IRRIGATION RESEARCH AND RESULTS AT THE AMARILLO CONSERVATION STATION

Grain sorghums irrigation experiments were set up on a level border at the Amarillo conservation experiment station in 1949, as well as a furrow irrigation system in each of the following Soil Conservation districts: Floyd, Hale, and Deaf Smith. Each experiment had three replications. Soil moisture samples were taken to a depth of six feet at planting time, before and after each irrigation, at 10 to 15 day intervals or following effective rainfall, and at harvest. A synopsis of the data obtained follows:

Three applications were made in the Floyd SCD using the furrow method. Altogether 9.74 inches of water was applied and the rainfall from planting to harvest was 6.57 inches. The soil moisture decrease was 0.19, making a total water requirement of 11.50 inches. The yield in grain per acre was 3,687 lbs.

Using the same irrigation method, Hale SCD made two applications totaling 6.50 inches and the rainfall was 10.75. The soil moisture decrease was negligible, making a total water requirement of 17.25 inches. The yield was 3,150 lbs of grain per acre.

In Deaf Smith SCD with 2 irrigations of 8.03 inches; a rainfall of 3.63, the yield was 5,136 lbs of grain per acre, with a total of 19.86 inches of water.

At the Amarillo station 3,296 lbs of grain per acre was produced on level borders, planting 14 pounds per acre in 40 inch rows, with two irrigations of 7.12 inches and a rainfall of 8.56. The soil moisture decrease was 2.35, making a total of 18.33 water used.

At the same station on level borders with 10 inch rows and planting 14 pounds per acre, the yield was 5,063 lbs of grain per acre. Two irrigations of 6.72 inches; a rainfall of 8.56 and a moisture decrease of 0.10, making a total of 15.40 inches water used.

1951 Tests At Amarillo
Results of the 1961 grain sorghum irrigation treatment studies at the Amarillo station are given as follows:

With two irrigations (July 20 and August 13) of 7.53 inches; a rainfall of 9.38 and a soil moisture decrease of 5.03, there was a yield of 3,355 lbs. of grain per acre.

Another treatment produced 2,111 lbs per acre with one irrigation on July 20 of 4.0 inches; a rainfall of 9.38 and a moisture decrease of 7.16. The crop used 20.54 inches of water and produced 103 lbs of grain per acre, whereas the one above produced 153 lbs of grain per inch.

A dry land plot produced 1,510 lbs of grain per inch. Preplanting irrigations were not required on any of the above treatments.

In contrast to the pre-season computations made by gravity farmers, few pump farmers give great consideration to the volume of water available during a given period. Even a small well will provide a preplanting irrigation over a comparatively large acreage but it will not provide a timely application of water over a very large acreage during the growing season.

Irrigating Too Late

Why not consider the return from irrigated crops in the light of increased production per acre inch of water applied and let this be the criterion for the intensity of irrigation? Most farmers are irrigating too late and after the potential yield has been cut by severe moisture stress. A 600 gallon per minute well will pump 32 acre inches in 24 hours, which should adequately irrigate 8 acres. If this well is being depended upon to irrigate 120 acres of growing crops, 15 days will be required for irrigation. If irrigation is started one week before the danger point is reached, a part of the crop will be in stress up to 8 days before it can be reached. Irrigation during the summer growing season should be a definitely planned practice, not "crop insurance," because too much of the potential is lost before the insurance becomes effective. Data obtained to date indicates that timely applications with moderate amounts of water provide both greater yields and greater returns per acre inch of water with grain sorghums. Since good sorghum crops can ordinarily be produced with dry land practices the non-irrigated acreages would not be idle.

Through these experiments it was found that cotton, sorghum and wheat will use moisture from depths of 5 and 6 feet if available moisture is present. The moisture use from these lower depths may not be important percentage wise but it is believed that it is important from the standpoint of yield and efficiency of operation. Further study is required to make water management an integral part of farm management on the high plains.

AN APPRECIATION

I want to thank all my friends and neighbors and the Martha Sunday school class of the First Baptist church for the nice food and every kindness shown me during my illness. May God richly bless each of you. Mrs. Harold Woody.

The potatoes did not make, the tomatoes are dying, still we have so many blessings, why should we complain? Freedom and the right to worship God in our own way. But do we stop and consider how we are using these freedoms. Do we love our country, give it our very best. Do we honor God, or attend the places of worship so many Americans have died that we might have? Do we try to make the world grow better or do we just whine and complain? As the heat oppresses and the dirt covers everything in the house, I ask myself these questions. Will my faith crumble with the discomforts of hot weather? Will my hopes die as I see the barren fields, where no rain has fallen or no irrigation well pours life-giving water down the rows? Have I forgotten my sweet grandmother's face as she sees the cattle poor with no grass and water so scarce? Or the gray faces as the grasshopper eat everything that is growing?
My faith survived the dry, lean years on our farm. As I look back I see that the dry years were enriched with more time for friends and family. More time for reading and writing. My faith in God was strengthened as I felt my dependence on His bounty. I learned lessons of thrift, of making something do that seemed impossible. I could cook a nourishing meal without having the best of ingredients. So I lived and learned and profited. Why is it that it is so hard for us to see our children meet the things that will strengthen their faith and develop a philosophy of life that will enrich their "setting-sun" days?

How many of us spell joy correctly? A christian was once asked the secret of his happiness, even in the face of adversity. He replied: "There is a joy in my heart because I have learned to spell the word correctly." Children glibly spell the word, j. o. y, and get a perfect mark for spelling. Growups, however are inclined to misspell the word. They think the 'j' stands for jewels or other temporary wealth, that 'o' is for ourselves and our own selfish point of view, and that 'y' the letter, is for yielding — yielding to any desire or impulse.

The christian, however, learns a different spelling. From his point of view 'j' stands for Jesus. The second letter 'o' is for others; others before self. The final letter 'y' is for 'yourself'.

THE FLOYD COUNTY HESPERIAN

Published by the Hesperian Publishing Co., Inc., at 212 South Main St., Floydada, Texas. HOMER STEEN, Editor. THURSDAY, JULY 2, 1953

Established 1896 by Charles... tered as second class mail... at Floydada, Texas... under the act of Congress... 1897

VIEWS AND COMMENT

One of the laws passed by the Texas legislature, either now actually in force or due to become so, is the new public grain warehouse bill. How its operation in practice will be is to be learned. On paper it is all right. Senator Andy Rogers fathered the bill through the senate. State Agriculture Commissioner John C. White hails it and so does the Farm Bureau. No comment that we have seen from the elevator men. The Farm Bureau says that for the first time the Texan who deposits grain in a public warehouse has his commodities insured against fire, theft, misappropriation, damage due to careless handling, or acts of God, a statement in which the commissioner of agriculture concurs. Also, for the first time the farmer in Texas may use his stored grain receipts from a state bonded warehouse as negotiable security. The warehouse law under which warehousemen have operated in past years has been attacked time and again as inadequate. We may now have come up with the right answer.

Mules in Georgia, showing up again in notable numbers, is one of the pointers toward emancipation from the over-high prices which mad manufacturers and the equally mad unions are asking for their farm machinery. There is no likelihood that out in an open country like we have mules will ever again take over from the tractor and the powerlift. But already people are resolving to do without all over agricultural America, and while parts and replacement business is booming power machinery is stacking up in the warehouses. Further advances in the price of steel promised for the early future are most likely to be "explained" away a bit later. Mules in Georgia again also means mules in Chicago and Rock Island, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Horror department: If there is a boy still living somewhere that we used to have as a partner in laziness back in a certain portion of Texas just this side of where the woodbine twineth and the whangdoodle mourneth for his own—if so be, we ask that this note of nostalgia in reverse could get to him: Remember the Jimson weeds we used to have to hoe out in the rocky corner of the infertile, thin soil of the so-called garden? Well, they've turned even Jimson weeds into a racket now! They take the seeds, put them into a little flower seed envelope in the same manner as petunias, bachelor buttons and the like and sell them! And women buy them, set them out in the yard and around and cultivate them! Under an alias, of course.

A new high in the price of automobiles is in the making. The manufacturers and the labor leaders are already expressing their "fears" that such will be the case. The increase may be "necessary", they say, on account of the advances in the prices of steel. It is unfortunate that big operators as well as little ones do not always recognize the signs of the times. The automobile people already have priced millions out of the new car market. Always when you have some you want some more, and on and on, until one morning you are walking the streets, hunting a cheaper house to rent until "business picks up again." The latter comes to a figure that is viewed as reasonable by the figure that is viewed as reasonable by the public.

DRAFT LAW AND REGULATIONS

(Third of a series of 10 short articles on the draft law and its rules and regulations.)

Young men of draft age who ask for and get deferments under certain conditions automatically extend the time during which they can be drafted by nine years.

Brig. Gen. Paul L. Wakefield, state draft director, names the following types of deferred men, among others, who have their liability for service extended until age 35:

1. Members of the ROTC and other officer training programs.

2. Students deferred to go to high school or college under requirements of law; college students deferred under authority of the local board.

3. Men left at home for civilian employment.

4. Men deferred to farm.

5. Married men deferred because of their children or because of extreme hardship and privation to dependents.

6. Men classified as mentally, physically, or morally deficient or defective.

"The regulations spell this out," General Wakefield says. "So when a man gets the privilege of a deferment he is taking on a corresponding responsibility. The man who never receives a deferment like these cannot be drafted after he reaches his 26th birthday."

The state draft director says that, under this provision of law, it is possible for a deferred man to lose his qualification for deferment at age 34, for example. Under such circumstance, he would again be eligible for draft.

There is evidence to prove that farm and home accidents can be reduced when rural people attack the problem through organization. Agriculture presently ranks as the third most hazardous occupation in the nation. It's a good time to make a check and then remove the accident hazards around your farm.

Floyd County 14 Years Ago

(Taken from the files of The Hesperian, issue dated July 6, 1939)

According to figures of The Hesperian office rain gauge for the first half of 1939 Floyd county received a total of 8.3 measured inches of moisture. A little over 2.86 inches of this moisture fell in June between the 20 and 30. May recorded 1.4 inches of rainfall while April almost duplicated that figure with 1.42 inches of moisture. For the same period in 1938, there was 8.93 inches of moisture registered.

The largest field of commercially-grown potatoes in Floyd county this year is on the R. A. Keniston place, 4 miles west of Erick, where the harvest of 25 acres was started today.

A quiet Fourth of July was recorded in Floydada despite the Gainesville circus being in town and many visitors from other towns.

One of the most efficient tractor operators in the Floyd county wheat harvest this season has been George Reid May, 9 year old son of Mrs. G. R. May of the Baker community, who has handled a big International machine pulling a 20-foot combine.

Silas E. Duncan, city secretary, is ill in the Beall clinic in Fort Worth this week. Mr. Duncan made the trip to Fort Worth with Mayor Glad Snodgrass and city attorney Ben P.

Ayres to attend a meeting and became ill while there. He is expected home next week.

Mrs. A. E. Guthrie entertained Saturday afternoon with a party honoring her son, Aubrey on his sixth birthday.

Two members of Floydada chapter Future Farmers of America, have passed the state committee for degrees of Lone Star Farmers. They are C. W. Denison, Jr., and Jewel Elza. Denison is a third year man in agriculture here and Elza is a second year man.

Three cases of typhoid fever have been reported to officials of Floydada, Dr. V. Andrews, county health officer, said there seemed to be little danger of an epidemic but it was good policy for everyone to be vaccinated against the disease, especially those who come in contact with the public.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Goen will leave Saturday for Galveston, where they will attend the Texas floral convention and also take a little vacation.

Floydada Garden club will meet next Friday with Mrs. C. J. Barnard, when a luncheon and program will be given.

Mrs. Bess Cantwell and Miss Peggy McKinney are on a vacation trip to Fort Worth and other points in east Texas.

F. C. Harmon furniture store is among the Floydada stores recently "air conditioned." Harmon has a large slow motion fan which cools the display rooms of the store and other portions of the establishment.

Mrs. Oliver Allen who has been in Lubbock hospital for two weeks was able to be returned to her home this week. She has been suffering from a stubborn case of arthritis and pleurisy.

Vic Lamb editor of the Hale Center American, was among the news paper men who visited Floydada on July 4 and "took in" the circus. He was accompanied by Mrs. Lamb.

Lorin Liebfried and her city carriers of Floydada convention of city mail on Saturday night in Lubbock.

Making Survey of Well Spacing on High Plains

LUBBOCK — Field men of the Hi-Plains Underground Water Conservation district are starting a survey of the spacing of wells that have been drilled since February the 1st of this year. Over 1500 permits have been issued in 13 counties participating in the water conservation program. A small percentage of the permits issued have been for municipal and industrial use — with the larger part being for irrigation wells. It has been shown by men of long experience in water well development that one of the first problems in water conservation is the proper spacing of the wells with-in a reservoir. By proper spacing a well can be made to produce longer from a higher water table, thereby enabling the producer to pump water at a much cheaper cost than in areas of over-lapping well interference. The practice of spacing should have been started years ago in the Hi-Plains district.

A wealth of knowledge is being gained and recorded by the logs and registration of the wells drilled. There are untold numbers of logs that have been made by the drillers and pump companies, since the people of the Hi-Plains first started the development of the underground water. This information remains in the hands of 60 or more pump companies and drillers and has never been correlated. It is another object of the district to gather and correlate this information. It will be used by the district, and the people it concerns in helping to make better studies of water development and conservation practices.

The people of the Hi-Plains are to be commended for the wonderful co-operation they have shown in placing into effective use the first practices of conservation of an invaluable resource. A secource that if depleted would not only affect the economy of the individual, but all of the Hi-Plains as well, say officials of the Water use and Conservation district.

LET'S MAKE IT A SAFE INDEPENDENCE DAY

Years ago many people... mainly children... injured themselves with Fourth of July fireworks. Today, in the "safe and sane" era, hundreds of Americans... mainly adults... will be killed or injured over the holiday weekend by automobiles.

If you drive this weekend, make sure your car is in perfect condition before starting... then observe all the safety rules. Extra care may save your life.

The OASIS on your route

The traveler of ancient times sought rest and refreshment at an oasis on his route.

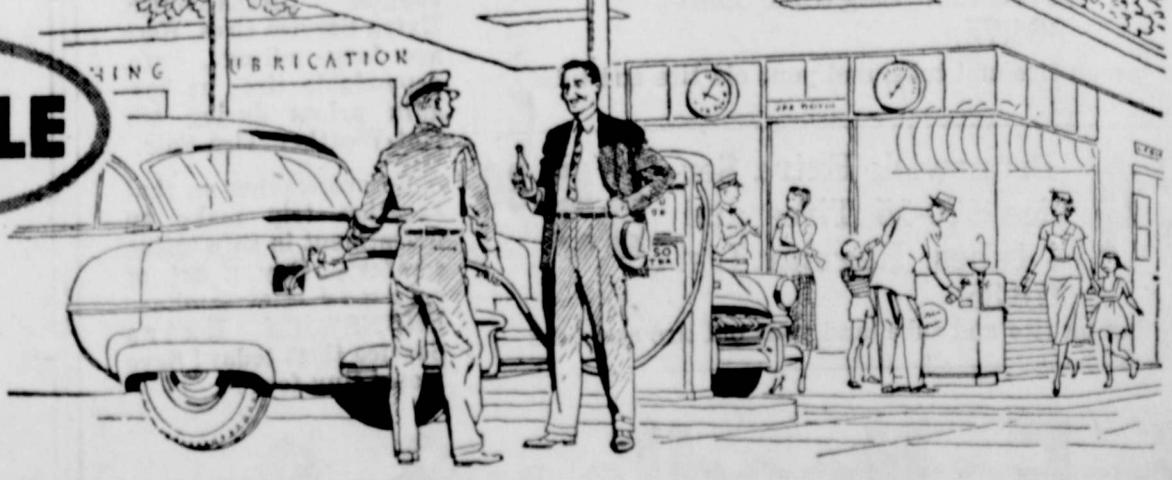

So does the traveler of modern times... he stops at an oasis that prepares his automobile for another hundred miles or more of driving... at an oasis that provides ice water and a chance to stretch... at an oasis that offers clean and sanitary rest rooms... at an oasis where our traveler can give and get a friendly greeting.

Today's oasis is the service station on the American highway.

It makes your trip. It provides your contact with the country through which you're driving. On its driveway you feel at home; you get the impression wherever you stop, that this is your America.

Not one service station, but thousands of them. All along the highways you'll find them staffed and equipped to give your car the expert care it requires, to make your brief visits on their driveways comfortable and pleasant.

The service station where you buy gasoline and motor oil is your chief contact with the American oil industry. It is probably an individual enterprise; and it competes to give you better service and better products than another station down the street or on the other side of town. No small part of the oil industry's progress in the service of the motorist finds final expression on service station driveways.

If Texas cotton cannot be harvested by local labor this year and farmers are forced to contract for Mexican Nationals to get the job done, they will find a considerable amount of red tape snipped from old procedures, the Texas Employment Commission announced today.

Effective July 1, the procedure, which originally took from five to six weeks to obtain Mexican Nationals, will be shortened to the extent that farmers will be able to get these workers in a week or ten days, TEC said.

Not only has much red tape been eliminated, but the farmer's cost has been reduced — from $15 per worker to $11 on the original contract and from $7.50 to $5.50 for re-contracting, the agency pointed out.

Under the old contracting procedure, farmers submitted orders all the way from 30 to 60 days in advance of actual need. This procedure worked a hardship on the farmer because information given today possibly would not be valid 30 or 60 days hence because of weather, crop conditions or some other reason. On top of all this, the order for Mexican Nationals had to be reviewed and approved by the Washington office of the Bureau of Employment ers, and the local office of the TEC then mails the authorization to that point. The farmer then must send his check ($11 per worker) to that Reception Center. As soon as the check is received by the Reception Center, machinery is set in motion to get the workers from the interior of Mexico. The farmer is notified by the Reception Center when the workers are available, TEC said. The farmer must also submit a "Statement of Housing and Facilities," which describes the housing and living facilities offered. These must meet minimum standards for the number of workers he needs.

A farm employer who used Mexican Nationals in 1952 will not be required to furnish such Statement this year, provided he does not request more workers than he had in 1952. If he does need more workers than he used in 1952, a new Statement of Housing and Facilities will have to be furnished, TEC said.

As under the old procedure, workers are contracted to individual farm employers and associations on the basis of individual need, however, under the new system, allocations are made on the basis of a total agricultural area need. The state has been divided into Agricultural Areas set up on the basis of similarity of crops grown, climatic conditions, type of soil, the traditional movement of farm labor, and certain other factors. The areas are High-Rolling Plains of the Texas Panhandle; Black Prairies-Cross Timbers areas; Diabolo — Edwards Plateau; Rio Grande Plains; Lower Rio Grande Valley, and the Llano-Coastal areas.

If, after determining the number of workers locally available, and migrant workers who normally flow into the area, it is found that no shortage exists, Mexican Nationals cannot be contracted in that area.

If a shortage results after taking the above facts into consideration, a ceiling or quota of Mexican Nationals will be allocated to the area sufficient to off set the shortage. Whenever crop conditions or other factors in an area create a change of 10% or more in supply or demand the ceiling for Mexican Nationals may be reviewed and revised if necessary.

Farmers desiring additional information concerning the contracting of Mexican Nationals should go to the nearest local Texas Employment Commission office.
