Senate Votes 20 Per Cent Hike In SS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate adopted today a 20 per cent across-the-board increase in Social Security benefits — the biggest such boost in history.

The vote was 82 to 4. The Senate action came in the face of a warning by President Nixon that such an increase would either strain the economy or push taxes up for millions of workers.

DEBT CEILING

The increase was added as a rider to a bill extending for four months the present $450-billion national debt ceiling.

The amendment, sponsored by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, also would raise payroll taxes in 1973 and further in 1974 to pay for the boost.

In addition, it would put into effect for the first time automatic cost-of-living adjustments in Social Security.

An amendment to substitute a 10 per cent increase for the 20 per cent increase was defeated 66 to 20.

The Church amendment would provide $8.5 billion in annual additional benefits for the 27.8 million recipients, the largest increase since the system was first set up in 1935.

The effective date for the 20 per cent would be Sept. 1 so that it first would be reflected in checks received Oct. 3, a month before the presidential national elections.

The debt limit legislation was expected to clear the Senate by mid-day and go back to the House.

There Republican leaders were threatening to block any action on the 20 per cent today although they said they might be willing to take 10 per cent.

The adoption of the Church amendment represented a Senate decision to lift the general Social Security increase out of the big Social Security-Welfare bill which passed the House last year and which has been pending more than 12 months in the Senate Finance Committee.

ALL THE WAY

Church said it appeared the bitter controversy over welfare reform in the bill might never be settled so that it was necessary for Congress to go ahead on the across-the-board Social Security hike.

The House in passing the big bill, voted for a 5 per cent Social Security increase.

But since that time Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, has said he favors 20 per cent and that this can be soundly financed. Mills helped draft the Church amendment.

The increase would be paid in all the three Social Security cash programs — retirement, family survivor and disability.

It would boost the average payment for an individual, now $129 a month, to $158. For a couple, the average would go from $223 to $271.

WALLACE WILL LEAVE HOSPITAL

SILVER SPRING, MD. (AP) — Gov. George Wallace will leave Holy Cross Hospital next Friday to go to the Democratic National Convention in Miami Beach with a waystop at Montgomery, Ala., his press secretary said today.

Wallace, who has been receiving physical therapy in the hope that he will regain use of his legs, will fly in an Air Force ambulance plane provided by President Nixon.

At Montgomery's Municipal Airport, Dannelly Field, the Alabama governor will make a short speech from a platform set up beside the plane, his press secretary Billy Joe Camp said.

By stopping on Alabama soil, Wallace will once again become the legal governor of the state — a technicality in the law.

LT. Gov. Jere Beasley has been acting in Wallace's place.

Wallace has been in Holy Cross Hospital since May 15, when he was shot at a political rally in nearby Laurel, in his Campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The governor underwent a second operation June 18 for a bullet lodged near his spinal cord.

'IT'S LIKE HAVING ONE FOOT OUT OF THE GRAVE'

Death Rule Reaction Mixed

By The Associated Press

"They ought to let us out in the yard for our own Independence Day," rejoiced one Washington death row inmate upon learning that the U.S. Supreme Court had barred capital punishment as it is now imposed.

But if the news was generally welcomed in U.S. prisons, some public officials and law officers took strong exception to the decision handed down Thursday. Utah Atty. Gen. Vernon G. Romney called the ruling "one of the most terrible decisions we've had out of the Supreme Court in years. It is probably the biggest judicial afterthought in history."

Several officials predicted the ruling would have a major long-range impact on parole procedures. Legislators in some states said they would work to reinstate capital punishment, an option which the court left open under certain circumstances.

Whatever the ultimate effect, the immediate reaction on death rows was cheering, elation and relief—but also some measure of concern about what would happen next.

"It's like having one foot out of the grave," said Curtis X. Davis, 25, a convicted murderer in Pennsylvania. "It's quite a relief."

"They ought to let us out in the yard for our own Independence Day," declared Ernest James Tyler, 43, oldest man on Death Row at Washington State Penitentiary at Walla Walla.

In Michigan City, Ind., several of the death row inmates were less than happy with the decision. "I had a better chance of winning an appeal with the death penalty," said Charles A. Frith, 31, of East Chicago.

"I don't care for the ruling," said George R. Brown, 40, of Hobart, on death row for nearly 15 years. "I can't live with the type of prisoners they have here now."

Law enforcement and public officials gave varying reactions to the ruling. "I have long felt that the death penalty had not proved to be a deterrent to crime," said Washington Gov. Dan Evans. "States that have had a death penalty have not had less crime than those states that have not had it."

Mississippi Gov. Bill Waller commented, "I believe we can have better law enforcement with the death penalty... as a deterrent it is valuable."

Georgia Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox attacked the ruling as "a license for anarchy, rape, murder." He predicted strong vigilante groups would form within five years.

The Illinois Senate passed emergency legislation to keep 500 persons charged with murder from being automatically freed on bail.

Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo, a former police chief, termed the ruling "a mistake" but noted that it came from the nation's highest court and said, "The law abiding people will uphold the law of the land."

Court Ruling Leaves Caton Wondering About Effects

Thursday's announcement of the U.S. Supreme Court ruling that the death penalty violates the U.S. Constitution and can no longer be imposed has left 118th District Judge R. W. Caton unsure of what the effect of the ruling is.

"I have not yet seen a copy of the decision, and from the information that has come out in the news so far, I can not tell if it was truly a majority opinion of the court," said Judge Caton.

"It could have been that four judges concurred in saying that the death penalty was 'cruel and unusual' punishment and therefore unconstitutional, one judge might have concurred in saying that the death penalty was unconstitutional but only in certain cases, and the remaining four dissented," said Judge Caton.

NOT MAJORITY
"If the four judges ruling capital punishment unconstitutional did not join with the fifth judge in his opinion that capital punishment was unconstitutional only in some cases, then it is not a majority opinion of the court," added Judge Caton.

"This is merely the personal opinion, philosophical opinion of nine men. They are invading the domain of the individual states in this matter," said Judge Caton.

Judge Caton said that the Supreme Court's opinion is based on the eighth amendment regarding cruel and unusual punishment to the Constitution but the 10th amendment was not taken into consideration.

The 10th amendment, according to Judge Caton, states that all powers not designated as federal powers and denied the states are automatically state powers, such as setting punishment for crime.

"What we have long been needing in Texas, regardless of the Supreme Court's action on capital punishment, is an amendment to the state Constitution whereby capital cases as they now exist — murder, rape, armed robbery and some cases of perjury resulting in wrongful execution and arson from which death results — the jury can recommend no clemency," said Judge Caton.

Clemency is an executive power held by state governors and the President. If this amendment was passed by the state legislature, the executive powers of clemency would not apply in cases in which the jury or the judge setting punishment had recommended no clemency," said Judge Caton.

Clemency is the executive right to grant full pardons, paroles and commutations of sentences.

"This amendment has been recommended as a substitute for the death penalty. With a recommendation of a life sentence with no clemency, a convicted person would go to prison and never come out," said Judge Caton.

"This should be made to apply to habitual criminals as well. Ninety per cent of our major crimes committed are committed by persons with long prison records," he said.

"Convicts with records of 10-12 felony convictions are not rehabilitation material. They can not be reformed to make a useful contribution to society. If we had the amendment giving juries and judges the right to recommend no clemency," said Judge Caton.

EXTRA SECOND

Today Is Longest Day In Your Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today will be the longest day in your life. Every other day since man began recording time has had 86,400 seconds. At 8 p.m. EDT, midnight Greenwich Mean Time, today the world's timekeepers will add an extra second.

The purpose is to correct a discrepancy in time-keeping due to tiny changes in the earth's rotation.

The changes were discovered in 1958 with the development of atomic clocks so accurate it would take 50,000 years for one of them to gain or lose a second.

SPECIAL GAS
Conventional clocks measure time based on the assumption that the earth takes exactly 24 hours to rotate on its axis. Atomic clocks record time by registering vibrations of atoms making up a molecule of a special gas.

These clocks have noted a tiny slowing in the earth's rotation. To compensate, the world's master clocks since 1958 have been subject to fairly frequent, very minor corrections of a thousandth of a second here and there.

But astronomers of the U.S. Naval Observatory, the nation's official timekeeper, say the necessity for such frequent changes poses potential dangers.

WRONG WAY
"Every time you correct a clock, you stand a chance of correcting it the wrong way," said Dr. R. Glenn Hall, assistant director of the Observatory's time division.

His chief, Dr. Gernot M. R. Winkler, said navigators at sea or aloft, who need accurate clocks in navigating by the stars, "must be protected from clock errors of possible fatal consequences."

Ballard Appeal Denied In Hearing At Alpine

New trial was denied Whitmer Jean Ballard, convicted murderer, Thursday in Alpine by 112th District Judge Charles E. Sherrill.

Ballard was convicted in March in a changed venue trial in Alpine of the Dec. 2, 1970, shotgun murder of Steve Currie, 72, Glasscock County rancher. Currie was shot to death by an intruder in his ranch home near Garden City.

Judge Sherrill said today that

Ballard could appeal the denial of his motion for new trial through the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. Ballard's court-appointed defense lawyer, Bobby Bearden, Midland, indicated Thursday that he would stay with the case through appeal proceedings, according to Judge Sherrill.

EXPENSIVE
Glasscock County Judge D. W. Parker said today that Ballard's Alpine trial cost

Glasscock County approximately $30,000.

"This includes lawyer's fees, expenses, meals for jurors, meals, transportation and lodging for witnesses and officers and costs of transcripts of the trial," said Judge Parker.

"The total cost of the Ballard trial and the trial of Orville Davis is going to cost the county $50,000. We have not gotten the bill yet from Court Reporter Jerry Spence on the cost of the transcript of Ballard's trial, but Spence told me it would be approximately $8,000," added Judge Parker.

According to Judge Parker, the trial of Davis, also charged with Currie's murder, cost Glasscock County $20,000.

Davis was tried in Midland on a charge of venue from Glasscock County and sentenced to life in prison.

A third defendant, Benjamin T. (Tommy) Tisdale, is awaiting trial in San Angelo, at Glasscock County expense.

MISCONDUCT ALLEGED

Thursday, Bearden moved for a new trial for Ballard on allegations of jury misconduct and an affidavit from Ballard stating that Mrs. Benjamin Tisdale had told Ballard that someone else had shot and killed Currie.

When called to testify Thursday, Mrs. Tisdale invoked the fifth amendment in refusing to answer all but two questions.

Judge Sherrill said that he could not sustain the claim of jury misconduct because Bearden had not presented signed affidavits from any of the jurors attesting to the alleged misconduct.

Judge Sherrill allowed jurors to testify during the hearing. He said that their testimony could be used in future appeals in Ballard's behalf.

PLANS MORE PEACE TALKS — President Nixon gestures during a White House news conference Thursday night in Washington. Nixon announced, during his first broadcast news conference in more than a year, the United States will resume its peace negotiations with North Vietnam.

(AP WIREPHOTO)

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has announced the United States will return to Vietnam peace talks in Paris on July 13 because he sees "a chance for more serious discussions."

Holding his first television-radio news conference in 13 months, Nixon gave no clue Thursday night to the nature of presumed secret dickering that is bringing both sides back to the conference table.

In fact, he coupled his veiled optimism with a statement that "we have been disappointed in the past with regard to these discussions"—suggesting history might repeat itself.

LAUDS AGNEW

The Paris talks have been in the deepfreeze since early May. During a 43-minute session in the floodlit East Room of the White House, the seemingly relaxed chief executive also:

—Repeated high praise for Vice President Spiro T. Agnew but declared he won't make known his choice of a 1972 campaign running mate until the Aug. 21 Republican National Convention draws nearer.

—Expressed hope the courts will uphold the death penalty as a deterrent to such federal crimes as kidnapping and sky-jacking.

—Endorsed, in perhaps stronger language than before, legislation to tighten controls over cheap and readily available handguns.

HANDGUN LAW

"I have always felt there should be a federal law for the control of handguns... The problem there is to write the law... in such a way that it is precise and deals with that kind of handgun which ought to be controlled."

—Cautioned Congress against adequately financed increase in Social Security benefits.

—Saw the economy making great strides, while cautioning that he plans to do more to reduce unemployment.

Vietnam was the dominant topic.

Nixon said the United States "will return to the negotiating table with the North Vietnamese are prepared to negotiate in a serious and constructive way. We will be prepared to negotiate in that way."

EXPECT DRIVE

He reaffirmed a May 8 offer to withdraw all Americans within four months in return for a supervised Indochina cease-fire and the return of American prisoners plus an accounting for those missing.

At another point, Nixon again claimed success for his Vietnamization program while declining to say exactly when Saigon forces might be able to operate effectively without U.S. supporting airpower.

"We expect, perhaps, some more North Vietnamese offensive," he said, "but I believe now the ability of the South Vietnamese to defend themselves on the ground, with the support we give them in the air, has been demonstrated."

Nixon said the action of Air Force Gen. John Lavelle in approving unauthorized bombing strikes against Northern targets "did not affect the diplomatic negotiations." But he said the forced retirement and demotion of Lavelle was proper and "will assure that kind of activity may not occur in the future."

In defending his request for money to fund new offensive-weapon programs, while seeking congressional approval of his Moscow-summit arms accords, Nixon contended both countries understand the other will go forward with new weaponry pending hoped-for broader arms curbs.

While discussing Vietnam, he philosophized about East-West negotiations in broad terms that apparently could be given broad application.

Found Guilty Of $500,000 Air Piracy

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Richard Floyd McCoy, 29, a Vietnam veteran and former Sunday school teacher, was found guilty Thursday night of air piracy in the $500,000 sky-jacking and parachute jump from a United Air Lines plane in April.

'NUMBER, PLEASE' — Dick Randolph is surrounded by attractive young ladies during his working day as a switchboard operator for Mountain Bell at Denver. There are several hundred men now working as operators across the country. Randolph reports that some of the customers get belligerent when a male voice answers. "This is the operator, may I help you?" Randolph takes his place at the switchboard daily in a line of 100 women.

McCoy was convicted of commandeering a Boeing 727 with 85 other passengers aboard over western Colorado the night of April 7 and diverting it off its Denver-Los Angeles route to San Francisco where the passengers were let off and $500,000 ransom put aboard.

The prosecution presented four days of testimony in U.S. District Court, calling more than 30 witnesses and introducing 50 pieces of evidence against the former law enforcement student who sat expressionless as the verdict was read. His wife, Kathy, broke into tears.

FBI agents found all but $30 in McCoy's Provo, Utah, home two days after the hijacking. They also found a gun, flight suits, maps and an inert hand grenade.

The defense said there would be an appeal.

FBI fingerprint and handwriting experts linked McCoy to items aboard the plane and notes used to direct the plane's course.

TRIGGERS REVIEW Freed Poisoner Kills Two Men

LONDON (AP) — The British government today began a review of the handling of criminally insane persons pronounced cured after a freed poisoner was convicted of doing it again.

Home Secretary Reginald Maudling called for a check on all 331 persons released from the Broadmoor Prison Mental Hospital in the past 12 years. He ordered that no criminal be discharged from mental hospitals until he had been pronounced cured by an independent panel, instructed that the procedures for supervision after release be strengthened and appointed two committees to study the laws on the subject.

FATAL DOSES

This resulted from the sentencing Thursday of Graham Frederick Young, 24, to life imprisonment for giving fatal doses to two men he worked with and poisoning others who survived.

Because a defendant's previous record is not allowed in evidence prior to the verdict, it was not until the jury found Young guilty that the judge was told he had served nine years in Broadmoor for poisoning his father, his sister and a classmate, all of whom recovered. He had been released as a "model inmate."

But even while a teen-ager in Broadmoor, Young was "experimenting" on other patients.

Police gave this case history for Young: A quiet, reserved boy, at 11 he collected mice and beetles and killed them in experiments. Neighbors recalled cats and dogs collapsing with unexplained ailments. He was at the top of his class in chemistry until the family started getting sick and he wound up in Broadmoor at the age of 14, sentenced to 15 years. It might have been longer, but the only fatality, his stepmother, occurred before suspicion fell on the boy, and she was cremated.

MASS
In the institution he read medical and murder books from a traveling library, examined poisonous berries on the grounds and experimented with other patients' cocoa by bubbling carbon monoxide from a gas stove through it. Those victims just got high, but Young boasted to other inmates: "One day I'll go into the history books as a mass murderer."

In February 1971, Broadmoor officials decided he should be set free and the Home Office approved. Young went to a government retraining center, did well, and was recommended to a photo laboratory to fill a vacancy.

Young slipped poison into snacks eaten by two men at the laboratory, and they died. When various other employees came down with mysterious ailments, lost their hair and developed numerous symptoms of poisoning, Young was arrested. At his home the police found diaries listing the poisons administered to each of his victims.

"His release from Broadmoor was a serious error of judgment," said Young's lawyer after the trial.

Texas Legislators Taking Today Off

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The 31-member Senate voted to lock the doors.

Another proposal specifically prohibits the hiring of legislators' relatives for Senate jobs such as clerks and secretaries.

"There's nothing wrong with the rules we have that a change in personnel won't correct," protested Sen. William T. Moore, Bryan, who added that the Senate should wait until the next regular session in January to work on rules.

After a 15-15 vote defeated an attempt by El Paso Sen. Joe Christie to open up an executive session of the Senate Thursday, senators rejected in a secret session the governor's appointment of Richard Moore III as the first student regent in Texas.

Moore, a black, was appointed last Feb. 14 as a regent at predominantly black Texas Southern University in Houston. Moore, 28, is a University of Texas law student.

Area Civilians Are Given Briefing At Webb AFB

Webb AFB was host to area peace officers, civil defense officials and members of the news media, Thursday, at which time visitors were briefed on matters relating to the roles of civil officials at the scene of military aircraft accidents.

A progress report on the Air Force's MAST program, which will make military facilities e.g., helicopters, available to civilian authorities in cases of emergency, was also given.

Maj. Richard Barr, assistant operations officer at Webb, said the program would be fully implemented in September and cities within a 75-mile radius of Big Spring would be affected.

MAST, Barr revealed, grew out of an experiment in Vietnam and was tried in San Antonio.

Of the 30 hospitals in the area contacted, Barr said that 20 had indicated they would cooperate in the program.

Col. Malcolm E. Ryan, wing commander, greeted visitors at a pre-briefing luncheon.

Ryan said that the Air Force hasn't changed much over the years, save for the fact that a greater degree of freedom is offered to its personnel. He added that the service had a very, very low incidence of absence without leave and the branch's re-enlistment ratio was usually high.

Coahoma ISD Gets $13,489 From U.S.

Cong. Omar Burleson has announced the approval of $13,489.70 to the Coahoma Independent School District under Public Law 874 for federally impacted areas.

The entitlement is for fiscal year 1972, with $12,140 being certified for immediate payment.

The school district should receive a check for the latter amount within the next few weeks.

Lady Doctors: The Women That Other Women Trust

By VICTORIA BILLINGS
County News Service

SAN PEDRO, Calif. — Once a week Harbor Free Clinic caters to people with an unusual prejudice in this Los Angeles County community.

Wednesday nights are reserved for women who prefer the help and counsel of other women.

About 40 females — some with children, some with boy friends and husbands, still others who are alone — fill the rooms of the clinic. They come for medical examinations, psychological counseling, to hear a speaker or to rap with other women. But, whatever their reasons for being there, participants know "Women's Night" is just for them.

Male staff members take the evening off and an all-female staff takes over to provide whatever services are requested in a predominantly feminine atmosphere.

Every other week, staff members hold an evaluation meeting which anyone using the clinic may attend. It gives those involved a chance to respond to everyone's needs.

"We are not a Women's Liberation group," says Dr. Bev Palmer, psychologist for Women's Night, "but we are giving women a chance to find their own identity, physically and psychologically."

"I am especially interested in making institutions like this responsive to people's needs."

Women using the clinic range from single mothers on welfare and teen-agers to professional women and wives of executives. They all find something they need at the clinic, whether it is urgent medical help or the friendship and understanding of other women.

"Women's Night is a dream come true. We all show up and have a fantastic time together," adds Dr. Jean Goodwin, who is the physician for Women's Night.

SERVE AS EXAMPLE

She and Dr. Palmer provide one service for women just by their presence. Both 26, they are examples of the strides women can make professionally while maintaining a full private life.

Dr. Palmer, a native of Illinois, attended the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. She completed undergraduate school in three years and spent a summer in Sweden where she developed her interest in social institutions.

After her marriage to Richard Palmer, whom she met in a psychology course at Michigan, she earned a teaching credential from Ohio State University to help him through medical school. While he continued his education, she worked on a master's degree in counseling and went on to get a doctorate in psychology from Ohio State. Her thesis, "Impact of the New Feminism on Marital Interaction," was completed during her husband's internship in Phoenix, Ariz.

This year she is working in research with the Public Health Foundation, Los Angeles. Her husband is completing his residency in psychiatry at Harbor General Hospital.

Dr. Goodwin, a graduate of Radcliffe College, Boston, Mass., and Harvard Medical School, is finishing her master's degree in Public Health at the University of California at Los Angeles.

She grew up on a ranch in Texas and met her husband in medical school. After he completed his internship at Harbor General they will move to Washington, D.C., where he will join the National Institutes of Health and she will start her residency in psychiatry at Georgetown University Hospital.

She plans a career in psychiatric administration and would like to have eight or nine children.

"I know it's not socially conscious," she says, "but I like the kind of social consciousness where you do something, not refrain from doing something. And I think we could support that many children."

Dr. Palmer describes her marriage as "truly egalitarian." "When we married we had traditional expectations. I felt my primary responsibility was to home-centered things and Dick felt his was to career-centered things, but somehow we've had a wonderful capacity to change. After five years together we are still letting the other grow."

They plan to have one or two children, but "not immediately," Dr. Palmer adds.

MARRIAGE RELATIONS

How do the two women maintain careers and keep house, too?

"Burger King," says Dr. Goodwin. "And we send the laundry out."

Dr. Palmer found it hard to accept such a simple solution at first. "I used to be uptight about housework," she says. "But once I let go I found my husband wasn't as concerned about it as I was. Increasingly it's becoming a cooperative effort."

The women apply the same flexibility to their marriage relationships.

"It's like the working mother who measures the quality of time she spends with the children instead of the quantity," says Dr. Palmer. "When we're together we really appreciate each other."

"We have fun together," Dr. Goodwin explains. "We've never gotten to the point of sitting around the table with nothing to say."

Although both have chosen less conventional ways of living, the two respect women who choose the more traveled path.

"Being a homemaker is hard work. You have to initiate everything yourself. I don't have the energy," says Dr. Goodwin.

"I think being a mother is a glorious way of fulfilling yourself and in the pressure to see the Equal Rights Amendment passed we've overlooked that," Dr. Palmer says. "But I also think women should have opportunities to make a different choice and be accepted."

"Being in medicine is hard for a woman because there is this image of the superior male," says Dr. Goodwin.

"Even the nurses sometimes refuse to fill an order for medicine until a male doctor OKs it. But, basically, I like having another woman around at work."

"I'm on a team with a male physician and four women at the Public Health Foundation," Dr. Palmer said. "At first I thought the women won't work together professionally, but now I think they handle it even better than men. It's different from a women's social group."

PROFESSIONALS

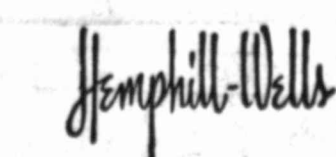

"As a professional, I get treated differently than a male," the psychologist adds. "But that's mainly because I'm young. I try to present myself as a professional and if a man can't accept me that way, I give him feedback. Then, if he won't change I consider it his problem. And I won't stop trying to look nice to live up to his image of what a woman professional should be."

Dr. Goodwin says her husband is "less of a male chauvinist than I am. When letters came addressed to Mrs. James Goodwin he always opens them. I'm James Goodwin," he says. "What is this 'Mrs.' all about?"

What Causes Skin Blotching?

Apparently the sun dries out the top skin, forming a screen that traps blemish-causing impurities. Observe how the areas of a man's face that are shaved each day have no blemishes or blotches, due to the constant removal of dry skin. Peel-O-Matique cream treatment can remove this dry layer on women's faces gently, quickly, safely.

A LOVELIER YOU Looks, Acts, Poise Decide Date Rating

By MARY SUE MILLER

Usually a girl has to look attractive before a boy asks her for a first date. But he does not date her a second time unless she is attractive.

According to pollsters, boys have pretty concrete ideas on the subject of attractiveness. Like what?

1. Be ready when a date arrives. He didn't come to see your kid brother. 2. Look "cool." That means "neat and with it." Don't fall for a way-out get-up. Scare a guy.

3. Take a genuine interest in him — his interests and opinions. You know what a comfort it is when people show an interest in your ideas. Well, dates are people. 4. Hold up your end of the conversation. That's easy if you keep up with local news, athletic events, movies. And these days world news, politics, new books, life styles. Well, those are topics on the tongue of any boy you might like to date again.

5. Avoid criticizing other girls he knows. Claws are unbecoming. 6. Have eyes only for him. A flirty girl is not considered a good date prospect by any boy. 7. Be considerate of his allowance. Make suggestions only when asked. 8. Do have fun and show your appreciation. If you are bored, try not to show it. Remember you do not have to accept distasteful company or go out with a boy a second time. But you will be observed by many boys and, by your actions and attitudes, come to rate as a date.

Is your hair a problem, Miss Teen? Then send for my leaflet, "Teen Tresses, Model Type." It tells how to correct such ailments as oily hair and flaky scalp; fly-away, unmanageable, lackluster locks. Included, too, are styling tips and model grooming quickies. For your copy write to Mary Sue Miller in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin.

Twisters Dip Near Odessa, San Angelo

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes spun across the sky and thunderstorms ranged across a broad stretch of countryside from West Texas into the north central part of the state during the night and early today.

Although witnesses reported sighting funnel clouds at least five times in one vicinity, no evidence was found that any of them inflicted damage.

One twister appeared 10 miles north of San Angelo, three whirled just west of the city's North Pope Street and one touched ground 15 miles north of Angelo before and after midnight.

Still another tornado dipped close to the west edge of Odessa earlier but soon dissipated.

Vicious thunderstorms, often packing hail, cropped up late Thursday in the familiar end to another hot day, this time with temperatures going as high as 102 degrees at Cotulla in Southwest Texas.

The scattered storms hit hard in the Dallas area and ranged southward through Central Texas while others developed in western sections of the state and persisted for hours.

No lull in the heat was expected, and forecasters looked for another round of showers and thunderstorms over much of West and North Texas by evening.

Whose Fault?

Your Good Health
Dr. G. C. Thosteson

A few weeks ago I wrote a column explaining what heroin does to a person who takes it, and I ended with the question, "What compulsion makes thousands upon thousands take the first, second or third shot of heroin?"

To date I have received only one answer, and even that was anonymous. I'll print it for what it's worth, if anything.

"Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why do 1,000s take heroin?"

"Because society, per se, is a failure."

"All the leaders, local, state and national, are speaking with a forked tongue."

"Because my parents make me sick drinking."

"To escape from reality. To have a few hours of high."

"But since you belong to the establishment, etc., you won't dare print this."

"Our parents made us what we are. I KNOW."

"Because so-called Christianity is hypocritical and a failure."

"Because there is no reason to desire to be in with the establishment."

"We can't rap with our parents. They're too busy drinking and committing triple adultery and condemning the young generation."

"I've been there. Now you know why."

Yeah, my anonymous correspondent. Now I know why! It's all somebody else's fault! But just how do drugs correct any of that?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have recently been stricken with an ear disease in my right ear called "tinnitus." My other ear has been deaf since girlhood. Can you tell me anything about it, and is it really incurable? — D.H.

"Tinnitus" isn't strictly a disease. It's a symptom — ringing or other such sounds in the ears. Or in one ear.

I can't say it is "incurable," because in a good many cases the ringing noises can be stopped or made much less annoying. In other cases, nothing can be done, except to learn a couple of tricks to make the noises less bothersome.

Sometimes ear disorders are found to be the cause; sometimes high blood pressure is responsible, and relief depends on lowering the blood pressure; yet again, some commonly used drugs can be the cause. Aspirin is one of them.

True, tinnitus is the technical name for this problem, but for simplicity's sake I've long called it "ear noises." You may well benefit by sending 15 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for my booklet, "Ear Noises: Their Cause and Cures."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you explain the cause of an autistic child and if there is any cure? — A.D.M.

The autistic child is one with a certain type of emotional problem, too involved for me to try to explain here. In this case, all I can do is suggest that a child psychiatrist be consulted as to care and treatment of the youngster.

Note to Mrs. M.E.C.: Pregnancy is quite possible with only one ovary, if it is active and healthy. Tests should be made to see whether the Fallopian tube is open. Your particular situation is so complicated that I would not try to assess the chances of your becoming pregnant. Your gynecologist might.

Never take a chance on diabetes! For better understanding of this disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of the Big Spring Herald for a copy of the booklet, "Diabetes — The Sneaky Disease." Please enclose a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

No Progress In Dow Strike

FREEPORT, Tex. (AP)—A federal mediator has reported no progress following a lengthy meeting of union strikers and Dow Chemical Co. representatives.

"We spent several hours exploring the issues," Gayle W. Wrenner of Houston, said Thursday. "But they are still far apart. This could be a lengthy work stoppage."

The strike involves about 3,400 workers in eight unions. It started Friday when negotiations on a new contract broke off. The company has continued production with a work force of about 3,200 workers.

Thursday, wives of the striking workers continued their support with an estimated 900 turning out to walk picket lines for the second straight day.

POLITICIANS PARANOID?

KEYSTONE, S.D. (AP) — George Reedy, the man who was press secretary to former President Lyndon B. Johnson, says virtually all politicians are a little paranoid.

"This is a generalization, but I'm confident of it. With few exceptions, every politician suffers from a touch of paranoia," Reedy told the Mt. Rushmore Institute Seminar.

He said politicians are quick to jump on a shred of evidence that there is a plot against them. "Given that condition," he observed, "it is not hard for them to say all reporters are liberal, all reporters are elite."

Un-Candid Candidates

There has been no hesitancy during the presidential primary campaigns to discuss federal taxes.

But the implications of George McGovern, Hubert Humphrey, George Wallace and others on the Democratic side of the ballot have served to stir rosy visions of tax cuts among their mesmerized supporters.

And President Nixon, virtually unopposed for renomination, has been relieved of the necessity of dealing with specifics.

But after the Nov. 7 election, when the new Congress convenes in January, it is almost certain that an emissary of the President, whoever it might be, will arrive on snow-covered Capitol Hill with a request for additional revenue.

Campaign rhetoric and wishful thinking to the contrary, there is no way that this nation can continue with the budget deficits that total more than $50 billion over a two-year period.

And stirring talk of spending cuts after the deficit budgets have accomplished their purpose of a revived economy and full employment show a blissful disregard for political reality.

Nixon administration plans for welfare reform, which would assure each family an income guarantee, already have been subjected to congressional tinkering that makes cost estimates night impossible.

McGovern's plan is even more inflated. But the Brookings Institution, a respected Washington research organization, has published a study indicating that higher taxes are inevitable. Forbes magazine has called new taxes "just as sure as death."

Often overlooked in the dismay over the total tax bill is the fact that federal taxes — through frank political expediency — have been reduced steadily for the past decade. If 1960 rates were in effect now, the $45 billion in additional revenue would more than balance budget deficits.

There is evidence that spending will be kicked or maintained at present levels to meet the demands of a public accustomed to the federal largess.

The shock next year would be less shattering if some of the presidential candidates would be more candid about the probable direction of a change in tax rates and concentrate on letting us know what we can expect for our money.

Buckle Up

We can be grateful for informational programs that show us the dramatic saving in lives that could result from universal use of seat belts.

A Ford Motor Co. study, for instance, indicates that up to 22,000 of those persons who died in highway accidents in 1969 could have survived if they had only buckled up.

But we are skeptical of legislative efforts in 10 states to make seat belt use mandatory and of contemplated federal orders along the same line.

Government's campaign to protect us from our own follies nudges the fine line of privacy invasion and — in the seat belt issue — raises questions of enforceability and constitutionality.

Memorial Evening

Around The Rim

David Pickle

AS I RECALL, the night was a little cloudy, but there was no threat of rain. It was summer in West Texas so it was hot.

I stepped up to the plate for the Yankees. Mark Powell of the Devils was on the mound. He threw the pitch slightly inside, and I hit the ball hard.

It took off toward left-center field. The ball went fairly high, and as I rounded first base, I thought I saw it hit on the playing field and bounce over the fence. I trotted into second base thinking I had a ground-rule double.

When I saw the umpire, Jim Zapp, waving his arm above his head in a circular motion, the thought struck me for the first time. "Good grief," I thought. "I hit a home run."

Suddenly I became very careful to touch third base and home plate. I thought it would be just like me to wait a year and a half to hit a homer and then miss third.

Home plate was kind of hard to touch because of the Yankees on both sides of the baseline from about 15 feet on in. They were all waiting to slap me on the back and hit me on my batting helmet. I chewed my Double Bubble bubblegum with a vigorous pride.

THE HOMER HAD been a long time coming. Since I had come up to the major leagues as a 10-year-old, I had watched player after player knock balls out of the park with regularity. All through my 11 year-old-season, I hit bunches of singles, doubles and triples, but not one home run.

I was beginning to get frustrated. The stamp of a Little Leaguer's success was not how many singles, doubles or triples he hit. The way a super-star was measured was by the number of homers he had.

I went to extreme measures in an effort to hit the long ball. Most extreme was the fact I bought my own bat. This was a $3 investment, which was a lot of money for any 12 year-old kid.

The bat was a 30-ounce Tony Kubek model. Back then, I was a New York Yankee fan, so anything with "Tony Kubek" stamped on it had to mean instant success. This was not true.

I KNEW THE bat was ill-fated from the time I brought it home and took my first practice swing with it. I was in the den, and the bat slipped when I swung. The barrel end went straight into the television set. Fortunately for me, the set remained intact, and, therefore, I did, too.

The bat wasn't the big problem, though. During the spring, before we drafted the new players, I had been hitting the ball a long, long way. But then the player draft came, and the manager decided to give some of the promising looking draftees a chance on the mound.

One of them was a large kid who threw very hard but had no idea of where the ball was going. Every time I came to the plate to take batting practice against him, I was petrified. I was so scared that I started to step away from the pitcher, or, as it was more commonly termed, I "put my foot in the bucket."

NOT UNTIL I was at recess one day at school did I figure out what I was doing wrong. I tried to hit the ball to right field, and I flew it over the center fielder's head.

I knew then it was only a matter of time until the big swat came. When I came home from practice the day after the event, I noticed a newspaper casually folded on the den table. Knowing the Yankee-Devil game story, complete with the acknowledgement of my homer, would be in it, I turned to the sports page.

There, to my horror, was a huge headline that read: "Pickle Rocks Devils With Big Homer."

I was mortified. My father, the editor, had ruined me with a 72-point headline. Then I saw it was a fake page, laughed and breathed a sigh of relief.

I knew I could face the team again without any embarrassment. In fact, I could even act tough for a few days because I had hit a home run.

Convention Tab

Texas delegates to the national Democratic and Republican conventions face two important requirements — bring plenty of money and be prepared to do plenty of traveling.

THE 130 MEMBERS, of the Texas delegation to the National Democratic Convention will make their trip July 8-14 to Miami Beach and maybe they will iron out some of the problems for the Republicans whose convention does not meet until Aug. 21.

The weatherman says both parties can expect hot, muggy weather with political tempers getting shorter as temperatures rise both inside and outside the convention hall.

The Texas Democratic delegates, augmented by 70 alternates, 50 an unknown number of husbands, party staff members, and interested fellow-travelers will be housed an estimated 12.5 miles from the Miami Beach civic center and the convention hall. Delegates and alternates will stay in the Marco Polo Hotel, north of Miami Beach island toward Fort Lauderdale. Newsmen and others will stay next door at the Chateau Resort Motel. Reservation rates for rooms require a deposit of $50.

TEXAS 52 REPUBLICAN delegates, plus their entourage, will be staying still further north at the Swank Doral Country Club, where the reservation rate is $75 per room.

However, both parties hope to help out delegates who cannot pay full fare on the political excursions. This is particularly true of a number of young delegates and alternates added to the Democratic delegation this time because of new party reform rules.

Texas Democratic delegates who cannot afford $22 to $28 a day rooms at the Marco Polo can stay at specially arranged places near the civic center for about $12 a day, although they will not be with other Texas delegates.

There also will be two special charter plane flights, from Dallas and Houston, for about $130 round trip, compared with the $170 regular coach fare or $200 first class.

ANOTHER ECONOMY Democratic delegates and visitors can count on is a system of shuttle buses up and down the island, which really is nothing but one hotel after another. By buying an $8 ticket at the Miami airport, a delegate can get transportation to his hotel and can ride the shuttle buses for the rest of his stay, state Democratic headquarters says. A taxi ride from the airport to the Marco Polo runs close to $12, headquarters advance men report.

Texas Republicans have hired chartered buses to run their delegates back and forth to convention hall. Advance men estimate both Texas delegations will be at least 30 minutes from the convention hall — "maybe 45 to 50 minutes if traffic is heavy," says a Democrat.

STATE DEMOCRATIC headquarters estimates the Texas delegates, alternates and their friends accompanying them will spend at least $200,000 for the trip, mostly travel and hotel bills. Almost all of it comes from personal pocketbooks since the state party has been in dire financial straits since the 1958 election, along with the national party.

But Texas Democrats have one consolation, they have good seats at the convention — "right up front, left center from the stage, with the alternates just behind. Some states have their alternates separated from the delegates."

Red Interest Rate

Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Commerce Peter Peterson is leaving shortly for Moscow and negotiations that in some respects are as difficult as the talks that led up to the strategic arms limitation agreement. While the question of trade between the two super-powers is nothing as complex as the issues in the arms race, Washington and Moscow speak on trade from different viewpoints representing entirely different ways of life.

BUT SINCE, as Peterson says, both sides want expanded trade it should be possible to find a way around the differences. The Soviet Union has great stores of raw materials which could be the bulk of imports into the United States. From this country the Soviets would like to buy advanced machinery that would give their productivity a boost. High on this list are computers.

The obstacle that must be cleared away before any trade agreement are the lend-lease debts. They have been under negotiation for more than two months and the end is not in sight. The amount of Soviet indebtedness — roughly $500 million — is not in dispute. But the amount of interest with the Soviets insisting on two percent (going European rate is eight to nine per cent) and a long grace period, is still up in the air. So the future of trade in any volume turns in large part on interest rates.

THE SOVIET Union is currently buying several million tons of American grain, paying $125 million cash on the barrel head. Purchases like this are expected to continue not only with the United States but with Canada and Australia. One goal is to increase meat consumption which is today in the U.S.S.R. one-third that of the U.S.

The Soviets want to get most favored nation status on interest which would give their exports to the United States a lower base. This requires congressional approval and Congress would take a dim view of a lend-lease settlement on terms that seemed to be giving away America's claim with interest rates far below current levels.

AS PETER Flanagan, the President's counsel on economic matters who worked on trade in Moscow during the Nixon mission says, half jokingly, favored nation might make it possible to sell Russian vodka in this country for $5.50 a bottle instead of $7.50. It is here that the difference between the two economies is marked. The United States is a sellers economy with a great drive both at home and abroad to sell products. That concept is alien to an economy in which all the means of production from a shoe shine stand to a heavy machine plant are owned and operated by the state.

WHO'S RESPONSIBLE FOR POLLUTION?

Street Language Unique

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street's efforts at selling itself to the public are being betrayed, a distinguished securities official has charged. The traitor: the language.

Wall Street's vocabulary is so to speak, the language of the street. It is unique, quaint, mysterious, slangy. And, in the opinion of Leon Kendall, "it binds our thought processes."

Kendall is president of the Securities Industry Association, a trade group that represents many of the large stock market firms. As he sees it, street talk reveals more about the user than it communicates to the listener.

"The customer can have a round lot or an odd lot," says Kendall. "He can have a Big Board stock or perhaps an over-the-counter stock. If he's lucky, maybe even a hot issue. "If he's a little more sophisticated, perhaps we can offer him a put or a call, strips, straddles, spreads, or maybe a discretionary account. "Of course, if he's looking for growth, we're likely to just offer him ordinary common stocks, certainly not preferred stock. Perhaps we might talk to him about mutual funds. "Here he can have an open-end fund or a closed-end fund, or maybe even those one-time wonders the dual-vest funds. Whatever the type, he will be offered the load fund or the no-load fund, or perhaps a front-end load fund."

The vocabulary of Wall Street is spoken swiftly and with assurance that only those who should know will understand. Naturally enough, a member of the buying public seldom dares to penetrate this world lest he be revealed by a foolish question. Language of that sort is meant to discourage questions. Some of it can be traced back to the day when the public wasn't needed. Now it is.

Kendall reminded a recent marketing meeting of the New York stock exchange that the poor vocabulary not only limits the capacity to think, but more importantly, it limits the ability to pick up new business. "What do we do about it?" he asked. He answered: "Get a new language." Not every word need be changed, he said, "but every word should be systematically examined to determine if it is consistent with the tenets of good marketing communications." He then proposed formation of a professional marketing committee to explore the words used in dealing with the public. Needed, he said, are "new, fresh, positive, descriptive, modern terms."

That would be the beginning. "When a successful new vocabulary is developed, it will take reprogramming of our salesmen, our operations people, even our owners and managers to implement it. It may even take law changes."

Then, presumably, the public will understand, and that conceivably could be the next crisis facing Wall Street.

Ms. Doesn't Seem To Fit

Hal Boyle

By LOUISE COOK (Substituting for Hal Boyle) NEW YORK (AP) — To Ms. or not to Ms.?

That may be the question for liberated American women, but it's obvious that the feminists haven't given a thought to the rest of the world.

Actually, the language barrier isn't the only problem with the catch-all title dreamed up by the feminists.

Reams have been written about the problem of pronunciation. And none of the suggested solutions seem to work.

Try addressing someone by pronouncing the two letters separately. It sounds like you're reciting the alphabet. Ms. just doesn't seem to fit in the language of love and the land of romance.

Would you believe GIs coming home from the war and singing about Ms. from Armenia?

Things aren't much better in other non-English-speaking countries. There's senora and senorita in Spain, frau and fraulein in Germany. The length of the list depends only on your linguistic ability.

Now, with three choices, the odds are against you. Two times out of three, you'll pick the title the woman doesn't want.

What Ms. doesn't do is change anything important. It doesn't get women equal pay for equal work. It doesn't give them the right to own property or handle their own financial affairs. It doesn't give them the right to education, jobs or political office.

And no husband is likely to start helping with the household just because his wife's letters are addressed to Ms. instead of Mrs.

WASHINGTON — To many of the local leaders of the Democratic party, Sen. George McGovern's acquisition of a large number of delegates to the national convention has not necessarily meant, they say, voter support of considerable size in the election if he is the nominee.

ONE SPOKESMAN, for instance, declares that Sen. McGovern is regarded as a radical who is willing to cut defense expenditures by $32 billion and has proposed a welfare program which would pay a subsidy to everybody who earns less than $12,000 a year. The citizens of lower incomes would benefit, while those in upper-income categories as well as the businesses of the country would bear the burden.

Subjects like these, when they finally are understood at the voter levels, produce a variety of reactions unless the candidate is able to explain that no inequities would be imposed.

ON THE QUESTION of forced busing to achieve "racial balance" in the schools, Sen. McGovern has expressed himself as being in favor of it. This suggests that he will have opposition in the Southern states and even in some of the Northern states, like Michigan. Gov. George Wallace got a heavy vote in the busing issue in the primaries in different states and has shown strength wherever the subject has been a controversy.

Union chiefs are said to be uncertain about where to place their support. Many of the local leaders feel that a good number of the delegates to the convention were obtained by college students who functioned as volunteers for Sen. McGovern. It is pointed out that the success of the South Dakota Senator was largely due to door-to-door and telephone canvassing by 50,000 to 100,000 young people who worked in his behalf in different parts of the country.

LOTS OF REGULAR Democrats are reported as being unhappy with the way the delegates were lined up and chosen in the party's state and local conventions. The chances are that after the national convention is held and the campaign begins, the citizens will be influenced in November against radicalism and in support of what has been called the center position — something that Sen. Hubert Humphrey sought to attain in the pre-convention campaign.

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY for years has recognized local leaders in the naming of delegates, selecting those from each state who were acknowledged to be representative of the party. The introduction of new persons who have not had any part in the management of party affairs is therefore, causing much concern.

The McGovern delegates have been elected in the primary states where less than 50 percent — and sometimes as little as 10 percent — of the registered Democrats turned up to vote in the elections. The South Dakota Senator has won 10 out of 23 presidential primaries, with his totals ranging from 30 per cent in Wisconsin to 52 per cent in Massachusetts. He demonstrated no popular appeal in Florida, where he got only 6 per cent of the Democratic vote, and this condition is said to prevail with regard to the McGovern candidacy in most of the Southern states. In the North, his appeal seems to lie with young people. The academic community and suburban "liberals" rather than with the traditional voting groups of the Democratic party — blue collar workers, Negroes, and the ethnic minorities.

Thin Support?

My Answer

Billy Graham

What is the meaning of the terms, "the fatherhood of God" and "the brotherhood of man?"

T.M. This is a misunderstood term. All men are brothers, in the sense that we have all descended from Adam. We are brothers in the human family. And God is our father, in the sense that we were created by Him. But there the metaphor breaks down. The Bible says, "In Adam all men die, but in Jesus Christ shall all be made alive again." When man sinned, he forfeited his right to sonship, and can only be reinstated through Jesus Christ. That is why He died — "to reconcile us to God." Jesus Christ is the only one in earth or heaven who can restore this lost relationship.

EVEN IF HE ENDS IT BY ELECTION DAY

McGovern Says Nixon Has Boxed Himself In On War In Vietnam

By GREGG HERRINGTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Comparing U.S. bombing of Indochina to Hitler's campaign to exterminate Jews, George McGovern says President Nixon has boxed himself in on the Vietnam war, even if he ends it by election day.

If Nixon can end the war by November, he could have stopped it during his first months in the White House, the South Dakota senator said in an interview with The Associated Press. "Should be clear to every American above the level of first-grader's intelligence."

BONING UP
McGovern, the favorite to win the Democratic presidential nomination, also said in a wide-ranging interview: Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington is among those being left behind by the party's shifting center; McGovern's new welfare and tax-reform plan will benefit most Americans earning between $4,000 and $20,000 per year, and he is boning up on monetary and economic issues.

Here are the questions and answers:

Q. What are your chances of beating President Nixon?

A. I think defeating men like Ed Muskie, Hubert Humphrey and George Wallace for the nomination is a much more complicated and difficult task than it will be to defeat Nixon in the fall, where the issues can be more sharply drawn.

Even assuming the President ends the war by election day, it should be clear to every American above the level of a first-grader's intelligence that he's timed that for political purposes, that he's accomplishing nothing new that he couldn't have accomplished the first few months he was in office.

THERE'S NO WAY
Q. Is there no way then that the President can avoid those charges from you, regardless of what happens in the war?

A. There's no way. Some 20,000 Americans have died during his administration and scores of others have gone to prison. Hundreds of those who were sitting in those cells four years ago have sat there another four years under the Nixon policy. We've blown up another $75 billion.

The Nixon policy on Vietnam is worse than the Johnson policy on Vietnam because Nixon had the advantage of watching the failure of that policy under President Kennedy and President Johnson from the sidelines for eight years.

Beyond that, the slaughter of the innocents in Vietnam is a blot on American history.

Q. If Muskie or Humphrey could win the nomination, how would their chances to defeat Nixon compare to yours?

A. I think it's possible that either Muskie or Humphrey could defeat Nixon. They're both very able campaigners. I think they could address the economic issues very effectively. But I honestly believe I could do better than either one because of my long-standing differences with Nixon on the war policies.

Another sharp issue that I draw with Nixon that would not be drawn by Muskie and Humphrey is the urgent need to substantially move spending away from the military sector to building up the country.

Q. Do you foresee any danger at all of any kind of walkout during the convention or sitout during the campaign by any sizable elements of the party?

A. I don't think so.

You see, what has happened, as I said sometime ago, the old establishment center has collapsed. It's just gone. . . . The old bipartisan Cold War policy is dead as a dornail. The old concept of allocating most of the budget to the military is dead. The notion that the rich and the powerful should be able to avoid paying taxes is gone. It's just a whole new ball game.

Q. Summarize your plan to end the war and get the prisoners back.

A. I would halt the bombing the moment I was sworn in as president.

Secondly, I would notify Saigon, Hanoi and the Provisional Revolutionary Government and other interested parties that I was setting a definite date for withdrawal of all American forces within 90 days' time of the inaugural.

Simultaneously I would announce the termination of all military aid to the governments of Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam. I would journey to Hanoi if necessary on behalf of the early release of those prisoners.

It's my opinion that probably the prisoners won't be released until our forces are withdrawn and all military aid to Saigon is terminated. But I'm confident I can negotiate that kind of an understanding.

Q. Under President Nixon, inflation has slowed down compared to the final months of the Johnson administration, and total employment is up. How might this affect your campaign?

A. Even if I were to accept those assumptions, the American people want economic policies that work more than once every four years.

FAILURE

I think the Nixon economic policies have been a failure. Inflation is entirely too high. He has not solved the problem of unemployment. He has aggravated it. He permitted the farm parity levels to skid during the time he's been in office and accentuated the trend toward big conglomerates, monopoly business, mergers and sweeping out of small businesses.

The balance-of-payments position has worsened. We've had a trade deficit for the first time since 1888, last year.

Q. Do you agree with your biographer, Robert Sam Anson, who says you are either unwilling or unable to cope with the technicalities of economic details?

A. I've spent more time trying to broaden my understanding of economics than any other field. I really feel that I know the foreign policy and national defense issues, tax-reform questions, quite well. But it is true that I find the monetary and economic issues difficult.

Q. What can you say about your soon-to-be-announced revised version of your own welfare-reform plan?

TAX CREDIT
A. That's going to become a tax-credit system under which most people will benefit in the form of tax credits.

The people in an income bracket from $4,000 up to about $20,000 will benefit from the program through a combination of either cash grants or tax credit. The whole program will be administered through the Internal Revenue Service.

Time Element

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl and I don't think I've ever seen a problem like mine in your column.

I am dating a guy who is a member of a minority group, and to make a long story short, my father would make Archie Bunker look like Abbie Hoffman!

This guy is no bum. He's a college freshman who is working hard for his education, and someday he will amount to something. He's the kind of guy my folks want me to go with, except for the fact that he belongs to this minority group which my parents despise.

I hate to lie and sneak around to see him, because I am really proud of him, but my folks are so bigoted and prejudiced it's unbelievable.

Although he likes me a lot, he has never let our relationship get out of hand, if you know what I mean. His folks like me and I like them, but there is no way I can get my folks to agree to letting me go with him. Can you help me? PARENT PROBLEMS.

DEAR PROBLEMS: At age 16, your relationships are your parents' concern, and advice from a third party, unless sought by both sides, is out of order. I think your parents are unfair to judge a person without meeting him, but unfortunately until you are old enough to do as you wish, you will have to play by their rules. Time will solve your problem.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle an argument? How should I introduce my father's second wife? I introduced her as "my father's wife." My roommate contends that this is poor taste and I should have introduced the woman as "my mother."

Since I was raised by my mother who is still very much alive and well, I think it would be a slight to her. Please advise me. WHOSE DAUGHTER(?)

DEAR DAUGHTER: Your roommate flunked this one. You will always be your mother's daughter regardless of who your father's wife is.

Under the circumstances you introduced the woman properly. If your father's wife had reared you, and you addressed her as "Mother," then she should be properly introduced as "my mother."

DEAR ABBY: I'll bet I know why that man can't "hear" when he takes his glasses off. His hearing aid is in the frames!

East and West put up a strong preemptive effort against South's opening one diamond bid in today's hand and the auction had reached the level of three spades before the latter had a second chance, he refused to be shut out, and carried on to four hearts. When this bid was passed around to East, the latter doubled—in the hope that his opponent had committed an indiscretion.

West opened the king of spades on which East played the seven to offer maximum encouragement to his partner to continue that suit. He reasoned that another round of spades would reduce the dummy to three trumps, inasmuch as South had bid hearts secondarily, there was a good chance that he held a four card suit. If that were, in fact, the case, East could hold off twice when trumps were led and—after winning the third round with the ace—another round of spades would force out declarer's last trump, while East retained the master card in the suit and South would lose control of the hand.

The queen of spades was led at trick two and ruffed by North. A heart was led and when East followed with the deuce, South put up the king which held the trick. The latter now paused to assess matters. East's double tended to indicate an adverse stack in trumps, in which case even a second lead of hearts might jeopardize declarer's prospects.

South decided to shift his attentions to the club suit in order to pose a counter threat to East. The king of clubs was led—putting East in with the ace. In an effort to attack his opponents trump holding, the latter returned a spade and declarer accepted the force in dummy, discarding a club from his hand.

The queen of clubs was led on which South discarded the jack of diamonds. The suit was continued and when East ruffed with the eight of hearts, declarer overruffed with the jack. The four of diamonds put North in with the ten to lead a fourth round of clubs. East discarded a diamond and South did likewise. When West showed out but did not have any more trumps, the hand was in declarer's control. He continued to lead clubs. East ruffed with the nine of hearts and South overruffed with the queen. Diamonds were now led and the East scored with the ace of hearts, that was his last trump and the defense was limited to three tricks on the deal—one spade, one heart and one club.

HAPPY ENDING

Town That Won When It Lost A Convention

By FRANK MACOMBER
Copy News Service

SAN DIEGO — Even the folks who once wanted the Republican National Convention here are showing undisguised relief that the conclave went by default to Miami Beach, Fla.

Those who were lampooning Peter Graham, the Canadian sportsman-promoter, now are looking at him as a sort of mixed blessing as they read that U.S. troops are being assigned to Miami Beach for the Democratic and GOP national conventions.

Graham, who owns the Sports Arena where the convention was to have been held here, made demands on the GOP National Committee and the city that forced a change of venue for the Republican gathering to select presidential and vice presidential candidates for the November election. Graham operates the arena on land leased from the city for the next 48 years.

HIPS, YIPS

The Justice Department asked the Defense Department to order a military force to Miami Beach for the conventions after a variety of dissident groups descended on the Florida seaside resort city with demands for campsites ranging from a golf course to parks frequented by the thousands of retired people who live there.

The proposals by hippie, yippie and other militant organizations have triggered a series of stormy Miami Beach City Council sessions at which indignant residents suggested the demonstrators should reserve hotel rooms like everybody else attending the conventions.

That's not all. A federal judge ruled it was all right for a homosexual group to parade on Miami Beach streets in female regalia during the Democratic and Republican conventions.

Robert Barry, president of the Gay Activists' Alliance, said some 6,000 homosexuals will be in town for the conventions to lobby for a "gay plank" and a "gay bill of rights."

San Diego officials point out these dramas would have been played out here as well if the Republican convention site had not been shifted across the nation.

NO DECISIONS

"At the time the convention was moved, we had made no decisions about where the expected thousands of demonstrators were to be bedded down at night," recalls Mayor Pete Wilson, who at one time supported selection of San Diego as the convention site.

Like other city officials, he had anticipated protests from local residents and neighborhood organizations; if the demonstrators had been assigned to areas near residential districts.

Now Miami Beach Council members are confronted with the task of trying to please both the young militants and the people whose taxes pay the Council salaries, with the Democratic convention only weeks away — July 10 — and the GOP gathering to follow beginning Aug. 21.

LOSERS

Most San Diego hotel men and merchants saw little advantage to them if the convention had been held here. The hotels fill up during the summer months anyhow. And tourists probably have more time to patronize local stores, restaurants and theaters than delegates would have found.

"There would have been more losers than winners if the convention had come here," observes Robert Gadbois, director of the San Diego Convention and Visitors Bureau. Meanwhile, local merchants have been selling convention-related gadgets, such as ash trays, pins and flags, at a hot-cake pace as conversation pieces for the future.

"People who buy them point out they will be worth more now because the convention never got here," explains one merchant. Most of the convention trinkets sold out long ago.

The convention shift also likely averted a king-sized communications foul up. The Pacific Telephone Co. was to have spent millions installing a convention telephone and television broadcasting complex. At least 6,000 additional phones, enough to serve a city of 30,000 inhabitants, were to have been installed.

Recently the California State Supreme Court threw out a 1971 phone rate hike and ordered the utility to refund some $144 million to subscribers. The financial blow to the company forced it into a retrenchment program that would have crippled its efforts to accommodate convention communications demands.

VIOLENCE THREAT

Perhaps the most relieved of all are local law enforcement officials. They had foreseen the threat of violence as thousands of young demonstrators flooded into the city before and during convention time in August. The federal government allotted local police only part of the funds they had sought for riot control training, communications equipment and weapons.

"We expected some trouble and probably would have gotten it," says Police Chief Ray Hoobler. "We would have been ready, but it's better this way. And the training we already had by the time the convention was moved has made it possible for us to put together a new civil defense manual that will be of value to many government agencies."

School Bond Issue Nixed

HOUSTON (AP)—Voters in the Houston Independent School District have defeated a $75 million bond issue and a 30-cent tax increase by a wide margin.

The election was divided into three propositions, the $75 million bond issue for new construction, a 25-cent boost to $1.95 in the valuation of each $100 of property value and a five-cent boost in the valuation for a pay-as-you-go bond plan. School officials contended that 20 cents of the 25-cent boost was needed to continue present programs and upgrade the quality of education. The other five cents would have been used to service the bonded debt.

The $75 million bond issue was for a five-year plan to construct 15 new schools and the modernization of 37 existing schools.

The five-cent proposition would eventually have made it possible to improve school facilities without selling bonds and then having to pay interest on the bond money, according to school officials.

Discuss Fish Kill Cause

HOUSTON (AP)—R. P. Jones, the city's field operations chief for water pollution control engineering, says he believes natural process and not pollution caused a fish kill in three Houston bayous.

not estimate how many fish were killed but even if the number were two million, it would still be light considering the area affected.

Jones said his men took samples of the water in all three bayous to determine if any toxic elements had polluted the water.

Jones said results would not be available for a few days, but tests indicated there just was not enough oxygen in the water to keep the fish alive.

Tot Killed

POTH, Tex. (AP)—A pickup truck struck and killed Michelle Ann Harris, 3, of Floresville as she tried to run across U.S. 181 in this South Texas town Thursday night, state police said.

They reported the child was running after several other children, and the driver, Eloise McAllister of San Antonio, was unable to avoid hitting her.

SENATOR'S SON INDICTED — Robin Cranston (right), 24, son of Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.), appears in court at Los Angeles where he has been indicted for allegedly drugging a young actress, Joyce Williams (left), with an exotic hallucinogen. He entered a plea of innocent.

The Hard Way

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

THE HARD WAY: (Comment) I wrote to you concerning the drug-using crowd I was in with. Well, I got your answer, but I didn't listen to you, or my parents or the few "straight" friends I have. Now I have just got out of the hospital recovering from an overdose of barbiturates. I realize the agony I put my parents through. I think I have finally learned that drugs are NOT the answer. I do know for sure that my family loves me.

Because of drugs I also lost my first "straight" boy friend. But he may see that I've changed and maybe he'll come back. (It was because of our break-up that I took an overdose.) I realize this letter is too long for your column, but if you could shorten it I might wake up a few people. I also want to thank you for trying to help me seven months ago. — Wisler in Connecticut.

shortened it. But only words have been taken out. The strength is still there. Please keep walking the straight road.

TAPER: (Q.) My friend always asks me to bring my new records to her house. She tapes them all and buys none of her own. I hate to feel like a sucker, but what can I do? —Impatient in Pennsylvania.

(A.) No friend is perfect. No friend acts in every instance just as you would have him or her act. You must weigh the bad characteristics of a friend along with the good characteristics.

If your friend's hangup is records — and she does seem to have a hangup — makes you feel that she is using you, or involving you in something that is not right, then tell her exactly how you feel, or drop her.

Beetle Larvae Bring Bad News For The Elm

By DAVID PICKLE
If you are a typical resident, you have a sick, sick elm tree. Unless you do something about it, the tree is destined eventually to die a death from malnutrition. The culprit is the elm beetle, which is wreaking its annual havoc on the state's trees. For some reason, he seems to have a special fondness for West Texas elms.

"As you might suspect," said Johnny Johansen, city parks superintendent, "an elm beetle bothers only elm trees, but they might learn to like something else." That could send chills up and down the trunks and twigs of pecans, mulberries, oaks, and assorted other verdant friends.

The elm beetle is an innocent looking creature, one-eighth to a quarter inch long, and to the naked eye it appears even smaller. It is green with fine black stripes. Yet, it is not the beetle but his offspring which works the mischief. These are the larvae, the wingless, worm-like stage of insect development.

HUNGRY CREATURES
The larvae have an insatiable appetite for the substance of elm leaves, sometimes reducing them to a shell of veins. They appear first as yellow specks all over the leaves, along with the beetles who are making this unwelcome deposit. Early in the spring, when the signs appear, spraying should be undertaken, for it will kill the eggs — and the beetles. The best way to cope with the larvae is to never let them develop, Johansen advises.

He recommends the use of the spray "Sevin" for elimination of the beetle. The Department of Agriculture rates it as one of the safest insecticides, yet it kills most pests. Johansen said he sprayed tomato plants one day, then washed and ate a tomato from them the next day. Another virtue of Sevin is that it works fast, whereas most insecticides take two weeks to a month to do their work.

HEAD 'EM OFF
If the beetle larvae are not headed off at the pass, the foliage is decimated. Eventually, said Johansen, this will kill the tree because leaves are the food-making device for the plant. Roots store food, but if the beetles continue to kill the leaves, all the reserve food supply will be consumed and the tree starves to death.

'Forum' Cast Members Wanted To Be In Play

By LINDA CROSS
"Nothing with kings, nothing with crowns. Bring on the lovers, liars and clowns," is a line from the opening number of "A Funny Thing Happened On the Way to the Forum," Howard County Junior College's summer musical now in rehearsal.

"Forum," a comedy set in ancient Rome, is to be presented as supper theater in the dining hall of the HCJC Dora Roberts Student Union Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. A serve-yourself buffet supper begins at 7:30 each night, and the play begins at 8:15 p.m.

Portraying the "lovers, liars and clowns" are a number of students home for summer vacation from various four-year colleges and universities. Some are veterans of other HCJC productions, and one is making his first theatrical performance "since the seventh grade."

PLAYS SENEX
Mike Alexander, who will be a senior marketing major at Texas Tech University this fall, is making his return to the stage in the role of Senex. His last role was that of Jacob Marley in Dickens' play, "A Christmas Carol."

"He's a dirty old man," said Alexander in summing up his stage character. He added that he hoped he was type-cast in the role.

"Senex is dominated by his wife. His wife thinks he's insignificant, but whenever his wife is not around, he is in control," said Alexander.

Alexander, like all the cast members interviewed, is required to take a speech course at HCJC as part of participation in the play. Alexander, like most others who have been away to senior colleges, has too many hours to get credit from HCJC.

HE'S A FRAUD
"Dan Shockey is my main reason for being in the play. I've been with him for four years, high school and junior college, and I have a tremendous respect for him," said Mark Shaver, who portrays Pseudolus, a rascally slave whose machinations on behalf of his love-struck master provide most of the play's comic plot.

"Pseudolus is a fraud, but he's lovable — I think," said

Shaver of his role. Shaver will be a senior speech and drama major this fall at North Texas State University.

"Domina," the character Senex's dominating wife, is portrayed by Elizabeth Lipscombe, a sophomore drama and French major at H. Sophie Newcombe College, Tulane University, New Orleans, La. She missed out on last summer's production because she was away at school.

NEEDS LOVE
"Domina wears the pants, even though they are a long skirt, in her family. Deep inside, she is a warm woman who wants and needs love, revealed in a song she sings. Her husband has been unfaithful to her for the past 30 years," said Miss Lipscombe.

Walter Wallace, assigned to the accounting office at Webb AFB, portrays Hysterium, a household slave devoted to Domina.

"He's tense and on edge," said Wallace. Hysterium takes charge of the household and of their love-smitten son, Hero, in the absence of Domina and Senex.

"I wanted to get back into drama. I had seen this play done on stage before as a college production, and I thought it was very good. Shockey is my choir director at the church, and I became interested in trying out for a part," said Wallace.

Wallace who has a degree in food technology, receives credit for the speech course in conjunction with an accounting course he has taken at HCJC in connection with his Webb assignment.

LIKE FESTUS
"He's a little of Robert Goulet and Joe Namath," is the description given by fellow cast members to the character of Miles Fortson, played by Miles Fortson.

"He's more like Festus Hagen' the way I play him," said Fortson. The part provides a note of villainy as the Roman captain intent on carrying away Philia, a young girl in training as a courtesan and who is Hero's love interest.

"He's not a villain really. He's more the catalyst that sets off the action in the play," said Fortson, who also wanted to get back into drama.

"I worked in two summer productions here with Shockey, and that's what really got me hung up in theater technology. Because of the low budget for this play, it's similar to the type of situation I would find as a teacher, and that makes it good experience for me," said Debbie Tate, chief of the production staff for "Forum."

"A woman called me and said she figured it would cost her about $11 to spray the tree," he said. "She said she would let it die before she would pay that kind of money." Johansen said an elm tree adds greatly to property value. "I'd spray it at least three times before I gave up," he said.

Child Theatre Parts Open

Children will have a chance to get a taste of the theatre here this summer.

Under the sponsorship of the local chapter of the American Association of University Women, a summer theatre project will be started with trypouts Thursday from 1-4 p.m. in the First United Methodist Fellowship Hall.

Any child from ages 1-14 is welcome to try out for parts in a melodrama, "Egad, What a Cad!" scheduled for presentation Aug. 9. Cecelia Arcand, who is working toward her masters degree in theatre at Texas Tech, will be director of the project. Those unable to be present for the trypouts but who are interested are asked to call her at 263-4229.

The finished product will be presented as one of the highlights of the Starlight Specials in Comanche Trail Park.

There is no charge for participating in the program, and AAUW representatives urged parents and children alike who are interested to be at the Thursday trypouts.

BENEFITS OF SEABEDS' EXPLOITATION

Latins Lean To 200-Mile Sea Limit

By PENNY LERNOUX
Capitol News Service

BOGOTA — Latin America is headed on a collision course with the industrialized nations over the controversial problem of sea limits. For many years, only the "Pacific Club" composed of Ecuador, Peru and Chile insisted on maintaining a 200-mile fishing limit in contrast to the 12-mile limit accepted by the United States, the Soviet Union and other maritime powers. Since 1967, however, they have been joined by Argentina, Brazil, Uruguay, El Salvador, Nicaragua and Panama which extended territorial claims from 12 to 200 miles. Costa Rica has a 200-mile "conservation zone."

NEW FORMULA

Now the Caribbean nations have agreed to a new formula which pretty much amounts to the same thing. During a recent conference in Santo Domingo, the foreign ministers of 15 Caribbean countries hammered out a dual accord on territorial and fishing limits, placing a 200-mile limit on the latter.

As Colombian Foreign Minister Alfredo Vasquez Carrizosa pointed out, "The thesis of a 200-mile limit is gaining ground in Latin America to such an extent that I would say it is the accepted norm." Vasquez was one of the principal architects of the Caribbean agreement.

The Santo Domingo declaration is based on the theory of a "patrimonial sea," reflecting the complexities of establishing limits in the island strewn Caribbean. In several cases, extension of territorial rights from the internationally accepted norm of 12 miles to the increasingly popular 200 miles would result in claims on another country's land. For example, Cuba could claim Haiti, and the Dominican Republic could insist on sovereignty over Puerto Rico.

COMMON PROPERTY

As the word "patrimonial" suggests, the Caribbean countries view the sea as common property to be exploited for the benefit of all the coastal nations.

The Santo Domingo conference also served as a first step toward a cohesive Latin American position at the United Nations-sponsored Law of the Sea Conference scheduled for next year. It is hoped the Geneva meeting will work out some worldwide formula to settle the problem of sea limits.

As the Santo Domingo conference demonstrated, not all the Latins are agreed that territorial limits should be extended to 200 miles. For Venezuela and several of the island nations would like to maintain a territorial limit of 12 miles until an international agreement can be established to regulate the world's seas.

However, the Latins speak with one voice on the subject of the coastal seabeds' riches, whether fish, petroleum or minerals, which they maintain should belong to the developing nations, and the limit they set on these rights is 200 miles.

FINE LINE

Latin jurists draw a fine line between a territorial limit and seabed claims. They say the latter will not interfere with the right of all nations to free transit of the high seas though those seas be within a 200-mile fishing limit.

The U.S. Defense Department, which has participated in official talks with the Pacific Club on the problem of continuing seizure of California tuna boats, up to now has maintained that the United States cannot accept the 200-mile limit because of its historic support for freedom of the high seas.

Though the "patrimonial sea" compromise might satisfy the Defense Department, it certainly will not solve the most basic issue — who has a right to fish or mine how far from whose coast.

With some reason, the Latins point out that the controversy dates back to the Harry Truman administration when the United States unilaterally reserved the resources of the continental shelf for the coastal states.

Under the 1958 Geneva "Convention on the Territorial Sea and the Contiguous Zone," still the most important U.N. treaty on sea limits, coastal countries have the right to exploit natural resources up to 600 feet below the waters covering the continental shelf even if they are beyond the 12-mile territorial limit.

The U.S. government, which has sold oil leases extending to 200 miles offshore, is only one of many nations to have used this definition of the continental shelf for resource claims while continuing to uphold a fishing limit of 12 miles.

For nations with an extensive continental shelf, the U.N. convention seems eminently logical. However, those countries whose continental shelves sheer away from the coast, dipping deeper than the 600 feet established by the United Nations, see no reason why they should be penalized for nature's quirks.

$16,508 Oil Spill Bill

VANCOUVER (AP) — A bill for $16,508 was presented to the Atlantic Richfield Co. by the Surrey-White Rock branch of the Canadian Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society.

Society spokesman Gary Gallon said the bill was for the time spent by more than 650 students and adults to clean up the shoreline in the White Rock-Crescent Beach area of British Columbia following an oil spill from Atlantic's refinery at Cherry Point, Wash., earlier this month.

Gallon said the hours involved on June 5-8 totalled 3,977, and Atlantic was billed at $4 an hour. He said another $600 was added for overhead costs such as typing, compilation of names, and mailing.

In a covering letter to the oil company, the society said it would distribute the funds to the individuals involved, and enclosed 26 typewritten sheets of names, addresses and hours worked.

Local Pastor Takes Uganda Mission; Conferences Are On Tap For July

By LINDA CROSS
Among the 22 missionaries appointed this week by the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board are the Rev. and Mrs. Ronnie K. Bostick, Big Spring.

The Rev. Mr. Bostick, who has served as pastor for Prairie View Baptist Church here for the past two years, will be doing evangelistic work in Uganda.

His appointment to the Uganda mission post is the culmination of hopes long held by the Rev. Mr. Bostick for such an opportunity. While in his first year of study at Howard Payne College, Mr. Bostick became aware that God wanted him to serve as a missionary, according to a statement he made to the Foreign Mission Board.

The Rev. Mr. Bostick said that he became aware of his call to be a missionary after attending a World Missions Conference at Southwestern Seminary.

A native of Cisco, the Rev. Mr. Bostick attended Cisco Junior College and graduated from Howard Payne College, Brownwood. He earned his master's of divinity degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth.

While still an undergraduate, he pastored churches in Cross Plains, Baird, Clyde, Graham and Big Spring. He has been pastor of the Prairie View Church since completion of his seminary studies.

Mrs. Sally Bostick, the former Sally Dowdy of Grand Prairie, is the daughter of a Baptist minister. She attended Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary and Howard County Junior College.

The couple has three children, James, 8, Susan, 5 and Scott, three months.

Twenty-two persons from Baptist Temple will be returning Saturday to Big Spring from Tilden, Tex., where they have been conducting a Vacation Bible School and a film festival this week.

Dan McClinton, minister of education and Baptist Temple, has been in charge of the tour. Dr. Morris Jarratt, layman with Baptist Temple, accompanied the group to conduct a mobile dental clinic in South Texas.

Members of the group are Terri McWhirter, Linda Cook, Sheila Hardee, Linda Davis, Carol Puckett, Jana Porter, Kay Davis, Roanne Riley, Elizabeth Gresham, Susan Orr and Beverly Metcalf.

Other members are Randy McWhirter, Jon Riley, Jimmy Puckett, Jim Cox, Jimmy Shanks and Walter Seward.

Adults with the group are Mrs. Jean Hardee, Mr. and Mrs. David Adams, Dr. Jarratt and McClinton.

Dr. Jordan Grooms, supervisor of the United Methodist District of Big Spring, is to attend the South Central Jurisdictional Conference July 11-14 in Houston.

Dr. Grooms will be among the 20 clergymen and laymen representing the Northwest Texas Conference. Delegates to the Houston meeting are expected to total 366. Representatives from the Central, North, Southwest, Rio Grande, Tex., and Texas and New Mexico Conferences are to attend.

"Meet Jesus" is the theme of the Youth Evangelism Conference to be held Thursday and Friday in Lubbock's Fair Park Coliseum. The conference is sponsored by the Evangelism Division of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Rick Carreno, former member of Hell's Angels, a motorcycle gang, will be one of the speakers. Cynthia Clawson, television and recording star, will be featured singer.

Among the musical groups for the conference will be "The Singers" from Sherwood Baptist Church, Odessa; "Young Americans" from Calvary Baptist Church, Lubbock; "Lost And Found" from First Baptist Church, Plainview; and "His Group" from First Baptist Church, Midland.

Prayer and the rewards of fasting were discussed Tuesday at the meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service at First United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Lanny Hamby opened the meeting with prayer and led the discussion with Mrs. Julian Patterson.

Mrs. Wade Bledsoe and Mrs. Joe Dawes sang a duet, "Spirit of God, Descend Upon My Heart," and Mrs. Dawes also sang "Be Thou My Vision."

Scripture was read by Mrs. Elrah Phillips, and Mrs. Knox Chadd led the group in prayer.

Guests for the meeting were Mrs. Ted Hatfield and Mrs. Howard Salisbury.

NAMED TO UGANDA MISSIONS POST
The Rev. and Mrs. Ronnie K. Bostick.

Faith No Answer To Life's Riddle

NEW YORK (AP) — Christian fundamentalism, which rejects critical analysis of the Bible, "pretends to offer men security where there can be no security," says famed German theologian Rudolph Bultmann.

In a new book on his works issued by Doubleday, "The Thought of Rudolf Bultmann," by Andre Malet, the influential, but controversial theologian says faith provides no answer to "the riddle of life."

Rather, faith is sheer "trust in the grace of God which has called man to life and gives life a meaning, even though man does not see the meaning yet."

Women's Rights Drive Rocks Ideas Held By Many Faiths

By GEORGE CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The drive for women's rights is rocking the religious world. Not only are women gaining new ground in church administration and the Protestant ministry, but they've won a foothold in the Jewish rabbinate, are pressing for the Catholic priesthood and some hope this summer to elect the first Methodist bishop.

They've even stirred theological rethinking about the "gender" of God.

'HE-GOD' IMAGE
The image of an "exclusively He-God" has been used for sexual oppression, writes Catholic theologian Mary Daly of Boston College in a recent issue of Commonwealth. She adds that getting rid of the primitively instilled view of a "masculine divinity" may bring a more authentic language of transcendence for God.

Although Judeo-Christian theology always has recognized that God transcends sex or other human objectification, some thinkers suggest that the concept, in human understanding, might better be as both "father-mother."

In the arena of church officialdom, the possibility that there might soon be a "Madam Bishop" turned up in advance of a heavy concentration of episcopal elections scheduled in July in the United Methodist Church.

WOMAN BISHOP
"We look forward to the very real possibility of electing a woman a bishop," says Carleen Waller, of Nashville, Tenn., a woman's caucus leader.

At the United Methodist Church's recent governing convention, it ordered all "male oriented" language removed from its Book of Discipline, specifically in regard to the office of bishop.

—For the first time in American Judaism, a woman, Sally Priesand, was ordained a rabbi in June, after completing studies at Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion in Cincinnati.

Churches Victims Of Unholy Thieves

DALLAS (AP) — Police say churches in and around Dallas are being frequented by burglars. Some 20 churches have been hit by thieves since mid-May.

Police say the biggest targets are office equipment, sound systems, machinery, air conditioners, Bible and hymn books.

Pre-schoolers in our church organizations have eight major content areas: God, Jesus, Church, Bible, Self, Others, Natural World, Family. In our teaching, special emphasis is given one of these areas each month. Some of the most effective teaching in any age-group is on a teacher-pupil basis. Here Mrs. Boone Horne and Leslie Knox share precious minutes in conversation as they picture-read the Bible.

Grid Analysis

By DON COOPER, Herald Sports Editor

Each summer brings an increasing number of football publications on the newsstands. A decade ago, there were only a handful of magazines that dealt with college and professional football. However, we now find a multitude of publications which analyze all aspects of college and professional teams. There are also magazines which analyze high school teams.

Sports Illustrated, which for over 70 years has been called "Baseball's Bible," now devotes as much space to college and professional football during the grid season as it does to baseball during the diamond season.

Sports Illustrated uses extensive photography to enliven its game coverage during the college football season. Prior to the start of the season, the magazine will analyze the major college conferences, pick an All-America team and select the teams in its Top-20. The magazine will occasionally be correct in its pre-season picks.

The same coverage devoted to the college season will be given to the pros by Sports Illustrated. The magazine will closely analyze the prospects of all 26 teams in the National Football League, select its pre-season All-Pro teams and top rookies and will name its choice for the winner of the Super Bowl. The magazine usually picks the previous Super Bowl winner to repeat for the NFL title. Once Sports Illustrated was right.

One of the more widely read pre-season publications is Dave Campbell's Texas Football. Texas Football originated out of Campbell's belief that Texas football is unique and something extra-special. Campbell has succeeded in convincing the nation of this as Texas Football is now sold throughout the United States. Texas Football first appeared in 1960 and covered the Southwest Conference, Texas small college conferences and the Texas high schools. Since 1960, the magazine has expanded to include the Texas professional teams — the Dallas Cowboys and Houston Oilers — and feature articles by top Texas sports writers.

Campbell's critical analysis of each team in the Southwest Conference has also expanded. There are in-depth studies of key players on each team in the conference. This analysis goes on into the high school level, with selection of top teams in each class and selection of "Friday Night Heroes" — those key prep performers deserving of All-State honors.

Campbell, who was not satisfied with coverage of only Texas football, added to his publishing efforts a satellite magazine named Arkansas Football. This magazine deals with the Southwest Conference — and Arkansas colleges and high schools. There are also feature articles of interest to Arkansas grid fans.

Perhaps the best two pre-season publications are the two Street and Smith magazines. Street and Smith's College Football includes in-depth looks at all of the major conferences and major independents and analysis of many small college conferences and independents. The S&S pre-season poll is usually very close to the actual Associated Press and United Press polls which come at the end of the season.

Street and Smith's Pro Football gives great in-depth articles about all the teams in the NFL and lists their pre-season rosters. Also included are lists of each team's draft choices and free-agent rookies and the league and team statistics. The magazine also has analysis of each of the teams in the Canadian Football League and a list of all former U.S. college players in the CFL.

There are several weekly periodicals dealing with football. For example, Pro Football Weekly is a newspaper which is printed monthly during the off-season and appears each week during the 26-week professional season. Football News appears each week of the college season. The latter publication selects a weekly Top-10 and a pre-season and post-season All-America team.

Newspapers were also quick to jump on the pre-season bandwagon. Many daily newspapers now publish pre-season tabloids which cover the pros and colleges and analyze the high school teams within their circulation areas. In many of the newspapers, the tabloids are merely added sources of advertising revenue as the pre-season analytical efforts could easily be included within the daily sports pages. Although the advertising departments often look forward to the football tabloids, many sports editors and sports writers view the tabloids as tremendous pains-in-the-neck.

Each year a new publication appears on the newsstands. This year, fans will get to read a weekly analysis of all the NFL teams and the weekly games as written by — or ghost-written for — Dallas Cowboy super-lineman Bob Lilly. There will be 26 issues of Bob Lilly's Pro Report. The newspaper should be a success. Rabid Dallas Cowboy fans will probably consider the Lilly Report one of the major necessities of life.

There are West Texas Football, East Texas Football, North Texas Football, South-Southeast Texas Football and Southwest Texas Football. I imagine in the years to come, we will see the birth of Central Dallas Football magazine, or even, West Texas Junior High Football.

Astros Make Off With 8-6 Triumph Over Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP)—While Houston's Bob Watson had his eye on the Dodger Stadium scoreboard, the Los Angeles Dodgers' infield had a tough time keeping its eye on the ball.

The Dodgers committed three errors, two extremely costly ones in the ninth inning, and Houston made off with an 8-6 victory Thursday.

Watson's two-run single in the ninth decided the topsy-turvy game in which the Astros raced to leads of 4-0 and 5-1, only to see the Dodgers tie the score on Jim Lefebvre's three-run pinch homer in the sixth and go ahead on Steve Garvey's homer in the eighth.

But errors by second baseman Bobby Valentine and third baseman Garvey—the latter's second of the game and fifth in three games—opened the gates for Houston's three unearned runs in the ninth.

Watson laced a Jim Brewer pitch to center to boost the Astros within one-half game of the National League West-leading Cincinnati Reds, who were beaten earlier in the day by San Francisco. The Dodgers remained five games back.

"I saw that board and saw what Cincinnati did," said the muscular Los Angeles native. "Man, I like to hit with men on base. For me it's great to challenge that pitcher."

The Astros return home tonight to take on Atlanta while the Dodgers start a 13-game road trip with the first of three at San Francisco.

Dodgers Manager Walter Alton said he might make some infield changes for tonight's game, inserting Maury Wills at shortstop "so maybe he can settle them down" and Lefebvre at second base.

The Astros challenged Dodgers starter Tommy John right off the bat as Cesar Cedeno ended an 0-for-20 slump against Los Angeles with a two-run homer in the first inning. Tommy Helms homered in the second and the Astros added another unearned run in the second.

Helms' triple and an infield single by Larry Howard made it 5-1 in the sixth after the Dodgers had scored a run in the fifth on a balk by Houston starter Larry Dierker.

But in the Dodgers' sixth Garvey singled home one runner to chase Dierker. Jim Ray entered and walked Chris Cannizzaro, and then Lefebvre slugged a pinch homer on Ray's first pitch to tie the score 5-5. Garvey's homer in the eighth made it 6-5.

In the ninth, however, the Astros got a leadoff single by pinch hitter Norm Miller and Brewer took over for Pete Mikkelsen.

He got Roger Metzger to pop out and then Cedeno grounded to Garvey at third. But Valentine let Garvey's throw go through for an error.

Jim Wynn then sent another grounder to Garvey, and he first booted it to let the tying run score and threw it away to put runners at second and third. Watson then delivered his single for two more runs.

"I've run out of excuses," a disgusted Alton said later.

JACKSON OUT AT HOME — Oakland Athletics' rightfielder Reggie Jackson is tagged out by Chicago White Sox catcher Tom Egan in the first inning of the second game of a twin bill in Chicago Thursday night. This play came on a hit to left field by the Athletics' Bill Voss on which Jackson tried to score. Sox' leftfielder Carlos May threw Jackson out.

GRANDSLAM BY FREEHAN Bengals Blast Bosox, 8-4

By The Associated Press

The first time Billy Martin saw the friendly left field wall at Boston's Fenway Park he detected it with a run-scoring double as a brash young rookie with the New York Yankees in 1950.

The last time he saw it was Thursday night as manager of the Detroit Tigers and his ardor hadn't cooled one bit.

"Anything can happen in this ballpark and usually does," Martin said after the Tigers, blanked for eight innings by rookie Lynn McGlothen, exploded for eight runs in the ninth—the last four on Bill Freehan's grand slam homer into the screen atop that ever-present wall—and beat the Red Sox 8-4.

That increased Detroit's lead in baseball's American League East to two games over Baltimore, which lost to the Yankees 4-3, and sent the Tigers home to begin a big four-game series with the Orioles in a happy frame of mind.

Eisewhere, Chicago and Oakland split a doubleheader, the White Sox winning the opener 4-0 and the A's taking the nightcap 3-1. Kansas City took two from Minnesota 5-3 and 12-4, Milwaukee shaded Cleveland 3-1 and California drubbed Texas 12-4.

National League scores: Pittsburgh 9, Montreal 0; Philadelphia 9, New York Mets, 4; St. Louis 4, Chicago Cubs 2; San Francisco 3, Cincinnati 2; Houston 8, Los Angeles 6; San Diego 8, Atlanta 6.

Freehan started Detroit's big inning by reaching first base on an error by Boston second baseman Doug Griffin. With one out, Al Kaline walked and singles by Jim Northrup and Paul Jata each drove in a run and drove McGlothen out.

Tony Taylor greeted reliever Don Newhauser with a bases-filling single and Dick McAuliffe tied the score with a two-run double. Bill Lee, the third pitcher of the inning, walked Aurelio Rodriguez, loading the bases again, and fired a called third strike past Ike Brown for the second out. But Freehan drilled the next pitch for his fourth home run of the season and third career grand slam.

The Yankees ended the eight-game winning streak of Baltimore's Jim Palmer and sent him for the first time since Sept. 26, 1969. They chased him with three runs in the second inning on Ron Blomberg's homer and RBI singles by Jerry Kenney and winning pitcher Mel Stottlemyre and scored what proved to be the winning run off Dave Leonard in the third on Bobby Murcer's triple and Roy White's single. Bobby Grich homered for Baltimore.

MIRED IN AL CELLAR Rangers Drop Another One

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP)—The Texas League Rangers, now officially the worst team in the American League, have lost their Denver farm club, their wives in a softball game, and the lowly California Angels in the last two nights.

Things were so bad Thursday night in a 12-4 loss to the Angels that Texas manager Ted Williams stuck around to face any questions newsmen might have. The Hall of Famer sometimes makes a quick departure when a close loss grinds on his nerves.

"Just what would you do?" Williams asked a writer who inquired if any lineup changes were proposed. "Give me a clue?"

"I just hope the fans have the patience like they had in New York (the Mets) for eight years," he went on. "It's not the end of the world. We got some hits, but we didn't get 'em when the game was on the bags. We got the hits after the game was over."

The loss sank the Rangers to a 26-38 record. Texas is in the cellar behind California in the American League West, 17 games behind front-running Oakland.

The Angels' Art Kusnyer picked up where the Rangers wives left off Thursday night, driving across five runs with a triple and double. Not bad for a .194 hitter who had only seven RBIs for the season.

"It was my biggest night in the big leagues," said the rookie catcher. "I changed my stance and it sure helps. I was using an open stance, but I've closed it now and I'm using my hands more—coming through the ball quicker and taking shorter strides. I also am relaxing more. I had been trying too hard."

Vada Pinson slammed a three-run homer to give Rudy May only his second victory against five losses. Young Pete Broberg, who was mild, was saddled with his sixth loss against five victories.

Manager Delbert Rice said Texas doesn't look like the same club which swept a four-game series from the Angels earlier in the season.

"We thought they were world

CLEVELAND OPEN Rain Halts First Round

CLEVELAND (AP)—Bobby Mitchell, the invisible man of the touring golf pros, feels slightly more visible this year in the $150,000 Cleveland Open at soggy Tanglewood Country Club. He's the defending champion and a favorite with the fans.

Still, his fellow pros won't let him forget the fame he acquired earlier this year after he knocked off Jack Nicklaus to take the Tournament of Champions at La Costa, Calif. He had beaten Nicklaus, but remained the golfer no one knows.

After the first round of the Cleveland Open was washed out by torrential rain Thursday, Mike Higgins of Houston called across the practice green: "It doesn't matter, Bobby. You're the invisible man."

Mitchell grinned and sank a curling eight-footer. He looked at the putter admiringly.

"Nicklaus knows him," consoled Leonard Thompson of Myrtle Beach, S. C., a freshman on the tour and owner of the putter Mitchell was using.

Mitchell looked off over the wooded hills of Tanglewood where the valleys and greens held just a little less water than a flood.

"This course can't stand much more water," he said. "I got in five holes before they called it."

Mitchell had gotten in his five holes by 10:54 a.m. EDT when the rain struck. Play was suspended and the opening round of the 72-hole tourney postponed until today. An hour later the sun broke out and began baking out some of the moisture.

DENNY McLAIN, a 31-game winner in 1968 for the Detroit Tigers, was traded by the Oakland A's to the Atlanta Braves for first baseman Orlando Cepeda, who won the National League's Most Valuable Player award in 1967. McLain was sent to the A's Birmingham farm club five weeks ago. Cepeda was suspended by the Braves for two days earlier this season when he walked out on the club. The Braves got McLain and an undisclosed amount of cash for Cepeda.

SHIRLEY ENGELHORN, the only player in the 150-year field in the U.S. Women's Open Golf Tournament to break par, took a one-stroke lead after the opening 18 holes of the tournament. She fired a 72 to lead Pam Barnett and Betsy Cullen by one stroke.

BILLY CONIGLIARO, suspended Milwaukee Brewer decided to retire from baseball. Brewer General Manager Frank Lane said Conigliaro telephoned him Thursday from Boston and said he would file an application requesting that he be placed on the retired list by the Brewers. Conigliaro was traded to Milwaukee from the Boston Red Sox after last season.

EVERT WINS AGAIN — Chris Evert, the 17-year-old tennis sensation from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., shows her two-handed method as she defeated Janet Newberry of LaJolla, Calif., 6-3, 6-0 on the center court to advance one notch further in the Wimbledon women's singles competition.

Connors, Evert Advance Further In Tournament

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — British bookies were offering odds of 100-1 today against a couple of American teen-agers carrying off both singles crowns in the Wimbledon Tennis Championships. Such friendly odds—you bet one dollar to win a hundred—were certain to attract plenty of cash support for Jim Connors and Chris Evert. Connors, the 19-year-old left-hander from Belleville, Ill., has reached the final 16 of the men's division. Miss Evert, 17-year-old star from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., has reached the last 32 in the women's singles. "The odds seem rather big to me," Connors said. "I would have thought we have a better chance than the bookmakers seem to think." If Connors reaches the quarter-finals he is likely to come up against Romania's Ilie Nastase, the No. 2 seed. Nastase, playing better on grass than he every has done before, is a tough proposition for anyone in a tournament weakened by the absence of the big stars of World Championship Tennis. But even if the unseeded Connors got past Nastase he could find himself in a semifinal against the man he fears most of all—Colin Dibley of Australia. It was Dibley, a power server with shoulders like an ox, who eliminated Connors' teacher, Pancho Gonzales, in the second round this year.

Bankers Down VFD, 7-5

The Bankers jumped off to an early 6-0 lead and then had to fight off the VFD to finally win, 7-5, in the Coahoma Baseball League Thursday night. Randy Fields blasted his sixth home run of the year to pace the Banker offense. Randy Wallace contributed a triple to the Banker attack. Winning pitcher Wallace held the VFD to four hits and shut them out through the first four innings. He allowed no VFD batter to have more than one hit. The Bankers are now 8-3 for the year.

The Red Sox pushed across 10 runs in the last two innings Thursday night to down the Lions, 12-2, in the Sophomore League. Mike Warren led the winners with three hits in four times at bat. He also scored four runs. Roy Don Box had two hits for the Red Sox, one of them being a triple. David Spence, the winning pitcher, gave up two runs to the Lions in the first inning and then shut them out the rest of the way to take the victory. Bubba Stripling took the defeat. Both teams are now 8-2 for the year.

The American Little League champion Colts had to come from behind Thursday night to slip past the second-division Pirates, 6-5. Hitting in the game was light. The Pirates got only four hits, and the Colts had only five. No player in the game had more than one hit. Hank Adams was the winning pitcher for the Colts. James Hattenbach got the defeat for the Pirates. The Pirates are now 5-5 for the year, and the Colts are 18-2.

The Cabots brought their season record up to the .500 mark Thursday night by defeating the Jets, 8-5, in the American Little League. After the contest, members of the league all-star team were announced. Robinson and Tony Partee led the winners with two hits each. The Cabots had a total of seven hits in the game. Robertson, Rosson and Combs paced the losers with two for three nights. The Jets banged out eight hits in the game. Partee was the winning pitcher, and Combs was the loser.

The Cabots are now 10-10 for the year, and the Jets are 5-15. Members of the all-star team are: COLTS — Gary Howell, Hank Adams, Mike Egan, Randy Crockett and Roy Don Beauchamp. HAWKS — Richard Bumgarner and Charles Vernon. STARS — Mark Smith, Dennis Rice, alternate. JETS — Jimmy Combs, Scott Robertson, alternate. PIRATES — James Hattenbach, alternate. CABOTS — Tony Partee, Dan Robison and Timmy Travick. Donnie Knight, alternate.

The Tigers took a 7-4 lead into the bottom of the sixth inning Monday night and then had to fight off an Oriole rally to capture a 7-6 victory in the Texas Little League. Wright, the Tiger shortstop, went two for three to lead the offense for his team. Walker was also two for three. For the Orioles, Perry went two for three with a home run. Louis Rodriguez was the winning pitcher, and Cramer was the loser. The Tigers are now 9-9 for the year while the Orioles are 1-17.

The Big Spring Bucs scored all of their runs in the first two innings and coasted to a 10-0 victory over the Coahoma Merchants in the Senior League Monday night. The game was called after four and one-half innings because of the 10-run rule. David Newman was the winning pitcher, giving up only two hits. Pete Shaffer led the Bucs at the plate going two for three with a home run. Thomas Brewer also went two for three. The Bucs had seven hits in all. Terry Shafer was the losing pitcher. Big Spring is now 8-0 for the season, and the Merchants are 3-4.

The Cardinals rolled out an awesome attack Monday night as they blasted out 16 hits on their way to a 15-4 victory over the Rangers in the National Little League. J. Wray Warren had three hits, and five other Cards had two safeties. They were Toby Bryant, Kyle Pfeiffer, Tony Mann, Keven McLaughlin and Jerry Monje. Pfeiffer hit a two-run homer. Warren and McLaughlin divided time on the mound surrendering five hits between them. Warren got credit for the win. The Cardinals, now 14-3, lead the league by one full game over the Lions. The Rangers are 9-7.

Stephenson Fires 70 For Victory

Terry Stephenson of Midland fired a three-under-par 70 to capture first-place honors in the 16-17 year-old division of the West Texas Jr. Golf Tournament competition at the Municipal Golf Course Thursday afternoon. Stephenson defeated runner-up Allan Carmichael of Sweetwater by two strokes. Carmichael carded a one-under-par 72. In the 14-15 year-old division, Ross Wortham of Iran edged out Sam Smith of Sweetwater. Wortham shot a 76 while Smith was one stroke back at 77. In the 12-13 year-old division, Craig Curry of Iran was an easy winner with an 88. Bobby Tuttle of Andrews and Duane Thomas of Sweetwater finished the 18 holes with identical 94s. Thomas won the playoff on the fourth extra hole to take the runner-up honors in the division. Thirty-six players competed in the three divisions Thursday.

Invitational Tournery Slated

The 41st annual Big Spring Invitational Golf Tournament will be held at the Big Spring Country Club July 8-9. The tournament is one of the oldest in West Texas and draws many of the state's top players. Mike Weaver of Big Spring is the defending tournament champion. Entry fee in the 36-hole event is $20. The deadline for entry is July 6 at 6 p.m. The field will be limited to the first 220 entries. The Big Spring tournament has drawn several nationally-known golfers in the past. Touring pro Billy Maxwell was the tournament champion in 1950. Bobby Morgan, Doug Jones, Charley Qualls, Bobby Wright, Bill Craig, Luke Thompson and Mike Clevelker have been two-time winners. Bill "Red" Roden was a four-time tournament champion. Don January and the Messengales, Don and Rik, have competed in the tournament. The first four finishers in the tournament will receive gift certificates. First place will receive a $150 certificate; second place will receive a $100 certificate; third place will receive a $60 certificate and fourth place will receive a $25 certificate. A practice round is scheduled for July 7. Pairings for the first day's round will be determined by handicaps. There will be a barbeque, a juke box dance and a free happy hour for the participants at the country club. Tournament chairmen for 1972 are Don Lovelady, Roy Hughes, Nick Nicholson, Weldon Bryant and Wally Slate.

Tournery Expected To Draw 60 Teams

Approximately 60 teams will tee off Saturday in the annual Big Spring Partnership Golf Tournament at the Municipal Golf Course. Charles Brantley, course pro, said he had originally expected about 80 teams to enter, but weekend tournaments at Andrews, Lamesa and Lubbock cut down on the number of entries. He said if 60 teams enter, there will be three flights instead of four, and the prize money will remain generally unaffected. About $550 worth of prizes per flight are expected to be awarded. By Friday morning, 40 teams had entered the two-day meet. Entries are due at 7 p.m. Friday. The fee is $30 per team. Carts may be rented when signing up. Brantley said a few carts still remain since he has leased some from Lubbock. The team of Tommy Jackson and Ronnie Broadrick was changed Thursday. Jackson will bring a player with him from Dallas, and Broadrick will play with Ken Chadd, from Big Spring. Other teams in the championship flight include Mark McCraney, Big Spring, and John Adams, Midland. McCraney was 5-AAAA district medalist in 1971, and Adams turned the trick in 1972. McCraney teamed with Danny Walters of Abilene in the Big Spring Country Club Partnership three weeks ago and lost the championship to the first hole of a sudden death playoff. Bobby Wright and Ray Bluhm, Big Spring, Royce Cox and Howard Stewart, Big Spring, Bob Waters and Bobby Smith, Big Spring, Mike Weaver and Mike Hall, Big Spring and Dan Wilkins and John Burgess, Big Spring are other entries in the top flight. Remaining challengers include Jackie Milam and Coy Coe, McCamey, Jackie Morgan and Leonard Morgan, Big Spring, Jimmie Welch, Big Spring and Blo Morgan, Hobbs, N.M., Max Pitts and Ed Wilkerson, Big Spring, Jerry Barron and Richard Pachall, Big Spring.

Kill Robber, Nab Another In Gun Fight

DALLAS (AP)—Police credited an alert porter for summoning them in time to kill one robber and capture another in a gun battle shortly after midnight at the Glen Lakes Country Club.
Officers said the porter heard a commotion in a game room and slipped away to call them while the bandits were taking an undetermined amount of cash and personal effects from 20 guests at a private party.
Patrolmen blocked the front doorway before the holdup men could flee and one of the pair fired five shots at police as he saw them running down a hallway. Officers returned the fire and the pair fled onto the golf course.
A third officer, firing after the fleeing men ignored his order to halt, dropped one of them with two blasts from a shotgun.
Fellow policemen caught the other bandit soaking wet after he swam across a golf course lake.

Authorities identified the dead man as Thomas Lee Gilbreath, 22, of Dallas.
They held his 21-year-old companion without immediate charge.
Police said the robbers invaded the club in North Dallas soon after midnight Thursday, disarmed security guard Jess Newton, 62, and slugged him with his own gun. That was the noise which the porter overheard.
"I opened the door there and one of them had—I don't know what—a big gun," Newton said. "I thought it was a machine gun. And I fought them a good bit while I holiered for help. They finally knocked me in the head."
Newton was treated for a head wound and a cut hand.

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — U.S. Bureau of Customs Capt. Gerald Dunham says border inspectors will be on the lookout this weekend for smugglers of fireworks from Mexico into Arizona, where they are illegal.
Dunham issued a warning Thursday that not only are fireworks illegal, but they could cause serious injuries to persons lighting them. He said the trafficking of fireworks always increases before July 4.
"Store owners in Mexico tell people that it is legal to bring fireworks across the border," Dunham said. "We probably have about 25 persons a day who try to declare fireworks at the border. We catch another 10 to 15 a day trying to sneak them across."

WAY TO CUT ROAD DEATHS?
LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip, the husband of Queen Elizabeth, today proposed that "cow catchers" on automobiles would be a good way to cut road deaths.
Philip explained to a congress of auto engineers that the device would be similar in principle to the cow catchers—that once-admired American locomotives.
He said the death rate in accidents between autos and pedestrians would be reduced if the stricken walker could be held by the car instead of being thrown on the road.
"We need some sort of pedestrian-catching baskets on the bonnets," he said. Bonnet is what the English call the hood.

'Saloons On Rails' Ire Okie Officials
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Amtrak, the corporation which has taken over the nation's passenger railroad service, is running what Oklahoma officials say is a border-to-border open saloon through the state twice a day with eight convenient stops.
Open saloons—establishments in which liquor can be purchased by the drink for consumption on the premises — are outlawed in Oklahoma. State wets have been betting for more than a year to have the prohibition put to a public vote, while train passengers have been "bellying up to the bar" in railroad dining cars with apparent impunity.
Richard Johnson, Amtrak's passenger service representative in Oklahoma City, said drinks were being served aboard the trains "even in Oklahoma."

Weldon Davis, director of the Oklahoma Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, said when informed of the sales, "if they sell drinks it is considered an open saloon-type operation. I'm inclined to believe the railroad people are in violation of state law."

Davis said he would refer the matter to the Oklahoma attorney general's office for "an informal opinion." He said the attorney general would probably want to study it and issue a written opinion.
"Any place, public or private," said Davis, "where liquor is offered for sale by the drink for consumption on the premises, is a violation. These people are bound to have a federal license, but we have restrictions against the sale of alcoholic beverages in the state of Oklahoma."

Asked if the trains could meet the state's laws by selling one-ounce bottles to train passengers for consumption en route as airlines do, Davis said, "It wouldn't make any difference. If they are selling it by the drink, it's still a violation."

FEDERAL LAW
The question of the precedence of federal law over state law was raised. Military reservations in Oklahoma, for example, are federal property and liquor may be sold by the drink on them because Oklahoma laws do not apply.

But an Amtrak spokeswoman in Washington said, "Amtrak is considered a private corporation. We are not considered a federally owned corporation. If it's a dry state, we would have to abide by that—we would have to abide by the regulation of that state."

RESTRICTIONS
Davis said he would refer the matter to the Oklahoma attorney general's office for "an informal opinion." He said the attorney general would probably want to study it and issue a written opinion.

Three Nurses Protesting Probe Of Gun Runs To Ireland Fired

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—The three women are here on visas for one year to work at Harris Hospital only.
Because of the dismissals, they may face deportation—and they don't want to be deported. In fact, they hope to extend their time in the United States by acquiring visitors' visas when their year's work permit expires.

MASSACRE FEARS
But, as the Haughey sisters explained matters, their country is on the verge of civil war, their people—the Catholic minority of Ulster—are threatened with massacre, and several of their countrymen are held in Fort Worth on charges they consider unjust.

Therefore, they said, they will continue picketing, firing or no firing, but also will try to take legal steps to regain their jobs and avoid deportation.
The Haughey sisters told of their father's death reluctantly.

only after being asked if their family had suffered in the Ulster civil strife.
NOT BITTER
"We don't want anyone to think we're doing this because we're bitter," said Briegle. "We're not bitter. It's just that his death is only one example of what's happening in the north of Ireland."

Their father, Nuala said, had been an Irish Republican nationalist, active in the struggle for equal rights for Ulster's Catholics for much of his life.
They believe he was beaten during the Protestant parade, which they said was a deliberate provocation of the Catholic neighborhood near Belfast, because he was pointed out as a longtime advocate of reunification with Catholic South Ireland.

In addition, Nuala said, "we had friends, people we knew quite well, who have been shot. It's very easy to get shot in Northern Ireland."

The nurses said they are not concerned about the guilt or the innocence of the men accused here of gun running.
CIVIL WAR
"We are in sympathy with these men," Nuala said. "I think the American people would not really try to convict these men if they knew what we are up against in the North of Ireland."

Nuala said she believes civil war is imminent in Ulster and she has been told "that this weekend there will be a bloody massacre (of Catholics) in North Ireland."

The sporadically broken truce established when Britain dissolved the Ulster government is on the verge of ending entirely, she said, and the Protestant unionists are well armed.
"Now, we feel if civil war comes about in Ireland that our people should be equally armed," she said.

Stone Returns From School

Sgt. Peter A. Stone of the Big Spring Police Department recently returned from Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos, where he attended the three-week second annual Data Processing and Computer Science Institute for Law Enforcement Personnel.

The seminar provided Stone with the chance to perform research on a special problem relating to local situations. He has prepared a report entitled "Criminal Justice Management through Automation," wherein the merits of utilizing computer technology in aid to law enforcement are outlined.

"A good management information system is an organized method of providing the administrator and his staff with all the data and only that date which they need for a decision when he needs it and in a form which aids his understanding and stimulates his action," Stone related.

The stockpile of information has grown to such gigantic proportions in the Big Spring Police Department, Stone stated, that a vast majority of the data is not in a form to facilitate rapid retrieval to those who desperately need it for management direction, identification, and criminal investigation.

He added that access to the city's IBM 3-system can enhance policing procedures by making a storehouse of information available in minimal time.

Senate Sends Antipoverty Bill To House Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — Overriding opposition from the White House, the Senate has passed a $9.6-billion antipoverty bill which sets up an independent corporation to help the poor with legal problems.

After a week of sometimes angry debate, the Senate Thursday voted 74 to 16 to approve the measure and send it back to the House, which passed a somewhat different version last February.

A conference will attempt to iron out differences between the two versions after Congress returns July 17 from the recess for the Democratic National Convention.

The Senate measure authorizes funds for two more years for programs aimed at helping the 26 million Americans officially designated as living in poverty.

The bill authorizes funds quite a bit higher than President Nixon recommended for many programs of the antipoverty agency, the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The measure does not give Nixon the authority he sought in handling or transferring programs. And administration officials indicated they still are not satisfied with the form of the Legal Services Corporation contained in the bill.

Thus, the possibility looms that Nixon might again veto the legislation when it reaches him.

Last December, he vetoed a measure containing similar OEO provisions but also setting up a large federal child-care program. Child care is being handled in separate legislation this year.

A Republican move to strike from the bill the provision for the Legal Services Corporation was turned back by a 56-34 vote Thursday. The same vote lost Monday on a 46-37 vote.

The chief sponsor of the bill, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said changes had been made in the corporation to meet Nixon's veto complaints.

But conservative Republican senators said the legal-aid program has been marred by abuse, including support for left-wing causes, violent demonstrations and participation of young lawyers in the program in political activity.

They maintained that the bill would not cure these shortcomings.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT? Instant Rejoicing By 45 Texas Cons

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The bright ray of hope sent flickering through Texas' death row by the U.S. Supreme Court's abolishment of the death penalty failed to shed light on one darkening question—what happens now?
 "There was instant rejoicing Thursday when the 45 inmates on death row at the state prison's Ellis Unit here heard news flashes of the court's 5-4 decision. As word spread through the two rows of cells, a rising tide of cheers and clapping rang through the maximum security unit.
NOT READY
 But after the joy of having their lives returned to them subsided, they turned thoughts to a fate many of the inmates consider worse than death—life imprisonment without parole.
 "What got them upset this morning was they heard that the sentences would be commuted to life," said Calvin Sellers, 30, who was sentenced to death after his conviction in a sensational armed robbery and murder of a Houston couple.
 "They're all worried right now about these life sentences," Sellers said, standing beside a high stack of law books he has studied during 7 1/2 years on death row. "Ninety-nine per cent of them say they're not ready for it (life imprisonment).

 "They say they'd rather go down. They'd rather be executed. Right now that's the attitude of all of them."
 A key figure in the Supreme Court's decision was Elmer Branch, whose case was one of three on which the tribunal ruled. Branch took the news calmly but couldn't hide a broad smile.
FELT REAL GOOD
 "I felt real good," said Branch, convicted of raping an elderly white woman at Vernon, Tex., in 1967. "I was surprised in a way. After they put it off and put it off, I figured they would do the same thing."
 "I didn't believe it. I was glad, but I didn't believe it," said William Scott of Bay City, sentenced to death after a rape conviction in 1969.
 Scott said even if he wasn't personally involved, he would be against the death penalty.
 "Let me put it this way," he said. "I don't believe nobody should die. That's just revenge. They should be punished in some way, but it's just revenge to take away a person's life."

 Sellers, who has studied while on death row and plans to become a law clerk if he gets out of prison, qualified his opinion of the death penalty.

LEGAL VIEW
 "I have a legal view and a personal view," the articulate Sellers said. "Personally, I can't say I'm against the death penalty 100 per cent. In some extreme cases it is justified."
 While inmates rejoiced at the decision and contemplated further action, many Texas officials voiced concern.
 "People are bleeding about the poor murderer being sentenced to die, but they don't realize the murderer has already sentenced someone to death himself without a trial," said Austin police chief R. A. Miles.
 Col. Wilson E. Speir, director of the Department of Public Safety said, "We must have appropriate punishment, which will serve as a deterrent to crime. If there is to be no death penalty, then there must be a viable alternative, one which will permanently remove from the society those individuals who are desperately dangerous to it."

WIDOW TO APPEAL Famed Surgeons Win Damage Suit

HOUSTON (AP) — A lawyer for Mrs. Haskell Karp says she will appeal an instructed verdict by U.S. District Judge John V. Singleton favoring Dr. Denton Cooley and Domingo Liotta as defendants in a $4.5 million damage suit.
 Mrs. Karp accused the famed heart surgeons of negligence and using her late husband for human experimentation.
 Karp died here April 8, 1969, after receiving a controversial mechanical heart and a human heart transplant when his pacemaker failed to function.

CITES EVIDENCE
 Defense lawyer Thomas Weatherly said the instructed verdict was handed down because the plaintiff "had to have another doctor of similar skills (to judge Cooley's competence). There was no evidence to be considered by a jury...no probative evidence that he did anything wrong from a legal standpoint."
 Dr. Michael DeBakey appeared in court chambers for one and one-half hours Tuesday but did not testify in open court.
 Mrs. Karp's lawyer, John Holloway contended Singleton refused to allow DeBakey to appear.
 Holloway and Judge Singleton clashed often during the trial, which started June 19. Holloway said DeBakey's or any other testimony would not have made any difference.
 "The court would have instructed the verdict," he said.
 Cooley was not in the courtroom when the judge announced his decision. He had been recalled to St. Luke's Hospital where he had already performed nine operations Thursday between appearing on the stand, and had a 10th scheduled.
