VOLUME 48 FLOYDADA, FLOYD COUNTY, TEXAS, THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1941 NUMBER 22

Two Floydada Men Licensed As Pilots

Two members of the Floydada Flying club—Dale Strickland and Milton Sims—are now regularly licensed private pilots, with authority to fly anywhere in the United States and carry passengers.

Their licenses were granted Wednesday of last week after they had passed with good grades the ground school tests and the flight tests of a Civil Aeronautics authority inspector.

Their tests were taken in Lubbock. Floydada Flying club members have made unusual strides in flying technique since its organization this spring. Practically all the members have many hours of flying experience following the special instructions they had when they first purchased their plane, established their flying field in northwest Floydada and put up a hangar.

Members of the club, other than Sims and Strickland, are Marvin Shurbet, W. H. Martin, Dr. Ira Bowman, Wallace King, and Taylor Leach. Shurbet is president of the club, King vice-president and Strickland secretary.

Wheat Movement Spurts A Bit Wednesday

A little spurt in the movement of the small grain crop to the granaries and elevators of the area was apparent over the county Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday.

In some few portions of the county rains have been light and normal farm work has been under way for a week and the farmers in these areas have been able to clean up their harvest and get a long way down the line on their row crops.

However, as late as Monday of this week there were heavy local showers throughout the north, southwest and the southeast portions of the county and in these sections harvesting outfits are just beginning to be rigged up again.

Muncy, Lockney and Petersburg storage houses are taking all the grain that is coming to those points and little or no movement of grain by rail from those points has taken place. The same is true of Barwise where no wheat had been shipped as late as yesterday. Remaining elevators in the county had shipped about 90 carloads.

Hail Adjusters Busy

The past ten days have been active ones for hail adjusters in the county and in adjacent counties. Wednesday of last week the hail hit in the widest areas.

Equipment Here For Contract Highway Work

Machinery of Austin Road company, which will be used for laying new topping on Highway 207 south from Floydada to the Crosby county line, began arriving in Floydada this week.

Expectation that the work on the contract would begin the first of the week was not realized because of heavy rains on portions of the route.

Sheriff and Mrs. Clark Home From Hot Springs

Sheriff and Mrs. Fred N. Clark returned home Tuesday from Hot Springs, New Mexico, where they had been for nearly two weeks taking the baths.

Hail Adjuster Says Extortion Is Attempted

M. D. Arterburn, sr., and M. D. Arterburn, jr., prominent north Floyd county farmers, were released here Monday afternoon on bond of $1,000 each on a complaint filed in Justice B. P. Woody's court charging extortion.

The complaint was filed by W. L. Edwards, a Clyde, Kansas, hail insurance adjuster Saturday afternoon and the arrests made Monday. Edwards claimed to have been held on the Arterburn farm three and a half hours, while the Arterburns demanded that he make a settlement with them for alleged loss from hail damage. Edwards was accompanied to the Arterburn farm by Bill Rigdon, who was taking Edwards over the country for damage to farms where claims for damage were being made.

Edwards was adjusting losses for the Home Insurance group of companies, he told officials. The defendants threatened his life, Edwards said.

Deputy Sheriff Alexander of Lockney made the arrests.

The complaint will be held for investigation by the October term grand jury of Floyd county.

Religious Faith, Purposeful Unity Nation's Need, Says W. C. Federation Head

Mrs. J. W. Walker, of Plainview, state president of the Federation of Women's clubs of Texas, in a talk before the Floydada Rotary club, declared her belief that need of religious faith, courage, unity of action and unity of purpose are the greatest needs in the United States today.

Speaking before the Rotarians, who had their Rotaryannas as guests, Wednesday noon Mrs. Walker said that in her travels in an official capacity over the country she finds the people of the country imbued with a fear that does not have a definite form but is in evidence on every side. "Having chosen our leaders at the ballot box we need to unify our efforts courageously behind them," she declared.

Mrs. Walker was presented to the club by Mrs. Walton Hale. Mrs. Barbara H. Smith and Mrs. Mary Anna Flowers, the latter of Amarillo, were special invited guests.

Rotaryannas took charge of the meeting with the opening song, led the singing, read the minutes, made all the announcements.

Mrs. Richard P. Stovall took the gavel from her husband, president of the club, and presided. Mrs. Mary Anna Flowers took over the duties of her father, S. W. Ross, as secretary. Mrs. Glad Snodgrass was named sergeant-at-arms for the day, taking the place of J. B. Claiborne.

V. L. Elliott Again Chief Fire Dept.

Verne L. Elliott Monday night was re-elected chief of Floydada Volunteer Fire department when the organization went into its annual election of officers.

With him also were named E. A. Thomas as first assistant chief, Joe Browning as second assistant chief, W. B. Hinkle as captain of Company No. 1, and Carl Nelson captain of Company No. 2. Ike Finley was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

In appreciation of Elliott's long service with the department, much of the time as its chief, the members presented him with a siren to go on his personal car in appreciation for the service he has rendered.

How to make the department a more efficient one, better able to meet emergencies, was the theme of the evening's talk by elected officials. And all agreed that every member would do his best to make the department a better one in the year of 1941-42.

Two to Training School

Chief V. L. Elliott and Melvin Henry were elected by the department to go to the Firemen's Training school at A. & M. college the week of July 20-25. Information has been given that the firemen's school this year will be devoted to defense methods along lines which have been learned from experience of the people of Britain.

E. H. Kemp, District Soil conservationist, is on leave from the office this week.

Overcast Skies Bring Respite From Heat Wave

With overcast skies this morning Floyd county people have a temporary respite from a heat wave that hit last mid-week, when a maximum of 90 degrees was recorded on Thursday.

Thermometer readings daily since have climbed as high as 90, and yesterday the high for the year was recorded at 94 degrees at the Rural Electric Co-operative office.

Night, however, has been cool, the minimum this morning at 4:30 being 68 degrees.

Scattered light showers are reported in some sections of the county at 9 o'clock this morning.

New Draft Names To Be Mixed With Old After National Lottery---56 In County

After a new national draft lottery has been held sometime late this month the names of the new draftees—the 21-year-olds who were signed up July 1—will be mixed with those of the older men registered a year ago.

Instructions on how to integrate the new numbers into the old were received this week by the Local board. These became effective yesterday, when the board was expected to have the names of all registrants giving Floyd county as their residence in their hands.

Draw Sequence Numbers

In the lottery, the new registrants in each draft board area will learn their relationship to each other by having "sequence numbers" drawn. The total of numbers drawn to the board from other counties. Their names were posted late yesterday at the post office together with social numbers. Their order numbers will be determined in a drawing sometime later this month.

Each draft area now has a reservoir of potential trainees between the ages of 21 through 27 who were signed up last Oct. 16. This reservoir is composed of men who have not already been drafted, rejected or deferred because of age or other reasons. The new registrants will be mixed in proportionately with these old ones.

Selective service headquarters, anticipating enactment of legislation to that effect directed recently that local boards defer calling men aged 28 or older.

For instance, assume that there are 100 of these old registrants and 10 new ones in a given board area. One new registrant then would be placed after each group of 10 old ones. The new registrant holding number "S1" would be placed after the first 10; the man holding "S2," after the second 10, etc.

If the Army then called on that particular board for six men and five of the first 10 old men were deferred, the group actually inducted, assuming all qualifications were met, would consist of the remaining five old registrants and one new one.

Tom W. Deen, representative of the 120th Legislative district, home this week from Austin, declares one of the serious needs of the state is re-districting on the basis of population trends. Present representation in the legislature has many inequities, he declares.

Representative Deen Home From Austin

Home fresh from Austin where he attended the sessions of the Texas Legislature as representative from the 120th district, Judge Tom W. Deen this week spoke of the session as an eventful one.

"I had the good fortune to see every measure which I advocated in the campaign last summer get over, with one exception," he said. The exception was the re-districting bill which he declares is seriously needed by many areas of the state not adequately represented on the basis of population.

Strong protest against what they term unjust, un-American and unconstitutional tax against wheat, exacted of farmers not in the agricultural program, was filed by mail last week-end with Senator Tom Connally and Congressman George Mahon by a committee of wheat farmers.

The protest was signed by an estimated 250 to 300 farmers and taxpayers of the county, W. C. Cates, one of the petition framers said.

On account of limited time the protest was not circulated all over the county. "We could have gotten a large number more of signers if we had had time to get the protest in the hands of more farmers and business men," Mr. Cates said. He and J. A. Goins, W. A. Cates and Troy Leonard circulated the petitions which were also made available to voluntary signers at several business places in Floydada.

Pointing out that an anticipated penalty of 15 cents per bushel on wheat as implied at planting time last year, was not unexpected but that the penalty as put on this spring near harvest time "of approximately 50 cents" is retroactive in its nature and is "unjust and in flagrant violation of the Constitution of the United States."

Text of the Protest

The text of the protest, written and circulated here, is as follows: "We, the undersigned farmers, merchants, and tax payers of Floyd County, Texas hereby protest against the penalty of approximately 50c per bushel for the sale of wheat exacted of farmers who are not in the Agricultural Program.

"Due to the circumstances under which this penalty has been and is being collected from all wheat farmers who are not in the program, we insist that it is unjust, un-American, and unconstitutional.

"If it has been the intention of the Government to collect this penalty on the wheat of 1941 harvest, we insist that all wheat farmers should have been given notice of this intent prior to seeding time in 1940. If this advance notice had been given the farmers prior to seeding time in 1940, they would have been privileged to either enter the program or of holding their own acres of wheat within the allotments for the respective farms.

"There are many logical reasons why thousands of farmers are not cooperating in the farm program. Causes beyond the control of the farmer force many of them to remain outside the program. This should be given consideration.

"Our Constitution prohibits the passage of a retroactive law. The wheat farmer who is not in the program is certainly being dealt through a law that is retroactive in its nature when he is being penalized in July 1941 for an act committed in September 1940 before there was a law applying to the act.

"We favor any reasonable penalty for non-compliers with the farm program, to apply to crops sown or planted in 1941, after the notice of such intent is given prior to seeding-time. But we protest against the present penalty as being unjust and in flagrant violation of the constitution of the United States.

"We, and each of us, those of us who are in the program and those of us who are not in the program, insist that this ex post facto law be set aside as applies to 1941 harvested wheat.

"The anticipated penalty of 15c per bushel for non-compliers to the farm program would not be opposed as this was the implied penalty that all non-compliers anticipated and had advance notice of.

"We urge that immediate action be taken relative to this unjust penalty before the crops involved are lost entirely through being left standing in the fields, and before a heavy loss befalls the already hard hit farmer."

Youth Deserter From Army He Tells Officers

A youth who gave his name as Wm. Joseph Fry, and his residence as Washington, D. C., surrendered himself to Floyd county officials Monday declaring himself a deserter from the U. S. army.

He had been here for the past few weeks, officials said.

Assuming that Governor O'Daniel has been elected senator and that he will qualify and assume his duties in Washington in this month, Texas will have nearly six months of an administration by the lieutenant governor who will succeed to the governor's office. He is Coke Stevenson from the state's hill country. A good man, a quiet talker and worker, he will be of a different mould to anything Texas has had in the way of a governor for years and years. As we recall it he has visited Floydada only one time. That was during his first campaign for lieutenant governor. At the time he made his plains tour he had a neighboring country newspaper boy from Junction as his "press man."

Last fall it was generally understood, probably from forecasts of the head of the Department of Agriculture, that the tax on wheat grown on non-complying acres would be 15 cents per bushel. A good many Floyd county men over-planted expecting to pay that amount. But this last week it dawned on these men that the regulation actually put into effect spoils all the prospect. The actual tax is set at 49 cents per bushel and the tax must be paid on allotted acre production as well as on over-planted acreage. At least that's the way we understand it. The rule is so tight that a man cannot save his own wheat seed without paying the tax. That really does spell bad news to many a wheat grower.

What will be done about it is something else. Petitions have been circulated and will be forwarded to Congress asking for relief. Several local people are signing the petitions because they are asked to do so, others because they feel strongly about the matter. Some are refusing to sign because they feel the non-compliers ought to be in line, in which case they would not be subject to the tax. Meanwhile the man with the wheat out in the field, a part of which he still hopes to save, sure would like to head off the disaster he faces, so far as the 1941 wheat crop is concerned.

Abandonment of the oil test at Petersburg last week, after the crew had hit a reported granite dome at 6,760 feet, does not necessarily mean the oil companies are giving up their efforts to locate oil somewhere in Floyd, Hale, Crosby, Motley or Dickens counties. We hear they still believe in their geophysical tests and still believe the oil is here somewhere. However, the Floydada test and the Petersburg test on top of several in Motley and Dickens all coming up dry must have the talent scratching their heads.

The legislature has adjourned. It has set in the longest session of that body on record, has passed 565 laws of one kind and another, among these tax raising measures to meet the various kinds of obligations adopted by the electorate during the past unable to agree on the kind of tax law to pass. As a result this legislature will get credit for being the most expensive on record.

With unprecedented road conditions Floyd county authorities are having much to do, more to do in fact than they can get done this year or next. Their constituents are demanding action and the result is a good deal of patch work. Roads were intended to travel and especially to get to market when marketing time comes. A man without a road has to do something about it, he has to see somebody and try to work out a way. But he should keep in mind, when he sees the commissioner, that the reason why everybody does not have good crops up and growing off, clean of weeds, is the same reason the commissioner does not have his roads in condition.

Governor O'Daniel and the big newspapers are still a-feudin'. The governor poured it on during his campaign and made some votes temporarily by it. The newspapers took advantage of the situation right after the election to lay bare the governor's incipient plan to make his "Mr. O'Daniel goes to Washington" trip be a triumphant, loud-speaker ballyhoo by way of his old home town in Kansas and his birthplace in Ohio. Whether his close squeak on June 28 (assuming he has won) will have sobered the governor up and changed his plans one could not say. The Irish, you know. What we started to say is that the governor has to lose in the long run. You can't snub and abuse always without getting a major neck operation.

Newspapers, big and little, like for a governor to be his own man, to disagree with them, to fight it out with them. But they don't like to be ignored like the governor has done ever since he has been in the governor's chair. The newspapers think of themselves as the keepers of the faith for the public. They want to have their reporters received and paid the respect which is owed to the public. After all a newspaperman has a mission to perform the same as the governor has, they argue. And when he snubs them that way and then adds to the injury by blasting at them by way of the radio, he has gone far past the mark.

Speaking of automobiles on the road and the high toll of life and property which the highways take, the latest list of the Texas State police records 190 persons whose licenses to drive were revoked. Of the offenses for which revocation was made, driving while intoxicated was the cause of the greatest number, and the offenses were about evenly distributed over the state.

Thomas Jefferson paid newspapers a high compliment when he said that if he had his choice of a government without newspapers or a country having newspapers but no government, he would choose the latter.

As A Farm Woman Thinks

Neelie Witt Spikes

This Monday morning is still and very warm. The tractor can run and it is needed so to get the weeds and grass. All the land has not been planted. The low places were left, now the weeds have that plot of ground. For several years we have been saying that if we could get rain, we could make a crop. Now we have found out that the plains write Grover Hill, the Secretary of Agriculture, to see if he could not get Congress to appropriate plenty of water for the west. Now Grover believes in getting the job done and pleasing the folks who he represents and Congress let us have the rain this year. We wrote Grover this morning that he would have to do something about it. That we would drown if the weeds did not hold us up out of the water.

The other day I heard a lady ask if the fall clothes were in. I gasped. Why I had not got around to getting summer clothes and when I thought of the crop just starting, I shuddered. Was fall only around the corner?
 Rhubarb sauce sweet tender green pieces floating in clear pink juice, apricot jam, yellow as a sunbeam, fresh June apple pies, I must start right now and make one new potato, pink and white from their bath, brittle string beans and round English peas swimming in white sauce, these good things are being served on county tables along with white onions, crisp cool cucumbers and white-head cabbage. It is not a hard job to cook when you have these things. I forgot to include the yellow legged chickens, brown and covered with gravy or hidden in rich biscuit crust, or keeping company with dumplings.

An instance of little things that are really big, chiggers. Put a drop of finger nail polish on them, tho, and they smother, or a drop of chloroform, holding your finger over the chigger a second. When the red bugs get too plentiful, it might be better to chloroform the patient.

We had almost forgotten we had lakes on the plains. Many were plowed up and planted. Now we go miles and miles around them and the only crop they will raise will be mosquitoes and frogs.

My flowers are doing well. Red hollyhocks tower above the green shrubs. Petunias are glorying in the rains and I wish you could see the althea. The blooms are giants, pinky white and the green leaves and gray woody limbs are hidden. Zinnias are coming into bloom, sweet peas are daintily swaying from the net wire. Dahlias are large and gorgeous, yes that is the word to use, gorgeous. Pinks and whites, purples and mauves, blues and yellows, reds and greens, my flower garden is like a patchwork quilt to be enjoyed now as it covers the brown earth and this winter to be folded and put away in memory in its own perfume.

To-whit, to-whit, to-who, over and over again, beginning about five o'clock of a morning, harsh and monotonous, the fly-catcher birds clatter never the tune or rather noise varies, to-whit, to-whit, to-who.

True worth is in being, not seeming. In doing each day that goes by. Some little good—not in dreaming. Of great things to do by and by. For whatever men say in their blindness.

And spite of the fancies of youth. There's nothing so kingly as kindness.

And nothing so royal as truth. Alice Carey.

CANNING

I'm sorta tired of canning
 For while I thought it fun
 Canning greens and peas and beans
 When summertime first begun.
 I didn't mind the carrots
 Nor the berries nor the plums,
 Nor the little new potatoes,
 (Tho I stained and cut my thumbs)
 I canned right thru the season.
 And I didn't mind the peas,
 I picked and cooked tomatoes
 Strained and canned right on till fall.
 My cellar shelves kept filling,
 And I thought, "I'll soon be thru."
 But I kept on canning something
 Almost every day or two.
 I gathered all the pumpkins
 And put them up in haste
 I canned the sweet potatoes
 I couldn't see them waste.
 And now there's green tomatoes
 Greens and turnips, too,
 As I pause awhile for breath
 And wonder if I'm thru
 I remember there's mincemeat
 And sausage and stew.
 But it has it's compensations
 Along with all its toil,
 I now have every kind of food
 That grows in garden soil.
 My back will soon be rested
 My feet will cease to ache.
 My hands will lose their blisters
 And my cellar shelves will make
 My table groan with plenty
 And the sweat of honest labor
 Be forgotten in the joy it brings
 My family and my neighbor.

TRAVELING IN THE RAIN

As a silver ribbon the smooth roads stretches before,
 Fast falls the rain, dripping trees and grass
 Follow the highway on either side, and more
 Is the wonder of nature as we swiftly pass—
 Knowing the joy of traveling in the rain!
 The green foliage viewed with chill rain glistens
 So does every blossom, each with lowered face;
 The travelers are silent, each one listens
 To rain music, or bird notes from some sheltered place.
 Knowing the joy of traveling in the rain!

Refrigeration Is Paramount In Egg Quality

McCarthy Says Iceless Refrigerator Helps Reduce Temperature

COLLEGE STATION, July 10.—Refrigeration is paramount in preserving the quality of eggs.

According to George P. McCarthy, poultry husbandman of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service, eggs held at 98 degrees Fahrenheit will deteriorate as much in three days as those held at 45 degrees for 65 days.

To supply this problem, the Extension Service has prepared plans for an iceless refrigerator. It is constructed along lines of the old type milk cooler with sack material covering the framework. By keeping the fabric moist, air circulating through it reduces the temperature inside from 15 to 20 degrees. Copies of the plans may be obtained from county agricultural agents or from Extension Service headquarters at College Station.

Although eggs will not keep indefinitely in this type of refrigerator, it will help materially in maintaining their quality from one market period to the next. During summer-time it is best to market eggs at least twice weekly regardless of cooling.

Fertile eggs are costing Texas farmers thousands of dollars yearly, McCarthy says the reason is that fertile eggs deteriorate rapidly and bring a rather low price in summer. The first thing to do on an egg improvement program is to get rid of all male birds and sell only infertile eggs. If all producers of market eggs did this, McCarthy suggests, there would be a large increase in summer consumption, with a consequent increase in price.

"With increased consumption and large buying of eggs by the government in connection with the defense program, poultrymen have benefited by increasing prices during the past few weeks," says McCarthy. "These prices should remain favorable for several years."

On account of higher prices, he adds, the Surplus Marketing Administration and consuming public will expect a better quality product. Hence, poultry men who produce a real quality egg will derive the greatest benefit during the next few years.

The End: NO MORE OIL AND NO MORE ENGINE!

Ruthless Death-Test proves this New oil good for more than Twice the mileage averaged by 5 other big brands

In fiery Death Valley the dry heat hits extremes. And there's where 6 identical everyday cars, using 6 different big-name oils, were burned out on purpose to give you fair and square mileage comparisons on great new

CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL
Now making Sales Records right Here
Death-Test cars—new—same make, same model—were taken apart for the Referee, to check uniformity; then were broken-in alike. Each got one 5-quart fill of some one big brand—bought retail by Referee. He kept engines under lock—no oil could be added. Cars held the same 57-mile speed, over the same desert, getting the same handling (by alternating the drivers). And there wasn't any end till there wasn't any lubrication... till engine after engine became a hunk of junk.

Conoco Nth oil kept on 5,683 miles longer than any other oil in the Death-Test... Certified. And all five competing Death-Tested oils didn't average half the mileage of Conoco Nth oil. Certified.

Man-Made new Life-Giver does it

Now think a moment of Vaccination—putting protective substance on guard to keep a trouble from starting. And the trouble aiming to start on motor oils lurks in every engine's normal firing. Fifth forms that can spoil one drop; then two drops "catch it"—then four; then SIXTEEN... faster, faster, FASTER. As the whole fill weakens, the oil-level sinks too fast... but when the start of this oil-fouling trouble is inhibited—held back—by life-giving Thialkene inhibitor, the man-made new economy aid in patented Conoco Nth motor oil.

No, you'll never Death-Test your own Conoco Nth oil. You'll still sensibly drain and refill as recommended. But knowing how Conoco Nth out-mileaged the other Death-Tested oils, you can reasonably believe that every look at the oil-level won't mean adding a quart. Keep count of your saving after changing to Conoco Nth today at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Continental Oil Company—Pioneers in Bettering America's oil with Synthetics

AND CONOCO Nth OIL OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE

Long the keystone of Conoco success, OIL-PLATING comes from another great Conoco Synthetic... man-made under the famed Germ Processed oil patent. Magnet-like action bonds OIL-PLATING to inner parts. It can't all quickly drain down—not while you're using Conoco Nth oil. So OIL-PLATING is on guard against wear in advance!... and helps mileage, as it did in Death Valley. An OIL-PLATED engine is one more economy you get from a change to popular-priced new Conoco Nth oil.

CERTIFIED I hereby certify that the Death Valley Test and related work were thoroughly and fairly conducted. Engine Destruction occurred in each case at the mileage stated.

Q. What is a U. S. Defense Savings Bond?
A. This Bond is proof that you have loaned money to the United States Government for national defense. Your Bond bears interest at the rate of 2.9 percent a year, if held to maturity (ten years).

Q. Why should I buy Defense Bonds?
A. Because money talks. To dictators it speaks defiance. To friends of freedom, it says, "Here's my hand!"

Note.—To purchase Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office or bank or write for information to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C.

Assuming that Governor O'Daniel has been elected senator and that he will qualify and assume his duties in Washington in this month, Texas will have nearly six months of an administration by the lieutenant governor who will succeed to the governor's office. He is Coke Stevenson from the state's hill country. A good man, a quiet talker and worker, he will be of a different mould to anything Texas has had in the way of a governor for years and years. As we recall it he has visited Floydada only one time. That was during his first campaign for lieutenant governor. At the time he made his plains tour he had a neighboring county newspaper boy from Junction as his "press man."

Last fall it was generally understood, probably from forecasts of the head of the Department of Agriculture, that the tax on wheat grown on non-complying acres would be 15 cents per bushel. A good many Floyd county men over-planted expecting to pay that amount. But this last week it dawned on these men that the regulation actually put into effect spoils all the prospect. The actual tax is set at 49 cents per bushel and the tax must be paid on allotted acre production as well as on over-planted acreage. At least that's the way we understand it. The rule is so tight that a man cannot save his own wheat seed without paying the tax. That really does spell bad news to many a wheat grower.

What will be done about it is something else. Petitions have been circulated and will be forwarded to Congress asking for relief. Several local people are signing the petitions because they are asked to do so, others because they feel strongly about the matter. Some are refusing to sign because they feel the non-compliers ought to be in line, in which case they would not be subject to the tax. Meanwhile the man with the wheat out in the field, a part of which he still hopes to save, sure would like to head off the disaster he faces, so far as the 1941 wheat crop is concerned.

Abandonment of the oil test at Petersburg last week, after the crew had hit a reported granite dome at 6,760 feet, does not necessarily mean the oil companies are giving up their efforts to locate oil somewhere in Floyd, Hale, Crosby, Motley or Dickens counties. We hear they still believe in their geophysical tests and still believe the oil is here somewhere. However, the Floydada test and the Petersburg test on top of several in Motley and Dickens all coming up dry must have the talent scratching their heads.

The legislature has adjourned. It has set in the longest session of that body on record, has passed 565 laws of one kind and another, among these tax raising measures to meet the various kinds of obligations adopted by the electorate during the past unable to agree on the kind of tax law to pass. As a result this legislature will get credit for being the most expensive on record.

With unprecedented road conditions Floyd county authorities are having much to do, more to do in fact than they can get done this year or next. Their constituents are demanding action and the result is a good deal of patch work. Roads were intended to travel and especially to get to market when marketing time comes. A man without a road has to do something about it, he has to see somebody and try to work out a way. But he should keep in mind, when he sees the commissioner, that the reason why everybody does not have good crops up and growing off, clean of weeds, is the same reason the commissioner does not have his roads in condition.

Governor O'Daniel and the big newspapers are still a-fuddin'. The governor poured it on during his campaign and made some votes temporarily by it. The newspapers took advantage of the situation right after the election to lay bare the governor's incipient plan to make his "Mr. O'Daniel goes to Washington" trip be a triumphant, loud-speaker ballyhoo by way of his old home town in Kansas and his birthplace in Ohio. Whether his close squeak on June 28 (assuming he has won) will have sobered the governor up and changed his plans one could not say. The Irish, you know. What we started to say is that the governor has to lose in the long run. You can't snub and abuse always without getting a major neck operation.

Newspapers, big and little, like for a governor to be his own man, to disagree with them, to fight it out with them. But they don't like to be ignored like the governor has done ever since he has been in the governor's chair. The newspapers think of themselves as the keepers of the faith for the public. They want to have their reporters received and paid the respect which is owed to the public. After all a newspaperman has a mission to perform the same as the governor has, they argue. And when he snubs them that way and then adds to the injury by blasting at them by way of the radio, he has gone far past the mark.

Speaking of automobiles on the road and the high toll of life and property which the highways take, the latest list of the Texas State police records 190 persons whose licenses to drive were revoked. Of the offenses for which revocation was made, driving while intoxicated was the cause of the greatest number, and the offenses were about evenly distributed over the state.

Thomas Jefferson paid newspapers a high compliment when he said that if he had his choice of a government without newspapers or a country having newspapers but no government, he would choose the latter.

As A Farm Woman Thinks

Nellie Witt Spikes

This Monday morning is still and very warm. The tractor can run and it is needed so to get the weeds and grass. All the land has not been planted. The low places were left, now the weeds have that plot of ground. For several years we have been saying that if we could get rain, we could make a crop. Now we have found out that the plains can get too much. Last year we wrote Grover Hill, the Secretary of Agriculture, to see if he could not get Congress to appropriate plenty of water for the west. Now Grover believes in getting the job done and pleasing the folks who he represents and Congress. Let us have the rain this year. We wrote Grover this morning that he would have to do something about it. That we would drown if the weeds did not hold us up out of the water.

The other day I heard a lady ask if the fall clothes were in. I gasped. Why I had not got around to getting summer clothes and when I thought of the crop just starting. I shuddered. Was fall only around the corner?
Rhubarb sauce sweet tender green pieces floating in clear pink juice, apricot jam, yellow as a sunbeam, fresh June apple pies, (I must start right now and make one) new potatoes, pink and white from their bath, brittle string beans and round English peas swimming in white sauce, these good things are being served on county tables along with white onions, crisp cool cucumbers and white-head cabbage. It is not a hard job to cook when you have these things. I forgot to include the yellow legged chickens, brown and covered with gravy or hidden in rich biscuit crust, or keeping company with dumplings.

An instance of little things that are really big, chiggers. Put a drop of finger nail polish on them, (ho, ho, they smooch) or a drop of chloroform, holding your finger over the chigger a second. When the red bugs get too plentiful, it might be better to chloroform the patient.

We had almost forgotten we had lakes on the plains. Many were plowed up and planted. Now we go miles and miles around them and the only crop they will raise will be mosquitoes and frogs.

My flowers are doing well. Red hollyhocks, lower above the green shrubs. Petunias are glowing in the rains and I wish you could see the althea. The blooms are giants, pinky white and the green leaves and gray woody limbs are hidden. Zinnias are coming into bloom, sweet peas are daintily swaying from the net wire. Dahlias are large and gorgeous, yes that is the word to use, gorgeous. Whites, purples and mauves, blues and yellows, reds and greens, my flower garden is like a patchwork quilt to be enjoyed now as it covers the brown earth and this winter to be folded and put away in memory in its own perfume.

To-whit, to-whit, to-who, over and over again, beginning about five o'clock of a morning, harsh and monotonous, the fly-catcher birds clatter never the tune or rather noise varies, to-whit, to-whit, to-who.

True worth is in being, not seeming; In doing each day that goes by, Some little good—not in dreaming Of great things to do by and by. For whatever men say in their blindness.

And spite of the fancies of youth, There's nothing so kingly as kindness, And nothing so royal as truth.

Even if the hurts and disappointments of life help build character, one dislikes to see their children get them.

CANNING

I'm sorta tired of canning For awhile I thought it fun Canning greens and peas and beans When summertime first begun. I didn't mind the carrots Nor the berries nor the plums, Nor the little new potatoes, (The I stained and cut my thumbs) I canned right thru the season, And I didn't mind at all; I picked and cooked tomatoes Strained and canned right on till fall.

My cellar shelves kept filling, And I thought, "I'll soon be thru." But I kept on canning something Almost every day or two. I gathered all the pumpkins And put them up in haste I canned the sweet potatoes I couldn't see them waste. And now there's green tomatoes Greens and turnips, too. As I pause awhile for breath And wonder if I'm thru I remember there's mince meat And sausage and stew.

But it has it's compensations Along with all its toil, I now have every kind of food That grows in garden soil. My back will soon be rested My feet will cease to ache. My hands will lose their blisters And my cellar shelves will make My table groan with plenty And the sweat of honest labor Be forgotten in the joy it brings My family and my neighbor. Refrigeration Is Paramount In Egg Quality

COLLEGE STATION, July 10.—Refrigeration is paramount in preserving the quality of eggs.

According to George P. McCarthy, poultry husbandman of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service, eggs held at 98 degrees Fahrenheit will deteriorate as much in three days as those held at 45 degrees for 65 days.

To simplify this problem, the Extension Service has prepared plans for an iceless refrigerator. It is constructed along lines of the old type milk cooler with sack material covering the framework. By keeping the fabric moist, air circulating through it reduces the temperature inside from 15 to 20 degrees. Copies of the plans may be obtained from county agricultural agents or from Extension Service headquarters at College Station.

Although eggs will not keep indefinitely in this type of refrigerator, it will help materially in maintaining their quality from one market period to the next. During summer-time it is best to market eggs at least twice weekly regardless of cooling.

Fertile eggs are costing Texas farmers thousands of dollars yearly, McCarthy says the reason is that fertile eggs deteriorate rapidly and bring a rather low price in summer. The first thing to do on an egg improvement program is to get rid of all male birds and sell only infertile eggs. If all producers of market eggs did this, McCarthy suggests, there would be a large increase in summer consumption, with a consequent increase in price.

"With increased consumption and large buying of eggs by the government in connection with the defense program, poultrymen have benefited by increasing prices during the past few weeks," says McCarthy. "These prices should remain favorable for several years."

On account of higher prices, he adds, the Surplus Marketing Administration and consuming public will expect a better quality product.

Hence, poultry men who produce a real quality egg will derive the greatest benefit during the next few years."

The End: NO MORE OIL AND NO MORE ENGINE!

Ruthless Death-Test proves this New oil good for more than Twice the mileage averaged by 5 other big brands

In fiery Death Valley the dry heat hits extremes. And there's where 6 identical everyday cars, using 6 different big-name oils, were burned out on purpose to give you fair and square mileage comparisons on great new

CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL

Death-Test cars—new—same make, same model—were taken apart for the Referee, to check uniformity; then were broken-in alike. Each got one 5-quart fill of some one big brand—bought retail by Referee. He kept engines under lock—no oil could be added. Cars held the same 57-mile speed, over the same desert, getting the same handling (by alternating the drivers). And there wasn't any end till there wasn't any lubrication... till engine after engine became a hunk of junk.

Conoco Nth oil kept on 5,683 miles longer than any other oil in the Death-Test... Certified. And all five competing Death-Tested oils didn't average half the mileage of Conoco Nth oil. Certified.

Man-Made new Life-Giver does it

Now think a moment of Vaccination—putting protective substance on guard to keep a trouble from starting. And the trouble aiming to start on motor oils lurks in every engine's normal fring. Fifth forms that can spoil one drop; then two drops "catch it"—then four—then SIXTEEN... faster, faster, FASTER. As the whole fill weakens, the oil-level sinks too fast... but not when the start of this oil-fouling trouble is inhibited—held back—by life-giving Thialkene

inhibitor, the man-made new economy aid in patented Conoco Nth motor oil.

No, you'll never Death-Test your own Conoco Nth oil. You'll still sensibly drain and refill as recommended. But knowing how Conoco Nth out-mileaged the other Death-Tested oils, you can reasonably believe that every look at the oil-level won't mean adding a quart. Keep count of your saving after changing to Conoco Nth today at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Continental Oil Company—Pioneers in Bettering America's oil with Synthetics

AND CONOCO Nth OIL OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE

Long the keystone of Conoco success, OIL-PLATING comes from another great Conoco synthetic... man-made under the famed Germ Processed oil patent. Magnet-like action bonds OIL-PLATING to inner parts. It can't all quickly drain down—not while you're using Conoco Nth oil. So OIL-PLATING is on guard against wear in advance!... and helps mileage, as it did in Death Valley. An OIL-PLATED engine is one more economy you get from a change to popular-priced new Conoco Nth oil.

CERTIFIED I hereby certify that the Death Valley Test and related work were thoroughly and fairly conducted. Engine Destruction occurred in each case at the mileage stated.

McCaskell - Goen Wedding Vows Read Saturday

In a quiet home wedding at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, Oleta Jackson McCaskell daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Jackson became the bride of Elton Goen. The double ring ceremony was performed by Reverend Lawrence W. Bridges, pastor of the First Christian church, at the home of the bride's sister and brother-in-law County Clerk A. B. Clark. Only a few close friends and relatives witnessed the candle light ceremony. Mr. Goen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Goen.

Miss Georgia Hall dressed in blue with a corsage of pink Kalamerie roses furnished piano music throughout the ceremony. Reduce Kitchen 'Travel', Save Your Energy

COLLEGE STATION, July 10.—Summertime may be the season for travel but not "kitchen travel" which refers to unnecessary steps and wasted energy in the preparation of meals.

Louise Bryant, Extension Service specialist in home management, says lost motion can be eliminated by efficient arrangement of the kitchen. This will make all meal-time duties—preparation and serving of food as well as the subsequent dish washing—less difficult she says.

Here are some tips on kitchen arrangement which will help reduce "kitchen travel": If the stove, sink and cabinet or work table are arranged around two or three adjoining walls, unbroken by doors, this will form a continuous working surface so that utensils will be more accessible.

If doors break into the wall space, a continuous surface may be provided by a drop leaf or by a table mounted on casters.

If a working surface with cupboards above can be placed at the left of the sink, dishes may be put away as soon as they are dried without extra steps.

If all the doors opening into the kitchen are at one end and there is no passage way through the work center, work is usually simplified. Where work centers cannot be conveniently arranged, a service wagon will cut down the travel, Miss Bryant points out.

MRS. VERNON SHAW HONORED WITH TEA AT SNYDER FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Mrs. Vernon Shaw formerly of Floydada was honored Friday at Snyder, with a seated tea given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Browning, by members of the Escondido Sunday School class of the Snyder Baptist church.

Approximately fifty-five guests attended the tea and heard the program that was presented by three guest artists. They were Nell Verna LeMond, student of Hardin-Simmons university, Abilene; who played two solos and other numbers during the refreshment hour. Clyde Boren gave a unique welcome in the form of an original reading entitled, "The Pastor's Wife". Concluding highlights of the program was a review of the "Life Of Paul" given by Mrs. Leon Wren.

Rev. and Mrs. Shaw moved to Snyder, from the First Baptist church here, about a month ago.

COW CAFETERIAS TEST GRASSES

Forage-crop specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture have found that pasture cafeterias help them learn more about the grazing qualities of grasses and legumes. At Gainesville, Florida, for example, research men of the Bureau of Plant Industry and the Florida Experiment Station are cooperating in a cow-cafeteria experiment.

The soil for a cafeteria must be uniform, with shade and water equally attractive in all parts. The menu usually includes 18 or 20 grasses or grass mixtures. Since seed supplies of grasses under test may be limited, a cafeteria is normally about 100 feet wide and 300 feet long, and the different grasses are planted in parallel strips about 15 feet wide. The cows graze as they please.

The cattle feed longer and in greater numbers, of course, on the plots of grass they find tastiest. Counting the "cow hours" of grazing on the strips shows which grasses the cows prefer and also gives a check on yields. At Bozeman, Montana, native and introduced grasses are being tested in pasture cafeterias for their comparative digestibility and nutritional value in livestock production.

These tests show that cattle prefer different grasses or legumes at different seasons. Cafeterias also supply other information about grass. Observers can see how certain grasses combat weeds, compete with other grasses, react to fertilizers, how well they form sods, and how grasses can be combined to increase the length of pasture seasons in different areas.

ALOE LEAVES HEAL X-RAY BURNS

Nature's long-time preparedness for one of man's advances in the field of science is illustrated by recent experience in the use of leaves of the Barbados aloe plant for curing burns, as reported by Claud L. Horn of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Reporting from the Puerto Rico Federal Experiment Station, he says that for years natives of sub-tropical areas have been treating severe burns by applying the succulent aloe leaves as a healing dressing. Medical science had developed other treatments for the usual type of burns.

But with development of radiation therapy—by X-ray, radium, and the more recently developed irradiated chemicals—a new type of burn appeared which standard treatments failed to heal. As a result, physicians turned to adoption of the native treatment of burns and find that aloe leaves will heal many burns associated with these new techniques in scientific medicine.

Horn reports that the Barbados aloe plant, a native of the Mediterranean area, grows luxuriantly in Puerto Rico and on the Florida keys. It is easy to propagate and even grows wild in fence rows and gullies. Recent test shipments show that the thick watery leaves—14 to 18 inches long—hold their curative value for at least a month after cutting so that it will be practical to send fresh leaves to cooler climates by airplane or even by steamer and rail.

The first use of the aloe leaves by mainland physicians, according to Horn, was in a St. Louis hospital, where an X-ray burn resisted ordinary treatment. An appeal to the Missouri Botanical Garden resulted in a search of botanical literature and success with applications of aloe leaves from specimen plants grown as ornamentals in the collection of succulent plants in the greenhouse. Repeated pleas have resulted in almost complete defoliation of the few specimen plants in the St. Louis and New York botanical gardens and in the few commercial greenhouses that stock this aloe. Puerto Rico, says Horn, can readily supply as many leaves as will be needed.

The Barbados aloe is a plant of the lily family. In habit of growth it more nearly resembles the century plant. The leaves store moisture against periods of drought, and Horn says that the watery content is so clear and the cell walls so thin that it is possible to look into a freshly cut leaf to a depth of an inch. The native name for the Barbados aloe is the "zaballo."

REA LINES PAY UP

The Department of Agriculture at the end of six years of operation of the Rural Electrification Administration reported continued favorable trends in the financial condition of the REA systems. More than 90 percent of them are farmers' co-operatives newly formed to take advantage of the REA program. Few of them have completed the five years of operation generally considered necessary for a new electric enterprise to get out of the red. Yet, to March 31 the borrowers made payments of interest and principal totalling $11,565,691, although the total amount due and payable at that date was only $9,097,587. The $207,490 overdue on March 31 was far outbalanced by advance payments totalling $2,675,594.

The Department estimates that about 80 percent of the 750,000 consumers connected to REA lines are farm families. The rest are divided among non-farm rural residences; stores and filling stations; community institutions, such as churches and schools; governmental establishments, such as airway beacons, Army camps, Navy and Coast Guard stations and CCC camps; and decentralized rural industries.

Charming Blouse For Crochet Contest

Dainty, feminine blouses are an important part of every smart wardrobe and no woman can have too many. This youthfully gay sweater blouse with an ingenious neckline is crocheted in mercerized crocheted cotton and will launder well and retain its "bandbox" air after seasons of wear. Blouses like this one will also be judged for important awards in the Nation-Wide Crochet Contest which will be held this Fall. Directions for making this blouse and details of the Contest may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Department of this paper, specifying design No. 1208.

AIR WAR ON HOPPERS

Modern warfare against grasshopper enemies of crops is taking to the air. Entomologists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture have invented equipment for spreading poison bait by airplane. The airplane bait-distributor has been used chiefly so far on waste or abandoned land, from which in spring and summer armies of grasshoppers may advance and invade cultivated crops.

Next air maneuver is to develop a bait that is effective against the grasshoppers and also light in weight. Poison baits now commonly used are one-half to two-thirds water—too heavy for spreading easily and economically by plane. So the Federal entomologists are comparing the merits of dry and wet baits, and are testing baits mixed with oil instead of water, thus saving weight.

FIDO MAY CARRY IVY POISON

Mysterious cases of ivy poisoning may often be traced to a pet dog, according to L. W. Kephart of the Bureau of Plant Industry. Dogs brush against ivy plants and bring home the chemically irritating principle on their fur. Whoever strokes the dog may come down with ivy poisoning. Ivy poisoning may also come from handling shoes or other clothes and tools that have been in contact with the plant. Poison ivy is most poisonous in spring or early summer when the sap is most abundant. But dry dead plants, and especially the smoke from burning plants, can cause poisoning.

Poisoning may be prevented if the irritant is removed from the surface of the skin before it has time to penetrate. Wash exposed skin promptly with baking soda dissolved in lukewarm water and then with a thick lather of strong soap followed by a rinse in warm running water. Baking soda, washing soda, borax, and photographer's "hypo" are useful. Several washings in strong soap following the wash in alkali solution will carry off the poison.

POOR MANAGEMENT—OR NONE

More than 85 percent of all industrial and other non-farm-owned commercial forest land in the United States still lacks any form of forest management looking to continuous production," says Earle H. Clapp, acting chief of the Forest Service. "Although 137 million acres of this land is partially productive, the growing needs to be built up and the forests need to be improved otherwise. Close to 37 million acres may fairly be called non-producing. Less than 1 1/2 million out of more than 200 million acres are now on a sustained yield basis, and a good part of that is pretty sketchy."

"Progress in better forest management has been made, but no fair minded person can truthfully say there has been anywhere near enough progress by private initiative in stopping destruction of forest lands; or in stopping forest deterioration; or in making or keeping privately owned forests reasonably productive."

Meat and Fried Rice
1/3 cup bacon drippings or butter
2 eggs
2 cups cooked rice
1/4 cup chopped onion
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
Pepper
1 can bean sprouts
1 tablespoon soy sauce

Cut meat into long thin shreds. Melt bacon drippings or butter in large skillet. Add slightly beaten eggs and cook until nearly set. Add rice, onion, salt and pepper, well drained bean sprouts and soy sauce. Toss lightly with forks until heated about five minutes. More soy sauce may be added, if desired. Press well into a buttered ring mold and place in a moderate oven (350° F.) for a few minutes. Unmold on a hot platter and serve at once.

BEEF FATTENED ON GRASS IS AS GOOD AS FROM CORN

Beef from cattle fattened on grass "ripens" as well as beef cattle on grain, and it is just as juicy and flavorful. Thus, there is no sound basis for market discrimination in favor of beef from feeding lots, the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry announces. A three-year study by the bureau and the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station has proved that the deciding element is the fatness of the animal. If a grass-fed animal the beef is just as desirable, according to the results of this work.

The investigators used corresponding rib cuts from paired carcasses of equal fatness, representing 120 animals—20 each year fattened on good bluegrass pastures and another 20 fed on corn, cottonseed meal, and hay. After ripening the samples, they tested the "eye" muscles for chemical composition, flavor, and juice content. When the rib cuts were roasted, experienced judges could not tell which type of meat they were eating.

One cut from each carcass was ripened at 33 to 36 degrees Fahrenheit for about 15 days. The corresponding cut was stored for 50 days. Any change during ripening were parallel for the two types of beef. The study showed also that there was no difference in flavor between the two types of beef after either ripening period, and the quantity of juice in each case was about the same. The "grain" and "grass" beef were practically the same by the chemical and physical tests used in the laboratory—and also according to the taste test.

Customer: "Does a man with a little hair as I've got have to pay full price to have it cut?" Barber: "Yes, and sometimes more. We usually charge double when we have to hunt for the hair."

Rural People Asked For Aluminum

COLLEGE STATION, July 10.—An appeal to rural people to contribute aluminum, in a drive announced recently by the Office of Civilian Defense, has been made by Director H. H. Williamson, of the Texas Extension Service. Governor W. Lee O'Daniel has called upon county judges to assume leadership of the campaign.

County Extension agents have been asked to assist with this work as it relates to rural areas. Gathering aluminum is to begin during the week of July 21, and according to the plan, local committees of 4-H Club members, home demonstration clubs, land use planning committees and other groups will call on farm homes in the community to collect the aluminum scrap.

Anything which is made of aluminum will do. Among the items suggested for donation are pots and pans, radio parts, toys, shakers, screening old washing machine parts, picture frames, book ends, ice trays, measuring cups, camera equipment, kettles and double boilers, bottle and jar caps, refrigerator plates and electric appliances of all sorts.

Earlier the Office of Production Management had asked the citizens to defer collecting scrap aluminum until the week of July 14 and warned against "sharpsters" posing as legitimate government purchasers buying up scrap. It is estimated that the campaign to collect secondary aluminum will result in obtaining 20 million pounds throughout the nation. This would result in the release of 20 million pounds of first-class metal for use in 2,000 fighter planes.

The metal collected will be sold to smelters at a special uniform price fixed by the government. Entire net proceeds will be available to the Office of Civilian Defense for expenditures required in the proper defense of the civilian population.

The Logical Course To Follow

I make no wild, unfounded claims, but, rather, let the silent testimony of results attest to the efficiency of my ALL-CHIROPRACTIC SYSTEM. I am happy at anytime to supplement this assertion by statements of satisfied and worthy patients, both written and verbal. Read a few excerpts below:

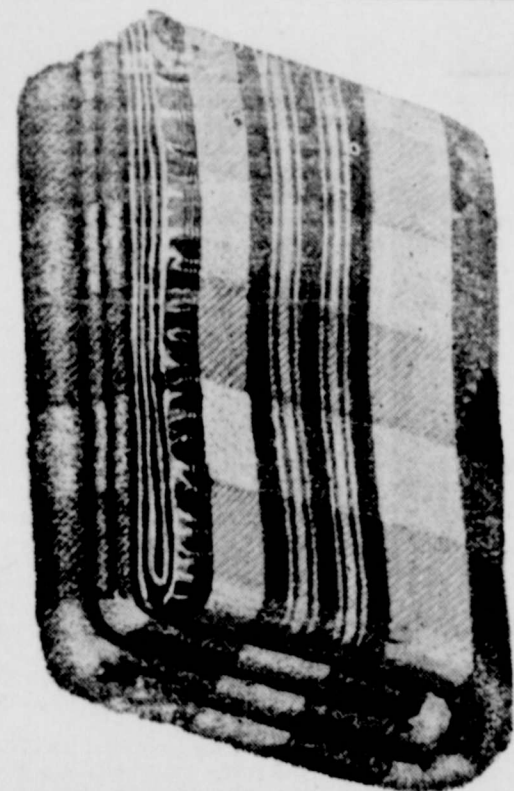

"Doctor Purcell's method of Chiropractic Adjustments has been of inestimable value in correcting my nervous exhaustion and neuragic and rheumatic pains and has improved my hearing and seeing."

Says another: "Nature has taken hold again—as a result of the Chiropractic Method... In short, I feel like a different man and folks tell me I look that way too." "At the time I began taking Chiropractic adjustments, my hearing was failing me badly, but at the present time I can hear about normal for a man of my age. I can recommend Dr. N. C. Purcell and Chiropractic to all suffering with similar trouble," says a man past sixty.

I recognize my responsibility in giving health advice as well as Spinal Adjustments. Don't Doubt — Investigate! Consult with me at No Cost.

Sulfanilimide Now Conquers Strep Sore Throat

Thanks to sulfanilimide, streptococcus sore throat, one of the most common diseases, has been conquered. People still suffer from it; its cure is often disagreeable and trying, but it is rarely a killer now. Sulfanilimide is a drug which was first successfully used against the disease a few years ago when President Roosevelt's son John was stricken by streptococcus infection of the throat. Its discovery, resulted while a group of scientists at Johns Hopkins were studying a drug, said to combat the disease, which they had brought from England.

This is the time of year when the danger of the dreaded throat disease is greatest. It gets you when you least expect it and when you come down with a strep throat you are really sick. You suddenly feel ill and your temperature hits between 102 and 104.

When you feel like this never wait to see if you will feel better tomorrow. Instead, a doctor, for it is most important that he makes a diagnosis at once.

It is important that we know about it, for some time or other most of us get sore throats. The throat is always with us, because our mouths and throats are invariably full of germs, including streptococci. So long as we have a stout defense in general health and immunity we are all right. Let us get run down, or be subject to a mass attack of the bacteria so numerous that they can storm our protection white blood cells, then we get a sore throat.

Streptococcus sore throats, occurs in isolated cases or in epidemic form.

In warding off the dreaded streptococci germ, note the following suggestions:

Take care of your teeth and gums, for they are the first source of infection; have your tonsils and adenoids removed if they are infected; take care of sinus trouble; take care of yourself generally; try vitamin A if you are inclined to catch cold easily; don't get your feet wet; don't get chilled; get as much exercise and sleep as you can.

fection; have your tonsils and adenoids removed if they are infected; take care of sinus trouble; take care of yourself generally; try vitamin A if you are inclined to catch cold easily; don't get your feet wet; don't get chilled; get as much exercise and sleep as you can.

THREATS MADE ON LIFE OF LOCAL COUPLE

Threats on the life of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. McNeely, residents of southwest Floydada suburbs, at 2 o'clock the morning of July 4, resulted in the detention of a colored youth about 17 or 18 years of age named LeRoy Heard, for a short time.

Deputy Sheriff Walter Hollums arrested the boy the same morning Mr. and Mrs. McNeely were awakened at their home by a voice at the door which Mrs. McNeely answered. The voice threatened her and ordered her to have Mr. McNeely come to the door. She answered the threat by ordering the man from the door, declaring she would begin shooting if he did not.

Barefoot tracks of one man were found in the yard and on the porch. The boy being held had worked for Mr. McNeely and also for others in the neighborhood.

A GOING CONCERN

"What are the assets of the Triple A?" Posing this question at the annual conference of the agency, R. M. Evans, the AAA Administrator, answered: "First, we have an administrative organization that deals directly and personally with more than six million farm families. It is an effective organization whose steadily increasing efficiency demonstrates on a grand scale that you can have democracy and efficiency, too. Second, we have the good will and respect of the bulk of farmers and of a considerable part of the leaders of the people. True, we have made some enemies but we have made more friends. To have strong friends and strong enemies is a mark of strength. Third, with the assistance of Triple-A and cooperating agencies, farmers are the best informed large group in America on national and international affairs. Fourth, we have the first large scale example of a working economic democracy in the world."

Advertising people who write it one way and have it read another will appreciate this story. "I advise you, Madam," instructed the doctor, "to take frequent baths, get plenty of fresh air, and dress in cool clothes."

"What did the doctor say?" inquired her husband an hour later. "He said I ought to go to Atlantic City, and then to the mountains," related his wife. "Also, that I must get some new evening gowns at once."

A widow whose husband had died some months previously also died and when she came to the pearly gate, asked to see her former husband.

"What's his name?" said St. Peter. "Joe Smith," replied the widow. "You have to give me some better identification than that," said St. Peter kindly. "How about his last words? We classify new arrivals by their words on earth."

"Well," she replied, "just before he died Joe turned to me and said, 'Mary, if you ever kiss another man I'll turn over to my grave.'"

"Oh, sure, I know him," said St. Peter. "We call him 'Whirling Joe' up here!"

"What are you doing now, Sam?" "Ah's an exportah."

"An exporter?" "Yassuh, Ah was fired by the Pullman Company."

Serving Hints Will Help Meal's Looks

After planning and preparing food well, the final step is to serve it in dainty fashion. Good meals are worthy of an attractive setting, and that isn't hard these days when pretty china and colorful table linens are obtainable at very moderate cost.

However, there are easy and quick ways of serving and it isn't necessary to make hard work of this phase of food preparation.

One of the easy ways of serving food is an adaptation of the restaurant fashion of "plate" meals. The main portion of the meal, meat and vegetables and sometimes a salad or fruit accompaniment, is arranged neatly on each plate in the kitchen. Foods which go well together in appearance as well as flavor are chosen for this service.

Foods to be served this way should not contain too much liquid. Meats which are cooked individual servings chops, skewered meats, beef and veal "birds," sausage links, frankfurters, and so on are conveniently served this way. Fried french potatoes and potato chips go well with them. Ramekins or patty shells may be used for creamed vegetables.

Here are two recipes, suggested by Inez S. Willson, home economist, for meat dishes to be served as part of "plate" dinners.

Skewered Veal Cubes
2 pounds veal shoulder
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
1 tablespoon butter
2 eggs
2 cups cornflakes
3 tablespoons lard.

Have veal shoulder cut into one-inch cubes and threaded into skewers. Mix mustard, salt, pepper and butter together and rub on the skewered veal. Dip in slightly beaten eggs then in crushed cornflakes. Brown on all sides in hot lard or bacon drippings. Add one-fourth cup hot water, cover tightly and cook very slowly for about thirty minutes.

Broiled Stuffed Frankfurters
1 pound frankfurters
Prepared mustard
1/4 pound American cheese
1/4 pound bacon.

Split the frankfurters lengthwise and spread the cut surface with mustard. Place a strip of cheese in the slit and wrap the frankfurter with a slice of uncooked bacon. Fasten with a toothpick. Place on a rack in a broiling oven so that the frankfurters are about 3 inches from the source of heat. Turn frequently. Broil until the bacon is crisp and the cheese melted. Serve with hot potato salad.

Texas claims more than two-thirds of the cooperative cotton gins in the country.

FIRST QUALITY FRUIT BOOSTS APPLE SALES

"One way of getting people to eat more apples," says the U. S. Department of Agriculture, "is to see that grocers and other retailers are supplied with fruit in first-class eating condition."

Ordinarily markets pay premiums for commercially important varieties while they are in relatively short supply. This tends to bring on the market, for example, Delicious and Northern Spy and even later varieties, while the earlier varieties are in season and before the later ones are in good eating condition. Also, growers and distributors commonly make the mistake of holding fall and early winter apples in storage long past the normal marketing season for a particular variety.

Marketing each variety while it is crisp—neither too hard nor becoming mealy—is one of the important merchandising problems of the apple industry. Its solution, market officials point out, calls for consideration by growers in different regions of a more carefully scheduled movement into consumption of each variety when it can be offered to stores in prime eating condition. It also calls for more attention to proper storage conditions, rapid handling of the fruit from the tree to storage, and a sales policy that will move each variety when it is at its best.

As a group, the stake of farmers in this world conflict is as great or greater than that of any other group. I propose to talk about this stake in the light of our own interests—our own selfish interests, without regard to the interests of any other country or countries.

I am a farmer and I think my outlook on things in general is the outlook of the average farmer. If there is any outstanding characteristic of the average farmer, I would say it is this: a love of individual liberty and individual freedom. That explains why a good many of us are farmers. But what does Hitlerism in Europe have to do with the freedom, liberty and safety of the average American farmer? It has a lot to do with it. It is equally true that the world cannot exist half democratic and half Nazi.—Claude R. Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture.

Because of the soil conservation that has taken place since 1933, farmers are in a position to produce more abundantly without robbing their land of soil fertility. During the first World War farmers produced plenty of food all right, but they did it the hard and costly way—at the expense of their land. Out on the Great Plains, for example, they planted dust storms along with their wheat. — Secretary of Agriculture Wickard.

HAVE FOOD—AND TO SPARE

In the totalitarian countries food is a weapon, a bait and a lash to be used to bolster the morale of shock troops, to enlist the skill of craftsmen from other lands, or to weaken the resistance of the conquered. In America food is a boon, the gift of God's good earth. That is why we would be criminally careless and unworthy of our heritage if we failed to dedicate ourselves to the proposition that none of us shall starve. This duty becomes especially imperative in view of the fact that we have the agricultural capacity to provide a good diet for the whole population. We have, as a matter of fact, some food to spare. We are in the twice blessed position of being able to feed ourselves and others, a position that may prove to be all important when the starving and shattered nations of Europe gather round a barren peace table.—M. L. Wilson, Director of Extension Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture.
