War Endeavor Takes Command In Community

Urgent Appeal For Red Cross To Citizens

It could be able to report to the Red Cross headquarters that Floyd county went on the top without making personal solicitations. Wouldn't we all be proud of that record for the firing line?"

Only 49 have helped to date. We have not heard from the others. Surely all Floyd county citizens will want to make a contribution to the War Relief fund of the American Red Cross.

Floyd County People Work And Plan Together

And It Doesn't Matter If They Were Forced Into It Or If They're Just Naturally Smarter, They're Doing A Good Job

(So says Louise Franke, editor of A & M Extension service in "The Extensioner," monthly publication devoted to farm betterment in Texas through planning. The story was published first late in December following a visit of Franke to Floyd county, which she spent with farm leaders. The pictures were made by Mr. Franke while here and the halftones reproducing them are used courtesy of the Extension service.—Ed. Note)

The first impression you get of Floyd county is that there is a lot of cooperation going on. It doesn't matter much from what direction you come, you get the same feeling. I came in from Lubbock; and it wasn't long after I dipped down from the South Plains into Blanco Canyon and up on the Plains again before I began to see REA lines, and signs about the Farmers Co-op Gin, and the Consumers Fuel Association, and so on.

Those are organized cooperatives. Floyd county is one of the pioneers in the cooperative field and today probably has a smattering of organized cooperatives for its size and population as any county in the state. I went there to see for myself how the land use planning work is getting along; and everywhere I found that farm people were working together in a way that proved that the cooperative spirit was strong.

Floyd county was formed from Young and Bexar territories; created August 21, 1875, it was organized as a county April 14, 1890. It took its name in honor of Dolphin Ward Floyd, a hero of the Alamo. I got that information from a State Highway Department marker; later I picked up the November 13 issue of Homer Steen's Floyd County Hesperian, and on the page edited by members of the Floydada High School's journalism class. I found more information in a report of a talk given by Dorothy Ann Dooley who won second place in "My Home Town" contest at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention in Midland. The first white family settled in Blanco Canyon in 1804, she said, and in 1867 Caroline V. Price dedicated land for the townsite of what was later to be named Floydada.

County Judge G. C. Tubbs explained "Floydada" to me. The original name had been Floyd City, but when the people applied for a post office in 1890, they found there was another Floyd City in Texas. So they added the "ada" in honor of Ada Price, a member of one of the county's pioneer families.

Leading Wheat Producing Counties

On the agricultural side, most of Floyd county's 647,040 acres lie on the South Plains proper, but the extreme northeastern part of the county is below the Cap Rock. In the southern part, the White River and Blanco Canyon make a great gash into the county. The average annual rainfall is 22 inches. The county's annual harvest of around four million bushels makes it Texas' leading wheat producing county; in 1940, the cotton production was 13,950 bales. Other crops include grain sorghums, oats, barley, Irish potatoes, sugar beets and alfalfa. Some 50,000 acres are under irrigation from 300-odd wells. So much for the 410,662 acres of crop land; the remainder of the county is in grass. Beef cattle and sheep are the principal livestock on the range; there is a sizable production of hogs on the farms.

I took advantage of my early arrival to take pictures of some of the co-op plants in Floydada. W. H. Nelson, one of the AAA committeemen and chairman of the board of supervisors of the Floyd County Soil Conservation district, offered to go along and show me around. I started off by calling him "Mr. Nelson." I thought perhaps he might be a shade hard of hearing, because several times when I asked him about something he didn't answer. Finally he told me that everyone in Floyd county called him "Jiggs." I called him "Jiggs" too, after that; and from then on we got along fine.

Mr. Nelson and I visited the Farmers' Co-Op Gin and the Floydada Cooperative Locker system, the REA headquarters and the Consumers Fuel Association plant. Here, in the absence of the manager, C. C. Huckabee, Seaton Howard offered to show us around. We saw big fuel storage tanks, and rooms full of automobile, truck and tractor tires, lube oils and greases, and so on. In one room I saw case after case of a popular brand of anti-freeze; and I told Mr. Howard that I had tried to get my winter's supply in Bryan and College Station and in Lubbock without success. Everybody said they were out and just couldn't get any more. In view of all this, I asked Mr. Howard, how is it you have such a big supply on hand? He said they had figured there might be a shortage and that higher prices were in prospect; they had plenty of money on hand; and so they decided to protect their members by laying in their usual supply well ahead of time.

The County Agricultural Building

Back at the court house, I took a picture of the agricultural building. Judge Tubbs told me it has been built in 1940 at a cost of $10,000, and that the building was the direct outcome of a recommendation made by the land use planning committee. In fact, a sub-committee headed by the county home demonstration agent, Miss Edith Lois Wilson and county farm agent D. F. Bredhauser had designed the building, he said. At present it houses the AAA office and the Extension Service agents; an addition is planned so that all agricultural agencies in the county will be under one roof. The farmers want it that way, Judge Tubbs said.

The building is the last word in convenience and completeness. For instance, there is a well equipped kitchen for Miss Wilson's food preparation demonstrations. While I was looking around, I noticed a small room that was used to store supplies. The AAA workers went in there pretty often to get forms and literature and this or that, and I noticed that each time one of them left the room, he turned off the lights. It seemed a little unusual to me, because usually people don't worry about lights in a public building, so I asked one of the AAA committeemen about it. "Well," he said, "why not turn 'em out? We pay taxes, and the county pays its light bills out of the taxes. The smaller the light bill, the further our tax money goes." That seemed to be typical of the attitude Floyd county people take toward their government.

A meeting was scheduled for 11 o'clock, but I had time to have a little get-together with Miss Wilson and Jason O. Gordon, the county agricultural agent; with Mrs. A. H. Kreis, chairman of the home demonstration council; and with L. A. Williams, the chairman of the land use planning committee. Mr. Williams said Floyd county had an unusually large committee—69 members—made up of 36 farmers, 15 farm women, and 18 representatives of state and federal agricultural agencies. "But then," he pointed out, "we have a large number of problems, too."

Home Demonstration Club Work

Mrs. Kreis told me something of the home demonstration club work. There are 16 clubs, she said, and 310 members. The council set up four mattress making centers; so far, 1,044 cotton mattresses and 273 cotton comforts have been made. In August a group sponsored a county-wide Food For Freedom meeting; Miss Jennie Camp and J. F. Rosborough, specialists of the Texas Extension Service, gave demonstrations on fruit and vegetable production. Ten clubs repeated the demonstrations in their communities. Every year the council members and their husbands have a banquet, the attendance has been excellent.

Miss Wilson said there were 178 4-H club girls in Floyd county and Mr. Gordon reported an enrollment of 148 4-H club boys. K. J. Edwards, the district agent, spoke up and said that Floyd county boys had made a remarkable record in 1940: 100 percent completion of all goals. That meant that of the 101 boys who signed up as club members at the beginning of the year, 101 completed their demonstrations and turned in their records.

There are two teachers of vocational agriculture in the county—one at Floydada and one at Lockney—and there are 39 boys enrolled in FFA work. Much of the 4-H and FFA work is aimed at food production in line with the Food For Freedom program. A defense training school in auto and tractor repair, offered by the Floydada public school, has an enrollment of 16 young men between the ages of 17 and 23 who attend three hours a night, five days a week.

At 11 o'clock we moved over to the court house, where Mr. Williams had called a meeting of various committee chairmen and representatives of state and federal agencies. This gave me an opportunity to ask all of the questions I wanted to about the programs of the various organizations in the county.

This excellent picture of the Floyd County Agricultural building with the court house in the background features the front cover of "The Extensioner" issue in which the Floyd county story appears. Here are housed the various executive and detail departments of the ACA. The building was constructed as an outgrowth of a recommendation of the Land Use Planning committee.

Many Things Are Going On

As soon as we started talking I knew that the Floyd county story was going to be a hard one to report. There was just so much going on that it wasn't going to be possible to put it all in one story. One thing stood out, though. That was that the land use planning committee had had its finger in every Floyd county pie of the past few years. Time after time, when some farmer would start to tell about this or that, he would start off by saying, "The land use planning committee looked things over first—and that's what something should be done."

Mr. Williams explained it this way: "Our policy has been to encourage anyone who had a problem or a suggestion to lay it before the committee. If the committee thinks something should be done, the matter is referred to a sub-committee for careful study. If the sub-committee can handle the matter, it does, and reports its action to the committee leader. If, on the other hand, it needs the help of the entire committee, it asks for help, and gets it."

It's impossible to mention all the things that have been done, or to arrange these achievements in order of importance, but here are some of the results:

The Floyd County Soil Conservation district has been formed. After that, a land use planning sub-committee worked out a system of procedure and a program of practices and had everything ready for the supervisors when the board was set up.

The commissioners' court bought a diesel powered maintainer and turned it over to the district.

A co-op food locker plant was opened in early 1939. In 1940 it handled more than 100,000 pounds of meat. A co-op cream station is operated in connection with the locker plant.

An REA project has been organized that serves some 1,000 farms in Floyd and the neighboring counties of Crosby, Dickens, Hale, Swisher and Briscoe.

One-Variety Cotton Improvement Plan

Floyd county takes a big part in the South Plains One-Variety Cotton Improvement and Marketing program—certainly a story in itself. The members plant only Paymaster or Jennings cotton; gin at 21 approved gins; the cotton must be 15-16 inch or longer in staple and conform to a number of other minimum requirements. The samples are handled by USDA Agricultural Marketing Service graders under the Smith-Doxey Act; bales are permanently identified by tags within the bale; and so on. Such cotton for the past two years has entered the U. S. Department of Agriculture's marketing program; Floyd county contributed more than 6,000 bales in 1939 and the indications are that the association will handle from 20,000 to 25,000 bales of Floyd, Hale, Briscoe and Swisher county cotton in 1941. The benefit of this program to farmers is self-evident; and the spinners have shown a marked liking for the uniform, high-quality cotton offered by the group.

Selected Floyd county farmers are carrying on soil building demonstrations in cooperation with the Texas Extension Service and the Tennessee Valley Authority.

An egg marketing association holds monthly meetings to study production and quality. Miss Myrtle Murray, extension home industries specialist, and Geo. P. McCarthy, extension poultryman, have presented demonstrations to the group.

A wool marketing association handled 450,000 pounds of wool in one year.

The Annual Irrigation School

Each spring some thousand farmers gather at an annual irrigation school in which authorities on the subject take part. The school branched out into livestock feeding in 1941, and, as Mr. Williams put it, "promises to be a regular farmers' short course like you have at A. & M. college."

Experiments are being conducted in sugar beet production. So far the tests are on a small scale, since the beets have to be shipped to Colorado for sale. But sugar beets show promise. And the committee secured a special freight rate for Floyd county beets.

Tests are being run on Irish potatoes, too. Most of the work is being done on cultural methods and on variety tests on 12 kinds of potatoes furnished by Mr. Rosborough.

Interest in nutrition has led home demonstration club members to take home grown wheat to a mill in Lockney which produces a genuine whole wheat flour.

Floyd county's healthy Farm Security Administration tenant purchase program received its start through the interest of the land use planning committee.

A sub-committee was appointed to study the possibilities of establishing a co-op hospital. The group visited the cooperative hospital at Amherst, in Lamb county; the application for a charter has been filed and plans for organization completed.

Dougherty Club Serves Dinner

That is, of course, only a sketchy picture of what Floyd county farm people are doing. I was still frantically taking notes when the meeting was adjourned. At noon we met again at the Floydada First Methodist church, where the members of the Dougherty Home Demonstration club offered us a turkey dinner complete with all the trimmings. The table was decorated with brightly colored autumn leaves. There was a huge centerpiece of a pumpkin surrounded with fruit. The ladies who served the table were dressed in Pilgrim costumes. And I thought—as I fed myself turkey and dressing—that if the Pilgrims had had this kind of food on the occasion of the original Thanksgiving, then it was no wonder that their feast had lasted a week.

After the dinner, we started out on a tour of several farms. We went first to the A. H. Kreis farm about 12 miles east of Floydada. The Kreis family is one of the four Whole Farm demonstrators in the county. Mr. Kreis "plants"—as he put it—around two sections of wheat a year. Everything is mechanized and as modern as can be. Mr. L. W. Chapman of the REA said the system of wiring there could serve as a model, and indeed we found electricity available everywhere we went. That goes for the house, too—Mrs. Kreis' kitchen abounds with electric servants.

Later, we stopped at the CCC camp on the outskirts of Floydada, and then at the H. B. Johnson farm, where the Farm Security Administration and the Soil Conservation Service have combined their efforts. Even though it was late November, there were green vegetables in the garden; oats were thriving in the chicken run; cattle were cleaning up the sudan on the terraces; and a trench silo was under construction.

On to the Patterson Gin at Lockney, where we inspected the dryer and a potato grader; then to the Lockney Consumers Fuel Association. We stopped to look at an irrigation well powered by electricity at the Laughlin Potato Farm; and at the Frank Perkins farm nearby we found the county maintainer at work building terraces.

We visited C. A. Gloyna and his family who were at work harvesting sugar beets; an interesting operation but one that looked to be mighty hard work. Mr. Gloyna has 20 acres of beets and is harvesting 14 tons per acre.

We ended up at the J. W. Jennings farm, where we saw some of Mr. Jennings' cotton and a 100 acre field of grain sorghum that was as pretty as any I ever looked at. It was certified Quadron, and the field was so even that apparently no head was out of place. Mr. Jennings said he had planted the field on July 15 after harvesting barley that yielded 35 bushels to the acre. He estimated that the Quadron would turn out better than two tons of heads per acre.

What The CCC Boys Can Do

By that time the sun had set, and it was chilly. The wind—which had been blowing at a good pace all afternoon—freshened up still more, and we got into the car and sat there in the comparative warmth while I checked up on my notes. Out of that I got two little additions that I rather liked.

One: Edgar Kemp of the Soil Conservation Service was telling me what the CCC boys could do for the farmers in the soil conservation district—build or repair fences, throw up dams, fill in low places on terraces and construct terrace outlets, use the camp machinery to do 10 percent of the terrace construction, do no other cost to the farmer than that of the gas and oil, and so on. Then he happened to mention that because of the local farm labor shortage the CCC authorities were releasing boys for farm work. They check out of camp on a kind of furlough arrangement, he said. I asked him what kind of hands they made, and he said they were A-1. Then he told about one farmer who had the reputation of being hard to please. This man went to the camp and hired some of the CCC boys to help harvest his grain sorghum. When they got through, he was tickled to death. "Those boys shocked feed like they were fighting fire," he reported.

Two: I asked the group if they had any idea why co-op food cooperative effort seemed to thrive so in Floyd county. With no one answered, I put it this way: "Is it because you had such a hard time making a living farming up here that you just had to turn to working together and buying and selling together to get by, or are you just smarter than most other farmers?"

Nobody wanted to answer that one, either. Finally Mr. "Jiggs" Nelson spoke up: "I reckon we're just naturally smarter," he said.

MEXICO AND U. S. COMBINING TO FIGHT WORST COTTON PEST

Flying high over the Mexican border without benefit of passport, the pink bollworm, cotton's most destructive pest, is seeking to become established in the United States cotton belt. Thanks to an effective agreement between Mexico and the United States, however, the damaging insect is making little progress.

Mexico acquired the pink bollworm from Egypt in cottonseed imported in order to improve the native species of cotton. From Mexico it crossed into the states and has entrenched itself in southern Texas so stubbornly that a formidable array of scientists and farmers from both sides of the Rio Grande has engaged in the battle to eradicate it.

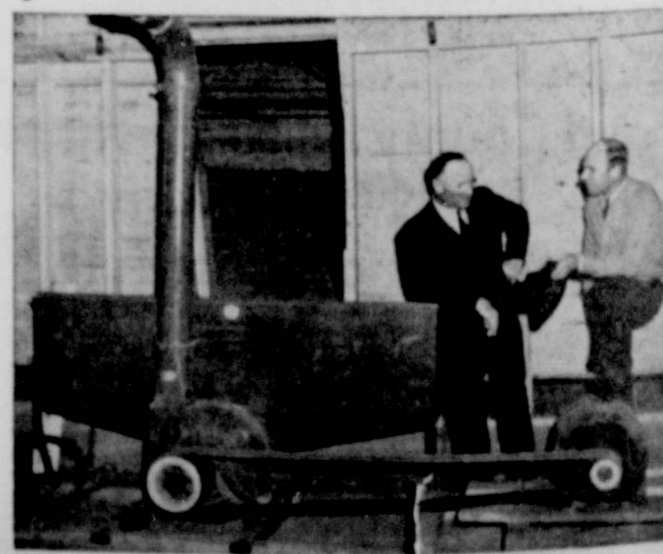

The adult moth of the pink bollworm devotes its life to night flight and to the laying of eggs which hatch into tiny worms. These worms feed on the cotton boll, destroying most of the cotton fiber along with the seed. After feeding well, the worm spins a cocoon, changes into moth form, and begins the life cycle all over again.

It is through this life cycle that the insect is being attacked, reports the Department of Agriculture publication, Agriculture in the Americas. With the cooperation of cotton growers of both Mexico and the United States, a uniform time of planting cotton and a prompt post-harvest clean-up of fields throughout the infested area are encouraged. The effect of clearing out all cotton plants is to starve the worms and deprive them of suitable places to lay their eggs.

On the Left. The Farmers' Co-Operative Gin company plant in Floydada where storage is provided for many bales of cotton, considered one of the area's outstanding cotton gins.

To the Right. This is the nerve center of the Floyd County Rural Electric co-operative, which serves a far-flung area and for which another huge extension is planned as soon as war conditions will permit the release of materials for its construction.

Gifted Youngster Shows Skill With Pen And Ink Drawing Of Business House

Burneice Colston, graduate of the Floydada High school with the class of 1939-40, is a gifted youngster. A pen and ink sketch of Oden Chevrolet company's business home which she did a few weeks ago and reproduced herewith proves the point. Apparently the delineation is accurate. Leastwise it seemed so to The Hesperian reporter to whom the sketch was shown. She drew the sketch while seated in her parked car on the street. Everything about the sketch is "just the way it looks." Burneice just began making the lines that she saw as she viewed the building.

Since early childhood Miss Colston has been interested in caricatures and only recently has she tried sketching buildings. She has had lessons in pen and ink drawing and in water colors, which she also likes to work with, but she has had lessons in oil painting. She likes pen and ink and water color work better. Some experience in portrait painting in a local photography studio has been helpful to her in doing water color effects.

Note that in the drawing everything is there from the notched walls to the light post in front of the building.

The young lady is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Colston of Baker living with her parents eight miles east of Floydada on the Matador-Floydada highway.

Burneice Colston, gifted amateur artist with pen and ink, drew the sketch of the business house shown herewith. The sketch was done as she sat in a parked car on the street, and "drew the lines that she saw."

This sketch of the Oden Chevrolet company building at the corner of Main and Mississippi streets is Burneice Colston's idea put on paper of what the building looks like. Mr. Oden was so pleased with the sketch that he asked her permission to use the reproduction in his advertisements from time to time in The Hesperian. The sketch was reproduced in the exact size drawn by the artist, and without any re-touching or "fixing up" of any kind.

Fred N. Clark Asks Election For Sheriff

To the People of Floyd County:

I wish to announce my candidacy for re-election to your sheriff's office. I have served you now for several years, and you are acquainted with my record. I feel that my experience qualifies me to serve you better, but I am willing that you should be the judge. As I have told you before, I have made mistakes but they have not been mistakes of the heart. I have tried honestly to enforce the law and fulfill the duties of the sheriff's office in Floyd county to the best of my ability.

Probably no county in Texas has a better record for law abiding people than Floyd county. I deserve no credit for that, and I take none. The high type of citizenship that we have in Floyd county deserves credit for that record. I have been only your public servant, trying as best I knew how to give you the type of service to which you are entitled.

I will appreciate the opportunity of serving you again, and I promise you always the best there is in me.

Sincerely,
Fred N. Clark

Six ways in which the women of the country may assist in the defense program as suggested by the state president, Mrs. J. W. Walker of Plainview, were read before the club by Mrs. A. T. Hull, defense chairman of the club. They are:

2. Salvage of tin. All tin cans should be washed and kept.
3. Saving of other items of waste that contain steel, oxyn, iron, per. zinc, lead, rubber, cotton and woolen rags, bones and fat from the table.
4. Conservation of spare time so that the surplus may be spent doing Red Cross work. Systematic purchasing of Defense bonds and stamps.
5. Conservation of human values. Every woman should be on the alert for any person who makes a demoralizing statement about our nation. Any such should be quietly reported to the nearest F. B. I. agent or to local officers.

Sweet Potatoes STUFFED FOR STYLE

SWEET potatoes are one of the useful root vegetables that seem to have everything to offer but style. Here, then, is an easy, yet delicious way to "glid the lily" and to prepare a brand-new dish at the same time.

The first step in preparing this dish is concerned with the sweet potatoes. Now the skins of sweet potatoes are apt to be a bit tough, while yams have thin skins which tear easily. Therefore if some shortening or oil is used to grease the skins of either one before baking, this procedure will make it easier to turn the trim pointed flaps of skin back without tearing, when the stuffing is ready. Such greasing gives the potatoes an appetizing glossy look, too, so please do not overlook that part of the recipe in preparing this dish. Then, as a short-cut, kitchen scissors will be helpful in slashing the neat openings where the potatoes are to be stuffed, if a good sharp paring knife is not readily at hand.

Choose sweet potatoes for baking which are thick and "chunky," and as near the same size as possible. Avoid using potatoes with wrinkled ends, since that indicates old potatoes. But now with these preliminary suggestions out of the way, let me really give you the recipe.

PINEAPPLE STUFFED SWEET POTATOES
(Serves 6)

6 medium-sized sweet potatoes or yams
1 cup Hawaiian Crushed Pineapple, well drained (No. 2 or 20-ounce can)

1/4 cup brown sugar (firmly packed)
Wash sweet potatoes, dry, and grease skins. Preheat oven to 400° F. and bake potatoes about 1 hour. Remove from oven, make two cuts on top at right angles to each other. Turn back the flaps of skin and scoop out a spoonful of potato pulp. Combine Crushed Pineapple and brown sugar and heap about 2 1/4 tablespoons of this mixture within the opening. Return to heated oven for 5 minutes. Serve immediately.

The juicy topping of Crushed Pineapple and the melting brown sugar both compliment the meanness of the sweet potatoes or yams—as I am sure you will agree. As a complete menu suggestion, however, remember that ham, in any form, blends perfectly with the flavor of Pineapple. Add to this a salad of fresh vegetable greens blended with French Dressing, hot baking powder biscuits and fresh warm gingerbread topped if you like with whipped cream. The result? Sighs of content as the meal disappears!

Serving a simple yet successful dish like these "Sweet Potatoes Stuffed for Style" is a wonderful antidote for the feeling that all homemakers get at one time or another—that life consists merely of one meal after another. For when the family likes the food and does not hesitate to say so, that is payment, indeed, for all the planning that must be done and the hours that must be spent in getting meals. So try these Pineapple Stuffed Sweet Potatoes—soon.

Jap Population Of The U. S. And Possessions

There were 126,947 Japanese in the continental United States on April 1, 1940, of whom 47,305 were foreign born, and therefore alien and ineligible for citizenship, Director J. C. Capt of the Bureau of the Census Department of Commerce, announced today on the basis of the 1940 Population Census returns.

In the territories and possessions of the United States, excluding the Philippine Islands, there were an additional 158,501 Japanese, of whom 37,512 were alien foreign-born. The Philippines Islands contained 29,057 citizens of Japan according to the Census of the Philippines taken as of January 1, 1939.

The Pacific Coast States of Washington, Oregon, and California had 112,353 Japanese, or 88.5 percent of the total in the country. Furthermore, these States contained 49,869 alien Japanese or 86.4 percent of the total. California alone had 93,717, or 73.8 percent of the total Japanese in the United States and 33,969 alien Japanese or 71.0 percent of the total. The Mountain States contained an additional 8,574 Japanese, of whom 3,137 were alien foreign-born and the Middle Atlantic States had 3,060, of whom 2,017 were alien foreign-born.

In the territories and possessions of the United States, excluding the Philippines, there were 139 alien Japanese born in the United States, and who are therefore citizens of the United States, increased from 68,357 in 1930 to 79,642 in 1940, or by 16.5 percent.

The conscientious housewife does not broadcast the news when cockroaches invade her home. But, according to Jason O. Gordon, county agricultural agent, it is not a social error if the evil insects appear in any well-appointed kitchen. The cockroach has no social preference and thrives equally well in the mansion or humble cottage, especially if the eating is good.

Cockroaches can be easily eliminated when the source of infestation is controlled. Crack fillers, such as putty, plastic wood, or plaster of paris will close many openings used by roaches as avenues to hiding places. Openings can be located by watching roaches run for concealment. All cracks around water and drainage pipes passing through floors, and those leading to spaces behind baseboards, door and window trims should be filled.

Sodium fluoride powder is recommended to control roaches and gives best results when used with a small dust gun. The powder should be dusted into all cracks, behind baseboards, moldings, sinks and other places in which roaches hide. Sodium fluoride is poisonous to humans and should be used with great care. The sprayer should be perfectly dry and the poison in a fine powdered form. If a sprayer is not available, fair results may be attained by sprinkling the powder into the places mentioned and in the roach runs. A thin film of poison is more effective than when used in large quantities.

Pyrethrum powder is non-poisonous and gives excellent control when applied in all cracks. Best results are obtained by using a dust gun.

Cypert In Race For Co. Judge Floyd County

I am announcing my candidacy for county judge of Floyd County. In 1936 I was elected county commissioner in Precinct No. 3 and served in that capacity the years of 1937-1938.

I was re-elected in 1940 and am serving my second term now.

I have been in the county 30 years, and if you wish to elect me for county judge I will serve you with all the common sense I have.

I want to thank the people of Precinct No. 3 for their past favors and ask their support in my ambition for a promotion.

City Park Church

(J. G. Malphurs, minister)

Because of the importance of the responsibility of the church to teach the Bible, the City Park Church of Christ will be favored with a series of several sermons on "Teaching Them." "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free," said Jesus. People are bound to Satan largely because they have not been taught. The church is the "pillar and ground of the truth," I Timothy 3:15.

The church will be held accountable to God for not teaching the truth "in season and out of season." The new feature about these sermons will be an outline for each listener to take home with him. The public is cordially invited to hear every sermon.

For the evening hour, 7:30, the subject will be, "The Testimony of The Three Witnesses," I Jno. 5:8. What these three witness testify to, and how they testify, will prove both interesting and helpful.

Methodist Church

(R. T. Breedlove, pastor)

Nothing was wrong with the weather Sunday. But something must have been wrong with some folks, because there were a good many who did not go to church. However, there was a good increase over the preceding Sunday. "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sins, and will heal their land." II Chron. 7:14. That is God's promise.

And, if that is true, the ills of our country are to be laid at the doors of backslidden church members. God has made us a promise. Let us do our part; God will do his. Go to church Sunday, for your own sake and for God's sake.

Pneumonia Fatal To 11-Year-Old Girl Friday

Funeral rites for Berdena Hopper, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Hopper, were held at 3 p. m. Saturday, January 10 at the First Baptist church. Elder Ethridge Norman of Wellington, assisted by Rev. L. A. Doyle, pastor of the church conducted the service.

THE SPOT LIGHT IS TURNED ON AN AGE OLD PROBLEM

DO YOU KNOW THAT:

GOVERNMENT RESEARCH shows that 90% of the American people are constipated?

PHYSICIANS assert that a slowing up of bowel movements is man's chief ailment and the underlying factor in most of our ailments?

PSYCHOLOGISTS have traced most of our unhappiness, neurosis and failure in life to faulty waste-matter elimination?

IT IS COMMON FALLACY that one bowel movement a day is sufficient to keep the body machinery free from waste? By the use of X-Ray we have been able to follow through the stomach and intestines and have found that the average person having one bowel movement a day (wrongly considered normal) has at least 48 hours (two days) elapse before the food taken at a given meal is evacuated.

WHAT ARE THE NATURAL RESULTS

It is but natural that a lazy, inefficient colon will eventually cause trouble such as:

Arthritis	Neuritis
Rheumatism	Appendicitis
Cholecystitis	Myocarditis
Endocarditis	Abscesses, Body
Abscessed Teeth	"Colds"
Respirator Disease

Inflammation of: Infections of: Skin Diseases

Throat	Urethra	Psoriasis
Nose	Bladder	Boils
Sinuses	Kidney	Carbuncles,
Eyes	Anus	Acne
Ears	Rectum	Eczema
		Hives

Sure Cure For Itching Piles

OUR COLONIC-INTESTINAL TREATMENT

Particularly by the newest method, has been proven to be the most satisfactory treatment devised by science to overcome the effects of constipation. Doing this repeatedly over a period of time gives the abdominal muscles a great deal of exercise. This in turn builds up the musculature and the rhythmic functions of the colon. The intestinal muscles are utilized in an average treatment as often as they normally would be in several hours of exercise. The effects of this repeated action is usually to restore normal bowel movement without the need of chemical or other artificial aids.

WHAT OUR TREATMENT DOES

- (1) Washes out the contents of the colon (large bowel) and the poisons it may contain, in a natural, painless and harmless manner.
- (2) It cleans out the many pockets of the bowels not evacuated by ordinary bowel movements.
- (3) It exercises the colon mechanically, restoring normal "tone" by increasing the natural peristaltic movements.
- (4) It builds up the efficiency of the colon, restores rhythm and increases the number of evacuations. These should be through normal bowel movements daily without the use of cathartics.
- (5) It corrects and prevents constipation and its many resulting disorders.
- (6) It lifts a tremendous burden from the body's resistance forces and releases these for constructive purposes.

Sparks And Baxter 1942 Whirlwind Captains

Harold Sparks and Roy Baxter are captains of the '42 football squad as announced by Coach Murry Saturday night at the banquet.

These votes were taken by secret ballot. They were the choice of this group because of their outstanding ability to play football.

Harold Sparks went out for spring training his freshman year and lettered his sophomore year. Jerry Whelan, sports reporter for the Amadorian, commented on Harold's excellent ability to play his position. Harold also received honorable mention by the all star district.

Roy Baxter entered F. H. S. as a freshman and began his football career. Roy is a favorite among the boys especially for his distribution as a tackle and he lettered his first year in football. Roy, by hard work and loyalty, earned the position as all star district tackle this year.

Coach Van Meter speaks at banquet program. Leslie Van Meter defined an athlete as "one who is strong, whose heart is right, whose mind is alert." In his after dinner speech at the banquet, Saturday night, he further said that the athlete knows how to discipline his mind.

Leslie Van Meter is line coach of WYNUC at Canyon. He came to Floydada to be the guest speaker at the banquet honoring the Whirlwind champions. He came to WT from Kentucky.

Mr. Van Meter praised the Whirlwind football season and said that Floydada had a mighty fine team. He had especially noted their records because he knew the coaches personally. He praised these coaches and their work and said Floydada was lucky to have such men to coach her boys. Mr. Van Meter closed his talk by declaring that foot-

Jr. Red Cross More Active In County

In 1917, under the leadership of President Woodrow Wilson, the American Junior Red Cross was organized. This organization works in cooperation with the American Red Cross in helping those who are unfortunate, but it is a separate organization under the control of different officers. The work is carried on entirely through the schools with the children doing the work under the supervision of their teachers. As one child expressed it, "This is the kid's show and they know it."

This year for the first time an effort was made to organize Junior Red Cross chapters in every county in the United States. The enrollment was carried on during the same time as the Red Cross enrollment. Approximately thirteen million children were enrolled. These children are from the following schools: Starkey, Lakeview, Sand Hill, Baker, North Ward in Floydada, Harmony and R. C. Andrews School in Floydada.

R. C. Andrews Ward Leads. Up to this date most of the work in the county has been done in the R. C. Andrews school because the school was organized and working before county enrollment began. Early in the year twenty Christmas boxes were packed with soap, towels, pencils and other small articles and sent to refugee children in the Waco State home for children, and seventy-five Christmas cards were made in art classes and during spare time and sent to the hospital at Camp Bowie. Curtains have been made by the girls for the North Ward school, and a number of helpful articles such as booklets, pictures and an attractive waste paper basket made by the second grade has been sent to the colored juniors. The children have earned about $30.00 for their Local Service fund, part of which was used to buy the gifts for the orphan children.

There are several projects under way in the county now. Lakeview and Sand Hill and R. C. Andrews Ward school are saving and collecting waste paper. The boys in the manual arts class at Sand Hill plan to make jigsaw puzzles, writing boards etc., for soldiers' hospitals. The girls at Lakeview plan to do some knitting and the children of R. C. Andrews are knitting an afghan. The organization is also sponsoring the selling of defense stamps at Andrews ward.

The Floydada chapter will hold a meeting January 13, 1942 at the Floydada High school. There will be one boy elected to go with David Battey, the reporter for the area, to a meeting at Plainview January 14, 1942. Every school that teaches agriculture is expected to send two boys.

The Journalism class has purchased a new supply of candy and they will resume their sales in the entrance hall. The money from these sales will go to the defense fund the journalism students have started. The cooperation of the student body in these sales will be greatly appreciated.

Students Start Defense Stamp Buying Drive

The students of Andrews Ward school have started a defense drive in an effort to promote the sale of defense bonds and stamps. The main drive was started January 5 and since that date $117.70 worth of defense bonds and stamps have been purchased by the students. Glad Snodgrass promoted the drive by advancing enough capital to start the work. The money was used to buy defense stamps which are now being resold to the children.

The room selling the greatest amount of stamps each week receives special recognition in chapel. Miss Hoyle's room won this honor last week by selling $15 worth of stamps.

H. G. Barber, agriculture teacher, was absent last week because of illness. Mrs. Barber substituted for her husband during the exams.

HOME EC DEPARTMENTS HAVE NEW BLINDS

The Home Economics departments have new white venetian blinds. The Home Economics girls earned the money for the blinds by serving at banquets and dinners.

The foods and clothing departments and the dining room windows are definitely improved in looks and this year's students are proud to be the first to install the venetian blind.

"We are very proud of them. They have improved the looks of the department and very few schools have them," said Miss Hall.

Serving at the banquet was part of the girls project for earning the money and receiving a grade. Each Home Ec girl had to help in some part of the banquet before they could receive their report card. Some helped cook the food, some served and the others cleaned up.

HOMEMAKING GIRLS TO CO-OPERATE WITH DEFENSE

Miss Ruth Huey, State Director of Homemaking Education at Austin, has requested the Homemaking teachers of the department there to volunteer their services and their Homemaking girls services to the County Director of Civilian Defense, for participation in and promoting and development of defense nutrition for Floyd County.

Miss Hall states that the Director of Civilian Defense is either the mayor, W. U. White, or county Judge, Clifford Tubbs. Just what the girls will do is yet to be worked out by the director and Misses Hall and Elliott.

Marine Mobile Unit In Floyd For Two Days

The United States Marine corps, represented by two recruiting sergeants and a mobile unit, will be at the Post Office in Floydada today and Friday for the purpose of interviewing and examining all applicants for this famous branch of Uncle Sam's fighting forces, according to Captain T. E. Kendrick of the Marine recruiting service.

Men who are physically sound and between the ages of 17 and 30, unmarried and with no dependents, can become Marines, again an honored title in World War II.

All men accepted will be sent at once to San Diego, California for their initial training and then assigned to a station ashore or shore, wherever they are best suited to serve in the defense of our United States.

Enlistments may be effected for the duration of the war.

Men who have registered for the draft may enlist unless they have been called for induction.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS WILL NOT WAIT FOR US TO FINISH WITH THE WAR
Floydada, Texas, January 12, 1942.

The big headlines these days are all about the war that is raging in Europe and threatening to engulf the world. But in these next few lines, I want to tell you about another war—a war that is at home against an enemy every bit as terrifying, for its victims and their families, as any that ever stalked across the continent of Europe.

This enemy at home is infantile paralysis—a vicious, cruel and utterly ruthless disease. It's your enemy and the enemy of our children and together we've got to do something about it. I know—as all of you know—that here in America today we have many big jobs to do. We have many sacrifices to make and if it were possible, I would say with all the rest of you that it would be better to forget every thing else for awhile until our big job of national defense has been completed.

But there are certain things that cannot be postponed—cannot be put off for a single moment—and one of these things is our fight against infantile paralysis.

Infantile paralysis won't wait. In this war at home, we are not fighting something vague or remote. We are at grips with an invader that uses all the familiar tactics of modern warfare. It strikes with the force of a Blitzkrieg without warning, without favoring the strong over the weak, the rich over the poor and the old necessarily, over the young.

Everywhere, everywhere in its path is a potential victim. In epidemic form it is at this moment a threat to every community in the land. As a matter of fact, it appears to be a greater threat than ever before because the last three years have been the most serious epidemic years in the history of America. In the last three years, fewer than 26,000 of our fellow Americans have fallen victim to this raging epidemic of the disease.

The financial plan of the campaign in Texas this year is as follows:

After deducting all necessary expenses of the celebration in Floyd County, the net proceeds will be divided equally and the County Campaign chairman will remit 50% of the net proceeds to the Texas State committee.

The other 50% shall be held by the County Campaign treasurer, for delivery to the chapter of the "National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc." in Floyd county.

Gaines Davis, County Chairman.

Rev. Jas. C. Plisk, of Los Angeles, California, has been among the visitors of the week in Floydada. He is the guest of his stepson, Rev. C. A. Hartley Methodist East circuit minister, and family, on South Main street.

Rev. Plisk, now upward of 70, has been a minister of the Quaker faith for many years. He preached for his minister stepson at Dougherty Sunday night.

Clifford Tubbs Candidate For County Judge

G. C. Tubbs this week announced his candidacy for re-election to the office of county judge in a statement issued as follows:

During the three years I have tried to serve as your county judge. I have given the best that is in me and appreciate very much the cooperative spirit you have manifested. Believe me, it has been a pleasure to serve you.

I should you desire to keep me longer, I promise you my very best efforts to serve economically and efficiently. I cannot promise to visit each of you at your homes and personally solicit your votes because we are in a war that we must win. If my saving on tires and gasoline and expense will help to win this war, then it is my duty to my country to do so, because my country needs all the rubber and gasoline and all the money I can possibly put into defense stamps and bonds. My election is not as essential as are my money and efforts to help win this war.

I shall make an effort to see as many of the voters personally as possible but if I miss you, just remember I want your support just as much as if I had talked to you personally about it.

Sincerely,
G. C. Tubbs.

To The People Of Floyd County

I wish to take this method of announcing my candidacy for the office of County Clerk of Floyd County.

I made the race for this office in 1936 and sincerely appreciate the support given me at that time.

Having had more than ten years experience in Abstract and title work I believe I am qualified for this job and feel that the six years since my first campaign for this office have served to enhance my qualifications and will enable me more than ever to fill this office to your satisfaction.

I was born in Floyd County, and have lived here nearly all of my life. I have been in public work for the past twelve years. I know the duties and requirements of a County Clerk and assure you that if elected I will conduct the office of County Clerk efficiently to the best of my ability.

Sincerely,
Douglas Hollums.

EDITORIALS

Get set now to be harangued and written to and at about your tires and how to make them go further and give you more service. Everybody wants to keep on riding as long as they can. Here's our mite for this week: It costs motorists real money to drive with under-inflated tires. It is expensive and it wastes valuable rubber. Tires inflated only two pounds under the recommended pressure will wear 15 per cent faster than tires properly inflated. You lose power, too, have sidewall cracks, difficult steering, road hazards. And if you fool around and don't take this advice you'll have vertigo, frostbite, erysipelas and hang nails, besides having to walk.

Really sensational the way people are talking and thinking about the tire and tube situation. And too bad for the Japanese some of these days. We doubt if any Floyd farmers are going to wade that far and that deep when they get flats right in the middle of plowing or harvest this summer, but they are going to feel like it, you can be sure. Interesting, too, how the speed limits are being reduced. One large company has put governors on its salesmen's cars. Remarkable the amount of saving in tires and gasoline, but this saving is paid for in time. A great deal of difference in the time you'll make from city to city at 40 miles an hour and at another speed that runs from 60 miles on up according to the driver and his hurry.

A man with a farm lease six or eight miles from home, or perhaps three or four leases in a radius of 20 miles has some furrows on his brow now, figuring how he is going to make the rounds, get the tractors serviced, get spare parts, get lunch for the men, do this, do that. Six months ago, had he known what he knows now he might not have covered so much territory. But with his money already spent for leases he's got to keep keeping on and trust that something good will happen. Something good is not happening fast, however, so far as the rubber situation is concerned. Read your paper about how the Japanese have driven the English back in the far southwestern Pacific where most of the world's rubber is produced. Assume now you won't be able to get rubber next summer, except in very limited quantities, then if you're lucky you're that much ahead.

What good fortune that this war begins as the high plains country has such a wonderful season! Not so the other time the United States got into a peck of trouble with Mr. Hitler's ambitious predecessor, the Kaiser. It was dry and dry, as some will recall. Many a farmer and business man bought government securities and helped the Red Cross in those days when it really hurt. Nowatimes the hurt is more or less synthetic, and there are a good many people who have not begun to take the thing seriously yet.

A good thing to have money in during a war, and especially in one where the spending is so lavish that it can only be imagined by mortal mind, is in something that you can look at—sticks and stones and soil. Land at present prices in Floyd county does not represent inflationary prices or anything like it. In fact prices here are still depression prices. Buy all of the land or houses you can use properly and have good reason to think you can pay for. Money is going to be a cheap commodity in a year or two, and while it is true that hard times will come a-knocking at the door sometime or other, it is in hard times that you are proudest of land as property. Money managers are said to be advising—and we believe the report is true—their investing customers that the thing to do for the present is to get their investments into a form of obligation that is backed by land.

Automobiles are not silk stockings and there is no all-round substitute for automobiles. This is pointed out in a tract put into circulation this week by the National Automobile Dealers' association, whose industry has been struck a hard blow by the freeze order issued the first of the year. How very real the necessity for automobiles is in this country is evidenced by the startling fact that in Texas alone there are 2,265 communities which are railless and depend solely on motor vehicles for their transportation. With these people, of course, it is autos or walk. It is trite to say whatever is necessary to be done to win the war must be done, but the office of production management will undoubtedly take into consideration the serious upheaval in a hundred ways from the flat termination of the making of automobiles. In addition to the thought that to carry on the war automobiles must continue to be made, it is also a fact that these 2,265 communities in Texas—and proportionate number in other states—as well as suburban dwellers, six out of 10 city residents, defense workers, must have cars, repair and service. They cannot travel by the 900 buggies sold in the United States last year, and existing and prospective electric, steam and bus lines cannot handle them. It's motor cars, walk or stay at home with them.

As regards "wet" and "dry" territory in the state the Liquor Control Board's report shows that there are three new "dry" counties in the state—Jeff Davis, Limestone and Willacy—which had had beer before. However, McLennan, a big county down in the middle of the state, voted "wet" by a comfortable majority and Frio and Pecos county voters also voted wet where early vote had been tabulated as dry. You never do settle the liquor problem. You just keep working with it.

Increase in state revenues from liquor under the increased tax rates was about $150,000 in November over November of a year ago. This would seem to denote a decrease in the total consumption of liquor in Texas, for had the same ratio of consumption continued the revenue from liquor would almost have doubled. We may be wrong on this increase anticipated by the legislature when the law was passed, but that's the impression we have of estimates made at the time.

A new method for combatting the boll weevil, scourge of the South's cotton fields, save and except in the high plains country of Texas, may have been found. While all the diseases that attack cotton and the damage charged to the weevil are not in fact due to this little bug, the fact remains that eradication of the weevil would be a tremendous boon to the cotton growing areas. The new method is not a new one, in a way, but is a repetition of the age-old method of finding insect that preys on an insect. In other words find a weevil to eat the weevil. What the new insect is called is microbracon. It parasitizes the weevil. The only problem is to find a way to make them grow in myriad numbers in the winter-time, then turn them loose in the fields in the growing season, which is sure to be done sooner or later, it is anticipated, through regular government agency channels. The parasite also enjoys pink boll weevil eggs for a diet. In the winter time it is expected to keep the Microbracon alive and thriving on flour moths. There will be no danger of the new insect itself becoming a pest, we are told.

Beware of rumor and gossip. An idle remark by a careless individual can grow into an ugly and evil lie in a short time. People are high strung and emotional these days. You can render a patriotic service by using your common sense.—Wellington Leader.

As A Farm Woman Thinks

Nellie Witt Spikes

Wonder if I am as thrilled with getting ready to go to Amarillo to be guest of KGNC as my father was when he was getting ready to go to Amarillo to go to the new shipping town of Amarillo to teach a singing school. For days ahead my mother made preparation to go. Cooked up a sack of biscuits to be reheated in a skillet over the camp fire, a sack of cookies for the children to eat as the covered wagon rolled north. She packed the few belongings of the Witt family. A few hours before we drove into town a hard rain with plenty of lightning and deafening thunder stopped us in the road, a family alone on a water drenched prairie, a man with only a tuning fork for music going to teach black notes on a staff to pupils eager to learn. We lived in a two room house, close by the home of Brother Bandy. My brother, Lowell and I slept on a drygoods box, but oh how soft it was after mother spread a pallet on it and kissed us goodnight!

We had to haul water in a barrel and kept it covered with a tub to keep roving cows and horses from helping themselves. The tub made an excellent piano, to me at least. I thought the men and women going by were delighted with my music as I played on the rattling tub and sang at the top of my voice, but now I realize they only hurried faster and muttered, why does not some one make that child stop that noise!

I have gotten up to the time of life when I do not want to take out and actually be laid on the shelf, but I'd like to kinda lean against it and just do the things I want to do. But this cannot be so, my country needs my services. So in the spring I will begin the fight again with the weeds and greedy insects in the garden, will run out before the rains to try to drive old contrary hens with scared chickens to shelter, keep on like I have for so many years but of course with a slowed down gait.

This is true of all the farm women around. The other day when the home demonstration club met, every member planned to do extra work on the farm as well as Red Cross sewing and knitting. The women in the towns around have the same determination and as needles fly over the hanks of khaki yarn and make stitches where stitches were never made before, they will say, knit one, purr, knit two, Pearl Harbor.

When I got my new desk I felt sure that glowing words and neatly-turned phrases would fairly flow from my typewriter keys. Somehow it was not any easier to put my thoughts on paper than it was when my desk was the kitchen table, where at least I could keep a part of my mind on the pie in the oven or add more water to the pot of beans.

Last year I studied about taking a course in journalism. I came to the conclusion that I would only find out I did not know a thing about writing. I remembered some themes I wrote for the girls when they were in college that came back to the teacher marked with a big E. As long as folk like the column the way it is, I will keep on using a large supply of the letter, I with as many adjectives as I can remember.

All last spring when I was so busy making a garden and raising chickens during the hot days of summer and the cool days of fall while I canned from morning till night, I kept saying as I gave my house a lick and a promise that when winter come I would really keep house and write and write. But am I doing this? The bed rooms are icy, with cold fingers I yank the many covers straight and drag a broom quickly over the floors then go back to sit by the fire, still a lick and a promise housekeeper. As to the writing—well on Monday morning when I get this column written and mailed I seem to forget the extra writing.

The pavement unrolls like a ribbon, curves down a rocky hill, flattens out across a silver stream of water and Section Twelve spreads out to our right brown and peaceful under the pale winter sun. I speak to my husband, he does not hear. In his eyes are a faraway look and I know he is off to the days of his cowboy life, a tall slim boy riding a good horse. It was spring, the first roundup was ready to start. The outside work had begun. Word had gone round to the his ranches, to the little towns and to the nester's homes looking like gray hens hovering its human chickens, the chuck wagons had rattled on ahead, the little cowman was tying his tarp covered saggans on his pack horse. All roads led to Section Twelve. This the old cows knew as well as did all the men and yipps-yi-ya they began leaving the new green grass, tails swishing and sides shaking, never letting up till they poured down the rim of the canyon into the valley where cooks were squeezing out sour dough biscuits to put in Dutch ovens and filling the smoked bucket full of coffee and water, and frying the steak in its own tallow.

When the bawling cattle were in the roundup, the cook called, "Come and get it or I will pour it out," and soon laughing joking, cowboys squatted on spurred heels eating out of tin plates and drinking out of tin cups. As each finished they stacked their dishes on the cook's chuck box lid, wiped their lips with the backs of sunburned hands, rolled cigarettes with strong capable fingers, and the branding was on. Sweating cowboys went down a rope to meet the struggling steer, to throw him on the ground and soon another yearling was bawling with pain. Jeff stopped for a few minutes to wipe the sweat from his white forehead and let the breeze laden with the scent of wild plum blossoms carry away the smell of burned hair and hide. He wiped the dust from his face for he had had the dusty side of the roundup dust that rose like a whirlwind high above the canyon's rim... The car swerved, my husband turned to me with a smile, Thought for a minute I was on a cow pony at a roundup.
