Brisk Demand For Ration Book One

Approximately 50 copies of War Ration Book One were issued in the last few days before the deadline January 15, according to W. Edd Brown, chairman of the War Price and Rationing board this week.

Several applications have been made for copies of Book One since the deadline and orders from the Office of Price Administration office will determine disposal of these applications, Brown said.

Approximately 11,000 copies of Book Two have already been delivered to the local Rationing office for delivery that will probably be made the middle of February, according to information from officials.

The new ration book contains four pages of blue and four pages of red stamps. Each page contains 24 stamps lettered and numbered. The figures 8, 5, 2 and 1 indicate the point value and the letters designate the ration periods when stamps may be used.

Dalhart Publisher Recalls Youthful Impressions Of Days In Floydada In Tribute To The "Family Doctor", Dr. Andrews In Particular

"Ed Aches" Takes Dr. Andrews For Text Of Column

(Ed Note: Flowers for the living here are poured on lavishly by a writer who has the gift to do it, but none who read but will have a hearty Amen for every word of it. Now of Dalhart, where he is the publisher of the Daily Texan, Ed Bishop grew up in Floydada, and "mother", to whom he refers in the articles is Mrs. Jennie Bishop, 602 South Main street.)

By Ed Bishop
In his column, "Ed Aches" of the Dalhart Texan

Do you remember your old family doctor? Or did you have one? If not you missed something in this life that lives in the memories of those of us who experienced the pleasure of having a kind, gentle, pleasant man that we thought of first when in pain, and last when it came to paying our obligations.

This Christmas I got a letter from our family doctor back home and it sent my thoughts scurrying back through the years when I first remember him. Used to see him sitting by the stove in the corner drug store, a cigar in his mouth and a half smile on his lips. His greetings usually came almost under his breath and included a playful jab at my ribs. Used to try to imitate Dr. Andrews' little song. It ran something like this, "Ho hum-fiddle-de-dum, tadpoles and bullfrogs." I never did get it although I can remember hearing it many times.

There was the time mother was sick, so very, very sick. We kids were all scared half to death. She was all we had and we stood anxiously around the bed until Doc. asked us to leave the room. Seems like he was in there a long, long time before he called my oldest brother off to one side and talked to him. Then he kidded us smaller kids a little, picked up his little black bag and went out into the cold of the night, humming that

There was the time I ate a spoiled hamburger on the 4th of July. I fully believed I was going to die and part of the time I really didn't care. Doc looked me over, said "Ho hum, fiddle sticks etc." and told mother I'd live. And loud enough for me to hear, he said, "He's pretty sick but he's strong enough to take it." I lived to tell the other fellows I almost died and could prove it by Doc.

I saw Dr. Andrews go through the influenza period, wearing a mask most of the time to prevent catching the dread disease himself. I saw him working day and night, seldom sleeping, never com-

Dr. V. Andrews
The subject of the accompanying article is county health officer of Floyd county and conducts an office practice in Floydada, having given up the grueling routine he observed in the days of which Bishop writes. In World War I he was physician member of the Selective Service board for Floyd county, to recall one of the many responsibilities he has been assigned in a long career.

plaining going to homes where people had talked about him, sent their sick to big cities and paid big cash fees to city doctors for trifling aches and pains. They got the same treatment from Doc, as those of us too poor to ever think of calling anyone else, and too forgetful to pay when we got better.

Dr. Andrews' father was doctor before him. Mother used to get his old trousers, cut them up and make us pants. I played with the gold fish in mother Andrews' back yard got cookies out of the kitchen and was playfully chastised when caught stealing from the little garden.

Time marches on and one forgets, becomes imbued with his importance and credits his success to his brilliances and his failures to ill luck. Then age begins to creep up on him and he looks backwards to realize that whatever success may have been his is due to old friends and associates, his failures to his own lack of ability.

Dr. Andrews still lives in my home town, still looks after my mother as though she were the richest and most influential citizen of the community, goes to the homes of my brother, tends to the nephews and nieces. I don't guess anyone much outside of the people of Floyd and adjoining counties ever heard of Dr. Andrews. That's their hard luck. He's still humming his little song, poking the little boys in the ribs, healing their mothers, sympathizing with the ill and afflicted.

The Dr. Andrews' of this world are never rich. Those able to pay for too soon, others never expect to pay. They are seldom seen in church because God is their closest companion all the time. They don't have to find Him behind tinted window panes. They find Him in new born babies, in sick mother, a thankful father who grips their hand in silence, knowing that is all the pay they will ever get.

None of us know what to expect of the hereafter, but the chances are that if we get to heaven we'll find our home town doctors there.

Cold Wave Hits To Break Record For Ten Years

A cold wave that brought with it the lowest temperature since 1933, hit Floyd county and the high plains Sunday night, and gradually grew in intensity until early Tuesday morning, when thermometers broke through and below the zero mark to chalk up one degree below zero for several hours.

Monday was a bitterly cold day, with a light to brisk wind blowing from the northeast and bringing with it sprints of snow to make the day and night a hard one on man and beast.

Both Monday and Tuesday brought scores of calls for the plumbers of Floydada, who were still busy late yesterday making emergency installations of water lines and fixtures. The low for Monday morning was 7 degrees.

Stockmen Had Warning
Although the storm was nearly 36 hours behind schedule, as indicated in storm warnings issued to stockmen by the weather bureau, it ran true to prediction otherwise—cold with snow squalls. The cold area extended far into north and east Texas on the east and into New Mexico on the west. Generally speaking, minimum of injury was done to live stock. Some reports are in of frozen pigs and smothered large swine.

According to the records of the West Texas Gas company, the searcher will have to go back to 1933 to find a cold wave that tops this week's. The temperature charts for February 7, February 8 and February 9, at that office show that on three successive days the thermometer reading was below zero. On the 7th the low was two degrees below, on the 8th six degrees below and on the 9th four degrees below. That was the coldest period recorded in many years.

While the 30-day period of December 20, 1939—January 20, 1940, is recorded as the month of the longest continued cold, when the mean average for a whole month here was 28.7 degrees—nearly four degrees below freezing—the thermometer reading in that month was generally steady and no deep dips into near-zero or sub-zero readings are shown.

Schools Resume Schedule With New Teachers

After having been disrupted for several weeks because of the resignations of teachers, several of whom have gone to be with their husbands in the Armed Forces, Floydada public schools are back to normal this week and everything is running smoothly, Superintendent Walter Travis said the first of the week.

"All vacancies have been filled in both schools with the exception of bandmaster which seems impossible to fill at this time," Mr. Travis said, "and that subject will be dropped for the remainder of the school year. Erman Gray who served as band director for the past year and one-half, accepted a place in the Denver City school system.

Oran Weeks, principal of the McCoy school for the past two years has been employed to take the place of Avon Powell as social science teacher. Mr. Weeks is a graduate of East Texas State Teachers' college. Mr. Powell resigned recently to accept a place as head coach of the Tahoka High School.

Miss Margaret Doak employed at the beginning of school as a teacher in the Home Economics department will continue as sole director of this department. Therefore a second Home Economics teacher will not be employed for the remainder of this semester to take the place of Mrs. Truman Fuqua who has gone to make her home at Syracuse, New York, where Pvt. Fuqua is stationed.

Andrews Ward
New teachers who assumed their duties this week at Andrews Ward school are Miss Betty Nell Smith, a mid-term graduate of Tech. college, Lubbock, health and physical education teacher. Miss Smith takes the place of Mrs. Elsie Henderson who left last week for Tucson, Arizona, where her husband, Lieut. Chas. Henderson, is stationed.

Miss Gwen Flemings, a public school music major from North Texas State college, Denton, has been employed to teach in that capacity in the school system here. She takes the place of Miss Oudis Whitefield who originally held the place at the beginning of school. Mrs. Roe McCleskey has served as substitute teacher in that department.

Mrs. Bill Pattison, a resident of Floydada holding a B. S. degree from W. T. S. C. Canyon, has been employed to teach social studies. She succeeds Mrs. Ernest Kelly who left last week for Santa Ana, California, to be with her husband who is a flying cadet and at present stationed in that city.

General Page Says Rounding Up Selective Service Delinquents January Objective In Texas

General J. Watt Page, State Selective Service Director, is urging all Texas local boards to give their most active cooperation to the current nationwide program for eliminating delinquencies under the Selective Service Act.

"I have conferred with the United States Attorneys and representatives of the F. B. I.," General Page said, "and we have formulated a plan designed to accomplish this objective in Texas.

"Any person listed as a delinquent who voluntarily reports to his local board during the month of January, 1943, will be allowed to comply with his obligations," General Page stated.

He pointed out that investigations of reported delinquencies often re-

Farm Job Viewed By Farmers With Determination

Gratification of farmers over the type of farm program called for in the war farm set-up for 1943, and determination to see it through to a successful culmination this fall in spite of incidental and even major handicaps, is reflected this week in Floyd county agriculture circles.

The program was presented to the three largest crowds of recent years at farmers' program meetings, and "kick off" day go down in the history of this county as a memorable one. South Plains, Lockney and Floydada meetings all were well-attended, Paul Snodgrass and members of the ACA committee said.

Briefly, the war need calls for as much poultry, eggs, cattle, swine and sheep as farmers can produce; For as much feed for live stock and foods for humans as can be produced;

For a broadly expanded vegetable fats production;

And all at guaranteed price levels calculated to show the producer a profit.

No Leave Out Lands
As a part of the picture there will be no "leave out" lands to be figured and measured. Only cotton and wheat will be controlled. Of these two major crops the Department of Agriculture declares there is at this time a two-year supply in sight, and a producer who finds he cannot meet the total acreage of either crop as indicated in his work sheet, may plant the un-used acres in any kind of food or feed crop without penalty. Thus, a farmer lacking some cotton acres and finding it too late or otherwise unfavorable for cotton planting, may plant feed or food crops on the land that would otherwise be un-used.

Such usual soil conservation practices will be encouraged by the department as terracing and contour plowing and planting, by means of which the farm operator may earn benefits as in former years.

"This program turns the farmers' loose to produce to their capacity (except wheat and cotton) and assures them of profitable operations so far as equitable markets are concerned," declared members of the committee Tuesday. This committee, composed of W. F. Ferguson of Starkey and G. B. Johnston of Lone Star, in addition to Paul Snodgrass, chairman, is of the belief that some way will be found to meet the acute shortage of labor on the farms, either through machinery at hand, by planting crops that can be harvested mechanically or by improvising ways and means from their experiences of past years. New farm machinery and repair parts will be hard to obtain, possibly, but farmers for the most part will anticipate their needs in these lines by ordering repairs early and by putting old machines into commission that had been discarded under normal conditions.

Only one warning—cotton and wheat in great plenty are now on hand. Over-planting these crops will bring benefit and tax penalties. Otherwise, plant and produce to the fullest extent of the ability of the man and the land.

Enlistments from West Texas for service in the army in India is going to pick up, when this news gets around.

Pvt. Donald Thomas, member of a repair squad located somewhere in India, writes the Arwines (his sister is Mrs. J. A. Arwine) acknowledging a Christmas package, and telling of his hunting experiences in that far away land. Says he:

"I spent the whole (Christmas) day hunting. Five of us boys went deer hunting and killed five deer, 12 peacocks and several foxes and wolves. Had a big time.

"We had peacock to eat for Christmas dinner. I have been deer hunting four times and have got a buck each time. Wish I had a shotgun. The quail over here are a lot larger than the blue quail and there are lots of them."

The letter was written the night of December 31.

EDITORIALS

The human element in the huge rationing scheme of the nation has begun to show the strain. All over the country the Rationing and War Price boards are taking more punishment than you can imagine, not being present to see the wheels turn. If things could go along normally for a few days at a time and situations arise only semi-occasionally the thing would not be so bad. But for every minute of every working day to present a new emergency, and board members to have no respite even on Sundays without dodging is too much. And there is no relief in sight. We are talking here of the board personnel and employees, their viewpoint. And to know now that they must still listen to your pet peeve, whatever it may be, and those of all your neighbors, makes us wonder if they are going to be able to keep sweet tempers and smiling countenances with which to continue to meet the problems which are to be dumped into their laps.

A recent survey of relative prices in various lines of effort show that farm prices at the beginning of the second year of war are 56 per cent of what they were in the second year of World War I, the price of cotton being 65 per cent of that year's prices. Defense labor is getting 250 per cent of World War wages as of the same relative time. This is according to statisticians whose work is accredited by the government. We are inclined to believe that farmers hope there will be no such prices for farm stuffs as prevailed in the latter part of the last war and immediately thereafter. We may be wrong but the impression we get is that these high prices ruined about half of the farmers and stockmen of the country in the big wash up which began making itself felt in the earlier part of the 1920's. Farm prices must be equal to cost plus a profit for the farmer to keep going, but human nature being what it is, too high prices bring on speculation and very few of us but yield to it to our ultimate ruin.

That you cannot right the basic ills of the world by passing laws is one of the things that people will not realize. We have in mind right now the evil, deceptive Wagner Labor act, which will eventually attempt to deliver workingmen body and soul into the hands of their bosses, and, as the next step, into the hands of the government in a sovietized state. Right now the process is working fast in the coal fields and elsewhere. Admitting that the intentions of most of those victimized by the soothing words of the promoters of the labor law, were good, we insist that the ghoulish aims of the undercover masters are only now beginning to come to light. Within a few years the laboring man, with the help of the rest of the people, will have to throw off the yoke so willingly put on, when our present labor law was recommended as a panacea for their troubles incident to the greed of industry.

One of the peculiarities of climate in this section of the world is that wind currents do not observe our earth-bound East and West ideas of things. So often a cold spell, a rain-storm or even a high west wind is predicted by the Weather bureau that never reaches us. Later we learn that the spell, especially cold, "slid off to the east" somewhere before it got to us. Sometimes, too, the predicted bad weather fades into the upper regions as a result of the constant battle between the Gulf and Canadian Polar air currents. Of late years we are learning that weather in Floyd county is often more comparable to the weather of some points in southwest Oklahoma than to points down-state. Often a current of violent weather that hits this section will whip back up northeast way toward the Kansas line.

Income tax consciousness is going to increase over the country, expanding into the lower brackets of income. All of us will know a war is on, a war the cost of which no man can now compute. Even the smallest, and heretofore even neglected, living is going to feel the pinch of the demand. Putting up something against that day when taxes come due will be not only the part of wisdom but the part of necessity. Only one thing surer than taxes, you know.

Blind acceptance of constituted authority is not necessarily being patriotic in this war. Of course, to those in the armed services obedience without question is part of military discipline. But it is still the right, and sometimes a blessing, for the common citizen to speak his piece. Authority needs to be watched.—Exchange.

As A Farm Woman Thinks

By Nellie Witt Spikes

Monday morning—Whew-ee, it was cold at the barn this morning, while we were milking. We were almost afraid to walk for fear of breaking our frozen toes off. The kitchen feels good, now that the pain of getting hands and feet warm too quickly has gone. Perhaps if we did not feel the bitter cold, we would not appreciate the blessings of a warm room, however humble. The water pipes are frozen up, too. This may be a blessing in disguise, also, to make us know the blessing of water always at hand. Anyway, there are books to read, and plenty of canned food to open and heat in a jiffy, there are programs over the radio, clippings saved all the past year, waiting to be put in a scrap book and I am away behind on the stamp collection I am starting for my two grandsons. I wish I had more time to devote to stamp collecting as it is a very fascinating hobby, and now that all kinds of postmarks are on letters, it is even more so.

The other day I found some school books that were to be discarded, mostly readers. Now books have an appeal to me. I just had to bring home a bunch of those well-worn books. Many names in them, scratched and blurred by boyish hands, now are written in Uncle Sam's war book. I read poems with tears in my eyes that their young eyes read, poems of heroism that now the boys can live up to. But this poem, "Travel," that I am sure many children had to memorize, perhaps with longing to travel the places so charmingly named, will interest you as it has me, as many of our boys have gone and are going to places hinted at in this rhyme:

I should like to rise and go,
Where the golden apples grow;
Where below another sky
Parrot islands anchored lie,
And, watched by cockatoos and goats
Lonely Crusoes building boats;
Where in sun shine reaching out
Eastern cities, miles about,
Are with mosque and minaret
Among sandy gardens set.
And the rich goods from far and near
Hang for sale in the bazaar;
Where the Great Wall round China goes,
And on one side the desert blows,
And with bell and voice and drum,
Cities on the other hum;
Where are forests, hot as fire,
Wide as England, tall as spire,
Full of apes (Japs, I add) and co-
coanuts;
And the Negro hunter's huts;
Where the knotty crocodile
Lies and blinks in the Nile,
And the red flamingo flies
Hunting fish before his eyes;
Where in jungles, near and far,
Man-devouring tigers are,
Lying close and giving ear
Lest the hunt be drawing near,
Or a comer-by be seen
Swinging in a palanquin;
Where among the desert sands,
Some deserted city stands
This is a part of the poem by Robert Louis Stevenson.

The trees look awful, but there is one consolation, we will have plenty of stakes for pole beans this summer.
Poem for Victory Gardeners.
None so hard for debt to snatch
As those who have a garden patch.
Gardening seems so easy as we sit around the fire and look at the pictures of luscious fruits and vegetables and gay and gorgeous flowers in seed catalogues. There is not a weed in the picture, not a bug nor a worm. Our backs do not hurt, our hands are free from blisters, yes,
it is easy to garden by the fire.

It seems as if we have known them a long time. "Bless be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love." Scientists tell us that there is an invincible ether that occupies all space about us. We know that radio waves travel around the earth in split seconds. Our prayers for our boys are like radio messages, carried by the Spirit of God. Let us send them often. They will feel and know the love we are sending by prayer. Today reminds one of Ruskin's poem January. "Come ye cold winds at January's call. On whistling winds, and with white flakes bestrew The earth."

BEGINNING OF FIRST AID CLASS POSTPONED

A number sufficient to make a large class were present for the called meeting at the City hall Friday night which was for the purpose of organizing an advanced First Aid class. Ike Finley, Floyd County First Aid chairman, was in charge. Plans for the organization of the class which is to be taught by Joe Browning were discussed but the date for the beginning is indefinite due to the illness of Mr. Browning's father, W. J. Browning.

Misses Reda Mae Gary, Lovelle Ginn and Maurice Burton were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Hoots at Plainview.

MODERN MOLLY PITCHERS "GO TO WAR"

Above, a modern Molly Pitcher—a typical woman war worker at the Hyatt Bearings Division of General Motors—greets the Revolutionary War heroine in a symbolic ceremony marking the formation of the initial Molly Pitcher Brigade chapter at Harrison, N. J., which bids fair to expand into a national movement with thousands of members. At right, two members of the Hyatt Molly Pitcher Brigade are busy in a G.M. plant where they are helping to fashion weapons of war for their fighting men.

HARRISON, N. J.—Molly Pitcher is fighting for American liberty again. Although she is not loading and firing a cannon at her fallen husband's side, she is in this war beside her husband and is playing a part as vital as the role of her Revolutionary predecessor. For the modern Molly Pitcher is today's woman war worker, and her efforts on the production front will contribute very largely to final victory.
Symbolizing the rebirth of the spirit of the Revolutionary heroine, the women war workers of the Hyatt Bearings Division of General Motors here have formed a Molly Pitcher Brigade, which, from the outside interest aroused in it, bids fair to become a national movement with thousands of members.
A group of Hyatt girls met last summer to form the organization. Reserving for themselves the right of being the charter unit, the Hyatt group has extended invitations to fellow women war workers to join them in similar Molly Pitcher Brigade units. Women workers in both war plant and office, married or single, are eligible for membership.

Though not called upon to do battle as the original Molly Pitcher did, the women of today have an important part in this all-out war. They are asked to fill the empty ranks of industry as the men go to the front, and some of these women are filling their own husbands' posts. Besides their war work, the Hyatt Molly Pitchers, now 400 strong, are carrying on a number of other activities to aid the men in service—raising money to supply them with cigarettes and other treats, knitting, writing letters and sending books and gift packages to them.
The Molly Pitchers are so intent on their efforts that they asked the Hyatt plant to set aside its plans for sending Christmas boxes to the men. Then the brigade took over. Through their own efforts they raised $1,200 and sent 350 Christmas boxes to the Hyatt men in service. Each box represented a cost of $3 and contained good things to eat as well as shaving cream, writing materials and other needed items.

It was not many miles from Harrison, at the Battle of Monmouth on June 28, 1778, a very hot day, that Mary Ludwig Hays carried water for the thirsty American patriots during some of the fiercest fighting of the Revolutionary War. Legend has it that when her own husband fell, Molly—the grateful soldiers had dubbed her Molly Pitcher—manned his cannon and kept the piece firing through the battle.

Long distance telephone calls are helping move things faster these days in scores of army camps and munitions factories. And long distance telephone lines are crowded.

We know you're glad to help us clear the way for vital war calls by making as few calls as possible, by being brief, and by avoiding the long circuits to faraway cities particularly between 7 and 9 p.m. After all, war is everyone's Number One job.

But don't think we have forgotten that your calls are important, too. We're as anxious as ever to serve you when you need us. If we ask for your co-operation, it's because we know that to serve you best, we must serve the nation first.

Rural Families And Their Money Problems

COLLEGE STATION, Jan. 14.—There is no better time than early in the calendar year for rural families to "get their money problems straight." This year, more than ever before, it is important for farm and ranch people to keep exact records of their earnings and spendings, because of income tax laws and price control regulations affecting the sale of farm products.

Louise Bryant, specialist in home management for the A. and M. College Extension Service, suggests that a family conference on finances will help everyone to spend less, buy wisely, and save more. She believes it is a good idea for one person to keep the family accounts, but the plans for spending and saving should be made by the group as a whole.

Here are some questions the family might consider at its first-of-the-year conference: How many more dollars are we going to save this year than last year? How much of these savings shall we put into war bonds? How soon can we pay off our debts? What are the essential things we must buy this year for the health of the family? What products can we grow or make at home? What should be the children's allowance and how much should they save?

Miss Bryant believes that in view of war-time circumstances it is especially a good idea this year to keep a record of home-raised food products eaten by the family and their value, as well as a record of products sold. She says the four points of the Victory Demonstration—production of food, wise care of equipment, investments in war bonds, and cooperation with war-time programs—offers the basis for a sound family economy. "Hit and miss spending" has become unpatriotic as well as bad business, she says.

UNCLE JOE ALLISON HOPES TO RE-BUILD HOME BURNED AT LOCKNEY IN DECEMBER

Uncle Joe Allison, of Lockney, who was in Floydada one day the latter part of last week, told friends here he hopes to re-build on the location where his residence was destroyed by fire the morning of December 22.

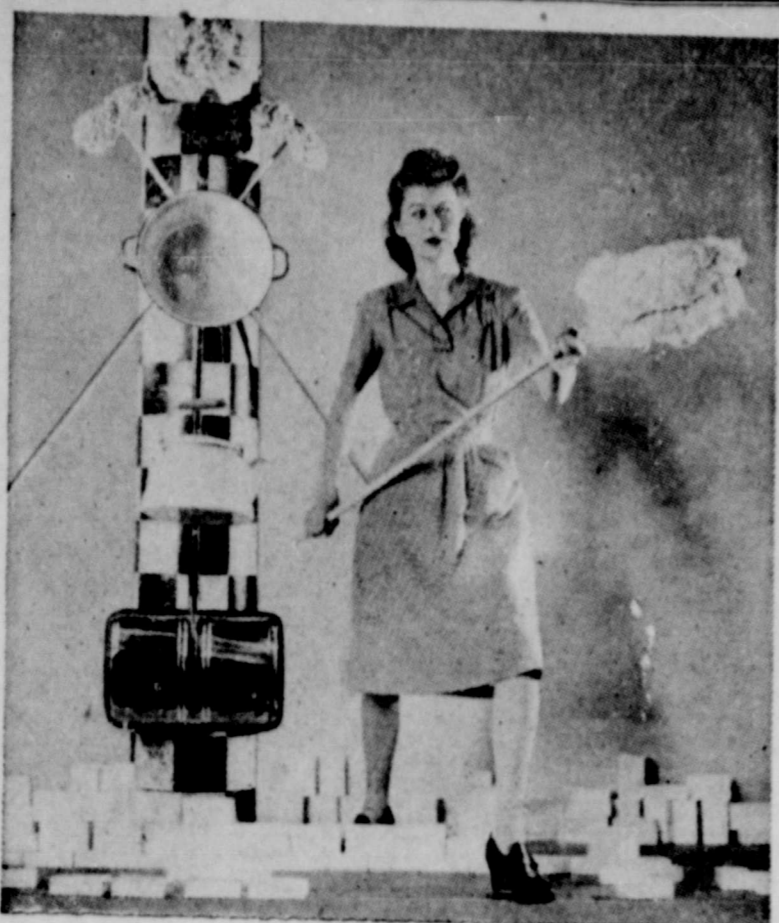

With his house was burned up also all his household effects and clothing. He was batching and while out feeding heard an explosion and saw the fire start in the house. A stove he had lit apparently was the cause of the fire. Friends have been very good to him since the fire, he said, and he had enough insurance to pay off indebtedness against the place and have a little left to put in on a new house, if he is able to get materials and handle the deal.

DRIED BEANS NEXT VICTORY FOOD SPECIAL

Dry edible beans will be the next Victory food special to be featured in this area from January 18 through January 23. Consumers are urged to take advantage of the plentiful supplies of dried beans on local markets and to give this rich protein food an important place in wartime meal planning.

The present supply of dry edible beans is the largest on record, far surpassing that of recent years. Ample supplies of beans will be available for military, Lend-Lease and civilian needs.

According to officials of the Department of Agriculture, extensive use of dry edible beans will release other less plentiful protein foods to our armed forces and for foreign shipment.

Ernest Grigsby Announces For City Marshal

I wish to announce that I am a candidate for City Marshal of Floydada.

To those who do not know me, will say I am 48 years old, the most of which I have spent in and around Floydada. I have had considerable experience as a peace officer, which, I believe, would enable me to handle the job. I am at present city night watchman, and if I make a hand at that may not be able to see all the voters, but will try to do so.

I realize there is a lot of responsibility to this job and will be more when the war is over. If the voters see fit to give me a vote of confidence I make only one promise: I will be on the job any time needed, and will be in town every night, all night if needed, helping others to protect the property of taxpayers, and keep our town as clean as possible.

Ernest Grigsby, Candidate for City Marshal. (Political advertisement)

Sterilization Tag Required If Used Mattresses Sold

AUSTIN, Texas, January 21.—In an effort to prevent the spread of disease through bedding, 5,863 second-hand mattresses, and other articles of bedding were sterilized during the month of November, 1942, according to a report issued this week by Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"Since it is estimated that the average individual spends one-third of his life in a sleeping or reclining position, each individual is certainly entitled to sanitation in any used article of bedding that he may purchase," Dr. Cox asserted.

The Texas State Sanitary Bedding Law prohibits the sale of second-hand bedding that has not been sterilized. There are 59 privately owned sterilization vaults in the state that have been approved by the State Health Department, and these sterilization vaults operate under the inspection and supervision of the State Health Department.

Before buying a second-hand mattress, pillow, featherbed, studio couch, or any other used article of bedding, Dr. Cox declared that the purchaser should demand to see the sterilization tag that is required by law to be affixed to all such articles offered for sale. This sterilization tag bears a statement that the bedding has been germicidally treated by a method approved by the State Health Department, and is the public's guarantee of health protection in the purchase of used bedding.

HILL FARMERS APT STUDENTS

Fifty hill farmers who left the rough country of eastern Kentucky to learn how to be good dairy hands at Ohio State University at Columbus, turned out to be top-notch students, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports. Instructors attributed their aptitude to an eagerness to learn and a desire to do their part in winning the war. Up at 4:30 in the morning, the farmer students had breakfast at 5:15 and reported to class at 6:30. They studied 9 hours a day without complaint. Some even refused to take time off for lunch.

This test course was part of an experimental program to overcome the labor shortage on vitally important dairy farms. From school, the Kentucky farmers go out to Ohio farms to take the places of workers who have left for war industries or the armed forces.

The Farm Security Administration and the U. S. Employment Service are cooperating in the program. USFS recruits the workers among the underemployed farmers in areas of low production and arranges for their placement on farms where they are needed. FSA provides transportation and necessary services while the farmers are traveling and in training.

The first class of 50 students arrived at the University farm November 23, for an intensive three-weeks training course in dairy-farm operations. All 50 landed jobs. Most were offered jobs before they completed training. On December 11, thirty-five more Kentucky farmers arrived for training. Farmers hire the farmer-students as fast as they are available.

BACKS BOSSY AS BENEFACTOR

"Some people in towns and cities may have little inclination to do farm work," said Secretary Wickard recently in discussing the labor shortage on farms. "I hope we can convince them that farmers need their help, that now and for the future, farm work is war work. I believe that the work itself is much more stimulating than many urban dwellers may suspect, particularly on dairy farms. You can learn a lot from a dairy cow. It may seem strange coming from a hog farmer, but I am glad to proclaim that the dairy cows is man's greatest benefactor among the animals."

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hagood are expected to return this week-end from Dallas where they have been for the past several days attending fashion exhibits and purchasing dry goods for Hagood's Department store.

Cold In Africa! Queer Customs, Says Doughboy

(Editor's note: The following letter is from Cpl. Silas R. Thornton who made his home in the Center community and was employed by R. L. Glenn. He writes this letter to his friends, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Conner.)

December 30, 1942.

Dear Conners: This finds me well and cold. I am in North Africa and boy, does it get cold here and how! Rains every day and night. It is quite different from what I had expected of Africa as I always thought it was hot and that there were a lot of trees but it's as cold as the states here and rains all the time.

We are living in pup tents. Perhaps you don't know what they are. They are small tents just large enough to crawl in on your hands and knees. They are about five feet wide and six feet long and about three feet high in the center. They are open at one end.

When we are on hike I carry one-half and my buddy carries the other half of the tent. It is made of very light stuff and if you touch it when it's raining, it will start leaking.

We are on a hillside and boy, the mud is so slick if you are not careful you will go down to the bottom before you can stop and it is no small hill, either. I am now in the tent and it is raining outside. I have a candle burning for a light and I am going to stop soon and finish this in the day-time so you can read it.

My buddy and I have eight blankets and it is not too much. We put two on the ground (which is wet and muddy) and we cover with the other six. I managed to get some hay to put on the ground. I got about enough to make a good sized hen's nest, but it takes up some of the moisture. What the hay doesn't get, the first blanket does and that leaves one dry blanket to sleep on.

I understand this will reach the States in about (censored) and should not be long in getting to you. You will have to write me at my old address in Orlando, Florida. I cannot tell but your mail will reach me that way, if any. I will write you once or twice a week and you should hear at least once a month.

Eats English Rations Our food now is English rations which consists of tea, stew and hard tack. I don't like the tea, don't drink it at all. The stew tastes like it is burnt but I have to like it. The hard tack is pretty good.

Water is pretty scarce and we only have enough to drink and cook with. Washing and bathing is out of the question. We get to wash our faces when we get up in the morning. Some of the boys who have been here for two months have not had a bath. The colonel gets to go into town and he has two baths. But here is one chap who is going to have a bird bath (a wet towel) at least twice a week. I am going to keep as clean as possible.

No Bugs In Camp So far, we have had no disease nor bugs in camp. We guard close against that. We still have our physical examinations often. When one is found that has anything the matter with him, he is weeded out as you would your flower bed. Boy, what I would give to be back in your home. If the weather, the living conditions or a bullet don't get me, this is sure going to make a man out of me, I hope.

We have all our clothes with us, so far our next move we won't get to take anything except what we have on.

We have worked at about everything, lived in garages and barns but this is the worst we have had to do.

How is E. W.? I sure hope he is well long before this time. Tell him to write me. A letter from him and from you will mean more than words can explain. I hope by next December I am back sitting up in one of them big chairs in your living room with my feet propped up on a foot-stool before that good old oil heater.

Cars Burn Charcoal I was surprised at the natives here. They have paved roads and cars that burn charcoal. The cars look a lot like American cars. Over here are brick houses, electric lights and all that, but their houses and stores are queer. (censored)

Don't worry about me. Just make a lot of money and have a lot to eat for when I get back I am going to spend about two months with you and boy, will I eat that good old home-cooked food, and I will need it, too. I am going to not do a thing for three months when I get out. Two with you and one with dad. I sure am going to eat like a pig. Do you think you could stand me that long? I sure hope so.

I hope E. W. is there when I return. Boy, will I have stories to tell! Christmas dinner here was fine. But nothing like one at home. I hope you had a good Christmas and will have a happy New Year. Tell E. W. not to join the navy here are (censored) were (censored). Tell him to say out as long as he can. This letter is for him too.

I am expecting an answer from him and you, too. Mail them separate so I may get one of them. Remember me in your prayers.

My love to the Conners.

Rudy.

"No More Sliced Bread For The Duration"

Beginning this week, Wester's Quality Bakery, in compliance with Food Administrator Wickard's request, will offer no more sliced bread for the duration of the war.

Instead, the housewife will be able to buy Wester's fine bread in a firm, unsliced form, but just as fresh and wholesome as ever. These are regulations of war time which call for the utmost in economy of production, sales and deliveries, of which we are willing to comply.

FARM SCRAP VITAL AS WAR ENTERS SECOND YEAR

WASHINGTON — The need for metal scrap remains unabated as the Nation's mighty steel industry, with production figures climbing to record proportions, enters the second year of the war.

The importance of iron and steel scrap in the war effort becomes increasingly apparent as the tempo of the United Nations' offensive against the Axis powers shifts into high gear. Ships, tanks, armored cars, planes, guns and all kinds of mechanized equipment are the backbone of our army's striking power. Farm scrap is making it possible for us to supply these weapons to our fighting forces in adequate quantities.

The demand for steel in this war far exceeds that of any previous war. In World War I, it required 90 pounds of steel for every American soldier. In this war every man in Uncle Sam's armed forces must be backed by 4,900 pounds of steel. To equip an army of ten million men, therefore, requires steel in quantities that are almost too great for the human mind to envision.

At the beginning of 1942, the annual capacity of our steel industry was approximately 83 1/2 million tons. But by the middle of 1943, the yearly productive capacity will have been expanded by another ten million tons. This calls for an ever increasing supply of scrap, if we are to keep the steel mills operating at their stepped-up capacity.

Steel is normally made up by melting together pig iron and scrap, on approximately a fifty-fifty basis. So steel is practically half scrap, and that explains why so much scrap is needed.

Recent scrap drives, it is said, have brought forth an abundance of light household scrap, but not enough heavy scrap. Light scrap in its original state cannot be used economically in an open-hearth steel furnace, and must be mixed with a certain amount of heavy scrap.

American Industry and American Farms are the Nation's most prolific sources of heavy scrap. War Production Board officials say. Industry, of course, produces most of the heavy scrap, but not enough. So the farms of the country become an increasingly important source of this necessary war material.

The huge piles of scrap metal seen in various parts of the country have created an impression of over-abundance. But this is not the case, according to Lessing J. Rosenwald, Director of the Conservation Division in Washington.

"This scrap is where the Government wants it," said Mr. Rosenwald, "and we must add more to it. Large reserves of scrap must be built up and stored in accessible places, where we can get our hands on it during the winter and spring months ahead. It would be physically impossible to store all of this scrap at the steel mills, or in scrap dealers' yards," Mr. Rosenwald said. "Instead, it must be stored in many small piles, from which it can flow as needed, in an orderly manner, through the scrap dealers' yards to the steel mills."

Another Washington salvage official likened the scrap piles over the Nation to the corn in farmers' cribs and to baled cotton stored in warehouses against the day when they are needed. "It is a normal process, with which every farmer is familiar, and local scrap piles exist for the same reason," this official said.

War Production Board Chairman Donald Nelson and Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard have joined hands in an appeal to American farmers to dedicate the remaining weeks of 1942 to an intensified scrap hunt, as a result of which it is hoped additional scrap piles will be created, and that the old ones will be made larger.

Athletic activities on a total of 120 playing fields — baseball, football, tennis, track, golf, etc.—are preparing University of Texas men and women students for places in a war world. The entire athletic and recreational program of the University has been overhauled to give every student a share in it.

Texas has millions of school children, businessmen, industrial laborers, farmers, clerks, and professional people who have become University of Texas students without ever seeing the Forty Acres. During the thirty-two years of its existence, the Division of Extension has touched, in one way or another, almost every phase of life in Texas.

Baptist Workers' Meeting Held At Lockney Tuesday

Floyd County Workers of the First Baptist church held their regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Lockney. Special emphasis was given to B. T. U. work which was under the direction of Rev. Lowell Ponder of Plainview. Supper was served by the Lockney church and an evening service followed.

Rev. W. E. Barnes, Baptist pastor of Hereford, was in charge of the course for the workers in the young people's department; Mrs. Twitty from Lubbock had charge of the Elementary training; and Rev. Harrell for the Sunday School Board of Nashville, Tennessee had charge of Adult conferences.

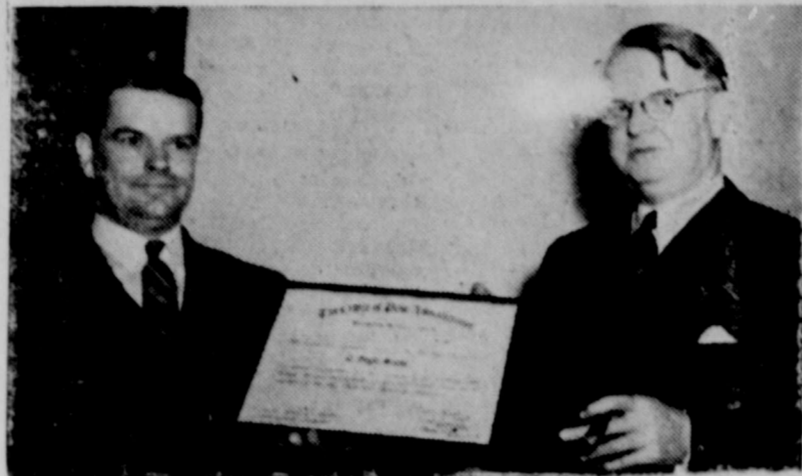

The next meeting will be held at Matador February 9, beginning at 10 o'clock. General church work will be featured at this meeting.

Rev. L. A. Doyle, Mrs. Kate Collier and Mrs. E. L. Norman were among those from Floydada who attended the meeting at Lockney.

Last week we heard about the old Negro who was taking a civil service examination for the job of mail carrier. One of the questions was: "How far is it from the earth to the sun?"

The old darky looked frightened and exclaimed: "If you all is gwinter put me on that route, I'ze resignin' befo' I begins."

Instead of cotton and wheat, Texas farmers may some day be raising crops that will be sold exclusively in drug stores and pharmacies. Dr. C. V. Albers, University of Texas professor of pharmacy, is conducting research on cultivation of medicinal herbs. Part of his "laboratory" is an herb garden where experimental "crops" are raised.

SODIUM PERBORATE BLEACHES STAINS, CHEMISTS SAY

Wartime restrictions on various chemicals narrow down the choices among stain removers, but one of the best is still available at drugstores at relatively small cost. Sodium perborate is one of the safest bleaches for all types of material if used rapidly and rinsed out well so as not to take out the color of a fabric. Textile chemists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture report that sodium perborate is particularly useful for white woollens. It leaves them soft and fluffy.

Certain kinds of stains do not respond to sodium perborate, notably some ink stains, iron rust, dyes and running colors, and metal stains. But many other stains yield to sponging with a solution of 4 table-spoons of sodium perborate in a pint of lukewarm water.

Beverage stains, and stains made by mud, grass, scorch and some perfumes, are best sponged with a combination of 1 level teaspoon of sodium perborate and 1 pint of hydrogen peroxide. This mixture must be used quickly or it loses strength.

Wherever sodium perborate is used for stain removal, it is necessary to work rapidly and rinse thoroughly with water. The sooner a stain is treated after it occurs, the better the chance of complete removal.

Nazarene Church Sunday Services

(Eugene Wood, pastor)

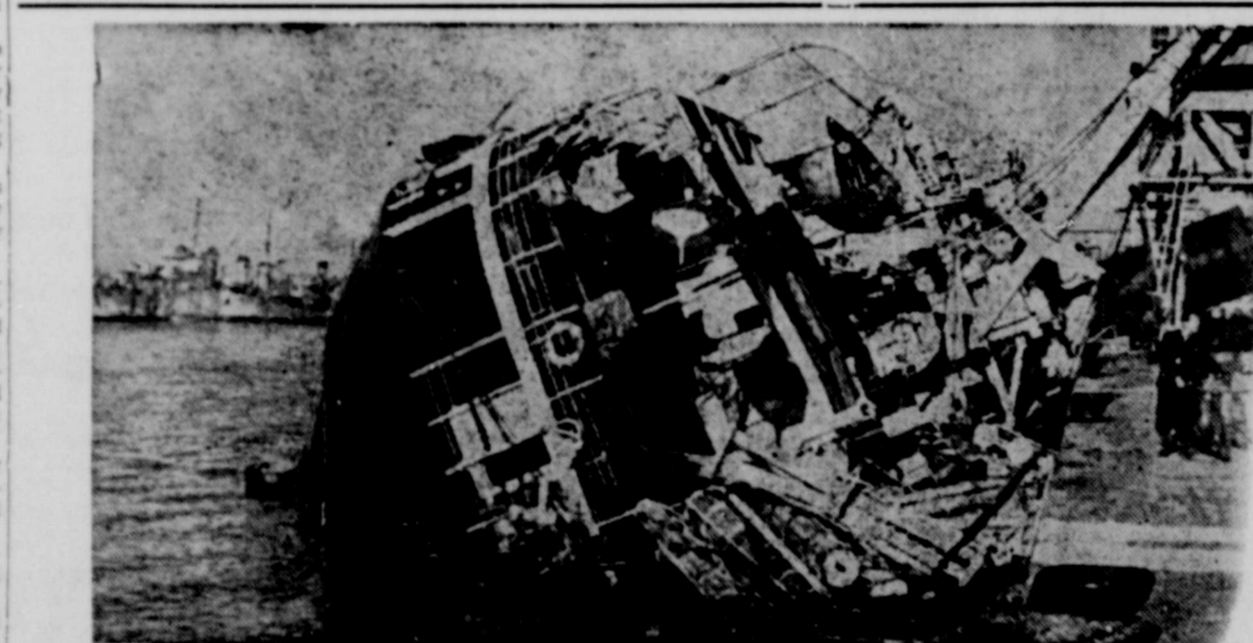

The bad weather has delayed us in finishing our building but we hope to have it so we can move back in by the first of March. We are not complaining about the bad weather. The Editor says it is what we need and we guess he is right. So we are content to get a day now and then and occasionally a whole week in which to work. In the meantime we are thankful for the commodious and comfortable American Legion home in which to worship.

Sunday morning the pastor's theme will be, "The Workers, the Worshipers, The Church."

Chevrolet Dealers Contribute To War Proram

A scrap drive, sponsored by the Victory Service League, patriotic alliance of American motorists, and supported by Chevrolet dealers collected more than 120 million pounds of scrap metals. This amount is sufficient to build Uncle Sam 20 more submarines, six destroyers and a cruiser. The Victory Service League is made up of 8,000 Chevrolet dealers in America who make this their contribution to the war program.

In addition, 7,129,923 lbs. of scrap rubber have been amassed by Chevrolet dealers to swell Uncle Sam's diminishing rubber stocks. Other items collected included 823,203 lbs. of paper, 205,978 lbs. of rags, 7,088 lbs. of burrap bags, 3,228 lbs. of rope and 145,054 lbs. of miscellaneous scrap.

In the reporting period, dealers junked 6,269 cars and sold another 6,255 cars for scrap. Batteries junked numbered 10,273.

"Vacuum-packed" and "wrapped in cellophane" are two phrases commonly referring to perishables, yet are appropriate to describe the packing of so sturdy a unit as the Pratt & Whitney airplane engine built by Chevrolet. Every care is exercised to insure the safe arrival of Chevrolet-built engines at assembly plant or air base. To combat rust and the deteriorating influences of the elements, the engines are even vacuum-sealed in a pliofilm bag, as shown above. Not only is all air pumped from the bag before sealing, but special dehydrating compounds capable of absorbing a gallon of water are enclosed in the rubberized bag. Even spark plugs are removed, and moisture-absorbent plastic plugs substituted while the unit is in transit.

Minister Believes War Might End In One Of 3 Ways

Studious believers in the Bible, (and there is no better source of information on the question), count on the war ending in one of three ways. (1) In case the United States is defeated there will be a long period of spiritual darkness and ignorance over the world. (Rev. 8:12; 9:2; 16) The author of this article believes this portion of Revelation was fulfilled during the period of time history knows as "The Dark Ages," and will not be repeated.

(2) If the United States wins, and the genuine peace, which we long for, is finally brought about, there is the hope of a great spiritual revival to last for several years. (Rev. 14:6-7) If this is to be, most probably the Jews, having accepted Christ as their Messiah, will join in with the few Christians that have stood the purge of war and help to bring about this great revival. This seems possible from Romans 11:25-27.

The Jews are being preserved by the Lord for some one or more reasons, and who knows but this might be the chief reason? (3) If the United States loses the war and is defeated it is reasonable and scriptural to expect the Lord to come and put an end to time upon earth. (Rev. 16:12-21).

Whatever the final results are to be, we should not let the successes of the last few days in this global war cause us to become too optimistic, as though victory were just around the corner. The ugly and cowardly attacks of the Axis are but the symptoms of a terrible disease that lies deep beneath the social affairs of humanity. When Germany, Italy and Japan have surrendered, other symptoms will show up to vex the weary world. Let us have more faith in God.

The City Park church will be glad to have you worship with us.
J. G. Malphurs, minister.

GRASS ROOTS WAGE PRIVATE WARS UNDER THE TURF

Mottled looking grass on a lawn or golf course may be the result of private warfare between the root systems of the grasses that were mixed when the area was seeded.

Plant scientists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture have learned of experimental plantings that some grasses, like human beings, are not always good neighbors. Some of the hay, pasture, and turf grasses do not get on well together. One species may predominate and crowd out the others or, instead of blending uniformly, each species is a mixed planting may tend to grow as a separate colony. This gives the turf a mottled or mosaic appearance.

This effect of one species of grass on another used to be considered as due to differing requirements for moisture, temperature, light and fertility. Field trials show, however, that these influences do not fully explain all cases of "incompatibility." There is considerable evidence that in many cases incompatibility results from reactions between the roots of antagonistic strains or species. Some strains of white clover grow well with some strains of Kentucky bluegrass; other strains of clover are eliminated by certain strains of the grass; and in still other mixtures the clover will run out the bluegrass.

These scientists working with grasses see a possibility of developing strains with special characteristics in relation to other grasses associated with them. They want grasses that are not only persistent in competition other strains of the same species, but even strains of other grass species, clovers, or weedy plants—crab grass for example.

U. S. VEGETABLE SEEDS CROSS EQUATOR STABILIZING NATIONS' FOOD SUPPLY

Taking advantage of the fact that the United Nations are represented in both hemispheres, and thus have two growing seasons, the United States has been sending vegetable seeds to member Nations who are now having summer. These shipments will not only help supply food to the people living in the area where the food is grown, but will make for a more stable food supply for all the United Nations.

Seeds are recognized as the most concentrated form in which food material can be supplied, for surpassing even the best records of dehydrated foods. This accounts for the shipment this fall of an airplane load of seed from the United States to Brazil, says W. A. Wheeler of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Wheeler is in charge of the seed programs of the Agricultural Marketing Administration which is encouraging seed growing in the United States and in other allied nations where conditions are favorable.

The Brazil-bound plane was loaded with lettuce and carrot seed. Also loaded in November was a plane for India with a cargo of beef, cauliflower, and lettuce seeds. Supplies of new crop seeds are also going to Australia for the spring planting of vegetables there, some of which are likely to be handled by U. S. Army quartermasters for supply of American soldiers in Australia and the South Pacific. Russia and Great Britain are depending on the United States to supply many vegetables seeds they formerly imported from Germany, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France.

ALPHABET-LENGTH TESTER FOR SMOKED HAM

How much smoke a ham has had used to be determined on the basis of its smoky appearance, says the Agricultural Research Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture. Now scientists of the Bureau of Agricultural Chemistry and Engineering, working on various food problems of interest to the fighting services, come forward with a chemical test to show how much smoke meat has absorbed and how deeply the smoke has penetrated.

There are phenols in wood smoke, more in some kinds than in others, and they are the basis of the new test. But unsmoked meat also contains phenols—and that was a difficulty. The important problem solved by the chemists preliminary to development of the test was to distinguish between the phenols in the unsmoked meat and those added in smoking. Then they found a name of alphabetical length—and two digits to boot—which turns the smoke phenols an intense blue. This chemical is 2,6 dichloroquinonechloroimide (26 letters).

Modern smoking of meat is intended more as a way of flavoring than of preserving, and refrigeration is usually necessary to keep such meats if they are to be held for any considerable time. For the Army and Navy, smoking as a factor in preserving of meat is important. The new method makes it possible to check on the thoroughness of smoking and on the penetration. It is designed to take the place of testing by appearance, smell, and taste.

It isn't only industry that is calling for women workers—the national Civil Service Commission has issued a plea for women to take over jobs as "junior engineers." To meet the need, the University of Texas' College of Engineering will open an 11-week course on January 18 to qualify women for this work. A college degree is pre-requisite, but no previous engineering experience is needed.

Graduate degrees are offered by the University of Texas in twenty-one different fields of study—everything from applied mathematics to zoology. A total of 5,445 degrees has been granted in the past 32 years.

MARVIN HARRIS, NEPHEW OF THE KENDRICKS BOYS, WAS IN THE BIG BOMBER

If you wondered about the big bomber that thundered over Floydada Saturday, and played about the heavens of the adjacent countryside, this is the answer:

It was Marvin Harris, nephew of the Kendricks boys, who trained at Lewiston, Montana. In a letter written Friday he told his Uncle Tip of the plans of the bomber crew to pay the visit here. The letter, written from San Antonio, said the crew and big ship had just been to Sioux City, Iowa. He was so happy to be back in Texas, he said, and especially hoped to get a view of Floydada once more and fly over the Kendricks premises, which he did the next morning. Tip felt sure Marvin's position in the ship he explained to his uncle, "Is behind the pilot and co-pilot on the flight deck of the plane or in the upper gun position above the flight deck."

PEANUT RIDING HIGH WITH MAERS

Salted peanuts—usually cooked in coconut oil—are now coming to market fresh out of a bath of hot peanut oil, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. War transportation trouble has cut the supply of coconut oil. And in other cases on the home front peanut oil is replacing coconut, palm, olive, and other oils we normally import. Abroad peanut butter is popular not only with American troops, but in Great Britain and Russia, where it is a favored import because of need for a concentrated food of this type.

The peanut is really coming into its own in this war, says the department. Thus far the Agricultural Marketing Administration has bought 208,000,000 pounds of peanut butter for Lend-Lease. Civilian consumption is expected to reach a new high next year because peanut butter is high in protein and makes an excellent meat substitute, and also serves as a "spread," a substitute for butter that is likely to be in scanty supply.

In the AMA school lunch program the peanut butter requirement is estimated at 9,000,000 pounds, of which 4,000,000 were purchased before November 15—a 3-month supply, allowing a half pound each for the 7,000,000 children to be fed under this program.

Peanut oil has gained favor with housewives as a superior cooking oil—particularly for deep frying; also as a salad oil. Industry uses it in shaving lotions, cosmetics, soaps, dyes, and axle grease. An important medical use is in massage for infantile paralysis victims.

"ASSEMBLY LINE" FOR FOOD

"The President's order," said Secretary of Agriculture Wickard in assuming control over the Nation's food program, "makes it possible for the Department of Agriculture to set up a national 'assembly line' in the production and distribution of food vitally needed to win the war and the peace. We now have concentrated in one place the administrative machinery to get the raw materials and to deliver the finished product, from the time the seed goes into the ground until the food goes into consumption."

"I recognize fully the power and authority the President has delegated. It shall be the obligation of the Department of Agriculture to use that power only—but to the limit—to assure an adequate supply and efficient distribution of food to meet war needs and essential civilian needs. In that endeavor, I ask the help of America's farmers, food handlers and consumers. Each of us should be deeply concerned and actively helpful in protecting our food supply."

There is a certain suburban home whose owner's principal delight is keeping it spick and span. After dinner he and a guest were smoking on the lawn. The guest, after lighting his cigar, threw the burned match on the ground.

"Oh, I wouldn't do that, George," said the host.

"Why not?"

"It spoils the appearance of everything," was the answer. "It's just those little things that make a place look bad."

The guest smoked his cigar in silence for a few minutes; then, without a word, he got up, walked down the road, and disappeared. He returned in a short time.

His host asked, "Where have you been, George?"

Timely Tips On Coffee

COLLEGE STATION, Dec. 18.—Arguments that coffee taken black is "better for you" than coffee with cream and sugar has no basis in fact. For coffee is not a food. It can neither build and repair the tissues of the body nor provide energy for the body to run on.

The cream in coffee is food, and the sugar, but not the coffee itself, says Hazel Phipps, specialist in food preparation for A. and M. College Extension Service. She says rationing will cause many people to change their food habits, and they may as well change them for the better.

For example, to "stretch" their coffee allowance, many people may want to try their coffee the French way—half hot coffee and half hot milk. This is a good beverage for making coffee so farther and for getting more milk into the diet. Miss Phipps says, too, that coffee and chocolate are flavors which blend well together. So for a change she suggests a cup of hot chocolate or cocoa with a dash of coffee in it, instead of a cup of coffee.

Homemakers who have any leftover coffee, can make excellent use of it provided they store it in the refrigerator. It can be used as a flavoring, especially in desserts.

The specialist also suggests serving beverages which fill in the gaps where coffee formerly was served. At lunch or dinner a cup of steaming meat or vegetable broth is good.

The fragrance of that hot cup should give your appetite a life, Miss Phipps says. With desserts, try a hot spiced fruit juice. Hot grape juice spiced with cloves or stick cinnamon, or hot spiced cider go well with many sugar saving desserts.

Mrs. Grady Hall and Mrs. W. M. Houghton spent several days this week in Amarillo. Mrs. Hall was a guest in the home of her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Crawley. Mrs. Houghton visited her son Dr. Waldo Houghton.

Beet Seed Growers Dodge Insects

Keeping clear of the beet leaffopper is a trick American seed growers learned before they started raising wartime crops of garden beet seed to take the place of imports. This insect carries the curly top disease which about 10 years ago nearly wrecked the beet sugar industry in western areas where the insects breed on desert weeds and then invade beet fields. U. S. Department of Agriculture plant breeders developed sugar beet varieties resistant to the disease and are working on development of resistant varieties of garden beets.

Garden beet seed production is important in parts of California, Oregon, and Washington that have mild winters. Beets are seeded in late summer, and ripen seed the following season. Plants are widely spaced on valuable irrigated land. Insects do not ordinarily migrate from the desert weeds in late summer when the seed plants are most open to attack, but are likely to multiply in early summer on sugar beets and truck crops. So beet seed growers try to avoid leaffopper trouble by searching for favored areas where such crops do not act as leaffopper nurseries. Department of Agriculture entomologists help with surveys that indicate areas where they are relatively few leaffoppers.

The number of leaffoppers may change from year to year. For instance, one area, near Clear Lake, California, proved safe for a time, but an increase of truck cropping allowed the hoppers to multiply and that area had to be abandoned. Small areas have proved safe for years without it being clear why there were fewer hoppers than in fields only a few miles away. Prevailing winds may divert the hoppers. Until the entomologists can solve these problems, they can only advise growers to plant where there are few insects, and to stop planting if conditions change.

WINTER CARE MEANS SUMMER SPEED ON THE FARM

Farm labor efficiency is a year-round job that begins in the winter-time with preparation of field machines for smooth running when they are put to work in the spring. This foresight, says R. B. Gray of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, who has had wide experience with farm implements in this country, Europe and South Africa, is far more important to us in the United States of the much greater use of mechanical equipment. Because of the fact that there is so much equipment already on farms—including power producers and power tools—he emphasizes the need for making all the category he includes thorough inspection, cleaning out caked dirt and grease, making needed adjustments and sharpening all cutting parts.

Any person would gladly invest six cents for a return of $3.80. That is what the livestock owner can expect by controlling cattle grubs or ox warbles by using a mixture of equal parts of wettable sulfur and cube or derris containing 5% rotenone. This mixture is applied as a dust.

Data obtained from the Fort Worth Stock Yards reveal the following losses to cattle growers in Texas due to cattle grubs: (1) 42% of all animals received are "grubby"; (2) An average of 2 pounds of beef per carcass was trimmed from the loins and ribs of "grubby" animals; (3) After trimming, the loins and ribs from these carcasses were devalued 2 cents per pound; (4) Hides with 5 or more grub holes are devalued 1 cent per pound; (5) The average total loss to the packer amounts to $3.80 per "grubby" animal slaughtered; (6) As a result of the above losses most buyers on the Fort Worth market devalue "grubby" animals from $0.50 to $1.00 per hundred pounds depending upon the number of grubs; and (7) "Grubby" veal calves are devalued from 1/2 to 1 cent per pound because they must be skinned out on the floor thereby decreasing the quality of the veal.

(PP) The heel fly, adult of the cattle grub, causes a serious loss in weight in beef cattle, and reduces milk production in dairy cows by chasing them into water holes, brush or other shelter, during the spring when they should be grazing.

The young grubs, hatched from the heel fly eggs, penetrate the skin and for about nine months roam around through the cow's body. As the grubs reach maturity they produce pus-filled cells beneath the skin on the animal's back. Consequently the animal is subjected to more or less serious injury from grubs or heel flies throughout the year, lowering the vitality and preventing normal gain in weight or milk production. Experimental data has shown that 15% more feed is required to produce the same gain in weight in a grubby animal as compared to one free from grubs.

Cattle grubs can be economically controlled by using 5% rotenone powder plus wettable sulfur as a wash, dust or spray applied to the backs of animals before the grubs are ready to drop. Since all the grubs are not present on the back at the same time, treatments should be repeated at intervals of 30 days as long as grubs are present. Approximately 95% of the grubs present will be killed at each treatment.

The county agricultural agent can give you different formulas for application, and assist you in locating rotenone powder.

An important war crop is being grown in the Great Plains area, which was developed by R. E. Karper of the Agricultural Experiment Station, Lubbock. It is a new type of grain sorghum producing a waxy form of starch. This waxy type grain sorghum produces a starch with properties like that made from Cassava roots grown in the tropical countries, principally in Java. This Cassava starch has heretofore been furnished to this country in amounts of some 350 million pounds annually for use in the manufacture of high speed packaging glues, adhesives for stamps and envelopes, for sizing paper and cloth materials, and for similar uses.

Aside from the already existing demand for established uses of waxy starch, it is believed by some research chemists that the use of this form of starch may increase the yield of alcohol for the production of rubber from grain sorghums.

Miss Nellie Jo Muncy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edd Muncy, underwent an appendectomy in a Plainview hospital Saturday night. At last reports, she was doing nicely.

Albert R. Chubb and John Hughes, Petersburg business men, were in Floydada Friday.

Realizing that food is such an important item to the war effort, the Home Demonstration club women have again selected "Food Production" for one of the demonstrations to be worked on.

They believe it will be safe and sound for every family to produce as much of its food supply as possible and they will not stop there but will work on orchards, berries, small fruits, quick bearing fruits will be part of the home production plan. A meat supply and poultry and dairy product will also be included in this plan.

Another responsibility besides producing food is to conserve it so that none goes to waste. Knowing the scarcity of tin and of canning equipment, the homemaker will plan to use every method of food preservation. Store, cure, dry exchange with others.

A third responsibility is to eat the right food. This means checking the Texas Food Standard. It means buying carefully the things that must be bought—studying labels and weighing values. It means being able to select substitutes for the scarcer foods. For example, using dried beans once or twice a week in place of meat and doing without some desserts for more substantial foods. We must have the right food to do the biggest job we have ever had to do.

There will be a demonstrator in each club who will produce as much food at home as possible and will show her friends and club members on achievement day next November what she has done and tell how she did it. The other members will be cooperators who will produce as much food as is practical.

The food demonstrators and the club they belong to are as follows: Mrs. Wallace Allen, Center; Mrs. Clarence Ashton, Baker; Mrs. W. H. Bethel, Fairview; Campbell; Mrs. Lewis Blum, Dougherty; Mrs. Frances Carthel, Prairie Chapel; Mrs. Floyd Fuqua; Homebuilders, Mrs. R. B. Gary, Harmony; Mrs. W. M. Jeter, Sand Hill; Mrs. W. H. Johnston, Sterley; Mrs. Herman King, Lone Star; Mrs. S. J. Latta, Sunnyside; Mrs. D. Patterson, Pleasant Valley; Mrs. Ewald Quebe, Providence; Mrs. Nannie Ramsey, Lockney; Mrs. Robt. Smith, McCoy; Mrs. John Smitherman, South Plains.

SO EASY TO USE SO IMPORTANT TO SAVE

We realize Natural Gas is so easy to use that it is sometimes wasted unintentionally.

In the territory we serve the demand for this fine fuel has greatly increased, due to one phase or another of the war effort.

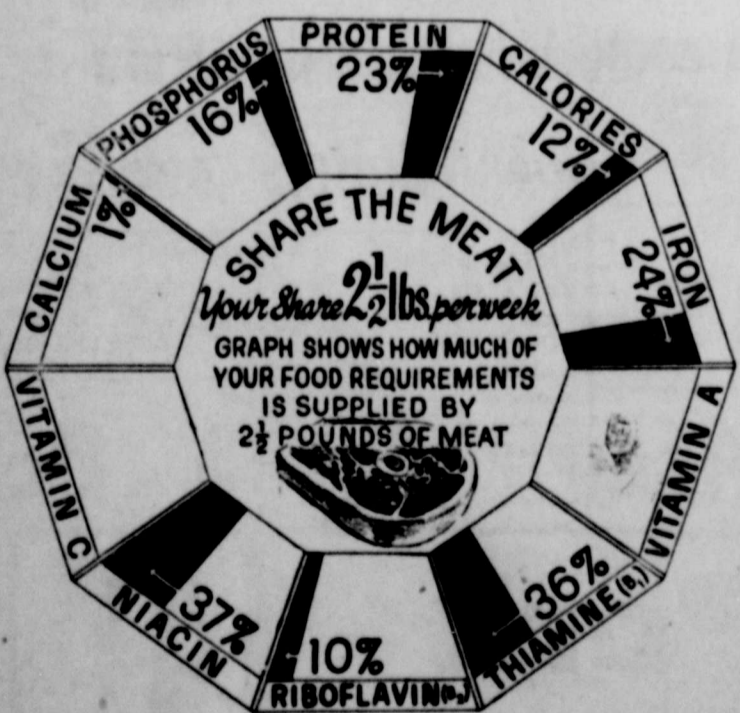

In normal times, we could obtain materials needed to increase the capacity of our facilities so that we could meet all demands. Today, that is impossible. That's why we are asking you to help by reducing your use of natural gas to the minimum on very cold days.

Here's How You Can Help

1. Shut off parts of the house not in use.
2. Do not keep your rooms too warm. Train yourself to become accustomed to lower temperature.
3. Refrain from using the range oven for room heating.
4. Keep your heating equipment in top-notch condition.
5. Install insulation, storm sash, weather stripping, and caulking if possible.
6. Use a low blue flame for cooking, cook vegetables in as small an amount of water as possible, cook more one dish meals, and keep burners clean.

No Grand Jury First Week Of Court Term

For the first time in recent history of District court in Floyd county there will be no grand jury empaneled on Monday.

Judge Alton B. Chapman this week announced that no grand jury would be set to work, when the winter term opens January 25. The district has no active district attorney at this time. A successor for John A. Hamilton, of Matador, who has been called to naval service, has not been named, the judge explained. Having no district attorney a grand jury would be without the advice and help of counsel in carrying on its deliberations.

Committee Pays Off For Castor Beans Grown

The Floyd County ACA committee has been paying off farmers who grew castor beans last year in an effort to help the government supply of vegetable fats.

Most of these growers fared well in the deal, in spite of adverse seeding and weather conditions at the time the beans were planted last spring. O. S. Miller, T. S. Brown, Jimmie Allen and others received checks from the committee, buying for mill as agreed when the beans were planted.

Castor beans are about the same planting and handling trouble as maize before harvest, and have to be harvested somewhat like cotton in the fall, probably one to three pickings owing to weather conditions and the way they mature. If the beans are planted in the ordinary way special plates would have to be used on a planter.

Want More This Year

The army and navy demands are so great for the vegetable fats obtained from castor beans and soybeans that an active campaign has been inaugurated to get them planted in this county this year. Several already have signed up and the committee is wanting more signatures. Beans of the varieties which the armed forces think will produce best for their purposes must be planted. The committee expects to have good seed available.

Soybean growers did well last year, too, for the most part, but harvesting conditions were unfavorable on numerous farms the same as for other crops. Experience indicates that the castor bean crop will do best year in and year out under dry farming conditions, the committee was informed.
