County Farmers Commit 4,000 Sugar Beet Acres

100 Attend Annual Chamber Of Commerce Banquet

High Plains Area Submits 50,000

Inquiry May Still Be Pending, Says Waggoner Carr

The inquiry into the Lee Harvey Oswald case will be needed, Texas Attorney General Waggoner Carr said today. Carr told 450 Chamber of Commerce members, guests and guests at the annual Chamber Banquet last Friday night at 7:30 in the high school gymnasium. Carr said, "this investigation will be the most thorough of this kind ever conducted."

A large number of special guests attended the banquet, and several came from great distances to be there. Some came from as far away as Topeka, Kans., Japan, and Italy. Actually the ones from out of the country are exchange students in the Lockney and Floydada schools.

The first item on the program featured the well-known Della Plains High School Choir under the direction of Miss F. L. Lovelady, that presented a number of selections by the entire choir and by the octet. The performance by the group drew applause from the crowd until they had returned to the seats.

Rev. Roy Turner, pastor of the First Christian Church delivered the invocation, followed by the introduction of guests by Wendell Tooley who is Vice-President of the Chamber 1964-65.

The introduction of the outgoing officers was by Don Pemberton, retiring president, and the introduction of the new officers was by Wayne Brown the incoming president of the organization.

The introduction of the honored speaker, Attorney General Waggoner Carr was by John B. Stapleton, the District Attorney of the 10th Judicial District of Texas.

When Carr took the stand he received a standing ovation from the crowd. Carr stated that he had a speech planned to present to the group, but coming from the airport, he heard on the radio about the testimony being given by Mrs. Oswald.

Floyd In State's Top Ten In Cotton Ginned

According to a report from the Department of Commerce, Bureau Census, Floyd County's Cotton production of 112,515 total bales ginned, puts the county in the top ten cotton producing counties in the state. The county narrowly edged Bailey County out of the tenth place spot by only 412 bales, and Cameron, which beat Floyd last year, by 2,172.

Lubbock was once again the leader in total bales even though the total for that county was 45,000 bales less than the 1962 production. Of the top ten counties, however, only Lynn, Dawson and Floyd counties produced more cotton in 1963 than in 1962.

The total for Floyd ran well above all estimates for the crop, the first of which was a mere 32,000 bales. A later figure set the estimate at 100,000 bales and finally during the harvest season, FCG in Lubbock set the expected production at 108,000 bales.

Floyd's allotment was 92,000 acres which reveals that the county average was well above a bale to the acre. Based on the figures on the basis that a bale produces 500 pounds of lint, the county produced 605 pounds of lint.

Four Churches Complete Census

A community-wide census taken by four of the local churches was completed Monday afternoon. Almost every home was covered in the census.

Purpose of the event was, in addition to finding what percentage of the community people attend church, to find new prospect for the churches, find where people were members of churches, whether locally or out of the area, and to try to enlist through visitation and other means those who aren't members of a local church.

The churches taking part in the census were the First Baptist, the First Methodist, the First Christian and the City Park Church of Christ.

SEFF Planned By Methodist And First Christian Churches

A series of Sunday Evening Family Fellowship meetings are planned jointly by the First Methodist and the First Christian Churches of Floydada, beginning February 23 and extending through March 15. The meetings are scheduled from 6:00 until 8:30 each of the four Sunday evenings with a different speaker delivering the sermon each night.

The purpose of the meetings is two-fold. First to provide opportunities for members of the families of the participating churches to share in Christian fellowship, study, and worship. Second - to provide some special interest-study groups based on personal needs and interest, conducted in an informal atmosphere, for opportunities in Christian growth.

The hymn service and music will be under the leadership of Mrs. Ed Wester. Lana Davis will be at the organ and Vicki Gregory at the piano. Choir and choir members will present special music each Sunday evening. Child care is made available for the four evenings from 6:00 until 8:30 p. m. Crib babies and toddlers will be cared for in Nursery I and II. The two-year olds will be cared for in Nursery III. The children may be left in the Nursery the entire time or until the parents leave after Fellowship Time. If children are to remain throughout the evening, it is requested that parents do not disturb them between periods.

Books will be available for sale and display in the areas of study for adult study groups. No "text" as such is required for reading, but the benefits of reading material which are related to the study areas is obvious.

The Worship Speakers will be Rev. Roy King, Rev. Charles Lutrick and Rev. Roy Turner. On the final night the people will join the fellowship in worship as the pastors lead in The Sacrament of The Lord's Supper.

Tuesday night was the deadline for farmers who were interested in growing sugar beets for a proposed mill to be constructed at Plainview to sign commitments. The acreage for which one signed will not be effective before the 1966 crop year. Floyd farmers signed for over 5,000 acres and the High Plains total is well over 50,000. 25,000 acres were needed.

The main purpose of the commitments, at the present time, is for a number of the members of the Hi Plains Sugar Beet Growers Association to take a feasibility report to Washington to present to the Department of Agriculture officials, in an attempt to convince the officials that the High Plains of Texas is the most likely place, and the most feasible place for a sugar beet mill. The presentation is scheduled Friday morning in Washington, D. C.

Public Schools Week Set Here March 2-6

The fourteenth observance of Public Schools Week is set for March 2 through 6, and a number of activities will be planned for the event in this area. The purpose of the week is to bring the parents and the school a little closer together.

A part of the proclamation signed by Governor John Connally states that "During this period, parents are encouraged to visit the public schools, and all citizens are urged through special programs to recognize the tremendous importance of our system of education."

Never before in our history has there been a greater need for educated leadership. As we rush to train young people in science and technology to keep pace with world events, it is also important to remember that our public schools will furnish the basic human, moral and spiritual foundations necessary for more advanced training and knowledge.

Jimmie Wilson, Jr., is chairman of Public Schools Week for this area. Chairmen of the individual schools are for South Plains, Roy Bledsoe, Dougherty, Henry Hinton, Lakeview, Fred Jones, and Floydada B. A. Robertson.

WHIRLWINDS IN DISTRICT RACE

Final Game Here Friday Night

The final conference basketball game of the season for the Floydada High School teams will be played here Friday night beginning at 7:00 p. m. in Graves Gymnasium against Canyon.

At the present time the Whirlwinds are in position to tie the district, if they can win Friday night. The Winds conference record stands at 5-2 compared with Canyon's 6-1. If the local boys defeat Canyon tomorrow night, then each team will stand 6-2, and a playoff game would be held to determine the district champion.

The Whirllette story is a little different. The girls must defeat Canyon here tomorrow night, and Tulia must overcome Abernathy, to put the Whirllettes in a tie with Abernathy. The loss Tuesday night to Abernathy was a surprise and now is a great stumbling block in the district area.

If the Whirllettes are victorious Friday night, and if Tulia defeats Abernathy, then there will be a playoff to determine the district champion. Earlier in the season, Abernathy downed Tulia at Tulia, which gives Abernathy a great psychological advantage.

In Tuesday night's games, the Winds were victorious by 3 points and the girls lost a heart breaker by three points. The Whirllette story is a little different. The girls must defeat Whirlettes only other loss in district play was by one point. The boys won their game in a three minute overtime period.

During the last minute of play in the ball game, the boys were trailing by three points. Lon Miller was the boy who came through to save the day, though, for he sank a field goal and a free throw in the last 40 seconds to tie the score and force the game into an overtime. The Winds were then able to overcome Abernathy 76-73.

Six of the boys scored in the double figures. They were, Gilliland with 13, Rainer with 14, Moore with 10, Teague with 15, Wilson with 10 and Johnson with 11 points, which shows a good balanced team effort.

The Whirllettes were leading Abernathy the entire game until the last few minutes of play. At the end of the first quarter the score was 15-7 in favor of Floydada, and at halftime it was 31-26. At the end of the third period the score stood at 41-40 with the locals still on top. However in the last stanza Abernathy overtook the Whirllettes and the ball game was nip-and-tuck from there on out. The final score was Abernathy 52, Floydada, 49.

Dee Wilson and Shirley Rainer were top scorers for the locals with 18 points each, and Donna Webb paced Abernathy, with 20 points.

Kids On Street Signs Discussed By Council

Regular monthly meeting Tuesday night, the City Council discussed a number of items that had been received previously by the City Manager from the Street Sign Manufacturer.

A bid for the signs was from Rohan Sign Company and next was a bid from Sowell setting the signs at $1,674 for street signs. However, the bid did not include the installation costs.

Presently, the committee has raised a total of $2,000, which is enough to purchase the signs. However, the posts and the concrete for the base of the post will cost an additional $900. Therefore, the committee has yet to raise about $400-$500, a large portion of which was previously committed but not collected. The committee will refer the project back to the fund raising committee for

American Housewife Worried About Imported Beef For Sale

(Editor's Note) The following article from the Arizona Cattle Feeders' Association was brought to the Hesperian Office by a local cattleman and businessman. It casts some light on the import beef problem that is a grave concern to local cattlemen.

"Millions of American housewives are concerned about the origin and source of the food they buy and prepare for their families. The remarkable story which follows describes what happened when Mrs. T. Elizabeth Cook, a 33-year-old Pomona, California, housewife who was born in New York, decided to back up her concern with action. Mrs. Cook by the way, is not in any way involved in the livestock business. When the Western Livestock Journal got wind of her one-woman campaign we asked her to give us a blow-by-blow account of it. Every word which follows is her own, WLJ editors have not changed a single letter, comma or period. If Mrs. Cook's campaign succeeds, the beef cattle industry will undoubtedly erect a statue in her honor. (The foregoing is the WLJ introductory paragraph.)

"Although I am not engaged in any form of livestock production, the recent article in the Wall Street Journal gave 1.5 billion pounds of meat as the import figure for the United States January to June, 1963, shocked me. Simple division tells that the 'average' rancher runs 180 head of livestock, that 9,333 American families are at once depressed by this onslaught.

But where, I wondered, is all the meat? It cannot all be lunch meat stamped "Import," that I've seen in the markets. It is not all "Danish Canned Ham" which is in fewer and fewer markets in smaller displays recently. Some is beef, some is lamb — where is it? I called the butcher of a local chain market and asked him. This proved to be only the beginning of an inquiry that lasted from 9:00 A. M. to 2:00 P. M. December 23rd.

The butcher, I learned, was delighted to hear from me. He'd been on the carpet more than once with the company as he waged a one-man "controlled war" on the imports he was forced to deal with. Frozen legs of lamb and frozen fish were all he knew of personally. I then called the meat buyer for the chain and was informed that legs of lamb were all he knew of and each of these was labeled "Product of New Zealand" or "Product of Australia." He said he believed company policy would be to always label imports as such.

Then I called a meat packer. I asked him if all imported meat was so labeled when it left the packer for the retail market. He said "No. The country of origin is stamped on the carton when it arrives. It loses its identity when it leaves the packers."

"Why?" "We aren't required to label it," he replied.

So I called the U. S. Department of Commerce and inquired of the law on imports. "All imports must be labeled with the country of origin unless they reach the ultimate consumer."

"What about meat?" "Oh, Well, meat is considered to have reached the ultimate consumer when it reaches the packing house."

Now isn't that a little ridiculous? Ultimate consumer; ultimate — "being last, utmost, furthest, extreme, final," according to Webster.

I then called the office of 49th District Assemblyman Houston I. Flournoy and talked with his assistant, Charles Elwell. I gave poor Mr. Elwell both barrels of shot — 1.5 million lbs., 9,333 families, lunch meat, legs of lamb, frozen fish. I gave him the incredible logic of someone in the Department of Commerce who clearly does not use a dictionary often enough.

Mr. Elwell wanted, naturally, to know which side of my axe I was sharpening. I explained as an American Consumer I was honing both sides. I reserve the right to know where each of my dollars goes, and, knowing, to accept or reject any meat in the counter. The decision is mine alone. Not the Secretary of State, the Department of Commerce, nor any Presidential Aide shall say what I cook.

"Are you worried about the safety of the meat?" "I am concerned about the label import. The meat is USDA inspected, I'm told. Let them worry about the safety."

Small Percent Floyd Vehicles Are Inspected

A feature of the World Day of Prayer program this year will be an actual chain of prayer taking place in the Methodist Chapel during the time that the program is in progress in the sanctuary. At fifteen minute intervals, women will alternate in prayer representing the nation's chain of prayers around the world.

All interested persons are urged to attend the program in the sanctuary of the Methodist Church at 10:00 A. M. Friday.

New Priest For Area Churches Is Installed

Rev. Paul A. Link was formally installed as pastor of St. Joseph Catholic Church in Lockney and of the Church of Magdalen in Floydada recently. The Right Rev. The formal ceremony began with the ringing of bells. A procession was formed at the parish house and consisted of an acolyte bearing the cross and followed by members of the parish societies and other young men of the church.

The Rt. Rev. Morsch presented the keys of the church, the Book of Holy Gospel, the sacred vessels, the altar of the church and other articles used in church ceremonies. Holy Mass concluded the services.

The church congregation honored Father Link with a welcome party, Sunday afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock. Rev. Curtis A. Halfmann, former priest of the church, was honored with a going-away party, Jan. 28. Father Halfmann moved to Lubbock, where he is a pastor of Our Lady of Grace Church.

been discussed concerning castor beans, cucumbers and sugar beets. It's enough to make an old farm boy like myself want to start farming . . . but not out. In the case of cucumbers there's a guaranteed market and price, the same thing is true in the castorbean and sugar beet contracts. Fortunately we have Floyd County farmers who are experienced in raising all three crops, and they, better than anyone can tell an interested person whether or not each crop is a money maker and can afford plenty of advice.

It is evident that cucumbers are easy to raise, but the gathering of the crop is very hazardous, on the other hand special equipment and the convenience of a Colorado market are problems in the sugar beet situation.

There's no doubt in my mind that this water is getting more expensive each year and as it becomes weaker will certainly not be profitable for crops such as wheat and milo. The sugar beet situation will be very profitable if a mill can be located at Plainview. However, it is interesting to note that the forty some odd farmers who entered into the raising of 1,000 acres of beets in the Plainview area last year netted as much money as the average cotton farmer grosses per acre.

I'm still surprised that sugar beets grow better in a tight soil instead of sandy soil. I would have supposed that the Otton sugar beet farmers would have produced the best beets, but it was highly gratifying to see that the best beets were raised by Floyd county farmers.

Since I don't know beans about the big business of farming cotton, wheat and milo, I can't say what our farmers should do about these new crops, except to say that the day will certainly come when other money crops will be a necessity and now is a good time to venture a few acres in these new crops on an experimental basis.

A FOUR-YEAR-OLD answered the telephone attached to the kitchen wall. She climbed from chair to table to reach the telephone. The caller wanted to speak to mommy.

As the little girl climbed down, she dropped the telephone which hit the table with a clatter, fell off to swing from the spiral cord and bounced against the wall. She got her hands on the instrument and inquired of the caller, "Are you hurt?"

Lee Harvey Oswald, widow of the accused assassin of the late John F. Kennedy. He then proceeded to tell about the facts that have been found concerning the assassination and why the court of inquiry by the state was called off. The reasons for the inquiry in the first place were: to make all facts about the incident available; secondly, the Eastern and Northern presses had treated Texas roughly, and the inquiry should revert their remarks; to give the local authorities subpoena powers throughout the state, so the investigation could be completely thorough. However, the investigation got out of the State of Texas in a very short time.

When the investigation left the borders of the state, it was decided to pool the resources of the Federal and State Authorities. But the area of the investigation continued to increase and went outside the U. S.

If the inquiry now being conducted is not complete and does not bring in all the facts, then the Texas Court of Inquiry will be called. Carr said, "This investigation must be the most complete and thorough job of its kind ever conducted, for it must stand the test of the ages and criticisms of the future."

He said that no definite time can be set when the inquiries will be complete. . . it takes a long time to run things down when you have to go around the world to find the answers."

WE RAN a story recently saying that most of our community's cigarette smokers would probably continue to "light up" in spite of the government's report that they are harmful to health.

However, it is good to note in visiting with several fellows that they have decided to quit smoking and have gone two weeks now without lighting another cigarette.

Especially the person who decides to just stop . . . rather than "taper-off" is more successful at quitting the habit.

In fact some governmental agencies are thinking about requiring a label "harmful to health" to be placed on every cigarette sold.

They might as well go a little further and label all alcoholic beverages with the label "poison."

MANY OF our Floydada community people will remember a fellow by the name of Leo Jackson, who moved here at the age of six months with his parents from Oklahoma.

He made a great scholastic record and was an outstanding player on the high school football team.

In 1937 he graduated from West Texas State and secured a coaching job at Elmer High School. He married Betty Danner in 1938 and during the next five years after his marriage he was coach at Toluca and Okey.

He also coached at Cameron and Greenville high schools.

He moved to Irving in 1958 where he is Vice Principal and business manager of Athletics at Irving High School.

It is interesting to note that this home town boy has made good in his chosen profession and that he today is seeking election as Rotary Governor of District 391.

Many of us can remember the year 1947 (more or less) when Leo was trying to stay in college and the West Texas Club had been trying to help him financially from its Rotary Student Loan Fund. The fund played out and J. C. Wester clipped in and helped.

All this is to say that college educations were possibly more important and appreciated back in depression days when extra dollars were necessary and it is inspiring to see a home town boy make good in the face of the problems of getting an education in depression days.

True, many parents must make great sacrifices in this day and time . . . mothers take church dues . . . fathers drive old beat-up cars or a suit of clothes in order that the children can have a college education. We trust that students today attending college are as appreciative as Leo was in a letter to Mr. Wester the other day for the opportunity to improve themselves through a college education.

A LOCAL grocerman says his sales of cigars has greatly increased since the government's report on the harmful effects of cigarettes to the human body.

Comes another report on the smoking situation . . . a new report has reportedly been issued by the Surgeon General's office . . . "DON'T BELIEVE in circumstances . . . the people who get on in this world are people who get up and look for the circumstances they want, and if they can't find them, make them." Bernard Shaw.

A TEACHER asked each of the pupils in her kindergarten class how near he lived to the school and how long it took him to get home. She couldn't help smiling at one little boy's answer: "I must live pretty close because when I get home, my mother always says, 'Are you home already?'"

FIRST IMPRESSIONS are mighty important for a person . . . or a city. The four-lane highway into Floydada from the north . . . the four lane entrance on the Ralls highway give the visitor to or through Floydada a good impression of a nice little city.

The Highway department is beginning the turn of the wheels that will get a new entrance in the east doorway of our city toward Matador.

These are the fruits of road bonds that were voted several years ago and a wonderful asset to Floyd-County and Floydada. The Commissioner's Court can take credit along with the people for guiding this project and while we're bragging on the Commissioner's Court it's interesting to note that the county is almost out of bonded indebtedness.

Buses And Wheat

Great Britain's decision to sell $10 million worth of buses to Cuba was not vigorously protested in Congress for a simple reason.

The British move came at a time when the American government was trying to tighten its economic blockade around Cuba, but as one Congressman put it, "How can we protest Great Britain's plans to deal with the Communists when we have just okayed the sale of wheat to the Communists?"

Though we understandably flinched at the proposed British-Cuban deal, countries not a party to our dispute with Castro find it difficult to be bound by our embargo.

That especially holds true now that we have approved the wheat deal, which, on the surface, looked like a good way to get rid of our surplus commodities.

And, as one British official summed it up: "The United States has a surplus of wheat. We have a surplus of buses."

It looks like the door has been partially opened to full-scale trade with the Communist, thereby negating the desired effects of our embargo on Cuba.

If we want free-world nations to join in our squeeze on Castro, we must provide the example.

Smoking, Like Alcohol, Here To Stay

We fail to understand why it is that so many people fear that the tobacco industry will be damaged as a result of the recent report establishing the connection between smoking and lung cancer.

Some have even implied that the tobacco-producing states will suffer that radio, television and the newspapers not to mention outdoor advertising and magazines will be seriously affected by smaller advertising budgets since the tobacco industry is a major advertiser.

There is no precedent to indicate a decline in this industry because authorities have connected its product with lung cancer.

Take the liquor industry, for example. It is no secret that alcohol has been a physical problem as well as a social problem. It is no secret that it has wrecked marriages, careers, and bodies.

Yet the consumption of alcohol continues to rise in the face of the facts. Then there is the problem of reckless driving. Startling statistics show that the fast driver does not stop the drinking driver. "There is the problem of social disease . . . yet the knowledge of the problem in no way slowed promiscuity."

There is a threat of everlasting punishment proclaimed by the churches . . . yet few listen or are concerned. And these indifferent ones aren't primarily the atheists . . . they are persons who accept the orthodox doctrine of hell, but remain indifferent and unconcerned.

The night after the lung cancer report was made public we listened to a radio program in which smokers were asked their reactions to the report.

Although dozens of persons were interviewed, not one expressed an intention to abandon smoking. A few indicated they would like to quit but said quickly they knew they wouldn't.

The reaction of most smokers was indignation. Either they expressed disbelief in the government's report or they expressed their indignation at the government's attempt to control their smoking.

Now beginning the turn of the wheels that will get a new entrance in the east doorway of our city toward Matador. These are the fruits of road bonds that were voted several years ago and a wonderful asset to Floyd-County and Floydada. The Commissioner's Court can take credit along with the people for guiding this project and while we're bragging on the Commissioner's Court it's interesting to note that the county is almost out of bonded indebtedness.

The FFA In Texas Continues To Grow

By Clemon Montgomery, Executive Secretary, Texas Association, FFA. The Future Farmers of America organization is in its 33rd year in Texas — and it continues to grow, having over 39,702 members this year. These FFA members are boys who are studying vocational agriculture in approximately 969 high schools in Texas. In their vocational agriculture classes, students are provided an opportunity to secure technical and scientific training in agriculture as well as to receive training in leadership, citizenship, and cooperation.

In 1950 there were 711 FFA chapters in Texas with a membership of 28,643. Today, we have 875 chapters with over 39,000 members. The largest growth has come in the last three years since the membership increased over 3,000. In a recent study it was found that 52.2 per cent of the vocational agriculture graduates last year who were available for employment are now engaged in farming or in an agricultural related occupation. Approximately one-half of this number is in full-time farming.

Agriculture today is more than farming. It involves those who process and distribute many agricultural goods. Many people are employed in agricultural occupations such as engineers, scientists, management personnel, sales and service personnel, and educators, and full-time or hired labor. This group needs a sound education in continuing education to help keep them abreast of the rapidly changing technical and management aspects of farming.

Texas School Teacher's Salary $600 Below Average

AUSTIN — Texas public school teachers this year will receive a salary almost $600 below the national average — and Texas teachers will also be 25¢ below the states in salaries per teacher.

That was the statement today by Mrs. Elizabeth Little of Corpus Christi, state president of the Texas State Teachers Association. She based her statement on an annual national survey by the National Education Association, "Estimates of School Statistics, 1963-64."

Nationally, the average salary for teachers is estimated to be $5,983 for the current school year. In Texas the figure is $5,390. This drops Texas to 29th position among the states. It is down from the 24th position Texas held temporarily after the last statewide teacher pay boost was provided effective for 1961-62.

The total amount spent for each school child — including teacher pay — is one measure of how well a State supports education. And here again Texas is below average, and 14th among 50 states will spend an average of $455 for each public school pupil in attendance; this year Texas will spend only $327.

The $45 for '65 program will not solve the problem completely," Mrs. Little, a first grade teacher, said. "But it will prevent Texas from falling further behind in the race for excellence in education."

Mrs. Little pointed out that such a salary increase could not be effective before the 1965-66 school year, the TSTA president noted. Meantime, other states will continue to make improvements and it is probable that Texas will again be near the 34th position it held on teacher salaries before the Texas Legislature acted in 1961.

The $45 for '65 program will not solve the problem completely," Mrs. Little, a first grade teacher, said. "But it will prevent Texas from falling further behind in the race for excellence in education."

Floyd Philosopher Can Understand How Space Experts Forgot To Turn Rocket Fuel

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm takes note of a human failing this week.

Dear Editor:

As I understand it, a couple of years ago the space scientists started to fire a rocket at the moon and after making elaborate preparations for the multi-million dollar shot, with the best brains in the business figuring the timing and the aiming just right, with all the electrical circuits tested and re-tested, and with all the lights blinking and flashing, the count-down began, the thing was ignited, then it fizzled.

Somebody had forgotten to open a hydrant in the fuel line. A friend of mine was talking about it and he was outraged. "You'd think with all them brains, somebody would have thought to turn the gas on," he said.

This is because he doesn't understand us thinkers. When a man's mind is charged with deep thought, whether it's about moon shooting or operating a Johnson grass farm, a lot of little details can get by him. It hasn't been a week since I had a tractor over here pulling my tractor with his to get mine started and we'd dragged it around the place four times before I discovered I hadn't turned the gas on at the filter bowl. Me and the back axle.

I am afraid that in the event of his death his estate will seize his GI insurance policy which I am depending on. Can they do this?

No. Proceeds of a GI insurance policy are exempted by law from the claims of creditors. The proceeds may not be seized or attached to pay your husband's debts.

My son, determined by the VA to be helpless, is being furnished training under the War Orphan program. This is the first month he has attended school and we have received checks both for the schooling and the regular $77 a month compensation.

No. In the case of a helplessness that both the Department of the Army and the War Orphan Act benefits are paid simultaneously.

My husband is quite in debt.

ABOUT THE HOSPITAL

The proposed hospital to be built consists of a 40 bed building containing approximately 23,636 square feet, plus a partial basement of 13,940 square feet, a total footage of 37,576 feet. The bedroom wing will contain twelve private rooms and ten two bed rooms, plus two four-bed wards. Six of the private rooms are large enough for two beds, making a total capacity of 46 beds in an emergency. The basement can also be used as a storm cellar, fallout shelter. The hospital wing will have a nursery section, obstetrical suite, sterilization room, a surgical suite, laboratory and work room, emergency room, X-ray facilities, storage, toilets, lounges, drugs, mechanical services will be provided. Lounges for doctors and nurses, a private family room and snack bar are also included.

The building is arranged with adequate service drives and parking plus a covered walk to the main entrance and is so designed that future bedrooms and more surgical and obstetrical areas may be added later. The construction is a combination of stone and face brick with clay tile backup.

THE COST OF THE HOSPITAL

Cost of the construction of the hospital is $645,000. Cost of all equipment and facilities ready for operation is $150,000.

FINANCING OF THE HOSPITAL

The Caprock Hospital Board will apply for a Hill-Burton grant for $395,000 and a bond vote for another $395,000 will be brought before the voters of the Caprock Hospital District which includes precincts 1, 3 and 4 of Floyd County.

ABOUT THE BOND VOTE

The bond vote is set for Friday, February 21 and a simple majority is required for approval of the bonds. Bonds will be set for a 20 year pay out and any profits that the hospital may realize may be applied to payment of the bonds. Any resident of the above precincts who has purchased a home tax or who is exempt by age and has property rendered for taxation in the district is eligible to vote. He must also have been a resident of the district for six months and a resident of the State of Texas for a year.

ABOUT THE TAXES FOR PAYMENT OF BOND

Taxes would be assessed on the basis of county evaluations. Farm land is valued from $3 to $12 per acre and the rate for hospital bond indebtedness would be 40c per $100 valuation. The farm and valuations apply to both irrigated and dryland farms. An additional assessment would be made on personal properties such as irrigation wells, tractors, autos. Best irrigation wells are valued at $600, best autos at $700. The average business in town would pay $20.00 per year tax, the average home owner in town $8 to $10 and the farmer with a quarter section with an 8" well would pay $9.88 in taxes plus 40c per $100 on any other property that might be on the tax rolls. The only accurate way a person may determine his tax increase for the hospital bond is to multiply 40c times his 1963 county property rendition.

ABOUT HILL-BURTON MONEY

Hill-Burton money is a government grant and is not to be paid back. Hill-Burton requires that certain specifications be met in the construction of the hospital, but has nothing to do with the operation of the hospital once it is in business. It does require that there be no racial discrimination in admittance of patients.

CHARITY PATIENTS

The county commissioner's court granted approximately $2800 last year for hospital care of charity patients. The legislative law that governs the creation of the Caprock Hospital District states that the district is responsible for charity patients from this district ONLY.

ADMINISTRATION OF THE HOSPITAL

The hospital will be under the control of an elected board of directors, with election the first Saturday of each year. Any qualified voter in the hospital district may seek election to the board. The board will be responsible to employ an experienced and trained administrator to run the hospital and employ staff. The board will not hire or fire doctors as there will be no doctors officed at the hospital. The present board of directors includes: Hollis Bond, A. H. Kreis, M. P. Goen, M. Robertson and L. T. Wood.

Heatless Stove Can Help Keep House Heated

A local man, L. A. Marshall, has invented what he says is a fireless heating stove. He claims that this stove can cut the heating bill in half and will operate for less than a penny a day.

In addition to heating, the stove is designed to filter the dust-fumes and other foreign materials from the air as it recirculates.

Mr. Marshall got his idea after thinking on the fact for some time, that the warm air in a room tends to cling to the ceiling, and the cooler air lingers near the floor. With his invention, Mr. Marshall says he has an ideal "foot warmer". He says it is like bathing your feet in a pan of warm water, instead of having your body warm and your feet cool, as is often the case in winter.

Marshall said that almost everyone knows the heat is trapped there under the ceiling, but few people realize there is so much of it.

The components of the stove are basically a long enclosure, going almost to the ceiling, a 6 watt fan and an air filter. The fan in the pipe pulls the air down from the ceiling and recirculates it throughout the room, as it filters air. The cost of manufacturing the stove is around $30.00.

These are fall claims, but anyone who wants to see one of the stoves in action can do so by dropping by 602 South Wall Street. There is no charge for viewing the invention.

Plains Sorghum Area Center Of Recent Grain Discussions

Again Amarillo and the Plains Sorghum area were the center of national and international grain discussions last week. Grain traders, export elevator operators and government officials met in two separate meetings with grain producers, cattle feeders, grain brokers, transportation men and market news representatives.

Bill Nelson, Executive Vice President of Grain Sorghum Producers Association, host of the groups, said sessions of this type on international trade policy, transportation decisions and increasing importance to stability of farmers income as more grain is being produced, handled and fed to the open market under the effective influence of the current feed grain program.

In one session Gene Gummer, Assistant to the Director of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., New York, conducted a seminar on Futures Trading. Const points, and (4) lack of understanding of provisions of the trading contract by feeders, grain dealers and speculators not accustomed to trading in grain sorghum futures.

In other conferences Grain Sorghum Producers Association representatives met with George Kuppel, Vice President of Kuppel Bulk Terminal at Long Beach, California; Jim McJunkin, Transportation and Development Manager of the Port of Long Beach; Arnold Ferguson of the Commodity Credit Corporation of Kansas City, Missouri, along with local grain dealers and transportation officials to develop pricing, transportation and shipping policies which might help the grain sorghum area to regain fair competitive position with corn moving to the West Coast under recently announced freight rate conditions from the Mid-West.

Four problems related to the lack of trading were discussed and steps to relieve them mapped. They were (1) failure of local, national and international market news services to report grain sorghum futures in daily quotations; (2) unrealistic bonding requirements by the Board of Trade on grain warehouses to be eligible for delivery points; (3) price quotations based on freight paid to Gulf ports on trades which might actually be completed for delivery to West

Currently approximately 117 million bushels of grain sorghum moves from the Plains area to the West Coast domestic and export market.

"Think First . . . of The First"

Selling a home generally is the biggest financial transaction faced by the average family. When the time comes to sell, the most important considerations will be to sell it quickly and at the best possible price. Some economists suggest that home owners consider these points that can help to do both: Best time to sell, how to get the best price, how to determine the price, professional selling vs. self-selling, selecting a realtor, and the prospective buyer.

We with the sense of sight take the beauty of nature for granted, but what if our eye sight was taken from us? Could we adjust to taking things for granted? Would we remember the grass is green, the sky blue, that snow is white?

But what if we had never seen two sights and had to be told of the colors Mother Nature puts forth. If you had a choice which would you choose? Neither you or I of course, who would choose having, then giving up or not having at all.

One little girl in Floydada is one of those who has never seen what God has created, never seen the love of her parents or her sisters and brothers, but to SEE her you would never realize she is blind for when she hears you speak or make a sound, she turns toward you with eyes bright and shiny, even though unseen.

She is enrolled in the nursery for the blind at Lubbock with the assistance of the Floydada Lions Club. Doris Ann Martin was born blind on January 15, 1958 in Dimmitt, Tex. When she was two weeks old her parents moved back to Floydada where they had resided before moving to Dimmitt.

Doris was a healthy bright eyed baby, cooing and sleeping most of her early months. At the age of three months Mrs. Martin began to notice that when Doris insisted her playthings away she never tried to retrieve them or if she held an object in front of Doris she would not attempt to reach for it.

The concern of the parents that the baby was blind held true when they took Doris from doctor to doctor and then to specialists of the eyes and brain. Nothing could be found wrong with the baby's eyes, they were perfect. After a series of tests and X-rays brain specialist could find no malfunctions. Many of the doctors who examined Doris had their own theory as to what might be causing the blindness but all tests seemed to prove fruitless. One said there may be a tube leading to the eye from the brain that could be the trouble, but then doubts against because of both eyes being sightless.

Series Of Midge Conferences Set

In an effort to glean every bit of knowledge about the midge gained in both research and applied practices to date by public, private, and commercial organizations the Grain Sorghum Producers' Association has arranged for a series of conferences. The first of these is Friday, Feb. 14 at 1:30 at the Texas A & M Research center, Lubbock. The second is Saturday, Feb. 15, at 9:00 a. m. in the Mesa Room of the Tech Student Union Building. The third is set for Saturday, Feb. 15 also, at 10:00 a. m. in the Mesa Room of the Tech Student Union Building. The latter is a Public Forum on the Sorghum Midge. Basically, it is hoped that at the meeting the institutions will exchange research findings and a blind person. She has entered the Miami's Training Center for the Blind in Lubbock where she attends school Monday through Friday.

She is taken each Monday morning to Lubbock by her mother and stays there at night with Mr. and Mrs. George Calvert. On Friday afternoon Mrs. Martin goes for her daughter and brings her home for the weekend.

The Lions Club have adopted Doris as their project for the year, paying for her room and board at Calvert's and for her tuition at the school. "Doris is a very happy child and seems the happiest when her feet hit the gravel each Monday morning at the Center," Mrs. Martin said. There she is taught discipline. They also have their music hour, refreshments, and play. Mrs. Martin said the weekends Doris is home she makes believe her playmates from the school are with her. She calls them by name and plays with them as if they were by her side.

Since attending the school only a short time Doris has learned to dress herself and do other little chores done by any normal little girl. Next year Doris will be six and then will enter a school for the blind to start her studies in braille. The Martins have hopes she may enter one of the two schools in Lubbock. The school in Austin is a long way from Floydada for such a little tyke as Doris, but if that is where she will be enrolled Mr. and Mrs. Martin know it is for the best. Doris's sister, Donna, 15, and her two brothers, Dale, 12 and Danny, 9, never put anything over on the youngster, Mrs. Martin said. They never tear the paper from around a bar of candy without her saying "I'll have a Hershey". The same goes for chewing gum. Her ears are her eyes and she uses them and her hands like we would our eyes.

She uses her hands to recognize a person if she doesn't know them by the way. It doesn't take who they are as their face with Her eyes bright begins to play as she reaches touch. The touch so much love as future ahead to the generosity of Lions Club.

Chemical Weed Control In Cotton Is Practical

The scarcity and cost of the "bee labor" has caused farmers to look for alternatives to hand-hoeing. Accurate data, stresses John Seibert, Area Extension Farm Management Specialist, is the most important factor in considering economic advantages of chemical versus other weed control methods. The specialist in a recent report discussed chemicals and their role as an added "farm hand."

Pre-emergence
1963 results from the application of Diuron (Karmex DL), Herban, and Prometryne were comparable on both broad leaf weeds and grasses in Oklahoma — about 50 percent kill within 33 days after application. Both Dacthal and Trifluralin (Therlan) gave better than 60 percent control of both broad leaf and grass weeds after the same period of time. (Therlan was incorporated in soil with a rake.)

Comparable results from applications of Diuron, Herban, and Prometryne were received at Lubbock and Amarillo. At both locations control was 80 percent or better. Dacthal and Trifluralin gave very good weed control (93 percent plus) when incorporated.

Post-emergence and Lay-by
With two applications (second treatment applied first of June) of Diuron, Prometryne and Dacthal with DSMA, (applied with surfactant) broad leaf control was almost 100 percent in Oklahoma research.

Direct applications of Diuron and Prometryne (with surfactant) as post-emergence treatments gave very good weed control at Amarillo. Diuron was used at two rates as a lay-by treatment with varied results at Amarillo.

Will It Pay?
Only limited research is presently available from the application of herbicides on and near the Plains. However, each of the chemicals mentioned show promise along with others still in the experimental stage.

To determine the profitability of using herbicides, we must know their costs, their effectiveness, and how much hand-hoeing costs and - or cultivation costs are reduced as a result of their use. Also, it must be known if there is any reduction in cotton yield or residual effect.

Seibert uses these guidelines to compare the profitability of herbicides versus hand-hoeing, cultivations and - or other practices.

Conventional methods of weed control are still used. See CHEMICAL Page 6

A Week for Students to Hear Engineering, Science Differences

By Mark Rogers

When high school students today who like math and the physical sciences and who are in the upper third of their classes say they have a puzzling career choice problem, it more than likely involves the question of whether to go into engineering or science.

The puzzlement of these gifted young people is not surprising because of at least two factors: First, the basic differences between engineering and the physical sciences are becoming, in the public mind, less and less meaningful as press accounts of space and atomic projects refer to "engineers" and "scientists" as working side by side; and second, the high school student rarely has any direct contact with engineering applications in such courses as physics, chemistry, and mathematics.

During this National Engineers' Week, February 16-22, professional engineers will be visiting high schools throughout the country in an effort to make up for this lack of direct contact with engineering. The engineers will try to present a definition of engineering—with examples from their own professional work—that will show how engineers use the physical sciences but are still separate and distinct from scientists as such.

Things and Services

In general terms, the visiting engineers will tell the students that engineers are primarily creators of technical things and services useful to man, while scientists are primarily discoverers and interpreters of information about nature.

Like all definitions in general terms, however, this one will need quite a bit of explaining inasmuch as it is becoming well-known that more and more engineers have masters and doctoral degrees.

Why do so many engineers today need a Ph.D.? The answer is that so many engineers today are working in areas which are best described as frontiers of knowledge and understanding. These areas include space vehicles, the space environment, nuclear and sub-nuclear particles, solid state devices, electronics, computers, and a long listing of other things involving molecules, atoms, and electrons.

In the space program, press accounts regularly tell of "the project scientists who developed the satellite system and made it work." In point of fact, an actual scientist is interested only in constructing what amounts to a laboratory model. Once the scientist is convinced that the model works according to theory, he leaves it and turns to another problem in his search for truth and understanding.

Technician views tiny space vehicle gyro through a masked microscope. The minute device is typical of today's complex space vehicle systems which are the end product of scientific theory and engineering applications.

Without engineering applications, we would have no functioning communications or weather satellites; we would have only laboratory experiments carried out in space. It is the engineers who take the satellite laboratory model and design it into an operating space vehicle, capable of gathering information about weather, cosmic radiation, meteoric dust, and so forth.

Design Problems

The scientist does not take it upon himself to solve the many engineering problems involved in going from laboratory model to practical and economic design. If he did undertake the solution of these problems, he would have no time for researching new areas of knowledge and understanding, and our forward movement in science would grind to a halt.

A noted engineer of one of the major U.S. oil companies described the situation this way: "... Scientists and engineers share many common interests. Engineers help scientists in building prototypes. Scientists help engineering in working out practical design of 'production' models. But their orientation is different. Science aims at discovery, and once the discovery is proven, interest wanes; and if it does not, a scientist is lost. The scientist drives toward discovery, properly oblivious to social and economic feasibility. Engineering aims at application and utilization of discoveries. The engineer is employed to convert raw discovery to planned perfection, and he must account for all of the socio-economic implications inherent in this purpose. The engineer must rely upon the scientist to produce the new discoveries that will advance his technology; the scientist must depend upon the engineer to refine his discoveries to forms suitable for an appreciative but unscientific world. Furthermore, the engineer is frequently forced to create solutions which have no unique scientific basis. He must be prepared to go beyond science to exercise intuitive judgment, and he requires the broad knowledge which tells him when this course is prudent."

Career day conferences during this Engineers' Week may help get across some of these basic differences between research science and engineering applications.

Opportunity

Engineering in the second half of the 20th Century is a career of opportunity. Interested young people or their parents may obtain a free booklet which gives the basic facts about this challenging profession. The booklet, "Engineering... A Career of Opportunity," is available from the National Society of Professional Engineers, 2029 K Street, Northwest, Washington D. C., 20006.

(Issue Dated Feb. 9, 1950)

The funeral rites for G. T. Assiter, 81, resident of Floydada since 1921, pioneer of the high plains farming since 1907, were held Sunday. Mr. Assiter died Saturday morning after an illness of several years.

Maldon D. Thornton, 62, resident of the county since 1924, died of a heart attack while at work on the Tom Boyd farm six miles south of Dougherty last Monday evening. His lifeless body was found by Boyd. The body was prepared by Harmon Funeral Home for shipment to Tarrant County for rites.

Last run of the Quam, Acme, and Pacific Railway Co., passenger train No. 1 and 2, will be made on February 18. Discontinuance of the service comes after 22 years of passenger train service since it was inaugurated in October of 1928.

Shirt sleeve weather has marked a major part of the past week in Floyd County with Saturday's thermometer barely touching the 32 degree mark for the coldest but only for a brief spell. The highs have been 76, 67, 79 and 78 which was registered successively on Saturday through Tuesday.

LEO VAN JACKSON

Leo Jackson Is Candidate For Rotary Governor

Leo Van Jackson of Irving, Texas, and past president of the Irving Rotary Club, is a candidate for District Governor of Rotary District 561. He is the son of Mrs. Jewel Jackson of Floydada and the late Andy Jackson. Jackson was born on March 5, 1915 in Oklahoma. He came to Floydada with his parents at the age of six months. He made a good scholastic record and was an outstanding player on the Floydada High School football team. After graduating from high school here, he attended West Texas State College where he was captain of the 1936 football team.

In 1937 Jackson graduated from West Texas and secured a coaching job at Flossmoor High School. He took a Master of Education Degree at East Texas State College. Jackson has also coached at Tahoka and Olney schools, and at Cameron and Greenville. Jackson and the former Mary Taitner were married on Feb. 27, 1932. They have one daughter, Mrs. Myrna Kirk, who is also a graduate of East Texas State College and now lives in Cameron with her husband and small daughter.

The candidate went to Irving in 1959 where he has been vice principal and business manager of Athletics of Irving High School. Shortly after moving to Irving he became a member of the Irving Rotary Club and was made a director in 1961-62 and president in 1962-63. Jackson was nominated for District Governor, District 561, by a former Governor, W. T. Hanes, superintendent of Irving Public Schools.

During Jackson's 25 years of Rotary he has served in every office in Irving. He is a product of the Rotary Student Loan Fund. In 1964 the Floydada Rotary Club assisted him with a loan while he was attending West Texas State. He is a leader in all types of community activities being an active church worker in the First Baptist Church in Irving where he is a Sunday School teacher. He has been a Mason for seventeen years, an excellent public speaker and has the drive to follow through on any project he may undertake.

Jackson is held in high esteem by the Irving Rotary Club and the citizens of Irving. As Business Manager of Athletics and Vice-Principal he has helped to establish Irving High School as an outstanding school in both academic and athletic achievement.

agree on unified recommendations for agronomic and chemical control measures; at the meeting these recommendations will be presented to the industry committee for review, discussion, and coordination in accordance with applied practices; at the meeting public announcement will be made of unified recommendations for midge control during the coming season.

MRS. TUBBS HAS BROKEN HIP

Mrs. G. C. Tubbs of Springfield, Ohio, former longtime resident of Floydada and wife of the late Judge G. C. Tubbs, sustained a broken hip on Wednesday of last week. Mrs. Tubbs underwent surgery the following day and is reported doing as well as could be expected considering her diastetic condition.

Mrs. Tubbs would enjoy cards from her many Floydada friends. They may be sent to her at Mercy Hospital, Room 202, Springfield, Ohio.

The American Federation of Labor was formed in 1886.

Chemical

control on the High Plains are hand-weeding, killing and cultivation. Selbert reports the per-acre costs listed below are "average" for these practices:

Hand hoeing	$1.50 to $5.00
Knife	.24 to .50
Cultivation(s)	2.50 to 3.00
	$6.24 to $11.50

Where chemical weed control will reduce any of the above costs (separate or in combination) below that of the cost of the chemical and its application, it will normally be a profitable practice, the specialist emphasizes.

Where herbicides are being considered for weed control, additional investment must normally be made in equipment. This can range from $8.50 per row for pre-emergence application to well over $65 per row pre- and post-emergence application equipment. Most farmers can use their own insecticide application equipment with minor adjustments and modifications for herbicide applications. In any event the added investment capital increases fixed cost per acre, depending on farm operation size.

Example

As an example of how chemicals can reduce costs, assume a chemical weed control cost throughout the season of $8 per acre (includes chemical, labor, fertilizer, fixed costs, etc.). In order to economically justify this cost, conventional weed control methods must be reduced at least $8 per acre.

It's possible to economically justify the application of herbicides even where a slight reduction in cotton yields results, the specialist continues. A 2 percent reduction in yield (assuming a 50 pound yield per acre at 30c) plus and 8 herbicide cost per acre could be profitable where costs of conventional weed control methods are reduced below $11.50 per acre.

Chemical weed control should — and will — be used where it is unmistakably profitable, Selbert adds. This is just another way of saying that substituting CAPITAL for LABOR is often a profitable alternative.

4-H Leaders Discuss 1964 County Camp
