AN IMPORTANT CITIZEN

(A Contributed editorial)

Everybody knows that the local service station operator provides an essential service. But not many people realize that he also serves as our town's unofficial ambassador of good will.

As a matter of fact, the service station man is responsible for bringing a lot of business into our town. He is also our community's unofficial representative to the country at large.

As the Chamber of Commerce has pointed out, "A service station dealer is very often the first local man most out-of-town visitors meet, and he's the only one many people passing through town ever sees. He is the person by whom these people form their first judgments of our town, and thanks to him, these impressions are usually good."

"Out-of-town visitors," the Chamber adds, "look to a service station dealer for information on local stores, hotels, amusements and services. His recommendations send a steady stream of customers to our local businesses. By his hard work, his integrity, and above all, the cheerful way he constantly renders service, he has won the respect of all who know him, and the confidence of those who meet him for the first time."

Indeed, the men who operate our service stations play a key role in the community life of Floydada. For residents and visitors alike, they provide a vital ingredient to our way of life. In fact, next to food, clothing and shelter, transportation stands at the top of the daily requirements of the average American family. Service stations, in a real sense, are the hubs around which countless cities and communities like ours revolve. And the men who operate them are respected business men and responsible citizens, with many of them active in various organizations and deeply interested in our social welfare.

This week, special tribute is being paid to the service station dealers of America. We salute the service station operators of Floydada for the vital role they play in the welfare of our community.

So Far, So Good. Having squeaked through another week in the principal matter about which most are concerned, we start on another October week, with all the major forecasters strictly maintaining a killing frost is due to hit in this month. We admit there is to be one mild frost even two, but these should not be the major kill for cotton and other tender growth. The moon continues in our favor for the immediate present but it goes back on us shortly after the twentieth. Then we will be on our own with some cotton men even plugging for a frost right away. However, we have some allies in the men who planted late forage feed on wheat land. These sure do want the frost to stay away until after November 1, anyway. The ease with which these cold snaps are zooming down across the prairies already presages sure enough cold this winter but we insist the cold won't get underway and take over until in next month. We lack some cooperation, as aforesaid.

When the paving program is started in Floydada, which we hope will not be too long away, it would be well to try to get the highway department and the city, interested in paving the middle strips on the two boulevards. We need the room now. Floydada is a growing little city. Wide streets well maintained, will help a lot entering the city on the main thoroughfares. Right now some side streets would greatly help and there are many populated streets on which you wonder why the property owners do not put an effort into paving and get themselves out of the mud. The city council, despite the fact that the municipality is faced with the need of spending more money on water and sewer facilities, is willing and ready to go along. Some morning their tune may have to change if demands continue to grow for water and sewer extensions. Right now is the time while the council considers the city able to go along. Municipalities run out of money, just like individuals.

The danger of high winds damaging the cotton in the field is one of the factors making the cotton people want to hurry with their harvest. The story we hear is that plenty of help is due to reach this area soon from downstate. But there are scores of fields where big crews have been needed for several days harvesting 10 to 20 bales per day. A man with a fortune spent on a crop and a considerable profit out there waiting for him is on the anxious seat until the crop begins to roll.

Action of the cottonseed meal and hulls market this week was not too encouraging to the cattle man. Also failure of the rain gods to give with a good settling season on his wheat now up and growing in the field may have added somewhat to his worries. A good rain would put thousands of cattle in Floyd county wheat fields grazing. And a big cotton crop was expected to bring down the price of meal and hulls, the which has not come to pass as yet. Indeed the higher prices effective since last week-end are a bit disturbing to the cattle man.

Buffalo, Longhorn steers, deer, and paint mountain burros are favorite animal subjects of photographers at Palo Duro state park. A pair of elk will be added to the list this year.

CONVERT YOUR OLD LAMP Into a beautiful, modern 3 light lamp

Now! . . . the glow of mellow light in your home at night. More light downward to see by, more light upward for indirect room lighting. Little loss of light from dust collecting . . . bulb and reflector are one . . . like the sealed beam headlight on your car. A quick swipe of your dust cloth and efficiency restored. AND, less blackening than with ordinary home-type bulbs. Below is illustrated how to convert your lamp so that you can use this new bulb.

Use of this new bulb (either single or three-way light) takes harsh glaring out of your present portable lamps. It gives you soft diffusion . . . the "Hollywood touch" . . . you've always wanted for restful comfort of your eyes.

- NO TOOLS NEEDED
- ALL MATERIALS INCLUDED
- PUTS NEW LIFE IN YOUR LIGHT
- THREE-WAY LIGHTING ON YOUR OLD LAMPS
- LESS BULB BLACKENING
- BETTER LIGHT . . . BETTER SIGHT
- LIKE THE SEALED BEAM HEADLIGHTS ON YOUR AUTO

With the three-way bulb you have a choice of lighting level simply by flicking the switch. Plenty of good light for proper reading . . . general conversation . . . or a "light on while you're out of the house".

In most cases the harps (shade support) on most portable lamps are not wide enough to permit the use of this amazing new bulb . . . so you must obtain from your electric dealer the simple materials illustrated.

For those type of lamps that have no harp support for shades, there is a broad harp that has a screw-on base. It simply screws on the outside of the bulb socket which, of course, must be the type that is threaded. Your electric dealer can help you.

Simple Conversion Materials are for Sale at your Electric Dealers

NO TOOLS OF ANY KIND ARE NEEDED . . . this is a simple step-by-step process that anyone can do in a matter of minutes. No electrical connections to make . . . everything CLAMPS in place.

GOOD HEALTH

Answer to Question No. 1:
1. Only thirty years ago operations on the lungs were great rarities and were performed with most elaborate apparatus. Most of these early operations were fatal. Today operations on the lungs are performed frequently for tumors and tuberculosis. Many patients have complete recovery, due to recent advances in surgery. Recent research indicates that humans may live if as much as 75% of the lung tissue has been removed.
Answer to Question No. 2:
2. If the pupils of the eye fail to contract when a light is shone near them, it may reveal dislocation of certain nerves and brain centers. Only a doctor is able to judge the exact meaning of the reaction to conduct further tests if necessary.
Answer to Question No. 3:
3. Pruritis is a medical term which merely means itching. However, it differs from the itca caused by a mosquito bite or poison ivy, in that pruritis refers to the itching which comes from no obvious cause. It sometimes occurs in such conditions as jaundice, diabetes, or just plain "nerves."

Boyce House Says I Give You Texas

A party of hunters met with great misfortune in an early incident in the history of Texas. In 1719, a thousand Europeans were sent out to people the French colony of Louisiana, among them M. de Belleisle, who is described as a gentleman of distinction.

The vessel was carried beyond its intended destination and the captain found himself in Matagorda Bay, off the shore of Texas. A boat was sent ashore for water. Belleisle and four friends went along. The five passengers decide to do a little hunting and when the boat came back to the ship, they were not along. The captain became impatient and sailed away without them.

Abandoned in an unknown country, the men soon were starving. They were going to kill Belleisle's dog but the animal, sensing their intention, fled. Belleisle saw his companions die and, as he was about to perish, his faithful dog returned, bringing an opossum which he had killed. Soon after, the dog was wounded by a wild beast and the master had to kill the creature to end his sufferings.

Now completely alone, the French man left the coast and headed into the interior in an effort to find men. He saw footprints, followed them to a river and, on the opposite bank, he saw Indians who were drying meat. He entered the camp and they took most of his clothing and other possessions, then gave him to an old squaw to work for her. She treated him kindly and he gradually regained his strength.

He learned the tribe's language and became a warrior. Some time passed and then a group from another tribe visited these Indians and Belleisle heard them say that there were men like him near their country. Unobserved by his associates, the white man made ink of soot and, on his commission as an officer he wrote a message as to his situation, then asked one of the visiting Indians to take this to the white people at Natchitoches, in Louisiana, and receive a reward.

The Indian delivered the paper to Capt. St. Denis, who gave him presents. St. Denis was a great friend of the red men and told them that his white brother was being held a captive, so 10 of their number volunteered to bring him back. They rode into camp, fired their guns which overawed the other Indians, then placed the prisoner on a horse and took him to Natchitoches. So ended his dangerous Texas adventure.

Belleisle rose to the position of major general of the marine in Louisiana.

After a series of train robberies, Sam Bass (who has come to be known as the "Robin Hood of Texas") found things rather hot around his old home town of Denton. So, after a fight with a company of Texas Rangers in which one of his men was killed, Bass and his men hid out, not far from Breckenridge in West Texas.

It was a sparsely settled country and not until the oil boom of 1918-20 was the capital of Stephens County reached by a railroad—and of course Sam Bass' brief sojourn was many years before that.

To this day, a canyon in the sector is known as Sam Bass canyon and it was said that for a long time bullet-marks were discernible on the trees—evidence of the pistol practice of the bandits.

Bass is said to have gone about the region openly and to have bought supplies several times in Breckenridge. Word got around as to his whereabouts and one day a stranger arrived. He had a big, new, shiny pistol and he announced to everybody that he was going to capture Sam Bass, single-handed, and collect the reward which the railroads were offering.

The newcomer set out on foot and had not proceeded far when he was overtaken by a man who was traveling in a buggy. "Have a ride," he said and the amateur detective accepted. As they joggled along, he told the other that he was looking for Sam Bass.

"Have you ever seen him?" the man asked the sleuth.

"No," he admitted.

"Well," was the reply, "I am Sam Bass."

The jaw of the man-hunter sagged and his face paled. He pleaded, "Please, Mr. Bass, don't kill me; don't kill me."

The other pondered the request and at last with seeming reluctance agreed to spare the man's life, on condition that he leave the country at once. To this, the frightened man gladly agreed and, springing from the buggy, he started walking in the opposite direction.

Incidentally, the man driving the buggy was not Sam Bass but a rancher with a good sense of humor.

Good Weather Job Says Oklahoman

The Hesperian's meteorology department is doing a magnificent job, a fact which he appreciates a lot, said E. Lee Ozburn, of Sentinel, Oklahoma, who farms extensive lands in southeast Floydada.

Like all the weather customers, though, Ozburn would appreciate just a little adjustment in weather conditions to meet the needs and believes The Hesperian should take on the responsibility. He would like for it to be arranged so rain will fall on the wheat land which needs a good soaking now and leave the cotton land dry until after the harvest is finished.

Ozburn was here in company with A. D. McCurley, of Curdell, Oklahoma. The pair were enroute to Amarillo for the sessions of the National Reclamation Association conference.

Longhorn's Win 6-0 From 'Winds In Hard Game

(By Sammy Hale)

Last Friday night in Lockney the Floydada High School Whirlwinds bowed to the Lockney Longhorns by a score of 6-0. It would seem evident that the Officials played a bigger part in the loss than did the hard charging team from Lockney. The Longhorns have a hard charging ball club, but three Whirlwind Touchdowns runs that were called back actually decided the contest. It was a bruising battle between the two Floyd County High Schools, arch rivals for many years. This was a non-conference game with nothing at stake but the old rivalry of the two schools. The officials also had a hand in the Longhorn scoring as they called back one of their touchdowns gallops.

It was a pass from Ray Ferguson to Teddy Carthel that decided the game. The pass came mid-way in the third quarter with Ferguson, the big gun of the Longhorn attack, passing to Carthel for twenty yards and the only score of the evening.

The game began with the Whirlwinds winning the toss, and deciding to have the wind at their backs, kicked off to the Longhorns. The Longhorns were able to move the ball to the Floydada 43 before they were forced to punt out. On the Whirlwinds first play from scrimmage Dennis Wilks raced 21 yards to the Floydada 48. Then the 'Winds moved to the Longhorn 48 only to fumble the ball, Lockney recovering. From here the Longhorns drove to the 'Winds 19 before they fumbled, David Rape coming up with the ball.

The 'Winds in turn were unable to move and on the third down Billy Carmack got off a beautiful quick kick that sailed 51 yards. Here the Longhorns started another drive that moved the ball to the 'Winds 17, but a 15-yard penalty moved the ball to the 32 and ended their drive. Floydada taking over on their own 24. From here the 'Winds moved to the 32, where Lockney intercepted a Floydada pass. Four plays later, however the Whirlwinds took over on the 30, allowing the Longhorns only 2 yards in their four plays.

From here Adrain Helms ripped off 32 yards to the Longhorn 37. Wilks lost 6, Clark was held to no gain, and from the Floydada 43 Carmack fired a perfect strike to Frank Stovall, who ran to pay dirt only to have the play called back to the 36, where clipping against Floydada was ruled and a 15-yard penalty was stepped off. Three more penalties were then assessed, Lockney 15, Floydada 5, then Lockney 5, with the ball ending up on the 26.

From here a Floydada pass was incomplete and the Whirlwinds kicked to the 12, where Lockney took over. They moved to the 36, but were held on downs and were forced to punt, with Floydada taking possession on their own 29.

Two plays moved to the 33. From here the Whirlwinds tried the same pass with Stovall moving the distance again, only to have one called back again, with a backfield in motion penalty of 5 yards stepped off. Again the Whirlwinds could not move against the Longhorn line and had to punt out with the ball stiling out of bounds on the 50. Lockney moved to the Floydada 24 before a Ferguson aerial was intercepted by Jackie Hutchinson on the 18 and returned it to the 25 just as the first half ended.

The third quarter saw Lockney having the advantage with the only scoring play of the night that was allowed. This was a twenty-yard pass from Ferguson to Carthel, and this was the play that proved the difference.

The Whirlwinds had another touchdown called back as Carmack hit Hubert Ring on the line of scrimmage just as Ring was tackled, he lateraled the ball off, with it being carried all the way only to have the referee decide that the play had been stopped at the point he was tackled. This ended the scoring threats of each team as the Longhorns intercepted a Whirlwind pass in the last seconds of the game and stalled the ball until the end.

The Whirlwinds lost a hard game, but they still had spirit and hustle at the end of the game. The game was not nearly so one-sided as the statistics show because of the fact that the Whirlwinds gained 178 more yards on their three scores that were called back by the officials. But one can not win games with called back touchdowns.

As A Farm Woman Thinks

(Nellie Witt Spikes)

If you have a friend worth loving, Love him. Yes, and let him know That you love him, ere life's evening Tinge his brow with sunset glow. Why should good words ne'er be said Of a friend till he is dead? If you hear a song that thrills you, Sung by any child of song, Praise it. Do not let the singer Wait reserves praises long. Why should one who thrills your heart Lack the joy you might impart? —Daniel Webster Hoyt.

To a friend of many years (Mrs. Orle Ferguson) I dedicate the first lines and to Mrs. Lenora Tinnin of Ralls and to Myron Kattner of Floydada the last lines and I would like to say I enjoy their lovely voices so very, very much.

These days are like fine minted gold, so we arise "An hour before the worshipp'd sun Peered forth the golden window of the east" and go about the duties and pleasures of these beautiful days of Autumn.

The kitchen smells of spicy show chow and mince meat. Red apples and redder tomatoes, yellow pears and purple jelly of grapes shine from their prisons of glass. The cotton fields look like huge mattresses ready for the covering. The white gold of the plains has everything and every one in motion, and our towns take on the color of a foreign land. In Ralls last Saturday I stood on the upstairs porch of my son's hospital, leaned over the rail and looked and looked, listened and thrilled at the sight. Cars and trucks and pickups of many colors, dresses and sweaters and scarves of our "latest population" added every color of the rainbow, blues and reds, greens and purples, yellows of every shade, greens, all turning and blending in the bright sunshine of a perfect fall day. Spanish tunes came daily from stands, the bystanders cutting a few dance steps to the music, more and more families unloaded from the parked trucks and papa and mama, grandpa and grandma and children like stair-steps added to the crowd, which was happy and good humored. The black-eyed children did not cry and beg, they laughed but hid in their mother's skirts at the approach of admiring "strangers" for many are so very pretty. The dogs were having a feast as they got the scraps from many a dropped cream cone or hamburger.

Grocer boys carried sacks and boxes of groceries to the trucks, merchants sweated in their hurry to get to the "waiters." Passers-by dodged wispy cotton candy on long sticks, ice cream drips and banana peels. It seemed as I watched that Ralls was like a bright-colored merry-go-round with music and everybody having a grand time.

I wondered how the town of Ralls has done without the traffic lights so long. They certainly help the traffic problems.

Last summer I greatly admired the green fans on the cottonwood trees in Blanco Canyon. They fanned and cooled the whispering old cottonwoods some of whom had sheltered Indians and perhaps the ragged-velvet clad "gentlemen" of Coronado's army that crossed this land so long ago.

But a surprise greeted us the other day. The trees have new fans of pure gold, or has the bright summer sun had the power of Midas and everything on the trees changed to gold by its touch?

This is the thought for the week and it goes in well with all this golden time of the year. "Silver and gold are not the only coin; virtue, too, passes current all over the world. —Euripides."
