Study Begins On Possibilities For Junior College In This Area

Caprock Chat

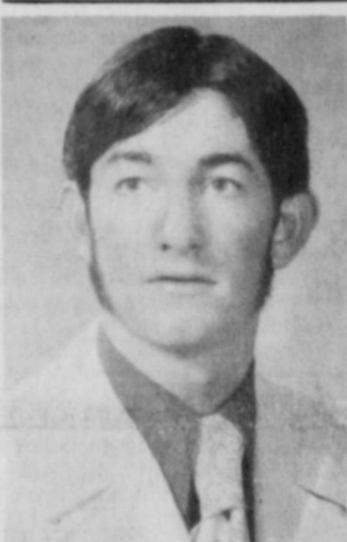

BY WENDELL TOOLEY

A study is being conducted in a five county area which includes Floydada to determine if there is a need for a junior college which offers occupational and technical education or training. The area being surveyed in the study includes, in addition to Floydada, Briscoe, Floyd, Hale, Motley, and Swisher counties. The study has been approved and is sponsored by the Division of Occupational Research and Development, Texas Education Agency. Using the name Area Occupational Education Research, the study is being conducted by Perry H. Bell, Project Director, and Thomas J. Krueger, Associate Director.

To accomplish the purposes of the study several groups will be surveyed - students, employers, parents, and out-of-school youth. Everyone who receives a survey form in any of the named categories is urged to supply the information requested and return it as soon as possible to facilitate the completion of the study.

High school students are being asked to state their occupational goals; also their desires and expectations for occupational and technical education. School personnel and students are cooperating to the fullest extent. This portion of the survey will soon be completed.

All employers in business, industry, professional offices, and governmental agencies will be asked to indicate their present work force by specific occupations and their manpower needs projected to 1977. This will furnish information to de-

TEXAS RANGER, HIGHWAY PATROL INVESTIGATING

Delacruz Death Thought By Auto Accident

Texas Ranger Clay Dednar and the local highway patrolmen this week made some observations about last week's hit and run case near Muncy.

Danny Florencio Delacruz Jr. was killed when struck by an auto near Muncy a week ago early Sunday morning, an autopsy revealed.

No evidence of "bullet holes or prior wounds" was found, according to Justice of the Peace R. H. (Raz) Ford, who pronounced the victim dead at the site and ordered an autopsy.

Many of the questions surrounding the apparent hit-and-run death were answered by the autopsy.

A Plainview woman reported to Hale County Sheriff Department about noon the following day that she may have struck an object near the death site. She said that she had attempted to straddle the object with her pickup after seeing it too late to swerve. The woman, whose identity has not been released, reportedly was riding with her seven-year-old son.

No charges are contemplated.

The victim apparently was lying in the highway when struck by a vehicle.

A part of the mystery shrouding the case stemmed from the fact that Delacruz's pickup was almost a quarter mile from the point of impact and was "in running condition." It was on the opposite

Chamber Of Commerce Board

Taking Applications For Manager

In a meeting last Friday morning the Floydada Chamber of Commerce board decided to begin accepting applications for the chamber manager position here.

Persons interested in applying for the job should do so at either chamber president Alton Higginbotham's office at Lighthouse Electric or the office of Jake Webb at Southwestern Public Service.

Dale Goen of the Housing Authority board also met with the chamber board. In the past the job has included both the Housing Authority and chamber of commerce responsibilities.

MAY 6 ABSENTEE VOTING BEGINS

Absentee voting went into effect Monday, April 17, and will continue through May 2, three full days prior to the May 6 primary election.

County Clerk Margaret Collier said 15 absentee votes had been cast as of yesterday. Sample ballots of the May 6 primary will be carried in next week's Hesperian.

Hickerson, Bradford, Hamilton Guffee Top FFA Students

Four Floydada High School students were recognized as tops in their classes at the annual Future Farmers of America Parent and Son banquet in Duncan Elementary cafeteria Tuesday night.

Honored with plaques from the agriculture teachers were Blake Hickerson, freshman; Danny Bradford, sophomore; Ross Hamilton, junior and Larry Guffee, senior.

Approximately 300 FFA members, their parents, sponsors and guests attended the banquet which featured a talk by Kip Burnett of Boys Ranch. Burnett is state FFA vice president.

Voting Strength In The County Shows Increase

The voting strength in Floyd County is some 200 more than it was in 1968, the last general election. It was not known if it was due to the fact the voting age was lowered or if more of the older citizens registered to vote. However, the young people of voting age are showing a great interest in this year's elections, especially in the local primary scheduled May 6.

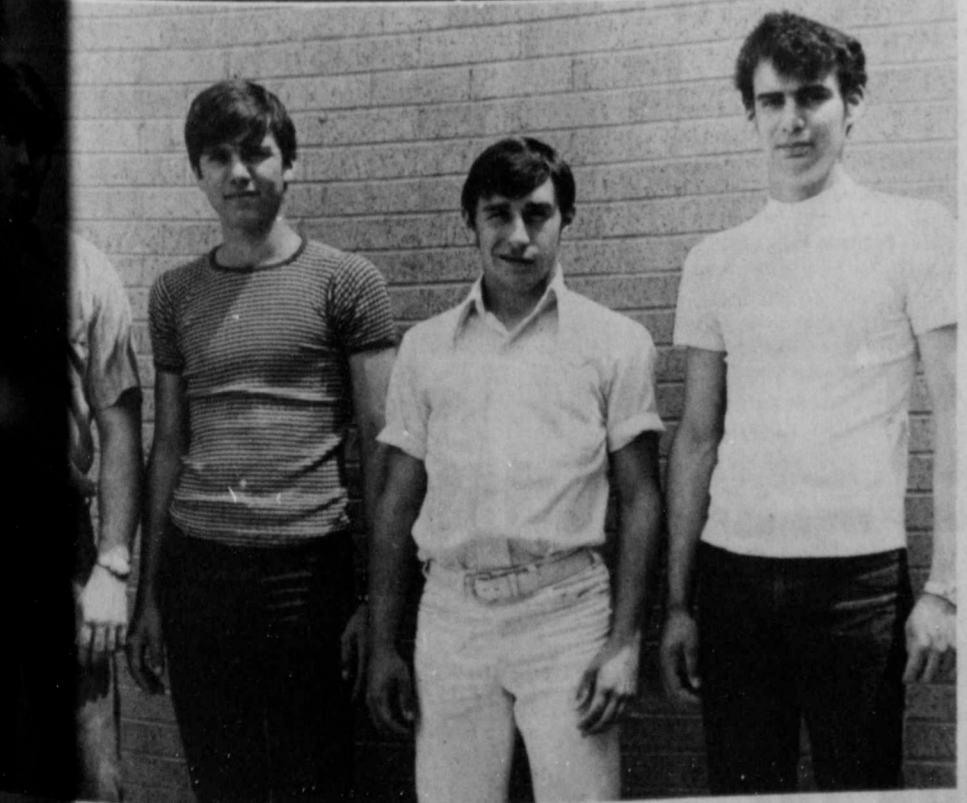

Mrs. Ethel Graham, tax assessor-collector, reported Friday, April 14, that 4,399 persons had registered to vote as of the cut-off date April 6. A new state law stipulates that a person must register at least 30 days prior to an election to be qualified.

Everyone now registered will be qualified for the primary, run-off, if that is the case, and the general elections.

SHIPWRECKED IN A LIFE BOAT

People who refuse to become involved in the problem and needs of their community are like the two men shipwrecked in a lifeboat. From their end of the boat they watched as those in the other end bailed furiously to keep the boat afloat. One of the men said to the other, "Thank heaven the hole is not in our end of the boat."

Is now the time to build or improve?

A new home, modern buildings, increased efficiency for handling livestock, land improvements — investments like these are too important to postpone. A Federal Land Bank loan, made for extra years and at reasonable cost, makes such things possible for many who might otherwise be forced to delay them.
Building material and labor costs aren't likely to come down in the near future. Loan costs? The Land Bank is committed to provide credit at reasonable interest. And you may prepay your loan at any time without penalty.
Let us analyze your plans for housing or expansion and come up with a practical way to meet your goals. We usually can find ways to get you started toward greater income and more comfortable living without unnecessary waiting.

JUST found out the best time to ask your husband for a special favor is when the barometer rises. Supposedly a rising barometer makes us all feel better. For the husband with corns, bunions, old wounds or creaky bones, a low barometer affects his comfort and nerves. Thus, a high barometer means he will probably be feeling his best - other things being equal - and that's the time, girls, to break down his resistance!

WITH the Navy going in for sideburns and the Army trying out beer in the barracks, we knew the Marines couldn't be far behind. Seems that the Marines are saluting their own anniversary - the 196th - with posters noting that "We're not getting older; we're getting better." Since the slogan bears its life attached to a hair coloring product named Loving Care, we can only see it as a hint of tender treatment to come.

Grain Sorghum Studied At Research Foundation

Above average rainfall and cooler than normal temperatures offset conditions for the High Plains Research Foundation's 1971 grain sorghum performance study conducted under limited irrigation conditions. Average yield of the 36 varieties in the test was 5,200 pounds per acre with yields ranging from 4,190 to 6,090 pounds. The top 12 sorghum variety performers showed no statistical difference in yields. Test hybrids were planted May 13 in single rows on 40-inch beds. Sixty pounds of anhydrous ammonia were applied to the test land on March 16 and 1.5 pounds of herbicide were broadcast May 19 for weed control. One pint of pesticide per acre was sprayed July 27 for greenbug control. Irrigations applied included one on May 20 for germination and a second one July 11 at the main plant moisture stress period which occurs soon after the pre-boot stage. Due to rainfall, test hybrids appeared to be under significant moisture stress only during the last two or possibly three weeks preceding the July 11 irrigation. As in the past, regression line graphs have been prepared for the test, which are very helpful in determining which varieties are adaptable to individual farms, depending on maturity range desired and amount of irrigation water available. Details of the limited irrigation grain sorghum varieties performance study will be listed in the 1971 High Plains Research Foundation annual report to be released soon.

Wildlife Preservation Subject Of Conference

Have you seen a Texas plover, an Altwater prairie warbler, or a Texas wildrice? They are not, because they are rare and endangered species that are being lost to an inter-continental conference in Austin.

The USDA Soil Conservation Service, the meeting is being held by representatives of state and federal agencies, universities, and various organizations interested in wildlife preservation in Texas plants and animals.

Graham, state conservationist in Temple, said the purpose of the meeting is to develop a correlated list of rare and endangered species of plants, animals, and birds; discuss the kinds of measures that should be taken to protect them; and discuss the possibility of monitoring programs to be obtained through the actions and cooperation of various agencies.

Graham said these ponds and lakes have created an estimated 260,000 acres of surface water in small draws and ravines, mostly in dry upland areas. Thousands of miles of edge habitat around these pools favor many species of birds and animals.

The state conservationist also pointed to SCS work in promoting grassland restoration work in strips or other patterns to benefit wildlife. When grassland restoration work is done according to SCS recommendations, strips or patterns of land are restored to formerly productive stands of nutritious grasses, legumes and forbs needed by both livestock and wildlife. Alternate patterns of brush are left for wildlife escape cover.

"Terraces, waterways, reforestation, good land use practices and upstream watershed protection projects help keep streams and lakes clear. They cut sediment damage which kills fish, ruins their spawning grounds, and fills our lakes. Most of our recommended practices promote in-soak, assuring a more constant ground water supply. And many, if not most, soil and water conservation district cooperators include wildlife food, water, and cover in their resource conservation plans.

"Thoughtless killing, uncontrolled burning, and other irresponsible acts were once the greatest threat to rare and endangered species," Graham said. "But now the principal hazard is the destruction of habitat resulting from human activities. These include some outdoor recreation activities, industrialization, urbanization and the like.

"No doubt these activities will continue," Graham said. "Today's affluent society demands more wood products, air conditioners, water supply sources, autos, and suburban developments. What we need to do is to recognize their environmental impacts, then direct our management, attention, and technical skills to selecting alternatives that will minimize adverse effects."

Graham said that SCS cooperative work with rare and endangered plants and animals would represent better utilization of the agency for overall environmental improvement, but that it did not represent a change in SCS principles of conservation.

"SCS technical programs of assistance to land users have always considered wildlife and have had a favorable impact on this resource in Texas," Graham said. "More than 350,000 ponds and irrigation reservoirs, as well as 1,500 upstream water shed lakes, have been built in this state. Although they have been constructed mainly for livestock, irrigation or flood prevention, they are basically conservation pools; they store water for later use, they provide excellent fishing, and they furnish feeding and resting places for waterfowl."

Graham said these ponds and lakes have created an estimated 260,000 acres of surface water in small draws and ravines, mostly in dry upland areas. Thousands of miles of edge habitat around these pools favor many species of birds and animals.

The state conservationist also pointed to SCS work in promoting grassland restoration work in strips or other patterns to benefit wildlife. ABOUT YOUR HOME

Fences are a good defense against winds and prying eyes. For the most efficient cooling, keep louvers vertical and not more than eight inches wide. Slant them with your prevailing winds. To act as a wind break, the fence must be solid and tall enough to offer protection.

Decorative holes in the fence do not let in as much air as louvers but they actually boost its force. This may be important if your summer breeze is sluggish. Horizontal louvers aren't recommended. They either shoot the wind up and over your garden or they force it against the ground and cause a pile-up of air that whips around and does very little cooling.

Use an attractive fence to hide the sights and sounds of your service area. The design of any fence must blend with the house architecturally.

Walls and fences make a perfect background for planting. Choose shrubs that are evergreen or have an interesting pattern when bare.

Peace

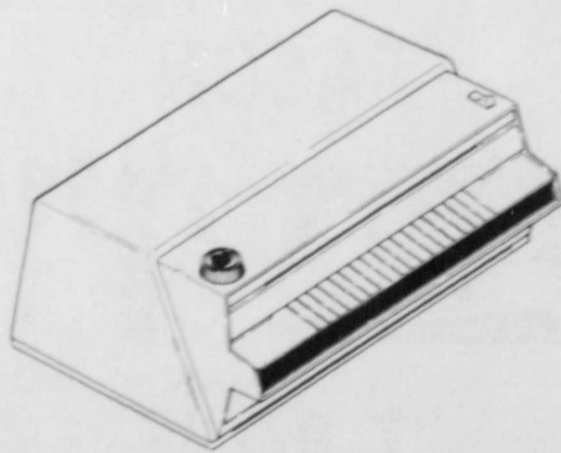

With eager heart and will on fire,
I fought to win my great desire
"Peace shall be mine," I said; but life
Grew bitter in the weary strife.

My soul was tired, and my pride
Was wounded deep: to Heaven I cried,
"God grant me peace or I must die;"
The dumb stars glittered no reply.

Broken at last, I bowed my head,
Forgetting all myself, and said,
"Whatever comes, His will be done;"
And in that moment peace was won.

Halifax, 1776

The first of the American colonies to make a formal declaration in favor of separation from Great Britain was North Carolina—in 1776. The declaration followed a successful military action in the field against a force of loyalists at Moore's Creek Bridge on February 27th, 1776. The loyalists were marching to combine forces with a British force sent to subdue the patriots.

Following the victory a provincial congress of delegates assembled at Halifax on April 4th and on the 12th these delegates issued the first official call for separation and cooperation with other American colonies toward that end.

MISTER: WHAT'S A DISCIPLE ?

Well, a disciple is a follower or learner. That doesn't entitle him to a license, just a "license" to follow. A century and a half ago a group of followers of Jesus sought a fellowship wide open to Christians of all opinions and practices. They wanted just to be "Christians." One of their leaders, Alexander Campbell, thought that a little presumptuous. "Disciples" would be better. And that's how the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) got its parentheses.

MAHON KEEPS WARNING

Man Heads For Fiscal Disaster

GOVERNMENT, not even the man continue to overspend, multi-billions of dollars near still not eventually plunge into disaster.

"This is an election year," Mr. Mahon reminds, "and the usual pressures are magnified. The emphasis is on spending, not on finding ways to raise revenues to pay the bills. To yield to these forces is to water the seeds of our destruction . . .

"We . . . need to take closer note of our really urgent needs and to evaluate our priorities more sharply. National survival is our No. 1 priority, as everybody knows. We therefore must spend whatever is necessary to defend ourselves and our way of life — or why bother about much else?"

"But most of all, I believe, we need to equate Federal programs — not to mention state and local programs — with the willingness of the American people to pay the bill. We are not doing this, and as far as I can determine there is no assured plan to do so."

This is not mere rhetoric. The nation, if it does not come to its senses somehow, is headed for certain fiscal disaster. Anyone who thinks Representative Mahon is wrong is simply out of his mind.

FLOYD PHILOSOPHER

Wants T. V. Commission To Study Effect Of The World On Children

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm confronts a serious problem this week, then dodges. Probably the effect of listening to the candidates.

Dear editor:

As I understand it, a Washington commission after a year's study on the effect of television on children has reported that America should take a second look at the sort of T.V. fare being served up to its youngsters. Too much violence, crime and that sort of thing. Aside from the fact that you can indeed get a second look at the programs, now that the season for re-runs has started, I have been thinking about this matter and have come to the conclusion the commission should broaden its investigation.

It should now make a study of the effect of the world on children.

There's far too much violence, crime and that sort of thing going on in the world to allow children to be brought up in it.

How can we expect children to grow up and be as good as we are when today's news is crammed with crime and violence and yesterday's history from the time history began is filled with the same? In this connection it ought to be pointed out that that man who started a newspaper with nothing but good news in it went broke.

Shielding a child from television is one thing, but shielding him from the world presents a problem which I will leave to the next commission, on which I will not have time to serve.

The television problem however, is not limited to the United States. I read in a paper last night that Russian parents are complaining about children's T.V. programs over there. They say they aren't interesting enough. Can't keep a kid glued to the set.

One Russian mother said "I saved my money and bought a television set especially so that while I'm at work my son would not pointlessly chase a football outdoors all day — and that with bad children at that. But there are few programs for him and most of them are uninteresting."

This just goes to show how problems can vary around the world. Over here we're trying to cut down on our children's T.V. viewing so they'll get out and play, over there they're trying to increase their children's viewing so they'll stay indoors and not be outside playing football.

I thought so. Who has Russia ever beat in football?

Vaccinate Now For "Vee"

"Vaccinate now for VEE" is the theme of a new campaign urging vaccination of horses for the sleeping sickness disease, Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis (VEE).

The 1972 campaign calls for vaccination of all equines (horses, mules, donkeys, etc.) not vaccinated in 1971, in Texas, the Gulf Coast States and States adjoining Mexico. These states are designated "high risk" states for the disease.

There are four categories of horses that should be vaccinated now. They are: (1) unvaccinated horses that have recently moved into the area, (2) foals born since last year's vaccination drive, (3) foals vaccinated too young to develop lasting immunity (under 6 months old when vaccinated), and (4) horses that were overlooked and never vaccinated.

Scientists believe VEE will break out again even though the disease was confined to 25 Texas counties in 1971. The time to vaccinate is now, before mosquitoes emerge in the warm months ahead.

Texas has a horse population of about 625,000 animals. With nearly 800 Texas veterinarians participating, about 575,000 horses, or 92 percent of the total population, were vaccinated in Texas last year.

However, the State of Texas remains under Federal quarantine for VEE. This means that horses must be vaccinated for VEE at least 14 days before being allowed to leave the state for other areas. Horses for interstate shipment must be accompanied by a vaccination certificate with individual animals identified by tag, tattoo, or other means.

The current program calls for vaccination at horse owners' expense. Federal emergency funds were used for that purpose last year.

VEE vaccine will provide immunity for over one year and possibly longer. The commercial product now available can safely be administered to horses previously vaccinated with Government-furnished vaccine. If it is uncertain that a horse has been vaccinated, it is better to vaccinate again.

Vaccine must be administered by a veterinarian.

VEE vaccine was used on more than 2.8 million horses in 19 states and the District of Columbia last year. Studies on the vaccine are continuing, to check safety and to determine duration of immunity.

Butz Meets Obligations Of Ag Chief

THE TRUTH is beginning to come out in the food price squabble. And some of the observations Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz has been making about the need for better farm prices, and improved income for farmers, have helped to bring out the true situation.

This is why he could welcome the public hearings the Price Commission held on food costs last week.

If farmers were to blame for what's been happening to retail food prices, Butz might have been forced to run for cover. Instead, he stood his ground and told the truth about farmers and about their productivity per man hour, which is 3.3 times more than it was 20 years ago, twice as fast a rate of growth in productivity per man hour as in manufacturing industries.

THE PLAIN truth is that between 1958 and 1971, while farmers' prices for food products went up a "magnificent" total of six per cent over the entire two decades, the nation's wage rates rose an average of more than six per cent every year during that time, for a total increase of 130 per cent.

Yet Butz was schooled awhile back by Price Commission Chairman E. Jackson Grayson for "undercutting" the administration's overall economic program.

If the United States is to stay strong and well fed, the secretary of agriculture indeed has an obligation to all America which transcends his obligation to any one segment of the economy.

But the responsibility he has toward farmers certainly is not inconsistent with concern for the well-being of all citizens.

ECONOMICALLY insecure farmers who earn 25 per cent less than all other sectors of the economy cannot survive as second class economic citizens. And if the food production plant becomes inefficient, all consumers will suffer.

So the secretary of agriculture has an obligation to do what he can to assure continuity of ample, healthful food at reasonable cost. And reasonable cost means fair play in the marketplace for both consumers and farmers.

The issue that confronts this country is more than food prices or farm prices. It includes some basic principles, upon which farmers may be able to shed some light through the example they set.

Those who came up through farming, who know about work, who comprehend productivity, who understand the importance of giving a day's work for a day's wages, have a new opportunity to get that message across: If you would have more, you must produce more.

Pioneer brand grain sorghum varieties have bred-in yield potential to help farmers get the most from their good management even in the face of adverse weather, insects, or plant disease. Also, the genetic inheritance of every Pioneer hybrid is unique. Each variety is bred to bring out the special traits necessary for maximum performance in the area where it is to be grown.

Your Pioneer dealer has many varieties bred to help farmers on the South Plains turn in top yields. Some of these varieties are:

Pioneer Brand 846: excellent drought resistance — consistent high yields — MDM and smut resistant — 134-day maturity

Pioneer Brand 820: good yielder under stress, outstanding with plenty of water and fertility — MDM and smut resistant — 144-day maturity

Pioneer Brand 866: makes the most of limited water — threshes well — high yield potential — 126-day maturity

Pioneer Brand 8417: new yellow endosperm variety — full, open heads — good standability — easy thresher — MDM, anthracnose, smut resistant — 135-day maturity

NEWS FOR HOMEMAKERS

HOME SEWING OFFERS SELF-EXPRESSION

The home seamstress saves money while she's creative. Home sewing offers a form of self-expression as an economic practicality for more and more women. The frequently used home sewing machine represents substantial savings, even when you work with expensive fabrics.

Not only are the machines more versatile and easier to use than ever, but fabrics, patterns, trimmings and notions are available in vast variety. The great development in fabrics allows seamstress to whip up everything from lingerie to rainwear.

The range of fabrics includes stretch materials, knits, bonded, fake furs, suede, vinyl and polyurethane. Manufacturers keep pace with the homesewers' desires for style, color and individuality.

Washability provides a big bonus, and it's easy to incorporate. The homesewer, faced with almost unlimited choice, should exercise care and caution and be well-informed before making selections.

Look for compatible component parts. This means choosing trim, pocketing, interfacing, and lining fabrics, ribbon binding, tapes, threads, zippers and other notions with an eye to how each will work with the basic fabric being used.

Why sew a permanent press garment if the trim or lining has to be ironed? What's to be done if a zipper shrinks more than the fabric and results in puckering and pulling after the first laundering.

Take time to shop thoughtfully for trims. Try to go at a time when the store is uncrowded, and the saleswoman has time to give personal service.

If care instructions are available with fabrics, it's a good idea to prevent potential problems by pre-treating before sewing. For example, pre-shrink a questionable zipper before sewing by soaking it in warm water.

Test a sample of trim for colorfastness before combining it with a white or light material. Launder any materials that may shrink before cutting the pattern if there's any doubt whether it's been pre-shrunk.

The popularity of knits has brought the introduction of new products. Polyester or cotton-covered polyester core threads help eliminate seam puckering when sewing polyester double knits and permanent press fabrics.

Special ball-point sewing machine needles make for easier sewing on knit fabrics. Lightweight nonwoven, washable interfacing designed especially for polyester knits and washable polyester ribbons are two more innovations. Take advantage of the many fabrics and notions available and create a new garment or a whole new wardrobe.

TV's Effect

An interesting finding of an advisory committee of the U. S. Surgeon General's, which made an exhaustive investigation of violence on U.S. commercial television, is that youngsters who watch much television initially gain a larger vocabulary but that if they continue to watch into high school age it is definitely harmful to them.

Television violence does influence viewers toward actual violence, the committee found.

The committee suggests parents watch television with their children or select what programs their children see, if this isn't possible.

Sarasota, Fla. -- Ralph Houk, talented manager of the once awesome New York Yankees, greatest club in baseball history, thinks the 1972 team has a chance to win the flag. Many observers think the Yanks are still some distance away.

"I think four clubs have a good chance this year," Houk told this reporter as his team prepared to meet the Chicago White Sox in Payne Park recently (they won). "There's Baltimore and Detroit and after them I think Boston and our club are also in it."

"When does Vida Blue report?" he was asked in jest.

"I have absolutely no comment," Houk smiled.

Bob Fishel, New York public relations director, thinks much depends on Rich McKinney, obtained over the winter from the White Sox in exchange for starting pitcher Stan Bahnsen.

"McKinney, we found out, has a bone chip in his arm and it affects his throwing. We didn't know that when we traded for him but he apparently had it then. The Sox say they didn't know it either. But that's one of our worries." Ron Blomberg is one of the major hitting hopes.

During the game McKinney blasted a pitch over the distant center field wall at Payne Park. "It hasn't affected his hitting," Fishel admitted. Blomberg got three hits.

Business Loses, Too

Cancer costs American business and industry valuable executives at the peak of their efficiency and trained workers at the height of their productivity. The American Cancer Society urges annual health checkups for everyone.

More than 52-million Americans now living may eventually have cancer. One in three hit by cancer is now saved. This could be increased to one in two by early diagnosis and prompt treatment, according to the American Cancer Society.

The greatest progress in the treatment of breast cancer has come in recent decades.

GENTLE GIANT

Clean electric power from the Lighthouse Electric Cooperative is a gentle giant with a touch that's soft enough to dry a maiden's hair yet strong enough to power a factory. Mild enough to warm your bed but stout enough to pump the water.

Power from the Lighthouse Electric Cooperative is a vast rural resource that is helping Texas Grow.
