Advocates Of Stricter Gun Laws Turned Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today rejected a third attempt to strengthen a handgun control bill.

Turned down on a 75-16 roll-call vote was an amendment by Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., to require registration of all handguns and licensing of owners.

A bill the Senate started debating Monday would ban the sale of snub-nosed, easily concealed handguns not suitable for sporting purposes.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., the bill's chief sponsor, said it would take out of the marketplace the weapons most commonly used by criminals.

The Senate rejected 84 to 7 a substitute proposal by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., to outlaw private possession of all kinds of handguns. Owners who turned in their pistols or revolvers would be compensated at fair-market value by the government.

Then, the Senate defeated 78 to 11 an amendment by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to require registration of all firearms—rifles and shotguns as well as handguns—and state or federal licensing of all gun owners.

The votes were the first taken by the Senate on gun-control legislation since the attempted assassination on May 15 of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace during his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

It was the wounding of Wallace, a foe of further federal firearm controls, that spurred the Senate Judiciary Committee into reporting out the bill sponsored by Bayh.

Bayh opposed both Hart's substitute measure and Kennedy's registration-licensing proposal. Bayh maintained that it was better to stick with legislation that had a chance and that would mark some progress toward curbing gun violence.

Bayh said his bill would prohibit the sale of handguns of the type used in shooting Wallace and in assassinating Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

However, Sen. Edward Kennedy said the Senate should adopt his amendment "if we are seriously interested in doing something about crime and violence."

Hart voted for Kennedy's amendment although he said he didn't think the registration of long guns would be of much benefit to public safety.

McGOVERN GETS $25,000 CHECK

Demos Due To Nominate Shriver

WASHINGTON (AP) — With his party poised to nominate Sargent Shriver as his new running-mate, Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern flies to Miami today to attack President Nixon's labor record and accept another union endorsement.

McGovern dug into the Republican economic record in a speech to the AFL-CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers union Monday, breaking a tradition of launching Democratic presidential campaigns with a pro-labor speech on Labor Day in Detroit.

MEAT CUTTERS
But there is another difference this year. Those recent Democratic campaigns had the endorsement and financial backing of the executive board of the AFL-CIO which this year has decided to endorse no presidential candidate.

Monday, McGovern got a $25,000 campaign check as a first installment from the president of the 360,000-member Clothing Workers union following a speech in which he faulted the Nixon record on unemployment, inflation, public-service jobs, international trade, minimum wage and the continuing war in Vietnam.

He worked on the speech he'll give in Miami Beach today to the 550,000-member Amalgamated Meat Cutters union, which earlier endorsed him, and on plans to meet workers on a swing through New England later in the week.

Meanwhile, some 20 of the nation's leading black union leaders announced they'll meet with the candidate in Miami Beach Wednesday to plan a coalition to counter the anti-McGovern forces led by AFL-CIO President George Meany.

RUMORS

An organizer of the meeting said it will be attended by black union leaders who "feel that the re-election of Richard Nixon will almost certainly result in further development of national policies designed to slow or reverse civil-rights progress and to undermine federal provisions which insure decent and equitable treatment of American workers."

About three million of the 18 million members of organized labor are black.

As McGovern concentrated on labor, the Democratic National Committee convened one of the most unusual meetings in its history and prepared to give former Peace Corps director Shriver the vice-presidential nomination resigned by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo.

Reacting to persistent rumors, Eagleton said that under no circumstances would he permit his name to be placed in nomination again. He quit the ticket as a result of public discussion over his disclosure that he had undergone shock treatment for depression in the 1960s.

NO CROCODILE TEARS — David Wayne Abbott, 6, bitten on the leg by an alligator last Thursday, smiles upon hearing that the alligator has been removed from the small lake at Jacksonville Naval Air Station where he was attacked. Mrs. Fred Abbott, shown with her son, said the boy was lucky the bite wasn't worse. He faces about three weeks' hospitalization and a possible skin graft.

HATES LOSING Bobby Will Be Playing 'Mean'

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Bobby Fischer "will be playing mean tonight," a friend said today as the American challenger and Soviet chess champion Boris Spassky prepared for their 12th game.

Fischer was crushed by Spassky in just 31 moves Sunday, trimming the American's lead in the 24-game match to 6½-4½. A win counts a full point, a draw a half.

It was Fischer's first defeat since the opening game July 12, and the friend added: "Bobby hates losing."

Fischer needs six more points to take the title and Spassky 7½ to retain it.

Spassky in the 11th game Sunday at last returned to championship form, particularly with a 14th move that the assembled grandmasters gaped at. The move, a backward sidestep with a knight, cornered Fischer's queen.

"It takes a champion to attack backward," said Danish grandmaster Bent Larsen. "The match really is a great match now."

Friends say Fischer's defeat is certain to tighten his play and make him more aggressive.

He'll Always Remember 'Fat Jaws'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Lying in his hospital bed, young David Wayne Abbott says he'll always remember "Fat Jaws," an alligator which grabbed the boy in its toothy mouth as he played in a lake.

"All he can remember are those big jaws closing down on him," said the 6-year-old boy's mother, Mrs. Fred Abbott of Jacksonville. "He won't even use the word alligator. He calls it 'Fat Jaws.'"

And he was happy to hear that Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission agents removed an alligator from the small lake where he was attacked. Officials believe it is the one that bit the boy, but they continued to hunt for another which is known to inhabit the lake but is reputedly shy of people.

Although David faces about three weeks in the hospital and maybe a skin graft to cover a 2½-inch-long wound in his right leg, his mother says he was lucky.

"The wound is between the calf and knee inside the leg," Mrs. Abbott said. "If it had been on the other side, doctors say it could have severed vital tendons. And if it had been higher, it could have damaged his kneecap."

The boy went along with his brother on a Cub Scout outing at Jacksonville Naval Air Station last Thursday and was playing in the shallows of Casa Linda Lake at a picnic ground when the alligator attacked.

Carolyn Higgins, a Cub Scout den mother, waded into the lake, grabbed the boy and pulled him from the eight-foot reptile's jaws.

Mrs. Abbott credits Mrs. Higgins with saving David's leg and possibly his life.

The alligator had the boy's whole leg in its mouth and could have snapped it off, his mother said.

After getting 20 stitches to close the wound, David was sent home. Infection set in, however, and he was hospitalized the next day.

Sirhan Moved From Death Row

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Sirhan B. Sirhan, convicted for the 1968 slaying of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, has been moved from San Quentin's Death Row to the prison's Adjustment Center, prison officials say.

The move, along with that of eight other prisoners, is part of a program to reclassify all 102 Death Row inmates following a state Supreme Court ruling in February that the death penalty was invalid under the California constitution.

KISSED HIM GOODBYE TWICE 'It's Nobody's Fault, Only Too Much Love'

MIAMI (AP) — A note found in a young blonde's car parked below the 30-story apartment house said, "I had to do it. I had no other choice. It's no-body's fault, only too much love."

The note was scrawled across a cigarette carton written partially in German and partially in English.

"It doesn't make much sense to commit suicide because of too much love," homicide Sgt. Eugene McCracken said Monday after 23-year-old Susanne Schiefer plunged 21 floors to her death.

Police said the victim's husband, Dr. Sigbert Schiefer, a 30-year-old visiting Austrian chemist, "broke up completely" when informed of his wife's death.

McCracken said Schiefer later told investigators "he thought it was odd when she kissed him goodbye twice this morning."

Officers said the young couple was married in Venice last fall and came to Miami as newlyweds.

Dr. Schiefer told police his wife became desperately homesick for her parents so he arranged for them to come here for a visit. They were due to arrive in Miami in three days.

The young biochemist said his wife had become distraught about the cost of the trip.

When officers were unable to translate the note found in the victim's car, building employees summoned Klaus Vosbeck, a resident.

"Everything is wrong. God will punish me," Vosbeck started reading aloud from the note in the lobby. "I have chosen the easiest way for myself and also the hardest way for the others. Remember me . . ."

Then a detective interrupted when he found Mrs. Schiefer's passport photo in her purse.

Vosbeck gasped, then stammered, "That can't be the girl who jumped!"

Shaken and pale, he then tearfully told officers that he worked with Dr. Schiefer and he and his wife were the Austrian couple's closest friends.

SNAKES GIVE SAM SHAKES

Sam, the rattlesnake flushing dog of Col. Bowden Hampton on the Old San Angelo highway, has gone into a nervous decline.

It was he who sounded the alarm last Friday at the Hampton home when a rattlesnake invaded the front yard, and again in the wee hours of that night when an even larger one got too near the back door.

Over the weekend he flushed another rattler, this one measuring 4½ feet in length and with 10 rattles. Whether it was the snake, or Col. Bowden's shot killing the snake, something got the best of Sam's nerves and he took off, returning late the next day. Since then, according to the Hamptons, he's been a bundle of nerves.

Car Lots Plagued By Vandals Here

An epidemic of vandalism by BB guns has been reported to police in the past two days.

A total of 81 used car windshields have been reported damaged, 24 of these being reported Monday. Today, police received reports of 57 more windshields pecked by the BB guns.

Monday's estimates of damage totaled $2,400. Considering an average of $100 per windshield the total through today represents an estimated $8,100 worth of damage to windshields of used cars.

The damage occurred to seven used car lots, all located on West Fourth St., C. L. Mason Auto Sales, Huck's Auto, Bob Brock Used Cars, Gillihan Motors, Charles Williams Auto, Bill Chrane Auto and Neighbors' Auto Sales.

A check with several other dealers has revealed no additional damage.

By LINDA CROSS
The high cost of justice is being felt by Glasscock County taxpayers, according to Glasscock County Judge W. D. Parker.

Costs of the trials of Orville Davis and Whitmer Jean Ballard in connection with the Dec. 2, 1970 robbery-murder of Glasscock County rancher Steve Currie, 72, have resulted in a hike in the county tax assessment.

"We couldn't raise the tax rate. Our tax rate of 95 cents per $100 valuation is about as high as we can go, so we had to raise our rate of assessment. We raised our assessment from 30 to 35 per cent of the total valuation," said Judge Parker.

MORE REVENUE
Judge Parker said that the raised assessment is expected to mean approximately $30,000 in additional revenue to Glasscock County this year, including taxes assessed on new pipelines added to county taxrolls.

Total costs of the Ballard and Davis trials are projected at $50,000, said Judge Parker. Davis was sentenced to life in prison following a change of venue trial in Midland, and Ballard was sentenced to death in the electric chair following his trial in Alpine.

Both men are appealing their sentences and are in custody in Midland County jail.

Judge Parker said that the most expensive trial to date was the Ballard trial, which lasted four weeks. Davis' trial lasted two weeks and cost approximately $13,000.

are not yet in, according to Judge Parker. He said that the county has yet to receive a bill from Court Reporter Jerry Spence for the cost of making a transcript of Ballard's trial.

MORE BUDGETED
"We've budgeted $13,000 for the trial of Tommy Tisdale," said Judge Parker. Tisdale is to be tried in San Angelo for murder in connection with the Currie case. No date has yet been set for the trial. Tisdale is currently serving a federal sentence in Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Judge Parker said that expenses borne by the county include $250 per day lawyer fees for the defendants during trial, travel expenses for lawmen and witnesses in connection with the trial, transcript costs and other legal expenses in connection with the trials.

Glasscock County must meet the expenses of appeals by the defendants, according to 118th District Attorney Wayne Burns, but cost estimates on the appeals would be difficult to make, he said.

"Attorneys' fees for the appeals are set by the presiding judge," said Burns, "but the minimum fee for an attorney on an appeal case is $500 for the length of the case."

"We had hoped that the death sentence against Ballard would be commuted to life in view of the Supreme Court decision against the death penalty," said Judge Parker, "but this has not been done, and appeal is automatic in death penalty cases."

'Chilly' In Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Temperatures plummeted to record lows early today at Little Rock and Fort Smith.

The temperature at Fort Smith dipped to 59, breaking the city's previous record of 64 degrees for the date. At Little Rock, the temperature fell to 64, tying the record for the date set in 1879 and matched in 1883.

The National Weather Service said daytime temperatures in Arkansas were expected to drop Wednesday with the invasion of a cold front. The service said, however, that only limited thundershowers were anticipated, since a front that moved through Arkansas Monday swept out much of the moisture.

Services for Robert N. (Bob) Hill, 74, resident of Big Spring for 67 years who died here Monday morning, will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the First United Methodist Church where he was a long and faithful member.

Mr. Ayres was born Aug. 3, 1906 in Hugo, Okla., and came to Big Spring to work for the F. F. Gary General Merchandise store. He became interested in radio and later constructed the first police radio transmitter, and car receivers, for the Big Spring police department. Subsequently he went to work for Mobil Oil at Andrews until his retirement earlier this year, when he moved to Eastland.

He was married to the former Hattie Rogers at Gorman. Among survivors are his widow; his mother, Mrs. W. D. Ayers, and a sister, Mrs. D. M. (Bonnie) Cross, both of Big Spring, four aunts and several nephews and nieces.

A brother, Tommy Ayres, preceded him in death in 1954 as did a son, Bill Ayres, who succumbed in 1959.

Mrs. Mozelle Wood died about noon Monday while en route to a hospital in Odessa. Services are pending at Paul Rix's Chapel in Odessa.

Mrs. Wood, wife of Alvin L. Wood, formerly resided in Big Spring. She left here about 1940 to make her home in Odessa.

Mrs. Lees had been married to G. W. Lees, who until his death May 1, 1926, had been foreman of the Texas & Pacific Railway shop. After his death, she moved to Dallas and in 1959 she moved to Odessa. She had been in ill health for several years prior to her death.

One son, Dr. Charles Ray Lees, of Shirley, Ark., survives her as do five grandchildren, including Mrs. Eddie Rae Clark, Big Spring; 17 great-grandchildren; and six great-great-grandchildren.

More Texans Hunting Jobs

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The number of jobless Texans rose to 4.6 per cent of the civilian labor force as of mid-June, an increase of .8 of a per cent from May, the Texas Employment Commission reported.

The commission said although 229,000 Texans who wanted work did not have a job in June, the unemployment rate of 4.6 per cent "still can be compared favorably with the 5.3 per cent rate in June 1971."

It said the economy of virtually all the major labor areas had improved during the past 12 months.

A new record was set as of mid-June when the civilian labor force reached 4,933,500, or 68,900 more than the old record set in June 1971.

Summer job seekers "flooding the job market" was partly responsible for hiking the jobless rate, the commission indicated.

Sex Guessing

Your Good Health
Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I recently read how doctors are now able to determine the sex of an unborn baby by putting a needle into the womb and tapping the fluid.

Would you recommend this for curious parents? Do doctors object to this? Is it harmful for either mother or baby? How far along should pregnancy be for this test? — Mrs. T. J.

The procedure you read about is called amniocentesis, and if you think back, you may recall it has been discussed several times in this column — although not primarily for the purpose you mention.

The amniotic fluid (the fluid in which the fetus rests) is examined for the type of cells it contains, particularly for chromosome patterns which can indicate possible abnormalities.

Ordinarily the procedure is not harmful for mother or baby, but as with any procedure, it is not always possible to predict what MIGHT happen unexpectedly. There MAY be bad effects, occasionally, from such everyday things as having a tooth pulled, having a vac-ination, or other such things. So my continuing view is this: Even though a procedure is not a risky one or likely to have harmful effects, don't do it for trivial reasons. Have a good reason before doing it.

So I guess that answers one of your questions. While amniocentesis will reveal the sex of the baby, I don't think it should be done just out of curiosity. You can't change the sex!

The test is primarily useful for determining if there is need to terminate a pregnancy because of probability of the baby being born with abnormalities, inherited or from infection such as rubella.

Best results are usually obtained around the 14th week of pregnancy. That cuts it rather fine, timewise, as to the optimum time to terminate a pregnancy, but it is often necessary, because cell change may not be apparent before the 10th week. And may not be clear after the 15th week.

The test should be done when there is a family history of mental deficiencies or "inborn errors of metabolism," the aim being, of course, to avoid bringing defective children into the world.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have polycythemia. I have given gallons of blood to the Red Cross until I found out I have polycythemia. Now they will not take my blood. I have to go to a hospital and they charge $10 to take my blood and say it can't be used.

I have had doctors tell me they are wrong, that they do use the blood. Do you have any place that could use it? — Mrs. W. H.

To my knowledge, blood from patients is not used for transfusions. It might be used under special circumstances, but these would be rare cases.

Reason for not using polycythemic blood is very simple: the cause of the disease is not known in some cases. Therefore we don't know whether use of the blood could be harmful, and if we don't know, we play safe and don't use it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What foods contain zinc? I heard that it is effective in aiding memory. I am 65. — E.T.

Zinc is found in meat, cereals, nuts, peanut butter, seafoods, eggs, brewer's yeast, most fruits and vegetables. It's hard to avoid it, in fact.

But as to aiding memory, I have my doubts. Possibly a B-complex vitamin preparation might help, but I offer even that idea very gingerly.

Troubled with gout? To learn of new treatment for this cruel and painful disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of the Big Spring Herald for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — The Modern Way To Stop It." Please enclose a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Texas Med Costs Told

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas hospital costs aren't quite as high as the national average, a hospital spokesman has told a special state senate committee.

Ray Hurst of the Texas Hospital Association told the committee that Texans last year paid an average of $85 a day for hospital care, including lab work, X-rays and drugs, while the national average was $92.31.

Hurst also said that although hospital costs went up about 14.5 per cent last year, that was the lowest increase since 1966.

Dr. Russell Deter of El Paso, who heads a Texas Medical Association committee on medical costs, testified that one of the major factors in rising hospital costs is the "image-builders" on some hospital boards who buy specialized pieces of equipment just because other hospitals have them.

"We need someone to control such things community-wide," Deter said, "but I'd hate to say the government should."

May Not Be Good Enough

For all of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's claim that its policy of actively combating hijacking of airplanes would quickly discourage this jet-age crime, results have argued otherwise.

Since agents stormed aboard a purloined plane in California with guns drawn and shot it out with hijackers — with a passenger killed in the crossfire — air piracy has shown no signs of abating. And even more aggressive law enforcement tactics could result in more passenger deaths, particularly should shoot-outs occur while a craft is in flight.

No, the only good way to combat aircraft hijacking is to prevent it from taking place. Once an airliner has been commandeered, too many lives are in jeopardy; no form of enforcement procedure at that point can guarantee safety.

And so as disturbing as the prospect may be to airlines and their passengers, the newly announced Federal Aviation Administration order compelling airlines to search all suspicious-looking passengers and their luggage is fully justified.

In point of fact, it may prove not to go far enough.

The searches will be conducted of persons who fit an FAA-developed hijacker behavioral profile. Such "profiles" have been followed for some time in seeking potential hijackers among boarding passengers, but only to the point of asking for their identification, not instituting a search.

The new policy may or may not be good enough; it is dependent for success on the adequacy of the profile system. And since so many hijackings have occurred after passengers supposedly were scrutinized with the FAA profile in mind, that system's fool-proof status is doubtful. But the move is in the right direction. Should it prove inadequate, however, there should be no further hesitation in directing that all passengers and all carried-onboard luggage be searched. This would be an inconvenience to airline passengers, necessitating long boarding lines, earlier arrivals at airports and the personal indignity involved. But those would be relatively small prices to pay when the alternative could be a hijacking tragedy costing hundreds of lives.

Poor Performance

The performance of Jack Anderson, nationally syndicated columnist, in accusing Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri, briefly a vice presidential nominee, of arrest on a drunken driving charge, was poor, indeed, if not scurrilous.

Later he retracted this charge, which didn't even begin to undo the damage it had done to the senator's reputation. Anderson didn't even appear to have the grace to be contrite about this error, but that is no consequence beside the effrontery of having released such a story without irrefutable proof of such a charge. The most unexperienced reporter would have known better and would have expected to be fired for such a lapse in ethical thoroughness of substantiation before impugning the character of an individual. And worst of all, this sort of performance adds carelessly and wantonly to an already previous credibility gap.

Only God, But...

Around The Rim

Jo Bright

Being a southerner by birth, my early memories include the vision of blue skies seen through the exotic patterns of pine needles silhouetted against a morning sky. Trees — big, stately, spreading trees — seemed the corner posts that defined my area of the world. It never occurred to me trees were a precious commodity only a few hundred miles away. You might say I couldn't see the forest for the trees.

ANOTHER VIEW of the green giants is taken by the Southern Forest Products Association in a color brochure called "Trees Forever." In an environmental challenge it says: "Housing is one of the nation's major environmental problems. The housing shortage and slums contribute to crime and social unrest. The solution must include a major increase in the construction of sound, reasonably priced homes. To accomplish the goal, adequate building materials must be available.

"HOUSING, of course, is basically a product of trees. Most home and apartment in the United States, even brick homes, require lumber for structural support. About 10,000 board feet are used in a typical single-family home.

"Lumber has a strength that, pound for pound, exceeds even steel's. An even more compelling reason most home builders prefer lumber (other than economy and structural merit) is that timber is a renewable natural resource. Most other building materials are taken from the earth. And there is no way to replace what is taken away. But a permanent timber supply can be assured by growing more trees than are harvested.

"FROM AN environmental standpoint, forest management and lumber manufacture are among the soundest of industrial practices. The timber harvest is thrifty and clean, helps fertilize the soil, is quickly replaced by new growth and leaves no permanent unsightly environmental scars. Less promising trees, removed in thinning, are supplied to paper mills, and this helps increase the growth of quality trees.

CONSERVATION is also practiced at the mill. Most Southern sawmills debark logs and convert slabs, edgings and other leavings to pulp chips for paper mills. Sawdust may also be used in paper mills, and shavings are used to make particleboard. In some instances, the energy required to run a sawmill can be provided by using waste materials, in areas where there are shortages of oil, gas and electricity."

IT'S TRUE that only God can make a tree, but apparently, the association is making the most out of what He provides.

Julian's Blast

William F. Buckley Jr.

I have never understood how it came to be that it is to dignify the black people of America to suggest that they should all vote the Democratic ticket. From way back, the enemy of the blacks has been the stereotype: the nation of the undifferentiated black—the cottonpicker or houseman, Tom, or Joe, no last name given because no last name is thought necessary, there being nothing in particular to distinguish between Tom and Joe.

ALONG COMES Mr. Julian Bond, the young black legislator from Georgia, working himself into quite a pitch of excitement last week at the suggestion that there are Negroes who plan to vote for Richard Nixon in the fall. Black Republicans, he says, are "political prostitutes." And those black Republican leaders who lately urged blacks to vote either for Nixon or to stay at home "are the willing accomplices of the Fascist forces in America who believe the only good black voter is one who does not vote."

Now Mr. Bond is not renowned for precision for speech, or charity of sentiment.

OBVIOUSLY ANYONE who is for Nixon desires that other people will, next November, vote for Nixon. There is nothing inherently wrong with that, surely. What is it they hope people who can't bring themselves to vote for Nixon will do? Why, obviously, that they will stay at home.

Now if one is addressing people in the context of a particular affinity: farmer to farmer, say; or banker to banker; or Irish to Irish, Californian to Californian, black to black, it is characteristic that one's rhetoric should slide into what us-folks should do or not do concerning the problems of farmers, or bankers, or Irish, or Californians, or blacks. There is nothing in the least usual, therefore, about a black leader who is Republican advertising the benefits to black people who are not Republicans of staying home rather than voting for McGovern. What I want to know is: what's Fascist about that?

JULIAN BOND has been living by the sword for quite a while now. He pronounced American virtue quite dead upon the assassination of Martin Luther King, for which we were all to blame, remember? (By the way, how come nobody has said that we were all to blame for the attempted assassination of George Wallace?)

PRESUMABLY, there was just enough virtue left in America to reelect Julian Bond to the Georgian Assembly a couple of times since his dismissal of America. In the apex of madness in 1968, Eldridge Cleaver was denouncing Julian Bond as a "pig," a pig, being defined, in Cleaver, usage, as anyone who cooperates with the System.

BUT IT IS neither true that the black people of America today are a people persecuted in the larger sense. Nor is it by any means obvious that if one contends that they are persecuted, using the word metaphorically, that the Democratic Party is the obvious instrument of their deliverance. My own feeling is that no Negro Republican has in recent weeks said anything quite so inimical to the interests of Negro Americans as Mr. Bond has done. If I were a Negro I would ask him please to stop addressing me in tones quite so hortatory.

Unaware Of Inflation

John Cuniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Based on renewed buying activity, the growth of credit and a drop in the savings rate, Americans are somewhat more certain of the future than they were a year ago.

One of the factors involved in their outlook is the progress being made in arresting inflation. It is now down to about 3.5 per cent on an annual basis. It had been close to 6 per cent in 1970.

Three and one-half per cent is considered a "moderate" rate these days, but only because of the "galloping" inflation—5 per cent or more—that went before. It could be misleading.

Just a decade ago the nation settled on one to two per cent as an "acceptable" rate. It was called "creeping" inflation, and it was tolerated only because nobody could figure out how to get it lower.

The current inflation rate, however, is nearly double that, and prompts Martin Gainsburgh, former chief economist of The Conference Board, to remind consumers that even at a 3 per cent rate, inflation halves the dollar's value in 24 years.

He reminds those who "save in contractual form, e.g., insurance, mutual savings, savings and loan," that they are liable to find their dollars worth only half as much when they withdraw them in their declining years.

The erosion formula is easy enough for anyone to work out. To determine the number of years required to cut purchasing power in half you divide the inflation rate into 72. The answer is disconcerting—but valuable.

It appears that the conservative financial practices of millions of Americans—the safe way, as they describe it—could be extremely wasteful, costly and disillusioning.

And insurance policy, the premiums for which are paid in current dollars, pays off in current dollars too. But premium payments are made in today's money while face value is returned in tomorrow's cheaper money.

Savings accounts that pay 5 per cent a year are actually earning only 1.5 per cent—less after taxes—at the present inflation rate. And U.S. Savings Bonds, which pay 5.5, in reality yield only 2 per cent.

Curiously, when inflation accelerated, the rate of savings rose also. Savings Bonds experienced a reversal of fortune: they had been paying out more than they sold but, with the help of a rate raise, this was changed.

Sales of life insurance policies also continued to grow, although it is significant that the greater growth was not in sales of individual but in group policies, which usually are the least expensive policies available.

One conclusion that may be tentatively drawn from this behavior is that some consumers today are still unaware of the erosive power of inflation.

But one indication that people are more aware than may be apparent of about how to deal with inflation is their growing interest in equities—in share ownership and in real estate.

Were You Missed?

WASHINGTON — It seems that last week Sen. George McGovern offered everyone the Vice Presidency. I became aware of this last Thursday when the taxi driver who takes me to work was late.

"I'm sorry I was delayed. I just took George McGovern to his Senate office and he asked me to run with him on the Democratic ticket."

"He did?"

"Yeah. But he was pretty honest about it. He said he had asked Sens. Kennedy, Ribicoff and Humphrey; Gov. Lucey of Wisconsin, Mayor Lindsey of New York, State Sen. Kalowitz of New Mexico, Alderman Hummer of Primrose, Vt., City Councilman Riegley of Sam Hill, Idaho, Justice of the Peace Dumbottom of Long Fence, Montana, and 16 notary publics in Detroit. They all turned him down."

"WHAT DID you say when he asked you?" I inquired.

"I told McGovern that ordinarily I would have been flattered, but I had heard through the grapevine that he had already offered the spot to his dry cleaner on MacArthur Blvd. I said I thought I should have been asked first."

"How did you know that for sure?" "Because the check-out man at the A&P near McGovern's home told me he had been asked before the dry cleaner."

"WHY DIDN'T the A&P check-out man accept the Vice Presidency?"

"He's fooling around with a customer, the wife of someone high in government, and he's afraid it would come out."

"It must be discouraging for the candidate to have so many people turn him down. He didn't ask his gardener, did he?"

"No, he wants to keep his gardener," the taxi driver said, "but he did ask his dentist."

"You mean the dentist turned it down, too?"

"THE PROBLEM there, as I understand it, is the dentist has three speeding tickets on the books, and when the staff heard about it they crossed him off the list."

"Did he ask any women that you know of?"

"His wife's hairdresser. But her husband wouldn't let her accept. McGovern seriously considered one of the women who lives on his street, but she turned out to be a Republican."

"Well, you can't say he hasn't tried," I said.

WE ARRIVED at the office and I paid him. Then I went upstairs. My secretary was waiting breathlessly "George McGovern wants you to call him. It's urgent."

I placed the call.

McGovern asked, "How would you like to be my vice president?" "Let me say yes before you change your mind."

"Good. I'll give you Frank Mankiewicz."

Frank got on the phone. "Art, are there any skeletons in your closet?" "You've got to be kidding!" I said. "Where do you want me to start?"

Loved And Lost?

NEW YORK (AP) — Things that make life worth living:

The mild elation that comes from making the last payment on an installment play — so you're free to go into more debt buying something else.

Finding in the back of a closet a comfortable pair of old shoes you thought your wife had thrown away.

Being thanked by an elderly baby-sitter for walking her home.

The joyous sounds of carols sung outside your house on Christmas Eve by a band of roving singers while snowflakes are feathering down.

Hearing the Irish voice of tenor John McCormack rise sweet and clear as a convent bell on a summer evening from a scratchy old recording of "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling."

Sitting on a park bench at 17 on a starlit night with the first really serious date of your life and wondering just what would be the right move to make next—if any.

Getting a job as counterman in the neighborhood drugstore at 16 and learnedly advising all the creaking old people who came in just what would be the best patent medicine to cure their rheumatism.

Finding at 12 your muscles were so good you could let younger kids hit you in your taut stomach with all their might and it didn't hurt. Well, not too much anyway, after you got your breath back.

Warming your frozen fingers and thawing your nose with other ice skaters around a fire at the edge of a farm pond. Did that pretty girl in the red stocking cap push next to you by accident, or is that where she chose to be?

Reading a poem by Emily Dickinson for the first time, and having the half-dazed feeling that lightning had struck you and the whole world was on fire with a new illumination.

The nostalgia of meeting 50 years later the little red-haired girl you loved and lost in kindergarten. How could time be so unfair to loveliness? On the other hand there, but for the grace of God, was the woman you might have married.

Sitting alone on a log in a sun-flecked wilderness on a camping trip, and suddenly feeling you were in a cathedral and that you should kneel, because all human life is one vast prayer.

Hampering Effect

David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The United States government is finding itself embarrassed in its negotiations at Paris designed to work out a plan for peace in Vietnam. Some members of Congress are busily engaged in pressing for passage of resolutions that would cut off funds after a certain date for military operations in Southeast Asia if the American prisoners have been released.

BOTH THE Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese are well aware that the proposals being adopted from time to time may not be enacted into law as they are subject to presidential veto even if passed by both houses of Congress. These do, however, reflect a trend which encourages the Communists to believe that the White House will sooner or later have to issue instructions to its negotiators to surrender.

The Hanoi government insists that it would release prisoners and agree to a cease-fire if the United States would abandon any further support of the present government in Saigon. The South Vietnamese, on the other hand, are determined to preserve their independence. Even if the United States were to take no further action in Vietnam, it is a question whether Indo-China would be a peaceful area as long as South Vietnam was dissatisfied with the settlement which its opponents might force upon it.

THE AMERICAN suggestion has been that a disinterested influence be brought into the negotiations so that a "political settlement," as it has been called, could be worked out that would be acceptable to all concerned. The United States would not continue the fighting but would join in the cease-fire and withdraw all its forces as American prisoners are returned.

An agreement probably cannot be consummated before the American election has been held, because the North Vietnamese are not likely to make any pledges until after they see what kind of administration is going to be in power in Washington during the next four years.

AS FAR as the bombing is concerned, it will not be stopped as long as the North Vietnamese carry on offensives against South Vietnam, where some American troops still remain. There is evidence that the North Vietnamese have been hurt by the air attacks and that their supply lines have been impaired. The military situation is not as favorable for North Vietnam as it has been in the past. South Vietnam has a larger army and more air power than ever before.

So the question of how long the United States will assist South Vietnam is one that will have to be pondered by the North Vietnamese.

PASSAGE OF resolutions that would interfere with the President's policy in Vietnam is in a sense prolonging the war, because the Hanoi government is not likely to make any concessions at Paris until after the election has been held in the United States. Whether the dissent in Congress means that the President doesn't have the support of the voters is, of course, something that only the coming election will disclose.

My Answer

Billy Graham

I found out recently that I am an adopted child. This shook me up. Do you think that a foster child is loved as much as a natural one?

N.A.A. While a natural child, in some cases, could be unwanted and unwelcomed, a foster child is always wanted and loved. The parental instinct in childless parents is as strong as those with children. There are childless women whose arms ache for a child to love, and obviously, there are natural mothers who have little or no love for their offspring. This is evidenced by the fact that many natural mothers abandon their children.

While in normal parents there is a blood-tie which binds them to their children, real parental love is not limited to ties of blood. I know foster parents who have an unfeigned love for their adopted children, and the adopted child should never harbor fears that they are unwanted or unloved.

The adopted child should remember that the New Testament gives an analogy of adoption for God's children. "God sent forth his Son . . . to redeem them that were under the law, THAT WE MIGHT RECEIVE THE ADOPTION OF SONS . . . Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ." (Galatians 4:4-7).

If God used the beautiful analogy of adoption to depict His relationship to His children, then you should have no doubts about your status. Your parents wanted you; they chose you, and they love you. Thank God for the love which has been given you, and enjoy it.

A Devotion For Today . .

Why are ye fearful? have ye not yet faith? (Mark 4:40, ASV) PRAYER: Eternal God, give us courage to meet the challenges of this day with the truth of Christ and the gospel. This we ask in the name of our Savior, who has taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

Can't Tie Him

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

AGAIN? (Q.) My boy friend and I broke up once and I'm afraid it may happen again. The first time he broke up with me because I promised him to quit smoking but didn't. I smoked behind his back. He found out and quit me. I didn't like not having him, so I stopped smoking for good and he came back to me.

The trouble now is Tanya. I know he likes her a little, anyway. I suspected he had been calling her. So yesterday, when I called him and his line was busy, I called her and her line was busy, too.

I kept calling until I got him. I asked him why he was talking to Tanya. At first he said he wasn't, but then admitted he was. He said he had just called her to ask her about a car race (her brother is a driver). They talked a long time for it to be just about a car race.

I am scared to death I will lose him. How can I keep him? — Trouble in New York State.

(A.) You certainly can't keep him by making him account to you for every telephone call he makes.

Enjoy him when he is with you and let him know you do, but do not try to tie him to you. Let him run free when he is not with you.

BABY-SITTING: (Q.) I am writing to you because of what you said to the 12-year-old girl about baby-sitting.

My mother started me out baby-sitting when I was 10½ or 11. When she went to the store or some place like that I would watch my two sisters, ages 3 and 5.

When I got to be 11½ or 12 I started baby-sitting them at night when my parents went howling. Now I am 12½ and I still baby-sit and I have had no trouble. So why can't that 12-year-old girl? — Reliable in Wisconsin.

(A.) Your parents approve of what you do. They know you better than anyone else knows you and they trust you with your little sisters at home.

I congratulate you on this trust and hope you will continue not to have any trouble.

The other girl wanted her mother to let her baby-sit for strangers. The children would be strange, the house would be strange, the employers, too. That's quite different from your situation.

(Jean Adams reads and considers every letter, but she regrets that she cannot answer each personally. Mail your questions and comments to Jean Adams, care of the Big Spring Herald, P. O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77061.)

He Changed

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 40-year-old married woman and have been told that I am reasonably attractive. I've always been able to handle men who have come on too strong, but now I am stumped!

Would you believe that an 85-year-old man has been bugging me? He is well respected in this community, and always greets the women at church with a hug and kiss. I thought nothing of it as he seemed to love people so much.

One day he telephoned me and asked me to come by his house to get some fresh vegetables from his garden. (He lives alone.) I went there, was given the vegetables, then he embraced me and tried to kiss me! I had to struggle hard to get away from him. He's surprisingly strong for his age. I left as tactfully and quickly as I could, but that really shook me up. I almost told him off, then I considered that a man of 85 might not be as mentally responsible as a younger man, and I didn't want to hurt his feelings.

He keeps calling me to come back for more vegetables, and I am running out of excuses. He calls so often I hate to answer the phone.

Should I keep making up excuses for not going back? Or should I tell him the truth and ask him not to call me anymore? I don't know how to get out of this situation. Everyone thinks he is such a dear old man, but to me, he's just a dirty old man. STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: He could be a "sick" old man. Don't be cruel, but do put an end to his calling by telling him firmly, but tactfully that you have decided not to return to his home without your husband. He'll get the idea.

DEAR ABBY: This man (I will call him Mr. Jones) runs a cement contracting business out of his home.

I have telephoned him at least a half dozen times trying to give him some business, but each time I call, a child answers the phone says "Daddy isn't home," and hangs up.

I have no telephone in my home so I must make these calls at a pay station which costs me a dime every time I call. Do you think a man should allow his business phone to be answered by a child who can't take a message? And have you any suggestions for how to reach Mr. Jones?

FRUSTRATED: You could write him a letter. But unless you have a concrete reason for wanting to give Mr. Jones your business, why don't you try someone else?

DEAR ABBY: I've worked in the same office for 18 years and here are many fine people here, but here is the problem: Whenever somebody dies, gets married, has a baby or retires, I am the one who has the "privilege" of collecting for the flowers or gift from the office gang.

Believe me, it's a pain in the neck. I have sometimes waited until the last minute, hoping somebody else would head up the collection, but nobody does.

I have six children, and plenty of places for my money, but this collecting job has cost me a lot over the years. People say, "I'm a little short right now, but if you put in for me now I'll pay you next payday." I put in for them, and that's the end of it. A dollar here, a dollar there. Maybe they intend to pay me back, but most of them forget.

Abby, please put this letter in your column. Everybody here reads it. It might wake up a few who still owe me. No name, please. Just sign me...

THE COLLECTOR: DEAR COLLECTOR: Here's your letter, and I hope it pays off.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box 67796, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

clubs and that both of them were attempting to protect that suit against the dummy's holding. Since neither defender knew that South had only one club, there was a chance of executing a pseudo-squeeze if each one thought that declarer held two clubs.

The queen of spades was led next on which East discarded the eight of diamonds and the moment of decision had arrived. Inasmuch as each defender had thrown a diamond and no one had given up a club, South decided to overtake dummy's trump with his ace. He was raking going down an extra trick, perhaps, but in the end—even if the hand was defended correctly—one of the opponents would have to give the dummy one or two club tricks.

On the ace of spades, West discarded the four of diamonds. Now South led his remaining trump, the nine. West was still holding on to his clubs for dear life, for that was the suit that he had to protect if declarer had another club in his hand. West therefore parted with the nine of diamonds. North threw a diamond and now it was East's turn. From his point of view, it appeared that South had started with seven spades, one heart, three diamonds, and two clubs. If that were so, then West was left presumably with the king-jack of diamonds and the jack-small of clubs. On this line of reasoning, East discarded the ten of diamonds in order to prevent the run of North's clubs.

South now cashed the ace of diamonds and when the king and queen appeared separately from each defender, South's remaining diamonds became established for the rest of the tricks. He lost only one heart and one club.

If we were to assess blame on the deal, we would have to charge East. His partner was committed to protecting the clubs and when he failed to discard even one card in that suit, East should have reasoned that West probably had four clubs. If his original holding in the suit were A-J-x, then surely he would have thrown a club at some stage, if only to alert East to the necessity of retaining his own cards in that suit as a stopper against North's holding.

Bridge Test

BY CHARLES H. GOREN (© 1972, By The Chessmen Tribune) Both vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH ♠ QJ105 ♥ 532 ♦ 83 ♣ KQ32

WEST EAST ♠ 63 ♣ Void ♥ K94 ♠ AQJ1076 ♦ K974 ♠ Q108 ♣ AJ84 ♠ 10876

SOUTH ♠ AK98743 ♥ 8 ♦ AJ53 ♣ 5

The bidding: South West North East 1♠ Pass 2♠ 3♥ 4♠ 5♥ Pass Pass 5♠ Dble. Pass Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠ In a highly competitive auction, South was driven to the level of five spades before he was able to buy the hand. West doubled because he thought the opposition had overreached itself and he didn't want his partner to take a phantom save.

West opened the four of hearts. East put up the ace and continued with the queen which South ruffed. Prospects look virtually hopeless, for it appears that declarer must lose one trick in each of the side suits.

In desperation, South led a club at trick three—hoping to sneak it thru—however West rose with the ace and returned the king of hearts which was again ruffed in the closed hand. The temptation at this point is to draw trumps ending up in dummy, discard two diamonds on the king and queen of clubs and then, eventually, concede a diamond loser for down one.

Declarer observed that there was no chance for any legitimate squeeze on the hand, but he was in no hurry to give up without some struggle. He could safely cash three or four rounds of trumps first, before committing himself to taking his club discards, and in the process, perhaps the opposition would reveal something.

The king of spades was led, followed by a small spade to the ten and then the jack. East discarded his three remaining hearts, so counting for all the cards in that suit, while West followed to the first two spades and then gave up the seven of diamonds. It now appeared that each opponent held four DIES — Actor Tom Neal, shown in 1952, left, and 1971 photos, died Monday at age 58. Neal, who played tough-guy roles in low-budget movies, once served a prison sentence for manslaughter in the slaying of his wife in 1965.

Coahoma Students Register Friday

COAHOMA — All pupils in the Coahoma schools — from the first through the 12th grades — will register Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Supt. W. A. Wilson reminded today.

All those registering should bring the completed forms showing a record of the required immunizations, and first grade pupils should bring a copy of their birth certificates.

Supt. Wilson said that the district still needs two bus drivers, and he asked that persons interested call his office as soon as possible.

School will start next week with existing facilities. The new junior high building, plus the classroom additions to high school are under construction with a scheduled completion at mid-term.

TV Director Dies

LITTLE COMPTON, R.I. (AP) — T. Walter Gorman, 58, director of the afternoon soap opera, "The Guiding Light," died Saturday at his summer home.

Other radio and television shows Gorman directed were the Kate Smith Show, Duffy's Tavern, Young Dr. Malone and World Apart.

STRIKE BY 3,400 CONTINUES

Sets Up Rules For Picketing

ANGLETON, Tex. (AP) — A permanent injunction regulating picketing at the struck Dow Chemical plant in Freeport was agreed upon Monday by attorneys for the company and the union after an all-day session of the chambers of State District Court Judge G.P. Hardy Jr.

The strike, which began June 23, has been marked by charges of violence by both sides. Attorneys for both the 3,400 striking workers represented by eight unions and Dow said Monday they were satisfied with the injunction signed by Judge Hardy.

"We believe this is a mutually satisfactory result," said Reagan Burch, a lawyer for Dow. "We were simply trying to get some ground rules about the manner in which marching was to be done, and we believe we did."

A union lawyer, Charles Osburn, said the injunction shows "the First Amendment is still alive and well in Brazoria County, Texas."

Pickets at the plant have charged that non-striking workers have tried to run them down in automobiles while Dow says the pickets have damaged cars of workers entering plant gates.

The strike has also seen massive marches by wives of striking workers in support of their husbands' demands. Dow earlier obtained a temporary injunction to keep the wives from blocking entrances to the plant.

The injunction entered Monday prohibits "wilful obstruction" of the gates to the plant but permits the crossing of intersections by picketers "in a lawful manner when permitted by traffic light or signal or law enforcement officer."

The strikers were also ordered to remain within four feet of the road during marches and from having more than two picketers "directly across the entrances to roads adjacent or leading into the plant."

Mrs. Penny Feagin, chairman of a coalition of union wives, said her group will meet today to plan more marches.

SOVIET MEDICINE

Concentrate On Seeing People Don't Get Sick

HOUSTON (AP) — Soviet medicine concentrates on keeping people well instead of healing the sick, Dr. Boris Petrovsky, the Minister of Health of the U.S.S.R. said here Monday.

On a tour of U.S. health facilities, Petrovsky said his government routinely screens the health of more than 90 million persons each year under its free medical care program.

The Russian physician said he was very impressed with the Kaiser Foundation pre-paid health care plan on the West Coast and clinics to bring preventive medicine to minority groups in the United States.

Asked if the availability of free medical care in his country might not lead to an abuse of the system, Petrovsky said he did not consider clinic visits by persons who were not very sick to be an abuse.

With emphasis on prevention of illness, doctors must see a more apparently healthy person, he said.

As a part of this preventive medicine, he said, more than 40 million persons were immunized against influenza during a recent epidemic in his country.

He said sickness from the outbreak was less than anticipated and came, he believes, from the widespread hospitalization of flu patients, removing them from the rest of the population.

But Petrovsky said his country is not neglecting research As he toured the Baylor College of Medicine here with famed heart surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey, president of Baylor, he said his country is working parallel to the United States in artificial heart research.

"I think that in a short while we'll have the possibility, together with Dr. DeBakey, for the heart to be exchanged (for an artificial one) . . . to lengthen the life of the human being."

Petrovsky added that many problems must be solved before an effective artificial heart is developed.

Summer comfort makes your electric service a big value.

Electric service, which does many things well all year round, is doing the most for you when it's adding to your comfort and convenience in the summertime.

Refrigerated air conditioning, evaporative coolers and fans help make life more pleasant under the Texas sun. Refrigerators and freezers work harder in summer. Your other electric appliances stay on the job, too.

Increased use of electricity in the summer — mainly for air conditioning — means higher electric service bills. But considering how much it does for you, electric service is a big value. Particularly in summer, when it's doing the most for you.

Ask for a copy: 8 WAYS TO SAVE MONEY ON AIR CONDITIONING.

If you'd like some tips that may help you save on your air conditioning operating cost, call our office and just ask for a copy of "8 Ways." We want to help you get the most value from your electric service.

Work Looming For Teachers

LAMESA (SC) — Klondike students enrolling in the first grade are being reminded to bring their medical immunization records and a proof of birth when registration takes place the morning of Aug. 21.

Faculty members at Klondike will already have a week of workshops behind them when students register two weeks hence. Workshops are scheduled at Sands, Westbrook, Borden County and Western Texas College at Snyder Aug. 14-17.

A workday is scheduled for all faculty members at Klondike school Aug. 18.

The Klondike school children are facing 180 days of classes. There are 15 holidays slated, along with ten teacher inservice days.

The first semester will end Dec. 22, at which time classes will be dismissed for the Christmas holidays. School resumes Jan. 3. Final day of classes will be May 24.

A. L. Alford again heads the Klondike school district while M. H. Putman is principal. The faculty for the new term lists Miss Patsy Ellen Tonroy, a 1965 Texas Tech graduate, as the only new instructor. She will teach Spanish.

Other teachers include: Mary Airhart, special education; Mrs. Ruth Wade, kindergarten; Mrs. J. V. Cohorn, first grade; Mrs. Sarah Lee, second grade; Mrs. Doris Foster, third grade; Mrs. Vassie Fincher, fourth grade; Mrs. Ernestine Sellers, fifth grade; Mrs. W. G. Davis, junior high language arts; W. G. Davis, junior high math; Glenn Scott, junior high and high school social studies; Mrs. Dorice Alford, high school English; Mrs. Barbara Archer high school science.

Also Mrs. Louise Davis, homemaking; T. E. Tidwell, vocational agriculture; Mike Cope, football and PE; and Bill Brown, basketball and PE.

News Exec Dies

OXNARD, Calif. (AP) — Theodore W. Metzger, 76, former Associated Press war correspondent and newspaper executive, died Friday after a long illness. Metzger served as an AP war correspondent in London during World War II and in 1945 covered the organizational meetings of the United Nations in San Francisco.

MOMENT OF TERROR — The plight of an innocent victim caught in the ravages of war was captured in this photo taken June 8 on Route 1, near Trang Bang, South Vietnam. The girl, nine-year-old Phan Thi Kim Phuc ran down the road after ripping off her burning clothes, ignited by a misplaced napalm strike by an allied plane.

NAPALM STRIKE VICTIM — Phan Thi Kim Phuc, 9, victim of an accidental napalm strike about two months ago northwest of Saigon, pushes another patient in a wheelchair at the Barksy Center for Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery in Saigon. Kim Phuc still has scars from the napalm blast but is recovering satisfactorily.

NOT SO WITH MANY OF HER PALS Napalm Girl Recovering

Editor's Note: Associated Press Wirephotos on June 8 showed a little Vietnamese girl running down the highway after being caught by a South Vietnamese air force napalm strike that went off target. This is what has happened to her since then.

By CARL D. ROBINSON Associated Press Writer SAIGON (AP) — Two months after napalm dropped by South Vietnamese planes sent 9-year-old Phan Thi Kim Phuc screaming in pain and panic down a highway northwest of Saigon, she has nearly recovered from her burns.

SCHOOL TIME At the Barksy Center, a hospital for plastic and reconstructive surgery in Saigon, Vietnamese surgeons trained in the United States planted a patchwork of stamp-size on the neck and arms.

She'll probably be home for school in the fall; not so with many of her friends.

More than 50 children and adults are at the Barksy Center with faces and bodies scarred by war, accidents, disease and congenital defects.

There are burned ones, victims of war and home mishaps; people disfigured by mines and shell fragments, babies lying in scraps recovering from operations for cleft palates, a common birth defect in Vietnam; and the victims of noma, a still-unexplained disease which swiftly eats away facial tissue and bones.

NEWSPAPER GIRL Compared to the other patients, Kim Phuc is lucky. Her fame as "the little girl in the newspaper" has caused some consternation among the doctors and nurses.

"I don't understand why she gets so much attention," says a Vietnamese plastic surgeon. "She is among the least seriously injured here and she will be going home soon."

Kim Phuc has a home to go to — a modest house among fruit trees in the town of Trang Bang, 25 miles northwest of Saigon. Unlike her, many Barksy patients have only each other; their families are dead or lose touch as the patients' time in the hospital stretches out. Some patients stay for a year or more while the surgeons rebuild them.

Lam Luc, a 2-year-old, lost the lower part of his face in a shell fragment at An Loc. His father was killed. The doctors are rebuilding his mouth with plates and grafts, and he can eat again.

SAD FACED There is Nhan, a sad-faced, 8-year-old who sits on his bed constricted by a network of bandages securing a "tube" of skin from his arm to his face. Nhan is a noma victim. Doctors halted the spread of the disease and now are trying to encourage the facial skin to grow.

Nhan is an orphan. A brother who used to visit him doesn't come any more, and Nhan doesn't know where he is.

Xuan Thi Thanh at 14 mothers the younger ones. Mentally retarded and epileptic, she fell in the family cooking fire and burned her face and arms. Her family, in the northern city of Da Nang, doesn't come now, and she smiles and clutches at visitors, begging for attention and love.

NEARLY DIED There is Son Si Men, a Cambodian boy who came more than a year ago with severe napalm burns. Several times he nearly died. He doesn't remember where his village is or what became of his family. But now, after months of delicate skin grafts, he puts on his hat and leaves for home, looking much older than 14. His eyes fill with tears as he says goodbye. A friend, he is told, will try to find his family.

There are the others: A soldier badly burned when his armored personnel carrier hit a mine in Laos over a year ago. A beautiful peasant girl blinded and disfigured by a booby trap while working in a field. An old woman, burned, sitting in a wheelchair in a corner, alone and shy. A dozen children recuperating from cleft palate operations, their arms in braces so they won't tear out the stitches.

The Barksy Center began in a converted apartment in 1968 and moved into the present clinic at Cho Ray Hospital in 1969. It has treated more than 3,000 persons in four years, and the patients come now at the rate of 100 a month.

DOING HIS THING AT REVIVAL 'It's Just A Happening,' Magician Says Of Craft

By MYRNA McFADIN What makes a man want to become a magician? According to "Phooey Looey," who is performing nightly at the Grace Baptist Church tent revival, it just happens.

"Phooey," Bob Stipes, became a Christian following World War II, at the age of 26. "I was a member of the Central Baptist Church in Baytown, Tex., for 16 years — without doing a thing but being there. I was faithful to attend all services, but it ended there. I was too bashful and backward to do anything else. I left all the work up to other members.

"Then something eventful in my life happened. Evangelist Joe Boyd came to town to hold a big tent revival, and our church participated. During the meeting, Brother Boyd and singer Jerry Bernard stayed in my home for almost a month.

"Jerry Bernard would do a couple of little magic tricks for the children. One of them was a trick with knives. I was so impressed with that trick. I just knew if I could do that trick I could witness to boys and girls standing on street corners. The crazy thing was that I'd never before even dreamed of telling anyone about the Lord Jesus Christ.

"During that meeting the Lord continually impressed upon my heart that if I could do that trick something wonderful might happen."

Stipes was 42 at the time and had been a construction worker most of his life. He had never spoken in public and seldom dressed in a suit and tie. "I think the only suit I owned was the one I was married in."

Stipes never intended to do anything more than that one trick. He practiced six months before he would even do it for his wife. It was another six months before he would show it to anyone else. "I was so afraid I'd mess it up."

His pastor recognized his new desire. He and Stipes started a Sunday School extension in a rough neighborhood near the ship docks in Baytown. "In order to draw the kids into the 30-foot square building we had rented, I would do a couple of magic tricks on the street."

"It wasn't long until I realized I would need more than one or two tricks to keep their attention. Every time they came they wanted to see a new magic show. Soon we bought a tent we could carry around to the neighborhoods. It was 20 by 20. We soon outgrew it and bought a 30 by 30. The wind blew this tent away, but we needed another one by this time anyway."

Stipes then made arrangements with a tent manufacturer for a 30 by 50 foot tent. Because they were using the tent to witness to children, the manufacturer sold it to them at cost. Every Saturday morning for the next year and a half Stipes had a new magic show.

LOTS OF EXPENSE "Each Monday morning I would purchase three magic tricks and practice them all week long in my spare time. I did this until I had spent $3,000 and there was no more magical equipment available.

"In the meantime I started studying ways I could use these magic tricks as Gospel illustrations or object lessons to show a Bible truth. I use the object lessons in the same way a flannelgraph board is used in a Sunday School lesson."

At this time, Stipes came back in contact with Evangelist Joe Boyd. "He wanted me to come to his church for a vacation Bible school. Unknown to me he had advertised me as 'Phooey Looey—the Gospel magician.' The children all loved the name and thought it was funny so I have retained it ever since.

"A few months later Brother Boyd asked me if I'd go into a revival meeting with him and conduct a children's service each night during the revival meeting. Having a fear of flying, I tried to beg off, but Brother Boyd is a very determined man. I meant this to be the only meeting I'd ever work, but God had other plans for my life.

35 EACH YEAR "Soon I was flying back and forth all across the nation holding meetings. Now I do about 35 revivals a year and unfortunately have to turn down about 35 a year. During meetings held while school is in progress, I am always allowed to go into the public schools and give magic shows. I am not allowed to teach doctrines, but I use the object lessons to teach morals."

Stipes also works in a few youth camps each year. In each meeting he says he helps an average of 75 children find Christ as their Savior.

"I guess to some people I might look like an old fool doing silly things just to make children smile and laugh, but as long as I can help children learn about the Lord Jesus Christ I feel maybe my life has counted for something."

$2 MILLION BONDS Two Accused Of Gun Law Violations Behind Bars

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — The El Paso county jail holds two Mexican nationals today—one a reported millionaire—while a federal magistrate considers lowering their bonds from $2 million each.

U.S. Magistrate Jamie C. Boyd took under advisement bond reduction motions Monday by Marcos Arturo Wisbrun, 55, and Fernando Jose Caraveo-Ocadiz, 33, who are accused of violating federal gun laws.

Wisbrun and Caraveo-Ocadiz want bonds of $10,000 each on charges of dealing in firearms without paying the occupational tax.

"SERIOUS" But Boyd said Monday at the conclusion of a bond hearing groups in Mexico who have been "trained abroad" in subversive activities would not be allowed to have guns. He was not more specific.

Boyd also said the charges against the pair are "serious" and the magistrate referred to "friendly relations" which exist between the United States and Mexico.

Government testimony and evidence at the hearing showed the arrests of the pair in an El Paso hotel followed the seizure of a cache of weapons, including 15 submachine guns.

Boyd may rule later this week. Government witnesses at the bond hearing said Wisbrun is listed as a representative of Technipol, a Berkeley, Calif., firm, but he is not listed as an agent.

'HALO' Satellite — A scientist, Robert W. Farquhar, says that the use of a communications satellite orbiting an invisible point more than 40,000 miles beyond the moon would enable astronauts landing on the far side of the moon to stay in contact with earth. From earth, the satellite would appear to describe a kind of halo around the moon.

Uncle Sam 'Bugs' Lawyer For Irish

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A federal judge says one of the lawyers for five New York Irishmen jailed here on contempt charges was overheard by a government wiretap two days before a grand jury went into session.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last week upheld contempt sentences against the witnesses. In its opinion, the court said the government has admitted conducting the surveillance.

"It now appears there was a wiretap of one of the counsel for appellants on June 17, 1972 and that this did not come to the attention of government counsel until July 18, 1972 after the matters on appeal were concluded in the district court," said the opinion written by Judge Griffin Bell of Atlanta.

The circuit court, however, made an examination of a transcript of the conversation and found "nothing of evidentiary substance," said Bell.

Jailed in the Tarrant County jail are Kenneth Tierney,

Thomas Laffey, Paschal Morahan, Daniel Crawford and Mathias Reilly for refusal to testify before the grand jury reportedly investigating a plot to ship guns to Northern Ireland.

During the period in June in which the contempt hearings were conducted in U.S. Dist. Judge Leo Brewster's court, attorneys for the witnesses raised the question of governmental surveillance.

Special Justice Department Attorney Brandon Alvey testified that a search showed no wiretaps placed on the witnesses or their attorneys.

The circuit court said in affirming the contempt sentences that the wiretap admission "does not afford the basis for the refusal of appellants to testify before the grand jury."

In New York, defense attorney Paul O'Dwyer called the Justice Department brief a "remarkable piece of double-talk."

O'Dwyer said he is presently "in the process of preparing a petition to go before Judge Lewis F. Powell and requests to have bail fixed pending our appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court."

Go-Slow Warning To Russians Toned Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — A go-slow warning to the Soviets has been toned down and endorsed by the White House in an effort to appease senators on both sides of the U.S.-Soviet arms-limitation agreement.

The compromise may have improved chances for early Senate passage of the agreement limiting offensive nuclear arsenals, although initial reaction to the developments Monday was decidedly mixed.

NOTE TO RUSSIA

The White House publicly endorsed Sen. Henry M. Jackson's amendment to the five-year SALT agreement after Jackson eliminated its strongest provision: a note to Russia that installing multiple warheads capable of destroying U.S. missile silos on its 311 largest intercontinental missiles could threaten American security and cause the United States to disown the interim SALT agreement.

ISN'T SATISFIED

The Washington Democrat introduced the amendment last week, arousing a storm of protest from some senators who support the pact.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott joined Jackson in proposing the amendment, leading some senators to conclude it had White House support from the beginning.

The White House emphasized it had worked with Jackson on the amendment in order to win over critics who fear the agreement could endanger U.S. security because it concedes the Soviets a temporary edge in the total number of land-and sea-based missiles.

Jackson consulted with the White House on the revised amendment, which retains language calling for U.S. negotiators to seek strategic equality in any future SALT treaty with the Soviet Union.

Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., Foreign Relations Committee chairman, said he still isn't satisfied.

"I don't think any more of it than I did the other," Fulbright said. "It raises questions about the prudence and propriety of the original agreement."

To take effect, the interim agreement needs majority votes in both the House and Senate, unlike the companion treaty limit to both nations to small and equal defensive missile forces. That needed only Senate approval and was ratified last week.

The interim agreement sets ceilings on the number of offensive weapons each nation may have, and is designed to slow the momentum of the arms race while a more permanent means is sought to end it.

Woman Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Elaine Edwards became the 10th woman to serve in the Senate and the second from Louisiana Monday when she was sworn in by Senate President pro tempore James Eastland of Mississippi.

She was appointed by her husband, Gov. Edwin Edwards, to serve the remaining portion of the term of the late Sen. Allen J. Ellender, who was president pro tem of the senate, died two weeks ago while campaigning for a new term.

Mrs. Edwards took the oath of office shortly after she and her family met with President and Mrs. Nixon at the White House.

Plot Figure Sentenced To Prison On Dope Rap

HOUSTON (AP) — Richard Everett, 29, of Houston, whom federal agents charge was supposed to be the one helped by an alleged plot to kill U.S. District Court Judge Ben C. Conally, was sentenced by Conally Monday to eight years in prison on a narcotics charge.

Conally made no reference to the alleged plot when he sentenced Everett, who along with Linda Catherine Martinez, 20, had entered pleas of guilty to charges of possession with intent to distribute 4½ pounds of cocaine.

The couple figured unknowingly in the alleged plot by a codefendant, Donald D. Frick, 24, of Los Angeles to have Conally killed.

Frick is alleged to have tried to hire two federal undercover agents to kill Conally because Frick feared the judges would impose long sentences on Everett and Mrs. Martinez.

Frick entered a plea of guilty to drug smuggling charges in May and was sentenced to 10 years in prison by U.S. District Court Judge Allen B. Hannay.

Conally recommended Monday that Everett receive treatment under a prison drug abuse program. Everett could have received a 15 year sentence and a $25,000 fine.

Mrs. Martinez earlier was sentenced to an indefinite prison sentence under the federal Youth Corrections Act.

Equal Time Plea Nixed

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS and NBC have turned down a Republican request for free television and radio time to reply to Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern's speech announcing that Sargent Shriver was his choice for a running-mate.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., the GOP national chairman, asked for equal time to rebut what he said was a "campaign speech" by McGovern after the announcement Saturday night.

The networks said Monday in telegrams to Dole that they considered Saturday's broadcast was on-the-spot coverage of a bona fide news event and as such was exempt from the equal time provisions of the Federal Communications Act.

ABC said it had Dole's request under consideration.
