Heavy infestations of MDMV in sorghum are found from Lubbock north to the southwestern corner of Kansas, the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board advises. The symptoms of this disease are characterized by a mottling (light and dark green patches between the veins of the leaves) of the young leaves in the whorl, and later, in susceptible hybrids, by a red streaking which occurs on the upper leaves. The red streaking is usually associated with the final stages and will probably result in yield reduction in heavily infested fields. Irrigation well diggers and pump repair men report that many wells are pumping air this year that have never broken suction before. One farmer said, (jokingly) it takes my irrigation well 24 hours to fill the ditch for setting.

And although Floyd farmers can still joke about the hot dry weather, poor irrigation wells, this is the first irrigation season in several years that has been so dry and that is really testing the underground water supply.

One farmer said, "True, crops look good now, but we must have some rainfall very soon to save dryland crops and help production on weak irrigation farms."

Of course Floyd County looks like a garden spot compared to non-irrigated farms below the Caprock. Range conditions are getting in bad shape.

Total precipitation in Floydada for the year is 5.44 inch-

A look at previous years' rainfall reveals that the first half of 1970 has been the dryest since 1965, when 4.73 inches were recorded through June, and another .42 inches in July, bringing the 7-month total to 5.15, just under this year's total.

The total precipitation in '65 was 12.12 inches, making for one of the dryest on record for Floydada. Only four years since 1925 have beat the '65 record for dryness. Even in the dryest year on record, 1956. when only 8.45 inches were recorded all year, we had 7.40 inches of it by July.

Through the years, most of the rain for Floydada has fallen in the first six months of the year. So if the trend holds true, it looks like a dry 1970 for the Floydada area.

Although it has been a dry first part of the year, good rainfall the last three years had built up deep moisture that produced a good dryland wheat crop.

The vegetable crop is most of the agricultural activity around Floydada now with the onion harvest almost complete and the cucumber and pepper harvest just beginning.

RAIN FORECAST

The weather man preducted about a 20% chance of rain for this are today. Light showers have dotted the area off and on the past week. A shower in Floydada yesterday morning, a good thunderstorm three miles south of Quitaque Sunday afternoon, two inches of rain right in Dougherty, to mention a few.

Temperatures that were hitting 100 degrees here a month ago have settled down into the low 90's each day.

Burned Grandson Slightly Improved Nineteen-year-old Mike Tate

is reported by local relatives to be "slightly improved" in John Sealy Hospital, Galveston, where he is receiving treatment for burns over 50 percent of his body. The accident was suffered two weeks ago Wednesday.

A West Texas State University student, Mike is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Tate of Silverton. He is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Tate and a nephew of Mrs. Donald Reecer.

Young Tate sustained the severe burns when he came in contact with a 7,200 volt line while working at the Wilson Community substation of Lighthouse Electric Cooperative, Inc. He and a co-worker, Mark Weems of Floydada, were preparing to leave the substation when the accident occurred.

The pair had been cleaning reclosers at the substation. They were running a cable through the hanger on the north breaker of the plant when Tate's head touched the high side of the re-closer which was "hot," causing an arc. The victim fell down on top of the recloser and his shirt completely burned off.

A Silverton High graduate, Mike was working for Lighthouse for the second summer. He was taken to Plainview Hospital, then transferred the following Monday to Galveston when facilities became available.

The family was given "little hope" for Tate's recovery soon after he arrived at John Sealy Hospital, They now feel his chances are much better.

Grain crops are subject to insect attack from the time of planting until maturity, Some of the attackers are hard to control, points out County Agent Doyle Warren, but carefully selected and properly timed insecticide treatments usually are effective in reducing yield

As an aid to grain producers in their fight against insect pests, entomologists of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service have made available a revised insect control guide.

Like the mail hack service between Childress and Floydada and the similar service from Estelline to Lockney. I have no idea at this time who had the Childress - Floydada contract, but I do remember one of the drivers vividly about 1905-06. Also what stops for team changes the hack made.

On the contrary as to the Lockney-Estelline line I remember that Mr. Parsons and his sons had the contract for a number of years, but I can't recall positively a single driver, which surely they had, if they had any other than Mr. Parsons himself and one boy. I say "Parsons and sons" though I can't remember of my own knowledge that there was more than one boy.
