VIEWS AND COMMENT

The day after Christmas merchandisers and their help generally spend trying to make exchanges for customers who got Christmas presents they didn't want, that didn't fit or came in the wrong colors. Stores do it as a matter of policy, as favors for the public, not as a service they are legally bound to give. People should remember this. That a store is not under obligation to take back a purchase and refund your money or make an exchange simply because you changed your mind, or don't like the size, color or pattern. Most stores do make refunds and exchanges, but that is not because they are required to. So, don't go into the store short-tempered this week-end and begin demanding. A courteous attitude would be much more becoming—and more likely to get the result you want. Just suppose the store asked you to let them have back something they sold you because they changed their mind and decided they didn't want to sell it after all! Same "difference!"

Most folks don't like to think about their income tax during Christmas week or any other time for that matter. It does pay however, to be educated in tax matters. The Internal Revenue folks like for everybody to start work on their tax returns after Christmas. What sort of Christmas gift do you get for that? None! It is interesting to note though that come January 1st, Uncle Sam owes 55% to 60% of the taxpayers money. So it would appear that most of us get some of our money back from the Government instead of the Government getting more from us at income tax filing time.

Much Older Now. Did you note the letters to Santa this Christmas, how the letter writers were younger and the tone of the letters, although still bearing the old charm, said little about "candy, fruits and nuts." No ten-year-olds at all and few even as young as eight or nine, had anything in the mail for the jolly patron of Yuletide. Nowadays at that age the veil has already been lifted from the legend of Santa. Children simply are older now at ten years than their parents were at the same age. The reason there was little demand for candy, fruits and nuts in old Santa's mail is simple to see, too. There wasn't any yearning for these. The tots already had all these in their balanced diets, some even surfeited.

Small town newspaper people usually have to maneuver somewhat to get a few days of relaxation from the grind. And some ingenious ways are often devised at Christmas-time. Some of the newspapers of the area, because Christmas cuts the week in two this year worked up their paper for this week over the week-end, using greetings, pieces of news from here and there and the odds and ends of Christmas visiting. They mailed the Thursday-dated paper on Monday. Not to say their newspapers will not be interesting, even more interesting perhaps, than those who wait until publication day. Just to relate the way things happen. A few newspapers are skipping the week, because it offers so many difficulties to publish in the first place, and in the second place, it is nicer to be off seeing the sights or visiting the folks than it is to be at home grubbing out items from a vein of news that grades just so so, and is much harder to come by than at any other time of the year. Besides that, if the subscriber misses an occasional issue, he thinks more of it when he does get it.

Newspapers in a Day. How much of a newspaper could The Hesperian make up in a day? We don't know at the moment but we shall know in a few hours when we put this week's issue "to bed." Christmas often makes a problem in country printing shops, and for that matter, so does the Fourth of July. This week Christmas comes on Tuesday. It cuts the work week two-thirds in two. Saturday an off-day for news that has not matured, Sunday for a breather. Monday being Christmas Eve is minus anything to amount to anything in the way of business. Tuesday is Christmas day and Wednesday is the day after when the people bring back what they got for Christmas to get a size bigger. Then comes Thursday when the contract call for to deliver 2,500 or 3,000 or so newspapers. So tonight we'll have something put together. We hope the public does not eye it too critically.

Meador's Rain Gauge. Newsmen of the southwest are chuckling over Matador Douglas Meador's dilemma with the rain gauge the banker gave him. Meador already had a partnership rain gauge on a tall pole out back of the office. The last look he took at it it was almost full—one refuge chinch bug, a few pieces of broken tumbleweed and two dried mesquite leaves. But when the banker decided he was tired of keeping his he decided to give it to Meador, who is the editor of The Matador Tribune. Meador decided just to keep the gift rain gauge on his desk in the interest of accuracy. He could look at it any time that way and quickly check up on it. "It also comes in handy," said the newspaperman philosophically, "as a paper weight to hold down past due notices from the bank."

Lower Water Table. The water table is lowering on the high plains and there is no reason to look the other way. This bald fact is being faced realistically by farmers and such agencies as the High Plains Underground Water District. The latter has in mind some measures which might be taken to help in the matter. Little use, perhaps, to scold about wasted water in the lakes and bar ditches. Trying to make a man save the water that comes from his well is lost time, is it not? He has the water and he doesn't miss it now. In fact, he won't until the well runs dry. But there are other things, such as re-charging the sands, finding better ways to use the water, well spacing, all of which will help. Water that has lasted through seven years of drought undoubtedly can be replenished through these means on a long range basis. But somebody has to do the thinking and the maneuvering to get people and the powers that be to go along on a plan or plans.

Highlights And Sidelights From the State Capitol

AUSTIN — First appointment of incoming Gov. Price Daniel is that of a new secretary of state. Chosen for the job was Zollic Steakley, 48-year-old Austin and Sweetwater attorney.

Steakley will succeed Tom Reaveley in the $15,000-a-year post. Term of office runs concurrently with the governor's. Duties are many. Included are granting of corporate charters, approving securities issues, handling election returns.

Steakley, who served as assistant attorney general under Gerald Mann and Grover Sellers, has been in private practice in Austin for the past 10 years. He said he will sever all connections with his law firm before taking office.

Scores of other pending appointments promise to spice Texas news through the holidays and into the new year. In some cases, the issue is not only who will be appointed, but who will do the appointing. After he is inaugurated, Daniel will have some 200 posts to fill. Incoming Atty. Gen. Will Wilson can appoint 43 assistants.

But some 70 vacancies in state agencies, college boards and judicial posts will occur before Gov. Shivers leaves office Jan. 15. He can make these appointments or leave them to his successor. Custom varies. In a few past instances, sharp controversy has arisen between outgoing and incoming executives as to who should make these "twilight appointments."

Other appointments already announced include: To the Insurance Commission, John Osorio, 35-year-old Austin attorney and executive secretary to the governor, by Gov. Shivers. Osorio will replace Byron Saunders who leaves Jan. 1 to take a Dallas insurance job. Osorio's new job pays $15,000 a year; term runs until February, 1959. If he inherits Saunders' assignment on the Commission, he will have supervision of the life segment of the Texas insurance industry.

COUNCIL RECOMMENDATIONS — Texas Legislative Council has submitted a blueprint for action on some of the 55th session's toughest issues.

A joint House-Senate group, the Council studies major problems between sessions, then makes recommendations. Included in the proposals for 1957 are: (1) Annual salaries for legislators and $3,000-a-year salaries for outside activities of legislators, (2) requiring registration and expense reports by lobbyists, (3) outlawing "chapter seven" combination surety-trust companies such as US Trust and Guaranty, (4) making the State Hospital Board responsible for the criminally insane.

FIRST RIGHT-OF-WAY — A new era in highway building was launched with the first purchase of right-of-way with state funds. Since passage of the federal highway aid bill, the State Highway Department has inaugurated a policy of buying land for interstate highways. Previously, the department paid only for construction.

First tract bought will be used in making an expressway of U. S. 67 between Dallas and Texarkana. State Highway Engineer D. C. Greer emphasized that the new policy applies only to the interstate system.

LAND BOARD OFFERS TRACT — Veterans Land Board is advertising for bids on some 56 tracts of land over the state. Tracts, forfeited by their veteran purchasers, are now available to other veterans. Bids will be accepted until Feb. 5, 1957, the date when the board will open them.

Further information can be obtained by writing the Veterans Land Board in Austin.

HANDS OFF, SAYS GOP — Texas' top Republican has called on his fellow party members to stay out of Democratic Party affairs. H. J. (Jack) Porter, national committeeman, urged this policy when the party's leaders came to Austin for electoral balloting and an executive committee meeting.

Porter said Republicans have tipped the balance in the Democrats' liberal-conservative battles. But from now on, he said, the GOP would concentrate on its own candidates.

SHORT SNORTS — For the second time in recent weeks a Capitol reporter was asked to leave an official meeting. Kenneth Towery, Pulitzer Prize-winning former Cuero Record editor, now an Austin American-Statesman reporter, was barred from a joint meeting of the Legislative Budget Board Hospital Board so "discuss matters frankly."

Judgments obtained by the Veterans Land Board added $680,078 to funds from improper sales and program.

West Texas Construction Boom 1956 To Continue Into 1957

(Sp) — Eighty-seven cities experienced a construction boom in 1956 that totaled 80 million dollars, according to a study conducted by West Texas Chamber of Commerce. The monthly publication of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce for 1957 indicates that the boom will continue, and probably exceed that recorded in the 12 preceding months. Results of the study are published in the December issue of the magazine.

Of the 80 million dollars spent in the construction industry in 1956, more than half of the money was for construction of residential buildings. Residential construction totaled $202,464,510.

Commercial construction, which accounted for almost 30 million dollars, was the second largest category of construction. Each dollar of construction cost more than 27 million dollars, ranked third in construction.

Major projects which comprise a percentage of each construction dollar were: sewer and water lines; 27 million dollars; construction and paving, 14 million; and federal buildings, 11 million; and city and county buildings, more than five million.

Approximately two million dollars was spent on church construction. Miscellaneous types of construction accounted for more than 10 million dollars.

Estimates are based on data for city and county construction, announced by businesses and industries. Allocations for military construction are expected to lead in the total construction dollars spent, although it is expected that 1957 dwellings will not be as large a percentage as in 1956. Commercial construction will be up considerably, as will school construction.
