Tip for the week: Don't expect too much of your war-time shoes and boots. However good the quality has been of the kind you have been wearing, shoe manufacturers are using leather for soles that the government releases after the army and navy take the best for our fighting boys. So your shoes have soles with leather of third, fourth or fifth grade. Your shoe man knows it and will tell you so if you ask. He hates to repeat the same old story over and over and may not say anything. When the shoe wears out before you expected it to that will be the answer.

Shoe stores in Floydada and everywhere really had a run on their stocks on the 14th and 15th of the month, last day for Shoe Ration Stamp No. 17. Peculiar thing about human nature. Shoe stores sold many a thousand pair of shoes in Texas alone that the buyers didn't particularly need. Which is another illustration of the idea many of us have that rationing as practiced in World War No. Two does not really get done what we are trying to get done. The method of approach is all wrong. OPA ought to turn the job over to us critics.

With the European blood bath for our boys ready to open any day how would you like to be a striking coal miner and live with your conscience, still holding the view point you have as a farmer or small-town business man? You couldn't sleep good, of course. The coal miners have their point of view. They may think, they may even know, there is sufficient coal on top of the ground to run the country until they get their demands. Certainly they have sons and brothers on the European front and in training camps like the rest of us. They may be only misled or they may be just as right as a fox. But none of the rest of the people believe it. If a man could live and rear a family under conditions which miners had to deal with before the war surely they could get along temporarily now with injustices being poured on their sore backs to keep from slowing up the war machine. But they can't see it that way. Speaking of coal miners and consciences, one might apply the same yardstick to himself as he applies to the miners. How does the job I am doing stack up in the war effort? Am I making the country a hand at what I am doing?

The "luck of assignment" as the army men call it is making some interesting things happen in civilian life. Callings which have been notoriously lacking in pay for the man who followed them all of a sudden are money makers, while others calling usually thought of as sure fire to make money are in the doldrums. Investments in some other lines are just going to have to wait until the war is over. We think of cafes right now. Cafe people, charging prices which are not unfair at all (some may be, none around here) are making more money than ever before. Their customers who used to buy a cup of coffee or a cold drink and dawdle over a nickel's worth now buy two to ten times as much, make few demands in the way of extra service—and, important this, have the money with which to pay their bills and few questions asked.

Seventy-eight years after the close of the Civil war, a now remote time in the thought of the young people who are beginning to take over and run the country, fighting our wars, operating our machines, unleashing the marvelous powers that have lain hidden in nature—seventy-eight years after that war was fought and won, or fought and lost, according to the viewpoint, there are now living in Texas 64 men who carried guns, fought and bled for their leaders and for what they felt was right, on the Confederate side. This fact was brought to light by doings of the last legislature, which increased the allotments under the Confederate Pensions law. At the same time there are nearly 3,000 widows of ex-Confederates in the state. For a long time the Confederate pensions were insufficient to meet the allotments but it is another story now. Their thinning ranks are very, very thin, indeed.

Speaking of veterans of America's wars the forgotten veterans are those who fought in the Spanish-American war, in Cuba and in the bushwhacking of the Philippines that followed. Probably the reason is that their numbers are small, about an average of two to such a county as Floyd. Many a Spanish-American veteran doesn't even mention the fact that he ever fought in a war, all quiet reticent about their exploits. They were the young bloods of the late nineties who rallied around the flag to the slogan, "Remember the Maine." Those days were America's most glamorous days, when Indian wars were being fought over around thousands of camp fires in the west and southwest, when glorious new lands were being opened in Texas, in Oklahoma, throughout the west, and when the cattle ranges and the Klondike called to the spirit of adventure. Their alter egos now answer the call to India, to Europe, to the far reaches of the Pacific and to boundless spaces of that new "continent," the air and the other one above it, the stratosphere.

PAY DEBTS OR WAR BONDS?

Should I pay my debts or invest in War Bonds? If you're like most farmers, you've probably been asking yourself this question, and it's a good question, too. The paying of debts is definitely a part of a good wartime plan for farm people. A 4-point program recommended is: First, produce all you can; second, get your debts in shape; third, save all you can in War Bonds; and fourth, don't speculate! Getting your debts in shape does not mean paying off the entire mortgage on your farm. It does mean paying bills and notes you would have cleared up sometime ago if farm income had been up to normal or adjusting a mortgage so it can be paid more easily in the future. But it doesn't mean to pull all available income on debts. If you do, you'll probably have to borrow again in order to buy a new tractor, auto, washing machine, or other farm and home equipment after the war when they can be bought. And it may not be as easy to increase the amount of that mortgage as it was to reduce it. It's just good business to save as much as you can in War Bonds, which will be available at any time for any purpose—for the purchase of farm and home equipment, furniture, education of the children, unexpected hospital bills, or for the payment of taxes and debts. The slight difference in interest between the rate paid on debts and that received on War Bonds is a small price to pay for the insurance which such a financial reserve will provide. War Bonds are the best investment ever offered American farmers. Remember that every $3 you invest today grows into $4 by the time the bonds mature in 10 years. Get your War Bonds from your bank, production credit association, post office, merchant, rural mail carrier, radio station or theatre.

When money talks, nobody pays much attention to the grammar.

You can't keep your mouth and your mind open at the same time.

Folks that take things for granted usually get taken for plenty.

Some people have everything in common except common sense.

As A Farm Woman Thinks

By Nellie Witt Spikes

The years on the farm that go by are measured by the major things, such as plantings and harvests. This particular time wheat harvest takes the most prominent place. The cotton and feed crop has to wait. It makes one think of a new baby getting all the attention while the older child has to wait. Many harvests have come and gone since I moved my rocking chair silk embroidered centerpiece and small set of plated silver to the new house that looked like a hunk of yellow cheese in the mild spring sun. I said harvests when, for me, years I should have said harvest time as there was nothing to pour like a stream of golden syrup into waiting wagons. There was the horsepower threshers and delays were often caused by the horses running off at night. Then the big old engines with wheels the size of water tanks, puffed from the wheat field to another, haughty and proud, belching smoke and cinders, making a noise like a train, hungry for sheaves of wheat, tossing the straw to one side in huge stacks, while sweating men feed endless bundles brought by loaded wagons from the field.

Oh that was a busy, happy time. Dinner was put on early in huge pots, while pies cooled and cakes looked like small white drifts of snow. Homemade lightbread and fresh hot biscuits, potato salad with its smell of onions and spicy vinegar, chickens browning in hot grease, cold slices of ham, red beans no end. My how I love to think about it now. The first men to the house washing up, joking and hurrying one another, the table made as long as possible was soon surrounded by hungry men whose greatest complaints were that they ate with such relish. Tableful after tableful ate and hurriedly left, 'til there was time for the women and children to sit down and eat at leisure.

Somehow every traveller found where the threshing was that day and stopped to join the crowd, not to work but to get a good dinner, and would you have blamed them? In the far distant future I can see some college professors, digging up parts of one of those old Rumley threshers, a wheel buried here and parts there and when it is all put together taking it to its place in the museum with dinosaurs and big lizards.

I wonder where the old blister bug made off to. I have not seen his gray body in years. There was a time when he and his companions made life a misery to the ones who had to gather them off potatoes and other vegetables. One time Don Murray got one mashed on his knee and it made such a bad blister! Don got out of work for many weeks. I was very sick or poisoned one time I thought after dusting London Purple on potatoes to stop the ravages of blister bugs. I hurried to the house, looked in the indispensable Dr. Pierce's medical book, saw to swallow a raw egg, and did so without a thought how bad it was. Just a case of scare.

I was getting along pretty well with this column when I heard a sudden call for the target. Wilma and Mr. Spikes had investigated a hole at the back of the orchard, wondering what it contained when all of a sudden they knew, unmistakably as a polecat ran out and hurried across the field. After he was run down and killed, there was another grown one and six kittens inside the hole. Now Mr. Spikes is in the cement tank and I am wondering if I had better not serve his dinner out there.

It was very nice to meet Mrs. Bud English and daughter, Beatrice, last week in Ralls. They were neighbors at one time, and fine ones at that. I also saw Mrs. Percy Lamar and daughter, friends of many years. Zina and I always have time to stop and talk a few minutes whatever the hurry.

Charles B. Driscoll in his delightful column, recalls some bywords of long ago. He tells of, for the love of Pete and Mike, also: can it; pipe down; gee whizz and gee whilkkins. I remember some others, by gravity; mercy upon us; skidoo; my stars—and the one used by the handsome young doctor that hung out his shingle in Emma, and it made many a young lady's heart beat fast as he said, by hootahs, in the best Kentucky manner.

My father was against all slang and woe to any of us who thought we could get by with saying it in his presence. When he was very aggravated he would say plague take it, but that was about as far as his slang vocabulary even went. I am thankful to this day that he cured or rather squelched this habit in me when I was young.

You can just about tell a persons age when you hear them speak of their parents. Children of my mother's time said, ma and pa, of mine, mamma and papa, of my children's mother and dad, now it is mother and daddy. My father always said mother and pap, the Carter children said mammy and pappy. There was a great difference in how one could say ma and pa. Some would have it maw and paw, other right short, ma and pa.

Poem for the week by Ida Norton Munson.

How glad I am that no stranger-sounding words
Must needs be said to bring the humble heart
In touch with Him who loved the flowers, the birds:
With Him who never drew Himself apart
From all the dear, familiar common things;
Whose comfort ever waited, close and warm
As sunshine that, to lowly grasses, brings
New strength, new courage, to endure the storm.
He loved the garden; watched the dawning day.

The lake, the boats, the third fishermen,
The shepherds with the sheep, the very way
A woman patched a worn-out garment then.
How glad I am that I may always bring
My need to Him who knew each common thing.

WAR DANGERS at Home

LET US SAFEGUARD YOUR VALUABLES

Valuable papers in your home are always unsafe. Today, many housewives are war workers. They are away from home most of the day—leaving a free field for prowlers. Children left alone in the house may play pranks or paper games—with the wrong papers. Fires are easily started.

All this at a time when almost everybody has war bonds and other important papers to protect. Our bank vault is safer than your home for your valuables. Rent a safe deposit box now. The rental cost is only a few cents a month.

Seven Floyd Co. Boys Win Army Recognition

The Army is recognizing 4-H club boys who have produced enough food to equal the annual food budget of a soldier. Floyd county had seven boys out of an enrollment of 145 boys who qualified for Army recognition.

The amount of farm products equivalent to the annual food budget is not easily achieved. For example it takes 2,506 quarts of milk, 1,262 pounds of dressed beef, pork or mutton, or 750 pounds of lint or cotton.

The seven boys who qualified for recognition were: Sidney Ray Peel, 1176 lbs. cotton; Jackie Brock, 6,484 quarts milk and 1,480 lbs. dressed pork sold; Maurice Threadgill 3,883.6 quarts milk; Henry Neil Schacht 1,401 lbs. cotton; Billy Johnston 9,600 lbs. wheat; Johnny Aycock 4,176.8 quarts milk, and Seth Johnston started the year with 15 head of hogs, sold three and closed the year with 27 head.

Those who accompanied Jason O. Gordon, agent, on the trip to Lubbock Tuesday included: Jackie Brock, Maurice Threadgill, Henry Neil Schacht, Sidney Ray Peel, Seth Johnston, Arvol D. Hays and Jason O. Gordon.

The boys visited the South Plains army flying school and were given the opportunity to see army life.

Mrs. Opal DuPriest returned Tuesday to her home in El Centro, California after a month's visit here with friends and relatives. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. B. M. Higgins, who returned to her home in San Diego, California.

The boys were drilled in camping, swimming, hiking and camp fire. Boys who attended were Glenn Carmack, L. W. Bridges, jr., Billy Wester, Charles Presley, Bobby McGuire, Kelly Hagood, Bill Hale, Sammie Hale, Jack Loran and C. L. Berry, jr.

Conservation District News

Simple as well as complex conservation practices often make excellent returns to the farmer. John Lloyd, one of the District's co-operators says he has just finished combining a field of wheat on summer fallowed land with a yield of 30 bushels per acre. Another field on his place not summer fallowed is yielding 20 bushels.

Wade Davenport of South Plains has been having trouble with broken terraces from run-off water from adjacent land. This year he has stopped his trouble by constructing a District-designed diversion ditch and levee which discharges the water on pasture land, which keeps an overload from his terraces and at the same time benefits his grass. Wade says this diversion has already successfully handled some terrific rains.

Research begins... not in a test tube... but in the mind of a man.

Since Phillips Petroleum Company has the world's largest proven gas reserves, it was natural that the minds of hundreds of Phillips research men should early turn to the problem of new and better things from petroleum gases as well as from petroleum.

The resulting development, in the early 1930's, of POLYMERIZATION enabled the use of light petroleum hydrocarbons (gases) which until then had been regarded as by-products of little value. Soon, several years before Pearl Harbor, they became feed stock for 100 octane gasoline.

Still other Phillips pioneering processes, alkylation, HF alkylation, and cycloisomerization permitted the production of 100-plus octane aviation gasoline, a significant contribution to extra airplane horsepower.

Phillips was one of the first, and remains one of the largest manufacturers of high octane aviation fuels. Thus we see how the peacetime study and work of Phillips scientists is of great value in our all-out war on the Axis. Similarly, when victory comes, today's accelerated Phillips wartime research program should bring to the American motorist new and greater gasolines for his post-war car.

Biologist Warns Against Botulism

(Ed. Note: In case you do not know, non-acid vegetables include English peas, black-eye peas, squash, greens, greenbeans, Lima beans, beets and okra, which means practically all canning vegetables except tomatoes grown in this area.)
COLLEGE STATION, June 24.—A poison so powerful that a teaspoonful is enough to kill 40,000 guinea pigs is not a good thing to take chances with, a leading Texas biologist has said in warning Texas homemakers against the hot water method of canning for non-acid vegetables. This method does not destroy the bacteria that cause botulism.

The entire text of a statement on the subject by Dr. Asa C. Chandler, professor of biology of Rice Institute, Houston, and advisory chairman of the Houston and Harris County Nutrition committee, has been circulated among the county home demonstration agents of the Texas A. and M. college Extension Service. Dr. Chandler's statement is in harmony with recommendations on home canning given by Winifred Jones, extension specialist in food preservation.

Dr. Chandler believes the chances for accidents are too great to be worth the risk of people undertake to can non-acid vegetables or meats by the boiling water bath method. "Outbreaks of botulism will almost certainly occur," he says. "It is like having rattlesnakes on your golf course." He says to keep your ball on the fairway, and treat the rattlesnake with impunity, but sooner or later somebody a little less careful will suffer. By comparison (with botulism) rattlesnake venom is only mildly poisonous.

Bacteria that cause botulism grow in non-acid vegetables when strictly protected from air. Dr. Chandler says there is one case on record where the spores survived heating and germinated after 22 months. The poison produced is so deadly that a person has been known to die after eating one piece of a string bean.

Miss Jones says this evidence gives strength to the many warnings Extension Service workers have issued about hot water bath canning of non-acid vegetables.

HOUSEKEEPING HINTS WORTH KEEPING IN MIND

Fresh Fish Isn't a Matter of Guess Work. Watch for these characteristics say Westinghouse home economists: Gills should be red. Scales should stick closely. Eyes should be bright and bulging. Flesh must be free from slime, elastic and firm to the touch. In fact, when you touch the flesh with your finger the finger should leave no impression.

Short Cuts On Washday

Dry clothes correctly and they iron with less effort, according to home economists. Fold sheets and tablecloths right side out, hem to hem, and hang so hem extends over the line 8 to 12 inches and you prevent dog-eared corners. Hang towels and pillow cases square and give longer service. Hang shirts by the tail, dresses by the hem, anchor several handkerchiefs, napkins and washcloths with a single clothespin.

For A Change
Instead of cookies—or when the cookie jar unexpectedly resembles Mother Hubbard's cupboard—on housewife makes a filling of powdered sugar, butter and vanilla, spreads on one graham cracker and puts another on top. Makes a nice change in a lunch box, but do wrap carefully in wax paper.

Plan Before You Pack

By planning a lunch box meal well in advance and by doing much of the preparation at dinner time the night before, this cook packs a good-and-good-for-you box lunch in less than eight minutes. For example, take butter out of the refrigerator so it will spread more easily in the morning. Slice or grind meat, wash lettuce, vegetables and fruits, then wrap in wax paper and store in refrigerator overnight. Put stewed fruits, puddings, salads or mayonnaise in separate containers. Keep cocoa syrup on hand, if possible, and add a tablespoon or so to hot milk at the last minute.

Care of Electric Cords

Don't disconnect lamps or appliances by pulling on the cord, warns a home lighting expert. It loosens the wires in the plug. Instead, grasp plug itself and remove with a firm quick motion from wall outlet or appliance.

Housecleaning Aids

In anticipation of house cleaning, home economists have rounded up some cleaning hints worth remembering the year around: Rubbing wax on window sills, Venetian blinds and work surfaces protects the finish and simplifies cleaning. An ordinary paint brush saves time when dusting furniture, especially elaborated furniture. Dip a cloth in vinegar and water to wipe off furniture—makes polishing easier and finer marks don't show. Grease spots on walls vanish with a dusting of French chalk—let chalk remain for several hours and brush off with a soft clean cloth or small brush.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Lawson and children of Lubbock spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Ballard.

Miss Mary Shultz returned last week from a four weeks visit with friends and relatives at Fort Worth, Dallas and Gainesville.

What To Write To Service Men

The Office of War Information offers these pointers for homemakers writing to soldiers, sailors and marines—based on suggestions gathered in a survey among servicemen at home and overseas, in cooperation with the Special Service division of the Army Service forces:

- Tell Him:
1. How the family is doing everything possible to help in the war.
 2. How anxious the family is for the boy's return.
 3. How well and busy the family is. Give details.
 4. How the family is getting along financially.
 5. What's doing in the community: news about girls (single) who know, doings of friends, who's marrying whom, exploits of the home team and other sports events.

Don't Tell Him:

1. Your troubles. He has troubles of his own.
2. Your complaints. He can't do anything about them.
3. About things you are deprived of. He can't supply them.
4. Doleful predictions about the future. He's fighting for that future—now.
5. Unnecessary details about financial troubles. If there are things he should know about family finances, and he is in a position to do something about the situation, tell him. But don't string it out.

TEST DRILLS BORE INTO BAGS OF WOOL

Men armed with "pneumatic drills" are boring holes in big bags of wool these days.

For several years scientists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture have been testing various methods of obtaining an impartially drawn sample for determining the shrinkage of wool, in hope of finding a way to help the grower obtain full market value.

The research is getting results. One of the most promising methods under study involves a coring tube. The equipment weighs about 40 pounds and one man can operate it. The tube itself is attached to a motor and performs like an auger boring deep into a large bag or bale of wool and emerging a few seconds later with a cylindrical sample about a foot long and weighing a quarter of a pound. Usually a hundred or more cores from an individual clip are sent to Washington where in the laboratories of the Wool Division, Food Distribution Administration, the shrinkage is tested.

Wool as it comes from the sheep's back is known as "grease wool." It contains much that is not wool—natural grease, dried perspiration, soil, sand and vegetation. This foreign matter must be removed usually by scouring in a soap and soda solution.

"Shrinkage" is measured by the percent loss in weight resulting from this cleaning, and is the most important physical factor influencing the value of wool. When wool is selling at $1 a clean pound, each one percent increase in shrinkage lessens the value of grease wool by one cent a pound. This indicates the importance to both growers and buyers of a reliable objective method of determining shrinkage of impartially drawn samples.

Mrs. Harry Webber and son, Paul left Thursday for Chicago, Illinois to visit relatives. Mr. Webber plans to join his family in 2 weeks and accompany them home.

Charles Neil who is employed in defense work at Los Angeles, California, came Wednesday for a five days visit with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Neil.

Pvt. Willard Dunlap of Fort Bragg came Tuesday for a furlough visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dunlap and other relatives. Pvt. Dunlap is an air corps mechanic.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Harris and children and Miss Chlotilde Abernathy of Lubbock were guests of Mr. Harris' mother, Mrs. S. T. Harris Sunday.

TOPPING CARROTS EASES TRANSPORTATION LOAD

By losing their tops, carrots may make a contribution toward relief of the transportation shortage, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports. Tests by Agricultural Research Administration investigators brought out differences between shipments of carrots with and without tops which were altogether favorable to cutting off the tops. The carrots shipped with the tops left on, lost 50 percent more water than the topless ones. Another point in favor of the carrots' without tops was that in six trial lots they had slightly higher sugar content than the lots shipped at the same time with tops.

The investigators point out the possibility of a considerable saving this way, since the weight of the tops amounts to approximately 15 percent of the total weight of carrots as ordinarily shipped. Since most consumers make no use of the tops, the investigators think that this practice might well be adopted generally by carrot shippers with nothing but gain to be expected from the change. Because leaving the tops on is a well established practice, there is a strong prejudice against dropping it. However, one large chain-store system has already adopted the new method.

SCIENCE TRACES TRACES

Familiar in plant science, the abbreviation "p. p. m." stands for "parts per million." The unit suggests the extreme precision required in some branches of agricultural research. A salt solution of "1 p. p. m." would result from dissolving an ounce of salt in a tank holding approximately 250 barrels of water. Yet in research on the nutritional requirements of soybeans—one of the important warcrops—an Agricultural Research Administration worker has found decimal fractions of 1 p. p. m. of zinc as making the difference between thriving plants and plants fatally poisoned. Some varieties of soybeans, he finds, will grow well under zinc conditions that would kill other varieties.

This research, reported recently by E. B. Earley of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Soils and Agricultural Engineering, developed out of a plant nutrition experiment that went wrong about 3 years ago. Earley had planted soybeans in pure quartz sand and was feeding them with a solution of precisely measured chemicals pumped into the sand at regular intervals. Solutions that should have supported abundant growth produced stunted and misshapen plants. The trouble was finally traced to a zinc alloy casting in the pump. Enough zinc was being dissolved from the pump to poison the plants.

Later Earley experimented further—with a zincless pump—to find out just how little zinc was too much—and discovered the variety differences. The Hudson Manchu soybean, for example, will tolerate from 8 to 12 times as much zinc as the sensitive Peking variety. As little as 0.4 p. p. m. of zinc would destroy the Peking, although 0.1 p. p. m. favor good growth. Neither quantity, however, would put a severe drain on the wartime stockpile of scarce zinc. The experiments however, will warn other research workers not to use zinc equipment in plant nutrition laboratory studies.

TEMPORARY CHANGE MADE IN SCHEDULES OF RURAL CARRIERS OF FLOYDADA

The change is expected to be temporary, Mrs. Smith said, and schedules to be resumed probably within 60 to 90 days.

EVERY DRIVER CAN HELP

KEEP 'EM ROLLING

WAR, 1943 style, is war on wheels. Men, weapons and materials vital to victory must be moved swiftly, safely and without delay.

But each day accidents at grade crossings in America injure or kill 19 motorists and delay 38 trains a total of 22 hours—a drain on manpower and time that a nation at war simply cannot afford.

Will you, as a patriotic driver, enlist in the nationwide campaign now under way to stop these accidents? Here's how you can help:

1. Be extra careful—waxtime careful—in all your driving.
2. Be especially alert when approaching a grade crossing.
3. Be sure the way is clear before you cross the tracks.
4. LOOK, LISTEN and LIVE!

Help keep 'em rolling for victory!

4-H Club Youth Guests At Army Air Field

SOUTH PLAINS ARMY AIR FIELD, June 19—Stressing the importance of food in the all-out war production program, this field was host last week to more than 100 West Texas 4-H club youths and county agents.

The boys are winners in farm production in the South Plains area. They have produced enough food to feed one or more soldiers for an entire year according to the food budget set up by the government. The boys showed them not only the value of food production but conservation practices of the army.

They were busy from the moment they arrived at the field in the morning until nearly time for re-arriving late in the afternoon. They saw a picture of the Battle of Britain depicting the horrors of the bombing and strafing of English cities in 1940, heard an address by Capt. Walter F. Dix, field range officer, on the use of small arms, had a "GI" dinner, and spent the afternoon visiting various units on the field.

They attended a review of the troops by Brig. Gen. Aubrey Hornsby, in which one of their own members, George Kveton, of Abernathy, winner last year of first place in the state contest for beautification projects, was selected to stand beside Gen. Hornsby.

The group ran the obstacle course with Troy Overman, 18, of Hockley county, making it in 3 minutes. The record time for the course is approximately 2 and one-quarter minutes.

They saw much of the operation of the field-gliders lifting above the slipstream of the twin-engine tow ships, gliders coming in along for landings after carrying out specified flight patterns, long lines of light-two-place trainers, jeeps and peeps, command cars and tractors, barracks, hospitals, fire control quarters and instruction rooms.

In the group from Floyd county were Jackie Gene Brock, Henry Neil Schacht, Sidney Ray Peel, Seth Johnston, Maurice Threadgill and Jason O. Gordon, county agent and Orval D. Hays, Farm Security administration supervisor.

There appeared in the War Letter for Agriculture published by the Texas USDA War Board the following information regarding the amount of grain needed to produce a hog to market weight. The material is printed in full because it shows how important it is to save all pigs that are farrowed.

"Each pig farrowed dead represents the loss of 140 pounds of feed."

"Each pig farrowed alive but dying at weaning time, when about 10 weeks old, costs 120 pounds of feed more."

"A pig dying 8 weeks after being weaned represents the loss of about 100 additional pounds of feed."

"During the next 8-week period, feed consumption amounts to 242 pounds. And the final fattening period of 8 weeks requires about 388 additional pounds of feed, making a total of 990 pounds of feed for the hog when finished, ready for market. If the hog dies of hog cholera, for instance, just before it's ready for slaughter, nearly 1/2 ton of feed is lost, so far as edible meat is concerned."

These figures are based on actual records of hogs produced on a typical farm over a period of 5 years. During that time, 27 farrowings occurred, resulting in 260 pigs of which 112 survived to market age.

The above figures may or may not be representative of feeding conditions in Floyd county, but they are sufficiently accurate that swine breeders are selling breeding stock on the market because they cannot make the feeding budget balance.

Feeding cows plenty of good roughage is one of the most economical methods dairymen can use in keeping up milk production. Roughage means pasture, silage and hay.

It is economical because the more good roughage which goes down the cow's throat the less grain mixture she will need. Present high prices for feed and a shortage of protein feeds makes it more important to allow the cow what she is capable of converting into human food. It is estimated that if a milk cow gets all of the roughage she wants, and roughage alone, she can produce up to two-thirds of her capacity. Producing two-thirds of the milk on this feed not only cuts the cost of the total feed bill, but saves grain, as well as the important protein feed stocks, for poultry and for other livestock.

Don't forget to provide shade and plenty of cool water for the dairy cow now that summer is here.

Requests for farm help are being filled very rapidly by M. W. Etter, of the United States Employment Service, who is stationed in the Agricultural building.

Farmers are taking advantage of

If you're not sure about how long to process canned food, call by this office for a bulletin which gives a time table for processing all fruits and vegetables.

Food is too scarce and requires too much time to can to run a risk of losing it.

Other rules to observe when canning for quality products are:

1. Select fresh, good quality fruits and vegetables.
2. Work fast. "One hour from garden to can."
3. Use good containers and proper equipment.
4. Seal food hot.
5. Cool properly. Store in a clean, cool, dark, dry place.

About 80 days after Irish potatoes are planted they can be harvested. They can be dug before the tops die, but they should be mature if they are to keep properly. To check the maturity exert thumb pressure on the skin of a few, and if the skin is tough and does not break or rub off easily, the crop may be harvested.

Potatoes should be handled carefully during harvest as they bruise easily. The small immature and bruised potatoes should be separated from the others and used first.

A cool, well ventilated cellar is satisfactory for potato storage, provided it has an overhead vent that will allow the warm air and moisture to escape. Avoid spreading the potatoes out on the ground or floor. Provide a slatted false floor with at least four inches of air space under the potatoes. Good ventilation picks up the moisture from the potatoes and keeps them dry.

this service because it saves them time in locating a person who wants to work.

Let your labor needs be known to the county agent, and he will assist the U. S. E. S. representative in locating a capable worker.

Signs of Peace and you'll want to be there!

What if Peace brings new cars promptly or not? You'll be yearning to get away from headlines—rations—hours of volunteer war work... to get around again with your weary, happy soldier boy—home at last. And with driving restricted now, your car should have plenty of miles left, just so you're not tossing them away these days, by half-ruining your engine with acid.

That's no "new scare." You never yet stopped any auto engine without acid products of combustion trapped inside. But formerly, the frequent fast driving that fully heated the engine kept expelling acid. So the hazard was mild compared to what it is today, when acid works while your rationed engine rests.

One great recognized precaution against this is to OIL-PLATE your engine by changing to Conoco Nth motor oil. Its special added synthetic acts "magnet-like"—to attach OIL-PLATING direct to precious inner parts. Much like body parts plated against atmospheric corrosion, the cylinders, rings, bearings and other parts now hard to replace are OIL-PLATED against internal acid corrosion. The close-surfaced OIL-PLATING that combats acid while the car stands, will help your essential transportation today. And may a happier tomorrow see you right off quick on your well-earned Victory tour! Change to Conoco Nth oil now. Continental Oil Company

"Sure! I'll be glad to limit my Long Distance calls to 5 minutes"

Sometimes when you've a long distance call to a war-busy place, the operator will say—

"Please limit your call to five minutes. Others are waiting."

This doesn't happen all the time, because many long distance calls go through about as usual. But whenever we have had to ask that

We want to say thanks for that. Your help and understanding count double these days.

Wheat Harvest—

neck may be averted until the first of next week.
At Lockney and Muncy it seemed probable this week that, on account of very considerable storage space available customers will have no trouble with deliveries to elevators. At other points, however, including Floydada, with quite limited storage space, the story is expected to be a different one.

Tests over the whole county are high, practically all the grain being taken at 63 pounds. The first of the week combines were being operated at $2.50 per acre, with a five-cent per acre increase over this figure for each bushel added production. Trucks generally are hauling on a cent-a-mile-per bushel basis from fields to elevators.

Because of demand on elevators for moving wheat, facilities for handling mixed grain are limited and considerable mixed grain is going on the ground, into barns and vacant houses.

BAKER, June 23.—Home demonstration club met in the home of Mrs. Ham Smith Wednesday. All went home with the urge to build a barbecue pit and invite our friends in for sun-rise breakfast. Practical things on how to be a good hostess and how to fix electrical appliances were given. Those present at the meeting were Mrs. Geo. Stiles, Mrs. W. H. Nelson and Jean Nelson, Mrs. Anne Green, Mrs. Sam Green, Miss Edith Wilson, the agent and the hostess Mrs. Smith.

Miss Christine Hinton, Miss Jean Nelson and Mrs. Sam Green visited Miss Leona Jones Thursday who is in the hospital. She was found to be doing nicely.

We tried to forget the wheat harvest Sunday and went to Sunday school. We feel that we gained more than we lost after studying "Marks of a Christian."

Much food for thought was obtained by the round table discussion given at the Youth Fellowship meeting Sunday night.

The Women's Society of Christian Service met with Mrs. Sam Green Monday. The study on "A Just and Durable Peace" was continued. Those on the program were Mrs. Geo. Stiles, Mrs. C. A. Hartley, Mrs. W. H. Nelson, Mrs. Anne Green and Mrs. Sam Green.

Miss Bernice Colston is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Colston this week. Bernice is working in the defense plant at Grand Prairie.
