Floyd county now has another author of a book. At least, Mrs. Spikes has a book in the hands of a publisher and in due course it will appear in the book stores. It is the story of early-day Crosby county. Mrs. Spikes' collaborator is Mrs. Temple Ellis of Lubbock. The two women worked months putting together much of the down to earth living the people of that day did. And they have recorded many stories that were only in the minds of people who were there and knew or who talked to people who did know. One thing they are said not to have included in their book is the footnote. When the authors say that so and so happened they mean they know it happened, things like that. They have recorded page after page of things the historians would not note. What they have tried to catch is the creak of the freight wagon, the breath of the saddle leather, the look of the keen-eyed men and their hardy wives and children who inhabited the country in that day—the pioneers and the lives they lived, how they dressed, how they did what they did with what they had to do with. A few more lines of this kind of writing and you'd think we're the press agent. The book may be weeks and months getting into print. But we want a copy of it and we hope many others in the area will, also. It will be the first and only of its kind. Maybe never another like it. Or, are the woods full of that kind and we do not know it.

One of the things that Mrs. Spikes is "hostile" about is the fact that they (meaning the people of the times) tore down the old court house at Emma and sold the lumber out to whomsoever. Now it is scattered all over the country in barns and things. What a story those old planks could tell! Why was it not preserved? The cost would have been ridiculously small for the invaluable building were it only now all together as Crosby county's first court house. Crosby county began having county seat trouble way back about the time the rest of the counties hereabout were organizing. The court house was moved from Estacado to Emma in the year that Floyd county was organized. The building at Emma was an exact duplicate of the one at Estacado. They didn't have anything with which to move that big building so they tore it down plank for plank and restored it plank for plank at Old Emma. Mrs. Spikes' book has a picture of it, with the names of the men recorded and most of the horses in the old photograph. She and her folk lived the life of early Crosby county pioneers intimately.

Could it be The Hesperian is wrong about the date for a general rain? We are quite sure not, but we have it reasonably good authority that the Mexican tradition calls for the weather to change this year on the twenty-fourth of August, and a change in the weather on that date would have to mean rain. Anything else would not be a change. The Hesperian's scientific calculations based on the unerring information given by the prairie things says August 27. Might be that e Mexicana and el Hesperiana just hanker for a rain so bad that's what they talk and think, and spend their time trying to help the weather man out. What we both wanted and both knew couldn't happen was a wonderfully, good general rain on August third. Well, things go that way.

George Mahon, the astute congressman from the 19th district is now seeking a way to keep the high plains late cotton from selling too cheap. Mr. Mahon didn't say so but his maneuvers indicate as much. He foresees late, low grade cotton selling far below what his constituents are hoping unless something can be done. He is trying to get the army to start a stock pile that will take two or three million bales of cotton off the market. As was said by this periodical weeks ago, while Floyd county cotton men were putting the seed of 45 cent cotton in the ground the staple was selling for October delivery in the thirty-five cent bracket on the New York market. That meant middling fifteen-sixteenths cotton. Anything off of that would sell progressively less as the grade got lower. A lot of people have got a heavy expense bill in their cotton crop. They can't take too much off and have anything left. Since the government talked them into planting the face of the earth in cotton the howl is going to be for the government to do something about it, when the price going gets too tough. Cotton today is selling $60 per bale less than it sold for three months ago.

Former Residents See Old Landmarks

Mrs. Sarah Haley, of Pharr, Texas, and her sister, Mrs. E. L. Barnett, of Tyler, were here for a short time recently looking for familiar landmarks of their childhood here. They are daughters of Mrs. W. S. Little, now of Mineola, and of the late W. S. Little, who lived here in pioneer days. Mr. Little's body is interred in Floydada cemetery. The family first came to Floyd county in 1868 and took up land in the southwest part of the county and Mr. Little also owned land south of Floydada. The two women paid a front porch visit to Mrs. Maud Hellums, who said they recalled many pioneer families and one-time neighbors of the area.

Some Lakes Will Just Be Lakes; But Most Will Grow Good Crops

By Carl J. Muench, Engineer Present high prices are the cause of many farmers casting anxious glances at their wet weather lakes. On many farms there are lakes that cover large areas of very fertile ground which will bear abundant harvest if only some way could be found to dry them up. It has been said that most farmers can look at their lakes and can just see the dimes and dollars growing under six or eight feet of water. Most farmers say that these lakes area will grow their best crops if only they could keep the water out or if they could do a good job of irrigation in very dry times. Now all lakes are not alike and some of them will be just lakes from now on; but something can be done about a lot of lakes. This good crop land can be salvaged and, if proper conservation measures are applied, many of our lakes will bloom with pastures, hay and grain rather than a bunch of drowned out weeds. Some of these methods are bench leveling, terracing, dykes, better farming methods on the drainage area, partial diversions, drains, or pits, or you can pump the water out and use it for irrigation. All of these methods have their application but for now lets look into this bench leveling around lakes. So far in this soil conservation district three lakes have been treated with bench leveling in order to dry them up and improve irrigation. The Soil Conservation Service technicians assigned to the district have designed one system on Harmon Handley farm south of Lockney and two on the Huckabay farm west of Floydada. The Handley system and one of the Huckabay systems have been completed by the farmers and the second system on Huckabay is now under construction. Both farmers are cooperators with the district and with the local Production and Marketing Administration under the permanent practice program. We looked over Mr. Huckabay's leveling this week and during our conversation we gleaned some encouraging information and some do's and don'ts. Huck is one of these

Mrs. Dickerson and Miss Petty were together at the University of Arkansas at the nutrition school the past few weeks. Mrs. Dickerson came to Ropesville to visit a sister, Mrs. Smith, who accompanied her to Floydada for the demonstration, and to visit with Miss Petty. Mrs. Dickerson is home improvement specialist at Pulliam, Washington, and is with the Extension service in that state.

Legumes Boost Cotton Yields, Says Hutchins

(By Thomas J. Hutchins, administrative officer, Floyd County PMA)

Use of legumes over all the vast cotton growing acreages of Texas would mean increase of at least 1,000,000 bales a year, agronomists of Texas A. & M. College System and the Soil Conservation Service agree. It's like this: Texas' cotton output last year averaged about 211 pounds an acre. Using legumes in rotation with cotton boosts cotton yield about 20 per cent on the average, or 40 pounds (and this is a conservative estimate, they say) to the acre. Therefore, Texas' 13,000,000-odd acres in cotton, each acre producing an average of 40 pounds more, would mean 520,000,000 more pounds of cotton at ginning time.

A legume crop on cotton land is worth money just for the nitrogen alone that goes into the soil. Take vetch, one of the leading crops in Texas, for instance. Green vetch contains from 3 to 6 of one per cent nitrogen—equal to 60 to 70 pounds of nitrate of soda—when a ton of green vetch is plowed into the soil. Vetch (dry weight) contains 2½ to 3 percent nitrogen. That means that about 60 pounds of nitrogen, or about 400 pounds of nitrate of soda, are supplied when a ton of dry vetch is cut into the soil. Other legumes add nitrogen about like vetch.

Legumes Help Hold Soil

Legumes add organic matter to the soil, but one of their main functions is to hold rather than add to the organic matter there. Fresh, easily decomposed crop residues must be worked into the soil to furnish food for soil bacteria. The bacteria need this food to do their work. Fertilized legumes such as hairy vetch, Austrian winterpeas, crimson clover, singletary peas, Hubem and annual yellow sweetclover also provide a protective soil cover, improve the soil structure so that it will absorb water readily and reduce soil losses and loss of plant nutrients through leaching.

In some parts of Texas where climatic conditions may make the use of legumes impractical, small grains such as rye, barley, oats and wheat, can be used with good results. These crops, like legumes, provide an effective cover, and reduce erosion damage by wind and water. They help to maintain the productive capacity of the soil when not harvested.

Also Have Grazing Value

In addition to the higher yields made possible by legumes, there is the grazing value of the legume crop to be considered. Legumes provide excellent grazing for live stock.

A good supply of legume seed is in sight, the agronomists say. But they add that farmers should lay in their seed and fertilizer earlier in order to avoid shortages that will be the result of a sudden demand.

The agronomists point out that Secretary Brannan of the Department of Agriculture in his recent appeal for higher production declared that "higher production must come largely from increased yields per acre if we are to avoid permanent injury to our land."

The agronomists point out that the use of legumes is one of the surest ways to increase yields without running the risk of further damage to the soil.

ON HOME SOIL AGAIN AFTER 10 MONTHS IN FAR EAST

Lt. (jg) Robert T. Foote, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Foote of Petersburg, Texas, has arrived in San Diego, California, aboard the attack cargo ship USS Winston, after 10 months' duty in the Far East. The Winston is a veteran of amphibious operations at Inchon, Wonsan, and Hungnam, Korea.

Ordered from the East Coast last August, the vessel steamed to the Far East where she landed Marines and equipment to reinforce the initial assault at Inchon. In October, she repeated by embarking elements of the First Marine division for Wonsan, ferrying them through minefields for the beach landing. In the redeployment of the X corps from Hungnam, the Winston loaded troops and equipment and carried them to Pusan.

Quick Blaze

Here's a way to get a quick blaze when you build a picnic fire. Soak an unglazed brick in kerosene for a day or two before you'll need it. The brick will burn for a long while, and will ignite even damp logs without any kindling.

Youths Pay Fines

Under a new Texas law, minors between the ages of 14 and 17 years of age upon conviction may be punished for reckless driving, of an automobile or driving at excessive speeds, or while under the influence of intoxicating liquors. A few cases in Floydada, both in the city court and in Judge O. B. Olson's justice court have been heard in the past few weeks.

The penalty is a fine of not less than $1.00 and not more than $50.00. The law also applies to motorcycles. This is state law H. B. 581.

Story Too Big To Be Told in Entirety

The story of all the havoc done by the flood at Kansas City and at other points in Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma will never be told in its entirety, declares Clifford Rhoades of Kansas City, Missouri, who has been a visitor in Floydada.

Formerly a resident of Floydada, Mr. Rhoades has been living at Kansas City for some 15 years. The river waters simply disrupted everything, washed away railroads, thousands of box cars of merchandise, filled the industrial areas full of smelly muck, and worst of all, drowned many persons, and washed away or wrecked thousands of homes. A total roll of all who lost their lives in the flood is not likely ever to be known, said Rhoades.

He was accompanied here by Mrs. Rhoades. They were guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rhoades, Silverton highway north, and other relatives. Their daughter, Mrs. Charmaine Wilson, had been here for several weeks.

"John Mac was the best boss, He

Ever buy a car from this angle?

SURE, a trim new Buick makes a mighty pretty picture when you see it in your driveway, or watch it wheel by.

But if you could get a mechanic's-eye view of this big, broad beauty as it sits on a lift, you'd see an impressive picture of rugged brawn that makes good-to-look-at Buicks give such a good account of themselves on the road.

You'd see the full-length torque-tube drive that firms the whole power relay system, and steadies your going like a giant hand beneath you.

You'd see big sturdy wheels with really wide rims that provide surer footing, give better car control, make tires last longer.

You'd see all four wheels cushioned by stout coil springs that are completely service-free, practically breakproof—and a principal reason for the ever-level Buick ride.

But mainly, you'd see the massive foundation that backbones every Buick—the deep, wide, X-member frame that's rugged as a rock, and a brute for strength.

So when you look at the beauty of a Buick—the big mileage power of its valve-in-head Fireball Engine—and the moneysaving ability of its Dynaflo Drive*—don't overlook the tough stamina that goes with it all.

And don't overlook the fact that a new '51 Buick, with all its heft, costs less per pound than any other car of comparable size, structure and weight.

Better come see us first chance you get—and find out what a smart buy this is—from every angle.
