Renewing his demand that Nixon meet him in public debate, McGovern told United Press International editors the United States has never "witnessed official corruption as wide or as deep as the mess in Washington right now."

McGovern's wife, Eleanor, and vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver had opened the latest offensive on the issue of alleged corruption Sunday. But

Shriver said most people have been "bruised too much" to

McGovern said evidence of corruption include "a campaign contribution buying a billion-dollar antitrust settlement," leaks on the Soviet wheat deal to grain exporters . and the $10-million Nixon campaign fund whose donors have not been disclosed.

Shriver told labor union leaders in Minneapolis today that McGovern is no "radical on amnesty and abortion."

He said if Nixon remains in office all wage settlements will be dictated in Washington as the Wage Board reviews con-

Meanwhile the White House contended today that the Democratic controlled Congress; when it acts on Nixon's proposed $250 billion spending ceiling, will in effect be voting on "whether there will be higher taxes next year."

The legislation for the ceiling has run into delays and opposition because of the sweeping power it would give the President to hold back funds appropriated by Congress for various publican congressional leaders this morning, his assistant for domestic policy, John D. Ehrlichmann, told newsmen the President sees the spending ceiling vote as "critically important.'

As Democrats continued to bring the Watergate affair into their speeches on corruption, Rep. Henry S. Sen. McGovern's wife was on national television where she called the Nixon administration "the most corrupt regime that we have had in recent American history," citing the break-in and alleged bugging at the Democratic party headquarters building as an example.

Mrs. McGovern appeared on 'NBC's "Meet the Press" Sunday, the first time the wife of a presidential candidate has done

She also said that her husband will soon announce a specific plan for ending the Vietnam war.

Shriver, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, was in Minneapolis where he acknowledged that the Watergate case and alleged Republican campaign fund irregularities had not become major issues in the minds of most voters.'

"We sort of have an emerging royalty of top bureaucrats and the people at the bottom feel incapable of changing what's going on at the top," he said. "So they're apathetic. They're very skeptical. They've been bruised too much," he caught unhurt by a neighbor who stood below. She is being cared for at a Department of Public Social Services home. Police said the woman, Joyce Denise Flood, told the manager of her apartment house that neither the baby's father nor she wanted the child. The manager, Harold Braggs, told officers he took the child to his first-floor apartment where he was having a party early Saturday because he heard the baby scream and found the mother trying to suffocate the child with a pillow. Officers said the woman followed him, snat-

Senate vote on a liberalized welfare reform plan was as sured today as Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., called up his proposal for debate.

The roll call, however, will not come until Tuesday or Wed-

Ribicoff offered his proposal as a substitute for a pending amendment which would provide for a test of all the various reform plans to deal with problems of welfare families. This procedure guaranteed that his substitute would get the first vote. In the end, however, the Senate is expected to resolve the controversy by deciding for a two-year test of the plans before anything substantive is

The test amendment first was offered Saturday by Sen'. Harry F. Byrd Jr., Ind.-Va.

However, today Byrd with-drew his proposal in favor of a slightly different test amendment sponsored by Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Del. Ribicoff's substitute is a liberalized version of President Nixon's Family Assistance Plan which passed the House last

It provides for a guaranteed annual income for welfare families on a national basis but fixes the payment level at $2,-600 for a family of four, $200 more than the Nixon proposal. It would provide subsidies for the working poor, as does the President's plan, but would give more fiscal relief to the states than Nixon offers.

"This is the moment of truth for welfare reform," said Ribicoff as he called up his substitute. "But I sense there is very little interest in the Senate or in the administration any longer in this issue."

Funds Dictate Improvements

The annual portion of revenue-sharing funds for the of Big Spring will be $378,804, according to the Texas Municipal League, in a report received today by City Manager Harry Nagel.

According to Nagel, the funds are issued retroactive to January 1. Including the portion due from the first of the year and a quarterly proration due for the last quarter of the City-s new fiscal year, Nagel calculates that Big Spring will receive a total of $661,500 for it's 1972-73 fiscal

A five-year program of capital improvements for the City is now in the final planning stage, announcements of which will be available as an amended budget is devised. Capital improvements were excluded from the City's fiscal budget approved last week, in anticipation of the federal monies. The Howard County government will receive annually $239,405, according to the League report.

Coahoma is scheduled for an $18,390 check

Other area counties and cities, according to the League, are scheduled for the following annual Borden Co., $18,749; Glasscock Co., $24,386;

Dawson Co., $195,744; Lamesa, $120,467; Martin Co., $78,975; Stanton, $21,822; Mitchell Co., $120,043; Loraine, $11,466; Colorado City, $60,055; Sterling Co., $20,193; Sterling City, $2,103. Revenue-'sharing will mean more than $80 million annually to the State government of Texas, quite an increase over the $46 million originally anticipated by the Texas Municipal League. The League had formerly expected a total of $202 million to be dispersed to Texas cities ad counties; but as the bill moved through the various committee of Congress, the portion was cut to $163 million, the League stated. According to Nagel, the League informed him in September that the City of Big Spring could expect annually $270,000 from the share plan.

Evidently, although the entire Texas portion was reduced, a combination of House and Senate amendments and proposals formed a compromise leaving Big Spring with a healthy $108,000 increase to retire at their highest pay level. Now this may all be perfectly legal in bureaucratic circles, but it smacks of favoritism and unfairness to the taxpaying public A glaring example of this practice came to light last week when Wesley G. Grapp, the former head of the Los Angeles office of the FBI, twice censured for violating bureau rules, was granted such a privilege.

Grapp's retirement came after he was ordered reduced in grade from GS-18 to GS-13, reduced in pay by some $12,000 a year, suspended from duty for 30 days without pay, demoted to special agent and transferred. The salary reduction, suspension and transfer were withdrawn when he requested retirement.

The same type of procedure has been used recently when high military officers have come under fire and consequently been demoted. Instead of either requiring these men to accept the demotion or retire at the demoted pay level, the government apparently has found it more expedient to let them retire at their old pay level.

What Stein doesn't seem to understand is that

It is obvious that people in public and military service should have retirement benefits, and perhaps these earned benefits should extend to those who are being demoted. But a person who opts for retirement after he has been demoted should do so at his new pay level. If by chance his demotion is unjustified, there are legal provisions to protect, his position. Otherwise the taxpayer, not the demoted one, draws the penalty.

Election year just makes Stein's job seem tougher.

My Answer

BILLY GRAHAM

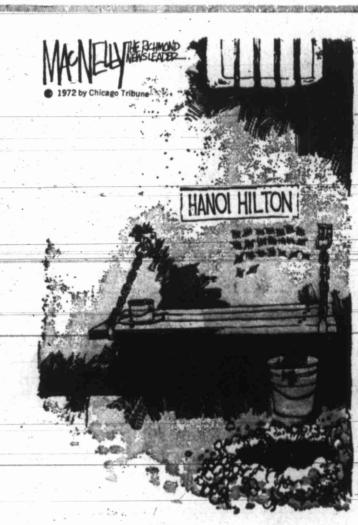

I have heard you talk on sex, and you seem to be at odds with modern thought on this subject. You will admit that man is of the animal kingdom, and if he is how can he be both animal and spiritual? A good marriage doesn't obviate animalistic, sexual activity, does it? I will be surprised if you answer this in your column. But there is no harm trying.

While man is classified as an "animal" by biologists, in the Biblical account of creation only man was created in the "image of God." The animals were created on the fifth day, and after that, God said, "Let us make man in our image, after our likeness . . . So God created man in his own image." Genesis 1:26, 27.

It is apparent that you think "sex is sinful. The Bible does not teach this at all. God created them "male and female," and He ordained sex to be enjoyed within the context of marriage and fidelity. The eating of the fruit of the tree was not Adam and Eve engaging in sex. It was an act of disobedience to God, a demonstration of independence, and a show of wilfulness on the part of the first pair.

The Old Testament is clear that the Lord God smiled upon sex within the context of marriage, but frowned outside of marriage.) Extra-marital sex was and is a device of Satan to corrupt one of the most beautiful gifts God ever gave mankind. The sex freedom advocates, priding themselves in a novel concept, little realize that their rationalizations are as old as sin. Solomon said, "There is nothing new under the sun," and he should know. Sex, twisted and perupon fornication and adultery. (Sex verted, still brings guilt. But left as God made it, it is beautiful.

Vicious Competition

John Cunniff

David Lawrence

WASHINGTON - At last a committee of Congress has taken a step to stop-Americans from dealing with the enemies of the United States in the midst of a war. The House Internal Security Committee has approved a bill which would prohibit any citizen of this country from traveling to nations engaged in armed conflict with the United States unless authorized by the President after he had determined whether the trip was in the national interest, Violators would be subject to 10 years in prison, a $10,000 fine, or both.

THE ACTION by the committee, which could be followed soon by passage in the House and Senate, is aimed at those who have been in communication with officials in North Vietnam and who have been told by their friends or misguided advisors that it is proper to go there. Unquestionaly, North Vietnam has used innocent persons as instruments for its propaganda and has confinced some members of the families of prisoners of war that there was nothing improper about their trips.

Richard H. Ichord (D-Mo.), who is chairman of the House committee, has expressed the hope that passage of the bill would "stem the venomous flow of statements emanating from the mouths of American citizens on the soil of the enemy." While the measure is aimed at the activists in the antiwar groups, it could be an obstacle to further traveling to North Vietnam by relatives of prisoners of war. Visits of this kind might be made by citizens of neutral nations and by such organizations as the international Red Cross which have long had humanitarian missions as their objective.

THE HANOI government arranged for some relatives of prisoners to come to North Vietnam and secured statements which are filled with unwitting propaganda that the visiting individuals probably thought would do no harm but might secure the release of the prisoners. The communists, however, through their new agency, spread the comments throughout the world and quote Americans as criticizing their own government.

THE PROPAGANDA machine of the Communists, moreover, has had opportunities to use the names of prominent Americans who have visited there and openly condemned their own country. The effort to divide American public opinion by the use of propaganda has been going on for some time.

To denounce the United States while a prisoner under compulsion in Hanoi would be one thing. But some visitors have returned to America and continued their defense of North Vietnam with critical arguments.. It is surprising that Congress has not moved on this issue before.

IT IS guestionable whether all this will help the release of the prisoners when the negotiations at Paris are resumed in earnest. Hanoi has mistakenly assumed that the American people were swinging away from the administration and would not be willing to continue the war.

THERE IS confidence here that, once the election is over in this country, there will be a clearer view of Amerca's position in support of south vietnam than there is today. This, it is believed, will bring the influence of Peking and Moscow into the picture and during 1973 will force North Vietnam to end the war.

Through the years, comedy teams have appeared to experience the heights of popularity only to split up or just vanish. Probably the most popular comedy team today is the 'Laugh-In' combination of Rowan and Martin.

OTHER, COMEDY teams that are experiencing great popularity today are the husband-wife combo of Stiller and Meara, the "hard-rock comedy team" Cheech and Chong and Patchett and Tarses.

Two popular teams in the 1960s were Nichols and May and Allen and

In the 1940s and '50s, we had Martin and Lewis, Abbott and Costello and Burns and Allen. Earlier teams were the Marx Brothers, the Ritz Brothers, Thelma Todd and Zazu Pitts, the "Hellzapoppin'" duo of Olsen and Johnson and the Three Stooges.

My personal favorites were the lovable dimwits - Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy Laurel and Hardy just looked like a comedy team - the tall, thin Laurel played off against the shorter, fat Hardy.

Today, Laurel and Hardy are re-achieving great popularity. Although both men have been dead for several years, "Sons of the Desert" fan clubs, television and film festivals keep their slapstick antics before the public.

Perhaps one of the things that made L&H so popular — and their films so funny was the punctured dignity. Hardy was always extremely pompous - only to have things happen which neatly punctured his dignified

THE TWO were believable. Although stupid, Laurel and Hardy were never moronic. L&H could contrive to get themselves into ridiculous situations through their stupidity; however, every day businesses go bankrupt through someone's stupidity. So, the L&H problems could happen to anyone - the two merely exaggerated the problems.

One of the common tactics of Laurel and Hardy films was the reciprocal destruction. In this, the boys engaged in tit-for-tat action. Perhaps this is best illustrated in a short entitled "Big Business."

In this film, the two were Christmas tree salesmen in California in midsummer. After being turned down several times, L&H reached the house of James Finlayson, who figured films. Finlayson also refused to buy Suddenly, Laurel had an idea and he returned to Finlayson's door and asked him if he cared to order his tree for the NEXT Christmas.

An argument started between Laurel and Finlayson which drew in Hardy. Finlayson smashed Hardy's watch. Hardy calmly watched as his watch was smashed and when Finlayson looked at him triumphantly, Hardy carved up part of Finlayson's Hardy stood calmly as Finlayson then cut off his tie.

Then, Laurel pried the numbers off Finlayson's door.

When Hardy broke a window in Finlayson's house, Fin smashed a window in L&H's car. Laurel and Hardy then smashed the door to the house, so Finlayson ripped the door off their car and hurled it to the ground.

THE RECIPROCAL destruction continued until the house was a shambles and L&H were busily destroying the contents - Laurel pitches the glassware to Hardy who smashes them with a baseball bat. Meanwhile, Finlayson exploded the pair's car and is attempting to destroy all of the parts that are left. Finally, a cop intervened. Laurel started to whimper. Then Hardy and Finlayson start to cry. Then the three shake hands and make up. Laurel handed Finlayson a cigar as a peace-offering. Then L&H smiled slyly at each other and took off running as the cigar blew up in Finlayson's face.

The film was hilarious. reciprocal destruction was used time and time again in L&H routines as was the pie fight. In "Battle of the Century," the pair trigger a pie fight that ends up drawing 20-30 other people into the fight.

One of the things which made the Laurel and Hardy slapstick routines so funny was the lack of any physical pain involved. Unlike the Three Stooges hitting each other on the head with hammers or slapping each other in the face, the Laurel and Hardy's cream pie in the face didn't cause paine Laurel and Hardy bumbled their way into and out of messes for 20 years. Although every film was not a side-splitter, nearly every L&H film was amusing.

Although both Laurel and Hardy are dead, they remain alive as long as they are bringing laughter into the lives of others. An L&H film draws na, Spain, or Paris, France, as well as in Paris, Tex., or Big Spring.

There are existing prohibitions on U.S. citizens receiving a United States passport to travel in countries considered enemies but they have been interpreted as not effective. Jane Fonda and others used a special travel permit issued by the government of North Vietnam to travel to that country without the necessity of being issued a United States passport. THERE APPEARS reluctance on the part of the Justice Department to seek an indictment against her and others for alleged sedition and treason for their broadcasts to U.S. servicemen over Radio Hanoi. The Justice Department may be right in view of the fact that evidentiary requirements for successful prosecution are no doubt difficult. Other U.S. citizens, including

Ramsey Clark, who charged U.S. bombers had broken dikes, engaged in activities in North Vietnam which are inimical to the interest of our IN VIEW OF this situation, it seems the only way to prevent such future excursions is to prohibit travel to any nation with which the United States is engaged in armed conflict. The bill being introduced, which

Travel to such restricted country or area by any person, may be authorized by the President when he deems such travel to be in the national interest. It shall be unlawful for any citizen or national of the United States willfully and without such authorization to travel to, in, or through any country or area to which travel is restricted pursuant to this subsection.

Robert Hotz, editor of Aviation Week magazine, noted in August 1971, that there were broken dikes where there had been no bombing in more than three years, and that "the easiest explanation for the population that will die and suffer in the ensuing floods which occur in September and October is that the disaster is caused by American bombing." He ended his article by saying, "This is another
