VIEWS AND COMMENT

The Drouth Best recorded in the southwest is the one that came to a climax in 1887. At that time there was an appeal to the federal government for aid for the drouth sufferers. In some quarters it was thought the congress should arrange to get them some sowlbelly and beans, thus to ward off starvation for the scattering families that had succeeded the Indians in the area. This gave rise to Grover Cleveland's now famous message to the congress in which he regretfully vetoed a measure to provide $10 thousand for relief of the drouth sufferers. In his message he said that the people supported the government, not the government the people. It was unconstitutional to take public funds for such purposes, he said. They got around the president and the constitution by having the army send a supply wagon around through the mesquites and across the broad prairies to get sustenance to the fringe of buffalo hunters and adventurers who had been snared into wedlock, and had to settle down and start raising families.

If Your Number comes up whatever precautions you take against cyclones or other disaster, including a rusty nail down in the cow lot, will be futile. However, that doesn't mean that a person is going to sit down in the face of a cyclone and be blown away if he can help himself. He'll find a hole to crawl in or, as seems to be the "thing" in Floydada, he'll get in his car and begin traveling in circles to "watch" the approaching clouds. The National Red Cross is carrying on an education program on tornadoes as part of its activities. Just to be "alert" to the approaching danger is not of much value unless you know what to do about it. While there is no cyclone even in sight or in mind is a good time to study the safety rules that may save your life. If you are the average person you are not very smart in the face of mortal danger from the elements unless you have drilled yourself in the rudiments of it. The last time we looked on it appeared that more people were in danger of getting hurt in the traffic than in a storm.

Texas Will Receive more of the federal good roads money voted specially by Congress for a giant two-year road rebuilding program than any other state, New York excepted. Many local people are slightly unhappy because the farm to market road system is not accented in the program instead of the primary road system. The fact that the primary road system has become inadequate to meet the change that has come about in the past 10 years in the traffic pattern and in the number of automobiles on the highways is the answer that the federal good roads bureau gives. Additionally many thousands of miles of primary highway roadbeds have become too light for the traffic they are called upon to handle. Highway 207 in Floyd county is a good example. The highway department could re-build 207 and save money enough in upkeep to justify the outlay, we are told. There are two points of view in road building. The highway department man, the professional, predicates his planning on the mathematical probability that the gasoline tax collected will meet the cost of upkeep of a projected road improvement. On the other hand people like in Floyd county still want to get out of the mud at least with rural mail routes and school bus hauls, regardless of the statistics.

The Insurance Hassel in Texas has to do with poorly-managed or inadequately financed companies whose management bet on good luck going with them. Had they hurred the first few hazards their shoe string operations could later become conservative. The laws of choice and chance caught them up and apparently found some of them taking chances with other people's money. In desperation they ran afoul of the law—perjuries and the like. Which reminds us that Texas is not the only state where such things have occurred. New York state, whose big companies so righteously withdrew from Texas when the Robertson insurance law was passed, is full of instances in its insurance history where fly-by-nights mulcted the public. The withdrawal of the insurance giants from the state was one of the greatest things that ever happened for Texas. They didn't believe in Texas and wouldn't agree to plow back any of their earnings in the state. They thought, for sure, the sky was going to fall in on the Texas longhorns, when they pulled out. It didn't. In the last decade or so they have come crawling back asking for re-admittance into Texas. But to the public they still put up that old bold bragging front. This isn't to say they aren't sound and solid enough. It does mean, however, they were caught bluffing and got their hands called.

Chemicals are gaining in popularity over wide areas of the state as a practical method for controlling undesirable hardwoods and brush on Texas farms and ranches. Recent moisture should improve the chances for good kills.

Conservation District News

LEVEL TERRACES

Level closed end terraces have done a good job of erosion control and moisture conservation in the Floyd County Soil Conservation District. Some good wheat is reported on the Shirley Irwin and Frank Breed farms. Lewis Blum and Sam Lide have reported that their level terraces have done a good job of holding the rainfall on the fields. These terraces have only recently been constructed and no crop has been produced since their construction.

Level terraces are constructed on the water level to each side of the field. The closures are then constructed up the slope on each side of the field in order to hold the rainfall on the field. The closures are not carried far enough up the slope to break the terrace, so if the terrace fills up the water will go around the ends of the closures. Terraces are placed close enough together to prevent the rainfall from concentrating and forming gullies. In this manner terraces control water erosion.

It should be recognized that during some seasons of the year it is not desirable to have water standing behind the terraces. An example of this would be if your crop was ready to harvest, and you wanted to drain the terrace in order to harvest the crop. When this becomes necessary it is a simple matter to open the terrace where the closure starts, and allow the terrace to drain down the side of the field, at a rate which will not erode the field.

The A.C.P. program provides payment of $1.25 per hundred feet of terrace constructed. This payment covers a large part of the construction cost. As soon as the wheat is harvested plan to terrace that field, and stop any water erosion problems, and also conserve the rainfall.

Farm Problems Are Discussed At Area Meet

At the district meeting of the Texas Farm Bureau in Lubbock last Thursday, Hub King, district director of Area II presided over one of the best meetings of the year, while Jack Lynn legislative director from the Washington office gave facts and figures on present laws governing agriculture, and amendments or proposed changes in the law pending in Washington.

Reporting the meeting W. R. Puckett, Farm Bureau service representative said Lynn gave facts and figures on how supply and demand and world trade are affecting American agriculture.

Some of the amendments or major revisions foreseen in the present law was the set-aside from 3 to 4 million bales of cotton, with such quantity to be excluded from "carry-over" computation for price support purposes. With modernized parity to become effective January 1, 1956.

With like figures on wheat, as pertaining to modernized parity, etc. Mr. Lynn taught his audience for more than two hours as a classroom teacher on what the present law is, what the present amendments pending are. He did not make any predictions on the future or try to sell anybody on anything or any particular plan. He did say that farmers and ranchers should be more alert as to what effect our production and controls have on world markets, and that when a full and complete understanding of the issues were in hand there would be less confusion among us.

J. Walter Hammond, the state president of the Texas Farm Bureau offered a few suggestions on why we should not quit our organization because we disagreed.

Mr. Puckett said Hammond brought out the fact that he had been working on a soil bank fertility plan for agriculture control for more than 20 years, and although it still was not like he started it out, he had to take compromises as he went along, but the idea was finally received and some of the things he had hoped for had been accomplished.

Hammond stressed the fact that we become alarmed about some small issue when there is a greater issue we should concentrate on. He illustrated it in his droll wit, by saying that a man wanted to go swimming and ask the owner if there were any alligators in the water. The man told him no. After the swimmer was far from shore he called back again for re-assurance. The man said he was sure there were no alligators in that water because they were afraid of the sharks.

Mr. Hammond suggested that any farmer needing storage should make arrangements well ahead of time.

harvest, and that if there were any problems coming up the state office would co-operate to the fullest in solving that problem.

The question of compulsory Social Security was brought up and it was brought out that Farm Bureau opposes it in its present form.

Some information was given on the use of alcohol to be made from grain sorghum for tractor fuel. And a few suggestions on handling alfalfa were made.

Jack McIntosh, vice-president Bill Rogers, county agent, and W. R. Puckett, serviceman for the Floyd County Farm Bureau attended.

There were others who were muddled in some parts of the county while others who had planned to attend were either preparing to plant or were planting since their time was running short.

The regular business session of the local organization will be held Thursday, June 10, and a complete report will be given on these and other issues of local concern at that time. These meetings are open meetings and any farmer or interested person is invited to attend them.

Mrs. Dorris Jones reports that some progress is being made toward the county queen contest. She said that local organizations, civic clubs, and Home Demonstration clubs would be contacted within the very near future, and specific plans would be made within the next few days.

Rains in our community ranged from two tenths at the Milton place to an inch, last Wednesday afternoon. The wind was of terrific force, and the fields looked as if a flood had occurred at the C. L. Vincent and Higginbotham homes, and at Verr Daniels.

We Have The Famous JOHNSON KULTI-MASTER

THREE-WAY CROP SAVER. The Kulti-Master sturdily-constructed implement which allows you to perform three necessary operations at the same time.

ROTARY HOES. When the furrow has been cut over soon after planting, the Kulti-Master's rotary hoes pulverize the hard ground and allow the seed to come through—this often keeps you from having to plant over. By setting the Kulti-Master's rotary hoes to a depth less than the seed location, the ground is pulverized to aerate the plants and turn up weeds at the same time.

BARRING-OFF DISCS. To throw dirt off of the furrow when it has been filled by a hard rain, the Kulti-Master is equipped with barring-off discs which are easily adjusted or removed when not needed.

KULTI-MASTER RUNNERS keep the rotary hoes at the correct depth at all times. The round runners are designed to make the Kulti-Master float instead of digging in, when running on sandy ground. The weight of the implement is distributed through the runners, forcing the hoes to the correct depth.

KNIVES AND SWEEPS attached to the Kulti-Master's runners are ideal for cleaning out the furrow and knifing beds before planting. Sweeps have an adjustment to throw just the right amount of dirt across the row.

LIFE TRACER—From radioactive air exhaled by this patient, scientists at Donner Laboratory, University of California, can learn more about body chemistry that may be changed in the presence of cancer. The research is sponsored by the American Cancer Society which this year is seeking $20,000,000 to fight cancer.

PESTICIDE OUTLOOK

The overall supply of insecticides, fungicides and weed killers is generally adequate this year. Unless unusually heavy demands are suddenly made for these products, there will be enough for all anticipated requirements.

Early season orders for pesticides were rather slow and manufacturers were not inclined to increase production as much during the past winter as in previous years. This could lead to some problems of distribution in case of epidemic infestations of pests.

If favorable rains come to the cotton belt of Texas and the southern states in June and July, boll weevil populations might increase quickly to enormous numbers. The situation would be serious if pesticide stocks had been purchased only for usual needs. Manufacturers might have trouble in shipping the chemicals to the danger areas in time to halt the outbreak. However ample capacity exists for the production of all the major chemicals.

Insect infestations and fungus infections are, to a large extent, dependent on weather conditions and other natural factors. Few of these are predictable to any satisfactory degree.

The diversion of acreage this year to crops other than cotton wheat and corn may affect pesticide consumption locally but probably will not mean a surplus of chemicals. In the overall picture, weather influences infestations much more than proposed acreage shifts, especially cotton. However, some crops planted on diverted acres will themselves require application of chemicals.

Some growers may use more pesticides per acre on the reduced acreage allotment in an attempt to increase their rate of production. Use of insecticides nearly always results in more cotton, weather permitting. Treated plots sometimes yield as much as 25.5 percent more cotton than untreated plots.

The co-op cook books have all been sold.

We have had various projects but I believe the cook book has been the most interesting one of all. It has wonderful recipes because the women sent in the best they had — not necessarily original recipes, for in many instances the recipes had been given by a friend or relative while others shared a recipe that had been a tradition in their families for many years, making it a book of favorite recipes, the ones their families enjoyed most.

In response to numerous requests that a recipe book be made the board of directors appointed a committee to assist in compiling the recipes. The members of this committee were:

Mrs. Lee Rushing, Chairman, Mrs. W. C. Snodgrass, Vice-chairman, Mrs. George Beedy, Mrs. Ben Brandes, Mrs. Velmer Hamilton, Mrs. C. B. Hartsell and Mrs. W. H. Ratheal.

Again we would like to say "thank you" for a job well done to the committee, to Mr. Steen who printed the books and to everyone who contributed material. I am sure these books will be enjoyed for many years by everyone who has a copy.

We have already had numerous requests about book No. 2. There will not be another one made unless there seems sufficient interest to carry through. If you are interested in seeing another one made be sure and send us your comments.

It has been said that "Americans are Gambling with their Health." A family nutrition study was made by a state college and the appliance division of a manufacturing corporation. Their findings revealed two facts: Many people are jeopardizing their present and future health by improper eating habits and that definite improvement in the physical being of whole families could be brought about by proper menu planning, food selection, storage and preparation.

Of the 64 families who took part in this research all had higher than average income. Before the study actually started food intake of each member of these 64 families was checked and weighed for a one-week period. While the diet records showed their food selection to be better than average, only 28% were eating sufficient food. Little attention was paid to proper balance in meals; they were planned around the likes and dislikes of the family rather than their needs. Large amounts of vitamins were lost by improper cooking methods.

Medical tests were made before and after the study. Thirty-six complete, balanced menus were furnished each family with alternatives which made more than 78,000 different combinations possible. Proper cooking and storage was stressed. The results showed vast improvements all participants reported they felt better. Money had been saved, they had better meals and with less work.

Mrs. J. T. Hollingsworth, Alexandria, was a co-op visitor last Friday morning. She is a sister of Mrs. Edd Brown. She spent several days here with relatives.

Ruth Bartley and her mother and Mrs. Eunice Tomme from Cone; Mrs. S. G. Appling and Mrs. Moseley from Mount Blanco, and Mrs. Gertrude Brixey and Mrs. Garnet Jones of Crosbyton.

Lighthouse Electric Cooperative, Inc. by Nancy Morckel and Claude Weathersbee.

Our sincere thanks to all who had a part in making our window display possible for "old settlers' day. It was given first place by the judges. We think this county should have a museum or some place in which to keep and take care of the many old articles that are of interest to so many people.

Last week an appliance survey card was mailed to each co-op member, asking them to check the electrical appliances they have on the attached card and return it to us in order that we may:

1. Enlighten Washington as to the many ways they are using the electricity made possible by REA to raise living standards and to increase production.
2. To determine their individual needs.
3. Give better service to all members.
4. Study the trend toward new electric appliances.
5. Protect the co-op's equipment.
6. Make possible an estimate of future requirements.

We hope every member will return their cards. If for any reason you have not received your card or it has been misplaced please come by the office and get another one.

Fairview News

(by Mrs. Clyde Bagwell)

FAIRVIEW, June 1. — As I write this news I can hear tractors humming from all directions. Everyone is out early these mornings trying to get the cotton planted as soon as possible.

Rev. and Mrs. Larry Faus, Vassie Beth and Bobby Faus spent from Wednesday night until Sunday morning at Lamesa with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd G. Fincher. While at Lamesa Mrs. Faus' Vassie Beth and Mrs. Fincher visited at Seminole with Mrs. Faus' grandfather, Tom Fincher and her aunts and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. James Stanley.

Larry Faus made a business trip to New Braunfels and Houston on Thursday. On the way between the two cities he narrowly escaped injury when the breaks in his car failed to work and he had to pull his car into an embankment to keep from hitting another car. The car was practically demolished but he suffered only slight bruises.

Mrs. Lloyd G. Fincher and son Lloyd Irwin of Lamesa came Sunday morning to bring the Faus family home and remained until Tuesday afternoon. They then went to Lubbock where Lloyd Irwin and Mrs. Faus appeared on television over channel 13 at 6 p.m.

Nig Wright, Midland, carried off first in the jackpot with 11.8 seconds on his calf, Jack Newton, Breckenridge, was second with 12 flat, and Fred Dalby, Aspermont third with 12.3 seconds.

Only member of the local roping club to enter the jackpot was Weims Norman.
