EDITORIALS

Reading in the public prints about Esquire being barred from the mails. This is the magazine, a quite popular one, that kept edging a bit nearer and nearer the fine and finally edged too far. At least, that is the point of view of the Post Office department which has the last say. We mentioned it as barred from the mails. We do not know exactly that this is right. What did happen for sure was that the magazine's second class privileges were taken from it. A newspaper or magazine with a second class mailing permit is like a kite without a tail, or a man all dressed up to go somewhere and nothing to ride in. There'll be considerable pros and cons about whether the department should have done it. We wouldn't know, glad the responsibility to say in such matters belongs to somebody else.

Along in the fields you see wheat beginning to peep through and it will become more noticeable if weather stays reasonably warm. A hard, biting freeze would nip the little stems back to the ground only to have them come back again with the next let-up. Wheat is like that. It sure likes cold weather when there's plenty of moisture in the ground. Apparently there is a considerable bit in Floyd county, more in some spots than in others, but a pretty deep season. Further west and on northwest they have the ground wet a lot deeper, but what we have here will suffice for all present needs and into the edge of the spring, so many say.

We didn't like it the other day when President Roosevelt called one of our regular Americanisms—"I got along fine"—a colloquialism, somewhat as to say street talker's English. Possibly it is a colloquialism, but it is regular Americanese. It didn't have to be apologized for or explained just because he happened to be talking for a worldwide hook-up. That is what we remember most about the president's important talk, he being somewhat apologetic and explanatory so that Lord Plushbottom would know for sure he had been to Harvard.

The two-fisted way the railroad people went after their raises and ran into the government's order that the railroads continue to operate under the direction of the War department, is an illustration of the fact that you get things by trying. The fact is the railway people, like the miners before them, already have the same as won their raises and the other concessions they sought, the same as the miners finally did. It seems to be a well-established fact now that our kind of government cannot stand up against any union operating over a nation-wide scope. Government agencies and many in high places have said some pretty hard things about the railway people but they are getting what they went out to get.

In the course of a few months there is going to be many a motor vehicle operating on the highways and byways with improvised parts and baling wire repairs. And as the situation grows progressively worse in the repair departments of dealers there'll be more of the same. What appears to have happened is that the "green light" was given, as government men like to say, for the manufacture of repair parts for motor vehicles, but the usual lack of coordination between government bureaus has resulted in cancelling out the order. "They" forgot to release the steel, or if they didn't forget that it was something else. Anyway parts are getting more and more scarce in about the same way that milk buckets and cream cans and churns and things the cream producers need have. Recall that the government "released" a lot of material some four months ago to relieve the acute shortage in vessels needed to carry on the dairy businesses of the country. But note that you can't find anything of the kind on the market. If a man runs out of something to milk in of course he will find some way to do the job, including a trip around the corner where the black market operates, if he can find such a thing. Then to Washington he will be a terribly unpatriotic citizen. Who is patriotic and who is not often depends on the viewpoint.

Fortunately a few dealers are getting through orders for repair parts for farm machinery. In fact, farm machinery dealers have been more fortunate in this respect than automobile and truck dealers. And most everybody can find the parts they need now to make repairs to tractors in particular and other farm machinery in general. This doesn't mean new machines can be found in plenty. Doubtful, indeed, if there will be enough new machines to replace the worn out ones. But where a machine needed on the farm can be repaired there are, generally speaking, parts for it. The USDA War board in this county, and all the others presumably, is a most popular outfit these days. Lots of people go to see them, some hunting permission to buy machines they have located, others hoping the board can give them an inkling.

Commissioner Precinct No. 2:
CHARLIE SMITH

As A Farm Woman Thinks

(By Nellie Witt Spikes)

Saturday, January 1, 1944. A drizzly rain is falling, the sky is gray and there is no color anywhere. A thin sheet of cold rain hides the rest of the world from our place. Inside is warm, but Anne and Carey have been kept in the house by the snow until even the Christmas presents have lost all appeal. It is a holiday today and therefore no mail. My husband sits gloomily around after a long, wet, boggy siege with the stock. Mud is traced from one room to another, mud-covered overshoes drip more mud and water, wet gloves are spread before the fire, wet coats drip from another, trying to get dry before the need for the night's use.

Dirty water streams from the backs of the cows and runs down one's neck, the short trip to the barn and around seem for when one boogs every step. It takes a "fur-seeing eye" to visualize wild flowers blowing in the wind, the ripened heat a carpet of gold, cotton with round balls that hang from the stalk like ornaments on a Christmas tree, all made and fed from the underground season of water that is falling today. And the words of the wise man come to my mind as the cold days come, "Awake, O North wind; and come thou South; blow up my garden that the spices may flow out."

Just as I thought we had gone modern on hog-killing, my husband decided on the old-fashioned kind.

Floyd County 14 Years Ago

Judge and Mrs. Kenneth Bain and Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Stevenson were host and hostess with eighty-four parties last Thursday and Friday evenings at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bain, on South Main street.

Mrs. O. L. Stansell was hostess at a surprise birthday party honoring her son, Pat, last Saturday evening at the Stansell home on South Wall street.

The first carload of a total of twenty Gleaner Baldwin combines expected at an early date at Floydada and other points served by the South Plains Lumber company, was unloaded here Monday of this week. "The Ghost Bird," play of the Floydada High School Dramatic club, given Friday evening of last week for the benefit of the High School Annual fund, drew a big house and the members of the cast, directors, and others interested were delighted with the reception given the presentation.

The day was perfect, snow on the ground, melting in streams and making everything as slick as glass. The wind was cold from the southwest as it blew over so many miles of snow. Nothing as lacking but a barrel sunk in the ground, so that one end of the hog and then the other could be sealed and a bunch of little boys, getting in the way, blowing up bladders, cooking the melts on coals from the fire, getting their feet wet and some one calling ever so often to go in the house or they would catch their death of cold. Joe and Carey were the only two boys at hand and as they are little they had to stay in the house, much against their wishes and the annoyance of Wilma and I who had to keep them in.

With cold wet hands and freezing feet, everything went lovely till four hogs hung high. The day was finished, but not the results were told. That night Paul and his hired boy, Herschel relapsed from the flu they were only getting over. The next day the hogs still hung high in the barn. And perhaps would be now if kind neighbors had not come in and helped cut them up and salt them down.

We had planned that the sausage would be taken to town and ground but the rain of Saturday stopped that and half a day by husband and I turned the mill handle. The lard is still to be rendered, and not until the last drop is poured in the cans and the greasy things washed will this hog killing be over.

I had such a nice letter the other day from Miss Ona Mae McMurray of Canyon, Texas. Thank you so much, Miss Ona Mae and may this New Year be a happy one for you. We older people are always so pleased when the young folks pay us attention, and I am especially pleased by the letter.

James sent Wilda a beautiful Persian rug and hand woven and dark printed wall hangings from somewhere in Iran. The rug is so thick and soft I go in once in a while and step on it, marveling at the patient hands that tied each thread in a knot on the woven back of camels hair.

HERO OF MAKIN

COL. JAMES GARDINER CONROY
FORMER LEADER OF 165TH INFANTRY "THE FIGHTING SIXTY-NINTH"

THE best traditions of the Infantry were exemplified in the heroic assault upon Makin in the Gilbert Islands November 21 when Col. James Gardiner Conroy, leading the famous old "Fighting Sixty-ninth", formerly of the New York National Guard, was killed at the head of his troops. The gallantry of the regiment on the tropic atoll reflected brilliantly the glory won on that memorable second day at Gettysburg and on the battlefields of France in 1918.

Help Collector; File Income Tax Return Early

DALLAS, January 3.—Hon. W. A. Thomas, Collector of Internal Revenue, announced today that he has begun to mail copies of the 1943 Individual Income and Victory Tax return to the estimated 640,000 Federal income taxpayers in the Second district of Texas, comprised of 144 counties in the Northeast part of the state.

Collector Thomas said, "Although these returns are not required by law to be filed until March 15, I cannot urge too strongly that everyone prepare and file his return as early as possible."

"There are," he said, "two major points that are vital for everyone to understand. First, many persons will owe and to make plans for will owe the obligation. I must emphasize this as a simple matter of fairness to those taxpayers who may have overlooked this phase of the change-over to the pay-as-you-go system."

"Second, although many taxpayers will find that they are substantially paid up on their 1943 taxes—some of them, in fact, being entitled to refunds—it is still necessary for them to file a return."

Conservation District News

W. H. Nelson, chairman; W. F. Ferguson, vice-chairman; F. L. Brown, secretary; M. H. Taylor and Cecil Purcell, members.

R. H. (Raz) Ford was a District office visitor this week to put in his order for the terracing machine, as he wants to get his work done as soon as the ground dries out enough. Raz told Edgar H. Kemp, conservationist assigned to the District by the Soil Conservation Service that while his cotton was hailed out, his feed planted on the contour threshold twenty-five bushels per acre. He feels this would have been more if he had been able to get his terraces built before the '43 crop season.

There is really going to be a rush among farmers to get their terraces, contours, dams and stock ponds constructed when they learn of the provisions of the 1944 Agricultural Conservation Program. The program seems to be greater in scope and more liberal in payments for practices put into operation than was that of 1943. All are urged to familiarize themselves with the new program by the A. A. A. secretary.

Apparently the revegetation program in the District is going to get a nice boost in 1944 in that the new A. A. A. program provides for payment to the farmer for seeding native grasses, legumes and perennial grasses, not to mention the benefits to be derived from checking erosion, additional grazing, etc. There has been much interest in this work in the past and it is now anticipated that the demand for these seed will be much greater and those interested should begin to plan for harvesting those grown in order to provide a supply for home and market demands. Those having been promised seed by the District had better hurry and get them as spring sowing is indicated.

A man in a restaurant was having trouble cutting his steak. No matter how much pressure he exerted or how much he jabbed at it, he got no results. Finally he called the waiter. "You'll have to take this back and bring me another."

"Sorry, sir," said the waiter after closely examining the steak. "I can't take it back. You've bent it."

"Why, that's wonderful!" "Yes, but it's d-d-darned hard to work into an ordinary c-c-conversation."

"Darling, as I kissed you then, love was born!"

"That's wonderful, dear. But wipe that birthmark off your lips before we go in."

Strickland-Conner Vows Are Pledged

TULLIA, January 4 — Miss Lilia Marjorie Conner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Conner of Tullia, became the bride of Dale Strickland, son of Mrs. G. R. Strickland of Floydada, in an impressive single ring ceremony performed Sunday at 10 o'clock in the home of her parents, Rev. H. E. East, pastor of the First Baptist Church, read the marriage vows.

Misses Carolyn and June Wimberly of Silverton played the pre-nuptial music, including "Liebestraum" by Liszt, "Ave Maria" by Schubert, and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" by Victor Herbert. The altar was decorated with pink carnations and candy tuft and was flanked on either side with tall baskets of white gladiolus.

Mrs. Townsend Douglas, aunt of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a formal gown of pink tulle and carried a bouquet of calla lilies and sweet peas. Miss Chlois Griffith lighted the altar candles. Wade Douglas was ring bearer. The bridegroom was attended by Ernest Carter, Floydada, who served as best man.

She wore a strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom, for "something borrowed" she carried a white linen handkerchief belonging to Miss Patricia Hallock of El Paso, Texas. For "something old" she wore tiny diamond earrings which belonged to her paternal grandmother, Mrs. W. C. Conner.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony. The table was laid with a handmade cutwork tablecloth belonging to Mrs. A. C. Wimberly. The tiered wedding cake centered the table. Mrs. Bill Williams presided at the coffee service, and Mrs. Harley Goettche and Mrs. Lawrence Byers of Amarillo served the wedding cake. Mrs. Bernice Clower of Wichita Falls presided at the guest book.

After the reception the couple left for El Paso. For traveling the bride chose a three-piece wool suit of aqua, and wore a corsage of red roses. The couple will be at home in Stamford, after January 10.

Lack Of Vitamin C Causes Scurvy

Scurvy is one of many diseases known to man which was found to be caused by the lack of a vitamin—ascorbic acid or vitamin C. In the thirteenth century, scurvy took a heavy toll among the crusaders. The voyages of the great explorers—Columbus, Magellan, Vasco da Gama—were plagued by it. Of the 160 men who sailed with da Gama around the Cape of Good Hope, 100 died from scurvy. In 1600, four ships left England for India. Three of them served the usual diet and had many victims of the scurvy, the fourth had bottles of fruit juices on board, which were served every morning before eating. That ship suffered no casualties. Yet it was almost 200 years later before the British Admiralty finally ordered each ship to carry fresh lemon juice, mixed with sugar and liscie one ounce daily. Finally, science discovered the cause of scurvy to be a lack of ascorbic acid or vitamin C.

Vitamin C is found in fruits, especially citrus fruits; in tomatoes and other vegetables such as cabbage and peppers. It is lost by prolonged cooking or by long exposure to air. Vitamin C is essential for the development of healthy teeth and other tissues.

The sunshine vitamin, vitamin D, is formed in the skin by sunlight, and occurs in fish, liver oil, liver, eggs, and irradiated milk. It helps the body to assimilate calcium and phosphorus, necessary for proper formation of bones and teeth.

Vitamins are easily lost in cooking. Some—thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, and vitamin C—get out into the cooking water. Heat destroys some of them, particularly thiamine and C. Foods lose some vitamins while waiting to be used. Vitamin A is slowly lost this way—vitamin C more rapidly.

Certain foods should be prepared in certain ways to prevent vitamin loss. Fruits and vegetables should be stored in a cool, dark place until ready to cook. Leaves should be washed in cold water without bruising, and cooked in a covered pot only eight or ten minutes.

Carrots should not be scraped or left soaking in water from the vitamins will be lost. They should be boiled or steamed in a little water in a covered pot.

The outer, greener leaves of lettuce contain the most vitamin A and if in good condition, should not be thrown away.

To keep the most vitamins, boil potatoes with their skins on.

Further information about vitamins may be obtained by writing for the pamphlet "Vitamins from Farm to You," U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C.

Next Week Mid-Term In Schools Of Floydada

Next week is mid-term in Floydada Public schools and preparations for the close of the semester, with the rush of work for teachers and faculty incident thereto, are being made.

WOOD IN THE WAR

"The indispensability of wood has been convincingly demonstrated by 2 years of war," says the opening paragraph of the annual report of the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture. "Wood has been so much in demand for military purposes that the urgent civilian needs have been cut to the bone. No sooner was it called upon to replace critical metals in many fields than wood itself became a critical material. While the range of utility for wood in its natural state is being expanded by new engineering principles, it is becoming increasingly important as a raw material for a variety of chemical and pulp products."

Shortages of wood have been especially acute in using requiring timbers of large size and high quality. The utility of wood in meeting the exigencies of war point clearly to the wisdom and necessity of a national policy that will assure ample supplies of high-quality saw timber for the future.

WHEN SEED CATALOGS COME

Order vegetable seeds early. This is more than good advice. It is a direct request from Victory Garden headquarters, U. S. Department of Agriculture. It is war policy.

When seed catalogs have reached gardeners in other years there have often been included suggestions from the dealer that it would be well to order early and make sure of getting the items desired. These were legitimate suggestions, but "strictly business," and the gardener could take them or leave them, just as he preferred.

This year it is different. Food is so overwhelmingly important in the war effort that Victory Gardeners should take pains to get the best possible results. Gardens depend in part on the seed dealers. Last year many gardens were delayed or did not have the best possible selection of plants for the simple reason that too many gardeners were trying to get delivery of seed at the same time—at planting time.

Dealers were overwhelmed. With their working forces short and demand the biggest ever they simply could not handle the job without delays. If enough forehanded gardeners will cooperate and order early, it will relieve the jam. And the early birds will also get first choice in varieties and in quality of planting material. There will be seed enough, but some favored varieties and in quality of planting material. There will be seed enough, but some favored varieties may be sold out long before a Johnny-Come-Lately orders.

Dudley Harks Back To The Good Old Days

A muzzle loader does pretty good as a quail gun, J. O. Dudley thinks. In fact, a muzzle loader with plenty of powder and shot and some gun wadding, does a lot better than a breech loading automatic without any shells.

Dudley has to do a certain amount of hunting and it looked like a mighty poor quail season this year unless he did something about it. So he bought himself a muzzle loader, goes out after quail all set. He has plenty of ammunition. And he gets the limit, although he admits it takes a little more time—a little longer to kill his quota as well as for old Betsy to go bang, bang.

Modern Daniel Boone

His powder horn slung under one shoulder, his shot pouch around his waist, the caps in a dry pocket, ditty the wadding—fixed up that way Dudley is said to look like a modern Daniel Boone, but shootists who have been out with him say he gets his share of the birds.

Dudley is Floyd county's ace skeet and trapshooter. He has been to invitation tournaments all over the country as far north as at least as Illinois, and knows his shotguns and his bird shooting.

Dudley is said to be a quail expert. He has a few shells left for his pump gun but saves them for coyotes and other prowling animals that infest the east side of the county. The muzzle loader thus has become his sports gun. And he likes it.

The story of how Mr. Dudley came to have a muzzle loader is something else again. He bought the gun back in the hills of Kentucky last summer—just "ran across it" and decided he'd better prepare against the day when WPB said no more shells to the hunters. It was a gun that belonged to an 81-year-old mountaineer. Dudley was in the mountains looking for a fellow he knew on one of his periodic trips back east for a trapshoot, when he ran across the old gentleman.

Back In The Mountains

"I saw two or three squirrels hanging on the porch and the old man had just come in from the woods," Dudley recalls. "We got to talking and the old man said he guessed he was going to have to get somebody else to kill his squirrels for him; eyesight getting too bad. Just going to have to sell old Betsy or give it away."

From their conversation picked up on what he would take and so I bought me a 20 gauge muzzle loading shotgun. It's a squirrel gun in a squirrel country, but it's a quail gun here, and I guess it is a duck gun, too. I am going to find out when the time comes."

The old gentleman parted with his gun regretfully but finally, Dudley said, indicating he was giving up a lot more than just a gun when he sold it.

AMERICAN HEROES

Captain Anthony Hollub manned the top turret guns of his groundplane to return the fire of the Jap air attack on Clark Field in the Philippines. Exposed to strafing planes, the New Mexico captain ran across the field for more ammunition when it was exhausted. He was ready to sacrifice his life to keep his guns blazing. How much can you invest in Payroll Savings to help heroic fighters like Hollub to keep firing?

Our Merchant Marine Tobacco Trade

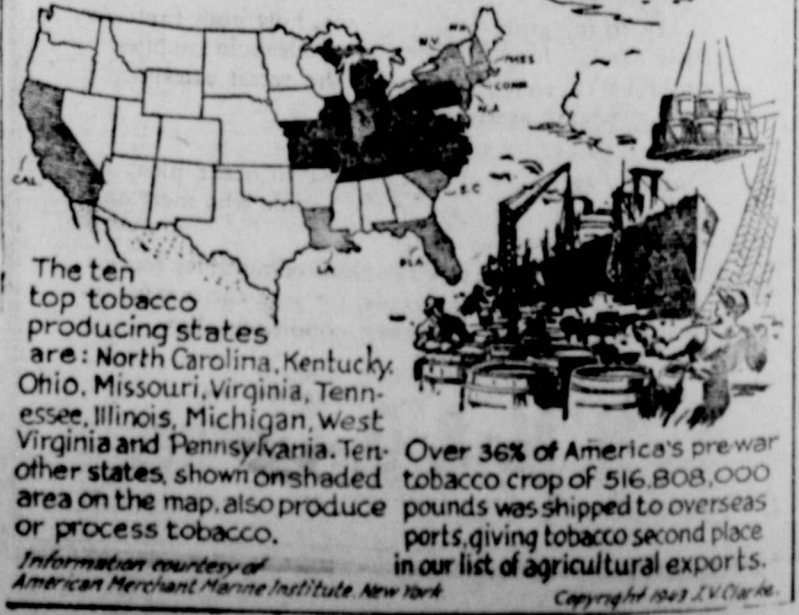

Tobacco was America's first major export. Even before the Revolution we were shipping over 99,000,000 pounds to Europe each year.

American ships, running the blockade in the War of Independence, carried tobacco to France in exchange for much-needed guns and other munitions of war.

The ten top tobacco producing states are: North Carolina, Kentucky, Ohio, Missouri, Virginia, Tennessee, Illinois, Michigan, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Ten other states, shown unshaded area on the map, also produce or process tobacco.

Over 36% of America's pre-war tobacco crop of 516,808,000 pounds was shipped to overseas ports, giving tobacco second place in our list of agricultural exports.

Farmers Spend Income Soberly

Beautiful crops and good prices have made the United States farmers' largest cash income in history. For the most part, the increased farm income is being spent soberly. Farmers remember what happened during the prosperous period after the first World War and are not throwing their money away.

In a study made by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture in 35 representative counties, farmers consistently reported that one of the first things they did with last year's income was to take care of "a little item up at the courthouse." By the spring of 1943, most farmers had caught up with their back taxes, and over 90 percent of the farmers in most of the counties studied had paid current taxes two months ahead of the penalty date.

Farmers Paying Off Debts
Old debts, current obligations, and even payments not yet due are being paid up. Nearly all delinquent Federal Land Bank loans have been paid, as have current maturities, with considerable amounts of money deposited with the bank for future payments. In a county in east Nebraska, payments amounted to five times the maturities.

Many farmers bought land, but usually not at high inflated prices. Real estate agents in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and other southern states report that a majority of the farm real estate purchases are being made by farm tenants, or small farmers who want a larger acreage. During the past year, the majority of land buyers have been farmers, rather than investors. Many factory workers in the smaller towns have been buying extra plots to keep a cow and pig, and grow a Victory Garden.

Buy Livestock, Machinery
Farmers were freest with their money in buying livestock and second-hand farm machinery, for which they often paid inflationary prices. Good prices and demand for meat and dairy products have encouraged farmers to increase their livestock numbers. The boom on farm machinery resulted because many farmers had made their old machines "do" during the depression years and now need new ones. Sales were high for such basic household equipment as kitchen stoves, bed springs and mattresses, linoleum, inexpensive china; and for supplies for home and farm improvement such as roofing, sheet-rock and beaverboard, paint and fencing.

There has also been a great increase in the sale of clothing to farm people. From all over the nation, clothiers report that farmers are buying more clothes, "but not more than they need."

While buying more food at the stores last year, farmers in most counties grew more in their gardens. Home canning has increased, and recently numerous community canneries have been installed at schools and community centers under the supervision of the vocational teachers.

Pay More To Doctors, Churches
Doctors and churches got their share of the farmers' increased income. Though fewer doctors were available in most farm communities last year, farmers spent more money on medical service than in other years. Many rural churches had money in the treasury for the first time.

By now farmers are practically free of debt and have bought many of the available things they need. If farm income continues to be high, farmers will want to buy land, and conditions are ripe for a boom in land prices.

The Spirit Of Private Enterprise

I am the Spirit of Private Enterprise. Wherever I have existed freedom of mind and body have existed.

Wherever I have been murdered by collectivist laws and government strangulation freedom of mind and freedom of body have died.

I was the physical lever of Athenian civilization. I died in the collectivist feudal ages.

I was resurrected in the Renaissance, beginning the modern age.

With the rebirth of free private trading came the vastest expansion in the arts and sciences the world has ever known.

I, Private Enterprise, have brought men of the same countries and men of distant countries closer together in friendly intercourse, than all the Socialistic and Communistic doctrines combined.

My trade routes have been the routes of human progress.

I am the expression and sustainer of all that is lordly in the human soul—Self-Reliance, the Adventurous Spirit, emotional and mental Initiative, Ambition, and Inventive Resourcesfulness.

With my rebirth in the Renaissance the human level of living began to rise.

The shackles on slave labor began to rust and crack.

Money became international. Man at my touch took on something of the aspect of a creative god.

I, Private Enterprise, built America.

If she is a giant today in production it is I who have made her a giant.

I cleared her forests.

I tunneled her mountains.

I erected her factories, dug the coal and ore in her mines, and sent out her ships on Seven Seas.

In my brain was born every creature comfort you enjoy.

I, Private Enterprise, with my free laborers and my unshackled captains of industry, built the muskets, the airplanes, the tanks, the submarines, the great guns that were used in the Revolutionary, Civil, and World War No. 1 and that are now protecting the United States from invasion.

I am the hope of Europe and Asia.

I, Private Enterprise, am the working classes, the middle classes, and the well-to-do classes.

I am the butcher shop, the bank, the news-stand, the great department store, the giant furnace of Detroit and Pittsburgh, and the electric light.

I, Private Enterprise, am Edison, Ericsson, Goodyear, Wanamaker, Westinghouse, Fulton, Whitney, Morse and the Wright brothers.

I am that Free Business, big and little, on which cultivation alone depends.

I am the body of a great sociological entity—Liberty.

I am the body of a great sociological and biological face—Self-Interest.

It is I, Private and Free Enterprise that is winning this war for Russia, England, China, and the U. S. A.

I, Private Enterprise, am the power behind your son, your father, your brother fighting for you in Africa and the Pacific.

I am the minute man of Uncle Sam.

I am America.

I am the very essence and body of Jeffersonian democracy, for I am Private Property and Personal Liberty.

And I, Private Enterprise, built this hospital: my funds, my vision, my humanitarianism. I maintain it. I support it. I keep it unhampered and free from the harmful influences and selfish interests of any individual or group. This voluntary (non-profit) hospital, and the thousands like it, are among my noblest contributions to the American Way.

M. H. MARTIN RECOVERS FROM HOLIDAY ILLNESS

M. H. Martin, of Martin & Company, who spent Christmas week in a battle with influenza, resumed his down-town duties at the store and restoring board offices Monday of this week.

Mrs. Eisenhower At Home

When General Dwight Eisenhower finishes the chore in which he is engaged and returns home, chances are that for his first home-coming meal he'll want a thick juicy steak.

Meanwhile the General, who is the only four-star general to invade Axis-held territory wants "plenty of cigarettes and razor blades."

Mrs. Eisenhower and a photo of her husband are shown above as pictured in Good Housekeeping magazine.

While General "Ike" has demonstrated his fearlessness in the theatres of war, he was not always brave, according to Mrs. Eisenhower who recalls his trepidation on at least one occasion—that of his marriage.

He was so scared of creasing his white pants that he refused to sit down until after the ceremony, Mrs. Eisenhower recalls.

The Eisenhowers have been married twenty-seven years and had two sons, one of whom died very young. The other is at West Point.

Although both her husband and her son are away from home and she lives in a small apartment in Washington, Mrs. Eisenhower's sole complaint is that the General tells her nothing in the very short letters he writes.

However, he makes up for it in other ways, such as never forgetting an anniversary, according to Mrs. Eisenhower.

FOOD FREEZING FUTURES

Taking it as a "foregone conclusion" that refrigeration as a means of preserving food by freezing will expand greatly as soon as wartime restrictions on materials permit, H. C. Diehl of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, a specialist in food freezing research, has listed four of the "interesting new things" that are on the way:

(1) Chopped, fragmented or pureed frozen fruits and vegetables, with many new uses in home and industry, can be made in some cases from good raw material previously wasted.

For instance: A frozen dessert can be made from fruit puree composed mainly of clean fruits that have ripened until they are too soft to handle for other purposes, but rich in color and flavor. The dessert has the texture of ice cream but has no milk solids—only fruit, sugar, and a very small quantity of gelatin.

(2) Pre-cooked foods can be prepared which require merely heating, later to provide what are essentially freshly prepared cooked foods. Examples: soups, pork and beans, meat and vegetable mixtures, meat and cereals, stews, and vegetables alone or combined.

(3) Products which, although hitherto not frozen, have proved suitable for freezing preservation. Some of these have properties of special value and quality. Examples: tomato products, cranberry sauce, lettuce, pureed pears, green soybeans and boneless poultry meat.

(4) Bulk processed and packaged products can be frozen and used later to make other foods, saving container costs. Some gain properties especially desired in manufacture.

FOOD OIL FROM ORANGE SEEDS

If the need arises orange seeds can help to meet wartime food needs. In the search for additional sources of food oils, scientists of the Western Regional Laboratory of the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Albany, California, have found that orange seeds contain a fairly high percentage of oil which can be pressed out easily by methods used for extracting other seed oils. The orange-juice canning industry has expanded until it may now pay to extract the seed oil.

In Europe oils are recovered from tomato and grape seeds, and in this country, raisin-seed, apricot-kernel, walnut and avocado oils are now manufactured and sold. It is estimated that seed-oil amounting to about 700 tons would have been obtained from the 1940 pack of canned orange products plus other oranges harvested but not sold as fresh fruit in that season. When refined, bleached and deodorized, orange-seed oil is acceptable as a food oil.

A TRIBUTE TO THE

Retail Salespeople of America

AT the beginning of a new year we pay tribute to those loyal citizens who serve behind the retail counters of America.

Shortages, complications of rationing, the fact that many of their number are in the armed services, make their job today more difficult than ever.

Despite all of this the retail selling job has its high rewards!

Good retail salespeople like their work! They like to meet and serve people! They take pride in each sale well made! And they know that on the home front they support the war effort by helping to maintain our high standard of living.

Try to imagine, for a moment, how your family's daily needs—food, clothing and household supplies—could be taken care of if all the retail salespeople were suddenly spirited away!

During 1944 we will do our best to make pleasant and profitable the work of the people who meet and greet you in Penney's stores.

Not only that, but as a genuine community service we shall put into their hands, for you, the maximum of value and quality that war conditions allow.

YOU CAN ALWAYS DEPEND ON

The Better To See You With, Adolf

It is now becoming crystal clear that American and Canadian inventiveness and ingenuity in the production of all manner of war machines and equipment has put Hitler and his gang in the gun sights of the United Nations.

A striking example of how this has been done is in the production of optical glass for fire control instruments required for the Canadian navy, army and air force. Although it was an entirely new field for the Dominion, a government-owned company was started in July, 1940, with employees having no previous experience in the manufacture of precision instruments. In one year's time the production goal of 5,000 pounds per month had been doubled. Then during the first eight months of 1942 monthly production rose four hundred percent to the point where it was five times as great as that called for under initial schedules.

Today, the company which has over 6000 workers, a third of whom are women, has orders on hand to supply 100 million dollars of range finders, periscopes, etc., to Canadian, United States and other United Nations forces.

Photographs show, above, a finished tank periscope, and below, a mould of newly made glass.

Pioneer Teacher Dead; McLain Recalls Events

(By J. T. McLain)
Received a letter from Sylvanus Haworth, written December 18, 1943, stating that his wife, the former, Miss Emma Lewis, Floyd county's first school teacher passed away at their home at Star, Idaho, October 24 after a long illness of almost a year. They had in several doctors, but as often in the case they did not agree as to the trouble, but her husband thought likely was cancer on her liver.
Their children all visited her during the summer and all but one son attended the funeral. The eight children like many families are scattered. Two on the east coast, two in Nevada, one in Colorado, one in Nevada, the other two live not far from Idaho, where the parents live.
Mr. Haworth is 79 years old, but says he is strong in body and expects to remain on the farm indefinitely.
Miss Emma as she was known to us was about 22 or 23 years old when she taught school at Della Plains in 1858. The Lewis family were a part of the Quaker colony that located at Estacado in the Northwest part of Crosby county in a very early day. They were a very devout religious people. Well thought of by all who knew them. Anson Cox, one of their preachers served this county in that capacity quite a bit. He passed away after living to be well over the nineties. His daughter, Miss Hulda, taught the first school at Sand Hill in 1892. So far as I know she still lives in Oregon, not very far from Star, Idaho.
The Lewis family left this country in 1890, and I never knew what became of her until the summer of 1933. I got her address then by writing Mr. J. Willford Hunt, then president of the Abilene Methodist College. Bro. Hunt was a descendant of one of those early day Quakers of Estacado. He, as some of you know, died soon after I returned this day from him.
The patrons and pupils of that early day school thought a lot of Miss Emma and I feel the loss of a real Christian friend.
I never knew Mr. Haworth, but believe him to be a fine man from what his wife has written me from time to time. He has my deepest sympathy in this his and my loss.
J. T. McLain the only one of her pupils now living in Floyd county.

DIES WHILE AT PRAYER—Chaplain Keith Munro, of the 87th Airborne Engineer Aviation Battalion, was killed instantly when an enemy plane crashed and exploded while he was conducting services for the men of his battalion in the Southwest Pacific. His commanding officer wrote his parents in Berkeley, California: "He died with God's words on his lips and could be he have chosen the time of God's calling, he would have had it thus. He was buried last evening in a grove of coconut palms surrounded by full blooming poinsettias. He gave his life that those he loved could live in peace and freedom."

Hasty Sisson Had 45 Hours Combat Duty Last Report

(Lt. Bob H. Sisson writes his father, J. D. Sisson and brother, Bill under recent date from "somewhere in India," where he is in combat duty in the U. S. Army Air force. Below are some excerpts from a recent letter.—Ed.)
I'm doing all right. Have been doing quite a bit of work since I got over here, such as it is, and the results have been good, too.
Write me about everyone and what they are doing and all the changes that are taking place. You have lots of things to write about if you would. I have a million things to write about, but can't on account of censorship.
The first thing I had to do when I got here was hire myself a "bearer" (houseboy). That is the custom around here, and if you don't you are not in good standing. He costs me three rupees a week, which is about one dollar. He makes my bed, cleans the room and keeps hot water to wash in and good cold water to drink. He is a lazy boy, but I suppose he is worth one buck each week. He doesn't sweep, that is out of his class. They all have certain things to do and they will not do anything else either.
The sights around here are not very interesting. Of course, I see lots of jungle, swamps, and rivers, but no animals. I am always too high for that. If I ever get a chance I want to go tiger hunting on an elephant. I think that is what I'll do when I go on rest leave.
I have 45 combat hours now and a lot more to go, but it won't be too long. I hope to be back home by Christmas. We have pretty good recreation. We play baseball and have good officers club, that is if it is good for here. We have a reading room, card room, sitting room and bar. We take turns as bartender and keep our expenses down. We have two Scottie dogs that are good company.

C. H. Graves of Lone Star community is well pleased with the production of Texas hybrid No. 10. This variety of corn was planted late, but without irrigation in a thin stand and without irrigation the yield was 43 bushels per acre.
It seems the Texas hybrids are better adapted in Floyd county than other hybrids. Mr. Graves is of the opinion this variety would have a very high yield with a uniform stand and under irrigation. Texas hybrids No. 12 and No. 8 appear to be better adapted to agricultural conditions in the county. Corn growers should purchase seed early this year because the seed supply is limited.
"Cull them out—Cull them up—and eat them later" should be the poultry slogan in the county. Better check the feed situation before contracting for baby chicks.
War Food Administration officials meeting in Chicago December 8, with International Baby Chick Association officials and representatives of other poultry groups, advise that "It is highly desirable to meet the 1944 food production goals, but not to exceed them." The goals call for an egg production equivalent to 102% of 1943; chickens raised on farms, 98%; broilers, 84% and turkeys, 97%.
The period December 14 to February 1 has been designed to drastically reduce numbers of non-layers or poor layers. A roll-back in laying population to the January 1, 1943 level is desired. Preliminary figures indicate this will mean the culling out and marketing of some 36 million non-layers.
Floyd county poultrymen will adopt the best management practices for maximum production and feed conservation. One item in good management is to provide three square feet per bird in the laying house.
Now is a good time to start the Cattle Grub control program on Floyd county farms and ranches. The cost is about six cents for treatment and the average saving is $3.80 per head.
The treatment consists of a mixture of one part rotenone to ten parts wettable sulphur. The dust method is very effective and easy to do.
We will be happy to help you get the program started on your farm.
A selectee wearing size 14 shoes was inducted into the army. One day at camp his commanding officer missed him and asked: "Has anybody seen Private Draftee?"
And from the rear of the company came the answer: "Yes, sir; he has gone over to the next cross-roads to turn around."
