MRS. VIRGINIA RECUPERO

Grandmother Uses Atomic Pacemaker

MIAMI (AP) — "I just keep thinking that I might blow up," joked Virginia Recupero from a hospital bed after becoming the only woman in America with an atomic powered heart.

Mrs. Recupero, a 53-year-old grandmother from Key West, Fla., Monday became the first American woman to have a nuclear-powered pacemaker-designed to regulate and stabilize the heartbeat-implanted in her body.

'JUST WONDERFUL' Less than an hour after the 30-minute operation, Mrs. Recupero said she felt "just wonderful," and found it "really hard to believe I underwent surgery at all.

They just gave me a local anesthetic and the doctor explained what he was doing during the operation," she said.

Dr. Sol Center, a Miami surgeon who performed the implantation, said there was no hazard of radioactivity facing his patient "or anyone else under normal situations.

He said Mrs. Recupero wear an identification bracelet in the event she was injured in an accident and the atomic device was damaged.

SCALED DOWN Center compared the operation to a tonsilectomy in simplicity and predicted that the implantation of nuclear-powered pacemakers "will become a common procedure in the United States once the supply becomes more available and the cost is scaled down.'

Youth Who Played Patrolman Nabbed

A 19-year-old youth from South Bend, Tex. may have ended a short career of impersonating a highway patrolman.

The youth was apprehended near Cisco late Monday by Chatt Westley of the Department of Local highway patrolmen report that one incident was reported in Howard County on August 6 when a Howard County youth reported being stoppped by a man in a black uniform driving a black and white car at a location near Coahoma.

Patrolman Jimmy Parks of the local highway patrol office reminded motorists that highway patrolmen never demand money, pull a gun or curse the motorist. "Any such incident should be reported immediately to your local office of the dapartment of public safety.

Lake Thomas Could Gain Eight Feet From Rains

The Colorado River Municipal H. Ivie, general manager for Water District should net about 50,000 acre-feet from the heavy Sunday upstream rains on the Colorado River and its tributaries. The immediate beneficiary from the runoff from torrential downpours from Gail to Snyder and north of U.S. 180 was Lake J. B. Thomas. At noon Tuesday Lake

Thomas was at elevation 2235.19, which represented a vertical rise of 7.22 feet, or more than 25,000 acre-feet of water, or upwards of nine billion gallons. The rate of inflow was holding at nearly .15 of a foot per hour. However, with the flow of Bull Creek receding within banks at the Murphy crossing north of the lake, and with the Colorado River and Helms Creek down to about four CRMWD, projected a final increase of about eight feet at Lake Thomas.

Downstream, the vanguard of the flow from the rains which flooded Snyder, reached the Silver Bridge shortly before noon, and at the Pan-Am bridge, just above the lake, the river had come up to about eight feet. Ivie said it would be late Tuesday evening before the main flow reached the lake.

Based on observations at the Cuthbert gauge about 10 miles below Lake Thomas and that at the Colorado City diversion works, he projected an increase of 25,000 acre-feet for Lake Spence. The flow at the channel dam at the diversion works peaked at 22.8 and was down to 20.2 Tuesday morning. This meant the water was about nine feet over the dam

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's grocery bill is higher than ever this presidential-election year and the debate over who gets what share of the pie — and the blame — from rising food prices is heating up. Candidates are farmers, middlemen and retailers, all of whom say they are caught in an economic crunch. Some typical breakdowns of food

A pound of choice beef cost an average of $1.14 the last time government shoppers checked the nation's food stores. Ranchers took 78 cents of that and the men who slaughter, ship, wrap and sell the meat the other

On lettuce the split was 22 cents a head for retailers and processors, 10 cents for farmers. Of the 25 cents for a loaf of bread, 4 cents went to farmers.

Altogether, marketers get an average 60 cents of every food dollar. The place to study the question of rising food prices, says Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz, "is in the processing and distribution system between the farmer's gate and the consumer's table."

What about farmers? There are more dollars to go around now than ever before, and farmers are getting two cents more of the food dollar than they did a year ago.

Retailers say they're not profiting from the rising food prices. Of criticism to this effect, economist S. Kent Christensen of The National Association of Food Chains said, "We think we're getting the brunt of this and we don't deserve it.'

ECONOMIC CRUNCH The reason: Retailer-profit margin, expressed as a percentage of sales, has dwindled to what Christensen now estimates at no more than seventenths of 1 per cent. Agriculture Department figures confirm the steep decline from a margin of 1.3 per cent

Where supermarkets are concerned, the political and economic crunch on food prices came as they were already locked in what Christensen called "one of the most intense competitive struggles that we've seen in years and years and years."

The struggle was precipitated by the appearance across the nation of regional food chains undercutting the national giants.

Farmers, meanwhile, have been caught up in the same spiraling living costs that affect everyone else. Farmers spend 5 per cent more to live now than they did a year ago. The money they received increased 13 per cent in the same time. But the latest jump came after a 20-year period in which the prices farmers received increased 6 per on either end, but in the middle.

Labor costs involved after food leaves the farm jumped 42 per cent over the last decade, until they ate up 29 cents of every dollar spent on food, according to Department of Agriculture figures.

Fueling the price rises have been shoppers with more money to spend. Agriculture Department figures show Americans spend 16 cents of every dollar they earn for food. In 1960 they spent 20 cents.

Another sign of plenty of money to spend is shopper response to price trends. As food prices have steadily risen, so has individual food consumption, at least until this year, when it is expected to show a slight

It's a pretty bad situation and one that involves not only moral questions but medical treatment and detection problems as well.

Putting the moral issues aside, local officials should increase student education on prevention, detection and treatment and at the same time provide greater detection and treatment programs for those infected. If the young people feel they need the protection of secrecy in their treatment, they should have it.

WASHINGTON - With all the talk about limitation of armaments, it is surprising that world sentiment has not been mobilized to bring about the abolition of nuclear weapons. Five major powers have nuclear arsenals which are a potential threat to a huge number of human beings. No such menace has existed before in history. The wonder is that little has been done to try to eliminate it, though there is wide recognition of the danger in the mere possession of nuclear bombs.

THE TRUTH is that, although the United States and the Soviet Union have reached agreement on arms control, the nuclear race goes on and is spreading. Even this country and Russia are carrying on underground tests of atomic bcmbs, while the dropped on Japan, however, there has Soviets continue to test intercontinental missiles. France - which, along with Mainland China, has refused to join the other three nuclear powers in banning atmospheric tests is conducting a series of such tests. Several smaller nations are approaching the point where they can build their own atomic weapons. Ingredients for nuclear bombs are being manufactured in ever-growing

SUGGESTIONS HAVE been made that international conferences be called to discuss not just the control but the abolition of nuclear weapons. No proposals have, however, been adopted by any government. The United States has a particular obligation to support a movement to do away with all nuclear weapons. because it dropped an atomic bomb during wartime. Though this helped end World War II, there are many people who think the war might well have been won by the allies in a short time without the introduction of such a devastating weapon. The nuclear bomb can bring destruction not only on armies but to millions of civilians. Its use would violate all the rules of civilized warfare and could lead to retaliatory action that would add to the slaughter of people around the globe.

YET THE SUBJECT of abolishing nuclear arms is not the theme of international meetings or of consultations between major powers who profess to be friendly to one another. The Soviet Union did propose to the United Nations last year that it call "universal" conference to bring about the prohibition and elimination of nuclear weapons, but rothing has been done to advance the idea. Mainland China has from time to time indicated that it favors the concept, and so has the United States. In the 27 years that have elapsed since the first atomic bomb was been no serious movement to ban all nuclear weapons everywhere. The recent agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union to limit the building of strategic arms is an encouraging development, but until it determined to abolish them altogether, the world will not be free from the worst menace that has ever

THE THEORY heretofore has been. of course, that almost any weapon can be used during a war in order to cause the enemy to surrender. But missiles carrying nuclear warheads reach beyond military forces and into the homes of civilians who are in no way engaged in the fighting. If some of the governments which have nuclear weapons are willing to regulate additions to their nuclear arsenals, why shouldn't they move to cut them down and eventually eliminate them?

INTERNATIONAL inspection would be a necessary part of the agreement so that the abolition of nuclear weapons could be checked regularly to prove that the promises are being fulfilled.

I recently read that 30 per cent of our college students would rather live in some other country other than the United States. Why does this condition exist? F.G.H.

Young people have historically been dissatisfied with the status quo. When they begin to mature they see the injustices and inequities which exist in their society and become restless and dissatisfied with the "establish-

In their immaturity and inexperience they are under the illusion that our society is "sick," and perhaps the only one that is sick. Since they have never traveled they think that the injustices they sense exist only in America, so they long for "far off places, and strange sounding names." But, the real disillusionment comes when they leave their homeland and travel to other places, and find the same conditions and even worse, than they find at home. Then, many of them quietly, and apologetically, if not humbly come back to the greatest country in the world . . . I just read of one the Poverty is universal, and when they travel to Africa, to Asia, or even to Europe, they are surprised to find ghettos, inequities, and underprivileged wherever they go. I have traveled to the ends of the earth, and I am always impressed that even the poorest in these United States are rich compared to many parts of the world. The median income of India is under $50 per annum. The median income in the middle east is under $100, while the median income in the U.S. of the poverty stricken is in the neighborhood of $2,500. While we still have a long way to go, we are leagues ahead of the other countries of the world. Our college students should travel. The Bug Stops Here

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — One of the major issues of the presidential campaign will be the extraordinary amount of money that is being wasted by

A perfect example is the recent bugging incident at the Democratic national headquarters. I have it on the highest authority that the Democrats plan to make this not a moral issue, but an economic one.

FIELDING TAGAFLY, chairman of the Democratic Committee to Get the Goods on the Committee to Re-Elect the President, told nie, "So far, almost $114,000 has been traced to the people involved in the bugging. There are strong indications that most of this money came from the Committee to Re-Elect the President. We are appalled by this.'

"You mean you are appalled that the Republicans would bug your of-

"NO. WE ARE APPALLED that they would need $114,000 to do it. Anyone in the business will tell you a bugging job like that doesn't cost more than $10,000. They had a cost overrun on the job of over $100,000. There's no excuse for this, and we maintain that if the Republicans are that wasteful with their own funds, you can imagine what they've been doing with the taxpayers' money for the past four years.'

"I hadn't thought of that," I said.

"NOT ONLY WAS IT the most expensive job in modern bugging history, but it was also screwed up, Tagafly said. "It is our feeling the job was botched because it had been contracted to friends of the administration, rather than being opened up to competitive bidding.

"This is not the first time the Administration has been involved in hanky-panky on contracts, and we intend to make it an issue in the campaign." "If you say the job should cost only $10,000, what was the rest of the money for?"

"HIGH LIVING for the people involved. Suites at the Watergate, expensive meals, chauffeured limousines, long-distance telephone calls, trips to Florida. I kid you not, when all the facts are in, you're going to discover very little of the money went for bugging, but a lot of it went into the pockets and bank accounts of the contractors.'

"But that's terrible," I said, "if you can't even find honest people to bug somebody's office."

"THIS THING SMELLS worse than the Penn Central Railroad case," Tragafly said. "Not only were the people involved incompetent, but we have evidence that they used cheap unsafe bugging equipment. Someone high in the Committee to Re-Elect the President okayed this equipment, and we're going to find out who it was."

"What do you think will happen

"WELL, IF THEY follow the Lockheed formula, the people who loused up the job will ask Congress for a loan to compensate them for their losses. Also, if we win our million dollar lawsuit, they'll probably ask Congress to compensate them for that.

Who's Decent?

William F. Buckley Jr.

It has been frequently quoted about 1964, (Sept. 8, Cong. Record, p. 21690) George McGovern that he is "the only decent man in the Senate." Now that quote is the late Robert Kennedy's, and it does, I truly believe, an injustice to the Senate. I am sure that there are other decent men there, not even counting the sainted junior Senator from New York, successor to Robert Kennedy in the affections of New York's constituents. And it is not the purpose of this essay to suggest that Sen. McGovern is other than a decent man. It is rather the purpose to suggest that that which is decent about him is expressed other than in his political rhetoric.

BUT I FEAR that he has another image of himself than that which collectors of his remarks come up with, and before the campaign heats up, he should be reminded of it. Particularly before he sets his course to the deploring of the rhetorical excesses of Spiro Agnew.

Here is Nick Kotz of the Washington Post (May 17, 1972), commenting on Sen. McGovern whom he had just interviewed. "As he talked in his office, McGovern returned repeatedly to the theme that he had tried to calm rather than incite the public to anger. 'I have sought not to whip up emotions, but to appeal to humanity and reason,' he said. "There's plenty of anger and tension without our leaders adding to it. I think a conciliatory approach is needed . . . ' "

A CONCILIATORY approach is not going to be tempered on McGovern rhetoric, and the gentleman's habits of harsh and uncharitable overstatement are not purely the accretions he was saying about another decent man in the Senate of the United States: "I regard Mr. Goldwater as the most unstable, radical and extremist ever to run for the Presidency in either political party.

And about yet another decent colleague - from the same state -Karl Mundt of South Dakota: "I don't know how he (Mundt) felt about me but I know I hated his guts

I hated him so much I lost my sense of balance." (Robert Sam Anson, McGovern: A Biography,

HC Enrollment Tempo Brisk

Applications for enrollment continue to be received at a good rate at Howard County Junior College, Registrar L. L. Lewis said Tuesday.

With only one week remaining before the start of application, many young people are getting their transcripts of credits to the registrar, together with the record of required immuniza-tions. He said there had been a better-than-usual response to the latter, which this year is a requirement before a student can be admitted. Lewis urged prospective students not to wait until signup time before obtaining a certification of the immunizations.

Next Tuesday at 9 a.m., beginning students will undergo the orientation program at the newly refurnished college auditorium.

That afternoon, beginning at one o'clock, sophomores will register until 4 p.m.; then from 6-8:30 p.m., evening students will register. On Wednesday, Aug. 23, from 8 a.m.-12 noon and 1-4 p.m. freshmen will register, and evening students again evening from 6-8:30 p.m.

At your service:

Electricity that can help save lives.

The next time you visit a large hospital, think about all the modern machines and equipment there that help save lives.

Those that come most quickly to mind include electrocardiogram equipment, kidney machines, sterilizers, special lights in the operating room, surgical and physical therapy equipment. Intensive care units in some hospitals have closed-circuit television, so nurses on duty stations can observe their patients constantly.

X-rays, long an important diagnostic tool, can now be ready to read in as little as 90 seconds.

And all newborn babies are now helped to adapt to life conditions by the controlled temperature, humidity and light of modern incubators. Builtin equipment monitors each child's health.

These machines extend the skills of highly-trained medical professionals.

And they all require electricity to make them work - electricity that will be required in even greater supply in the years ahead. When additional power is needed, we'll be ready to provide it to hospitals and to all our customers.

But getting ready and stay ing ready is an increasingly expensive, never-ending job at Texas Electric. Our construction expenditures are at a record high for facilities necessary to keep an adequate and reliable power supply at your service.
