even after he made his allegations, Bricker said officers he charged had cheated remained in position to act as missile-battery control officers.

In February 1969, Bricker was designated to administer the qualifying test to a group of officers. The battery commander ordered him to turn over the test materials and indicated he would allow and encourage unauthorized coaching on the test, Bricker said. The two clashed, and Bricker ultimately was reassigned.

Months later, Bricker said he found some batteries had unauthorized copies of secret test questions and other materials which they believed compromised the examinations. Other officers also told him how help was given on exams.

TEST AIDS
Ultimately, in May 1970, a three-officer board probed the charges. Most officers involved in the exam-room incidents had been routinely transferred in the intervening months and were neither summoned as witnesses nor asked to make depositions, so the board could make no finding on a number of Bricker's principal allegations.

The board did reprimand one lieutenant for making an unauthorized copy of a classified document. But it said other test aids which Bricker found in the batteries were not unauthorized.

During the investigation, Capt. Alan G. Frazier, who supported Bricker, testified that when he was in Korea on a prior assignment, officers were memorizing parts of the exam and then compiling a copy of it for others to use.

In March 1971, Bricker said, he tried to interest the Senate Armed Services Committee. The committee showed brief interest, then said it could not pursue an inquiry because, among other tasks, it was investigating the entire air-defense system.

HJCJ Choir Performs Admirably In Concert

A relatively small but appreciative audience applauded the Howard County Junior College choir generously Sunday on the occasion of the Spring concert — and deservedly so.

The choir acquitted itself remarkably well considering that there were only 15 voices. There's no telling what Ralph Dowden could do with two or three times that number.

The singers moved through two sections of psalms with rich resonance, clarity and brilliance in the higher registers. In these, as indeed in several other offerings, the sopranos were outstanding, notably in the passages. Yet the altos gave perfect harmony, and the four male voices did the work of twice that number with fine quality and volume.

The a cappella renditions of the psalm groups preserved the cathedral effect. The Madrigal Singers were warmly received for four songs. "Fa una Canzone" was done exceptionally. "The Silver Swan" moved with the grace of its namesake, and "Tiny Bouquet of Forget Me Nots" proved melodic. "Now Is the Month of Maying," perhaps, gave the best opportunity for the madrigal style.

Mr. Dowden, tenor, with his wife, Betty, soprano, and feelingly accompanied by Linda Mason, were outstanding in a scene from Carmen, climaxing with the enchanting "Memories So Dear." They were called back for several bows.

The mood changed from pastoral to synecopation to a modern spiritual with a beat, but the "Geographical Fuge," a semi-choral recitation which conveyed the impression of a great steam locomotive pounding across country, was just plain terrific. — JP

MAKE A DATE WITH THE OLIVETTI GIRL
... at Graham's Office Machines

True Confessions Of An Olivetti Girl

True confessions of an Olivetti girl (or, how a change in typewriters changed my life):
I was the jumpiest, touchiest, grouchiest secretary in the office. I used to dress sloppy, just like my typing. I even had nightmares about typing mistakes. But when I got an Olivetti Electric Typewriter from Graham Office Machines — heaven!

What's Olivetti got? Don't laugh. It's got a brain inside. A brain that makes the four most common typing mistakes absolutely impossible. So I no longer go 'oops' over flying caps, shading and ghosting, crowding and piling, and improper spacing.

I can type a blue streak without mistakes. And now that I type sharper, I LOOK sharper. People are starting to like me. In fact, there's not a man in the office who isn't crazy about me!

Who is the Olivetti girl? The Olivetti girl is a secretary-typist who's been attracting lots of attention lately for her amazing performance on the typewriter. Because no matter how fast she types, she rarely makes a mistake!

Now, she may be prettier than other typists, but she's not necessarily any brainier. Then what makes an Olivetti girl such a phenomenal typist? Her brainy Olivetti Electric Typewriter, of course! This typewriter can actually think for itself. Because it has a brain inside that makes the four most common typing mistakes absolutely impossible.

An Olivetti girl can really belt it out. She's sharper, looser, never uptight. That's why an Olivetti girl has more fun. And that is why people are saying such terribly nice things about her.

Olivetti, the American dream machines, are available in Big Spring at Graham's Office Machines. Olivetti's line includes office typewriters, portable typewriters, calculators, accounting machines, electronic billing systems, micro computers, computer terminals and office copiers.

Mr. Office Manager, you never have to overspend for an Olivetti Electric Typewriter! There are six different models, priced from $265 to $705, each matched to a specific secretarial work load. (Did you know that mismatched typewriters are costing American business millions of dollars a year?)

To get more information, make a date with the Olivetti girl — at Graham's Office Machines, 417 E. 3rd.

Loaded Truck Wrecks Havoc

An estimated $25,000 in damages was done to Trinity Memorial Park five miles south of Big Spring on U.S. 87 early today when a loaded cattle truck left the highway and plowed into the cemetery.

The accident occurred at approximately 12:50 a.m. today when a cattle truck driven by Ignacio Trevino Jr., 25, Eagle Pass, went out of control while heading north on U.S. 87, left the highway on the west side of the road, and tore down a barbed wire fence, decorative shrubbery and headstones in the cemetery before coming to rest inside the cemetery near the main entrance.

No injuries were sustained by the driver or the cattle in the vehicle. O. D. Daniel Trucking Co. was called early today to remove the cattle. The cattle were taken to the Big Spring Auction Co., and Darrell Hargrove, Del Rio, of Southwest Livestock Co. of Del Rio, owners of the truck, was notified.

It was noon today before the truck could be taken out of the cemetery. Independent Wrecking Co. dispatched a large wrecker unit to remove the truck tractor and large cattle trailer. It was decided to wait until daylight before removing the truck to avert more damage to graves and tombstones, according to information from the Howard County Sheriff's office.

O. C. Chapland, president of Trinity Memorial Park, today estimated the damage to be $25,000, and the figure could be higher as damage to individual graves and tombstones is studied.

Texas Highway Patrolman Chet Wesley investigated the accident, and he was assisted by Deputy Sheriffs Sam Roberts and Bill Chadwell.

Governor Is Due Here

Governor Preston Smith will be honored here with a reception Tuesday from 3 p.m. until 3:45 p.m. on the Mezzanine of the Settles Hotel.

6-A Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Mon., April 17, 1972

RARE FIND — Joe J. McEntire examines seed on rare pistache tree he discovered seven miles below the mouth of the Pecos River on Lake Amistad. Only a few of these trees are known to exist along the remote canyon walls of the Rio Grande and Pecos Rivers. To reach them travel must be by boat.

Local Man Finds Rare Texas Pistache Tree

Joe McEntire, Big Spring area conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service, recently found a specimen of the mysterious Texas pistache (Pistacia texana) tree clinging to the steep banks of the Devil's River near Amistad Reservoir.

This lovely evergreen, relict of a once widespread and feared extinct. Seed collected from the tree were planted at the SCS plant materials center at Knox City and at a Texas Forest Service nursery. Since only a few seedlings were obtained, attempts will now be made to propagate the plant by cuttings.

This is one of the ways the SCS is striving to save rare and endangered species of plants, animals, fishes and birds. This was discussed at an interagency conference April 5 in Austin.

The purpose of this meeting was to prepare a correlated Texas watchlist, discuss the kinds of measures important to their habitat and the possibility of setting up a monitoring program. The Secretary of Interior's annual list of rare and endangered fish and wildlife includes several species found in Texas: the Attwater prairie chicken, golden-cheeked warbler, ivory-billed woodpecker, whooping crane, American alligator, red wolf and Houston today.

Clyde W. Graham, Temple, state SGS conservationist, said that they are asking all district conservationists to evaluate effects on these plants and animals and recommend an action needed for their protection.

"Thoughtless killing, uncontrolled burning and other irresponsible acts were once the greatest threat to rare and endangered species," Graham said. "But now the principal hazard is the destruction of habitat resulting from human activities. These include some outdoor recreation activities, industrialization, urbanization and the like."

He was also charged with carrying a concealed weapon. The deputy said that the engineer and the conductor on the train said that Deoca had signaled to them with three flares several times.

"SCARED TO DEATH" However, Smithson said that each time an engineer stuck his head out the window, Deoca would point the gun at him and wave to either speed up the train or to slow down.

Smithson said the law officers mistook the flares for dynamite, but he said that Deoca later told them he was using them to light cigarettes because he was out of matches.

"I was scared to death, I'm not going to lie to you," Smithson said.

Deoca's odyssey apparently began when he received a call Saturday from his grandmother in California telling him that his former wife had died in January.

He told arresting officers he decided to go to California to bring his five children back to Memphis, where he works in a glass factory.

STARTED CRYING Harry Hammer, public relations director for Missouri-Pacific, said the train crew radioed at about 2 p.m. that a man had climbed on the train as it passed over the bridge in the Mississippi River.

Smithson said that Deoca, a Mexican-American, did not appear to be sorry for what he had done at first.

"But after talking to him an hour and a half, he said he was awfully sorry it happened," Smithson said. "He started crying and said he wanted to get out to California."

Smithson said Deoca was then fed dinner and was put in jail.

He said Deoca has not been charged with highjacking the train, but the deputy said train detectives want to talk to him Monday.

SOMETHING NEW "This is the first time I ever heard of a freight train being hijacked," said Smithson. "They've quit the airplanes and started on the trains now."

Smithson said when the Missouri-Pacific train was stopped at Earle, Deoca pointed a 22-caliber pistol at the four waiting law enforcement officers, hesitated, then stuck the gun back in his waistband before jumping off the train.

Freight Train Hijack Foiled

EARLE, Ark. (AP) — Daniel Deoca, 38, of Memphis had jumped from one freight car to another and was within two cars of the train's engine when he was arrested Sunday, halting an apparent attempt to highjack the train.

Deputy Sheriff Don Smithson of Crittenden County said that after Deoca was arrested he said he was "going to take the train to California."

Smithson said when the Missouri-Pacific train was stopped at Earle, Deoca pointed a 22-caliber pistol at the four waiting law enforcement officers, hesitated, then stuck the gun back in his waistband before jumping off the train.

Smithson said that Deoca was charged with public drunkenness after registering .20 in a breath test—13 is considered intoxicated.

WATCHED LAUNCH AT HOME — Mrs. Elizabeth Mattingly, wife of Apollo 16 command module pilot Thomas K. Mattingly II, had a big smile as she talked with newsmen after the launch Sunday. Mrs. Mattingly, expecting their first child early in May, watched the launch from their home near the Manned Space Center, Houston.

Son Of OU Coach Robbed And Shot

HOUSTON (AP) — Charles Le Fairbanks Jr., son of University of Oklahoma head football coach Chuck Fairbanks, and another youth said they were robbed and shot Sunday by hitchhikers.

Neither was seriously hurt. Young Fairbanks, of Norman, Okla., and Robert James Giblin, 19, of Port Neches-Grove, Tex., both University of Houston freshmen football players, said they were struck by a bullet fired into their car.

Fairbanks was wounded in the right arm, Giblin in the foot. They are expected to miss about a week of spring football practice because of their injuries.

Fairbanks, Giblin and Paul Garner Morrison, 18, of Abilene, Tex., another player, said they picked up the hitchhikers in Houston early Sunday. They said one of the hitchhikers pulled a gun. They took $12 and two watches from the players, then got out.

Without the letting of bids by the commission, it is not possible for the county auditor to know what bills are outstanding against the county.

"I've never been opposed to improvement of the county fair barns. I'm opposed to the procedure. Why couldn't it have been done in stages?" said Crooker today.

"FOR PEOPLE" "We've saved more this year than we've spent on the barns in the road and bridge department (budget) alone. We are employing six men less right now than we ever have, and this is a savings of at least $40,000 a year. We don't have a county park or facilities like that, and we tried to do something for the people. The barns are a one time investment, and they will draw people in here to spend money with local merchants," said Terrazas.

As Crooker took aim on the expenditures on the county barns, Commissioners Bill Bennett and Terrazas countered with the average spent in construction on the Volunteer Fire Station in Silver Heels, Commissioner Crooker's precinct.

"At least we took bids on that. We knew where we stood, and we knew we were going to go over the budget," said Crooker.

"Originally, $8,000 was set up for the fire station, but it was cut back to $5,000 in 1972," said Crooker.

At Crooker's request, Mrs. Black read figures from 1969 to 1972, showing that $18,000, $8,000 and finally $5,000 was appropriated each year for fire station equipment. Mrs. Black said that money was never specifically designated for a fire station, but carried under the general designation of fire station equipment.

"Sand Springs and Jonesboro Volunteer Fire Department Stations cost less put together than the Silver Heels Station did," said Terrazas.

The stations Terrazas referred to were built in 1968 with no funds set up for them, according to Mrs. Black.

Crooker contended that rises in cost of construction could have counted for the overage in construction costs in the fire station, but he contended that at least bids were let on the construction so that the commission knew exactly how much more than originally intended would be spent.

"A 1959 Senate general investigative committee said contrary to the appropriate statute, certain classes of taxpayers are granted exemptions and privileges." This is true of a number of our large corporations," he said.

"We are not getting the direction and leadership we need from the top," said Pendleton. "We don't have any uniform procedures. I have talked to businessmen around the state and they tell me a tax will be enforced in one district and not in another. If they ask a question, they get one answer from the field representative, another from the regional level and another from the state office. We desperately need direction from the top," he said.

"I am opposing Bob Calvert for three reasons," said Pendleton, "his age, he is 80 years old, his health and his competence in the collection of taxes."

"His health is poor, and his assistants have taken over many of his duties. This is the man that collects and disperses discussion on any of the construction. "All we've seen are bills," said Crooker.

No bids outside of the original $17,500 let for construction were ever let, according to Crooker.

Taking figures from Mrs. Virginia Black, county auditor, Crooker said today that bills in amounts over $2,000, which is the point at which commissioners are required by law to ask for bids, have been granted in the following amounts to the following firms:

Whitefield Plumbing Co. — $5,264. Four different invoices on different dates were submitted to the commission for work all done on the county fair barns by Whitefield.

Gilliland Electric — $2,348. Three invoices for work done by Gilliland were submitted to the commission on different dates:

Daves Welding — $3,950. Three invoices received by the commission on different dates:

And McMahon Concrete Co. invoices submitted to the commission.

Mrs. Black said today she did not know how much the work on the barns was going to cost. According to Mrs. Black some but not all of the invoices submitted by the four companies employed on the barn have been paid, but others are still outstanding.

At the last figure she was able to compile, $35,000 had been spent. This did not include the over $10,000 it cost the county to use road and bridge crew members to perform carpentry, welding and painting duties.

Mrs. Black said she could not give any estimate on the total cost of the barn improvements because she does not know if all the bills are in yet.

Without the letting of bids by the commission, it is not possible for the county auditor to know what bills are outstanding against the county.

A LOVELIER YOU Tizzy Tensions Age Beauty, Personality

By MARY SUE MILLER

Do unexpected events upset you? The following situation cues you answer:

It's a busy day; you've scheduled an almost impossible number of chores for yourself but you're up and at them early. Suddenly the telephone rings. It's an old friend who says that she will pass through town sometime during the day (she cannot tell exactly what time), but of course she will stop to see you.

Now how would you react? Would your composure clatter to pieces? Would you get in such a stew that you'd rush around and accomplish nothing? Would you be in condition to sincerely welcome your friend and enjoy her?

Or are you able to put aside unnecessary chores until the morning and prepare for the guest — dress yourself and arrange hospitable refreshments? When your guest arrives, you relax and enjoy her. What's more, she enjoys you.

Answers that point to tense reactions also point to a woman who ages beforetime. Unwarranted worry and decision etch wrinkles in the face and in the personality. More vital, those who fret over molehills never have the strength to cross mountains.

AGELESS BEAUTY

The young in heart and looks enjoy life, instead of fighting it. Insignificant matters are given insignificant notice. If ever you find yourself tired too often and looking worn most of the time, put a strong checkrein on undue tension. A serene, smiling outlook keeps you young.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I have discovered something so sneaky that I just have to share it with you.

I have five boys, eight through fifteen. I work at a factory job eight hours a day, five days a week. My husband is a truck driver, home for a while every two weeks.

As you can see, I stay pretty busy. I also do a lot of nagging — "Put your clothes up," "Shoes go in the closet," "pick up the comic books."

The other day, I kept my mouth shut as I went behind each one, picking up and putting things in their right places. I wrote each and every little detail down. I even wrote down the number of extra steps I made that day. At the day's end, I had 15 pages of things I had done, that they should have done. They were amazed at how many little things can cause me so much extra work.

The sneaky part is this: I challenged them to write down every day what they did for me. So far, their list is a lot longer than mine. If one forgets to put something away, another will say, "better hang that jacket up. You're helping Mother's list to grow."

As yet they haven't caught on to my game and I'm taking it, oh, so easy. They keep trying to do things for me, plus trying to keep me from doing things for them.

I can't sign my name because this is something I want to enjoy a long time... "Sneaky"

P.S. It also keeps me on my toes. They delight in finding things I have left out of place. I admit some of it is done just for the purpose of keeping their interest alive.

Ohhhhh, Gal! That's really a sneaky one. And it seems to work like a charm.

Bless you for passing this one along... Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I just want to pass on to your readers my greatest lift of the day for a coffee break.

In the morning when you fill your husband's vacuum bottle of coffee for his lunch, make one for yourself.

When you get the beds made and house clean, all you have to do is sit down and have a fresh cup of coffee with no trouble; it's like being waited on.

Not warmed-over, either! Thank you for listening... Mrs. Elizabeth Palmatier

Dear Heloise:

I make lots of applause to freeze and always hated the long process of digging out the seeds and "scratches," as my husband calls them.

Now I wash the apples, and, leaving the skins on, cut chunks off them, getting as close to the core as possible.

Since looks don't matter, I can really cut lots of apples in a hurry this way.

When they're cooked, I run them through a sieve and the skins stay out of the sauce.

A real bonus is the extra good flavor that cooking with the skins on gives the sauce.

Happy eating!... A.R.L.

Experts Doubt That Poverty Will Decline

"Poverty is a matter of social status. If one man receives less than another, he feels poor, and if he feels poor, he is poor." These words of Shelton Ashley introduced his program, "Poverty and Welfare — America's No. 1 Problem," which he presented to Modern Woman's Forum Friday at the Holiday Inn.

Ashley said experts are beginning to wonder if poverty is a problem that can be solved. Their suspicions are aroused because, so far, nobody has developed an answer to poverty. In spite of the billions of dollars spent by the government to help end poverty through education, counseling, job training and community improvements, the goal is still not in sight.

"Between 1950 and 1969 the number identified as 'poor' declined from 28 per cent to 12 per cent of all Americans," said Ashley, "but many argue that welfare and social service had little to do with the reduction. They attribute it to the unparalleled economic growth that made jobs available to nearly everyone who wanted one."

Ashley said the phrase, "work or starve," no longer has meaning to American people because welfare is accepted as a respectable means of survival. He said it is not surprising that people are beginning to wonder if poverty will ever be solved when we consider that food, clothing and shelter of the American poor today are not much improved over the poverty of earlier generations or over poverty in foreign countries.

Ashley is a business administration major at San Angelo State University. He previously graduated from Big Spring High School and Howard County Junior College, and he attended the University of Texas at Arlington.

Mrs. Fred Whitaker was hostess, and guests were Mrs. Shelton Ashley and Mrs. C. Y. Clinkscapes.

The next meeting is at 3 p.m., April 28 at the First Federal Community Room. Hostesses will be Mrs. H. M. Rowe and Mrs. Harwood Keith.

Motorcyclists Causing Problem At Moss Lake

By BRIAN PEAY
 Motorcycle business is booming in Big Spring and everywhere you look there are people riding motorcycles. According to city officials, the warm weather is bringing many people to city parks currently, and a lot of them are coming on motorcycles, which is causing the usual problem.

The problem became so intense last spring and summer that the commission was forced to legislate an ordinance against riding motorcycles and other motor vehicles on undesignated areas in city parks.

Ronnie Roby, Moss Creek lake patrolman, cited the problem this morning. He said motorcycling at the lake is increasing in undesignated areas.

Roby stopped one cyclist over the weekend and issued the rider a citation for careless driving in an undesignated area.

According to the patrolman, the cyclist was jumping his motorcycle over dirt mounds in front of the concession stand at the lake.

HAZARDOUS
 "We are beginning to have problems with the motorcycle riders running off the fishermen at the lake. They are also causing a potentially hazardous situation for all the visitors at the lake by driving carelessly over the entire park," said Roby.

He said many of the cyclists were running over campers' tents and grounds, and also running into other vehicles at the park.

Roby issued approximately 20 citations last summer for illegal use of motorcycle and illegal swimming at the lake. He said today only warnings to the violators are not enough, and last year the only way to stop numerous violations was to issue citations.

SUBJECT TO FINE
 The ordinance approved by the city council last year states, "It shall be unlawful for any person who is a driver, owner, or operator of any bicycle or motor vehicle to drive, ride, operate or propel same upon, across or over any hill, trails, or other public property located within the boundaries of any city park or recreational area, except upon maintained roads and designed parking areas."

"Any persons violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon lawful conviction thereof shall be subject to a fine not to exceed $200 for each offense."

Moss Creek Lake is a city owned and maintained recreational area.

Last summer the lake patrolman's own child, while playing in his yard at the lake, was hit by a motorcycle. Roby warned this year he will continue to issue citations.

The problem is reportedly not only in the Moss Creek park, but expanding to farmers and ranchers' land around the park facility. According to Roby, many of the cyclists use the roads in the park to gain entrance into surrounding private property. He said land owners have indicated to him they want stricter enforcement to stop this practice.

Although there is an ordinance, city officials are in a quandary, trying to find a solution. Apparently this is due to the problem of a lack of manpower to enforce this and other ordinances of the city.

"The problem has reached to a point where the solution becomes a matter of law enforcement, and there is a problem there also," said Roy Anderson, assistant city manager, this morning.

Anderson said the problem is not only in the Moss Creek park, but also in all of the city parks. He said in a lot of the cases, not only are the cyclists endangering others, but are also ruining the aesthetic value of the land by creating erosion.

Anderson did not attribute the entire blame to motorcyclists, however. He said that cars are also getting off the designated driveways in the parks and are driving onto the recreational areas, causing considerable damage.

He said the police department is stepping up its surveillance of the city parks, and violators will be prosecuted.

Working Man's Best Pal In Presidential Field?

DETROIT (AP) — George C. Wallace told Michigan Democrats over the weekend that he is the working man's best friend in the presidential field, and the other contenders said, don't you believe it.

It was that kind of weekend with everybody slugging nobody emerging a clear winner, but the surety of a coming war over the hearts and votes of laboring America indelibly written.

Party regulars started it and gave Wallace his opening when they failed to invite him to the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner highlighting a three-day Midwest Democratic Conference to map plans for the summer and fall campaigns.

Hubert H. Humphrey, George S. McGovern and Edmund S. Muskie, who were invited, told some 3,000 party and labor leaders at the $35-a-plate dinner that the way to win the voters is through an appeal to their bread-and-butter needs.

But Wallace, who scheduled counter activities, drew an estimated 10,000 fans to a fairgrounds rally where he told them he was their real friend.

Wallace had to deliver his speech twice, the second time to some of the estimated 6,000 people who couldn't squeeze into the downtown auditorium for the first presentation.

"I want to impress upon youth that I have the support of the working man in my state," he said. "It doesn't matter what your leadership says, I am the greatest friend the working man in Alabama has ever had."

Herculean Task

The Tax Council of Texas Cities has assigned itself a tough chore: Draw up a model program for total reform of the municipal property tax system for presentation to the next regular legislative session.

Members of the council, from Texas' 34 largest cities, have an added spur. They want the system reformed by the state before a federal court does it.

Dallas city councilman Garry Weber, head of the council, said the present system is unfair and recent court rulings challenge its constitutionality.

Goal of the reformers is a system which includes uniform taxing in every city, reduction of the number of taxing units, uniform appraisal, valuation and collection and elimination of loopholes and injustices. They also want the system to provide enough money to meet the cities' growing needs.

The council's problem will be drawing up a model which will be acceptable to all Texas cities and their citizens. What is one man's model can be another man's monster. We wish the council well in its search for workable tax reform — it will need all the good will it can get.

Sauce For The Gander

The question has been raised over whether private groups or institutions should benefit from governmental rates (in this case the city's electric power rate).

Even though an institution may be quasi-public in nature or exists to serve a community need, there really isn't too much room for debate. Either this is not a proper practice, or, if it is, then it should be available to all.

Aid Is Cheapest

David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — So much emphasis has been put on the controversy over forced school busing that the fundamental change in the federal government's policy toward education in the nonpublic schools has been to a large extent overlooked.

THERE ARE approximately 5,200,000 children in nonpublic schools in the United States, and every day at least one and sometimes two of the parochial schools are being compelled to close their doors for lack of funds. President Nixon has revealed that if all nonpublic schools collapse, the cost of educating these children in public schools would place on American taxpayers a burden of an additional $3 billion annually in operating costs, plus approximately $10 billion in new school construction. Seventy per cent of the expense would fall upon seven states — California, New York, Illinois, Ohio, New Jersey, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

THE IMPACT would be felt most heavily by central cities, where in some cases as many as one-third of all children attend nonpublic schools and where numerous public-school systems already are on the verge of bankruptcy. Mr. Nixon has pointed out that in Philadelphia the closing of the nonpublic schools would force 148,000 students into the public schools. In Chicago the figure would be more than 200,000, and in New York City, it would be over 300,000. So the problem the nation faces in dealing with the nonpublic schools is not simply to provide assistance for those now in existence but to prevent a situation which would disrupt the present public-school system.

THE PRESIDENT feels that nonpublic schools are needed and should be helped. The government would in no way encourage any form of religion but would furnish aid to the schools for educational purposes. The belief is this can be done by legislation that the courts would hold constitutional and not as a "law respecting an establishment of religion," which, of course, is prohibited. Nonpublic schools, as the President puts it, give parents the opportunity to send their children to institutions they choose. He adds:

"THE REASONABLE preferences of parents in this matter should be respected by governmental authorities. As we consider the nonpublic schools — whether they are Catholic, Protestant, Jewish, or even non-sectarian — they often add the dimension of spiritual values in the educational process. Children who attend these schools are offered a moral code by which to live. At a time when the trend in education is too often toward impersonal materialism, I believe America needs more, rather than less, emphasis on education which emphasizes moral, religious and spiritual values. The American people and their government cannot remain indifferent to the accelerating disappearance of such schools."

THE QUESTION now is not merely one of providing aid to organizations which are educating many of the nation's youth. It has become a problem of major importance to the fiscal operations of governments themselves. If nonpublic schools are assisted in various ways, they can be kept alive without such large appropriations as would be required if they close down for financial reasons. A raise in taxes would be needed to take care of the education of children added to the public schools. Certainly the school situation is threatening to become even more serious unless the federal government, with a relatively small appropriation each year, can help the nonpublic schools to remain in operation.

Plain English

Gerald had the idea and Fred had the money. Over a midnight cup of coffee, they agreed to start manufacturing a new kind of toy. As for profits, they agreed on what they assumed would be a simple formula: a "fifty-fifty" split.

THINGS WENT WELL. Nevertheless, for personal reasons, they decided after a year to bring the venture to an end.

Dividing the profits should have been merely a matter of arithmetic. But Gerald insisted he was entitled to an extra share as wages, on the ground that he alone had put in regular working hours at the company office.

FRED FINALLY won the argument — but only after a costly trip to court. Two years of bitter litigation was the price the partners had to pay for failing to make clear, right at the start, what they meant by the expression "fifty-fifty."

The case illustrates the danger of assuming that "plain English" is always plain. When money or legal rights are at stake, people have an astonishing capacity for putting different interpretations on what might at first have seemed perfectly clear.

CONSIDER THE following words: "fireproof," "cash on hand," "furniture," "unmarried," "immediately," "children." Plain English? But: Does "fireproof" mean that the article positively can't burn?

Parable Of Gator

Around The Rim

Brian Peay

ONCE UPON a time there was a king who just recently had become leader of the land. In fact, he had been in the high position for approximately 1 1/2 years when his subjects began to doubt his ability to rule.

Outward appearance he certainly looked like a king, and even sounded like a king, but some things he and his council were beginning to do made the people of the fair land wonder whether he was the right man for the job.

Then one day something frightful happened that not only cast a bad light on the king and his council, but also on other kings and their councils, who at various times tried to cooperate with him.

The king's realm was badly infested with alligators when he took the throne. The problem was even so vast and terrible, other kings and their councils offered assistance. However, the king and his council turned down the aid because of the monetary liability involved.

Other representatives from other realms also tried to persuade the king that he and his council should tax his subjects for enough monetary assistance to create an alligator district, which would provide the realm with the protection it needed.

HOWEVER, IN one way or another the king's influence brought this idea to an untimely end through the vote of his misinformed subjects.

The king continued to assure his subjects he had an alligator plan. And his subjects even believed him for a time. Who wouldn't, with all the new volunteer alligator out posts placed so strategically around the realm?

Then one day when the alligator season was just beginning, alligators began to pop out all over the kingdom. One was reported on the south side of the realm, and the outpost on the north side of the realm was sent to answer the call.

Also many of the surrounding kingdom's alligator departments were even able to beat the king's department to the scene to an alligator's outbreak in his own domain.

THEN THE inevitable day came, when one of the king's subjects was killed by an alligator.

This infuriated all the people of the kingdom, with both the king and his council, and the surrounding kingdoms' councils. The people were crying for something to be done about the ever present danger of the alligators, and the poor protection given the subjects.

But the king continued to assure his subjects he had an alligator plan that would cost them nothing. Yes, nothing but their homes, property, possession and lives.

Approximately one week after the subject was eaten by the alligator, the realm's wrath began to subside, and again the people began to listen to the empty promises of the king.

Now the question remained? Would he and his council negotiate with the surrounding kingdoms, or would he set up an alligator district and tax his subjects accordingly for the needed protection? Would he endeavor to rectify his and the council's failure, or would he and they continue to doubletalk the populace?

The writer of this story did not know the answer to any of these questions. He only hoped the king and anyone else involved, who may have had a logical answer, would get their heads together before the entire kingdom was eaten by alligators.

OPTIMISM IS SUCH A WONDERFUL THING!

Succinct Conversation

Hal Boyle

By ROBERT E. FORD
(Substituting for Hal Boyle)

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Persons who judge a cowboy's articulateness by the "nope" and "yep" of the movies' Western hero just don't understand the situation.

Cowboys were great talkers in their own way, although a dozen words or less were all they needed to make their point.

In concise expressions, they could describe something so that no one ever forgot it. But the cowboy was not to be accorded literary fame.

For one thing, there usually weren't any writers around.

Yet, out around the rim of the campfire, where there were only flickers of light, a fellow named Ramon F. Adams was busily noting the language.

His scribbles cover somewhere near 80 years; and he has just finished a book, "The Cowboy Says It Salty," published by the University of Arizona Press at Tucson.

Why this ability of cowboys to paint a sharp picture in few words?

Well, for one thing they tried. Pithy comments set a man apart, made him a figure in the region.

And there was plenty of time to compose a sentence just right when riding a fence line or circling all night around a herd of sleeping cattle.

The cowboy could make a verb out of anything and always spoke in the present tense. His use of the double negative was beautiful.

As in this one, combining negatives and present tense: "A cow with a fresh-branded calf might be a mother, but she shore ain't no lady."

Their humor was grotesque, rough, sly and startling, as Adams relates it:

"One cowboy was telling me about his bunkie coming home drunk.

"And you know," he said, "that son-of-a-gun piled into bed just like a rooster."

"Not being sure if he meant merely 'cock-eyed,' I asked: 'How's that?'"

"With his spurs on," he answered as if astonished I did not comprehend his meaning without question."

Or a cryptic explanation of human motives: "I came out here because it's a country where a man can switch his tail."

On drinking to forget your troubles: "A corkscrew never pulled nobody out of a hole."

Probably nothing is as violent in range work as breaking a bronc. Thus it spawned a gold mine of language.

One universal phrase was too graphic and desperate to become any one man's property.

The scene is a just-thrown cowboy jumping up and down "like an empty barrel bound downhill."

Tough Decisions

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Some of the men you are accustomed to seeing quoted in the newspaper wish to remind you that it is easier to criticize the decision than to make it. Could you do any better, they ask?

The rules of the game say that, for no reason whatever, can you dodge the issue. You must make your choice even though the alternatives aren't clear or even understood. And then you must live with your decision.

No. 1. You are a member of the Federal Reserve Board, which largely determines U.S. monetary policy; that is, you have a direct impact on the size of the nation's money supply, or interest rates and related items.

SOP UP SUPPLY European bankers are yelling in your ear that the international monetary system is endangered if the United States doesn't begin stopping up the billions of dollars in U.S. currency circulating abroad.

Those dollars are being used abroad just as if they were a foreign currency, and they are contributing to inflation. Foreign central banks would like to convert them for gold, but convertibility has been suspended. The United States won't let them trade in their dollars.

To exert pressure for higher U.S. interest rates. Those dollars then would be attracted back to the United States in search of higher yields. The pressure would be off. World trade would survive.

At the same time, however, you have a mass of Americans clamoring for low interest rates so that they can afford mortgages and expand their plans and, in general, move the economy ahead.

ON OTHER HAND In fact you are told that, with unemployment relatively high, it is imperative to forcefully expand the economy. Otherwise there is no hope of accommodating an ever-growing labor force.

Which course would you choose, foreign or domestic? The Fed has tilted in favor of the domestic concern, but lately it has shown some indications of trying to appease foreign governments—a straddle, to some extent.

Would you handle it any differently were you in their spot?

No 2. You are a mutual fund portfolio manager with a dismal record, mainly because your solid blue chips haven't moved. You are coming to the close of the quarter, and that means you must report to shareholders.

MORE ANGLES You believe in the stocks you own, but you're not sure others do. After all, they are what are called fundamentally strong stocks, and such stocks seldom bolt ahead like the glamors. Still, when the glamors are tarnished, those blue chips will still be shining.

You consider again. Some of the other funds are going to show those fast-moving issues in their portfolios and they're going to look like geniuses. You, by contrast, will seem like a poke.

You decide to "dress up" your portfolio so the shareholders will think you're with it. They'll never know you bought them at extravagant prices because you don't have to tell them the date of purchase.

Would you have chosen to face the wrath of shareholders instead?

Immigration Policy

WASHINGTON D.C. — Since the early days of our Nation some of the most heated legislative battles have centered around our immigration policies. Several occurred in the years following World War II and since that time immigration quotas have been considerably liberalized.

THERE IS pending legislation to grant entry into this country of relatives of citizens, which would have the potential of increasing the over-all quota considerably.

This issue has always been sensitive since the make-up of the Congress represents many ethnic origins, each with a sympathy towards the country of its forebears. Especially is this true with the Italians of which there are approximately 15 in the House of Representatives. The Irish are also in prominence.

A PRESIDENTIAL commission on population growth addresses itself to this question in its third and concluding report. The Commission gives weight to the effect of immigrants on the United States population growth in the immediate years ahead. It recognized that our immigration laws have reflected a compassion for the oppressed and the tradition should not be tossed aside, although the problem of overpopulation must and should be reckoned with.

THE REPORT says the time has come to look at our immigration policy in the light of a number of considerations. Because fertility rates in the United States have been declining, immigrants now account for a substantial part of our population growth. It makes the point that 400,000 immigrants entering the United States yearly now represent one-fifth of the total annual increase. If immigration continues at this level, the report says, and if all families were to average two children each, then immigrants arriving between 1970 and the year two thousand, plus their descendants, would number 15 million and account for nearly one quarter of the total population increase during this period.

THE COMMISSION did make one clear recommendation. It appears to be the easy one and reflects some sentiments being voiced in the Congress. This is to pass legislation imposing civil and criminal sanctions on employers who knowingly hire illegal border-crossers.

It is hardly reasonable that an employer should have to determine whether an employee had the proper credentials or not. This burden should not be placed on the employer but since the Bracero Labor Law was repealed under the influence of the labor unions, the "wetback" practice has been the only way many Mexicans across the border could find a way to make a living. The type of labor sought by farmers and ranchers was not and is not available among our own citizens.

My Answer

Billy Graham

My husband served overseas, and I found a girl's address in one of his shirt pockets when he returned. He admitted being unfaithful to me with this girl, but asked me to forgive him. He is a good husband, doesn't drink nor smoke, and loves his family. But, I can't bring myself to forgive him for his unfaithfulness. What can I do?

N.A. Many non-Christian married men indulge in fornication, not because they love their temporary mate, but for sexual relief. I do not condone this, but I am saying it is not an uncommon occurrence.

You do not state whether you are a Christian or not. But, my advice to you is: since your husband has asked you to forgive him, and you say he is a faithful husband, and loves his family; you should forgive this incident and thank God there have been no more.

To harbor bitterness and unforgiving spirit can bring ill health, and can further complicate your problem. Everyone hopes to seek and find the forgiveness of God before they die, and give an account to their Maker. Jesus said: "If ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your heavenly Father forgive your trespasses." Matthew 6:15. An unforgiving spirit is an indication of pride and self-centeredness. Yes, your husband did wrong in breaking the vows he made at the altar of God. But, if you will not forgive him, then your sin is as great, or greater, for the sins of the spirit are more serious than the sins of the flesh.

A Devotion For Today...

Only be sure that you act on the message and do not merely listen; for that would be to mislead yourselves. (James 1:22, NEB)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, help me to diligently search my heart, so that my actions will be in accord with Your Word. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

Here's Why

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Someone wanted to know why some people come into a restaurant and sit at a dirty table when there are clean tables they could just as easily sit at.

Well, I'm a waitress, and I think I know.

—Some folks like to have a table that is "not" near the rest rooms. (And some want one "near" the rest rooms.)

—Some like to sit near the music. (Others sit as far away from the music as they can get.)

—They don't want to be near the kitchen. (Too noisy and too much hustling and busting of the help.)

—Some like to sit where they can watch the door to see who comes in.

—Some want a table where they would have to leave your lifelong friends and part of your family, and your lovely, comfortable home and move to another state where you know no one and would have to practically start all over again, what would you do?

WONDERING DEAR ABBY: Are you kidding? I would go with him and never look back. And I have done it three times!

DEAR ABBY: My husband prefers long hair, so I let mine grow long. Recently, I decided to get a little trimmed off the ends to get a permanent.

I called a beauty shop and made an appointment. The owner of the shop told the operator what I wanted done, and then I told the operator that I wanted only a little trimmed off the ends.

I then took off my glasses so they wouldn't be in the way. The operator proceeded to chop off my hair, and it ended up very short. I was upset, but said nothing, thinking if the end result looked nice it would be all right.

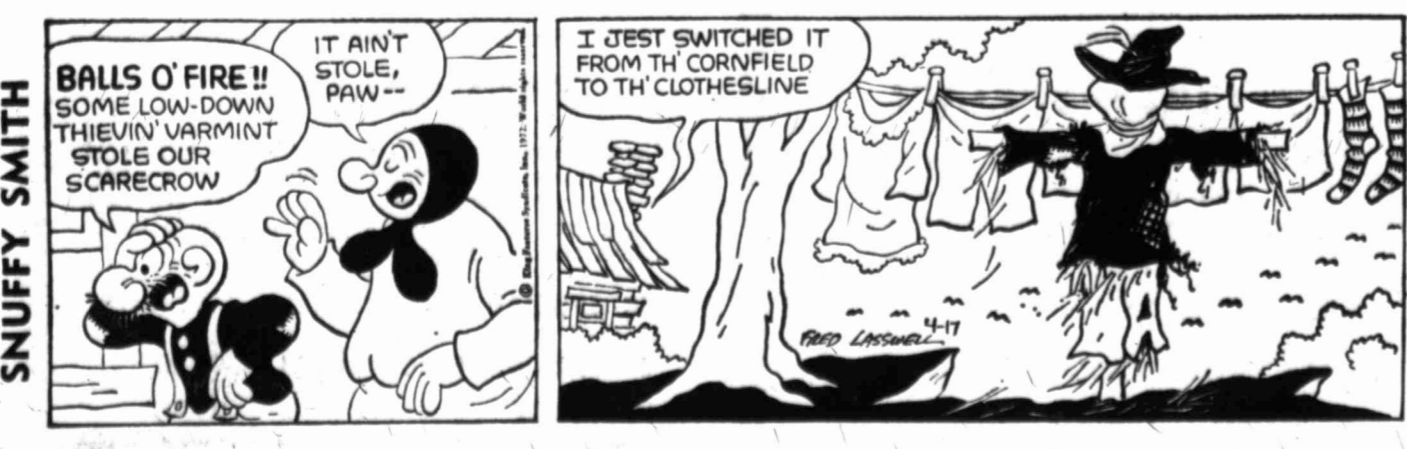

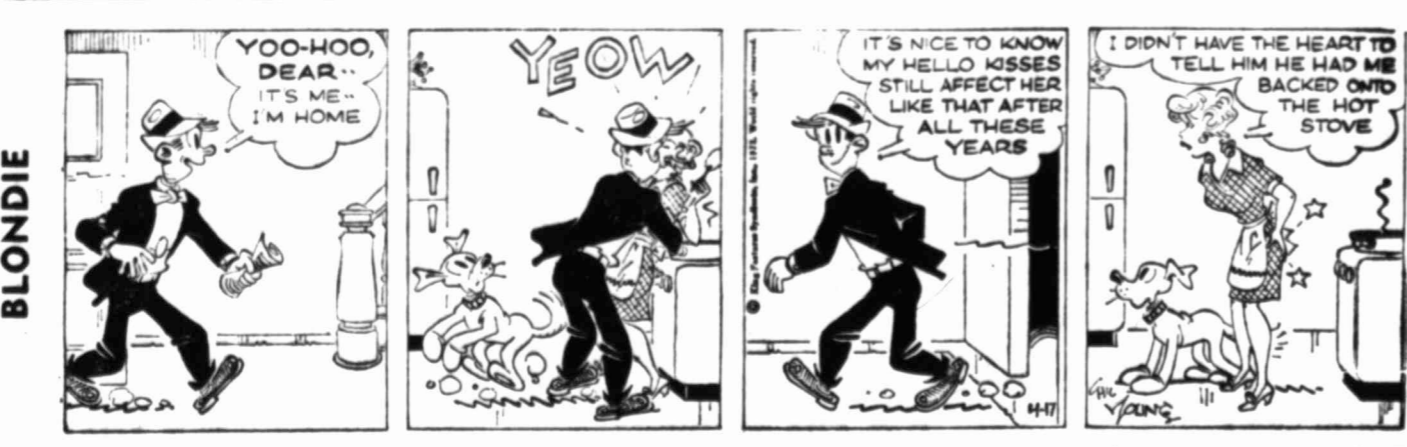

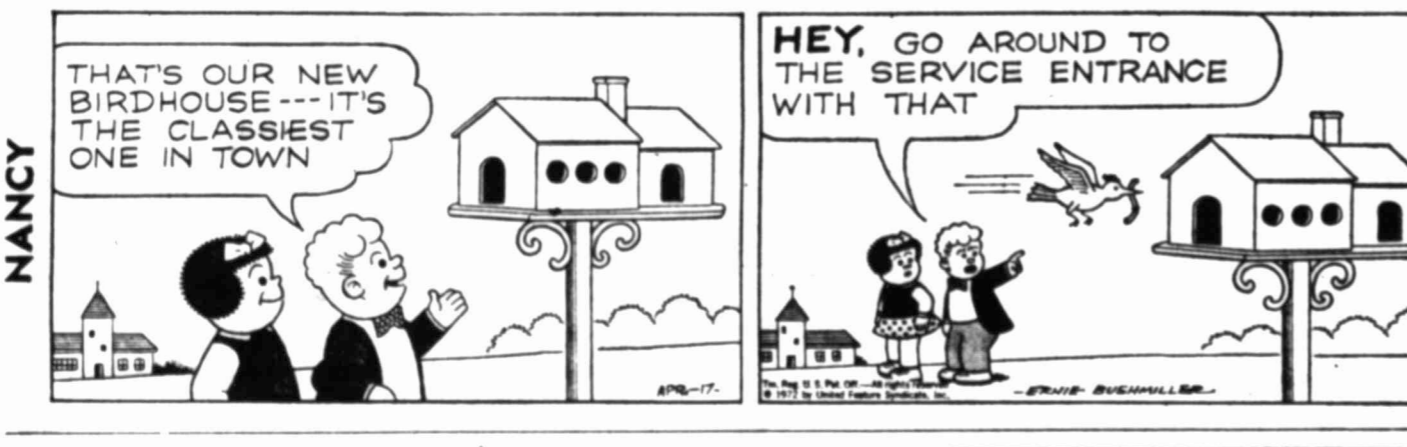

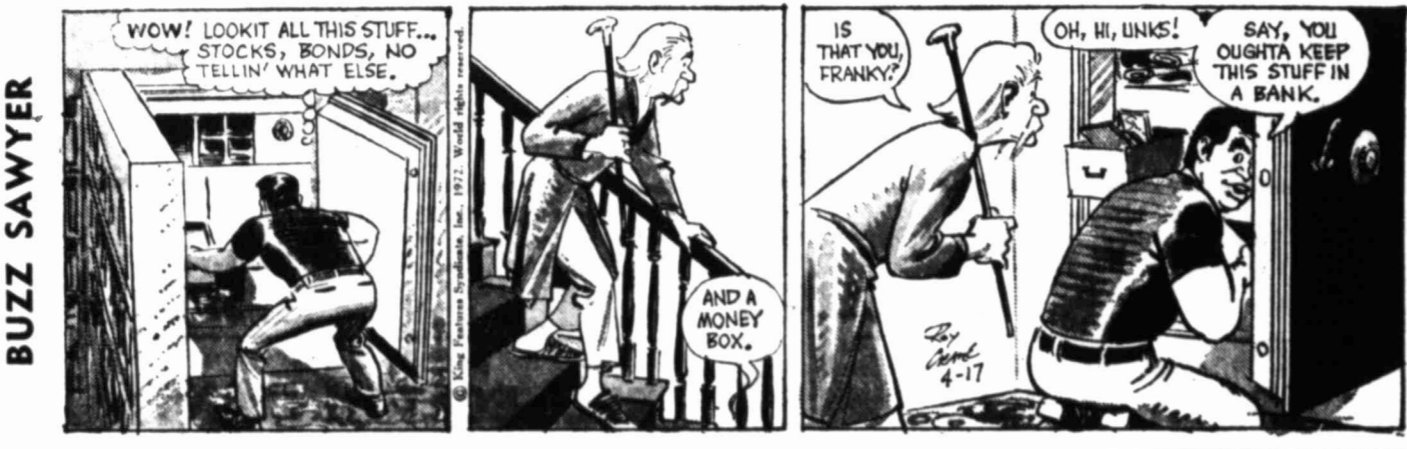

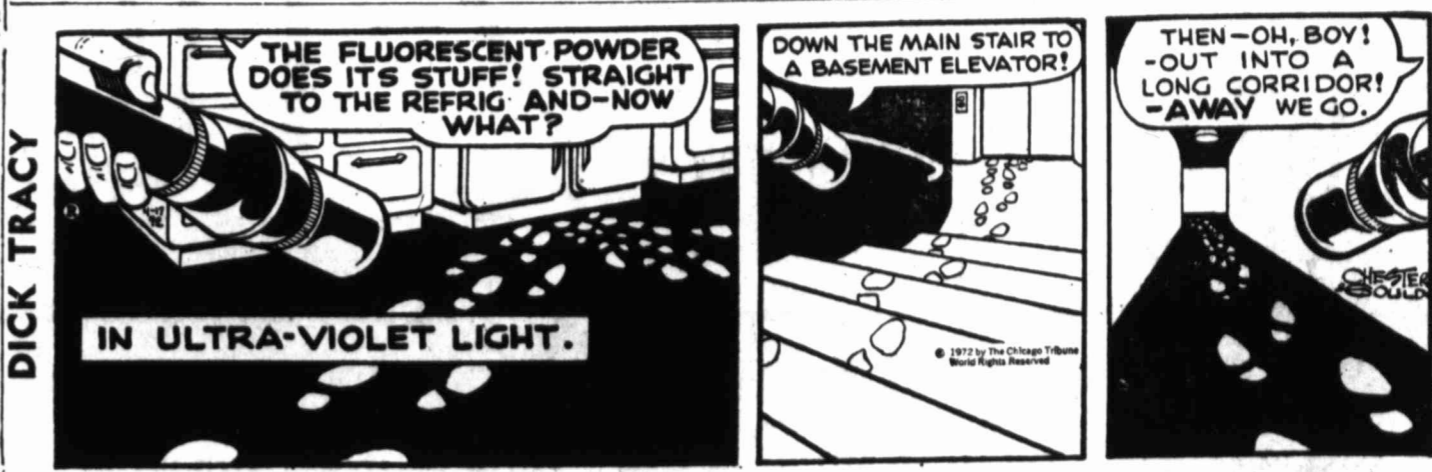

When I tried to tell the operator what style I wanted for my hair, she said they didn't do that there, and then she gave me an awful, childish hairdo. When I complained to the owner, all she said was "I'm sorry." What recourse do I have? Can an operator in a beauty shop just chop off hair without any responsibility to the customer? I'd appreciate any help you can give me. LOOKS AWFUL

DEAR LOOKS: Customers have been known to sue beauty parlors for damages. But in order to collect, the customer must prove that she has suffered a financial loss, physical pain, or disfigurement, or mental anguish as a result of their services. This will be difficult for you to establish unless your husband cuts off your allowance because you've cut off your hair.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Need Ventilation

Your Good Health
Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a fuel. Anything that burns — wood, coal, oil, kerosene, gas, peat, anything burnable — produces some carbon monoxide. The more enclosed the fire is, the more monoxide will be formed (as opposed to carbon dioxide, which will form instead if there is ample air and complete combustion).

Carbon monoxide, while you can't see it or smell it, is a deadly gas if you get too much of it. And it doesn't take much. A few parts per million in the air around you.

One of its characteristics is that it makes people sleepy first. Too often, where a house (mobile or otherwise) is closed up tight and a heater or stove with as good ventilation as is producing monoxide, the occupants go to sleep and never wake up. I can't tell from your letter whether yours is a cooking stove or a heater (or both) but the only safe thing is for you to make certain that it is properly vented — has a chimney or a vent pipe that goes outside, and not accumulate inside your home.

With the older types of fuel (wood, coal, etc.) everybody knew you had to have an adequate vent or chimney. Otherwise the smoke would drive you out of the place.

The danger in gas stoves (most any kind of gas) is that they burn with very little smoke. Therefore, people don't have the need of a vent forced on them. But without a vent, the carbon monoxide gathers!

Be sure there's a vent pipe from the stove to the outside, and that it is open. Have it checked. For one thing, by all means see whether your local health department doesn't have facilities for checking this. Many do.

Do so without delay. Drowsiness (and often headaches) will occur when monoxide is present. A little more monoxide and the consequences are worse. Much worse.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband and I are in the 60s and know that milk should be a part of your diet at that age. We are trying to keep our weight down and drink 2 percent fat milk. Does the 2 percent milk give us the same value of calcium that we need for bone protection, etc.? — Mrs. G.M.

Yes. Either skim milk or 2 percent milk has just as much calcium; all that is removed is some of the fat — which you call well do without, if you are controlling your weight.

Note to Mrs. C.M.: "Keeping the skin soft" would not solve trouble with bunions. It is a deformity of the first toe joint. See a foot specialist. There isn't any home remedy for bunions that will do the job.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Thosteson's newly revised booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is and encouraging sinus sufferers to do something about it. For a copy write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code).

Alice Really Hot And Dry

Light showers sprayed the Upper Rio Grande Valley overnight but elsewhere across Texas skies were chock full of stars. Weathermen said it would turn cloudy and hot in the Valley today with fair and mild conditions in the rest of the state.

Dalhart was the cool spot in Texas during the night with readings in the high 40s while Del Rio had overnight lows in the 70s.

It was hot and dry in Texas Sunday, Alice had 99 degrees.

A weak low pressure system west of the Pecos River will keep temperatures warm and winds light and southwesterly for the next day or two.

Aside from a few tantalizing showers, weathermen predict no significant rainfall for dry, thirsty Texas.

Lucie Arnaz Picks Up Cool $23,450

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lucie Arnaz, 20, daughter of comedienne Lucille Ball, has called at the Los Angeles County Clerk's office to collect $23,450 in savings bonds being held in trust for her from a 1968 television contract.

The bonds had been held in trust almost four years under a court order.

When Miss Arnaz signed a television contract with Lucille Ball Products May 1, 1968, the court set as a condition that 20 per cent of her earnings be invested in bonds until she became an adult or was married.

Miss Arnaz qualified on both counts Friday, with the adult age now lowered to 18 and her marriage last July 17 to director-producer Phil Vandervort.

Leaders To Meet

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The heads of state of Egypt, Libya and Algeria will meet in the Algerian capital early next month, the Middle East News Agency said Friday.

What do you bid now?
A.—Two no trump. While we prefer, wherever possible, to take the pressure off partner, we have not sufficient values in this case to do so, having only 11 points in high cards.

Q. 3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ 6 2 ♠J 7 5 ♦AQ 9 4 ♠6 4

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠
Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Four diamonds. A strong bid is in order. Partner's two heart bid constitutes a so-called "reverse" and should be based on at least 19 points. Your hand is worth 12 points in support of diamonds. A slam is therefore not remote and it is recommended that the display of strength be made below the game level.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K 8 4 3 ♠5 4 ♦10 5 4 ♠K10 5 2

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West

3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Four spades. While this hand contains the minimum in high cards you should carry on, the partner's raise is not forcing. The club fit is the determining factor. Reverse the hearts and clubs and a doubtful situation would exist.

Q. 5—Both vulnerable, opponents have 60 part score, and as South you hold:
♠K 9 7 5 3 ♠6 2 ♠A 9 3 ♦10 5 2

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 NT Pass Pass Dble.
Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Two spades. Under normal conditions, holding more than six points, you should pass the no trump bid for penalties, but in this particular case it pays to be a little more cautious. Since one no trump puts the enemy "out," partner may have stretched a point to double in order to put up some sort of fight. You should, therefore, keep your powder dry by bidding two spades.

Q. 6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠6 2 ♠AK10 9 8 ♦7 5 3 ♠K 9 5

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ 1 ♠
1 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner has announced a strong hand by making a free rebid of one no trump after the adverse spade bid. The suggested call is a raise to three no trump.

Q. 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠8 ♠QJ 8 6 ♦A 9 7 4 3 ♠K10 5

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Three hearts. This hand has splendid distributional values, and if a good suit fit can be found a slam is not at all remote. Partner's jump to two no trump does not deny possession of a four card heart suit and the tempturing bid is strongly recommended.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A 8 4 ♠AK 8 3 ♠AJ 7 ♠QJ 8

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Three hearts. The four card major which you suppressed on the first round should be announced at this point. This is preferable to showing the diamond support. If the bidding progresses constructively, diamond support may be shown tactically.

Police Arrest Pamphleter

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A civilian was arrested and a young wife was threatened with arrest at Ft. Sam Houston Saturday in the wake of a Friday incident that left 10 Army privates in detention cells.

Pleas McNeel, former editor of a liberal newspaper periodical here, was arrested at the provost marshal's office when he gave a pamphlet to a woman reporter.

Lt. Col. Houston Roby, the provost marshal, threatened to arrest Robin Tabor, 18, when she tried to embrace her husband, William, 20, of Logan, Utah, as he was escorted from detention.

Pvt. Tabor and nine other soldiers, most of them conscientious objectors, were arrested Friday after officials said they refused to leave formation for a work detail.

Army spokesmen said it was not at once determined how long McNeel will be detained. They said it appeared the 10 privates will be held at least until a federal court hearing for three of the soldiers.

The soldiers said in a statement issued to newsmen Friday that they were being punished for planning to hold a "peace festival" at a local park Sunday.

ODESSA, MIDLAND VICTIMS Violence In Texas

Traffic in Texas over the weekend proved once again to be more lethal than guns, knives, fires, water, airplanes or other causes of violent death.

The Associated Press began its regular weekend tabulation of deaths by violent means at 6 p.m. Friday and continued the log until midnight Sunday.

The death toll at midnight Sunday stood at 25 with 16 persons killed in traffic accidents.

The tally showed four others died in gunfire while another four drowned. A Dallas coed fell to her death at Rocksprings.

Here is the way some met death over the weekend:

Daniel Cantu, 17, of Gonzales was killed and four persons injured about midnight Saturday when an automobile went out of control near Cuero and skidded into a fence post and then hit a tree.

NEAR ANDREWS

Two persons, one from Midland and one from Odessa, died in a two-car collision 20 miles southeast of Andrews at the intersection of farm road 1788 and a paved country road.

Police identified them as Robert George Blackwood, 38, of Midland, and Floyd Raymond Hezberg, 68, of Odessa.

Angelina Palmer, a Dallas girl, was killed Saturday when she fell from about 130 feet into Devil's Sink Hole near Rocksprings. Witnesses said a knot in a rope became untied dropping Miss Palmer to her death.

Sandra Zigler, 22, of Houston was killed Saturday night when a car in which she was a passenger was struck broadside. The driver of the second car, which ran a red light, police said, was charged with murder with a vehicle.

NO ARREST

Robert Wayne Pope, 32, of Houston was shot to death on the parking lot of a Houston lounge early Sunday. Police said they had no suspects.

Allen R. Conry, 24, of Houston was shot to death Sunday in a Houston apartment house. Alice, who said Conry was hit twice, had made no arrest in the shooting.

Ronald Savoy, 21, of Beaumont drowned near the Carroll Street docks in Beaumont when he fell into the Neches River. Investigators said Savoy apparently lost his footing.

RESTRICTED AREA

Lewis Wright, 17, of Haltom City drowned Sunday while swimming in Grapevine Lake. Authorities said the youth was swimming in a restricted area near the spillway.

Robert Eugene Robinette, 47, of Corpus Christi drowned Sunday while trying to rescue his son who had floated too far out from shore on an inner-tube. The son was rescued by another swimmer, but Robinette's body had not been found at dusk Sunday.
