The Malt Bar, popular cafe on West California street, is closed this mid-week, and when it re-opens Saturday after extensive remodeling it will have a new name as well as new paint and new interior arrangement. It will be The Hitching Post, and will specialize in barbecue. Charles Mitchell, who recently bought the establishment, planned to use a Hesperian advertisement telling of the re-opening but was busy past the deadline.

EDITORIALS

Any newspaper man, almost, who attempts to write editorial copy, which sets a "policy" of the periodical, ought to have some common sense person looking over his shoulder while he writes. Said common sense person would reach over and delete many a line which the editorial writer, in his ego, imagines is hot stuff. Writer for The Hesperian is no exception. About every so often we, and others as well we imagine, should write a paragraph of apology to the public, a paragraph asking pardon for sins of commission and omission as well. A writer cannot help the figments of thought or imagination which float, or clank or tread through his mind. He is under compulsion to attempt something that is of value to the common welfare. Oftentimes the words he puts on paper are unworthy, sometimes senile, occasionally high in protein content as the cattle feeder would say of the feed he spreads before his livestock. It is when the insipid things one writes appear in black and white, never to be erased or changed, that the editorial man wishes he had a good hole to crawl in and a cover to pull in after him. Occasionally the type lice and the gremlins work on his profundity, occasioning a blush of embarrassment. Everybody ought to have to edit a newspaper one time a year, also be a city councilman two weeks every two years and get caught on the school board once every six months. The editorial writer gets paid and cussed, the councilman gets anonymous letters and the school board man learns a good lesson in how to make friends and influence people.

A bill that has become law in Texas which is due to have a profound influence in affairs is the Gilmer-Aiken educational bill which teachers and school people hail as the emancipation of the state from its stalemated educational matters. The Hesperian has not been too sure of what real lasting value the new law may have for the people. What slowed us up in support of the measure is our assumption that for one thing, it gives high authority the lawful right to push people around. We go far the other way in our thinking. What good, we have thought, to rear a boy so smart he could or would be president, if he came up with the idea that officials are the masters not the servants of the people? Anyway, the new law is the new law.

The most interesting thing to study in the world is people, particularly what makes them do the way they do. One of the angles to human nature that one is not likely ever to understand is mass hysteria or the madness of crowds. A stern moral, financially speaking, because it is so difficult to do, is to realize this: mass opinion on the future course of anything economic is almost invariably wrong. An impressive proof of the errors of popular, temporary judgement was given in 1946. In the beginning of that year, as you will recall when reminded, the great per cent of the people thought prices would continue to rise. Early in 1947 there was a break. Very soon thereafter a survey of opinion indicated people thought prices would continue to fall. Instead, prices rose. Right now, in the midst of falling prices, a very large per cent of people think prices will continue to fall. Less than 10 out of 100 people expect a rise. From a business point of view you have to bet one way or the other. Will you bet with the crowd or will you bet with the few? Mighty hard right now to think that there will be a revival of buying and business pick-up.

People in our country who are not ridden down by state churches and pay only to the church of their choice as they choose and in no other way, should understand that in many European countries you do pay to an official church, whether or not you like it, and if you are a Methodist or a Baptist or a Nazarene or whatnot, you support your church after you pay the tax that supports the church that is the really official one. This is one of the reasons that the Reds or Communists and many others hate churchism. Scores, even hundreds of shining domes all over Europe and Asia represent a tax against people who do not even love the church or want to support it. Many of these domes represent faiths to which the taxpayer cannot subscribe.

Depression Is On: So says the Texas Christian Advocate, Methodist official periodical in its issue of last week, which predicts that pump-priming and similar artificial means of restoring prosperity will be in vogue again soon. The Advocate is more or less critical of the conduct of the nation's affairs, as it has a right to be. The Christian Advocate thinks we ought to try to get along with Russia by the display of a friendly attitude. Our idea is that the editor of the Christian Advocate ought to go over to Russia and see how well he gets along by displaying a friendly attitude. It is our opinion that you don't get along with a mad dog any of the known ways of getting along with rational beings.

MAINTENANCE CREW WADES MUD

To Maintain Good Gas Service

PIPE line maintenance crews are but one of many divisions behind your natural gas service. A crew's job is to keep transmission pipe lines, carrying natural gas to your home, in good repair and to work during such emergencies that might occur.

The picture, shown above, was made of a maintenance crew carrying repair equipment to the scene of a line break. Maintenance crews are trained to meet such emergencies, and due to their training the customers of the town this line serves continued to have good gas service although the natural gas flow was cut while the repair was being made.

Yes... maintenance of pipe lines is very important to good gas service.

Maintenance of pipe lines is only one of many functions performed by employees of West Texas Gas Company... all of which are designed to furnish you good natural gas service, high in quality, low in price... the best bargain in your family budget.

The Picture

Members of one of West Texas Gas Company's maintenance crew are carrying a section of pipe to the scene of a pipe line break. Mud was so deep repair equipment could not be transported on trucks to the break, indicated by arrow, which is over one quarter of a mile from the men.

BOYCE HOUSE "GIVES YOU TEXAS"

Hugh Park, editor of Van Buren, Ark., (Bob Burns' home town), tells about a man who said, "My hearing is bad and I can't afford a hearing aid." A friend said, "I'll tell you how you can help your hearing—at no expense." "How?" "Get you a piece of wire, loop one end over your ear and run it down into your coat. The other objected, "But without a battery and an earphone, how could that possibly help?" His friend said, "When folks see the wire, they will talk louder."

Park took your columnist for a drive. From the top of a hill, we looked down (as though in an airplane) on a noble scene: the twisting course of Lee's Creek, its water a beautiful green, and the broad Arkansas River, spanned by a bridge almost half a mile long. Park talked of plans for dams which would provide power, irrigation and navigation. We had dinner, which was served by the ladies of the church, in the church basement, and that night had supper in a log cabin tavern reached by a winding drive to the top of a mountain—the steak was the finest I've ever eaten.

That afternoon, we visited the discovery well of a new gas field. It is, in one respect, the most remarkable gas (or oil) field in all my experience—there was not a single gate to open in getting there!

Oldest of all newspaper sayings is, "If a dog bites a man, that's not news; but if a man bites a dog, that's news." Well, this writer once chronicled such an occurrence. It was in Fort Worth. The biter was not a man, but a boy, a very small boy. The family next door to us owned a dog, which was a great pet, but one night some friends dropped in with their little son and the child received so much attention, the dog became jealous and crowded him to the wall—whereupon the boy bit the dog!

er Bridge Supplant Structure

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas.—The single bridge contract ever by the State Highway Department for the new causeway in Nueces Bay in the Corpus Christi area, will change in the near future the scenic view of one of Texas' most beautiful highway routes. The 15-mile, two-mile-long causeway will replace a old structure that has been a landmark among the highland coastal plain. The new causeway will be 9,637 feet long with a 28-foot roadway. It will contain 2,876 tons of structural steel and approximately 64,000 feet of special alloy steel, all products of U. S. Steel's American Bridge Company. The new structure will be of simple, strong design and consist of continuous spans supported on metal shell piers. The General Contractor is the Bridge Company, and completion of the project is expected by the summer of 1950.

The discovery of important gas reserves near Corpus Christi, which lies on the southwestern shore of Nueces Bay and on Corpus Christi Bay, has been a sudden activity to the community since 1913. Prior to that time it had been a typical, sleepy little town on the Texas coastal city, whose claim to historical fame was as a bivouac area for Zachary Taylor in the Mexican War. Its residents had begun to plan for improvements and a considerable thought even to a deep water port.

September 14, 1919, a disaster struck the city, completely destroying the causeway and the most of the structures on the sea. A new bridge was built and was completed in 1921. This old structure, also built by the Bridge Company, which is being replaced.

The present bridge has shown the need for heavy wartime traffic, and after postwar service. Every highway linking the new city of some 125,000 people with the Eastern Gulf Coast area enters the city by the old span. The present bridge was built only a few feet above the water and marshlands of Nueces Bay. The new one will be 15 feet above the bay level, eliminating the chance of flooding in times of high water, and the danger of waves which at times impeded traffic on the old crossing. A lift bridge over the channel will allow passage of fishing vessels in Corpus Christi and Nueces Bay and the Gulf of Mexico.

Actual construction work on the causeway, which will parallel the route of the older structure, is well under way. Actual construction was scheduled to begin July 1 and to be completed in approximately one year. An approach fill and the approach pavement will be constructed for an ultimate four lane development. An agreement from the Texas Highway Department said a two-lane causeway is presently being built, with the intention of providing a like facility in the future.

Public Relations Counselor J. W. Kimble and O. R. Meade of Floydada, were among the approximately 30 optometrists and guests who attended the meeting.

Guests of Mrs. E. R. ... were her children, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shisler and son, Jackie, ... and Mr. and Mrs. B. ... and family, of Borger.

KING FAMILY GREATFUL TO THOUGHTFUL FRIENDS

We wish to thank our dear friends and neighbors for the kind deeds and assistance you so lovingly and willingly rendered us during the tragedy and death of our dear son and brother. You did all that loving thoughtful friends could do for two long weeks, you stood ready to serve. God bless each of you for your prayer. We want to thank you for food, beautiful flowers, and the many cards and letters of comfort and especially the prayers for his recovery.

We feel convinced that Pierce's work on the earth was finished. May God's tenderest love and mercy be with each of you and to those who are not saved by the blood of Christ, please accept Him as your Savior before it is too late. We know not when death may come to us.

We thank the doctors and nurses. We think you did your best. We also wish to thank the Harmon Funeral home for their courtesies. We love all of you.

Range Invasion By Mesquites Major Problem

LUBBOCK—The invasion of mesquite on range and pasture lands of Texas and other parts of the Southwest has been progressing for many years, but only in recent years has it reached a condition that is both alarming and of major concern to livestock raisers, according to an article by C. E. Fisher, assistant agronomist at the Spur Experiment Station, in the July number of Southwestern Crop and Stock.

The article says mesquite is undesirable because it reduces productivity of grassland, and greatly increases the labor and difficulty of efficiently managing and caring for livestock, as well as hindering the use of desirable range improvement practices.

Citing records showing the mesquite occurs on 55 million acres of grassland in Texas, Fisher cites reasons for the extreme difficulty of control or eradication of the range growth, lists growth habits of the brush, and discusses progress in control experiments at the Spur station during the last 16 years.

He says different methods of attack are necessary because of the great variation in, first, growth forms of mesquite ranging from dense thickets of many-stemmed plants to few large single-trunked trees 40 feet tall and two feet in diameter; second, soils; third, size of the range unit and other factors.

The specialist, who has been associated with the experiments at Spur since 1938, says that no effectively control mesquite, it is necessary to destroy the dormant sprout buds on the underground stem.

These occur from three to eight inches below ground level.

Various chemical agents have been tried with varying degrees of success but no general all-around, satisfactory and economical method has yet been found. Contact agents used included kerosene, diesel oil, and light oils applied to underground stems, but have proved too costly except under special conditions.

Sodium arsenite has been found most effective and economical among chemicals. It is quickly absorbed by the plants and can be applied by various methods, but is standing preachers of the Church of the Nazarene. He has traveled extensively in the evangelistic field, principally in the southern states, according to Rev. C. C. Calhoun, pastor of the Floydada church.

Mrs. Calhoun will direct the singing and will be assisted by Mrs. Ralph Gee and Mr. and Mrs. Delbur Rose in the special singing.

The pastor cordially invites the public to attend each of these services.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT

Whereas the grim reaper of death has entered our ranks and taken from our midst our beloved brother, R. P. King, our sympathy goes out to his wife and children, his father and Mother, his sisters and his many friends.

Pierce, as he was known by his many friends, was a Christian gentleman, a kind and loving father, and a friend to humanity and generous to a fault.

Pierce was a loyal Odd-fellow, embodied in the Rebecca. He was a member of Encampment No. 35 and was the Scribe of this Order at the time of his death. Besides being a good Odd-fellow of Lodge 34, a good neighbor, a good citizen and best of all, a Christian who trusted in God and walked right before his fellow men. No greater things can be said about any man than that he loved the Lord. He will be missed in his home, his Church, his Lodge, and his many friends. Let the record of his virtues be inscribed upon our hearts and his memory cherished forever. He is no longer waiting by the shore;

He's already met the boatman. And in Spirit transported 'O'er. He's crossed the river and reached the shore on Board.

He's heard the welcome plaudit, "Well done good and faithful servant."

Enter into the joy of thy Lord. Resolved that a copy of this resolution be furnished the family, and a copy to the press.

Resolution Committee: Tom W. Deen, J. E. Daniel

Summer Heat Cramps Need Salt Added

A deficiency of salt in the human system can cause serious consequences, and for this reason Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, advises every person whose work causes them to sweat to add a pinch of ordinary table salt to each drink of water taken during the day.

Doctors, mechanics, carpenters, construction men and all others whose work causes them to sweat are in danger of having heat cramps or heat stroke as a result of having too little salt in their bodies. The normal amount of salt in the body is about 200 grams, and when the thermometer hits the high register, the human body loses as much as 40 to 50 grams during a single day.

In many industrial plants, workers are furnished with and urged to take a tablet of pure salt or a mixture of salt and dextrose with each drink of water. Many find this a pleasant way of taking extra salt. Others prefer to add the needed amount of extra salt to their food or drink.

"Take your extra salt in any manner that is agreeable to you," says Cox, "but take it. Heat cramps are very painful and exhausting. They are characterized by cramps in the abdominal region, headache, and in severe cases there may be nausea and vomiting. Body salt losses occur without the knowledge of the individual until a deficiency exists; then the abdominal muscles begin to cramp."

According to the State Health Officer, it is a wise precaution to keep the body supplied with salt, and thus avoid much possible suffering and loss of time from heat cramps.

Mighty Little Press Says Chicago Man Of Hesperian Plant

Usually when one of the small fry visit The Hesperian, they are amazed at the bigness of the newspaper press but not so with Jimmy Farris, of Chicago. Jimmy was greatly impressed with the smallness of the press when he viewed it Saturday morning with his daddy, James Farris.

Mr. Farris is pressman for the Chicago Tribune and says that his press is as big as the building that houses all the equipment of The Hesperian. So everything seemed "awfully little" to Jimmy.

This was the Farris' first visit to Texas and they are well pleased with the cool nights that we have here. Mr. Farris says that when Chicago has a hot day it remains hot throughout the night. He and Jimmy with Mrs. Farris and another

As A Farm Woman Thinks

(By Nellie Witt Spikes)

Around the farm this Monday June morning: First to the berry vines for about the last picking (about a pint.) My arms are badly scratched from picking berries the other day at Mrs. Claude Payne's. For years I have dreamed of going somewhere and picking berries for winter supplies. Far away places called and I could see us coming back home with the car filled with purple-black jars of fruit. But I found the berries close and enjoyed an hour's visit with my good friend, Zora. For many years we have been the best of friends but although we live near our ways go different directions and when we do have a few hours, then we are happy.

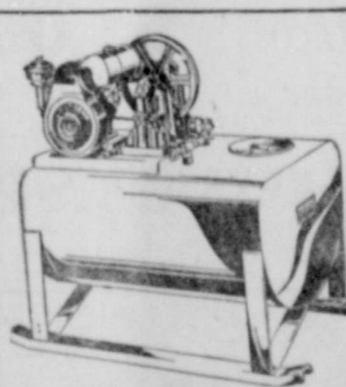

I will have much work to do this day but I will stop a minute and smell and look at the pink blossoms of the mimosa tree, gather a bunch of pale-green seed of the box elder tree, pat the smooth white trunk of the cottonwood and listen to the secrets of the heart-shaped leaves are whispering, and take a peek at two white dove eggs. By the garden to dig some potatoes. They are small and few in a hill this year. Rust, perhaps. Two cucumbers and some onions, then by the apricot tree in the orchard. They are turning yellow. Maybe the pantry shelves will have golden apricot preserves to add to the color scheme of purple-black jelly and deep red of peaches, green pickles and snow-white corn.

The black-eyed peas need water, so will make a ditch and turn the water in. I hear Margaret Nell and Joe Ellis laughing and splashing water in the cement tank. The sound of the combine in our wheat field comes with the wind and I know the sun-ripened grain is pouring in the hopper. Mr. Spikes passes by using a hoe for a walking cane these days. The wind is rather high and somewhat disagreeable, but we are having plenty of water for the small patches. The fresh beans are boiling with a bit of bacon. If I hurry I may have time to make ice cream of the black-berry juice. Dale is being neglected and is telling the world about it. So goes life on the farm these days.

Billy has a new hat of white straw and he wore it to church and Sunday school yesterday. I told him to pull it off as he entered the church doors but he had ideas of his own and left it on. He went up to the front, looked the small crowd over and seeing no one with a hat, took his off. During the time a lady came in with a hat on her head. Billy put his on again. Joe whispered to him that folks did not wear hats in church, meaning men folks, but Billy pointed to the lady's hat and said, "Oh yes, they do. See she has hers on." Billy is only past two.

The year's soap finally got made I would forget to buy lye to make it up. Forgot kinda on purpose, maybe. But at last bought some and before could back out got the stuff made up. It is not such a job, but always clean up a big part of the yard while it is boiling. It is such a good time to burn trash. This makes soap making a harder job than it should be and it may be that is why I put it off so long.

Willie Taylor of Torrance, California, came to see us yesterday. Ode and Vesta Taylor brought him. The Taylors are my cousins. Their br-

Petty Home Wedding Huckabee-Teague News Said Thursday

The marriage of Miss Margaret Huckabee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burl Huckabee and Louis Teague, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Teague of Sweetwater took place in the Huckabee home Thursday evening, June 30 at 7:30 p. m. L. A. Doyle, pastor of the Baptist church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Arrangements of gladioli banked the decorative set-up. The bride and groom were flanked by candelabra and lighted tapers.

Miss Margaret Edmiston played "I love you truly", as the candles were lighted by Juanita Huckabee and Doris Teague, sisters of the bride and groom. The traditional march was used.

The bride was gowned in white tulle, designed with a fitted drop shoulder neckline and a hat of white crocheted net with orchids. For something new and borrowed, a heirloom necklace, which belonged to her grandmother. Something blue was blue garters.

Miss Jane Armstrong of Wichita Falls attended the bride as maid-of-honor; she was attired in a blue crepe dress and wore a corsage of pink carnations.

Jack Sageser of Abernathy was best man.

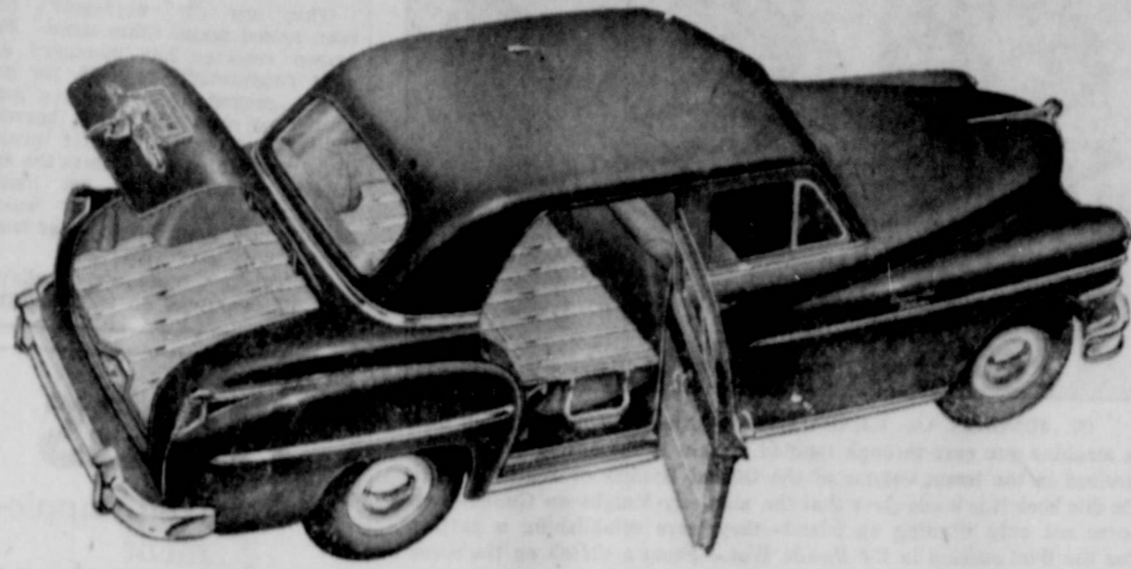

Mrs. Huckabee chose for her daughter's wedding a blue crepe dress with black accessories. Mrs. Teague, mother of the groom wore an orchid crepe with white accessories. Their corsages were of gardenias and feathered carnations.

A reception followed the ceremony. Misses Floyce and Joyce Jarrett assisted with the serving. The bride's table was laid with lace cloth and decorated with fern, a three tiered cake topped with a miniature bride and groom carried out the chosen colors, blue and white.

For a trip to Carlsbad, New Mexico, and other points west, the bride traveled in a light rose pique suit with green accessories. Her corsage was of orchids. The couple will be home at Sweetwater, Texas after they return.

Mrs. Teague graduated from

Austin Bible Now In U. of T. Library

AUSTIN, Texas—The 173-year-old family Bible of Mrs. Stephen Austin, aunt of the Texas Republic statesman, Stephen F. Austin has been added to the University of Texas library.

A gift of Henry Meigs of New York, an Austin family descendant, the 8 1/2-by-10 1/2-inch Bible has been placed in the University Archives.

On the yellowed leaf at the back of the two-and-one-half-inch thick bible are listed the names of Stephen and Huldah Hopkins Austin's six children and in the front of the book is a cut out silhouette of Charles Austin, the only son.

Librarian Alexander Moffitt pointed out that this bible belonged to the wife of Moses Austin's brother, Stephen, and does not contain the Moses Austin family names. It was this brother in whose honor Stephen Fuller Austin was named, and the Charles Austin in the silhouette was the cousin, Charles, that Stephen F. frequently mentioned in his writings. Charles, who was born February 22, 1778, according to the family bible, was near the same age as his illustrious cousin, and it is probable, says Moffitt, that the two were playmates.

The bible is bound in hand-tooled leather-covered cardboard back and Oxford printers stamped the date 1776 in the King James translation.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Davis spent the week-end visiting in Eagle Nest, Colorado and Red River, New Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl L. Banks and son, Ronnie, of Amarillo, spent the week-end here visiting with relatives.

IN JUNGLES OF GUADALCANAL—American infantrymen haul a machine gun cart through tangled terrain in the heroic advance described in the latest volume of the Official History of World War II. In this book it is made clear that the men who fought on Guadalcanal were not only winning an island—they were establishing a pattern for the final success in the Pacific War.—From a sketch on the scene by Sgt. Howard Brodie.

More Turkey For Holidays

Thanksgiving and Christmas turkeys will be more plentiful this year than they were last year, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Last January farmers reported to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics that they intended to raise about 25 percent more turkeys in 1949 than the small crop of 1948. Records of hatchings in the early months of this year indicate that they are likely to increase their production by more than 25 percent. A plentiful supply of feed grains this year compared with a short supply last year during the hatching period has been a factor in encouraging a larger hatch.

Birds hatched this spring will not reach the market until fall, says the Bureau, "when prices probably will be appreciably lower than last year's all time high. This year's expected large volume of marketings will considerably reduce, or even eliminate, the price rise which usually occurs in the early fall. Fall marketing, the Bureau explains, are mainly of young birds. The older and heavier turkeys, many of them birds held as breeders, move from the farms to the markets in spring and early summer. The Bureau notes that the farm price for turkeys in April this year was high—higher than the average for October, November, and December for any year except the record breaking year of 1948.

Warm Water For Shoats

A Missouri pig breeder has solved ingeniously and electrically the winter watering problem for his litters. The Rural Electrification Administration of the U. S. Department of Agriculture passes along the information to other patrons of electric power systems.

W. A. Heydenberk of Barton county usually keeps 13 to 15 sows which farrow an average of eight pigs to the litter. Keeping water available for more than 100 shoats is no small chore. So Heydenberk extended his pressure system to the barnyard.

But that was not all he did. To keep the system working effectively during freezing weather, he went to the Barton Electric Cooperative at Lamar—one of the rural power systems financed by an REA loan and got help in installing soil heating cable in an 18-foot trough. The

Oil Reserves At New High

The petroleum industry has built the nation's known oil reserves to the highest level in history, a total of almost twenty seven billion barrels. During 1948, alone, more than two billion barrels were added to reserves—the biggest yearly increase in almost a dozen years.

Throughout the history of the U. S. oil industry, reserves have kept ahead of the increasing use of petroleum products. Yet, even in 1948, when a promoter by the name of Samuel Kier peddled his cable was placed in the bottom of the trough and protected by a built in covering board. A thermostat was included in the assembly so that heat would come on when the water temperature dropped to the freezing point.

Heydenberk reported that the automatically heated trough has saved him countless steps, and that having constantly regulated water available at all times resulted in faster gains the two winters he has used the electrified trough.

"Rock Oil" in half pint bottles around the countryside as a "wonderful cure-all," he urged buyers to "Hurry before this wonderful product is depleted from Nature's laboratory!"

This cry of "wolf-wolf" has been raised many times since. But known reserves has increased almost constantly. In 1925, for example, proved crude reserves amounted to only 8.5 billion barrels. Oil taken from the ground meanwhile has totaled three times the estimated 1925 reserves—yet today our underground crude oil reserves are just about triple what they were twenty five years ago.

Geologists, moreover, believe that oil resources of this country yet to be discovered are at least twice our present known reserves. This would mean more oil than the nation has produced during the past ninety years, or since 1859, the year when commercial production began.

All birds are hatched from eggs.
