GETTING INTO THE RHYTHM OF IT - Residents of the Highland addition converged upon the outer reaches of Goliad Street this morning to take part in what has been an annual parade celebrating American Independence Day. The march is short but the spirit intense. The parade was instigated by Mrs. Raymond Torp. Every kind of vehicle but Santa's sleigh and the broom ridden by the Wicked Witch of the North shows up in the hike. In the foreground, young Scott Owens take an active role in the adventure with his tricycle.

You Name It, We Have It In Big Spring

Fireworks, auto daredevils, parades and bell ringing will occur in Big Spring today to celebrate the Fourth of July.

The traditional reading of the Constitution and ringing of Sils presented in a Big Spring Chamber of Commerce ceremony called "Let Freedom Ring" will be at 8 p.m. on the east courthous lawn.

At 8:30 p.m. the Big Spring Raceway will have a stunt driving show presented by a World Champion team.

NO CASUALTIES Hurricane Brushes Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) - Alice, the season's first hurricane, brushed past Bermuda early today, did no major damage and dumped at least two inches of rain that ended a threemonth drought in the British island colony.

No casualties were reported, but the storm confined 10,000 holidaying Americans to their hotels and cruise ships.

A few trees were blown down, and a few electric lines were downed. These were being cleared quickly today amid rain squalls that continued to pelt the island.

KENNEDY JOINS IN HONORING GEORGE WALLACE

Spirit Of America

DECATUR, Ala. (AP) - Sen. Edward M. Kennedy joins in honoring Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace at the Independence Day "Spirit of America" festival here today in a display of Democratic party unity.

Wallace, who will receive the third annual Audie Murphy Patriotism Award, invited the Massachusetts Democrat to make the principal speech at the early evening ceremony. NON-POLITICAL?

Although the event is billed as a nonpolitical, patriotic celebration marking the 4th of of the joint Kennedy-Wallace appearance was underscored by the presence of Robert S. Strauss, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Since taking office last December, Strauss has gone out of his way to woo Wallace and his supporters back into the Democratic fold. He has stressed the importance of winning back the millions of Democrats who refused to support the party's 1972 ticket and

July, the political significance helped President Nixon to a are chiefly nonpolitical, stemmlandslide re-election. Besides thousands of fairgoers, who will spend the day participating and viewing such activities as watermelon-eating and frog-jumping contests, the festival has attracted scores of newsmen to this north-central Alabama industrial city.

ON NIXON'S LIST

The ties between Kennedy and Wallace, both potential 1976 presidential candidates and both listed on the White House "enemies list" introduced in the Senate Watergate hearings, ing from their common experience with personal tragedy. Kennedy, the political heir of two assassinated brothers, has praised the personal courage of Wallace in battling back from the paralysis below the waist suffered in an assassination attempt in May 1972. Kennedy was due to fly here in midafternoon. He was expected to leave shortly after the ceremonies. There has been no announcement as to whether Kennedy and Wallace will meet privately, though such a session is likely before the ceremony.

For Kennedy, the appearance here is the third in the state in recent years. Both of the others were at university campuses, the University of Alabama and Auburn University.

The invitation from Wallace was extended shortly after the two men had a friendly chat when the Alabama governor came to Washington for a meeting of the nation's governor's last February

Nixon Ired At Hassle Over Homes 'Deals'

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) - President Nixon is described as appalled by what he regards as "malicious, unfounded and scurrilous" suggestions that his purchase of an oceanside estate here involved improprieties.

Press Secretary Ronald L Ziegler, hinting he believes an anti-Nixon plot is afoot, told newsmen Tuesday:

"Apparently there are those who want to suggest wrongdoing on the part of the President. They cannot do so because they have no basis in fact whatsoever to do so I don't know where this speculation comes from. I don't know who is stimulating this specula-

Residents who view the fireworks display. which is scheduled to get under way atop Scenic Mountain about 9:30 p.m., this evening, are being urged by local police to respect traffic problems and observe every rule in etiquette of good driving.

Police have also reminded citizens that the fireworks can be seen from throughout most of the city. For that reason, there is no reason for congested traffic to be a problem anywhere in the city.

Residents are also urged to exercise care in handling fireworks, if they plan to have their own displays. The careless all too often suffer personal injury and it is easy to inflict injuries pon others.

The explosion of fireworks, of course, is illegal within the city limits. Thus far this year, Big Spring has avoided a tragic fireworks accident.

replied, "I will simply let you draw your own evaluation as an observer of things that are happening in our society."

Ziegler's angry reactions were prompted by questions about a Los Angeles Times report that special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox had launched a preliminary inquiry into the purchase and improvement of Nixon homes here and in Key Biscayne, Fla.

"A source famailir with the inquiry" was quoted by the Times as saying investigators wanted to know whether any Republican campaign funds or money from labor unions or corporations was used to help finance Nixon's San Clemente purchase.

Cox's office later quoted him as denying that an inquiry was under way. It said he "did not have even the most meager knowledge of the facts" and thus could impute no wrongdoing to Nixon.

Ziegler denied "categorically and absolutely" that any campaign funds or union or corporate monies were involved in Nixon's 1969 purchase of the San Clemente estate for $1.5 million.

The Nixon spokesman said the White House on May 25 had 'stated clearly what the transactions were, and we have stated precisely and clearly how the purchase was undertaken.'

The May 25 statement said an unnamed investment company headed by New York industrialist Robert H. Abplanalp subsequently purchased from Nixon, in an unrecorded transaction, most of the land surrounding the President's home.

Abel Larry Kavanaugh, who shot himseli to death last week, said Tuesday that the U.S. government admitted it killed her husband when it dropped collaboration charges against seven other former prisoners of war. POW Misconduct Charges Dropped former prisoners of war are on their way out of the Army after charges of misconduct against them were dropped.

Two of them say they are considering court action against their accuser, Air Force Col. Theodore W. Guy, commander for five years of a camp near Hanoi called The Plantation.

Two other POWs accused of misconduct while North Vietnamese prisoners are Marines who also had charges by Guy dropped Tuesday. But the Marine Corps said the two-Pvt. Brentwood, N.Y., and Staff Sgt. Alfonso Riate of Santa Rosa, Calif., could apply for reenlistment and their records would be judged on their merits.

An eighth former POW charged by Guy with aiding the enemy and refusing to obey orders died of self-inflicted gunshot wounds last Wednesday.

His death-called an apparent suicide by police-automatically nullified the charges against him, the Marine Corps said, but, a spokesman added. formal clearing of his name would be instituted.

In Denver, the widow of Sgt. Abel Larry Kavanaugh, 24, commented Tuesday: "The dismissal of these charges makes it clear the government realizes is responsible for Larry's death . In bringing these charges, the government, murdered my husband and caused indescribable hardship in the lives of other POWs.' NO EVIDENCE

Sandra Kavanaugh, 22, said she, too, was considering legal action against Guy.

The colonel, reached at his parents' home in Chicago, said, "I personally didn't think the charges had anything to do with (Kavanaugh's suicide)."

Army Secretary Howard H. "Bo" Callaway announced the dismissal of the charges-never publicly specified-against the five enlisted men under his command. He said he dismissed them for lack of evidence.

Fall festivals and other activities led to the construction of a parish hall. The progress of the community was enhanced in 1962 by the West-Tex Telephone Co. telephone exchange and by the paving of the state farm-to-market highway. In 1964, they established a perpetual care cemetery. It was becoming home - a place to live and a place to die.

In 1967, they became a separate parish and the pastor was Father Augustine Lucca. A $28,000 rectory was built and a new $90,000 church was dedicated by Bishop Stephen Leven March 8, 1970.

The church has an active Men and Women's Society, church, hall and cemetery committees and a youth organization. Parents of the parish, whose children attend the public schools at Garden City, have engaged in civic affairs. At present, serving as school trustees are Ed Plagens, Leon Halfmann, George Schwartz and Hubert Frerich in the Glasscock County school district.

In the C.C.D. school in St. Lawrence, the first class included Bill and Dennis Schraeder, Gary Seidenberger and Shirley Hayden. Total enrollment for the 1972-73 year was 135.

The church claims one youth. James Plagens, who became a priest and is pastor of Our Lady of Perpetual Help in Ozona.

The St. Lawrence Community claims that its advance in this quarter of a century has been accomplished "because the people of St. Lawrence have had faith in themselves and in their God."

Declaration Of Independence

The Declaration of Independence, by which our founding fathers took the fateful step of renouncing political ties with the mother country and going it alone as a nation, is a remarkable document in many respects.

It indeed is a statement of high principle, a proclamation to the world of the reasons which provoked this drastic and traumatic step.

It is an enunciation of the thesis that the citizens of the colonies, no less than those of England itself, were entitled to fundamental rights.

This thought was almost at one with Paul in appealing to Rome for his rights as a citizen of Rome. In our instance, thwarted in efforts to obtain satisfaction from the Crown and Parliament in England, the colonies proclaimed their entitlement to the basic rights of "life, liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

Then the declaration made a remarkable statement, which remains to this day as the hallmark of our own democracy, namely that governments must derive just powers from the consent of the governed. The declaration also laid out the principle that underlying other rights was the right "to alter government, to abolish it, and to institute new government."

By stating ursupations of the King (and the indifference of Parliament), the document went

Many of us, in a burst of patriotism, tend to lump the Boston tea party, Lexington, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution into one ball of July 4th wax. That's a poor appreciation of history.

Joe Pickle

A GREAT deal preceded July 4, 1776, when delegates to the Continental Congress completed the historic pronouncement that "it becomes necessary for the people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another," and to proclaim that "we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness.

IN A SENSE, the assertion of these 'rights" brought the quarrel with the British Empire into sharp focus. Parliament, with its varying attitudes of leniency toward colonists, and Crown were in agreement on the doctrine of the "omnipotence of Parliament" to rule all elements of the empire. Remoteness of the colonies, however; led to a lax enforcement of the idea. Colonies set up their own governments and were given considerable latitude in their own affairs. It was natural they came to regard the empire as one of federation rather than consolidation.

WITHIN THE 17th and the first half of the 18th century, this informality gave the Americans a taste of freedom they came to regard as a right. When George III came to the throne, the doctrine of omnipotence of Parliament and the Crown to be more rigidly imposed. One item particularly abrasive to the American colonies was the Stamp Act of 1765, which extracted revenue for the support of their administration - a support most colonies had been giving in varying degree. The colonies grumbled that being required to quarter British troops, pay taxes assessed arbitrarily in England, and to submit to rigid control of commerce was unfair because colonies had no voice in what was being done to them. 'No legislation without representation," they protested.

ALTHOUGH the Stamp Act was repealed, it was left on tea, and this became a symbol in the "tea party" at Boston where bales of tea were thrown overboard. Britain retaliated by closing the Boston port as an example.

But instead of isolating and disciplining Massachusetts, this had the effect of forging a closer union by all the colonies. At the instance of Massachusetts, a Congress was convened at Philadelphia in 1774 with delegates from all colonies. They bridled at British coersion, urged a boycott of importing British goods. In this atmosphere, it was perhaps inevitable that there would be an armed collision . . . and it came at Lexington, touching off what we know as the Revolutionary War.

AT THAT point the majority opinion was against separation from the mother country, although logic did not support this hope. There were few forceful voices or moderation and no effective plan to support such a course; on the other hand Tom Paine in "Common Sense" and others fanned the fires so that when the Continental Congress came back in May, 1776, the consuming question was not one of conciliation but of separation. This was declared formally on July 4, 1776, and the meeting place in Carpenter's Hall became Independence Hall.

Foreign help was necessary to achieve this goal, and an "independent" America give France and others the neded justification to help. England was so occupied on so many fronts, that eventually the Americans won SUSPICIOUS OF centralized power, they operate with what one contemporary described as "an excess of state pride and sad lack of national feeling, and under the Articles of Confederation" which George Washington aptly described as a 'shade without substance." It became increasingly clear that this arrangement was doomed. A convention was called in 1782 and the final product turned out Sept. 17, 1787. The Constitution of the United States of America was made effective by ratification March 4, 1789 .It was not until Dec. 15, 1791 that the first 10 amendments - the "Bill of Rights" and the big handup - was approved.

Schlesinger's Surprise

CONSIGN RELEASED BOOKSEN AND REAL TO AND REAL TO AND REAL TO AN A REAL TO AN A

Robert Novak

But it has to be done today!

Hard-pressed backers of a strong national defense on Capitol Hill and in the White House had confidently expected a robust ally in the new Secretary of Defense, Dr. James Schlesinger, but they are now deeply distressed by his perplexing performance in Brussels a month ago.

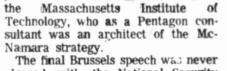

IN OFFHAND remarks during a closed-door NATO ministerial meeting June 7, Schlesinger played down estimates of Soviet strength in Communist Europe. Moreover, both the substance of a prepared speech he made and those who helped prepare it reminded hard-liners of "minimum deterrence" concepts prevailing during Robert S. McNamara's tenure at the Pentagon.

The incident has upset Schlesinger's hard-line supporters, including Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who expected a forceful enemy of unilateral disarmament. It also underlines private contentions of important critics, including White House Counsellor Melvin R. Laird, that Schlesinger is not the man to preach the increasingly unpopular sermon of defense preparedness.

SCHLESINGER'S words at Brussels remain secret. But official Pentagon sources concede that, during impromptu remarks, Schlesinger reduced estimated Soviet strength in central Europe by 35 divisions by omitting Sovie roops saiond in1/43/8 ommitting Soviet troops stationed in Hungary (which is also Moscow's position).

Worried NATO ministers came away with the distinct impression Schlesinger was telling them NATO's intelligence estimates of Soviet strength were badly bloated. Their understandable conclusion: Uncle Sam was preparing for a unilateral troop withdrawal which would change the military and political face of Europe.

BACK IN Washington, Defense insiders were as much concerned by who contributed to Schlesinger's Brussels speech as by what it contained. Schlesinger requested help from Prof. William W. Kaufman of have been planted.

cleared with the National Security Council (NSC). Not even Dr. Henry Kissinger, the all-powerful NSC director then negotiating with the North Vietnamese in Paris, saw it.

THOSE SAME NSC staffers had rejoiced two months ago when the Watergate scandal forced President Nixon to shift Elliot Richardson, suspected of dovish deviationism. from Defense to Justice and replace him with CIA director Schlesinger. Not in the cheering section, however, was ex-Defense Secretary Laird, then briefly in private life.

LAIRD AND Schlesinger have carried on a low-grade feud throughout the Nixon administration. When the White House recommended Schlesinger as an assistant Secretary of Defense in 1969, Laird turned him down mainly because of his Rand background. At the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), Schlesinger unsuccessfully opposed the new Trident weapons system favored by Laird and privately passed word that much more fatcouldbe cut from the Pentagon budget.

THE HOUSE must vote articles of impeachment, which would be a lengthy and deeply disruptive process. Then the Senate must sit as a court with the chief justice presiding. In this case Chief Justice Warren Burger was appointed by President Nixon, and he would certainly be at odds with the Democratic majority trying the President. Thus a further element of dissension would be injected into about it. I have a long patch what would surely be a fierce conflict on each side of my upper lip enduring for weeks if not months.

Republicans who recoil in horror from the very word impeachment seem to forget that they instituted that proceeding not long ago. Rep. Gerald Ford, minority leader in the House, proposed to impeach Justice William O. Douglas for "high crimes and misdemeanors" and he was joined by 109 other members. Ford asserted that an "impeachable offense" is whatever the House with concurrence of the Senate "considers 'it to be." Seeming to give the Congress unlimited power, this shocked many observers.

AFRICANS, ARABS, ASIANS FIND IT TOUGH TO GET WORK PERMITS Slave Trade: It Saves Smugglers From Extinction

By THOMAS NUZUM Copley News Service

PARIS - Revival of the slave trade has saved Europe's smugglers from extinction. The European Common Market was putting them out of business. Alpine avalanches smothered more than one cigarette smuggler. But what finally snuffed out theirprofession was equalization of Euromart cigarette taxes on both sides of the French-Italian border. LIQUOR TAXES

The flow of contraband Scotch whisky across the North Sea will dry up as a result of Britain's admission to the Euromart. Liquor taxes are being equalized on both sides of the water

But trawler captains from France, the Low Countries and Germany no longer need to bootleg to make up for the declining fish catch. It is just as lucrative to run Indians or Pakistanis to Britain. SMELLY HOLE

They pay $240 a head just to cross the English Channel in a smelly hole. Italian smugglers now cruise comfortably through the Mount Blanc tunnel at the wheel of false-bottomed trucks. Negroes are stashed under the cattle

A desperate driver recently pleaded with French police to break open his sealed truck of "sewing machines" after it broke down. He preferred going to jail rather than have the 59 West Africans inside smother.

They paid $150 apiece for the privilege of traveling like sardines, breathing tanked oxygen and the fumes of their excrement.

LIKE SARDINES

Portugese peasants sell their dust farms to raise $400 for an illegal journey into France. Part of that goes to Basques who guide them around customs officers in the Pyrenees Mountains

Herding two-footed cattle is much more profitable for Basque smugglers than the four-footed ones of yore. Rising prices in Spain are overtaking the cost of horse meat in France, so there is little profit left in driving nags through the passes.

Poor southerners who get work permits in northern Europe have been called voluntary slaves because they gratefully put up with crumby housing and segregation for the minimum legal wage.

$1 AN HOUR

But every prosperous country in Europe has put a lid on southern immigration to avoid being swamped. That includes tolerant Switzerland and the postage-stamp principality of Liechtenstein

Africans, Arabs and Asians find it tough to get work permits. Portugese can get permits, but have trouble getting permission to leave their own land. So they sneak north. That means they might have to put up with even less than the minimum wage ($1 an hour in France). They can't complain about discrimination for fear of being expelled for illegal entry.

Ten thousand Indians and Pakistanis each scrape up $1,000 to $2,000 every year to get themselves smuggled into Britain. This estimate is based on the number of Asians who get as far as the European continent on tourist visas, then vanish without a trace

NOT BLACK

They aim for England after being expelled from Commonwealth countries in Africa because they are not black.

They already hold British passports. But being a British subject does not necessarily entitle you to live in Britain. Not since an 8,500-a-year ceiling on "colored" immigrants was slapped on in 1950. (Compare that to the 10,000 Negroes who move freely to Chicago each month.)

Europe is where the northern U.S. states would be if the South had won the Civil War and quit the Union. Poor southern whites and blacks would need permits to work in northern cities because they would not be citizens.

Northerners might be tempted to do like northern Europeans - let in enough southerners to sweep the streets, but not enough to have unemployment and urban overcrowding.

RUGGED ROLES

Immigration restrictions are tough on poor southerners who have to stay home. But it works out nicely for the lucky few that manage to go north. Once they get there, it is easier to find a laborer's job than it is for northerners with university degrees to get white collar jobs - albeit much better paid ones.

That is no consolation for the 25,000 Africans and Portugese stranded in Barcelona after being turned back from the Pyrenees by French or Spanish police.

The Euromart executive commission wants to freeze northern Europe's immigrant population at the present level of 4 per cent.

Braves Trip Houston, 1-0

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) - The Atlanta bullpen didn't have much to do Tuesday night. And Braves pitcher Carl Morton, who scattered 10 hits as Atlanta trimmed the Houston Astros 1-0, was happy with the situation.

"I promised the bullpen I would give them a rest," Morton said after the National League baseball game. "I owed it to the bullpen. I have had leads many times recently, only to pitch badly and cause them to have to come in."

Morton, now 7-6, allowed 12 base runners but never more than one in an inning until the last three, when he worked out of jams.

"The whole ball game was hairy and there were few easy innings," he said. "In fact, don't remember a one. My trouble is that I can't get that third strike past batters. I can get two strikes but an 0-2 situation gives me fits."

Morton struck out five Astros, walked one and was helped by a pair of double plays.

The Braves tapped Houston's Dave Roberts for their lone score in the second inning. Dusty Baker led off with a single, went to third on Dave Johnson's single and scored on Mike Lum's grounder.
