PRESIDENT PICTURES HIMSELF AS CHAMPION

Nixon Assails Welfare; Boosts 'Work Ethic'

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon has pictured himself on this Labor Day as a champion of the "work ethic" while suggesting that Sen. George McGovern, his Democratic challenger for the White House, favors a "welfare ethic."

In an election-oriented holiday statement taped and released to radio stations Sunday night, Nixon also criticized AFL-CIO President George Meany, who has said he will vote for neither Nixon nor McGovern.

CLEAR CHOICES
Nixon said clear choices must be made by the voters in November.

"If the working man does not see the danger, if he decides to sit out this election, the choices will be made without him," Nixon said.

In the catch-all statement the Chief Executive also reaffirmed his opposition to busing to achieve school desegregation and laid claim to achieving record employment, curbing inflation and bringing work stoppages to a six-year low.

Although he never mentioned McGovern, Nixon's intent was clear as he said:

"We are faced this year with the choice between the 'work ethic' that built this nation's character — and the new 'welfare ethic' that could cause that American character to weaken."

MONEY, MONEY

Nixon argued that what he termed the welfare ethic "says that the good life can be made available to everyone right now, and this can be done by the government."

He said it envisions redistribution of national wealth to guarantee money for everybody.

The President made no mention of his own welfare reform proposals, long pending in Congress, that would guarantee a minimum annual income for welfare recipients.

"The choice before the American workers is clear," he said.

"The work ethic builds character and self reliance, the welfare ethic destroys character and leads to a vicious cycle of dependency. The work ethic builds strong people. The welfare ethic breeds weak people."

Labor Day often has marked the official kickoff of presidential campaigns but both Nixon and McGovern got off to a head start this year. The President's schedule today was confined to holding an evening reception at his oceanside home for the newsmen and photographers who will be covering his campaign.

McGovern appeared at the Southern Governor's Conference at Hilton Head, N.C., on Sunday and then flew to Ohio for appearances at labor rallies today in the Akron area.

REMBRANDT

Art Caper Worth Millions

MONTREAL (AP) — Eighteen paintings, including a Rembrandt worth about $1 million, some jewelry and some figurines were taken early today from the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts by three men.

A museum spokesman said the total value of the art treasures is $2 million to $3 million, although a full inventory of what was stolen had not been completed.

Police had earlier said the loot might have been worth up to $5 million.

The museum spokesman said the men entered the downtown museum through a skylight about 2 a.m. and overpowered a guard on the second floor. Two other watchmen heard the scuffling and rushed up to investigate.

They too were overpowered and all three guards were bound and gagged and put into a conference room.

The stolen Rembrandt was a 10-by-15-inch work entitled Landscape with Cottage.

Police were alerted to watch for a panel truck containing three men, described as very dangerous.

The watchmen described two of the three as long-haired men about 5 feet, 6 inches tall.

HOLIDAY TRAFFIC

(By The Associated Press)

The death count on the nation's highway climbed to 440 today as millions of Americans returned to the roads ending the Labor Day weekend.

The holiday death toll count began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and ends at midnight.

The National Safety Council has predicted 580 to 680 will die in traffic accidents this weekend. The worst Labor Day toll was in 1968 when 688 were killed.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING

B. C. Hamner Sr., 70, Victim In Glasscock

Violence claimed the lives of three area citizens over Labor Day weekend in a rash of accidents, including a hunting accident, a truck-train crash and a car-pedestrian accident.

B. C. Hamner Sr., 70, of Big Spring, died at 4:17 p.m. Sunday in Malone-Hogan Clinic where he was brought after a hunting accident in the northern corner of Glasscock County.

Mr. Hamner apparently stepped into the line of fire just as his granddaughter, Mrs.

Linda McCormick of Big Spring fired at a bird with a shotgun, according to witnesses. He took the blast in the head and was taken to the clinic by private vehicle.

Services are pending at Valley-Pickle Funeral Home. A retired gauger for Service Pipe Line, he has lived in Big Spring since June 1968.

Jack Warren Beall, 48, of Snyder was killed instantly at 9:45 a.m. Saturday when the truck he was driving struck the side of a Missouri-Pacific freight train at the crossing on State Highway 208 on the eastern edge of Colorado City.

According to City Policeman L. C. Devorce, the train was moving east and the truck was approaching the crossing going north. He said Beall apparently didn't see the train until it was too late. Devorce said the flashing signal at the crossing was working.

Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Bell-Seale Funeral Home in Snyder. Burial will be in Lawn Haven Memorial Gardens in San Angelo.

Six-year-old Cynthia Ann Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy D. Jones of Sweetwater was dead on arrival at a Sweetwater hospital shortly before 6 p.m. of injuries suffered in a car-pedestrian accident.

Department of Public Safety patrolman Don Ramnefeld, who investigated, said the accident occurred 1.7 miles west of Sweetwater on US 80. Driver of the auto was Elidia Garcia Serrano of Sweetwater.

BIBLE FUND KEEPS GOING

Several friends of many years' standing kept the high school Bible Class Fund from taking a holiday on this Labor day holiday.

They added $60 to the cause and brought to $3,150 the amount so far given. This leaves nearly $2,900 needed to finance the class, which depends upon support of the public. Tax funds may not be used for instruction, although the course carries credit.

Flash Flood Toll Mounts

HILLSBORO, N.M. (AP) — Two men, one in his home and the other on his way home after a dance, died Sunday when a flash flood sent a destructive wall of water through this small village.

Six persons still were missing and the search resumed early today. Two other persons were injured when a house collapsed.

Guadalupe Terrazas, in his late 60s, died in his adobe home when the water tore out a wall and the roof fell in, burying him under debris. He lived alone in the house, on main street, near Percha Creek.

Gifts Slump In Telethon

An area-wide telethon to raise funds for combating muscular dystrophy was at a total of $456 in comparison to $1,500 at the same time last year. Workers in the drive were hoping contributions would pick up during the remainder of the Jerry Lewis telethon Monday.

Channel 4, KWAB television was to continue the telethon through 5:30 p.m. today after it began at 10:30 p.m. nationwide Sunday.

Big Spring residents had accounted for $361 in contributions with Colorado City donating $10, Lamesa, $1, Gail, $2, Vealmoor, $5, Garden City, $32, Knott, $5, Stanton, $30, and Coahoma, $10.

Local workers included Mrs. Clovis Hale, who worked at the station the entire telethon, the Alpha Chi chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha who worked all night from 8 p.m. Sunday to 5:30 a.m. Monday, the Coahoma 4-H boys and girls who worked from 8 a.m. to noon Monday and the Big Spring PBX Club and volunteers from Garden City area who worked Monday afternoon.

which became a wild river fed by flood waters between midnight and 1 a.m. Sunday. The creek runs through the middle of town, near and parallel to the main street.

"PRETTY DARK"

Ed Newton, 59, a fiddler from nearby Truth or Consequences, had been in Hillsboro, a community of about 300, to play for a Saturday night dance.

"We were just getting ready to go home," his wife, Geneva Newton, said. "He was across the street and had just started up the car, to go to the corner, turn around and get me. It was just barely sprinkling and then it came just in a flash.

"The cars in front of him and behind him were swept away. There were other cars on the opposite side of the street swept away, but I didn't see them. It was just pretty dark." She watched her husband and car disappear in the water and darkness.

The car was found later in the day, about two miles east of Hillsboro, upside down in water and filled with sand. Newton's body was found six miles east of the village, along the path of the creek, by a National Guard helicopter crew.

"WALL OF WATER"
Undersheriff Charlie Cox said, "There must have been a wall of water 15 to 20 feet high at its worst, from the evidence."

He said the six missing persons included "a couple of boys who came through and wanted a place to stay, so they put them up in the fire house. We couldn't find them. They might have gone outside when the water went into the fire house."

CLOUDY

Partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of thunder-showers through Tuesday. High today 87, low near 60, high Tuesday near 90.

which is on the main street that was under up to four feet of water during the crest of the flood.

The other four missing were in a family that had been camping near the creek.

"There's a camp spot near the creek bank and we found a vehicle and some pieces of the camper that had been on it. Some folks said there had been a family of three or four around the camper earlier. We didn't find them."

Identities of the two youths in the fire house and the missing family were not available.

Status Trouble

LONDON (AP) — "The Director," journal of the Institute of Directors, says that unnecessary status divisions between office and factory workers must be broken down. It says it is time the "landscaped office" with plants, acoustic screens, air-conditioning and subtle lighting and color was brought to the work bench.

Protection Flops

SEATTLE (AP) — Paul W. Heck thought he had adequate protection from burglars. His arsenal included 10 pistols, two carbine rifles, a submachine gun, 10,000 rounds of ammunition. He reported to police that burglars broke in and stole it all, taking five cameras as good measure.

Vet Who Lost Both Hands Takes Job Pumping Gas

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A 25-year-old veteran who lost both hands and part of his vision in Vietnam says he's "too young to retire," so he's taken a job pumping gas.

For the past three months John Eliason, a former Army infantry medic, has held down a part-time job at a local service station, and his employer says he's "a real good worker."

CHANGING TIRES "He's pumped gas, changed tires, checked oil — done almost everything," said station manager Richard Nelson. Eliason was 19 when he was drafted and sent to Vietnam. Two years later on a bunker near Dak To, a grenade explosion blew off both his arms below the elbow and lodged three pieces of shrapnel in his right eye.

Too Few Places

NEW YORK (AP) — For the average metropolitan worker, the lunch break, once a relaxing respite from the workday routine, has become one of the most frustrating periods of the day.

"Here in the nation's most crowded city, for example, there are only about 5,000 restaurants, ranging from pizza parlors to gourmet palaces," said Alan Emerick, president of the Great Bear Spring Company. "Yet there are some 3.5 million office workers searching for a lunch-time oasis."

Since the average restaurant can serve only about 150 diners between noon and 2 p.m., only about 500,000 workers each day can enjoy a restaurant lunch, Emerick added.

AUSTIN (AP) — Thirty-one students from the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs are getting a different perspective on their government studies this summer — they're serving as interns in government offices throughout Texas and across the country.

Summer internships are required between first and second year studies for every student at the LBJ School, a graduate program of the University of Texas at Austin.

SLAIN 61 YEARS AGO Unburied Body

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressman of Italian descent, seeking to put national pressure on a funeral-home operator, appealed today for help in a campaign to bury an Italian-American who was murdered 61 years ago.

Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., a former New York City policeman and a past president of the National Police Officers Association of America, asked anyone interested in "the fight for human rights and an end to ethnic prejudice" to join in a letter-writing blitz in the case of Frezzo Consepco.

BACK IN 1911 Since his death in 1911, and until last week, Consepco's body, wearing only a loon cloth, had been exhibited in a glass-covered box in a garage at a Launburg, N.C., funeral home owned by Hewitt McDougald. It became an attraction for visitors.

Last week, McDougald, saying he had done nothing wrong in displaying the body, removed it from public view. He said he had received no complaints from local people.

Biaggi's office today released a letter sent by him to North Carolina Gov. Robert W. Scott, urging help in obtaining a burial.

Biaggi said that, "as a human being and a person with a sense of Christian charity and concern for the sanctity of the human body, I find this Roman Circus exhibition of the remains of a human being ghastly in the least and an insult to human decency and justice," Biaggi added.

NO FEDERAL LAW Newspaper accounts said Consepco was killed near Laurinburg in 1911 by a fellow carnival worker. The dead man's father, who spoke no English, paid part of the McDougald funeral home's burial fee. However, as he never returned to pay the rest or to give burial instructions, the body remained unburied.

Biaggi, who started a hunt for relatives of Consepco, both in Providence, R.I., the last known address, and in Italy, said McDougald "is insisting on payment of storage and other fees amounting to more than $5,000 before he will consider burying the body."

Biaggi said there is "no federal law that will govern in this matter, but there is the higher law of human decency and respect for the temple of God, the human body."

Lakes Register Modest Gains

Lake J. B. Thomas apparently had completed its catch from weekend rains Monday with a net gain of nearly 5,000 acre-feet and 1.15 feet in vertical rise.

This left the lake at 2239.90, which is still about 18 feet below spillway but the highest it has been since April 28, 1968. The lake now contains 92,360 acre-feet since Aug. 31, up 4,940 to be exact.

Downstream, Lake E. V. Spence was just beginning to feel the effects of runoff from the Big Spring Snyder areas by Monday morning. The elevation was 1856.84, up .70 of a foot. The river at Silver Bridge was running 7 feet deep Monday morning and appeared to have a similar head many miles upstream.

Beal Creek, which drains the Big Spring area, was running 7.8 feet deep at the State Highway 163 crossing in southern Mitchell County.

Colorado River Municipal Water District officials hoped that their lake would catch at least .70 of a foot more. The gain so far is 3,500 acre-feet and pushed the lake to the highest point in its history, 1855.01 on Sept. 29, 1971. The lake Monday morning contained 113,100 acre-feet of water.

'AT THE MERCY OF THE FUNERAL DIRECTOR'

'American Way Of Death'

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — A lawmaker who used to embalm bodies and arrange funerals says it's time for the Legislature to help Texans resist what has been called the "American Way of Death."

"Superstitions have built up about dead persons over the whole history of man, and funeral directors make their living from it," says Rep. Jim Kaster of El Paso.

Kaster, 38, plans to introduce two bills next year that he says would be at least a start toward protecting Texans whose emotional defenses are in disarray when they do business with the undertaker.

ITEMIZE COST
One bill would require funeral homes to itemize each cost involved in a funeral so families can dispense with services they don't want or need.

The other—which Kaster says is more important—would add three public members to the State Board of Morticians, now composed of six undertakers.

Kaster is far from popular with the funeral directors. "He's just got an animosity toward funeral services," said Edward McGuire, executive director of the Texas Funeral Directors and Embalmers Association.

Kaster said he received an unfriendly reception last year when he appeared at a Central Texas funeral directors meeting to explain his itemization bill, which was pending before the 1971 Legislature.

"I told them I felt this was the age of disclosure and one of them got up and called me a Communist," he said.

In 1968-69, Kaster served as a funeral director and two years as an apprentice embalmer to qualify for his state licenses. He keeps his licenses current, even though he left the undertaking business to become a pilot and travel agent.

PHONY BIZ
"I didn't like being in a phony business," he said.

"When you go to a funeral home, there are very subtle ways these people go about selling merchandise. They study things like colors and lighting and, most importantly, the arrangement of caskets in the display room. It is very important whether you turn to the left or right when you enter. People naturally turn to the right, so they put the most expensive caskets to the right. Often, they don't even have the least expensive in the show room."

Kaster said funeral directors go out of their way to make inexpensive coffins look bad, covering the wood with "the cheapest damn cloth they can find" and calling them "flat tops."

One Texan left instructions that he be buried in an inexpensive wooden coffin. When his relatives asked for one, the undertaker reluctantly located a gray-painted wooden box.

"He treated us sneeringly after that, implying we were cheapskates," said a relative who helped arrange the funeral.

'OWE' IT

Kaster, whose family has been in the coffin or undertaking business for three generations, said there is a five-fold mark-up on coffins. McGuire said the mark-up is 2½ times wholesale.

Kaster said the merchandising of funerals plays on a family's concern over what their friends will think as well as what they "owe" their dead relative.

"It's very much a status thing—that's what keeps the business going," he said.

McGuire contends funerals aren't over-priced.

"The overhead per service in Texas is about $675, even before you select a casket. . . . On an $863 service, which was average for Texas in 1971, the funeral director had a gross profit of $90. The average funeral home in Texas conducts 85 services a year," he said.

Kaster thinks itemizing funeral expenses might save families money. It costs $50 per limousine "for a ride to the cemetery," he said, and if a family knew this it might decide to ride in its own car.

$50 A DAY

"They are probably charging $50 a day to display the body at the funeral home," he added.

Families also would learn that embalming—not required by any state law—costs $100, a figure on which Kaster and McGuire agree.

"The chemicals they use cost only $5 and they use some poor jackleg fluid pusher to do it (embalm a body)," Kaster said. He said an embalmer receives about $400 a month, but McGuire said the usual salary is about $675.

McGuire further defended the cost of embalming by saying funeral directors "have a minimum of $5,000 invested in their preparation rooms, which must comply with local ordinances and state health standards."

Kaster's itemization bill died in the House State Affairs Committee.

TWO REASONS

McGuire says the funeral directors association opposes itemizing expenses for two reasons:

— "It's regulation by the state or federal government—another way of saying they are putting their foot in the door and telling you how to run your business."

— "Funeral directors would have to increase prices to cover their overhead, at least on those items the public could be selective on."

The undertakers obtained a complete revision of the law regulating their industry last session, increasing training requirements and giving the State Board of Morticians power to take away funeral homes' licenses for committing any one of a long list of acts.

MORALS

One such violation would be any act that is "offensive to the common conscience and moral standards of the community."

McGuire said it was just such an incident that prompted the undertakers to seek revision. A funeral director in the Houston area sent an unclaimed body to a medical school for use in dissecting laboratories. Relatives sought the body shortly afterward, but the undertaker found it had already been dissected. So he sewed the man's head onto another man's body. The board of morticians found it had no power to punish the undertaker.

"They couldn't touch him," McGuire said.

Kaster also opposes the two-year embalmer apprenticeship, saying, "You could learn in two months how to push fluid through a body."

McGuire said, however, that the training period is a must—"How would they know how to handle contagious diseases?"

Klan Takes Aim At Teens

ATLANTA Ga. (AP) — The head of the National Knights of the Ku Klux Klan says the group is holding a nationwide membership campaign aimed at teen-agers.

Imperial Wizard James Venable said efforts are being made to get "lots" of young people and that in Ohio recently more than 200 were signed up.

Venable told newsmen at the group's annual Labor Day rally at nearby Stone Mountain during the weekend that "we're trying to get them indoctrinated to Americanism."

Attending the rally were about 200 men and women from various parts of the country.

SEEKING MISS AMERICA CROWN

Day Of Hard Work For 50 Beauties

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Today may be a holiday for most Americans, but for the 50 state pageant queens vying for the Miss America crown here it is a day of hard work.

The first thing on the contestants' schedule was registration for the week-long pageant that ends with the crowning of Miss America 1973 Saturday night.

Following registration, the day is crowded with interviews and picture-taking sessions, followed by stage rehearsals at Convention Hall with the rest of the pageant production staff.

"Their day begins at 6:30 a.m. and ends at 2 a.m. Tuesday," said Albert Marks Jr., the pageant's executive director.

IN SHAPE

Beginning today, Marks said the 50 beauties and the production staff have 48 hours to whip into shape the show that will be featured as part of the preliminary competitions Wednesday through Friday and the finals Saturday night.

"It's rough on them to put together something of this magnitude within such short time, but at their age it looks good on them," Marks said.

Most of the girls, whose ages range from 18 to 23, arrived here Sunday by jet and limousine.

Miss Oklahoma, Debbie Giannopolous, 20, flew in on a jet owned by Oklahoma Gov. David Hall.

PAL OF PAL

"A friend of a friend arranged it," said Miss Giannopolous. "One of the advantages of a private plane is that there's lots of room so you don't have to get your gown and the rest of your clothes wrinkled."

Travelling the shortest distance to get here was Miss New Jersey, Linda Carol Gialanella, 22, of Maplewood.

"I really feel as though I'm the hostess," said Miss Gialanella. "I've been to Atlantic City several times before and feel at home here. I'll also try to make the other girls feel at home."

Miss Wisconsin, Terry Ann Meeuwse, 23, and Miss Rhode Island, Michele Alexis Passarelli, 18, arrived ahead of their luggage, and had to pass when the time came for group picture taking in swimsuits at the Haddon Hall Hotel swimming pool.

BRAS-LESS

The majority of the girls arrived here in tailored suits,

$27,000 Reward Posted For Killer

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP) — A total of $27,000 is awaiting anyone who provides information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for killing two Texarkana, Tex. women last month.

The figure was raised by $25,000 from $2,000 by the families of Mrs. Florence Jones, 49, and Mrs. Lois Jernigan, 52, who were shot to death Aug. 13.

A week after the bodies were found, some members of their survivors put up a $2,000 reward.

A brother to the sisters, Mack Standridge of Texarkana, said the family also is offering the additional $25,000.

The women were shot with a 9mm automatic, police said. Nine spent cartridges were found on the floor of the living room of Mrs. Jones' home, where the bodies were found.

Anne Koper, 21, who's 5-3, weighs 105, and measures 34-24-34. Miss Delaware, Catherine Lawton, 20, also stands at 5-3, but weighs 110, and measures 34-23-35.

The tallest and heaviest is Miss Illinois, Carolyn Paulus, 20, who's 5-11, weighs 135, and measures 36-26-36. Miss Arizona, Linda Gail Sirrine, 19, who's an inch shorter, also weighs 135, but measures 37-25-37.

Most of the contestants listed their special talent as ballet dancing or classical or pop singing.

PLAYS BANJO

Among the exceptions were Miss Lawton, who plays the banjo, Miss New Mexico, Wren Prather, 19, a tap dancer; Miss North Dakota, Georgia Ann Becker, 18, a country-western singer; Miss Vermont, Kathy Hebert, 21, a guitarist, and Miss Indiana, Rebecca Sue Graham, 23, a gymnast.

Miss Maine, Marilyn E. Lash, 19, is studying to be a pilot, while Miss Graham would like to be a gymnastic coach to olympic teams.

The contestants, 13 of whom are blondes, were formally introduced to one another Sunday night at a "mix and mingle" dinner at Haddon Hall.

The dinner was described as an opportunity for them to "relax and just have fun getting acquainted."

"At this time last year, we were running well behind schedule. This year things are running pretty smooth, almost too smoothly," said Marks. "And that somehow makes me scared."

Lynn Herring; Ohio, Karen Sue Sparks; Nevada, Helen Marie Bennett; Nebraska, Jeanne Giller; Hawaii, Marlene Kehauland Kalahiki; Florida, Suzanne Charles; Colorado, Sally Jo Anderson; California, Dianne Wagner; Alaska, Frieta Fuller.

More Than One In Death Plot, Says This Candidate

MILWAUKEE (AP) — American party presidential candidate John Schmitz says there is evidence that more than one person was involved in a plot to assassinate Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Schmitz, a member of the John Birch Society, said Sunday that the organization would make such allegations soon in its American Opinion Magazine.

"I'm checking out all the facts myself," he told a news conference.

Schmitz said Arthur Bremer, 21, of Milwaukee, who was convicted recently of shooting Wallace last May at a Laurel, Md., shopping center, had an older accomplice from Milwaukee who died some time after the Maryland shooting.

Schmitz, a native of Milwaukee and a Republican congressman from California, has been campaigning in Wisconsin during the Labor Day weekend.

President To Plug Golden Gate Area

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President Nixon is scheduled to fly here Tuesday to plug the Golden Gate National Recreation Area which his administration proposed eight months ago as part of its environmental program.

The precise time and place of his speech will not be announced until Tuesday morning, but a spokesman said it will be in the afternoon in or near the Presidio at the south end of the Golden Gate Bridge.

By then Ken and Paula were already going steady. But Greg kept trying to get Paula to like him and get them broken up. In a way, it was starting to work. All this time I was trying to stop Greg and keep Ken and Paula together.

Now Paula hates Greg and Ken is trying to hate him, too. Greg can't stand me because he thought I was trying to break up his and Ken's friendship. But I wasn't. # Thieu Assumes Power To Judge, Sentence

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu has decreed the death penalty for hijacking and a number of other offenses and abolished court trials for military men and civil servants accused of major crimes. Now Thieu or his chief appointees will judge and sentence them.

The edicts are contained in two more decrees laws issued under a six-month grant of special powers. Thieu obtained from the Senate in June when government forces were reeling from the North Vietnamese offensive.

TREASON
As reported today by the government news agency, Vietnam Press, the second of the two new laws gives the president, prime minister, other cabinet ministers and the chairman of the joint general staff the right to judge and sentence:

1. Civil servants accused of treason or cooperating with the Communists.

2. Military men accused of desertion, rebellion, unauthorized surrender or violations of orders in the face of the enemy.

3. Civil servants or military men accused of such crimes as murder, rape, corruption, embezzlement of public funds and theft or sale of government supplies and equipment.

The only restriction on the exercise of these summary powers is that each case must be investigated, and accused persons have the right to make pleas in their own behalf.

For lesser charges against military men and civil servants, regular court procedures remain in effect.

GANG RAPE
Thieu already has ordered the arrest of some military field commanders for dereliction in combat situations, particularly the abandonment of positions without authority. But the theft and resale of military fuel, weapons and other items has continued to be a major form of corruption within the armed forces.

In the other new decree, Thieu ordered the death penalty for the hijackings of an aircraft or watercraft, and also for kidnaping, armed robbery, robbery conspiracy, gang rape, forcing someone to engage in prostitution, and commission of any other "violent act" resulting in an innocent death or disabling injury.

The law specifies that "anyone who is present at the scene is authorized to fire his individual weapon to shoot down the lawbreakers."

Bernhardt Wins Canadian Title

TORONTO (AP) — Carl Johan Bernhardt of Sweden beat Orville Haslam of London 21-15, 21-16, 21-18 Sunday to win the men's title at the Canadian Open Table Tennis Championships.

Violetta Nesukitis of Toronto defended her women's title with a 21-18, 16-21, 21-19, 21-16 victory over Judy Bochenski of Eugene, Ore.

Grandma Helps Disarm Wild Gunman In Florida

DESTIN, Fla. (AP) — A 59-year-old grandmother says she helped disarm a gunman who walked into a crowded restaurant after allegedly shooting and wounding the owner.

"I grabbed the rifle and held it up in the air," Lil Shirah said Sunday. "He tried to take it out of my hands but I had a death grip on it."

Identified the gunman as Albert E. Williams, 42, of Destin. The spokesman said Williams was charged with assault with intent to commit murder in connection with the shooting of businessman Bernard Kelly Saturday night.

Kelly, 37, who owns several charter fishing boats, a construction firm and The Wharf restaurant in this Gulf Coast resort town, was listed in critical condition Sunday night in a Pensacola hospital. Police said he was shot in the head in a dispute over the firing of a first mate on one of his fishing boats.

Mrs. Shirah, assistant manager of the restaurant, said she was standing in the middle of the floor looking for tables to seat a long line of patrons when the gunman walked in.

The grandmother of three said she asked if she could help him, and he replied he was "looking for Jack."

the gunman and grabbed the rifle. She said she held onto the gun until Jimmy Trammel, a boat worker, rushed through the door and disarmed the man.

Before entering the restaurant, police said Williams had fired two shots through the window of Kelly's nearby Boat Service office, then walked into the office and shot Kelly when he and another employee walked toward Williams to try to calm him.

Williams' son, Donny, 18, was fired several hours before the incident from the job he held as first mate aboard one of Kelly's fishing boats.

Hammer Killing Blamed On Mishap

INDIALANTIC, Fla. (AP) — "I forgive my son for what he did, and she would too," said Roy Styers, who returned home from a fishing trip and found the bloodsoaked body of his murdered wife.

Styers, whose 57-year-old wife Betty was killed when her head was battered with a claw hammer, added that his son "is a good man who didn't know what he was doing."

Officers said shortly after the killing Saturday, 26-year-old Arthur E. Styers rushed into the Indialantic police station on Florida's Atlantic coast and said he wanted to report an emergency.

"I may have killed my mother but I am not sure," the young Styers told dispatcher Neil Chancellor. "I am taking drugs and I think I am hallucinating."

Chancellor said the younger Styers burst into tears as he pleaded, "Please, call this number and find out for me if it is a hallucination."

months ago in which Arthur suffered serious head injuries. He said he had been undergoing psychiatric treatment at the Wuesthoff Memorial Hospital in Rockledge, Fla.

"His mother finally talked him into taking the pills during the last three days," Styers said. "For some reason he became more despondent and we couldn't do much with him."

He said doctors wanted to have the son committed to a hospital but he and his wife objected. "We thought it was better to have him home with us."

The father added, "Arthur called me last night to say he was sorry. My son is a good man."

Sheriff's Sgt. George Ashlock said that the son was charged with first-degree murder.

Coast Guard Sets Up Speed Trap

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — Foggy-night speedsters on the St. Marys River beware! The U.S. Coast Guard is setting up another speed trap.

Water-watching Coast Guard traffic patrols are already using riflescopes to check the speed of freighters running during the day. Now they've got orders in for an infra-red one—similar to ones used to spot night snipers in Vietnam—to catch midnight skulkers floating faster than the posted limit.

Although the scopes currently being used work on bright nights, fast floating freighters occasionally manage to sneak through on foggy ones.

The speed limit varies from 8 to 17 miles per hour at various points along the river connecting Lake Huron and Lake Superior.

The Coast Guard said they've handed out 80 speeding tickets using the regular scope since the speed trap was set up in April.

Gloomy Data About Mankind At Religious Thinkers Meet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two theologians say the North American Indian's wisdom of ecology and the spiritual could teach lessons to modern man. But the portrait of the Indians' harmony with nature contrasted with gloomy reports about mankind at a convention of what sponsors call history's largest assemblage of religious thinkers.

Known as the first International Congress of Learned Societies in the Field of Religion, the five-day conference has drawn 3,000 participants from the United States, Canada, Europe and the Far East. Most participants represent Western religions.

"The modern concern with ecological problems invites us to a closer observation of the Indians on the religio-ecological level," Ake Hultkrantz of the University of Stockholm declared at a Sunday forum.

Hultkrantz, an expert on the American Plains Indian, said, "The harmonious combination of nature and religion that they have achieved impresses every outsider. They evince in their way of living and in their religion that human beings have to live with nature, and not against it, as is the case in our modern technology."

In fact, added J.W.E. Newbury of the University of Sud-bury in Ontario, Canada, "the Indian is . . . not a pagan or an idolator, but knows the divine spirit is everywhere." He said that when Christianity came to North America it not only trampled over Indian theology, but misunderstood it. The Indians' sense of nature was so sensitive that "to cut a tree, or kill an animal, was not an act to be undertaken carelessly," Newbury added.

IRA Ready To Call Off Its Bombing Campaign?

BELFAST (AP) — The Irish Republican Army was reported ready today to call off its bombing campaign against civilian targets in Northern Ireland and wage wider warfare against the British Army.

The switch in tactics was reported by sources close to the IRA's militant Provisional wing. They also reported a shakeup in the Provos' Belfast command, with the local commander, Seamus Twomey, being replaced by his more moderate No. 2, Gerry Adams. An IRA defector, Maria McGuire, told the London Observer there was growing dissatisfaction among the guerrillas. She said there had been a plot within the organization to assassinate the Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Monday, Sept. 4, 1972 7-A

Provos' chief commander, Seamus MacStioffain.

And though the Provos' Dublin headquarters termed Miss McGuire's report "completely false and without foundation," other sources said the guerrillas, instead of bombing urban centers, will now step up their shooting war with the 21,000 troops in the province.

Prime Ministers Edward Heath of Britain and Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic were to discuss the Ulster violence today in Munich, where both men are attending the Olympics. Only minor terrorism was reported over the weekend, but two British patrols met in the dark in Belfast and opened fire on each other. One soldier was killed.

Idle Red Sox Pick Up Ground In Scramble

The Boston Red Sox may have come up with a way to win the pennant race that no body wants in the wacky American League East — don't play. Front-running Baltimore also lost — 1-0 in 10 innings to California — and the four contenders labored into Labor Day moved past Detroit and New York into second place when the Tigers lost to Oakland 3-1 and the Yankees were blanked by the Chicago White Sox 5-0.

Chiefs Proving Stram Prophecy

Coach Hank Stram has been saying right along that his Chiefs are the best team he ever had and their 20-10 exhibition triumph over the current Super Bowl Champions during the Labor Day holiday weekend convinced any doubters. Aaron Brown intercepted a pass in the opening minutes and ran it back 53 yards for a touchdown. The Chiefs went on to take a commanding 20-3 lead before the Cowboys scored in the last quarter on a 45-yard pass from Morton to Billy Parks.

Mets Flog Astros 2-1, To Capture Series Edge

HOUSTON (AP) — Lightning in the form of the New York Mets struck twice in the same spot Sunday as the Mets whipped the Houston Astros 2-1 with ninth inning heroics. ## Crown Champ Of Checkers

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The National Checker Championship has ended with the crowning of its first grand slam winner, Walter Hellman, a 56-year-old steel worker from Gary, Ind.

Checkers "is a much more scientific and profound game" than chess, said Hellman, who defeated Everett Fuller of Springfield, Mo., for the crown.

"There are positions on the checker board no chess player can ever figure out," he said.

For his feat, the 40-year veteran of the game takes home a 3-foot trophy and a cash prize of $650.

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Southern governors have told Sen. George McGovern he faces a steep uphill fight to carry the South against President Nixon.

The Democratic presidential candidate met Sunday night for almost three hours — an hour longer than he had planned — with 15 of the governors at a private dinner held on the eve of the opening session of the Southern Governors Conference.

RECEIVED NONE McGovern said afterwards he did not seek endorsements and received none.

But North Carolina Gov. Bob

Scott, a vocal critic of McGovern at the Democratic National Convention, announced later that he would serve as chairman of McGovern's North Carolina campaign.

South Carolina Gov. John West, previously a fence-sitter, said he would vote for the ticket. But, he added, "My recommendation is that each voter study the issues and the candidates and make his decision according to the dictates of his own conscience."

West joined a growing list of Southern governors who said they could do no more for McGovern than cast a Democratic ballot. Making similar statements after the meeting were Govs. Warren Hearnes of Missouri, Jimmy Carter of Georgia, and Dale Bumpers of Arkansas.

NO SPEECH Some of the Democratic governors interviewed after the meeting — Bill Waller of Mississippi for one — said they had not yet made up their minds whether they could even vote for McGovern.

McGovern made no speech to the governors. Hearnes said no issues were discussed and that the conversation focused on organization.

The senator's only public remarks of the evening came when he held a brief news conference before flying on to Akron and Dayton, Ohio.

McGovern conceded he faced an uphill fight "to carry this section of the nation," but added "I won't concede a single state."

He pledged to return for more campaigning in the South.

Sources inside the meeting said McGovern generally detailed his campaign plan and the governors assessed his situation in each Southern state. Almost to a man the governors said Nixon now led McGovern in their state.

Carter of Georgia doubted McGovern could carry as many as five Deep South states. "I'd be very surprised if he did that well down here," said the Georgian.

Bumpers of Arkansas voiced the concern of many Southern Democrats who are running their own campaigns at a time when the Republican current is running strong. "I've got to campaign full time to get Dale Bumpers elected to a second term as governor," he said.

BAYTOWN, Tex. (AP) — Richard E. Vojel, 21, of Baytown was shot to death today outside a lounge here.

Police questioned a 23-year-old man.

Low Patchy Fog, Showers

By The Associated Press Low patchy fog and scattered showers blanketed much of West and Northwest Texas early today.

Skies also were cloudy over north central portions of the state.

Showers and thundershowers occurred near dawn over northwest, extreme northern portions and in the vicinity of El Paso.

Temperatures ranged from near 60 over the northern Panhandle to the mid 70s along the coast.

Forecasters said scattered thundershowers and showers would continue over West and Northwest Texas and develop over portions of Southeast and South Central Texas. Otherwise, partly cloudy weather changes were seen.

A stationary cold front that lay across Southeast and South Central Texas from north of Austin to north of Del Rio was expected to be pushed a little farther south today, forecasters said.

But the frontal system was expected to have little effect, as it was about to be superseded by another front coming down from Canada. The new air mass was expected to bring lower temperatures and scattered thundershowers to the Panhandle.

260th Annual Santa Fe Fiesta

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The final day of the 260th annual Santa Fe fiesta opened today.

Highlighting the day's activities was the Desfile de Fiesta, or general fiesta parade.

The official closing of the fiesta was scheduled to take place with the thanksgiving blessing at 6 p.m.

Police reported only 18 persons were arrested Sunday night, and most arrests were on charges of drunkenness or drinking in public.

Police have made 108 arrests during the fiesta, mostly on drinking-related offenses.

Labor Day: A Time To Salute The Workingman

By ROBERT BETTS
Copley News Service

Eighty million American workers have Pete McGuire to thank for a day off that is due to them each year. Labor Day was his idea.

Pete was president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and a stalwart battler in the infant labor union movement back in 1882.

He pointed out that there were holidays glorifying the nation's religious, civic and military spirit, but none the industrial. Give us, he urged, a day "which shall be labor's."

FESTIVE DAY

He proposed that a day be set aside "as a festive day during which a parade through the streets of the city would permit public tribute to American industry."

"It should be on a Monday so workers will have two successive days of rest," he continued. (The five-day week was not even a dream in 1882.)

"It should be between Independence Day and Thanksgiving Day, so it will not crowd up against some other holidays."

The Central Labor Council of New York City, whose members he was appealing to, liked the idea and approved the motion.

CELEBRATION

Five months later, the first Labor Day celebration in the United States was held in New York on the first Monday in September. Workers paraded up Broadway to Union Square, and then to Elm Park for a picnic, concert and speeches.

The idea caught on quickly across the country. The following year a number of municipal labor councils set aside the first Monday in September as a holiday. But the day had no official standing until 1887, when Oregon became the first state to proclaim it a legal holiday. Other states soon followed.

Both houses of Congress passed bills making the first Monday in September a national holiday for labor in a special session called by President Grover Cleveland in August, 1893, to consider the financial crisis threatening the country at the time. The bill was signed into law on June 28, 1894.

Today virtually all Americans — not only those who are affiliated with labor organizations — observe Labor Day as one of the bright, most merited holidays of the year.

LONG WAY

The labor movement has come a long way since those early days when organized labor was a relatively small segment of the work force.

Despite opposition and setbacks, the movement grew and gained influence. Through its untiring efforts, management and government paid ever more serious attention to the workingman's needs.

During the first part of the 20th Century, laws were passed which were favorable to labor, such as those which limited child labor, which set hours and wage standards for women workers, and which provided control over sanitary and safety conditions in factories.

Today millions of American workers belong to unions, enjoying the benefits worked out between organized labor and management. Labor now has an important political voice nationally, and its leaders are consulted on many national issues.

WORKING TOGETHER

The health and growth of the nation's economy are due in large measure to the efforts of organized labor and management, working together to improve working conditions and production totals.

Because of the economic, social and political gains made, the workers' share in the national wealth is without parallel in history.

No other nation in the world can compare the benefits its producers enjoy with those in the United States and the recognition they receive. The United States has the highest-skilled workers, highest wages and the shortest working hours in the world.

REST FROM WORK

The first Labor Day was intended by McGuire and his colleagues to be not merely an occasion for taking a rest from work, but to serve as a militant plea for a better life for workers. They could hardly have imagined such a standard of living as is enjoyed today.

It is fitting for all Americans each Labor Day, however, to salute their memory — and to pay homage to labor for its contributions to the free enterprise system and a healthy nation.

Bus Wreck Kills Two, 44 Injured

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Two persons were killed and 44 others injured when a Greyhound bus sliced through a guardrail and plunged 35 feet over an embankment, landing upside down near a motel parking lot.

The driver, Julius Stokes Jr., 31, of Philadelphia, was arrested and charged with involuntary manslaughter and reckless driving following the accident Sunday, state police said. The charges are routine in accidents involving deaths, police added.

Stokes was treated for minor injuries and then released under $3,500 bond posted by Greyhound officials.

Nine of the 44 injured persons were hospitalized, three in critical condition. The others were treated at three Richmond hospitals and released.

Police said about 20 passengers were thrown from the bus when it left the Richmond-Petersburg Turnpike, a toll road which is part of Interstate 95.

Police ordered the bus impounded so mechanics could check its equipment. Trooper R. C. Klepper Jr. said he was told by the bus driver that the vehicle's lighting equipment failed just before the crash shortly before dawn.

The bus was on a regularly scheduled run from New York to South Carolina.

Typhoon Elsie Virtually Halts U.S. Air War Against Commies

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese forces overran a ranger camp in the Central Highlands today, and about 150 of the defenders were reported missing.

The border camp was defended by an estimated 200 men, most of them Montagnard tribesmen trained by the U.S. Green Berets who once ran the camp. Field reports said 54 of the rangers had been accounted for, and it was believed a number of the others had escaped and would turn up at other government posts later.

The Plei Djerung camp had been surrounded and under artillery siege since Saturday. Its only 105mm howitzers were damaged in the initial attacks, and it could not return the artillery fire.

MORTARS HIT

Hundreds of rounds of 130mm artillery shells, rockets and mortars hit the base before a ground assault before dawn finished it off.

The U.S. Command announced the loss of three helicopters in other areas of the Central Highlands and said two Americans were killed and 10 were injured in the crashes. Hundreds of South Vietnamese rangers also began a new drive into southern Cambodia, and seeking to block North Vietnamese infiltration into the western Mekong Delta. But only light, scattered fighting was reported.

Typhoon Elsie hit south Vietnam's northern coastline after bringing U.S. air operations to a virtual standstill on Sunday.

With gusts up to 80 miles an hour, Elsie moved inland more than 50 miles below Da Nang and began losing steam in the mountains to the west. It dumped several inches of rain on Da Nang and the coastal region. There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage.

NO MISSIONS

The U.S. 7th Fleet as its precaution kept all its planes aboard the carriers in the Tonkin Gulf Sunday, and no missions were flown in North or South Vietnam for the first time in months, spokesmen said.

The Navy reported that air operations had resumed Monday but gave no details. A spokesman for the 7th Air Force said its operations also were seriously curtailed Sunday.

Air Force said that on Saturday its F4 Phantoms wrecked one of North Vietnam's biggest air bases, at Phuc Yen, 10 miles northwest of Hanoi, and shot down a MIG19 interceptor that challenged the raiders.

The storm did not affect the Air Force's high-altitude B52 bombers, which on Sunday and Monday flew 15 strikes against targets in the demilitarized zone and the southern part of North Vietnam and another 60 in South Vietnam around Quang Tri City, the Que Son Valley, in the central highlands and 30 to 40 miles north of Saigon.

GROUND FIGHTING

Ground fighting was reported for the second day at Tien Phuoc, 10 miles south of the Que Son Valley. Viet Cong troops were trying to seize a hilltop stronghold overlooking the town, and militiamen defending the town have been reinforced.

In the Que Son Valley, South Vietnamese forces occupied positions on two hills at Fire Base Ross, but the North Vietnamese still control Ross and are entrenched in well fortified positions, field reports said.

North of the Saigon area, South Vietnamese forces pushing toward the enemy held Quan Loi airfield east of An Loc clashed with an estimated 400 North Vietnamese and claimed 111 of them were killed, but only 14 weapons were reported captured. Six South Vietnamese were killed and 37 were wounded, the Saigon command said.

Oyster Spawning Related To Moon?

BODEGA BAY, Calif. (AP) — Do oysters spawn according to the phases of the moon?

Dr. Victor Loosanoff of the University of the Pacific at Stockton is here to find out, using laboratory equipment at the UPO marine biology station at nearby Cillon Beach.

Loosanoff, a marine biologist for 40 years, has a National Science Foundation grant for the project which he hopes to complete next year.

It has been suspected, but not proved, he says, that oyster spawning is related to the moon.

"It has been largely superficial evidence that I challenge because it is based on very few samples, taken at irregular intervals and not significant statistically," Loosanoff said.

He will be using materials collected from oyster-producing waters on the East Coast over a 25-year period. He was for many years director of the U.S. Marine Biological Laboratory at Milford, Conn., and until 1965 was senior scientist with the U.S. Bureau of Fisheries.

Local oysters won't do, he says. Most are imported from Japan as seeds. "They grow remarkably well in this environment, but seldom spawn and thus cannot be used in my current research."

Determining whether the moon has anything to do with the spawning of oysters is important, he said, "because this project may allow us to predict when a new generation of oysters will appear in nature. We could then take all the necessary measures to provide a proper environment, and this would help solve the practical problem of feeding future generations by providing more food from the seas."

Hunt Missing Tutor, Plane

MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — Members of the Civil Air Patrol were searching a four-state area today for an Arkansas schoolteacher who disappeared on a solo flight between Searcy, Ark., and Davenport, Iowa.

"We will certainly continue operations until he's found," Sgt. Brian Van Steybroeck, of the CAP's ground rescue squad at Moline, said Sunday, W. C. Callaway, a schoolteacher from Bald Knob, Ark., left Searcy Friday afternoon, piloting a friend's Cessna 172. He was reported missing Friday night.

Maj. Stephen Kujawa, information director for the Illinois CAP, said in Chicago that 200 CAP members operating on the ground and in the air combed the area from Quincy north to Moline Sunday. He said today's search would be concentrated between Quincy and East St. Louis.

Callaway had flown only five hours in the last 2½ years, according to Joseph De Baker, coordinating the CAP rescue effort based in Moline.

"His proficiency was poor for a long cross country flight, and he was not qualified for night flying," De Baker said. "He could not fly by instrument and did not file a flight plan."

Rescue teams from Chicago, Moline, Decatur, Springfield and Alton were participating in the search which also covered Arkansas, Iowa and Missouri.

Blue Bird Death Toll

MONTREAL (AP) — The death toll from the fire at the Blue Bird night club climbed to 37 Sunday and police said they were holding one man and searching for two others in connection with the holocaust.

The 37th victim was Elizabeth Montgomery, 25, of Waterloo, Ont., who died Sunday night in a hospital. Her twin, Edward, was reported in poor condition, a hospital spokesman said.

The blaze started late Friday night at the entrance to the second-story club, and police believe about a gallon of gasoline was poured on the stairs to start the fire. Police said three men had been evicted from the club earlier in the evening. They were holding Gilles Eccles, 24, on a coroner's warrant and were searching for Marc Boutin, 24, and James O'Brien, 22, all of Montreal.

Car Deaths Pace Carnage In State

By The Associated Press

Violent deaths in Texas continued to mount as the three-day Labor Day weekend moved into its final 24 hours today.

The toll resulted from all types of violence as Texans jammed highways, lakes, streams and parks.

Motor vehicle deaths led the carnage, with the reaching at least 20 by midnight Sunday, but occasional shootings and stabbings added to the count.

Three were shot to death, and a stabbing and a beating took one life each, leaving the death count at 25.

The Associated Press began the grim watch at 6 p.m. Friday and planned to continue until midnight tonight.

Among the deaths recently reported:

Cynthia Ann Jones, 6, of Sweetwater was killed Sunday when she was struck by a car driven by a Sweetwater resident. The accident occurred west of Sweetwater in front of the child's home.

Early today, motor vehicle deaths led the carnage, with the total reaching at least 21, but occasional shootings and stabbings added to the count.

Four were shot to death, and a stabbing and a beating took one life each, leaving the death count at 27.

The bidding has proceeded:

Pass Pass 1 ♠ Dble.
Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—This is a close choice between two no trump and three clubs, but our own preference is three clubs. Two no trump appears to be a slightly drastic bid with only 18 points. If partner makes any love over your raise to three clubs, you are then in strategic position to contract for game.

Q. 2 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK752 ♥KJ83 ♦K53 ♣2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1NT Dble.
Pass 2 ♥ Pass Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—The partner has promised no great strength, he nevertheless is presumed to have an evenly balanced hand. You, therefore, have splendid defense against the adverse contract, and a penalty double is recommended.

Q. 3 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

The bidding has proceeded:

3 ♠ Pass 4 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Pass. You have some support for hearts; partner may have none whatever for spades. He knows that you consider your hand to use only with spades as trump; nevertheless, he has chosen to bid four hearts. Without information to the contrary it is our practice to assume that partner knows what he is doing.

The bidding has proceeded:

What do you bid now?

The bidding has proceeded:

2 ♥ 2 ♠ ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Four hearts. You must not place any further strain on partner. Your hand has a valuation of about 12 points. Since partner has opened and made a free raise, he can hardly have less than 15.

Q. 6 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J632 ♥A9753 ♦J2 ♣Q6
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♦ Dble. ?

What do you bid?
A.—An immediate bid of one heart is recommended. If you choose to pass, the bidding may become too involved for you to get into the auction subsequently.

Q. 7 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A1074 ♥65 ♦KQJ5 ♣A92
The bidding has proceeded:

What do you bid now?
A.—Make up your mind to bid a slam. The best bet is to bid three diamonds temporarily, just to allow for the case in which partner happens to have four of that suit. If he supports it, bid a slam in diamonds. If not, bid a slam for him in no trump.

No Doubt About Party's Leader

While there was no hint of tension in the renomination of Richard Nixon by the Republican National Convention, the event was not without some drama. Particularly so for Nixon himself, the object of such orchestrated adoration this time around.

The President must have basked with complete satisfaction in the event. It was the fifth time his party has nominated him for either president or vice president, but this time was different. This time the party belonged to lock, stock and barrel to Nixon; that was never true before.

And the party which Nixon so completely commands today has departed from accepted views it held only four years ago. Let alone eight or 12 or 16 or 20 years ago. These changes reflect the accomplishments and actions of the Nixon administration, most dramatically in foreign affairs. The rhetoric of the cold war is silent now, as is bombast for balanced budgets.

Richard Nixon enters the campaign for his re-election as undisputed (or scarcely so) head of a party united as much by its sensing of victory to come as by ideology. He has tremendous assets at his disposal, ranging from the power of the presidency itself to command attention to a war chest full of Republican and not a few Democratic dollars.

His triumph is near complete. The party which, while giving him its highest honors, never before completely submitted to Nixon's leadership now does so. And if the polls of August are valid in November, the nation which once denied him the presidency and four years ago elected him with

Not Hard For These 7,000

The oldest living American is Charlie Smith of Bartow, Fla., Social Security Administration records indicate.

He is one of some 7,000 Americans who have passed the 100-year mark. Last year, only 5,200 were listed.

Smith was born July 4, 1842. His age was documented in 1884 when he was sold as a slave to a Texas rancher. He was 21 when Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation. He retired at age 114 when his employer said Charlie was getting too old to climb trees. So he has opened up a a minority of the votes is about to endorse his continued stay in the White House overwhelmingly.

His renomination is a proud moment for Richard Nixon, and justifiably so. He is atop a pinnacle, and it's been a long and painful climb. Now there remains one final test before he can claim it all. The campaign now begins; it offers voters as clear a choice between candidates, parties and philosophies as they have ever had.

candy shop in Bartow. "I just try to keep busy, stay healthy and do what the Lord wants me to."

Smith's longevity was recorded along with the others who've hit the 100 plateau to search for a secret of long life. The American Medical Association's analysis is that very old age comes from an easy-going disposition, quick sense of humor, and a desire to keep active — mentally and physically. Church-going was a common activity. Diet didn't appear to mean much, though there were no hard drinkers. There were a few serious smokers (one fellow smokes 18 cigars a day but he doesn't inhale).

Revolutionary Idea

Around The Rim

Don Cooper

Saturday morning television is usually devoted to shows aimed primarily at children. There are cartoon-adventure shows such as "Superman," "Underdog," "Johnny Quest" and other similar fare.

Also popular on Saturday morning television is "American Bandstand" and the old "Monkees" re-runs.

Last year, a popular Saturday morning show was "Something Else."

"SOMETHING ELSE" featured impressionist-comedian John Byner. Byner served as host of the show which also featured the Action-Faction Dancers and assorted guests — usually popular recording stars. "Something Else" was sponsored by "milk."

Nothing else, just "milk." The plain, white liquid that comes from cows. Not Borden's, or Midwest, or Foremost, or any other brand-name; just plain, everyday, ordinary "milk."

This startlingly new form of television advertising could expand to other shows in the medium. Viewers would see their favorite shows sponsored by single-name products.

The announcer would come onto the air and say, "Tonight, the 'Flip Wilson Show' is brought to you by CARS! Or perhaps, 'Brought to you by the makers of FOOD — the 'Mary Tyler Moore Show.'"

"Toilet paper brings you 'All In The Family.'"

"Today's NFL game between the Kansas City Chiefs and the Oakland Raiders is brought to you by Shaving Cream . . ."

THE LATE-NIGHT talks shows or the late movies would be sponsored by dog food, beer, deodorant, vacuum cleaner and station break.

Noting the success of single-name sponsorship of television programs, the political brains would naturally jump on the bandwagon. A televised Presidential news conference would feature questions on Inflation, War, Poverty and Race. No distinction would be made about what, where, when, why or whos.

"Mr. President," a reporter would ask, "What are you going to do about inflation?"

"Yes," the President would reply. Giant billboards across the country would urge Americans to get out and "Vote." Who to vote for — or ever what to vote for — would not be clear; however, the citizens would be urged to vote.

Probably, the milk syndrome is typical of the conformity that is prevalent in the United States. Suburbs in New England look like suburbs in California. Slums in Chicago look like slums in St. Louis.

EVEN SPORTS arenas are beginning to look alike. Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh is startlingly similar to Riverfront Stadium in Cincinnati. Texas Stadium, home of the Dallas Cowboys, looks like an Astro-dome with part of its roof missing.

Politically, there are differences between conservatives and liberals; however, the Milk Syndrome is still very pronounced within the political camp.

Sen. McGovern is ideologically similar to Sen. Fulbright. Sen. Brooke and Sen. Kennedy are politically alike.

There is virtually no political difference between Lester Maddox and Gov. Wallace. The late J. Edgar Hoover and Gov. Reagan were politically alike.

The only person in the United States political circles who apparently is not a victim of the Milk Syndrome is Spiro Agnew.

He is different than everyone else

Direction Spelled Out

David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The youth of the country who are voting for the first time include a large number who are students of Political Science and many others who know politics only from observations in their communities.

THIS YEAR they can learn much about the issues by examining carefully the platforms of each of the major parties. The Republicans, for example, have published their program in a brochure with 73 pages of text. The Democrats have one which is only slightly longer. In both instances the documents were worked on by committees for several weeks before being submitted to the national conventions.

To read these booklets is to educate oneself on the important questions that confront the American government at home and abroad. There are no discussions of personalities in them. The statements deal rather with the issues themselves in the American presidential contest.

A most interesting chapter in the Republican platform is the story of the new direction of America's foreign policy and its meaning in connection with the future of international relations. One section says:

"Not all consequences of our new foreign policy are yet visible precisely because one of its great purposes is to anticipate crises and avoid them rather than merely respond. Its full impact will be realized over many years, but already there are vivid manifestations of its success:

"BEFORE THIS administration, a presidential visit to Peking would have been unthinkable. Yet our President has gone there to open a candid airing of differences so that they will not lead some day to war. All over the world tensions have eased as, after a generation of hostility, the strongest of nations and the most populous of nations have started discoursing again.

"During the 1960's, presidential visits to Moscow were twice arranged and twice cancelled. Now our President has conferred, in the Soviet Union, with Soviet leaders, and has hammered out agreements to make this world a much safer place. Our President's quest for peace has taken him to 20 other countries, including precedent-shattering visits to Rumania, Yugoslavia and Poland.

"Around the globe America's alliances have been renewed and strengthened. A new spirit of partnership shows results in our NATO partners' expenditures for the common defense — up by some $2 billion in two years.

"Historians may well regard these years as a golden age of American diplomacy. Never before has our country negotiated with so many nations on so wide a range of subjects — and never with greater success."

Every aspect of national and international policy is dealt with in detail in the Republican platform. The detail in the Republican platform. The young voter can learn what his country is doing and what are the problems of government that lie ahead, both domestic and foreign. Explanations are given, for instance, about the efforts to curb inflation and what has been accomplished through wage and price controls. There is, of course, no encouragement for the Marxist line of thought, as the platform says bluntly:

"WE AFFIRM our support for the basic principles of capitalism which underlie the private enterprise system of the United States . . . It is our conviction that government of itself cannot produce the benefits to individuals that flow from our unique combination of labor, management and capital."

The document tells the story of America's endeavors to expand trade opportunities and related jobs for American workers by negotiating new trade arrangements. It calls attention to the agreement with the Soviet Union under which a minimum of $750 million worth of grain will be bought by Russia from this country in the next three years — "the largest long-term commercial trade purchase agreement ever made between two nations."

The platform is full of interesting information not merely for the young but for the older citizens. By having it available in a convenient pamphlet form, an opportunity is afforded really to learn something about the enormous problems that confront the national government. It may be a document related to a political party and an election, but it also happens to be a small book describing briefly and in simple terms what the tasks of a President and Congress are nowadays.

Campaign Fodder

John Cuniff

By MICHAEL O'CONNOR

(Substituting for John Cuniff)

WASHINGTON — No single group within the business community is happier to see an election year roll around than the nation's commercial printers.

For, as wedding announcements are bread and butter, the economic cake is the bumper sticker.

This year, with President Nixon and Sen. George McGovern, the printers have never had it so good.

Bumper strips have long since evolved from the pedestrian days of simple sloganeering when a contract could be tied up for printing the legend: "Glutz in 1972."

The staple bumper stickers still have some of this name identification quality. Mr. Nixon's campaign forces expect to distribute a large number of stickers which state simply: "Re-elect the President."

McGovern's forces have followed suit with their most widely distributed item. It is a single word strip which reads (if you haven't guessed): "McGovern."

There are other catchier ones which, according to some of my ad agency friends, are designed to be "singularly subjective." In other words, you read the bumper strip and must have a second thought to understand its full meaning. The following are a few examples noted in Washington:

A play on one of the nation's most popular newspaper comic panels which reads: "Don't let George do it."

An historical reference to one of humorist Will Rogers' best lines — "I never met a man I didn't like." The newer version is: "Will Rogers never met George McGovern."

For the military-minded person who has doubts about the qualifications of McGovern's running mate there is one: "Would you want a Sargent to be commander in chief?" Democrats, so far, seem to be the target for the most critical stickers. But Republicans are fair game.

One anti-Nixon sticker now circulating proclaims: "A Milhous is not a home."

Another parodies the once popular headline style of Variety, a show business publication which created much of its reputation through zany and contrived capitalization of words. That offering is:

"Hix Nix Nix." It means "hix" (or rural people) "nix" (don't like) guess who.

The advertising crowd is letting out several extra notches with its idea men to create political interest. Another popular pro-McGovern entry for people concerned about organized labor opposition goes like this:

"Don't be a Meany — vote McGovern."

Another one, reportedly very popular among lobbyists for the lumber industry here:

"You measure wood by the strength of the grain — elect Nixon."

Guilt, Not Badness, The Test

Investigating the forgery of several checks, police uncovered enough evidence to bring a corporation official to trial. But they also discovered something else: he had been living with another man's wife.

COULD THIS evidence be used against him in court? The judge said no, because it could easily turn the defendant into a "bad guy" in the minds of the jurors.

"The deep tendency of human nature," warned the judge, "is to punish not because (the defendant) is guilty but because he is a bad man and may as well be condemned now that he is caught."

THIS IS why evidence of bad character usually cannot be used against the defendant in a criminal trial. Unless it has a direct bearing on the issues in the case, it is considered too inflammatory to be trusted.

On the other hand, if the defendant tries to prove that his character is good, that "opens the door" to rebuttal by the prosecution. For example:

A WOMAN was accused of the fatal shooting of her husband. During the trial, she took the witness stand and swore she had always been a loyal wife to the deceased.

But two men were promptly summoned by the prosecution to give testimony about her extramarital escapades. The court held that their evidence was admissible, since she had already opened the subject by claiming to be virtuous.

WHAT ABOUT proof by the defendant that his victim was a "bad guy?" In a murder case, the defendant tried to bring in evidence that the man he had allegedly killed was a rogue and a troublemaker. He said he wanted to prove that the man's death was no great loss.

BUT THE court refused to allow this evidence, because it had nothing to do with the question of guilt or innocence.

"It is just as serious in the eyes of the law," said the court, "to murder a bad man as a good man."

Hal Boyle

By TOM HORTON

(Substituting for Hal Boyle)

I have been hung up on telephone etiquette of late, despite, or because of, the fact that telephone etiquette is something of which I am totally devoid.

Talking on the telephone is something I have never been much good at, even though I chose a profession which demands that a great deal of business be conducted over the telephone. I think too slowly to be effective in telephonic give and take, and I am especially reluctant to make decisions over the telephone because I like to look into the eyes of the man or woman involved before I come to any decision which affects both of us.

It all boils down to the fact that I have never felt comfortable talking on the telephone, even as a teenager, an age when telephone addiction traditionally begins.

At 15 I lost one of my very best girl friends because I refused to call her every night after dinner and talk on the telephone until her father made her get off the phone and go to bed, which all the other steadies around town were doing. Talking on the telephone all night, I mean.

She finally left me, refusing to wait until I was 16 and could drive my father's car over to her house every night after dinner and talk to her in person. I should feel fortunate that all I lost was a girl friend. If I had gone into sales, I would be losing accounts right and left because of my poor telephone skills.

I had forgotten how terrible my telephone etiquette is until not long ago when I was compelled to attend a one-hour seminar on this very same subject. Everything I do, from the way I answer the telephone to the way I say goodbye, is wrong, according to a representative of Ma Bell.

When my telephone rings, it is my habit to answer it by reciting my last name, briskly.

(My last name isn't Briskly. That's just the way I recite it when answering my telephone.) This is an awful telephone etiquette. I should answer my telephone by reciting my first and last name, or at least pre-facing my last name with a "Mr.," and since I am with a company with more than one department, I should also answer with the name of my department. All of this should be done clearly and cheerfully, not brisly.

The only thing worse than the way I answer my telephone is the way I say goodbye. I don't. For some reason — basic shyness I guess — I have never been able to bring myself to end a business conversation on the telephone with a mushy "goodby." And I shudder at people, especially men, who end their telephone conversations with a spirited "by-by now."

Billy Graham

Jesus said, "Ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake." (Matthew 24:9) Christians are accepted in our society, in fact, I believe for the most part they are admired. Why did Jesus say we should be hated. If a thing is right and true, should it be hated by the majority of people?

G.O.

Someone has said that the Gospel is most relevant when most of the people are offended by it. We all like to be accepted by our peers, but Jesus taught that the Gospel with its strong demands for personal discipline, would be rejected by the segment of the world which seeks popularity and acceptance.

Christ's disciples were not accepted by their peers, and they were looked upon as odd, abnormal, and perhaps fanatical. Eleven of the 12 were martyred, and it looked as though Christianity as taught by Christ would fade out in a generation.

But like leaven in a loaf, it began to grow and flourish, and with the missionary work of St. Paul, much of the world was caught up in the magnetism of the Gospel, and in a sense the "world was turned upside down." But, even so, Christians were hated and despised people. Mainly perhaps, because Christ's demands went against the popular philosophy of the day. Paul said it best: "But we preach Christ, unto the Jews; stumbling block, and unto the Greeks foolishness."

It was a new, revolutionary, earth shaking concept, and still is. But it was and is, the manifestation of the power of God.

Troop Strength Deadline Rushed

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. troop withdrawals in August beat President Nixon's Sept. 1 deadline and reduced the total of U.S. forces by nearly 2,000 toward his Dec. 1 target, the U.S. Command announced today.

U.S. troop strength in Vietnam dropped by 600 men in the last week of August to a total of 37,100, the Command said. The target had been 39,000, and the President last week set 27,000 as the U.S. troop level by Dec. 1.

Another 100,000 U.S. servicemen are participating in the war effort from bases in Guam and Thailand and ships off the Vietnamese coast.

SINGLE MOTHERS IN LOS ANGELES

They Want To Live Their Own Lives

By CAROLYN COIL
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — Leaky faucets, wrinkled clothing, dirty dishes and two children who need attention often face Ginger Duffy when she comes home at night.

She lives in a small home in an older section of town where houses built in the '30s and '40s are sandwiched between apartment buildings.

TOUGH ON GINGER

Life isn't always easy for Ginger, a single mother with two children, Kenneth 10 and Kristin 4.

Unlike "Julia," the single mother Diahann Carroll portrayed on TV, she doesn't live in a modern luxury apartment, nor does she have a closetful of designer clothes.

There is no one always at hand to care for her children, and she does not have an understanding boss when she must be absent from work to care for a sick child.

As of last week she doesn't even have a job. Her employer told her she has been "phased out."

PRINCE CHARMING

But, Ginger doesn't want pity, nor is she sitting around waiting for "Prince Charming" to come along and take care of her and her children.

"I want to be what I am. To live my own way, to be a real person.

"The way the single parent is presented on TV is a cruel joke," says Ginger.

She speaks quietly and thoughtfully as she says she wants to be accepted as a valuable member of society and not looked down upon because she is a divorced mother.

"Being divorced with children is the worst of both possible worlds," she says.

DIVORCED

She has the stigma of being divorced and the burden of supporting and caring for her children.

"If I was divorced with no children, I would feel free, like any other single person," she says, brushing her long wavy brown hair from her face.

"They really do tie you down, no matter how much you love them," she adds. "But, I'm so proud I'm a mother and had children."

When Ginger needs help to cope with the single mother's special kind of problems, she doesn't go to her family, or her former husband. She turns to "Mama," a new group of single mothers who believe single motherhood can be viable.

ROTTEN MARRIAGE

"We want to develop and explore single motherhood as a rewarding life-style. We want women to see this as a positive alternative to a rotten marriage. We don't want it to seem the lesser of two evils," explains Ginger.

"We are a minority group," says Lisa Connolly, "and there are five million of us. Up to now, single motherhood has been looked on as a time between husbands."

However, 70 to 80 never married, divorced and widowed women who believe that their lives can be complete and fulfilling without husbands, belong to Mama. At meetings they discuss taking the management of their lives into their own hands.

"The whole picture has been getting yourself back in shape and getting a man," says Lisa, who is raising her daughter, Meghan, alone and likes it that way.

There are problems, she admits, but she is working them out for herself and not waiting for a man to appear to take them off her shoulders.

CHEERFUL NOTE

She says she had difficulty getting the lease signed on her apartment. But, later, she says her landlord complimented her on the care she was giving her home.

The four-bedroom apartment above a store in a business area was in need of paint, so Lisa painted it. And, she has placed dozens of flowering plants in pots on her windowsills, a cheerful note for passersby shopping in the area.

"Landlords always discriminate if you have children. Being divorced just compounds the problems," she says.

Helping each other find adequate housing in an area where they want to live and at a price they can afford to pay is only one goal of Mama.

Others include the elimination of discrimination members find when applying for credit or auto insurance.

When the single mother looks for a job, prospective employers look at them three times before hiring them, says Nancy Young.

$5,000 A YEAR

Employers, she says, expect a single mother to be absent more because she has to stay home when the children are sick.

"Employers are not flexible," she says. "A woman must expect to earn $5,000 a year less than a man doing the same job with the same education," says Lisa.

"If the mother becomes unemployed because of absences caused by caring for her children," says Nancy Young, "the unemployment people say she is not a responsible worker."

She says she spends $200 a month for child care and can't find a good baby sitter.

NO MALE IMAGE

"It's an incredible hassle. I need a place in the neighborhood that is secure," she says.

Ginger Duffy says the lack of a male image in the home has caused her a lot of personal concern.

"I think of myself in many ways as liberated, for lack of a better word. But, I still have many of the traditional beliefs that a man is as necessary in a child's life as a woman," she says.

"It is hard for me to imagine that a man would not want to spend time or money on his kids. It is a sad fact that some do not and I don't know what can be done about that."

$1 Million Hotel Fire

MT. MCKINLEY, Alaska (AP) — Fire roared through the main section of the old hotel at the base of North America's tallest peak late Sunday, with damage expected to run over $1 million.

No injuries were reported, and officials said a check of Mt. McKinley Hotel records which were removed when the alarm was sounded indicated all of the 300 vacationers and staff had gotten out safely.

A spokesman for the Air Force Rescue Coordination Center near Anchorage said firefighters from the National Park Service and the Healy Fire Department kept the blaze from spreading to nearby timber and preserved the power plant and dormitory for hotel employees.

Spokesmen for the National Park Service said the fire gutted the main 84-room section of the hotel erected in 1938, with heavy smoke and water damage to a 50-room wing added in 1969.

Crash Diet

Your Good Health

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A friend, being treated for angina pectoris was considered overweight. He was retired and not too active.

His doctor recommended that he go on a diet for one week only, drinking one quart of milk and one quart of fruit juice daily at two-hour intervals. Most of his fat was around the abdomen.

At the end of the week he had lost eight pounds and felt great.

What is your opinion of the diet? Would you recommend it? — M.

Well, the diet worked, didn't it? But no, I doubt if I would have recommended it.

Weight reduction does indeed benefit some (not necessarily all) angina sufferers, but if an angina patient is overweight, he should get rid of the excess poundage regardless of whether it makes him feel better right away. It will surely help in the long run.

The diet you describe is drastic, unbalanced and monotonous in my opinion. Weight loss can be accomplished with a more palatable diet which can be continued as long as necessary without sacrificing any needed types of nutrition.

The unbalanced nature of your friend's diet obviously is the reason why the doctor prescribed it for only a week.

Trying to read between the lines, I would hazard a guess that the doctor tried that method because he didn't have much faith in the patient's following a more reasonable diet. You can tell some people to start cutting down on their calories and they say "Yes, doctor" and go on eating the way they always have. In this case, maybe the doctor decided that if he laid down an absolutely rigid eating pattern, it might work. Well, evidently it did.

But I suspect that both he and I would have been better pleased if the patient would settle down into a diet that would keep excess weight off instead of whacking it off in crash fashion.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can diuretics cause your skin to become dry? I use artificial salt, but still have swelling if I don't take the diuretics.

Also, do they contain hormones, as I have had breast cancer? — Mrs. A.B.

The swelling is from too much fluid in your system; no, diuretics should not cause dryness of the skin. And no, they do not contain hormones.

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level that best suits your individual needs. For a copy, write to him, care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope.

DO I HAVE TO? — Single mother Ginger Duffy gently but firmly tells daughter Kristen and son Kenneth that it's time for bed. Between work and caring for her children, Ginger's day spreads out over 18 hours.

Schmitz Raps 2 Opponents

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — The American party nominee for President, Rep. John G. Schmitz, charged Friday night that both major party presidential candidates have "virtually committed our young men to war in the Middle East" yet talk of pulling out of Southeast Asia.

"Their position on that is phony from the word go," Schmitz said.

He spoke to a fund-raising dinner sponsored by the Conservative party of Kansas.

He charged "90 to 95 per cent of the technological knowhow of the military-industrial complex of the Soviet Union is coming from the United States and its allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO)."

"If there were no military-industrial complex in the Soviet Union, there would be no war machine in North Vietnam; and, if there were no war machine in North Vietnam, there would be no war in Vietnam. That is an issue we are going to hammer away with."

Mexican-Americans Ask: 'What's In It For Us?'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In this presidential election year, political leaders say they are hearing a common message from Mexican-Americans: "What's in it for us?"

Democrats and Republicans say they are heeding the message in their bids for vote-heavy California, which contains the nation's largest Mexican-American population. More than three million of the state's 20 million residents are Spanish-speaking or Spanish-surnamed.

Republicans say they may be able to lure a substantial number of votes from the traditionally Democratic Mexican-American barrios.

GOP WOOING Democrats say their strength may be cut but not because of Republican wooing.

Rumor Denied

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I have never seen in your column. I am a 38-year-old woman who was married for 10 years and bore two children. My husband died four years ago. Thank God I was equipped to take a high-paying position in order to support myself and children.

I am reasonably attractive, but am not the type who goes to bars alone looking for male companionship. I've dated as soon as a man learns that I am not so sex-starved that he can head for a motel on the second date, he looks for hungrier women.

My problem: Because I am not actively looking for a man, and have refused to be rushed into bed by all the so-called eligible bachelors who've dated me, the rumor is rampant that I prefer women. (This was told to me by two friends, one woman and the other a man.)

Of course, it's a lie, but I have become so self-conscious about it that I don't dare call a single woman and suggest we have dinner or go to a movie together. The fact that I was married and bore two children doesn't seem to matter. The rumor, I'm told persists.

Now, you're supposed to be a wise woman, Abby. How does an innocent victim deny such a rumor? PERSECUTED DEAR PERSECUTED: The rumor may not be as rampant as you were led to believe it is. I would question the motives of one who would bring such a rumor to my attention. (Could a male be attempting to persuade you to "prove" the rumor false?) Or could a woman, who herself preferred women, be "testing" you? Don't refrain from socializing with women. Forget the rumor, and continue to behave as you always have.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a husband who sleeps with a smile on his face? CURIOUS IN ARLINGTON DEAR CURIOUS: He could be lucky he doesn't TALK in his sleep.

DEAR ABBY: I have a bone to pick with you! Last April my wife wrote to you, asking if she should accompany me to my 20th high school graduation reunion. She told you that she didn't come from my hometown, and wouldn't know a soul there.

You advised her as follows: "Go anyway! Let your husband enjoy himself reminiscing with old friends. You'll find plenty of other mates who won't know a soul either."

Well, she took your advice, and she had a better time than I did. In fact, when it came time to go home, I had to practically drag her away from "Red," the best looking guy in the class, who majored in football and girls. His wife decided not to come because she wouldn't know a soul either! Now my wife is looking forward to the next class reunion. Thanks for complicating my life.

CLASS OF '52 DEAR CLASS: And thanks for answering (in advance) a question I am asked by hundreds every year. "Should I accompany my mate to his class reunion? I won't know a soul there."

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Two HCJC Coeds Given Scholarships

Two coeds at Howard County Junior College have been named recipients of scholarships to aid them with their college education during the 1972-1973 school year.

Miss Alice Faye Aldridge, a freshman at Howard County Junior College, is the third recipient to receive the Dawson DeViney Memorial Scholarship. Previous recipients were Billy Ray Franklin and Belinda Gonzales.

Miss Aldridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Aldridge, 904 North Gregg, is a recent graduate of Big Spring High School. She is enrolled as a freshman at HCJC studying toward an Associate degree in data processing.

The scholarship fund was established in June 1971 to honor the memory of Dr. Dawson DeViney. Dr. DeViney was administrative dean of Howard County Junior College at the time of his death. His wife, the former Larue Layton, is a teacher in the local schools, and their sons are Pat DeViney, an architect in Dallas; and Don DeViney, a teacher in Del Rio.

Miss Teresa Lynn Griffin has been selected as the first recipient of the Fred K. Price Memorial Scholarship.

This scholarship fund was established in May 1972 to honor the memory of Fred K. Price

MISS ALICE F. ALDRIDGE

MISS TERESA L. GRIFFIN

Basic eligibility requirements of a recipient are moral fitness, a serious desire for advanced education and objective planning conference with the guidance staff of the college, potential to achieve as evidenced by scholastic standing of acceptable grades, and be registered as a full time student at Howard County Junior College.

Miss Griffin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack M. Griffin of 1320 Stadium. She is beginning her Sophomore year at HCJC where she is head cheerleader, treasurer of the Student Senate, member of the BSU and the volleyball team. After graduating from HCJC in May 1973, she plans to transfer to Sam Houston State College to work for her Bachelor's degree with a major in physical education. Teresa is a 1971 graduate of Big Spring High School.

Bible Fund Receives Donation

Members of Coahoma Past Matrons Club agreed to contribute to the Big Spring High School Bible Fund, at a meeting Saturday morning at Coker's Restaurant.

Mrs. Tom Earber presided, and it was announced that Mrs. Helen Humphries of El Campo sent a contribution to the club for members to use to benefit Coahoma Chapter 499, Order of Eastern Star. A decision concerning use of the money will be made at the club's Oct. 7 meeting, place to be announced.

Mrs. Norman Read outlined highlights of her recent trip to seven countries of the Holy Land and led a discussion period for the women.

Tables for the breakfast meeting were covered with white cloths and centered with arrangements of chrysanthemums in shades of gold and orange, placed in green ceramic containers, and highlighted with grapes. Single chrysanthemums were placed randomly on the tables, and each place was marked with individual favors for each member from Mrs. Read's trip.

Hostesses for the breakfast were Mrs. E. J. Engle, and Mrs. Bert Shive. Invocation was by Mrs. Melvyn Tindol, and Mrs. J. L. Enloe of Waco was a guest.

Piano Teachers Study Technique

Mrs. A. E. Hyden, Mrs. Bob Simpson and Harlen Thornton, Big Spring piano teachers, have enrolled in a Piano Musicianship Pedagogy series of classes offered through the National Piano Foundation, Chicago, Ill. (Climician Nancy Winford of Odessa is teaching the course which is based on new techniques in group piano instruction. Included will be teaching the interrelated subjects of sightreading, transposition, ear-training, repertoire, harmony and keyboard improvisation, and is intended to give piano students a broad musical understanding and develop literacy and independence.

The educational programs of the National Piano Foundation are under the direction of Dr. Robert Pace, educator and author.

Women's Studies Popular In Ohio

The women's lib movement is more than a fancy, an assistant professor of English at Ohio State University found. Prof. Mildred B. Munday says response was great to a course she is teaching that got little advance publicity. Enrollment was over-subscribed. The title of the course: "Women in Literature: Images, Models and Stereotypes."

Prof. Munday says literature is something like a Dow-Jones indicator of cultural trends. "Rather than creating social movements," she said, "literature follows and reflects them."

Community Concert Ticket Sales Start

About 30 women attended a coffee for team captains during the current year, and these sales will be conducted until Sept. 18.

Following the renewal drive, campaign headquarters for new buyers will be set up at Hemphill-Wells from Sept. 18-23. The station will be staffed by Mrs. H. M. Jarratt, membership chairman; and Mrs. Sue Laird, New York community concert representative.

Other officers and chairmen for the association are Mrs. Jarratt, first vice president; Mrs. Kionka, second vice president and membership co-chairman; Mrs. Dan Shockey, third vice president; Mrs. Carl Bradley, treasurer; Mrs. Richard Shook, secretary; Mr. and Mrs. Dan Shockey, publicity; and Bill Bradley, dinner chairman.

Decorations for Friday's coffee were done in turquoise and green. A turquoise cloth covered the serving table which was centered with an arrangement of turquoise and white summer flowers.

Fashion Hints For Little Miss

Who is the most fashion-conscious miss in the family? The youngster who hasn't hit her teens yet. She feels left out if she doesn't have the new classics that are smoothing out the fashion picture.

It's a mistake to believe that little girls do not react negatively to hand-me-downs and positively to new, swinging clothing. Well-styled and carefully cut clothing shapes pre-teen thinking. This fall and winter, American-made coats, suits and pantsuits will send the youngsters out on the school and social scene with a brighter outlook.

Fake furs are wonderful pets. Warm and lightweight, they are often completely washable — right down to the pretend leather trim. Real or fake fur — and raccoon or one of the warm piles line a hood or shape a new, larger collar.

R. E. McClures Announce Birth

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. McClure, No. 9 April, announce the birth of a son, Christopher Todd, at 3:50 a.m., Sept. 4 in Medical Center Memorial Hospital. The infant weighed 6 pounds, 6 ounces. The McClures have two other children, Lisa Marie, 9, and Nancy Ann, 6.

Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Eck McClure, Andrews Highway and maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Scolio of Brooklyn, N.Y.

about two weeks ago for an 18 month assignment in Africa. His wife and children will join him as soon as the infant is old enough to travel.

Haircut Policy

When two long-haired college students in Dunedin, New Zealand, were ordered to their teachers to get their hair cut, they did just that.

Bevan Boyle swapped his neck-length locks for a skinhead style, and Geoffrey Thompson settled for a Mohican cut.

Geoffrey also made $32 from classmates who bet he wouldn't do it.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I am forever helping someone move or clean out their store room or something — and I usually come home with most of the junk they throw out!

My latest crazy "find" was an old beat-up washing machine agitator. Now what in the world would anyone want with that dirty old thing you say? Well, I'll tell you . . .

I trotted my tired old number nines down to the local lumber yard and had them cut me a twelve-inch square of inexpensive plywood (any thickness is fine), and then brought it back home and set to work.

I glued it to the top of the agitator with a permanent bond glue (a glue that won't come undone with a sledge hammer) and let it dry from 24 to 48 hours.

Then I decorated the top with some tiny tile pieces. (I could have used some adhesive-backed paper.) The bottom part I antiqued gold and put some on the sides of the top too.

If this isn't the cutest chair-side cigarette-coffee table ever! Everyone who sees it just has to comment. Quite a conversation piece, I'd say. . . . Your fan

Dear Heloise:

I just bought myself a long hostess gown for entertaining and needed a long half slip in a hurry.

I had been given a long night gown (which I don't wear), with an elastic waistband. I cut off the top part — saving it for something later — and had a long half slip.

My dress was blue, so I dyed the gown-slip to match. It really is beautiful.

I never thought I could improvise on anything. So it really boosted my morale to have thought of this. . . . Mrs. John Stanac

Dear Heloise:

Some time ago I broke a fingernail just below the quick line. The nail can be rather painful and somewhat of a problem until it grows out long enough to be cut off.

I found a good temporary fix for this — that new pink hair set tape. Just take a little piece of the tape and put over the break and tuck around the corner of the nail, if possible.

It blends with the nail color, stays on a long time, and can be polished over.

Even my husband used it on a broken nail recently. . . . L.D.

This column is written for you . . . the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise in care of the Big Spring Herald. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

A LOVELIER YOU
Gracefulness Should Have Everyday Use

By MARY SUE MILLER

There is a misconception in some quarters about gracefulness. Many people think of it as a ballet school affair — a bit too posy, or fignical for daily life.

Nothing could be farther from the truth. The graceful action is doing what comes naturally. The awkward movement is the unnatural one, both contrived and purposeless. What's more, awkwardness leads to fatigue, muscle strain and figure bulges, simply because it works against nature.

If you aren't sold on the idea, try this experiment: Throw a matchbook on the floor then pick it up. How did you retrieve it? By flopping over or plopping down? Either way you were off the natural course. And had you been able to glimpse your back in a mirror, you would never forget the gaucherie.

Now try this pick-up: Approach the matchbook from the side, not head on. Then, centering your weight on the balls of the feet and with the feet a pace apart, slowly bend your knees until you can easily grasp the matchbook; rise at a slow, even tempo. Throughout hold the head and back erect.

In the technique there is neither awkwardness nor strain. For the knees are used as levers, a job for which they were designed. Of course, to perform with ease, the knees must be limber and the best exercise for limbering is the pick-up action.

AGELESS BEAUTY
Some women age before their time; some retain their youthful beauty and charm. Why? The secrets of non-stop attractiveness are revealed in "Beauty Knows No Age." Advice covers ways to a youthful figure, skin and hair; to flattering makeup, hairstyles and fashions. For your copy write to Mary Sue Miller in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin.
