Air Fares Boost Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Civil Aeronautics Board today authorized a 2.7 per cent increase in domestic air fares.

The increase is optional, not mandatory. A spokesman for the airline industry said the airlines probably would file their fare increase proposals within a week. If there is no objection from the CAB, the new rates normally would become effective within 30 days.

The airlines have the option of raising fares by any amounts up to the 2.7 per cent level if they can justify the action on the basis of costs. Their higher fares will naturally be conditioned also by action of competing airlines, since no company wishes to lose traffic to a rival offering cheaper transportation.

The CAB estimated that the authorized increases would raise airline annual revenues by from $46.7 million to $158 million, depending on the extent to which the higher fares affect traffic.

Datamate Acquiring Turley Oil Company

An agreement in principal to acquire the assets and certain stated liabilities of Turley Oil Company of Oklahoma City, Okla., has been reached by Datamate Computer Systems, Inc., Big Spring. George A. McAlister Jr., president of Datamate, said that the acquisition involved the exchange of approximately 400,000 shares of Datamate common stock.

At the same time, McAlister announced that the previously announced agreement in principal under which certain Datamate stockholders, including McAlister, would sell their controlling interest in Datamate to Jeffco Steel Fabricators. Inc. of Denver, Colo., has been broken off and

He also announced that as of the end of July Datamate had suspended its computer manufacturing operations, and accordingly had laid off all related personnel.

He attributed the termination of its computer manufacturing operations to the continuing highly competitive computer market and its domination by a few larger companies. Datamate, he said had been unable to penetrate profitably this Turley Oil Company operates oil and gas leases

The exact number of Datamate shares to be issued in exchange for Turley will be determined by an independent engineering estimate of oil reserves. The net reserves of Turley are pegged at 250,000 barrels.
As of June 30, Data had an unaudited net

FIRM MARKET FOR RAINCOATS — The rainy spell which persisted in Big Spring this morning boosted the sale of raincoats in downtown Big Spring. Mrs. John Smith, 1905 Johnson St., shops for a slicker. The saleslady is Mrs. Maria Dominguez of Anthony's.

Crop Outlook Improves After Area Rainfall

Slow rain continued Friday, Creek was running into the putting crops in parts of Howard County "over the top" and providing solid hope for all other areas. The Luther sector, which has been in the center of the showers which have persisted all wcek, has received more than four inches altogether. Mrs. John Couch said her gauge showed another 1.8 inches for the past 24 hours, making 4.1 for the week - and it was still raining Friday morning.

Virtually all the north half of the county, where the bulk of the cotton acreage is located, had received an inch and a half or more. This includes 11/2 inches at Fairview, where the rainfall had been light, and two inches west of that point and toward the Knott area. Vealmoor registered over two inches for the week. For most of these areas this will mean that the cotton crop has sound promise of maturing and good production, granted a late frost.

LITTLE RUNOFF Although crops and pastures were blessed, there was comparatively little runoff into major reservoirs. The Colorado River Municipal Water District reported an inch of rain at the Big Spring pump station on Lake Spence and 1.3 at the dam overnight. However, another 1.1 inches fell there during the morning, and the river was running little over a foot deep at the Silver Bridge. Little Silver river, but at an unreported depth, and Paint Creek, a tributary emptying directly into the river, was running about two feet deep. There were no reports from upstream, although all pumps at the diversion works at Colorado City kicked on, indicating flow in excess of 80,000,000 gallons per day at that point. The Cente: Point community in north-central Howard County had an inch and a half, and this was almost enough to insure a crop. Coahoma reported half an inch Friday morning from a slow, steady rain. Elbow, southwest of Big Spring and in an area lightly touched by rains this week, had .3 of Rains extended on into Glasscock County with amounts varying from half an inch to well over an inch, and in a few places up to two inches. GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — Paul McCartney, his American wife, Linda, and his drummer posted a $2,100 bond with the narcotics police early today after admitting they had imported marijuana during a Scandinavian tour, police said.

The police said the McCartneys and drummer Danny Seiwell would be fined an amount not exceeding the bond they had posted.

They could also be expelled from the country, but there was no indication that this would be done. "We will go ahead with our tour as planned,"

Police questioned the trio for nearly four hours Thursday night after intercepting just over five ounces of cannabis, as marijuana is known in Europe, that had been mailed from Britain to the former Beatle's new pop group, the Wings.

The police said the three confessed that they often had parcels of marijuana sent to them from London when on tour. McCartney quit the Beatles in 1970 and formed

Issue With A Clout

The idea of some sort of tax relief for parents of children in nonpublic schools has amassed what appears to be overwhelming political clout. The Nixon administration in a turnabout from previous policy now favors tax credits for such parents. And Rep. Wilbur Mills, the taxation czar of the House, has reversed his field and now favors the

Certainly there are a lot of votes at stake in the issue, both Catholic votes and others who see in support for private schools an easing of the burden for public schools and thus an easing of property taxation for their support.

So it would seem inevitable that some legislation in this area will shortly be written into law. Writing a law which will pass constitutonal muster may be difficult, however; federal courts have struck down state plans for assistance to private and parochial schools with regularity. The focus now is on tax credits since that would aid parents and not schools; the result of course would be indirect assistance to private schools, and so the constitutional hurdle remains.

And great care must be taken in any such legislation to prevent it from becoming an aid to resegregation of schools. The quick flowering of private schools in the South after public schools were ordered integrated should not be encouraged to evolve into a public-black, private-white dual school system supported at least in part by federal tax policies. Unless adequate safeguards against such a result from even indirect aid to private schools can be provided, the tax-credit idea would represent a long step back down a road we have traveled with great pain already.

There are other safeguards, too, which are needed to insure that this or any arrangement is strictly between the student or parents and does bring institutions into the picture except to confirm that credits or grants are for educational services actually performed.

Something To Ponder

Middle Eastern specialists within the Department of State must be engaged in some of that "agonizing reappraisal" of which the late John Foster Dulles warned. For another new and unpredictable element has been introduced with the removal of Russian troops and advisers.

This means at least one thing: Egypt can no longer be considered a dependable satellite Russia. This may or may not presage a reduction in military assistance to Egypt. It may or may not lead to deteriorating relations between the countries. It may or may not lead to an economic crisis in Egypt.

MCGOVEKIN

Why did Russia agree to leave without so much as an official protest? We do not know. But we do know that Russia could not treat Egypt as it did Czechoslovakia. What bearing will this have on the Egyptian-Israeli crisis? Perhaps none, although it does make it much easier for the two countries to begin negotiating. Whether the will to do so is present is questionable.

If Egypt is not to look henceforth to Russia as her protector, to whom will she turn? To the The thought will keep Middle Eastern specialists busy during the weeks and perhaps THRILL OF THRILLS. It's almost time to go back to school. In some ways that's good, and in some ways that's bad. That differs from how things used to be. The return to school was always as cheerful as a Kamikaze mission.

The difference is that now I kind of have to survive on my own. Do my own laundry, wash my own dishes, etc. Up until high school, school was just a dull eight-to-four desk job. Not until the time between my junior and senior years at BSHS did I ever look forward to September. The only reason I did then was because I had a job I hated with all my heart and soul.

I remember back in elementary school, the only good thing about coming back was seeing friends that I had seen less than 10 times during the summer. Upon return to college, you see people that you haven't seen in three or four months.

The suspense of what teachers you got always added a little spice to the first day of school. I remember how a group of us would always go from door to door at Park Hill Elementary seeing who got stuck with whom. Of course, there were always certain teachers you wanted to get and other ones wished only on your

At college, you can easily predetermine what teacher you get. Sometimes, though, it does no good. This spring, for instance, I was desperate for an English teacher. During the fall, I had had one that I simply couldn't stand. I was determined to get one that I could at least tolerate. My efforts resulted in complete failure.

My big mistake was that I relied on my intuition. I looked at the professor's name and thought, "Hmmmm, that looks like a good name." I was trying to avoid senile teachers. I learned a very valuable lesson. Names can be decieving.

The only thing that I guessed correctly about the professor was that she was a woman. I thought she would be about 35 years old. She was at least 65 and maybe more. She looked more like 85.

WASHINGTON - President Nixon will follow a policy of positively no reprisals against the Republican senators who voted for the Senate amendment aimed at making him withdraw all military forces from Indochina in four months, if North Vietnam releases our prisoners within that time.

FOR A "black Irishman" with a notoriously hot temper, the President reacted with astonishing calm when informed that the Senate had rebuffed him by tacking the amendment onto the $20.6 billion defense procurement authorization bill by a 50-47 majority.

Some of his advisers complained about Massachusetts Sen. Edward Brooke, sponsor of the previse, and the 10 other Republicans who went along with him. Alaska's Sen. Ted Stevens, in particular, was accused of ingratitude for running out on the Nixon also observed that the Senate. by the same 50-47 margin, had earlier adopted the Aiken amendment underwriting his proposal for an internationally supervised cease-fire throughout Indochina as a precondition for our withdrawal. That amendment, which Vermont's Sen. George Aiken offered at Nixon's request, was superseded by Brooke's.

My Answer BILLY GRAHAM

I have heard preachers say that when we die we must answer for everything we have done. They say that all our sins will be shown on a big screen. Is this true? I thought when we become saved that all our sins are forgiven and forgotten. I have never done anything horribly bad, but it drives me wild to think that all I have done will be revealed. Please answer soon.

There is one thing God cannot do and that is to see our sins through the blood of Christ. The Lord said: "I will be merciful . . . and their sins and iniquities will I remember no more." (Hebrews 8:12.) When we repent, God has the capacity to forgive and forget, the Bible says. "He will turn again, he will have compassion upon us; he will subdue our iniquities; and thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea. (Micah 7:19.)

During World War II an English newspaper carried the story of a German ace who had been shot down and captured by the English R.A.F. The airmen invited their German prisoner to have dinner with them. They toasted him, and he toasted began to weep. "Please forgive me," he said, "Your kindness and forgiveness overwhelms me. For most of my life I have been taught to hate the English. The Tax Bite

Texas taxpayers can already make one New Year's resolution for 1973 "Keep your hand on your pocketbook and a close eye on both Washington and Austin."

APPARENTLY IT will be a close race whether the next state tax increases will be caused mostly by the federal government or by the state

There's little argument that a tax increase will not be needed.

But if it is any consolation, the tax need will be "modest" when compared to the revenue needs of the Texas legislature in 1969 and 1971. According to figures furnished by the Texas Research League, a privately financed group that specializes in governmental problems. the 1969 legislature increased spending from "key funds," the general revenue and related funds, by $840 million for the next two-year business

THE 1971 legislature, counting the recent special session, increased spending from key funds by more than $1 billion.

"Best guesses at this time seem to indicate a probable increase in key fund spending by the 1973 legislature on the magnitude of $700 million," says Jim McGrew, executive director and chief researcher of the league. "Obviously the $400 million automatic increase in state revenues would not cover this amount. If the federal government continues to reimburse the state 75 per cent of social services provided welfare recipients this new form of aid will produce nearly $100 million that was not available in the current biennium.

"Thus the indicated revenue need facing the 63rd legislature might be $200 million," McGrew said.

BUT THE actual size of the tax bill passed by the 1973 legislature depends a lot on what happens between now and then in Washington and Austin. It could be less or more, or much more.

It could be reduced if a so-called "revenue sharing" bill is finally approved by Congress and signed by the President. The bill that was passed by the House would provide Texas about $46 million a year for state government. A lot of Texas congressmen voted against this plan because it gives more to states that already have a state income tax.

The state tax bill could be reduced if some form of "welfare reform" passed Congress that would relieve Texas and other states of a substantial part of the cost of public welfare.

THE STATE tax bill might be increased if federal agencies decide to tighten up on the administration of welfare funds and decrease the social services money just recently made

And the greatest impact could come from a U.S. Supreme Court decision this fall or winter on the suit that questions Texas' entire system of financing its public schools. A federal court has already ruled that the local property tax, while not unconstitutional itself, it was used unconstitutionally in financing local schools. Wealthier school districts had better educational advantages because they had more property tax money to spend.

THE LEGISLATURE can affect the tax bill itself by what the senators and representatives decide to spend. The legislature could decide in 1973 to pass only a one-year appropriations bill, as it did in 1967 and again in 1971. This would mean a special session of the legislature in 1974 for second year financing but legislators might find that the population and economic growth by that time has provided more revenue than expected. That happened this year and could in 1974.

He's really the head of the concession stands. This fellow may know hot dogs; however, he's not an expert

A third popular system is the "Leading Jockey System." The bettor learns which jockey has ridden the most winners at the track. Then the bettor will put his money on every horse ridden by this jockey.

Unfortunately, the jockey will ride more losers than winners After 15 straight losers, the bettor will give up in disgust. Naturally, the jockey then will bring in a 100-1 longshot.

Two years ago at Oaklawn Race Track (Hot Springs, Ark.) the most popular system was the "Andy Capp System." This system depended on the comic pages of the daily newspapers. The potential bettor studies very carefully the panels of the slam homer, hit with two out in popular comic strip, "Andy Capp."

According to the "Capp System" bettors, by counting the number of fingers displayed by Andy, the bettor could learn the daily double combination. If, for example, Andy had two fingers on his left hand showing in the first panel and three fingers on his left hand showing in the second panel and three grants.

However, hindsight was generally more accurate than foresight when following this system. After learning the winning combination, the bettor could go back to the comic strip and discover exactly where he made his mistake in reading Andy's

Another system sometimes used is the "Standings System." The bettor checks the standings in either the National Hockey League or the National League, if the baseball season is in progress. Under the "Yesterday's Games" column, the bettor would see something like this:

South held off one round too long in today's hand and presented his opponent with an opportunity to come up with a sparkling play to upset declarer's three no trump con-

West opened the seven of hearts and East put up the queen which South permitted to hold the trick. The deuce of hearts was returned and declarer played the ten, losing to West's jack The five of hearts was led next to clear the suit, on which East discarded the king of clubs. Altho this play may appear to be somewhat sensational, it was not only well chosen but, from a purely practical consideration, had nothing to lose.

Observe that if declarer has all the missing club honors, East's king must fall prey to repeated finesses. If West has a holding in the suit consisting of as little as three cards headed by the jack, then East's unblocking play will promote an entry to his partner's good hearts.

South was temporarily pleased at the appearance of the club king, for it assured him of eight top tricksthree spades, one heart, two diamonds, and two clubs. When he cashed the ace and queen of clubs and East showed out on the second round, declarer's pleasure proved to be short lived, inasmuch as he was unable to establish a ninth trick in that suit without letting West in and the latter still retained two hearts with which to set the contract.

Declarer tried his last shot in the form of a double finesse in diamonds. A small diamond was led and West's nine was covered by the ten in the hope that the latter held both the queen and jack. When East turned up with the jack of diamonds, South conceded defeat. Declarer should have taken off the second heart. There was no point in holding up again, for if hearts are divided four-three, the defenders can take only three tricks in that suit. It is only a five-two break in the suit that South need concern himself about-in which case the problem is to prevent West from regaining the

After the ace of hearts is played at trick two, dummy is entered with the ace of spades to led a club. East presumably follows with the four and declarer finesses the queen. When this play succeeds, the North hand is reentered with the king of diamonds to play another club. When East's king appears, he is permitted to hold this trick. Even if he has a heart to return, West will cash two more tricks to complete his side's book, but when South regains the lead, the ace of clubs drops the jack and the long club is established for his ninth
