H. C. Randolph Is Injured When Pitched Into Canyon

85 Year-Old Cowboy Proves Hardhood Can Still 'Take It'

It takes more than an unexpected dive from the back of a horse to the bottom of a canyon to put an old-time West Texan "out of commission," according to what happened to H. C. Randolph, 85 year old Floyd County rancher, last Friday.

Mr. Randolph was at a camp eight miles northeast of his home feeding out cattle when the accident occurred. He was riding down into the canyon when his horse suddenly started pitching, probably because it was goaded by a grubbing hoe and ax which it carried. Albert Randolph, a son, said. After being thrown from his horse into the canyon Mr. Randolph lay there unconscious for about two hours and then, regaining consciousness, made his way back to his camp.

Sunday morning Will Randolph, another son, went to the camp to see about his father. He found him somewhat bruised but still going about his duties. He brought him back to the Randolph home and by Tuesday had persuaded his father to let a doctor "fix him up." But Mr. Randolph overruled his son's suggestion by saying, "I'll go to Floydada myself to see the doctor. It'll cost less."

Although he was badly bruised and scratched, Mr. Randolph suffered no broken bones in his plunge into the canyon.

H. C. Randolph, 85 year old Floyd County cowboy, shown above, proved last week to his friends that he can still "take it"—meaning he still possesses those hardy traits of the early day cowboy. Mr. Randolph, after suffering a long fall from the back of a pitching cowpony into the canyon, emerged with only a few bruises and scratches.

Floydada appears to have been favored in the decision of a Interstate Commerce Commission examiner's report which was released last mid-week, the effect of the report being to approve the petition of the Quanah, Acme & Pacific Railway Company for application of through joint rates via Floydada in connection with the Panhandle & Santa Fe Railway Company.

The case had been before the State Railway Commission, in the courts and before the Interstate Commerce Commission for four years, first move having been made by the Santa Fe when they obtained an order closing the gateway from the State Railroad Commission. When the matter went into court it was determined the Interstate Commerce Commission had jurisdiction, following which hearings were held in Floydada and Oklahoma City.

The Floydada Chamber of Commerce had intervened as an interested party in the case, representing local business interests, and witnesses from Floydada had appeared in the hearings here and at Oklahoma City.

It was not learned here whether action before the commission would be sought by the Santa Fe in the case.

SOME WHEAT, ANYHOW

With April a third gone and wheat going great guns in plains fields it is evident "there will be some wheat, anyhow."

TAXES WILL TAKE A GOOD SLICE

There is not an unalloyed pleasure at the foretaste of possible profit from a good wheat crop and, let's hope, a good row crop to follow.

CORPORATIONS GET A REAL RIDE

It is the corporations which are being taken for a real ride in the new tax set-up. Practically all the tax laws are designed particularly to hit industry which has been put into being through this type of organization.

ARE SEASONS EARLIER?

Are seasons earlier now, is wheat changing its ways, or what does it mean that, whereas the wheat harvest used to be getting well under way on July 4 it is not at all unusual for these times for the crop to be in process of harvesting by June 1.

We could have asked a wheat grower this and had an answer so simple, probably, there would have been no sense in the asking. And we would have had nothing to write about here.

IRRIGATION AREA INCREASES

The area of proven irrigable land in Floyd County has doubled in the past six months or twelve. Cheaper power plants, tempting fields that produce highly even in the driest year, have served to cause hardy souls to experiment and spend their money on the gamble of it with the result that wells have gone down by the dozens.

HOW MUCH WATER UNKNOWN

Arguments that began twenty years ago when irrigation first was introduced on the south plains are still going on unabated about the source of supply of the water that underlies several counties and how much there is of it.

The supply is not inexhaustible, of course. And how much there is of it and how it can be best used for the welfare of the country will some day be known.

A REAL WATER SURVEY

It is one of the possibilities that out of recent heavy impulse given the irrigation program of the plains country there may come a real survey of the water supply of the region, including its sources.

Man has a difficult time in his years following adolescence and preceding maturity in finding the medium through which his personality is more easily and perfectly expressed.

The quicker a real water survey the better for a region that is bigger than many of the states in the union.

RURAL ELECTRIFICATION

Newspaper reports last week gave it that an application from Deaf Smith County farmers for a rural electrification program had been approved and that the lines would be built.

While the Floyd County application seems to be a much larger one than the Deaf Smith County project includes, it is encouraging to the local proposal that that project has been passed upon favorably and is due for actual construction.

PRICES STILL CLIMB

Prices still climb in most of the essential lines, and the day has not come when buyers think the top has been reached. While every evidence is given that the public is holding back in an effort to keep prices down, the trend is upward and in a sky rocket sort of way in some lines.

Miracle of miracles! The sand did not choke participants and watchers-on at the field and track day of the interscholastic league meet. In fact there was so little of the earth flying about that it was scarcely noticeable.

Notice where Governor Allred has met the sit-down strike agitators with a firm stand to prohibit any such tommy-rot in Texas.

Many say that the advent of sit-down strikes heralds the dawn of a new era of prosperity. I might have said that myself. It sounds familiar. But I've changed my mind or rather my forecast.

Anyone can see that when workers are organized in huge proportions to get such advantages over their employers as they are now receiving in many industries, it is a step toward the elimination of private capital and industry and thence a step to communism.

After 150 Years Uncle Sam Has Finally Put His Jig-Saw Map Together

WASHINGTON—Uncle Sam's gigantic jig-saw puzzle—it has been bothering him for 150 years—finally has been put together.

The last piece fitted snugly into place the other day in the map-making offices of the United States Geological Survey after the Supreme Court had settled a back yard boundary dispute between New Hampshire and Vermont.

Settlement of the New Hampshire-Vermont boundary problem, after a century and a half of dispute, results in each of the 48 states knowing exactly where it begins and ends. The map of the United States is that inextricably linked together.

New Hampshire's jurisdiction has been fixed as beginning with the original low water line of the Connecticut river on the west bank. This line, extending a distance of more than 200 miles, has been in dispute so long that both states had collected taxes from certain property owners and there was constant argument as to which should maintain bridges and control powerhouses on the river.

Now the small-scale maps and a few big ones can tell the right story. The mighty jig-saw is complete—or rather practically complete, says the Geological Survey. If you want to omit that one mile of boundary under dispute between Virginia and the District of Columbia. And, of course, provided other states don't pop up with new claims as settlements and rivers bring changes.

States are quite apt to do just that, the Survey points out. Fitting together of the map has continued since the earliest days of the United States' formation. The states which now bear the name of the original 13 have changed considerably in shape and size. In some cases litigation continued in the courts decades before final settlement, as witness New Hampshire's case.

Of all the states, however, Texas has been most active in defense of its boundaries. That state has engaged in litigation concerning its eastern boundary on the 100th meridian, its western boundary on the 103rd meridian, the short stretch along the Rio Grande which separates it from New Mexico, and the area bordering the Red river which was claimed by Oklahoma.

purchase power at a fairly constant level can we look toward having a balanced economic system. Higher taxes will siphon off surplus income and profits so they can be poured back to low-income or no-income groups which are without purchasing power.

Popular arguments among administration economists are that drawing surplus income off the top in taxes, will divert it from stock market speculation and will avert threatened inflation and a subsequent depression. They think too, that this method will let the money filter through to the poorer classes through federal relief spending, that as a result it will be possible to balance the budget without denying relief benefits, and finally that by moving taxes up a notch the administration will make a beginning toward balancing the budget.

In its friendship for organized labor and sympathy with its desire for higher wage levels, the administration has been embarrassed by widespread strikes. Most workers have almost no purchasing power when they are on strike, and even if they win their fight for higher wages, their real purchasing power may not be much increased.

The new Supreme Court minimum wage decision has complicated the issue in any debate on the President's proposed court reform. The court, which had previously interpreted the Constitution to say that states could not have minimum wage laws for women and children, has now decided that such laws are constitutionally permissible.

Justice Owen J. Roberts, youngest member of the high bench, who voted against the New York minimum wage in the 5 to 4 decision, has now given his support to Washington state's minimum wage law in a favorable 5 to 4 decision.

Opponents of the President's court plan say the court has proved it can function flexibly on issues of major social and economic importance. Administrationists say the decision will help them convince the country that the Constitution isn't a fixed, immutable document and that the court is not compelled to interpret it along hard and fast lines.

Both sides claim to have benefited greatly but the air doesn't seem to have cleared over the battlefield.

Meanwhile, what about food prices? Well, that will be met by advancing wages to people who work, by increasing aid to people suffering from unemployment, perhaps, by eating less of the part of those who neither work nor are supposed to work. Community Weekly.

And cloven hoofs on until the trail reaches a soggy chute where a blunt hooves, between trusting eyes, shatter the prismatic reflection from lost horizon of fealty.—Las Meador in Matador Tribune.

It is reported that President Roosevelt will soon call a conference of European powers to discuss their troubles and work out a program for permanent peace. He will do nothing of the kind. Conditions in the Old World are such that no outsider is to get a proper slant on them. There is a rumor from Washington that the world has gone to no funds will be available for and water conservation work at Panhandle and Dust Bowl, unannounced Supreme Court enlargement proposal of the President is agreed.

puted their boundary at Green Bay, Rock Island Passage, and Lake Michigan. Colorado and New Mexico once could not agree on their boundary. Uncertainty as to the boundary between Michigan and Ohio in Lake Erie led to an investigation and introduction of a joint resolution in the legislatures of both states. This has been passed by Ohio and may pass the next session of the Michigan legislature.

A PORTION of the boundary between Arkansas and Mississippi was re-surveyed and, as a result, Arkansas acquired about five square miles of territory. The Mississippi river has caused many land disputes between Tennessee and Arkansas.

Courts were called upon to settle a dispute between Georgia and South Carolina concerning the ownership of islands in the streams forming the boundary between the two states.

Similarly, the Delaware River caused difficulties between Delaware and New Jersey. New Jersey had claimed the center of the stream as its boundary. The Supreme Court finally placed the boundary of the New Jersey bank, near Salem, off the northeast corner of Delaware. The change, as many other cases, caused complications, for New Jersey interests had built wharves and docks in the river and they are now in DeWaters.

But these are only a handful of the troubles of government map-making. It has been a long struggle getting that old jig-saw together. And it's going to stay together insofar as Uncle Sam can help it, subject, of course, to the whims of rivers, which change all maps.

Hamrick Family Named Outstanding In Home Accomplishment Plan

The family that is outstanding in accomplishments of those visited by Ita R. Parrish, Home Supervisor of the Resettlement Administration, last week is that of Clinton Hamrick, who lives 14 miles northeast of Floydada. The Hamrick family moved to this place about January 15, "and since that time have moved everything except the windmill," said Miss Parrish.

"The house was turned to face the road, remodeled, stuccoed, and is now canvassed ready for papering. Trees, flowers and shrubs planted by the Hamrick family make a very attractive setting.

"The improvements include a new barn and chicken house. The garden was moved to a new location and fenced and plowed and is now ready for planting. They have five dozen Buff Minorca chickens that are laying 3 and 4 dozen eggs per day. Because of good quality they get a premium on eggs at hatcheries. They have an incubator setting on 110 eggs. The incubator is in the new cellar which was dug and completed after they took the place over.

"Spotless linens with hand work add to the appearance of the home. This is the result of ambition, a co-operative landlord, and RA assistance. We are proud of this family and hope they can soon be using their efforts on a place of their own," said Mrs. Parrish.

Mrs. W. M. Patterson, of New Home, Texas, is here visiting her son, Jess, and daughters Mrs. Dillard Scott, Mrs. Paul Newberry and Mrs. Irwin Newberry.

ges of sin is death" when man chooses the wrong way. Nor can sin be regarded as part of man's progress as he learns by his mistakes. The unfortunate part is that men too widely, and too terribly, sin despite their knowledge of a better way.

THE CHOKER'S ON YOU

—it drains your gas tank 5 to 15 times faster than normal

Watch out for this pickpocket! The choke is guilty, say automotive scientists, of stealing your mileage and your money. In laboratory and road tests, they have actually measured your loss and proved that every time you pull out the choke, the gasoline consumption of your motor is increased five to fifteen times. This explains why Phillips 66 Poly Gas gives such amazing economy. Being higher test, it requires the least possible choke. And it is higher test without higher price, because Phillips is the world's largest producer of natural high test gasoline. Cool days, warm days, snowy or rainy days, in any weather you get remarkable economy with this 100% custom-tailored gasoline. Besides, every gallon has the extra energy units supplied by the patented POLYmerization process. So if you want more pep and power, want faster response to the throttle, extra speed and added mileage—the gasoline you want is Phillips 66 Poly Gas. It costs nothing extra and it's easy to get. Just keep an eye out for the Orange and Black 66 Shield. Stop... fill up... and your very first trial tankful will prove there is a difference. CHANGE YOUR OIL... NOW! Drain and refill with Phillips 66 Motor Oil... for summer lubrication. Because it is the finest lubricant refined by Phillips, we recommend it as "the world's finest oil for your motor."

Book Review Given For 1929 Study Club By Mrs. W. B. Hall

"Grandmother Brown's Hundred Years" by Harriet Brown was given in a very original and interesting manner by Mrs. W. B. Hall of Plainview at the meeting held by the 1929 Study Club Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. O. Clite.

"Grandmother Brown's Hundred Years" is a story of a typical pioneer mother who lived to be one-hundred three years old. Through her experience as the mother of eight children she found understanding of life. Having often stood beside the portals of sorrow she was disillusioned and disappointed again and again. But having a firm faith in God she lived his heavenly embracing all the joy, anguish, hope and despair that came her way, rising above it all, making it all her own, Mrs. Hall said.

And continued by saying, "The sophisticated might be more interested in the observation of her life had Grandmother Brown been a woman of literary attainment or social prominence. However, the people who made America were neither literary nor sophisticated, but were courageous with high ideals. Hence the appeal of this epic to the mass of men and women."

Harriet Amber Brown, daughter-in-law of Grandmother Brown is author of the book and made her debut to write it after attending a celebration on her 100th birthday.

This was one of the most enjoyable meetings of the year and Mrs. Hall in relating this drama of life had her listeners first in laughter then in tears.

Two other very delightful numbers on the program were, "The Black Hills of South Dakota" discussed by Mrs. Conner Odor and "Rivers and Lakes of the Middle West" by Mrs. C. N. Martin. Miss Sophie Ward played "Sonatina" by Chopin which was enjoyed very much by the group.

The next meeting of the club will be on Thursday evening, April 22 at 7:30 o'clock at the American Legion Home. This will be an open house meeting and Mrs. J. E. Enderidge will review the book, "Come with the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell.

Rate of Progress in Serving Soil and Moisture Noted

Walking' Water Farmers Learn to Make Water Crawl Back and Forth Over Land

Note.—What strides Floyd farmers are making in handling their farm lands is told here in a recent talk made by W. E. Edgins, one of the pioneers in terracing, over KFYO radio station, a convincing story of conservation and economy as contrasted with former practices of waste of water resources that are being conserved in the great area.

By W. B. Jordan
 In the past three years a considerable amount of terracing and contouring has been done. The dry season, short crops coupled with the information given out by the Experiment Station that we are getting plenty of rain fall in the county to make a crop if we could conserve the water in an economical way. The County Agricultural Agent, his assistants, and the terracing community sponsors together with the NYA have been able to assist hundreds of farmers in Floyd County in having terracing and contour lines run on their farms. The Agricultural Conservation Program has also helped tremendously in getting farmers to realize the value of terracing. The Department of Agriculture thought enough of terracing and contouring that they listed the building of terraces and the proper contouring of land as a soil building practice but they listed this practice for the purpose of conserving moisture and land. The Agricultural Conservation Program for 1937 again stresses the building of terraces, the contouring of land for the wheat and grain sorghum area more than it did last year and not only have they listed this practice as a soil building practice but they listed them also as a soil conserving practice so it can easily be seen that farmers should realize the value of this work that the Department of Agriculture is doing all in their power to get farmers interested in this particular type of work which is for several reasons. The farmer should see the value from his own financial standpoint but on the other hand the government is looking still further ahead and that is to conserve the lands so that they will be profitable for agriculture for future generations.

One of the most enjoyable days spent by Floyd County farmers was on March 7, 1936 when 100 farmers from Floyd County spent a day on the Spur Experiment Station studying farm operations on the experimental farm. At this station, R. E. Dickson, superintendent of the farm, took great pride in showing our farmers what they had on the experiment farm in the way of water conservation. At this farm water was taken off of some twelve hundred acres of land and brought down on the farm by sump pan method of terracing and it was very interesting to our farmers when they were told that it was only twice in a period of four years that the water ran all the way through the farm to the lower side after some of the heaviest rains in years. After over a period of ten years. After seeing this type of work a number of farmers immediately made plans to have lines surveyed on their farms in such a way that they could take care of all the excess water. In many cases now we find that farmers are taking advantage of water which some neighbor is overlooking at the present time. Farmers are contacting the Commissioners' Court for the privilege of taking water from the bar ditches along the road and diverting them into the fields with the sump pan method of terracing. The system of contouring and terracing has also been very interesting in several ways as our county has numerous lakes and in many cases the lakes have been robbed of their water by farmers taking advantage of the water before it gets to the lakes. Another very interesting fact with reference to lakes in our county: when constructing the new highway through the county it was necessary in several instances to build the highway through the lakes, building high road bed and after large rains traffic would sometimes be held up for several hours but after farmers gained the knowledge of terracing and contouring their land along the highway it was noticed last summer after we received our very heaviest rains traffic was able to use these roads as usual as the overflow water stayed in the fields and never reached the lowlands, or lakes which had before been a menace to the highway department. Another very interesting subject which our farmers took advantage of on the Experiment visit was the demonstration on pasture lands which had been contoured and listed at 6 feet intervals. As most of the pastures in our county had been overgrazed and stumped out until grazing was practically nil, this demonstration caught the eye of almost all of our farmers who had small pastures and during the spring and summer some twenty or thirty farmers of this county contoured listed their pastures and every one reported some very gratifying results and it is expected that many thousands of acres of pasture land in Floyd County will be contoured listed and terraced in 1937 and especially so since the ranchers have also been given a program under the Range Conservation which also lists terracing and contouring as a range building practice. Many of the above pasture demonstrators reported that their grass stayed greener and produced three or four times more abundantly where they had contoured listed than on places which were not contoured. Some farmers listed their entire pasture on three foot intervals and they also reported very favorably, having an abundant pasture and mesquite grass which had produced no grasses of this kind prior to the contouring. It is the opinion of our Agricultural authorities that with the excessive winds which the plains county has that these seeds are blown and washed over the country and if the ground is listed or loosened up in such a way that the seed will be able to germinate it will produce good forage but it is very easy to see that if pastures are permitted to be overgrazed and constantly stomped until the ground becomes of such a state that it will not absorb moisture it is very difficult for the grass seed to germinate and maintain a sufficient growth. But with the contouring listing fresh soil is broken up which gives the grass seed which have collected on the surface over a period of years, by the blowing of the winds and the washing of the rains, a chance to produce and at the same time give the farmer sufficient pasture for his livestock.

To date very few pastures have been terraced but under the Range Building Program the County Agricultural Agent and the County Range Inspector have been requested by a number of ranchers to help and assist them in running lines on their ranch land for the purpose of constructing small terraces and spreader dams on their range land. These ranchers are beginning to profit from the experience of their neighbor farmers who have taken advantage of the conservation of water years before. During January of this year the County Agricultural Agent was successful in securing the services of NYA sponsor with the help of eight youths. These boys were worked in pairs so that the sponsor would have two boys each day who would go out in the field and assist farmers in running lines on their farms and pasture lands. This was a very welcome program due to the fact that the Agricultural Agent and the terracing demonstrators of the county were being heavily called on for this particular type of work. In many cases the farmer had attended numerous terracing demonstrations but he was more or less skeptical about doing his own surveying. He would always welcome the services of some one who had had more experience. The NYA sponsor being a man of engineering qualifications and who had had quite a bit of experience in running of terracing lines he was successful in getting 5600 acres terraced. The cost of constructing these terraces in Floyd County have been exceptionally small. In most cases the terraces were built on a 6 inch water fall ranging in height from 12 to 18 inches and 30 to 40 feet wide at the base. In most cases the county road machinery was used for this work and in very few cases the cost of building a terrace of this kind did not exceed 50 cents per acre, the average price being 30 cents per acre. In some sections of the county, which is below the caprock, the average price has been around 50 cents. Mr. Stiles, who is the sponsor of the NYA Project in this county,

Sliding In Safe

If he appears a bit distorted in this picture, don't blame Dick Gyselman, third baseman for the Seattle Indians. Dick, in spring training with the Indians at Santa Monica, California, happened to slide right into the camera and this is the unusual result. He's safe, apparently, by a hand—a couple of hands, in fact.

reports that every 160 acres on which he has run terrace lines 5 1/2 miles of terraces have been constructed. The NYA sponsor was also successful in getting contour lines run on some 4000 acres of cropland. The County Agricultural Agent, his assistant, and community terracing sponsors have also been successful in getting contour lines run on 5000 acres during the winter. The wheat farmer in this county has been more or less skeptical in regard to terracing his wheat land due to the fact that it would be inconvenient in the harvesting of his crop with the combines which are used in this section of the state. I wish to digress long enough to sight you to several wheat farmers of Floyd County who have proven that terracing of wheat is successful, economical, and also very profitable. G. W. deCordova of the Allmon community terraced 300 acres of wheat land in 1934 and found that he could very easily combine his wheat by combining with the terraces and after finishing his entire field he would raise his elevation high enough so that he could go down each terrace row. Mr. deCordova proved to his neighbors in 1934, 1935, and 1936 that he could run a combine over terraces successfully and at the same time produce from four to eight bushels more per acre than his neighbor. Mr. deCordova is this year terracing his entire farm which consists of 700 acres. Another farmer who has been successful with the contouring and terracing of wheat land was J. M. Sandusky of the Muncy community who last year contoured, drilled and terraced sixty acres of wheat land and produced 18 bushels of wheat per acre on his farm where others averaged eight to four bushels per acre. This one demonstration has caused several hundred more acres being terraced in that immediate community and it is expected by the County Agricultural Agent and the local Agricultural Conservation Committee that many thousands of acres of wheat land in Floyd County will be terraced and contour listed during the summer of 1937 as the Agricultural Conservation Program is offering particular advantage to the wheat farmers in this area in contour listing and terracing of their acreage.

One of the major terracing demonstrations is being carried out on J. A. Taylor's place located below the caprock in the northeast corner of the county in the community known as Edgin. This farm being in the brakes afforded an unusual situation. A points in his field water drained from pasture above the field is very rough with gullies and small ridges approximately 200 acres of this land has been terraced with the county road machinery at a cost of approximately 50 cents per acre. The terraces are very substantial averaging between two and one-half and three feet in height and twenty-five to thirty-five feet at he base. With these terraces he is carrying water to all parts of the field some of which had not received much rainfall the last several years.

In the South Plains community on a farm belonging to E. F. Springer there has been constructed 12 miles of terracing on an 18 inch drop between terraces. These range from ten to twenty-four inches high and from twenty to thirty-five feet at the base. The upper terrace is constructed so as to pick up water from the bar pits from the side of the road and carry it to the end of the field where it goes on to the second terrace and on through the sump pan system to the lower side of the field covering some 175 acres. These terraces were built with the road maintainer. The cost of the entire job was a little over $100.00 making the cost of each acre a little over 50 cents. J. E. McLain of the Sand Hill community terraced 40 acres of land in 1934 but as he was somewhat new at the game he failed to build his terraces high enough to take care of his particular needs but was sold on the terracing idea from the start. This winter Mr. McLain adopted a complete terracing program for his entire farm. He carefully surveyed all of his land so as to take care of all of the available water which was being neglected by his neighbors. He hired the services of the county road machinery and constructed terraces at every six inch water fall, building them two feet high and four feet wide at the base. Mr. McLain's terraces are so constructed to not only catch and hold the available moisture but are constructed large enough to back the water from one terrace to the other.

Harry Morckel of the Floydada community has also constructed some very nice terraces on a particularly piece of land which is exceptionally rolling and it had not produced a crop in the past few years. Mr. Morckel has taken advantage of water from bar ditches which drained several acres of land and has sump pan terraced this water over a sixty acre field very similar to the Spur Experiment Station proposition.

It has been my experience and observation for the past ten years that the terracing and contouring is very profitable to farm and of this area and also that it is no expensive to the farmer. That is, if he is not in position to hire large machinery he can construct a V-type drag of his own which will very successfully complete the job. The only trouble, however, that it is considerably slower and many of us farmers have a tendency to draw back when work runs into very much time. The last month I constructed a new type V drag terracer which was designed by Mr. McCullough, Agricultural Engineer for the State of Oklahoma. I was successful in getting a blue print of this particular type of terracer and built one large enough for four horses or twelve feet at the base. This terracer cost me $15.00 complete figuring labor and material and is much easier to operate than the old V-type drag and it is considerably faster and will build terraces quite a bit higher. This terracer can be used at odd times on the farm in building and maintaining terraces and it is my opinion that every farm should have one of these terracers.

BLAZE EXTINGUISHED WHEN SACK OF FLOUR IS USED FOR AN OIL STOVE BLAZE

One of the landmarks in Floydada, the residence of Mrs. Sarah K. Duncan on East Houston Street, was saved from damage or possible destruction by fire Tuesday morning at 8:30 when Miss Wealdon Wempe, a roomer, used presence of mind and a sack of flour to extinguish a blaze from an oil stove that got out of control.

Except for moking up the house and damaging linoleum the loss was negligible, and the fire was under control when the fire department reached the scene.

Fairview News

In the Interscholastic League meet the Fairview school pupils acquitted themselves very creditably indeed. Jimmie Hicks placed first in Story Telling for rural schools. The Junior Spelling team, composed of Ella B. Crabtree and Doyle Walls placed second in the county, ranking even above Lockney and Floydada. The Choral Club placed fourth for rural schools. L. D. Fowler placed second for rural schools in declaiming the bar. Our Junior declaimers, Lula Lee Teal and Eddie Wayne Conner, got into the semifinals, which was very good indeed, as this was their first year to declaim at all.

JOHN, YOUR HAIR IS A FRIGHT! HERE, USE MY FOM-OL!

Fathers, mothers, sisters—they're often led to point the way to hair health to their men folk! For women, it's that a healthy head produces handsome hair! And that's why men everywhere are pointing to Fom-ol, the remarkable foaming oil shampoo which first nourishes the scalp, then takes the dull, parched hair and brings it back to glowing health. Fom-ol is so economical; a little goes a long way. Ask your hairdresser for the regular 50c size. Write for a generous trial bottle enclosing 10c to cover packing and postage.

Municipal Voters Re-Elect Same Aldermen, Mayor For Term; Duncan is Secretary

Morgan Wright Wins Close Marshal's Race Over Bob Smith

Voters of Floydada were in practically unanimous accord in the selection of their mayor and board of aldermen for the ensuing two years when they went to the polls in Tuesday's city election. This, however, was a foregone conclusion since no other names than theirs were petitioned on the ballot for the places. The same was true of the city secretary's post, where S. E. Duncan was chosen once more for that place.

Funds For Crippled Children Are To Be Raised By Seal Sale

Dr. C. M. Thacker, county chairman, of the Crippled Children's division of the Department of Education of Texas, reported this week that about $40.00 had been raised from the sale of the Crippled Children's Seal. This fund is used to defray the travel expenses of children to hospitals who are not able to pay their own expenses to and from hospitals where they are given treatment.

The Seal committee in Floydada is composed of members from the Rotary and Lions clubs. The committee from the Rotary club is composed of Paul Conner, V. Williams and Roy Snodgrass and the Lions club committee is W. M. Windsor, W. H. Henderson and G. T. Young. A committee to have charge of the seal sale at Lockney is to be named by Dr. Thacker in the near future. Dr. Thacker said he would be glad if anyone knowing of a crippled child who needed medical attention or an operation would notify him.

Up to the present time only three children have applied for aid and one of them has already undergone an operation and according to a report to Dr. Thacker, is doing nicely. The other two are to go to hospitals soon for treatment.
