Floyd County Blessed With More Scattered Showers

Rains Continue To Miss Dry Lakeview Community

Although no general rain has saturated the Floydada and Floyd county trade area, scattered thunderheads continue to pour out needed "cotton showers" to almost every community in the area.

One community, Lakeview, located in the south part of the county continued to irrigate and hope for some of the welcome moisture.

Rains came to this area last Friday afternoon, early Saturday morning and Saturday afternoon. More thunder showers developed Monday night and cloudy weather was appreciated by everyone all day Tuesday with more showers.

Crops continue to grow and look very good all over the county. Although the cotton in the north part of the county is late, it has a good chance to produce an average crop — if a normal freeze of November 3 comes this fall.

Reports of rainfall in the past week include: Two inches at Center, one half to one and a half inches at Dougherty, one half inch to two inches at Fairview. Flocmont area continues to get showers about every week.

Harmony community received 1.8. In the South Plains Community L. N. Johnson received 1.25, Frank McClure, 1.00, Mrs. Skeet Thornton, 2.00; Roy Burks .60; Fred Fortenberry, 1.00; Murray Julian, 2.00; and Herman Thornton, .50.

From an inch to an inch and a half was reported just east of Floydada Monday night. Ernest Fall at Fairview received an inch Monday night.

Over in the northeast area of the county, Frank Floyd five miles northeast of Cedar Hill received a shower Monday night and 1.2 inches Friday and Saturday.

Homecoming At Harmony Tonite

Residents of the Harmony Community and former residents are reminded of their annual Homecoming which is scheduled to be held tonight (Thursday) starting at 8 o'clock.

Those attending are asked to either bring a freezer of ice cream or a cake for the ice cream supper.

An evening of good fellowship is promised.

Lloyd And Trice In Auto Accident

Autos driven by Lee Trice and Johnny Lloyd collided on the Lakeview road about 7:15 Sunday evening with extensive damage to both vehicles.

Trice was traveling north about a mile south of the Matador highway when Lloyd drove into the highway right-of-way from a side road.

Mrs. Trice was most seriously injured, admitted to Peoples Hospital with a broken toe and contusions of the leg and arm. Also in the Trice auto was Kress sophomore Lanette McClure, granddaughter of the Trices, who was not seriously injured. Lloyd also was not seriously injured.

Highway patrolmen from Plainview investigated the accident.

Also parents of students in grades 1 through 5 who have moved into this district since the close of the last semester are asked to come the same day for their room assignment.

All students who will attend Andrews Ward are to register on Thursday morning, August 29th at which time books will be issued and information of the school schedule will be given.

Boll Weevils Again Hit Dougherty

There's no doubt about it now — the boll weevils in the southeast area of Floyd county in the Dougherty vicinity weathered one of the coldest winters ever and is back chomping on bale to bale and a half acre cotton.

Ralph Johnston's farm south of Dougherty is hit again with boll weevils, possibly not as bad as last year's infestation. Johnston reports that entomologists from Lubbock are trying some new insecticides on the boll weevils, and said that he still had hopes of making a bale to the acre.

Johnston said he had heard reports of other farmers in the area who have found boll weevils — some over in Crosby county.

The entire Plains cotton industry is watching this area closely — if the boll weevil gets a foothold and can live on the plains it is possible that he will continue to advance to the nation's most productive cotton area.

CICADA... Lynn Fowler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Mack Fowler of Floydada holds a cicada (locust) for all to see. Thousands are in the city now, burrowing holes in the ground, and making plenty of noise.

Swarming Cicadas Descend On Floydada

Children are enjoying that insect that has small, bristlelike antennae and two pairs of thickly veined wings. Most cicadas live in tropical and sub-tropical countries, but many live in North America.

Kinds of Cicadas. The most common American cicada is the 17-year locust, or periodical cicada, which lives mostly in the Eastern states. It has a life span of 17 years in the Northern states, and 13 years in the Southern states. The 17-year locust is not related to the true locusts, which are grasshoppers.

Adult periodical cicada is a dark insect with a stout body about 1 1/4 inches long. It has orange colored eyes, legs and wing veins. Several groups, or broods of the periodical cicada exist in the United States. They hatch at different times. Thus, periodical cicadas appear in some localities almost any year. But the end of their abdomen. Cicadas can do much damage to wild and cultivated trees. The holes the female cicada makes in the twigs weaken them so that they sometimes break off.

The eggs hatch in a few days. Young cicadas have no wings and are called nymphs. They drop to the ground as soon as they hatch, and tunnel several inches below the surface of the earth. They stay underground until they are mature. The mature nymph of the periodical cicada comes out of the ground in the spring of its thirteenth or seventeenth year. It climbs onto a tree or shrub and sheds its skin, emerging as an adult. Some kinds of cicadas also produce other sounds, including chirps and clicks. The females lay their eggs in adults die before winter.

Habits. Male cicadas produce a peculiar buzzing sound with drumlike membranes located inside the muscles. Scientists believe that this sound is the mating call of the cicada. The shrill, monotonous sound may be heard coming from trees all day during the hot summer months. A large number of male cicadas can produce a deafening sound. Some kinds of cicadas also produce other sounds, including chirps and clicks. The females lay their eggs in adults die before winter.

worked the lighting on the west side, installing new poles and these and the fence have been moved back to give more room around the home team bench.

There will also be at least 13 new faces peering out from under Whirlwind helmets that were filled a year ago by members of the '63 senior class.

The "experts" who poll coaches at the coaching school have tabbed Canyon as the team to beat in District 2AA this fall. The Eagles won the title last fall and that seems to make them the favorite again even though they did lose 13 seniors and all but two of their starters.

Behind Canyon they named Tulia as the number two team. The Hornets represent another big school for AA ranks and were tough last year. They finished third in the district and graduated nine lettermen, seven of which were starters.

Floydada was named as the third choice for the championship. The Whirlwinds return some 11 or 12 lettermen if all show up for practice. The "Winds" had a fair Freshman and B Team to back up the varsity program. The Whirlwinds always consider themselves as district favorites until some one shows them otherwise.

Nature Does Not Replace Water As Fast As It Is Pumped

Did you know that in the High Plains region of Texas underground water is a depletable resource?

For most of you who read this article, this is an elementary question. Nearly every adult who is capable of reading and who has lived in this area for any appreciable length of time knows that, for practical purposes, when underground water is pumped from the reservoir it is "mined" in much the same manner as coal, gold, or oil is mined from its subterranean hiding place. Nature does not replace the water nearly so rapidly as it is pumped.

Knowing full well that these are the facts concerning the underground water supply with which we've been endowed, some irrigators still do not recognize a need for personal responsibility in the field of water conservation.

An official with the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District has been contacted and asked about the end results that wasteful practices will bring about.

Tom McFarland, Manager of the Water District, was asked, "Why do some irrigators allow water to run off their cropland into the road bar-ditches and dry lake beds?"

His answer was enlightening. "In working with problems of waste, we're attempting to change a habit - we think a very bad habit - that has been formed during years of irrigating and allowing water to escape the land. In many cases the fellow has been doing it that way so long that it's become second-nature to him. He may not even realize that he is actually wasting water. He may feel that losing water is just part of irrigating."

"Of course, this is where our job enters the picture in convincing him that the water he wastes is water that brings absolutely no benefits to anyone and actually costs him money to pump."

We then asked McFarland about the power that the Water District has to enforce their rules against waste.

He said, "Under the provisions of the law, we have the right to initiate legal proceedings against those who waste water. If we can prove to the court that waste is occurring, then an order will be issued by the court ordering and Johnny of Lockney, to Red that it be stopped."

"Of course, this process is not only expensive but it is also un-Mrs. Turner Hunter and Mr. and Mrs. Audrey McCormick, the latter of Lockney. The family group enjoyed several days of vacationing before returning to their respective homes Sunday night."

H. E. Edwards returned home Monday from Methodist where last Wednesday he underwent an emergency surgery for a perforated ulcer. Mr. Edwards is reported doing nicely but his recuperation will be lengthy, it was said.

It's strange that the more you progress that the Water District is making in alleviating waste.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Lipham are parents of a daughter who was born on August 31, weighing eight pounds and four ounces. The baby has been named Julianne Dowlene. The baby has two sisters and three brothers. Mr. Lipham is a truck driver.

Grandparents are Mrs. Dena Myrick of Floydada and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Lipham of Matador. The baby was named for her late grandfather, Henry Dow Myrick.

tion with the claim for refunds sent to the State Comptroller's office. The gasoline used on an operator's farm by custom contractors is also eligible for a refund, points out Bates, but fuel used in highway travel is not.

The special postcard form, 2240, is the proper one to use to submit fuel claims, says Bates, and they have been mailed to operators who reported in 1962. New farmers and those who have not received the Form 2240, may obtain them from the office of the county extension agent or the area offices of Internal Revenue Service, he says.

Bates reminds that claims are subject to audit, just as other reports submitted to the Internal Revenue Service, and records should be kept to support refund claims. The specialist emphasizes that the deadline for reporting claims is September 30.

Mrs. S. D. Hunter accompanied her family. Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Thacker and children, Jane River last Wednesday and were joined there Friday by Mr. and Mrs. Turner Hunter and Mr. and Mrs. Audrey McCormick, the latter of Lockney. The family group enjoyed several days of vacationing before returning to their respective homes Sunday night.

H. E. Edwards returned home Monday from Methodist where last Wednesday he underwent an emergency surgery for a perforated ulcer. Mr. Edwards is reported doing nicely but his recuperation will be lengthy, it was said.

Refund Claims Due September 30

Keeler's Reward

Christine Keeler, the character who managed to lead a number of men astray, has — according to reliable estimates — now amassed something like $130,000 for her magazine story rights, a film, a newspaper serialization, and other rights.

She is not charged anything by the police or law enforcement officials. On the contrary, she has assumed the pose of a celebrity, has opened new business ventures to capitalize on her "accomplishments" and seems to be on the way to fame and fortune.

One of the men she lured has seen his career and reputation shattered, his future, which was one of the brightest in Great Britain, badly impaired, and his social position wrecked. He lost his job, his royal privileges and his future — perhaps much of his happiness and well being.

What kind of society is it, in which we live, that can so reward a character like Christine Keeler and so destroy men whom she lures into the trap? Why should she, who is primarily the cause of it all, become a celebrity of a sort, riding to riches on her deeds, while victims are so shattered?

What a sad commentary it is on what people want to read, and what they want to see, that such a person becomes wealthy by such conduct, while others, with whom she is at least equally guilty, must pay the price! How repugnant it is to see the process in action, and hear so much about the Keeler financial rewards!

Ridiculing Congress

The current vogue is ridicule of Congress. Any number of public spirited citizens are demanding the power of Congress be curbed, its system changed, to speed enactment of legislation and the general transaction of business.

Criticism of Congress is not new. Every time Congress refuses to act when great public sentiment and pressure have generated, there is disillusionment and bitter criticism. But in all this ridicule of Congress and its legislative processes, we should keep in mind certain points.

First, Congress is closer to the people than the executive and judicial branches. The members must be elected regularly by the people. Supreme Court Justices are beyond the reach of the electorate. The President's thousands of executive appointees need not answer to the taxpayer directly, either, and today the executive branch wields more power and counts vastly more employes, than ever before.

The slowness of Congress, its traditional processes, its respect for minority sentiment, all these will be enjoyed at one time or another by every minority and all of us belonging to the minority at times. It is a safeguard, a stabilizing feature of the government of the Republic, ridiculed all too often by sophisticates who fail to understand there is a tyranny of the majority.

GUEST EDITORIALS

Water, Water... Anywhere?

We've been looking for a Main Street fight any day now.

Two or three of our more out-spoken and impetuous citizens have indicated that they have been mad enough to dip snuff lately.

One neighbor who spent 45 minutes waiting for two inches of bath water exercised unusual control when an acquaintance voiced opposition to the proposed water program.

With just regular shaving and drinking water on the short list, anyone who suggests he wouldn't vote for a good supply of water is in danger of not only hell fire but a poke in the puss as well.

However it appears that opposition to water — from anywhere or under any conditions — is being cut off drop by drop.

And any doubt that the water election would encounter anything more than token opposition was dispelled this week when Garden Club members rose up in arms.

A man shaving with a cup of solid gyp water may be fearful, but hell hath never known the fury of a woman standing over a dying juniper shrub with an empty water hose.

Life (Without TV) Can Be Beautiful

Thanks to the summer re-runs, intelligence-insulting commercials and downright immoral shows, the four people who call our house home have discovered something new:

Life's even greater without television. It had become a habit to click the thing on almost as soon as we entered the house each afternoon or evening. Whether there was anything worth watching or not, the set had to be turned on.

And so long as it was, we were content to sit in front of it with eyes fixed in a glassy stare and there was seldom a thought of conversation, for we might miss a word or a sentence coming from the TV speaker.

Then one evening we pulled out the hammock and opened the lawn chairs in the backyard to sit for awhile during the cool hours.

Why, we even dragged out the telescope which had stood unused for so long in the closet, and spent an enjoyable hour or so viewing the craters on the moon.

Who knows, maybe we'll stir up enough ambition before long to put up the badminton or volleyball set or play a little croquet.

After 10 years with a TV set, we wonder if the old bones can stand the strain.

It Won't Be Goldwater

The country today has no more intention of electing a Barry Goldwater and what he stands for than it has of electing a Nikita Khrushchev. The country will continue to elect Republicans and Democrats... but in either case, the one elected will not be a right winger.

All of this is to say that Goldwater has not the slightest chance of getting the GOP nomination next year if the practical politicians in the Republican party have their way. They may favor Goldwater... but they are not going to back financially a horse that has lost even before the race begins. It was the same way in 1952. Most Republicans preferred Taft to Eisenhower. Taft was much more a symbol of Republican politics. But they were willing to compromise and nominate smiling Ike because of his appeal not to the Republicans but to the masses of voters. In 1952, the Republicans wanted victory more than they wanted martyrdom to a cause.

It may also be predicted that Governor Rockefeller, due to his marital difficulties, has not the slightest chance of getting the nomination. Americans are too emotional and sentimental to have Happy Rockefeller as first lady.

Romney and Scranton aren't serious contenders. It all boils down to the fact of life that Richard Nixon will probably be the GOP nominee in 1964. He ran a good race in 1960, and with Goldwater and Rockefeller eliminated, he is just about the only choice left.

Our choice for the GOP nomination is Goldwater because he would be the easiest to defeat. Also, we want it demonstrated to the Wes Izzards, the Robert Welches, the Dan Smoots, the General Walkers, the Billy Hargises, that when given the clearest choice between a 19th century conservative and a 20th century Democrat, the conservative hasn't got a chance. Should either Nixon or Rockefeller be nominated and later defeated by Kennedy, this clan of die hards would still mouth the old charge that "the people didn't have a choice."

Dear Fellow Texan:

In the fiscal 1964 federal budget submitted to Congress, a total of $88 Million in navigation and flood control projects was included for Texas.

Recently I appeared before the Senate Public Works Appropriations Subcommittee with delegations from Texas to recommend the addition of other vitally needed water development projects for our State.

I am very pleased that President Kennedy has sent to Congress an amendment to the 1964 budget request adding funds for three of the projects that I had supported along with other members of the Texas Congressional delegation and some local groups.

$150,000 FOR ADDITIONAL PROJECTS.

The three added projects and the amounts recommended are: $800,000 to start construction on the Brazos-Island Harbor project at Brownsville to complete the job of providing a safe channel to the harbor; $200,000 for planning of the Wallisville Reservoir and Salt Water Barrier to aid in providing an adequate water supply for Metropolitan Houston; and $150,000 for pre-construction planning on the Lavon Reservoir Wylie and Lavon to provide flood control of farmland and water storage for city and industrial use.

TEXAS WATER CONSERVATION URGENT
In the next twelve years water development plans for Texas call for expenditure of $660 Million for new dams and reservoirs. With the memory of the long drought of the 1950's to remind us of the urgency of these projects and their importance to our state's economy, I also co-sponsored a bill that has now passed the Senate to provide funds to states on a matching basis to set up water research centers at land grant colleges and state universities and their branches.

Personally I'd like to see some of the money being wasted on foreign aid diverted from countries that don't need it to sections of our own country that do.

REPORTS TO THE PEOPLE OF TEXAS

In my continuing weekend reports to the people of Texas, I visited Jefferson and Orange counties.

Floyd Philosopher Wil ling To Take On Rain-Making Job If He's Giv en Wide Territory

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm must need a rain, his letter this week indicates.

Dear editor:

According to an article I ran across in a newspaper which a dry August wind blew across my front screen door and which I pulled off as fast as I could because it was stopping what breeze there was, a scientist claims that rain-making is now within the reach of man but before he goes any further we've got to have a sort of Rain Commission to decide where and when a rain should be produced, for legal protection.

Regardless of how dry it is in any given spot, he said, some farmer can always be found who doesn't want it to rain at this particular moment, he's still got a crop he's gathering and next week would be a better time.

Therefore he claims, we need a National Rain Commission to decide when the majority need a rain then turn it on, regardless.

This seems to me to be just another example of needless government spending. There's no need to set up a government bureau. I can handle this job on my own. It's a job for private enterprise.

If the government will stick to drouth relief and turn all the rain over to me, and let me make a nominal charge, I will contract to make it rain everywhere. The secret is to take in enough area. It's volume that counts.

My charge would be one cent per acre for every acre that gets
