Soviet Leader Solicits Congressional Support

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev switched their summit talks to this hideaway retreat today after the Soviet leader sought in an extraordinary session with top senators to break down congressional barriers to expanded U.S.-Soviet trade.

Nixon and Brezhnev flew there by helicopter Tuesday night after joining their top aides for a leisurely dinner cruise on the Potomac aboard the presidential yacht Sequoia.

They planned to hold their third and fourth days of summit talks in the wooded seclusion guaranteed by Marine guards and barbed-wire fences surrounding the compound in the Catoctin Mountains.

The two leaders spent about five and one-half hours together Tuesday, concentrating on the thorny issues of trade and economics.

Two hours of meetings took place at the White House, the rest aboard the presidential yacht, on Nixon's helicopter or in the President's limousine.

Details of the face-to-face Nixon-Brezhnev discussions were not disclosed.

'JEWISH PROBLEM'
But members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who accepted the Communist leader's invitation to lunch at the Blair House said he sought to overcome congressional roadblocks to granting the Soviet Union nondiscriminatory treatment on trade.

Under a major trade pact reached last October, Nixon agreed to seek Most Favored Nation (MFN) status for the Soviet Union. But a bipartisan majority in Congress has lined up against approving the MFN request until the Soviet Union allows Jews to emigrate freely from behind the Iron Curtain.

The senators said after the three and one-half hour luncheon of caviar, baked salmon, vodka and champagne that Brezhnev denied there was a "Jewish problem" in his country.

The husky 66-year-old general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party talked for nearly two hours at the meeting, then fielded questions from the 20 senators present.

WESTERN FROLIC — An estimated 40 square dancers frolicked as in the old days when they went through their routines Tuesday evening in a downtown street dance. Spectators lined both sides of the block to watch the dancers and hear James Moore, C. L. Woods and Alvin Huskey call the dances. (See story Page 5).

TOTAL $139,000 Foundation's Bequests Listed

Bequests of $139,000 were approved by the board of the Dora Roberts Foundation at its annual meeting here Tuesday evening.

Big Spring institutions shared to the extent of $99,000 in the gifts, which covered various activities from operations to endowment.

The Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center and the Big Spring YMCA each received $25,000 for endowment purposes.

The West Side Youth Center received $17,000 for capital improvements as did the Big Spring Boy Scout. A bequest of $10,000 went to the Heritage Museum, and $5,000 to the Salvation Army for operational purposes.

The board gave a $10,000 scholarship to Texas Christian University in memory of Curtis K. Canter, son of Mrs. Eloise Waters and the grandson of Mrs. Dora Roberts who established the foundation.

Other distributions announced by Judge R. W. Caton, chairman of the board, included $10,000 to The Citizens Advocate Council of Midland for its adult workshop pilot program, and the Midland YMCA, and $20,000 to the Midland YMCA for capital improvements.

Martha Hits Reporter On Head Twice

By JUDY YABLONKY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Fury got the best of Martha Mitchell Tuesday night when she struck a reporter outside her Fifth Avenue apartment building after chastising the newswoman for crowding her freedom.

"You know you're disgusting because you are imposing on me," Mrs. Mitchell said in the first of two trips downstairs to tell off the Associated Press reporter.

"When I get out of this, it's press is going down the line!" she vowed.

In her second appearance, Mrs. Mitchell hit the reporter twice on the top of the head with her open hand and then threatened to "throw the hell" out of her if the reporter set foot on her doorstep.

Minutes earlier, the wife of the former U.S. attorney general grabbed her doorman's hat and flung it at the reporter, hitting her in the face. The reporter was unhurt.

Mrs. Mitchell returned inside nearly an hour later, after her daughter and another young woman arrived in a chauffeured car and led her, shouting, into the building.

During her two outings, Mrs. Mitchell sprinkled obscenities through her accusations that reporters camped outside her building, sometimes around the clock, had invaded her privacy and made her a prisoner. At the time the reporter was hit Tuesday night, she was the only newswoman at the Mitchell residence.

"I have never done anything wrong in my life, ever," Mrs. Mitchell said. "I wasn't even sent to the principal's office when I was in school. Go away and forget it."

Newspaper, television and radio reporters have been seeking comment from her husband, John N. Mitchell, since last Thursday when his name was linked in a Senate hearing to the Watergate bugging.

What brought Mrs. Mitchell down from her $200,000 apartment was a note transmitted through her doorman by the reporter, asking about Mitchell's "thoughts, feelings and well being at the moment."

"You have no right to be here, infringing on my privacy!" she told the reporter.

Cowboy Champ Heads List Of Big Names For Rodeo

Larry Mahan, world champion cowboy on five occasions and a contender to be the top cowboy again this year, will be among performers at the opening show of the 40th annual Big Spring Cowboy Rodeo and Reunion.

Show time is 8:30 p.m. in Rodeo Bowl at FM 700 and U.S. 80.

Mayor Wade Choate has proclaimed this Rodeo Week in Big Spring and urged all people to support the traditional Western show.

"Much of the excitement and color of this event links us with our heritage of the open range and frontier days when the country was being settled," he said. He encouraged the wearing of Western attire.

Mahan will compete in bronc riding here. The Dallas cowboy may gain back his lead in the standings since the one cowboy ahead of him, Bob Ragsdale, was hospitalized Sunday after a steer's horn penetrated his groin in steer wrestling event at the Novato, Calif., rodeo. Ragsdale was released from the hospital Monday morning and said that he plans to rest only one week and hopes to resume competition after that.

A SWITCH
So Mahan, in second place with winnings of $23,987, could gain on Ragsdale, who has $26,805. This would be a switch for Mahan, who at the height of his career, was sidelined with injuries that cost him the all-around title.

Many of the top names in rodeo were added to the Big Spring show late yesterday. Ernie Taylor of Hugo, Okla., who is leading the calf-roping and who will be among 39 top hands in the Rodeo Cowboys Association to share in the first half-year payoff. He will receive a $2,000 bonus from Winston's for leading calf roping at the mid-mark.

Taylor will rope both Wednesday and Thursday. Some of the roping will be done after the regular rodeo, since there are so many ropers. The public may stay for the after-show roping each night if they desire.

Bill Smith, Cody, Wyo., one time world champion, will ride saddle broncs here this year. Bobby Steiner, second in this season's standing, will perform in bull riding on Saturday night.

RECORD FIELD

Myrtis Dightman, who has been one of the top 15 bull riders for many years, will be among the riders. Tim Prather, Snyder, a top steer wrestler, will also be on hand in the Big Spring show, as will Jack Hines, Big Spring, one of the better known bareback riders.

PROBABLY A RECORD
A total of 279 entrants are on hand for the show and it is expected to be one of the best in the history of rodeo here.

Rodeo officials, ready for today's parade at 4 p.m. and the first performance of the show tonight at 8:30 p.m. are crossing their fingers and hoping for clear weather the entire four nights of the show.

Each of the four performances of the rodeo will be inaugurated by the singing of the national anthem by Mrs. Don Newsom, accompanied by the band, and by the colorful grand entry parade that fills the arena with horsemen.

Other Acts Add Thrills To Rodeo Extravaganza

There's enough excitement for a good show in the rodeo events themselves, but this year's edition of the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo will be packed with other highlights. The featured attraction will be Michael Landon, television and film star, who will be backed by the Western Union musical band.

Tommy Sheffield and Tommy Lucia, the clowns, each have specialty acts, but they will be hard put to rival the unrehearsed antics of men from four squadrons at Webb AFB.

Each night starting Thursday, three-man teams from the Field Maintenance, the Organizational Maintenance, the Air Base Group and the Hospital Squadrons will tackle a bawling Brahma calf and seek to robe it with a pair of bloomers. The calves, on-halter, will be turned over to the men, who must haul it back across the finish line once robed. There will be a fresh team from the squadrons each night, and the lowest aggregate time will earn a trophy from the rodeo association.

Other acts include exhibitions of trick riding by Rex and Wanda Rossi, Jeanette Plunkett, and Dolly Beutler.

Tom Hadley, Brady, will announce the show, which is produced by Tommy Steiner, Austin.

Each evening after the rodeo there will be a rodeo dance in the nearby County Fair Barn with Hoyle Nix and his West Texas-Cowboys furnishing the music.

Boat Thefts Ring Smashed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Five men have been charged after a statewide boat theft ring was broken up by the Travis County Sheriff's Department, Sheriff Raymond Frank said today.

Frank said 10 expensive boats, valued at more than $40,000, have been recovered and more are expected to be returned to owners.

Charged with felony theft were Tommy Dean Watts and Gary Jean Rhea, both of Midland and Steve Pasley, address unknown and not yet apprehended.

Charged with receiving and concealing stolen property were Robert Petty and Ben Montoya, both of Austin.

Frank said three of the boats were recovered in Austin, three in Midland, two in Odessa and two in Wichita Falls.

Frank said the boats were taken from dealerships, storage warehouses and some from driveways of residences. He said the thieves were able to move the boats from one city to another and after some alteration in serial numbers to register the boats with the Parks and Wildlife Department and the trailers at the county tax assessors without any inspection or proof of ownership. Then with new licenses and registration certificates the boats would be advertised and sold to unsuspecting buyers.

Kidnap Charges Hit Man, Woman

FREDERICKSBURG, Tex. (AP) — A 22-year-old man and his 21-year-old woman associate were under federal charges today of conspiring to rob the First National Bank of Evant involving the kidnaping of a banker's wife.

The FBI said the charges were filed against Judith Carole Jones, 21, of Hamilton, and Gary Alan Faubion, 22, of Fredericksburg.

Miss Jones also is under state kidnaping charges at Gatesville, where Justice of the Peace Stoney Hammock set bond at $20,000.

Joe Leonard, U.S. magistrate at Kerrville, set bond of $100,000 for Faubion. The defendant was taken to San Antonio and will be transferred to Austin to await grand jury action, the FBI statement said.

The federal agency said Mrs. Catherine Elam wife of the president of the bank, Charles L. Elam, was abducted at gunpoint.

Elam received a telephone call demanding $30,000. The money was put at the designated place, but the kidnapers released Mrs. Elam and did not collect the money.

The FBI said Faubion was arrested by its agents, Fredericksburg police, sheriff's officers and Department of Public Safety officers as he stepped off a bus at Kerrville.

PERSONABLE MIKE LANDON—The many expressions of personable Michael Landon, known to many as Little Joe on the "Bonanza" television series, are captured by photographer Danny Valdes. Landon quipped regarding the "Bonanza" cancellation after 13 years: "I cried a lot." He will be featured nightly through Saturday at the rodeo. (See story, page 2).

Target Price Due For Cotton

It now appears almost certain that cotton, wheat and feed grain farmers after this year will be operating under a "target price" type farm program. Producers will be exhorted to produce abundant supplies for the benefit of consumers, and in theory at least, will be insured against financial losses by a payment to make up the difference between market prices and a "target" specified by law.

The Senate bill for cotton sets a target price of 43 cents per pound and calls for producer payments equal to the difference between that price and the average market price for Strict Low Middling (SLM) inch-and-a-sixteenth cotton as quoted in the spot markets during the first five months of the marketing year, August through December.

The House version so far has a target price of 38 cents a pound, with the payment based on the difference between this

Pastures In Good Shape

The area cattle ranges have the best forage coverage they have had in several years, Joe McEntire, U.S. area conservationist said.

During last fall and spring the area received more than average rainfall and that a dry spell in summer is always expected, he added.

"We should have enough forage through September," McEntire said. "It isn't just lush green grass, but cattle can graze good dry forage."

He said that if the heat reached "102 degrees for two weeks" the forage would cease to grow but new growth would develop with the expected rainfall in September.

McEntire said the danger to the pastureland now is hail or fire. He said that hail can damage forage and make it almost as useless as if it had been burned. Only last week, one bad grass fire was reported.

Frosty Attitude

NEW YORK (AP) — Betty Furness, who used to promote refrigerators on television commercials, took a frosty attitude toward the President's latest price freeze.

"The lid was placed on prices after the pot boiled over," the city commissioner of consumer affairs said.

COURT GIVES FDA MUSCLE 8,000 Drugs Could Be Banned As Worthless

WASHINGTON (AP) — Its regulatory muscle strengthened by the Supreme Court, the Food and Drug Administration plans to demand proof of effectiveness for some 40,000 prescription drugs marketed for up to 35 years.

As many as 8,000 could be banned as worthless, based on earlier agency actions, with vast implications for the pharmaceutical industry and the American public, which spends more than $7 billion a year for drugs of all kinds.

"Let's face it. I'm going to have to think up a new review procedure," said a jubilant Peter B. Hutt, FDA general counsel.

"ME TOO" DRUGS

The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, representing 113 firms producing 90 per cent of U.S. prescription drugs, declined comment.

Hutt claimed a landmark victory for the FDA in the high court's decision Monday in five cases brought by drug companies fighting federal regulatory efforts.

"I can't think of any decision that has had more significance in food and drug law," he said.

At the center of the legal issue was the 1962 Kefauver-Harris amendment, passed after the thalidomide disaster in Europe, requiring proof of effectiveness for new drugs as well as older ones cleared for safety under a 1938 law.

The court unanimously ruled, in effect, that "me too" drugs copying those formally approved must pass the same tests; that the FDA and not the courts has primary jurisdiction in determining what is a new drug; and that the FDA can deny a hearing to firms it feels failed to submit substantial proof of effectiveness.

NEW DRUGS

Hutt said the court decisions go far beyond the narrow special issue of new drugs. It will have important consequences for FDA reviews of food additives, diagnostic products, biologics and vaccines, and over-the-counter (OTC) or nonprescription drugs, he said.

Prescription drugs will feel the most immediate impact.

The FDA contracted with the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council in the early 1960s to study 16,357 efficacy claims for 3,899 drugs including 331 OTCs.

The academy reported that it could find evidence supporting 19.1 per cent of the claims for prescription drugs, and 25 per cent of the OTCs.

The FDA said about 525 of the drugs have been removed from the market and others relabeled or reformulated.

For every one of those drugs reviewed, Hutt said, there are five to 13 "me too" drugs which are identical, similar or related.

Those 30,000 to 40,000 drugs also will fall under review in light of the court's decision, he said.

Prospective, Beginning Cyclists To Have School

Western Yamaha & Triumph, a local motorcycle dealer, and the sheriff's office are holding a free safety training program for beginning cyclists Saturday.

We believe that beginning riders just are not being told how to safely ride motorcycles," Deputy Sheriff Russell Kraus said. So arrangements were made for the first motorcycle safety training program held here.

Both sexes "from 8 to 80" years of age may participate.

Juveniles who want to participate must have their parents present to sign a waiver.

CYCLES PROVIDED

Motorcycles and helmets will be provided by the local Yamaha dealer. Registration will start at 10 a.m. at the Memorial Stadium parking lot.

A brief orientation will be given. Students then will sit on motorcycles and become acquainted with controls and safety features.

CERTIFICATES

Instruction safe operating procedures will be given, and each person will be allowed to ride through a familiarization course.

Texas Regional Postal Winner

BRASHEAR — Wally W. Quary, Brashear, who lost both legs below the knee in a mowing machine accident at age three, has been named the outstanding postal service employee in the 11-state Southern Region. He was chosen from among 22,000 handicapped workers.

Quary, a veteran of 34 years in the postal service, has been a rural letter carrier for 31 years.

Postmaster General E. T. Klassen said the over-all winner in the nation was Frank Chitaras, a polio victim and a postal technician in the bulk mail facility at Stockton, Calif.

Miss Kelli Striegler Weds Alan L. Peters

Miss Kelli Lynn Striegler became the bride of Alan Lee Peters in an afternoon ceremony held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the sanctuary of St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

The Rev. Harland B. Birdwell performed the nuptial service as the couple exchanged vows before a candlelit altar. The setting was enhanced with arrangements of red carnations, and traditional music was played by Miss Connie Gary, organist.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jeanne Striegler of Big Spring and Mark B. Striegler of Austin. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Charles Ginn, Big Spring, and Bill Peters, Carlsbad, N.M.

The bride's formal wedding gown was fashioned of white taffeta with long-sleeved overdress of Chantilly lace featuring pearl-trimmed scallops from the neckline to hem of the dress. The fitted sleeves ended in petal points over the wrists, and back fullness of the skirt swept into a chapel train. Her tiered veil of illusion fell from a headpiece of lace flowers outlined with seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of white Sweetheart roses, babies'-breath and blue carnations showered with satin streamers.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Tim Winn, and the bridesmaid was Mrs. Mike Chastain. Carrying nosegays of blue and white carnations and babies'-breath, they were identically attired in full-length dresses of blue and white dotted Swiss. The empire line and short puffed sleeves were adorned with white lace.

Charles Ginn, the bridegroom's stepfather, served as best man, and Tim Winn was groomsmen. Altar tapers were lit by Louis Tallant II.

Immediately following the wedding, the couple was honored at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church, where Miss Jenny Cozad, Miss Joyce Fickling and Mrs. Louis Tallant served refreshments.

The table was covered with a floor-length blue cloth and centered with a memory candle based in an arrangement of white carnations, chrysanthemums and babies'-breath. Milk glass and silver appointments were used, and the tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom.

A graduate of Big Spring High School, Peters is serving with the Army at Fort Hood, near Killeen, where the couple will reside. Mrs. Peters also attended BSHS.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Erickson, uncle and aunt of the bride; and Mrs. Nell Ballou, grandmother of the bride, all of Austin. Mr. Erickson gave his niece in marriage.

Guests Visit In Westbrook Area

WESTBROOK (SC) — Mrs. Louise Webb, Jal, N.M., is visiting her sister and family, the Dalton Conaways. Mrs. Conaway was dismissed recently from Root Memorial Hospital, Colorado City.

New residents in Westbrook are the Charles Alexanders, formerly of Colorado City.

Mrs. Gertrude Gingerrich of Pecos has returned home following a week with Mrs. O. T. Bird.

Jerald Messimer has returned to Florida after two weeks visiting with his parents, the Roy Messimers.

A. C. Moody and John Plummer are patients at Root Memorial Hospital. Mrs. N. L. Fuson and daughter, Big Lake, were recent guests of the A. C. Moodys and the Carl Bacons.

Mrs. Don Henderson and the Elmer McMahan of Sand Springs are vacationing in Washington, D.C.

The Jerry Shaws of Fort Stockton spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. Lee Shaw.

Gift Affairs Held For Bride-Elect

Miss Cynthia Stephens, bride-elect of Clifford McFarland, was honored with a kitchen shower Monday evening in the home of Mrs. David Haight, 1602 Vines, with Mrs. J. C. Kelly as cohostess.

Miss Stephens wore a pantsuit with white slacks and navy blue top. She was presented a corsage of white carnations trimmed in purple, as was her mother, Mrs. Kenneth Stephens.

Refreshments were served from a polished maple table centered with a white milk glass bowl arranged with artificial fruit. The arrangement was flanked by large maple salt and pepper shakers.

The couple will be married Friday at the Fourteenth and Main Church of Christ.

Miss Stephens was the honoree at a "rice and spice" dinner party Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. E. L. Whatley, 1023 Stadium, with Mrs. Bill Adams, Mrs. Roy Tidwell and Miss Helen Tidwell as cohostesses.

Attired in a red and white pantsuit, the honoree was accompanied by her mother and her fiance's mother, Mrs. Louise McFarland, Eugene, Ore. Also attending was the future bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Norman Unruh, also of Eugene.

Table accents included an arrangement of summer flowers, and orchid and white were used in other decorations.

After dinner, rice bags were made for the wedding.

Couples Travel For Vacation

FORSAN (SC) — The Marvin Sewells, Big Spring, and the Hamlin Elrods, have returned from a vacation trip that took them to Albuquerque, N.M.; Flagstaff, Ariz.; the Grand Canyon and Las Vegas, Nev. While in Las Vegas they saw the Patti Page and Vicki Carr shows. The couples then went to Utah and through the Zion National Park, to Four Corners and Santa Fe, N. M., before returning home.

Mrs. L. W. Willis visited recently with her daughter and family, the Harold Pitcocks, Midland.

The L. S. Camps recently attended funeral services in Odessa for the Ned Sanford Woolleys who were killed in a plane crash near El Paso.

The Woolleys were parents of the wife of the Camp's grandson, Terry Gooch.

Weekend guests of the A. P. Oglesbys were her sister, Mrs. Maggie Toliver, Mullin; a nephew and his wife, the Gene Ingrams, Brownwood; and a son and family, the Albert Oglesbys, Odessa.

Good Advice

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I own a small grocery store in a very rough neighborhood. We have been here for many years and make a good living. Two years ago we were held up twice in 6 months. The robbers tied us up and cleaned out the register, but no real harm came to us. After that, my husband hired a security guard. Since then nobody has bothered us.

A few months ago someone told my husband he was foolish to pay a security guard — he should let the security guard go and keep a loaded gun under the counter. Abby, my husband has never fired a gun in his life — but he took his friend's advice.

I told my husband I wouldn't go in the store as long as he kept the gun there. He said I could stay home — he didn't need me. After working side by side with him for 35 years, I am hurt and heartsick. I am so afraid that if a robber comes in my husband will get excited and reach for the gun and the robber will kill him. That's the way it always happens.

Am I wrong to believe we are in more danger keeping the gun in the store? Or am I right? WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: You are right. Statistics show that guns kill more innocent people than robbers. And law enforcement experts would strongly advise against keeping a loaded gun handy. The security guard is a far better idea.

DEAR ABBY: Do you see anything wrong with entertaining a boy friend in your bedroom? I am 15 and Mike is 17, and I entertain him in my bedroom because that's where the stereo is and all we do is listen to records and talk. Besides, I have two little brats for brothers and if Mike and I didn't lock ourselves in the bedroom those kids would be running in and out and bothering us.

When my mother found my bedroom door locked with Mike inside, she had a cow. We weren't doing anything wrong. I don't know why she doesn't trust me. I've never gotten into any trouble with dudes.

What's wrong with listening to records in my bedroom? Please make your answer short because I don't like long boring answers.

OKAY GIRL

DEAR OKAY: A bedroom is not an appropriate place to entertain your boy friend. Move your stereo to another room, don't lock any doors, and ask your mother to please discipline the kids.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Garden Club To Host Convention

The Men's Garden Club of Big Spring will host the Southwest Region of Men's Garden Clubs regional convention which is tentatively scheduled Oct. 19-20. The region includes all clubs in Texas and Oklahoma.

Members of the local club agreed to undertake the task at a meeting Tuesday evening in the home of Bill Sneed, 3914 Parkway. Following business, the men toured Sneed's yard and garden. Refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m., July 17 in the home of Bob Butler.

A LOVELIER YOU Summer Work Pays Dividends In Fall

By MARY SUE MILLER
Summer is the time for teens to go to work on their skins and hair. Oily conditions, in particular, will worsen if neglected.

A smart girl includes a care program in her summer plans. It's no big deal — only three steps and a wise choice of corrective products.

Step One. Cleanse skin three times daily. Use oatmeal scrub bars, medicated soap or fluids. For quick cleansing away from home carry towelettes impregnated with pH clear soap. An oily skin freshener or toner comes recommended after sudsy cleanups. A corrective cream or lotion is in order at bedtime.

Step Two. Shampoo hair twice weekly, every other day if necessary. Just wash that oil right out of your hair with refreshing suds like Fresh Mint and Protein Shampoo, followed by a squirt of Whipped Creme conditioner from an aerosol. To air hair between shampoos and carry oil to ends, brush...brush...brush. A medium-stiff brush, freshly washed, performs best.

Step Three. Protection from sun is basic to the program. Although sun seems to help in controlling oil, overexposure increases flow and sizzle. Apply sunscreen and medicated lip gloss on days spent outdoors. Take along a head covering and put it on when the going gets hot.

This much care and by autumn you look as though you had tanned in a shady hammock, even if you plugged away at a job all summer.

TIPS FOR TEENS
Fifty ways to ideal skin and natural makeup for young adults — ages 12 to 19 — are detailed in my booklet, "Model Tips For Teens." Advice covers corrective skin care; how to use makeup to accent good points and play down problems; fashion model makeup tricks. For your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of the Big Spring Herald enclosing a long self-addressed stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin.

LESS DISRUPTIVE THAN EARLIER RULES

Congressional Remap Plans

By The Associated Press

Congressional districting plans for Texas which were given tentative blessing Monday by the U.S. Supreme Court are far less disruptive politically than an earlier apportionment ordered by a lower court.

Three districting plans were proposed—one by the state legislature and the other two by Dan Weiser, a Dallas research mathematician who likes to dabble in the political numbers game.

A lower court rejected the state plan and the Supreme Court agreed with the move. However, the Supreme Court preferred a third plan over the districting scheme picked by the lower court.

1970 CENSUS
Both the plans under consideration were submitted by Weiser.

The plan preferred by the Supreme Court is similar to the plan drawn up by the Texas legislature except for the juggling of counties and precincts here and there.

Under the plan picked by the lower courts, boundaries of many districts would have been radically changed and thrown many incumbents, particularly conservatives, into election battles with each other.

Changes in population during the past 10 years as revealed by the 1970 census began the whole problem.

Redistricting was a duty for the legislature, which it performed, and for which it was promptly challenged on the grounds that there were too many variations in the number of voters between districts.

A stay of the plan adopted by the lower court was ordered for the 1972 elections, thereby ruling that U.S. House members should be elected by the legislative plan pending further Supreme Court study.

THIRD PLAN

On Monday the Supreme Court remanded the case back to the lower court and at the same time commented that the third plan should have been adopted.

The question now arises: Will the lower court adopt the new plan, will it tell the legislature to provide another plan or will the lower court order still another plan of some sort?

Also, will the court act before the 1974 congressional elections. No comment is expected from the judges of the lower court. They say they have not yet received the high court's ruling as of Tuesday.

The Supreme Court did not specify that the lower court must adopt the third plan or insist the lower court act before the 1974 elections.

The Supreme Court said in effect that the courts should leave districting up to the state as long as no federal laws are violated.

One of the good features of the plan favored by the high court in the eyes of Texas congressmen is that it does not force any of them to run against one another.

The first plan approved by the lower courts would have done this.

Two congressmen, Rep. Abraham Kazen of Laredo and Rep. O. C. Fisher of San Angelo, would have been thrown into an election battle.

"I am satisfied with the decision," Kazen said. "Our section of the state has absolutely nothing in common with the northwest area."

The lower court's plan would have stretched Fisher's district southward to the Rio Grande, including Kazen's home county.

Plans approved by the high court stretch the two districts east and west, stopping the possibility of a confrontation at election time.

BOUNDARY LINES

Changes in boundary lines within Dallas County could confirm one Republican in his job while endangering another GOP member.

Rep. Jim Collins would gain even more GOP voters from Dallas County in his district while fellow Republican Alan Steelman would inherit from Collins some low-income Democratic-leaning precincts.

Steelman also would pick up some traditionally Democratic precincts from Rep. Olin "Tiger" Teague.

Rep. Dale Milford, a Democrat, would lose all of Denton County, a strong region for him, but pick up strong Democratic precincts.

JUGGLING

The possible minor juggling throughout the state was put in focus by Milford in discussing his won district.

"Congressional district boundaries in the Dallas-Fort Worth area are really meaningless. Not only are Dallas and Fort Worth integrated into one metropolitan area, but also the entire eight-county metropolitan area."

He was convicted of three counts of murder in the first degree.

Dancers Open Rodeo Festival

"People (spectators) lined both sides of the street the full length of the block," Leon Stockton, president of the Big Spring Squares, said describing the turnout at the annual Street Dance Tuesday night east of the county courthouse.

The dance officially starts rodeo festivities for the Rodeo Week, so proclaimed by Mayor Wade Choate.

persons from Big Spring and the surrounding area danced to records and performed waltzes, polkas, ragtime, square dances and even some contemporary teen-age steps.

Coca Cola Bottling Company provided a refreshment stand, and Byron Transfer Co. provided a flatbed truck to use as a stage for the square dance callers, he said.

Stockton said James Moore of Lomax, C. L. Wood of Snyder, and Alvin Huskey, Big Spring were square callers.

Stockton said square dance lessons will be offered this autumn at the Big Spring Squares club house in Silver Heel addition.

Club Ready For Barbecue

Kiwanis Club members will serve up 1000 pounds of barbecue, 200 pounds of beans and barrels of ice tea from 5-8 p.m. today at City Park at the club's annual barbecue held in conjunction with opening of the rodeo.

Tickets, $1.75 apiece, are Kiwanian or at the park available from any Kiwanian or at the park pavilion.

Gibby Morehead, Kiwanis barbecue chairman, said this morning that everything is in readiness for the annual event.

Parks Help Cut Highway Litter

Roadside rest areas have apparently reduced the amount of litter on county roads, Clint Kent, Texas Highway Department maintenance foreman, said.

He said the rest and picnic areas have been in use for about five years in this vicinity and the decrease in litter along the highway corresponds with their use.

Twice a week four men will police the areas which include all state maintained roads and county roads.

He said discarded soft drink and beer cans have also decreased somewhat since manufacturers have begun to use aluminum.

"They (collectors) must be hauling them in," Kent observed in reference to recycling programs by some canned drink manufacturers.

The Child Grows Up

Many Americans were made unhappy when West German Chancellor Willy Brandt began making overtures to Russia and East Germany. Our policy through the years had been dedicated mainly to preserving West Germany as a democratic bastion against the Communist East.

Yet the doctrine of a quarantined Germany has long been outdated. Brandt exposed the infirmities of a policy which fixed its sights on the past and avoided the uncomfortable future.

German nationalism has quietly slept for 25 years. It is there, though, just beneath the surface, ready to be reawakened in all its fury. No leader with any vision can take the risk of doing nothing. Only in moments of relative tranquility is it possible to prepare adequately for the stormy future.

There is something else, too, that impelled Brandt to turn eastward. Only Russia can arrange for German unity. The most the West can do is to protect West Germany against a sudden takeover by East Germany in concert with Russia.

The West exercises a negative influence. The road ahead may be long and tortuous. Russian fear of Germany is still very real. There are too many Russians still alive who remember the Nazi German drive to Stalingrad and the Caucasus. An estimated 21 million Russian soldiers and civilians died in that epic struggle.

Thus there is little assurance that Russia will agree to a united Germany, unless it is controlled by communism, in the foreseeable future. But the ground for that eventual reunion will be prepared, and this natural hope for unity must be channeled into peaceful and constructive approaches.

West Germany, our "child," has grown up, and though there may be uneasiness as in seeing our own children embark upon adulthood, the best we can do is to be nearby, and hope for the best.

Better Than Alternatives

It is quite natural that there is at least a subliminal uneasiness when the President sits down to talk with the chief of the Russian state, considering natural suspicions about the aims and means of communism.

However, there is a potential for a lot more good than harm to come from it, for when heads of two super-powers sit down to talk rather than grinding afar for battle, it has to be better.

Moreover, the plain fact is that they are here and we are here in this same world, and the practical thing is to seek some sort of accommodation, some communication and some trade.

Moreover, we need to realize that even in the vastly more rigid states, there comes a time when the people want more of the things that other people have, and those who rule and want to continue to rule had better pay attention to these urges and aspirations.

On A Summer Day

Around The Rim

Joe Pickle

What did a kid do on a hot summer day in a small West Texas town a long yesterday ago?

WELL, THERE was always the business of spotting the locust (cicada) ringing away on some secluded branch and daring you to find him.

Or testing the sand in a rutted street or path to see how hot it was and if you could make the next spot of shade in time to save your bare foot.

There was the test of skill to see if you could grab a gold fish or minnow in the big horse trough. Or to thrill to the touch of a cold pipe as you slid down the windmill casing.

MAYBE TRUDGE down to Cottonwood Park and swing from branch to branch while imagining you were Tarzan, or lie in the shade on the grass and look up to the deepest blue of the universe, or watch the woolly puffs float hazily, constantly changing forms.

Or, if lucky, get to ride in car with the top down so the wind could whip by your face while you felt the exhilaration of a mile a minute at 20 mph.

AND, PERHAPS after a successful trip to the town dump grounds to scrounge for scrap brass, copper and aluminum castings, the thrill of going to the drug store, walking across the checkered linoleum floor and feel the chattering of air stirred by overhead fans, or to wait for the oscillating fan to swing your way while the white-coated skeet dug the ice cream for your cone out of a mysterious compartment.

Sometimes, when the elements had been kind, there was the serious business of organizing a posse to take Read's tank or Red Dam by storm and yell, and hit belly busters, and feel the coolness of a breeze on bare bodies.

OR DISTRIBUTE circulars in return for a free pass to enter the wonderful darkness of the picture show and watch Tom Mix and Tony triumph over the forces of evil, or William S. Hart's eyes bore holes through a villain or Charlie Chaplin paddle off like a duck, or Snub Pollard jump in the air, his feet churning, as he emphasized that the chase was under way.

Or to venture into the candy kitchen and debate a long, long time on what was the biggest bargain your penny would buy.

OR catch a burro and imagine he was a bronco or a thoroughbred. Or listen to the town sages whistle on the bench and squirt tobacco juice in majestic arches while arguing religion and getting madder than hell about it.

BUT NOTHING surpassed the exotic moment when the town's water wagon, its cypress tank filled to the brim, rattled behind a span or mules down dusty Main Street as the driver yanked a rope that turned on the sprinklers. That surely must have been made expressly for a boy's hot feet.

Genesis Of Cowboy

Robert E. Ford

R. Henderson Shuffler said it: "Everything the cowboy ever learned was from the Mexicans."

This probably has been noted before, but Shuffler has a special reason to mention it.

THE WHOLE thing began not long ago when William D. Wittliff, well known in literary circles, walked unannounced into Shuffler's office in the Institute of Texas Cultures in San Antonio.

Wittliff, publisher of the Encino Press in Austin, dumped boxes of pictures on Shuffler's desk.

From those photographs grew a spectacular exhibit for which there is considerable clamor.

His 35 m.m. negatives were used to produce dramatic prints, some the size of a wall.

Together they are titled "Genesis of the Texas Cowboy."

There can be no question of the success of the enterprise. For the Mexican government has asked that the captions be translated into Spanish for a display for that southern country.

EVERYTHING turned out so well that the institute has other such projects on the works, including one on Sam Houston and another on 150 years of the Texas Ranger.

Perhaps the inspiration for the whole thing came from Joe B. Frantz, director of the Texas State Historical Association.

Frantz lured Wittliff to northern Mexico.

Now Wittliff hasn't been a cowboy in a long time. He looks like a city feller.

Which may be one reason his pictures are so great, for Wittliff acted like he had forgotten that a frightened horse or a charging bull can turn a man into a hospital case in a second.

So he just stood his ground and shot, according to Frantz.

WITTLIFF concentrated on what Frantz calls the ranch trinity: cattle, horses and men.

It doesn't sound sensible to go south of the border to shoot cowboy pictures in Mexico when Texas itself is a great cattle country.

But ranches as known during the evolution of the cowboy are about gone in the United States.

And Frantz says Wittliff's pictures were "shot at almost the last moment in history."

This is because the northern Mexico ranch, once half the size of Connecticut, is being cut down at this moment to 60,000 acres under Mexico's land program.

Why didn't the inventive pioneer Anglos invent the cowboy themselves? Stop a moment to consider: No Anglos came to Texas in the early days to ranch. They came to farm. Moreover, it was in Mexico that Herman Cartes landed the first horses in the new world.

THE OPEN range wasn't safe for man or beast in western Texas, for the Indians possessed it and they never looked kindly on interlopers, not even from outsider Indians.

When Confederates returned from the war, they found South Texas overrun by unintended, unwanted cattle and the Indians were being pushed out. So the great cattle ranches could be established.

Also at hand was an unlimited supply — in South Texas that is — of Mexicans who knew how to handle cattle and what tools were needed.

They taught the Anglos what it was all about.

If you question that, consider these words stolen from the Mexicans or at least converted:

Pinlo, lasso, quirt, sombrero, stampede, lariat, bronco, chaparral, remuda and corral.

BUT ON THE northern Mexico ranch, not much had changed in hundreds of years and Wittliff ate a lot of dust recording it all.

It is very strange, however, that one of his more dramatic pictures has a touch of Texan about it.

In the foreground of this shot is a large clump of cactus. In the immediate background is a lone horseman who has pulled off the trial to allow the chuck wagon to pass.

The chuck wagon driver, presumably the cook, is using a whip to urge onward the span of mules pulling the wagon.

Mexicans never knew the chuck wagon in earlier days. It is a Texas invention.

themselves of their hangups about some form of mild controls or central direction, believing that a really free economy is only an ideal.

BUT THE IDEAL seems to have persisted in the administration despite some of the most disquieting economic news received by a president since the 1930 depression: inflation, joblessness, devaluation, stock market recession.

The publicly stated ideal, continually contradicted by the deed, was adhered to despite this news, and few economists in the New York corporate world believed the President would permit another freeze.

In the week before Nixon acted, this was the typical comment, as expressed by a large economic consulting firm:

"THE RANGE of possibilities is wide. It could be as extreme as Phase 1 or as mild as selective tightening here and there. Something in the middle — akin to Phase 2 — seems the most probable."

But most of these economists drive down the middle of the road anyway, fearful of crossing the white line or so prone to habit that they would feel uncomfortable doing so. But they underestimated Nixon's flexibility.

JUST DON'T PUT OUT THE WHOLE FIRE!

HORRIS

Look For Rainbow

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Children and grownups never seem to know what to do when it rains.

It is amazing what a little precipitation does to the world. Rocks and stones shine and vegetation grows when it rains. But otherwise it is hard to say much in favor of rain.

Rain makes the day darker, rivers flood their banks, traffic snarls, children whine, the dog refuses to go outside, horses stand forlorn on hills, people steal each other's umbrellas, husbands complain to their wives about the quality of the morning coffee, taxis disappear, trains run late, bus drivers deepen their usual scowls, lovers suspect the durability of love, secretaries snuff at executive commands, the boss pushes all the buttons on his desk panel so he can bawl out everybody at once, and even philosophers sneer and say they knew all along that life is only a snare and a delusion of grandeur.

All this just because it rained!

But the worst thing about rain is that it seems to numb and nullify all forms of human creativity. People just don't know what to do with themselves.

Actually, there are a lot of constructive things you can do. Here is a list of them you might keep handy in case it rains tomorrow:

Get sick — if you feel like it. There is no better time to be sick than on a rainy day.

Do something mean — like calling up all your enemies and giving them hell.

If that doesn't get all the poison out of your system, write a round-robin snotty letter to all the credit managers who have been writing you snotty letters simply because you have forgotten to pay a bill for year or two.

Compose a last will and testament in which you disinherit everybody, including the family cat, and leave all your money to the elm tree in your back yard.

Read a copy of "War and Peace."

Thumb through your childhood picture album and congratulate yourself on the fact that while your hair is thinner, at least your ears don't stick out as far as they did the year you got out of high school.

If none of these remedies solve your rainy-day blues, there is one last resort. Put on your raincoat and rubbers, slash out of the house into the downpour, and look for a rainbow.

One always comes along.

Need For Narcotic

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — The dilemma of Nixonomics is summarized in the admonition, "We must not let controls become a narcotic," delivered by a man who, more so than any recent president, has depended upon controls.

The executive order by Nixon means that the nation will have its second price freeze in less than two years. And when that is ended Aug. 12 it is to be followed by a third attempt since 1971 at controls of a lesser sort.

THIS MAY NOT constitute addiction, but the President's several references to the dangers of a controlled economy, "which would lead us to economic disaster" suggest that he, himself fears the very action he has taken.

He has demonstrated this previously, repeatedly expressing his philosophical distaste for controls, scorning those who advocated them, indicating that he thought such measures weak and expedient . . . and then succumbing, still struggling against the weakness, forced to admit that if life were to be tolerable it might be necessary and even permissible — just this once — to lean on a crutch.

Many economists who consider themselves conservative and establishment have long ago rid themselves of their hangups about some form of mild controls or central direction, believing that a really free economy is only an ideal.

BUT THE IDEAL seems to have persisted in the administration despite some of the most disquieting economic news received by a president since the 1930 depression: inflation, joblessness, devaluation, stock market recession.

The publicly stated ideal, continually contradicted by the deed, was adhered to despite this news, and few economists in the New York corporate world believed the President would permit another freeze.

"THE RANGE of possibilities is wide. It could be as extreme as Phase 1 or as mild as selective tightening here and there. Something in the middle — akin to Phase 2 — seems the most probable."

But most of these economists drive down the middle of the road anyway, fearful of crossing the white line or so prone to habit that they would feel uncomfortable doing so. But they underestimated Nixon's flexibility.

'Histamine Headaches'

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you explain "histamine headache"? It is getting to be quite a "popular" diagnosis.

I was told recently by a neurologist that this was the cause of my attacks, but so far I have not been able to get anyone to explain it to me. — Mrs. C.W.H.

The term, I dare say, is being more used lately, but that type of headache was also diagnosed pretty frequently in the past, only under another name. It is also called Horton's syndrome, histamine cephalgia, and "cluster headaches."

The headache is caused by a sudden release of histamine in the body, and histamine is a blood vessel dilator. Hence the headache, as blood surges through expanded blood vessels. Characteristics of histamine headache are that it comes on suddenly, often at night, and there is severe pain in the eyeball, runny nose and tears from one eye.

It should not be confused with migraine, which is a familiar sort of thing, while histamine headache is not. Nor is it preceded by an aura, or warning signs, as is true of migraine. Attacks usually run their course in about 45 minutes, which is far briefer than a migraine.

The term "cluster headache," incidentally, derives from the fact that several attacks are likely to occur in a short time, followed by a longer period free from attacks.

This particular headache frequently occurs after drinking too much alcohol — sometimes after not drinking very much. Or it occurs in people who are fatigued.

An attack can be allayed somewhat by use of an ergot preparation in suppository form. Incidentally, this is one type of headache which occurs more commonly in men, although women are far from exempt.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that the protein of soybean products is not digested by animals or human beings? — C.T.

No, sir. That's not true. Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a cataract on my right eye, and would like to know what would happen if I do not go through with an operation I had planned. Will this affect the other eye?

I cannot see myself wearing contact lenses as I am a sheet metal worker and my hands are always dirty in this work. — J.T.G.

The cataract has destroyed some or most of the vision in that one eye; otherwise you wouldn't have planned the operation. That eye will continue to lose vision.

Not having the operation will not affect the other eye — but usually when a cataract develops in one eye, a cataract is starting, or will start, in the other eye.

I do not see why your work should stop you from having the operation. You can wash your hands if it becomes necessary to remove or adjust the contact lens — but that isn't something that you are going to have to do every few minutes. For that matter, you could wear appropriate spectacles instead of contact lenses.

MY ANSWER

Billy Graham

As a man of religion, what do you think of the current revival of astrology, fortune telling and hexology? Some of my friends are studying occultism and spiritism. I am somewhat bewildered by all these things. Why are people doing this? — P.G.L.

The last three decades have been a period of extreme secularism and materialism. Science and technology have claimed priority as well. The accent has been on things, accomplishment, power and pleasure. These all have a place, but basically, man is a spiritual creature. I believe the current interest in the occult is man's attempt to revive a contact with the supernatural and with God.

Not only are many people interested in the things you mention, but you must be aware that there is a revival of true religion going on in the world also. Our crusades are attracting more people, with less effort on our part, than ever before. The Jesus people have shown that the young can find meaning and purpose in Christ. Drugs and other artificial stimuli are unnecessary when one discovers a personal relationship with Christ.

I have always appreciated the definition of our soul as a "God-shaped vacuum." In other words, we have a spiritual dimension, a supernatural capacity, which somehow or other, must be served.

If the truth, as the Bible presents it, is not accepted, a whole cafeteria of false spiritual options will be provided to fill the void. May God grant you wisdom as you make your selection.

A Devotion For Today . . .

"Seek the Lord while he may be found, call upon him while he is near." (Isaiah 55:6)

PRAYER: Dear Lord, teach us not to harden our hearts to You, but to humble ourselves in surrender for salvation. In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, Amen.

HUNTING 'THE OLD MAN'

Deadly Narcotics Feud

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Two cousins are fugitives from justice in this South Texas narcotics crossroads. One has been grabbing headlines while the other is quietly sought by U.S. Customs agents.

The headline grabber is Federico Gomez "The Old Man" Carrasco, 33, who is described in law enforcement bulletins as a ruthless killer and whose narcotics organization is involved in a bloody internal struggle. Attention has focused on Carrasco since five of his reputed underworld colleagues were assassinated in the past 100 days.

TRUCK DRIVER

His cousin is Jesus Carrasco "Jesse" Santoy, an ex-convict, erstwhile long-haul truck driver and international traveler.

A customs agent told The Associated Press that Santoy at one time had links with the organization of Auguste Ricord, the "Mr. Big" of world-wide narcotics smuggling.

The agent's boss, William Hughes, whose district includes several thousand miles of U.S.-Mexican borderlands, says, "I don't think we want anybody more than we want Santoy. I'm not clear on Carrasco yet."

Santoy, 40, was supposed to appear for trial in Houston Dec. 3 of last year but did not, forfeiting $150,000 bond. He is charged in federal court there with conspiracy to possess and sell heroin. A new bond on one-quarter million dollars has been ordered.

WATCH OUT

One Bexar County sheriff's investigator, Lt. Alfred Carrson, suggests that Santoy and Carrasco "would like to catch each other."

Santoy's link with the now decimated organization of Auguste Ricord goes back to 1971 when, as one of Hughes' agents tells it, Santoy was introduced to Lucien "The Frenchman" Sans, a Ricord heroin courier.

have been limited to Mexican or "brown" heroin, federal and local investigators say.

"Santoy likes other people, while Carrasco doesn't have the savoir faire about him," says a customs agent here who is looking for both.

There is some talk among local investigators that Carrasco has Santoy on a revenge list—the same list which reportedly has included five gangland figures eliminated here in the past three and one-half months.

The federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, in an official publication, draws a direct line from Ricord through lieutenants Jean Paul Angeletti and William Perrin to Sans. Ricord has been sentenced to prison in the United States and the other three men are in jail in France, says the BND.

GAMBLES

According to the Customs agent, Sans lived in a San Antonio motel for several months in 1971, maintaining a low profile but permitting himself the illicit indulgence of local gambling tables.

The agent says Sans eventually left San Antonio to operate out of Spain, but did not forgo his relationship with Santoy.

"Lucien was who Santoy met all the time in Mexico," says the agent.

Last year, while Santoy was being named in charges in Houston, Carrasco was jailed in Guadalajara, Mexico, after police seized an estimated $20 million worth of heroin and cocaine. Carrasco escaped Nov. 10 in a prison supply truck which belonged to the warden.

The five underworld slayings came after the escape.

TEEN FORUM

UNFAIR? (Q.) I am the oldest of my sisters. It's getting to bother me that the next oldest is always being looked upon by my parents as different. When we have a fight my parents always yell at me, even if she starts it.

She seems to get away with just about anything. She bosses me around and when I answer her back I get yelled at. They never even listen to my side of the story any more.

When I try to watch TV in Mom's room with her she kicks me out. But my sister spent the whole day with Mom yesterday. Whenever Dad spots something interesting he calls my sister, never me.

teen-agers like you, could not improve your lot by a few simple steps:

- (1) Recognize that you and your sister ARE different, and that is one of the big reasons why your parents treat you and her differently. Methods that work with her may not work with you, and vice versa.
- (2) And this is very important: Ask yourself if you love your parents that you love them.
- (3) If your answer is no, try giving them a little love. I talk lovingly instead of combatively.
- (4) When you talk with them, follow these four simple steps, you will be on the road to understanding with your parents. Start now.

She most of the time talks back to my parents and all they do is say they're going to punish her, but they don't. But as soon as I open my mouth I am punished. She throws tantrums and kicks and cries till she gets her own way.

It always works, but if I just ask why, I am in trouble. I usually end up with a bloody lip, never my sister. When I try talking to them I usually get nowhere. Could you please tell me or help me get an understanding with my parents so everything will be OK again. I think they love my sister better than me. — Mistreated in Connecticut.

(A.) Year after year I get letters such as yours. I am definitely against favoritism by parents to one child at the expense of others. I am definitely against brutality by parents. I am definitely against judgments by parents that one child is "good" and one is "bad" and that the treatment of the two children shall be based on that judgment.

But I wonder if you, and other

For What It's Worth

Jack Cowan

Uh, oh, look out. If those reports filtering into the office on the All-Star Game selections are correct, you're liable to see Mark Spitz at first base and Burt Reynolds in center field come July 24 and the annual baseball attraction.

The female vote, you see, is apparently making an impact on the game for the first time as women are accounting for 25 per cent of the total ballots cast. And if this one-to-four ratio with the male vote keeps up, more than a million women will have had a voice in the selection of the starters for the big show in Kansas City.

No doubt the girls have had a hand in making the top vote-getter at this point catcher Johnny Bench — who just happens to be a not-so-bad-looking bachelor for the Cincinnati Reds.

The fact that Bench is hitting around .250 doesn't disturb me much. It's the blanks at the bottom of the ballot for write-in votes that's scary. I mean Ali McGraw might get called in as a relief pitcher, or we might be seeing Martha Mitchell making a catch with her mouth in left field, or even worse.

Actually, it looks like the women know more about the game than they're sometimes given credit. Figures so far show that 22 per cent of the women voters took advantage of the write-in option by adding the names of players not included in the list of nominees. And when comparing husband-wife voting situations, the tabulators have discovered only one instance in which the selected teams matched.

One thing about it though, Commissioner Kuhn had the right thing to say about it: "It's quite fitting for the fair sex to make All-Star selections; after all, women have always been the best judges of men."

While you're thinking about that one, you can get your ballot at places where they have a special Gillette All-Star display is featured, I think. Who knows, maybe we can write-in a new commissioner.

At this point, you can't help but feel sorry for David Clyde, the super young hurler the Texas Rangers signed right out of high school for a $100,000-plus bonus. The poor (?) kid — he's just 18 — skipped the rookie league and all the minors, and the club has built him up so high that they're expecting a record turnout when he starts his first game June 27.

I mean 25,000 folks may not sound like the World Series, but for a guy that's probably never seen more than a few hundred in the stands at one time it could be disastrous. If he gets knocked out of the game in this one, it'll be a lot harder than if he were in Tacoma or Johnson City, Tenn., or somewhere like that.

But when Ranger owner Bob Short sinks that much money into something, I guess he wants to be real sure he gets most of it back — quick.

Tennis Pros Walk Out On Wimbledon

LONDON (AP) — The world's top tennis stars, angered by the suspension of Nikk Pilić, walked out on Wimbledon Wednesday and forced postponement of the draw.

The action by the Association of Tennis Professionals threatened to reduce the world's No. 1 tennis tournament to a second-class event.

Wimbledon's organizers, the All-England Lawn Tennis Club, said the draw scheduled for Wednesday morning now would be made Friday.

The move was clearly intended to allow time for compromise.

A statement from the club said, "This action is being taken to allow all concerned time to consider the situation which has now arisen."

More than 70 stars were involved in the boycott—over half the total entry in the men's singles. They included Stan Smith, the reigning champion from Pasadena, Calif., and 15 of the 16 seeds in the men's singles. Only men players were affected.

The women's singles will go on as planned.

The All-England Club, which runs Wimbledon, was faced with the problem of patching up its shattered tournament at short notice.

It appeared that the draw would have to be postponed and extra players brought in to fill the gaps.

Behind the Pilić dispute is growing resistance by the players to the dictates of their national associations. Pilić, who was a contracted professional for six years and lived most of the time in the United States, was suspended by the Yugoslav Tennis Association because he refused to play for his country in the Davis Cup.

The International Lawn Tennis Federation confirmed the suspension. The All-England Club backed the ILTF and refused to accept Pilić's entry.

Supported by the ATP, Pilić put his case before a high court judge. He asked for injunctions against the ILTF and the All-

England Club that in effect would have quashed his suspension in time for the big tournament.

Judge Sir Hugh Forbes, after legal arguments occupying three days, threw out the application Tuesday with the comment that courts should be slow to interfere with international matters.

The ATP formed last year, has 97 members. Its president, Cliff Drysdale of South Africa, claimed more than 70 would join the boycott.

Drysdale told newsmen the association would take disciplinary action against players who refused to join the boycott.

But when reporters asked whether it would be fair to penalize players from Communist countries who had to do as they were told, Drysdale replied: "No, it would not be fair."

The All-England Club accepted 112 players for the Wimbledon men's singles. A qualifying tournament now is in progress to decide 16 further places.

Gordie Gets His 'Dream'

HOUSTON (AP) — Gordie Howe has signed a $1 million contract and fulfilled a long-time dream of playing on the same team with his sons—now there is only one regret.

"My only regret is I'm sorry I'm not the Gordie Howe I was 10 years ago to fulfill the goals the Aeros have in store for me," the National Hockey League Hall of Famer said Tuesday after signing a four-year contract with the World Hockey Association Houston Aeros.

"It's not too often an individual gets a second chance and that's what the Aeros have given me," Howe said. "A chance to play with my sons."

Howe's sons, Marty and Mark signed four-year contracts for $400,000 each two weeks ago.

Howe, 45, retired from the Detroit Red Wings as a player two years ago and became a vice president in the organization. A wrist injury figured in his retirement but Howe said that won't be a problem.

Indians' Hendrick Remains Silent After Three Homers

By The Associated Press

George Hendrick's three home runs left him speechless—but not in the usual sense.

Hendrick slugged his 11th, 12th and 13th home runs Tuesday night in the first, fourth and sixth innings of the Cleveland Indians' 8-7 victory over Detroit.

You'd think that, with such a phenomenal night at the plate, the Cleveland slugger would be bursting at the seams, waiting for the swarm of sports writers to descend upon him.

Nope. Just a plain old "I have nothing to say." And he said it several times.

In the rest of the American League games, Minnesota squeezed into first place in the West Division with a 7-3 victory over Texas, California knocked Chicago out of the top spot by beating the White Sox 3-1, Oakland pummeled Kansas City 116, the New York Yankees downed Baltimore 5-4 and, in a twilight doubleheader, Boston ended Milwaukee's 10-game winning streak with an 8-4 triumph, then made it a sweep by taking the 11-inning nightcap 4-1.

The Twins moved half a game in front of the White Sox and A's and one game ahead of the Angels and Royals in the Wild West, wrecking Jim Bibby's American League pitching debut and giving Jim Kaat his 187th career victory, tops among active left-handers in the majors.

With one swing of the bat, Winston Lenas sent the White Sox out of the penthouse and saddled 14-game winner Wilbur Wood with his eighth defeat and fourth in a row.

The California pinch-hitter slugged his first major league homer, a three-run shot in the seveninning, to provide Bill Singer with everything he needed to chalk up his 11th victory.

"I've got enough problems of my own to be worrying about the scoreboard," said Kaat. "My record is about the same as last year but I'm not fooling any of the hitters. I've been lucky. It might be a good sign."

Bert Blyleven, 8-7 with four shutouts, has been the only consistent Twins' starter in recent weeks.

Despite giving Texas 10 hits in only six innings, Kaat picked up his eighth victory in 12 decisions as the Twins took advantage of four Ranger errors in claiming a 7-3 victory Tuesday night.

The victory, first in their last six home games, moved Minnesota half a game in front of Oakland and Chicago atop the West Division.

The Twins reacted calmly after hearing Chicago lost 3-1 to California and fell out of first place for the first time since late April.

Minnesota Takes Lead In Division

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Twins held first place in the West Division of the American League today with the feeling that they haven't played their best of the season.

"We really haven't had a hot streak all year," said veteran left-hander Jim Kaat. "Our longest streak has been only four games. If we can get our pitching together, we've got a chance to get a good streak together."

Despite giving Texas 10 hits in only six innings, Kaat picked up his eighth victory in 12 decisions as the Twins took advantage of four Ranger errors in claiming a 7-3 victory Tuesday night.

NFL Players Angered By Drug Accusations

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League players are reacting angrily to their being publicly indicted as a group because of unsubstantiated stories that a few of them may be dealing in drugs.

NFL players polled by The Associated Press unanimously denied knowing of any players dealing in drugs but acknowledged that, if the reports are true, it would be a black mark against the game and that guilty players should be dealt with severely.

And a spot check of players shows they're generally opposed to a congressional proposal that singles them out for urinalysis tests as a means of combatting reported drug use around the league, a plan which the NFL Players Association terms "an outrage" and "irresponsible."

A story in The New York Times last week said at least four NFL stars suspected of dealing heavily in cocaine and hashish are under surveillance by narcotics officials.

"I was kind of shocked when I first heard about it," said Jake Kupp of the New Orleans Saints.

"The thing that upsets us is the way it's being handled—in dealing in drugs.

"The thing that upsets us is the way it's being handled—in dealing in drugs.

NFL players polled by The Associated Press unanimously denied knowing of any players dealing in drugs but acknowledged that, if the reports are true, it would be a black mark against the game and that guilty players should be dealt with severely.

And a spot check of players shows they're generally opposed to a congressional proposal that singles them out for urinalysis tests as a means of combatting reported drug use around the league, a plan which the NFL Players Association terms "an outrage" and "irresponsible."

A story in The New York Times last week said at least four NFL stars suspected of dealing heavily in cocaine and hashish are under surveillance by narcotics officials.

"I was kind of shocked when I first heard about it," said Jake Kupp of the New Orleans Saints.

Padre Star Born In Astro Setback

SAN DIEGO (AP) — It was an occasion most of the San Diego Padres would just as soon forget, considering they tied a club record with their 10th straight loss. But it was a never-to-be-forgotten event for Dave Winfield.

Described as the finest athlete the Padres have ever signed, the 6-foot-6, 225-pound outfielder made his impressive professional debut Tuesday night as Houston handed San Diego its 13th loss in 14 starts, 7-3.

A crowd of 5,338, small by most standards but large under the circumstances, watched Winfield, 21, collect his first pro hit and make an exceptional play fielding a single in the left field corner and throwing out the runner as he tried for second.

"He has more physical tools ever signed," General Manager Peter Bavasi said of the newcomer selected by San Diego as the fourth choice in the first round of the recent draft.

At the moment Winfield is a neophyte at the top of a profession that includes people such as Lee May, who drove in four Houston runs Tuesday night, and Jerry Reuss, 8-5, who was the Astros' winning pitcher.

Winfield, a political science major at Minnesota, has such skills that he was drafted for three different pro sports. The Minnesota Vikings picked him, even though he didn't play football in college. He did play basketball and was drafted by Atlanta of the NBA and Utah of the ABA.

Winfield's first professional game was a 7-3 loss to Houston Tuesday night. He collected one hit, a single in the left field corner, and threw out the runner as he tried for second.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are eager to break up some existing conditions if you have been living right you have gotten a good start in a constructive direction and would be wise to pursue the fine projects you have already started. Keep alert to the new formulas being released that help you make much greater progress.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ideal day to be with charming people during spare time and show you are a cultured and interesting person. If some friend is in trouble give a helping hand and build morale. Don't neglect closest ties.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Handle those career matters in a most exact way as you planned to do yesterday. A higher-up could be demanding. Don't permit interruptions from others. A higher-up could be demanding. Don't permit interruptions from others. A higher-up could be demanding. Don't permit interruptions from others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Your own good nature judgment instead of relying on errant hunches to get your problems solved. Try to be more direct with your friends. What is it you are doing. This can be a very important time. Get rid of them fully. Caution in conversations is wise at any social gathering.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get into the small details of any policy matters that you are involved with. It will be upsetting, but keep mum. If you are in a long run, get busy about that work you promised yourself.

Injured In Collision

COLORADO CITY — Linda Lou Samples, 20, of Colorado City was listed in satisfactory condition Tuesday night in an Abilene hospital after being injured in a two-car accident at 17th and Hickory here Tuesday.

Another Colorado City resident Debra Ann Ruffin, 17, who was driving the other car, was treated for minor bruises and released from Root Memorial hospital.

According to the police accident report, the 1973 Toyota driven by Miss Samples was traveling south on Hickory and the 1965 Plymouth driven by Miss Ruffin was traveling north on Hickory. The two cars collided when each driver attempted to turn from Hickory onto 17th Street.

Miss Samples was taken by private car to Root Memorial Hospital and given emergency treatment. She was then taken to Abilene with lacerations and fractured facial bones.

Two New Department Heads, Faculty Members Are Named

Howard County Junior College as "an outstanding teacher, trustees approved two new department heads — Paul D. Ausmus and Mary Skalicky — the college and the community." The resolution noted the science and fine arts departments at their meeting Tuesday noon at the college.

They set July 17 as the date for the next board meeting of the college; and to the chairmanship of the fine arts department when the current budget will be revised to conform with actual expenditures, also to consider a proposed budget for the college; and to the chairmanship of the department Paul D. Ausmus, Trustees also accepted with the regret the resignation of Kenneth Roach, who is leaving after 12 years as librarian. Roach has been granted a working fellowship at Texas Women's University so that he can post doctoral study and pursue his doctoral studies.

CLEMENTS HONORED

Another faculty member, the last of the original group of in-structors when the college was opened here in the fall of 1946, University of Iowa. He has had a vice in a resolution adopted by the board. John T. Clements, still more in preparation. He head of the science department, also will be sponsor of the year was recognized by Dr. P. W. book, a duty which Mr. Malone, one of the original (and Clements had handled in his still a) member of the trustees, long career at the college. His as the kind of instructor whom total will be $10,300 for the two students want to study under, assignments.

The bidding:
South West North East
3♥ 4♠ 4♥ Dbl.
Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♠

Altho East and West can make four spades on today's hand and will—in fact—actually take 12 tricks on the deal unless South gets off to a diamond lead with East as declarer, they actually suffered a substantial loss when they slipped in defending against South's four heart contract.

South opened the bidding as dealer with three hearts. He had a reasonable expectation of winning seven tricks in his own hand and, as he had almost no defensive strength, a preemptive bid was clearly in order and served quite effectively to hamper the exchange of information between his opponents.

West overcalled with four clubs—with all his values concentrated in clubs, no other action was feasible. North raised his partner to four hearts and East, who was void in West's suit and appeared to have a trick in trumps as well as the ace of spades, chose to make a penalty double. Perhaps he should have inferred some tolerance for his own suit in his partner's hand, inasmuch as the latter was marked with extreme shortness in hearts; yet it is nevertheless difficult to take issue with East's action and a more astute performance in defending on the deal would have assured him a profit on the deal.

West opened the king of clubs, on which East discarded the three of diamonds. The ace was cashed next and the second "stuff was the nine of diamonds. Had West continued with a third club, it would have enabled his partner to discard his remaining diamond—the queen—and thereby prevent declarer from being able to reach dummy for a heart play.

West chose, at trick three to switch to a spade. North played the king and East won the trick with the ace as South followed suit with the queen. Tho a diamond switch at this point was clearly indicated, East chose to return a spade—thereby presenting declarer with an opportunity on which he was quick to capitalize.

South discarded a diamond from his hand and won the trick with North's jack of spades. A small heart was led and when East followed with the deuce, declarer covered cheaply with the six which held when West showed out. (It would not have availed East to split his honors by playing the ten, for South can reenter the North hand with the king of diamonds to lead another heart and finesse against the jack.)

Had East shifted to the queen of diamonds when he was in with the ace of spades, South is in the dummy for the first and last time and, when he leads a heart, East can protect his trump holding by playing the ten of hearts. Declarer cannot reach dummy a second time to repeat the heart play. If he tries with a diamond, East ruffs in for the setting trick.

Water Deliveries At Season's Peak

The Colorado River Municipal Water District came within nearly a million gallons Tuesday of its peak day of production set last year.

Deliveries Tuesday totaled 77,475,000 gallons, said Paschal Odom, assistant general manager. Last year's peak was 78,665,000. Tuesday's figure topped the previous season of 74,820,000 gallons on Monday. Cities required 57,650,000 gallons on Monday, then upped this to 59,460,000 on Tuesday on the strength of Odessa's thirst. Oil companies used 17 million gallons on Monday and 18 million on Tuesday.

Had San Angelo pumped this week, as it has been doing, the district easily would have topped the 80 million mark for the first time in its history.

Most of the water is coming from Lake J. B. Thomas and Lake E. V. Spence, although the Word County field is being pumped daily during off-peak power periods to supply about 10 million gallons of Odessa's water.

Here's the way deliveries to the cities stacked up Monday and Tuesday:

	Monday	Tuesday
Big Spring	11,581,000	11,651,000
Odessa	24,370,000	27,260,000
Snyder	3,580,000	2,550,000
Midland x	17,600,000	17,500,000
Stanton	575,000	500,000
TOTAL	57,650,000	59,460,000

xMidland uses its wells to supply part of its daily requirements.

Sentence Due In Draft Case

A former local resident, who was granted conscientious objector status and was instructed by the local draft board to serve 24 months of alternative civilian service, was found guilty Monday in U.S. District Court in Austin of violating the Selective Service Act.

Richard John Ream Jr., 28, presently of Austin, is now awaiting sentencing at a June 28 hearing. He was found guilty of failing to complete the required two years of civilian employment substituting for military service.

The government presented two witnesses in the case, one of whom testified from a file of records from the Big Spring district selective service office showing that Ream first registered for the draft Nov. 25, 1964 and was granted conscientious objector status in 1968.

Ordered later by the local board to serve two years of civilian employment, Ream went to work in 1970 at Travis State School in Austin but ended his employment 13 months later. The school's personnel director testified that Ream said he had left the school for other employment.

Ream was named in the Selective Service violation complaint Jan. 9 and posted $5,000 bond at the time.

Can Not Rub Out Massage Parlors

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—U.S. District Court Judge William M. Taylor Jr. has let stand an injunction prohibiting suburban Irving from enforcing an ordinance against massage parlors.

The judge declared that parts of the ordinance, which require users of massage parlors to register, invaded a person's right to privacy without "a compelling state need." He also said that a provision allowing city officials to walk in and demand an employe get a physical examination was "arbitrary."

Sam Corey of the Tokyo House and Don Thomas of the Massage Palace went to federal court Tuesday, claiming that their massage parlors would be rubbed out of business if the new city ordinance were applied.

Thomas testified that Joe Bailey, a councilman, told him he was running an illegitimate business and said he would like to get rid of massage parlors.

Bailey told the judge he had received reports of persons engaging in illegal sexual acts at some of the parlors but admitted he had no proof.

Six massage parlors have opened in a one-block area just outside Irving city limits and two more are being added. They are unable to operate in Dallas while another court decision there is under appeal.

When the City of Irving took steps to annex the area, the massage parlors claimed they would be forced out of business by the regulations which they would be applied to them. The owners claimed in their suit that the city law is too vague.

Rodeo Talk Heard At C-C Session

About 40 persons met for the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce breakfast in the Settles Hotel today to hear stories about cowboys and rodeos between mouthfuls of eggs and coffee.

Rodeo producer Tom Stierer, announcer Tom Hadley and trick rider Rex Rossi gave short talks as part of the program presented by Jim Taylor, treasurer of the Big Spring Rodeo Association.

The name of Bob Goodwin was drawn for the $50 door prize but he was not present, Mrs. Barbara Giles, chamber secretary said.
