Drip Irrigation System To Be Viewed At Field Day

LUBBOCK - A fully automatic drip irrigation system designed to conserve moisture while providing crops with sufficient water for maximum production is in operation at Conservation Board; Doyle Hutcheson, president of the State Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts; Frank Grey, State Board member, and Charles Wood, Director of the State Association would attend the meeting.

The five local directors of the Floyd County SWCD and Jon J. La Baume, SCS plan to attend.

the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock. The system will be one of the featured attractions at the annual field day and open house at the Center on September 12, beginning at 1 p.m.

Irrigation research at the Center is under the direction of Dr. Charles Wendt, Dr. Otto Wilke and Trey Harbert, all with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

"Field day visitors will have an opportunity to see cotton, grain sorghum, soybeans and watermelons growing on plots irrigated by drip system," points out Wendt. "Of particular interest should be the total automatic features of the systems. Each system is automatically activated when moisture meters located in various locations indicate the need for additional moisture."

With this type of irrigation system, optimum moisture conditions can be maintained at all times, note the researchers. Thus maximum production should be achieved if all other plant requirements are met.

"We hope to have some yield breakthroughs with this type of sophisticated irrigation system," contends Wendt. "That's what it's going to take to put such a system into practical use since its cost is high."

For a drip irrigation system with a life of three to seven years, the cost is about $1,000 per acre for equipment and labor. A system with only a year's durability can be installed for $400 to $600 per acre.

"One major advantage of a drip system is that small acreages can be irrigated efficiently with small wells," points out Wilke. "Also, overall irrigation efficiency should increase once we know the moisture requirements of specific crops."

In tests at the Center, drip-irrigated squash and beans yielded 19 and 5.2 tons, respectively. Drip-irrigated potatoes and okra yielded 13.2 and 2.2 tons, respectively. Potato blight and verticillium wilt reduced the yields of potatoes and okra. The researchers believe that such yield increases are possible for other crops and must be accomplished for a drip irrigation system to be a sound economic investment.

In addition to irrigation research, other studies underway at the Center that will be featured during the field day are oilseed crops, cotton diseases and varieties, narrow-row cotton, grain sorghum insect control, soil fertility and vegetable crops.

Special discussions on weed control and the water conducted at the quarters.

Field day visitors will have an opportunity to consult with members at any time on the tour. Equipment and displays will also be exhibited throughout the building.

Conservation Districts To Meet

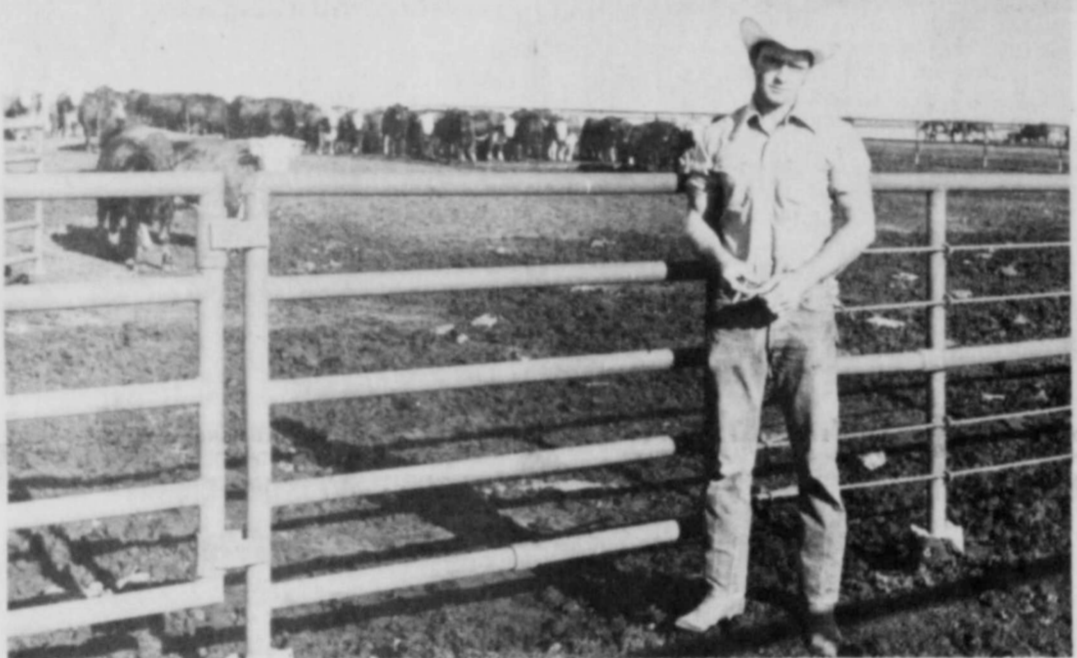

The South Plains Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts will meet in Spur, Texas on Tuesday, Sept. 5, 1972 in the Dickens Electric Co-op building, according to G. L. Fawer, chairman of the Floyd County Soil and Water Conservation District. The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. After the main program, there will be a business session of the South Plains Association which covers 15 counties on the South Plains.

The Duck Creek SWCD is providing the noon barbecue to be held at Swenson Park in Spur, cooked by the celebrated Guy Goen.

After the noon meal, the group will proceed to the Texas

Soybean Producers Election Ballots Out

W. B. Tilson, executive secretary of the Texas Soybean Producers Board announced today that ballots will be in the mail this week to all soybean producers in the state affected by the producer financed research and market development program.

This is the biennial election to select three directors to the nine member board and those chosen will serve six year terms.

Tilson pointed out that there will be one director elected from each of the producing areas of the state. These areas are District I, the High Plains; District II, North East Texas; and District III, South East Texas and only those living in his or her district can vote for a representative from their particular district. He urges everyone to exercise his right to vote and if they do not receive a ballot in the mail, one can be obtained from the County Agent's office in the county in which they live. All ballots must be postmarked September 18 or before to be valid.

Tilson also announced that the 1974 convention of the American Soybean Association will be held in Texas. Don Blacketer of Honey Grove, president of the Texas Soybean Association, presented the formal invitation from the Texas Board and it was accepted. The site has not been definitely set but likely will be in the next month.

The American Soybean Association is a rapidly growing organization representing soybean producers throughout the United States created for the purpose of promotion, research, education, and market development. It is anticipated the convention will draw two thousand or more.

Questions and Answers

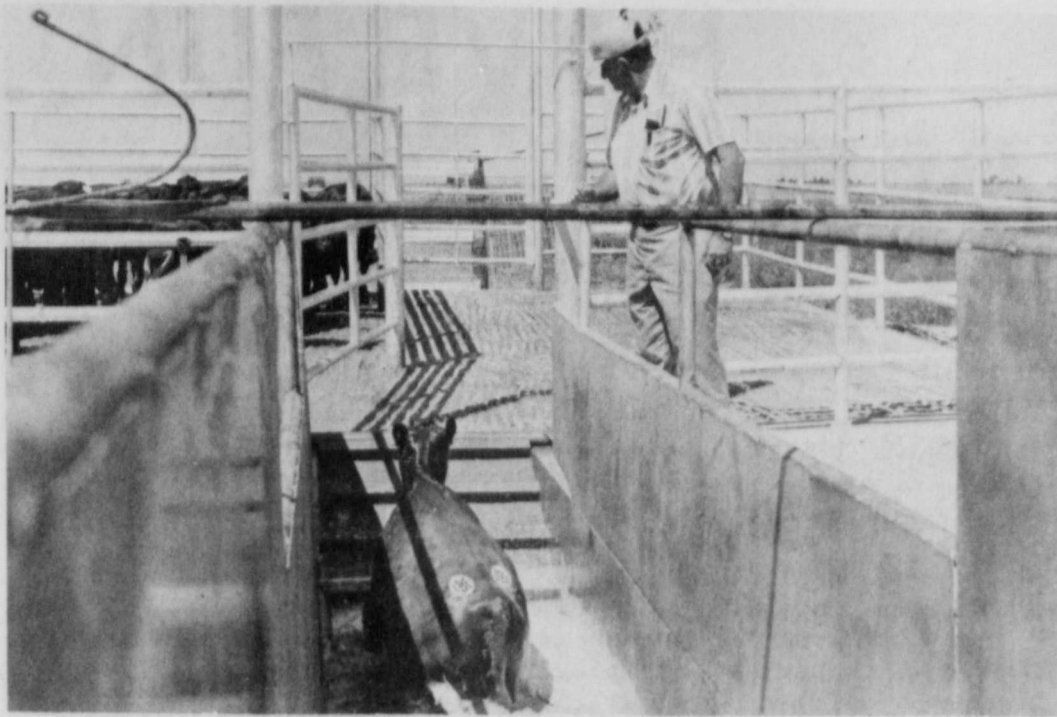

Q. After applying for social security retirement payments at 65, I returned to work. Will the wages from this work increase my monthly cash payments when I decide to finally retire?

A. Possibly. If you earn enough to increase the average earnings used to figure your retirement payment, your cash payments would increase. Any increase would be figured automatically in the year following the year of additional earnings, and the increase would be retroactive to the first of the year following the year in which the earnings occurred.

Q. When I got married recently I wrote my new name on my social security card. Should I do anything else?

A. Yes. You need to fill out a form to change your name on your social security record kept in Baltimore, Maryland. You can get the form from any social security office. After you send it to us, we'll mail you a new social security card showing your new name and the same number you were originally issued.

CLEAN AS A HOUND'S TOOTH! ... this Angus climbs out of dipping vat after swimming through scabies preventive solution just west of the Floydada Livestock Auction. (Staff Photo)

Q. My sister's 17-year-old daughter died last January following a car accident. She had a social security number and had worked part time at a drive-in for nearly 2 years. Could her mother get a social security death benefit toward her daughter's funeral expenses?

A. It's possible. A person who dies in his teens or early twenties needs only six quarters of coverage, about 1 1/2 years of work under social security, for a death benefit to be payable. Your sister should call any social security office for more information.

Q. I'm receiving monthly disability payments from social security. If I continue to get disability benefits for 5 or 6 years before I recover and return to work, would my retirement payments at 65 be less because I was disabled and unable to work?

A. No, your retirement benefits would not be reduced because you were disabled. Furthermore, the years while you were disabled will not be used in figuring your retirement benefits later. This gives you the advantage of retaining a high yearly average of earnings.

Have a question about social security and its retirement, survivors, disability or Medicare benefits? See your telephone directory for the phone number and address of the nearest social security office.

TEEN TIMES

by Lisa Bernadette

With the summer vacation over, many teens are returning to school with travelogue tales of adventure and experiment. For the rough and ready (and sturdy of limb), there were hitchhikes throughout the United States and Europe. All it took was a compact knapsack, a good thumb and lots of nerve. Said one teenage girl who traveled in France with another girl, "When I left on the trip, I was a kid. When I got home, I wasn't. Being on my own with nobody to bail me out of trouble but myself, changed me. Now I have more of a sense of responsibility."

Two teenage sisters traveled to South America with their parents, and found when they got home they'd been in the minority, spending vacation time with their folks. "But for South America, it really was best," Lisa Bernadette said the 17-year-old. "Two girls alone might have attracted the wrong kind of attention in an area that still puts a priority on protecting and shielding women." "Besides," said her sister, "it was great to have Dad to turn to when we wanted a souvenir that was a bit above the budget."

Three teenage boys who camped out for a month in one of the country's national parks found that it became a matter of price, not to phone home for rescue when the going got rough. "I suppose it was a comfort to know we weren't all that far from home, but none of us wanted to be the first to give in."

One teenager spent the summer in Italy, helping out on his uncle's farm. "I only knew a few words of Italian when I got there," he reports. "And by the time I left, I was really making progress. But I would have been a lot better off if I'd studied the language before I got there. Another advantage he reported was what the Italian outdoors did for his complexion. "Sunshine is the best remedy for that teenage terror, acne," he said. "And there was plenty of sunshine in Italy. Luckily, I know that I can handle the winter-time problem at home with frequent washings with Postex medicated cleanser and daytime cover-up with Postil medicated lotion."

A pretty hip teenager from California reported being surprised by a sign in his hotel room in Istanbul: "Attention Beatniks, Hippies, Tourists! Possession, use or sale of drugs is a crime in Turkey, punished by imprisonment, in some cases, perpetual imprisonment!" He was a bit sobered by the knowledge that the State Department reports over 700 Americans under detention in foreign countries on drug charges. "A person traveling in a foreign country is liable under their laws and there is very little that the American government can do to help him if he breaks a law."

thinking?"

The youngster, unable to look the coach in the eye, finally replied, "I was thinking, Sir, that I must have the dumbest coach who ever lived."

It is, in fact, the coaches who more often than not provide the comic relief. Like the two rival mentors who had been chosen to coach in a Texas schoolboy all-star game:

After evaluating the material during the week of practice preceding the game, both coaches agreed that the talent of the North All-Stars was far superior to that of the South All-Stars. Fearing that his South players might be humiliated, the coach suggested to his Northern counterpart that some sideline signals might prevent a lop-sided game.

"After all," he rationalized, "this is just an all-star game and we don't want any of those kids to be embarrassed. If it gets to the point where your kids are making a run-away of it, I'll wave my handkerchief and that will mean for you to put in some subs."

The rival coach agreed that it was a fair plan.

By midway in the second quarter the score had already mounted to 30-0 and the South coach decided it was high time to signal. Stepping into clear view, he pulled his handkerchief from his hip pocket and waved across the field.

There was no response.

He ventured a few steps out onto the field and waved more vigorously.

Still no response.

By now frantic, he jumped up on the bench and waved the handkerchief high over his head. The opposing coach just looked the other way as his team continued to pour it on.

The South coach was furious as he jumped down from the bench and walked out onto the field again, this time almost out to the hash marks, and waved his signal. "Hey, you SOB, I'm waving at you," he yelled at the top of his voice.

Finally, the opposing coach turned. "Oh, hello over there," he said, waving back. His team went on to a one-sided victory as reserves saw action only in the final stages of the game.

The coaches, constantly inserting more complex offenses, have lent to the comedy on the field of play as well. Even on the professional level, where grown men are paid to study and perfect their duties, trouble is bound to occur.

Don Meredith, having joined the Dallas Cowboys after an All-American career at SMU, found the multiple offense of Tom Landry bewildering at times. Particularly the audibles whereby a quarterback is supposed to read the defensive alignment and change the play at the line of scrimmage.

Dandy Don called a fullback wedge, but upon arrival at the line of scrimmage, he saw that Sam Huff, the former New York Giants middle linebacker, had filled the gap into which the play was to go.

Meredith froze for a moment, then said, "Ah . . . 31 . . ." Huff heard the audible and moved to the proper position. Don tried again. " . . . 31 . . . brown, right, 34 slant . . ." The Giants defenders shifted to stop such a play. "Ah . . . 34 . . . 22 EGO pop . . . ah . . . 34, red right . . . aw, hell, time out!"

Thus it has been — an Alabama player racing off the bench to tackle Rice's touchdown-bound Dickie Maegle in the 1954 Cotton Bowl . . . a rural East Texas high school quarterback applying hog lard to his legs to make it impossible for defenders to hang on to him . . . Darrell Royal and his Hollis (Okla.) High teammates playing in longhandle underwear rather than get their brand new uniforms dirty on a muddy, cold night in Borger, Tex. . . . Pete Gent, a Dallas Cowboys receiver, hiding in the locker at halftime, hoping to escape the wrath of Landry. It is endless.

There have been funny moments but even in their humor is mirrored the seriousness felt for the game.

Not too many years ago, Waco High was leading Beaumont, 63-0, and in the dying minutes of the contest a Beaumont defensive player, sweating, dirty and in tears, yelled defiantly, to his teammates, "Come on you guys. If we don't fight, we're gonna get beat . . ."

GRAIN PRODUCERS NEWS

THE WALLS OF THIS HOUSE USE TO ECHO with sounds of laughter. It holds many fond memories for the Tom Deen children where they were reared. The house was one of the first modern ones in Floydada and was lived in by the Tom Deen family for over 50 years. It stands empty now, Judge and Mrs. Deen are deceased, and the children live elsewhere. Soon the walls will come down on the 68 year old home to make room for an expanding business. (Staff Photo)

68 Year Old Home. One Of Floydada's First Modern Residence, To Come Down

(By Peggy Medley) (Thanks to Mrs. Paul Murff for giving me some of the history of the Deen Home)

One of the first modern homes erected in Floydada and holding fond memories for young and old alike, will be torn down prior to May of 1973. The house was first used as a Methodist parsonage and later purchased by a Floyd County pioneer, Judge Tom Deen. The Deen children have agreed to sell the town lots the house sits on, to the City of Floydada for commercial purposes. The lumber, or some of it, from the home will be salvaged by the Deen children.

The home, built at 201 Main Street in 1904, was a new parsonage for a Methodist minister. The first church building in Floydada was a Methodist Church, but used by all denominations. It was directly across the street from the new parsonage, about where Scott Gin is now located.

The three room house, with glass in the front door and a diamond shaped window on the south side of the entrance hall, was a sight to behold in 1904. Three long windows graced the living room and a dormer window with three smaller ones were in the attic. The Methodists were proud to have such an elegant building for their pastors, the first being the Rev. J. T. Howell family.

In 1911 the church building was moved to West Kentucky Street and another house bought and moved to Kentucky St. for a parsonage. The Main Street parsonage was at that time sold to the Tom Deen family.

The Deens added two rooms and a bath to the structure and made it their home for many, many years, rearing five children there. All are graduates of Floydada High School. They are Fred of Indio, Calif., Mrs. Don (Velma) Booth of Dallas; Jesse Haines of Fort Worth; Tom Jr., of Escondido, Calif., and Wilma of Albuquerque, N. M. Jesse was a nephew, who was reared by the Deens.

Judge Deen, as he was known best, was a native of Hamilton where he was born in 1878. He traveled by train to Amarillo in the summer of 1900, then rode a stage coach to Floydada. He was active in teaching and politics and later taught school in Baker community. While teaching there in 1904, he was appointed Justice of the Peace of Floyd County, by the late Judge A. B. Duncan.

Dec. 6, 1903, Judge Deen and Addie May Haines, daughter of Floyd County pioneers, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Haines, were wed. Rev. Wm. H. Carr performed the ceremony.

In 1905 Deen was elected Floyd County treasurer, later serving as county and district clerk from 1914 - 1920 and county judge from 1936 until 1940. Judge Deen served as State Representative of the old 120 District for three terms from 1941-1946, and was instrumental in securing a Home Demonstration agent for Floyd County.

Judge Deen suffered from complications of a broken hip which occurred after his retirement and Mrs. Deen was a wheelchair patient for many years from arthritis. In the early 1960s the couple reluctantly left their home on Main Street in Floydada to move to Fort Worth to be near their children who gave lovingly to their needs until their deaths.

Judge Deen died there May 19, 1963 at the age of 85. Mrs. Deen died August 1, 1968. Both funerals were held in the

First Methodist Church in Floydada, of which Mrs. Deen had been a member for 66 years and Judge Deen for 63 years. The old Methodist parsonage, soon to come down, played a big part in the life of the Tom Deen family for over 50 years, and will leave many memories to be cherished by the Deen children.

Make Church - Going a Habit

The heavens declare

People are so busy here and there that they often fail to perceive the beauty and grandeur of Creation. A storm at sea, a beautiful sunrise or a full moon riding in a clear sky are but commonplace aspects of the weather. Towering mountains, a great waterfall or a far-spread fertile valley are but features of the landscape. Blessed is the man gifted with the vision and understanding to see the deeper meaning of Nature's matchless wonders. For behind all the wonderful phenomena of earth and sea and sky is the pattern of a sublime plan which stirs the awe and challenges the imagination of man. There can be but one answer to the marvels and wonders of the universe—God! The Church brings man into spiritual relationship with his Creator.

FLOYD PHILOSOPHER Comes Up With An Idea For Holding Future Political Conventions

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm has some reflections on national political conventions this week.

Dear editor:

The trouble with politicians is that they frequently are too far behind the people. Take the national conventions. Everybody knew there were going to be demonstrations outside the hall in Miami Beach, had known it for four years, and while there's nothing like a televised confrontation outside the hall to break the monotony of a roll call vote inside, the costs of controlling such things are getting out of hand.

As I understand it, it costs the city of Miami Beach at least two million dollars just to provide all the extra police protection, not to mention the cost of hauling in all those buses to form barricades, and with many stores boarded up and closed and honest town people afraid to venture out, it's almost impossible to make a profit out of a convention any more. But since there seems to be no way around holding one and since any city hereafter is going to think twice before letting one in, and I certainly don't want one held out here on this farm, the thing for the politicians to do is build a permanent convention hall recognizing the facts of life.

Build it, before all states pass zoning laws against it, out on a prairie somewhere, but underground, with fifty-mile-long tunnels leading to it from all directions. Once inside, a delegate couldn't come out till somebody was nominated.

With some of the tunnels only decoys, so a few policemen dressed up to look like delegates could roar in by car, circle around and come out another exit out on the prairie, demonstrators would be hard pressed to make much of a scene. Oh, it'd be all right for one of the cars now and then to slow down long enough for somebody to stick an ice pick in a tire, and just to keep in the spirit of the thing the tires could be filled with tear gas. The networks are entitled to some consideration in holding up their ratings.

If they're going to continue to hold conventions, politicians have got to wake up to the times we're living in. Everybody except them knows it's no longer practical to hold one out in the open.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Crime Still Rises

The annual report of the U. S. Department of Justice has good news, of a sort, in that serious crime in the nation during 1971 registered only a seven per cent gain over 1970. This was the smallest rate of increase in six years.

However, this is hardly cause for joy because it is still an increase in the crime rate. Americans today are surrounded by crime of all varieties, and while the rate of increase is slowed, it is nevertheless an increase.

The rate of increase in crime has shown a steady march upward, beginning in 1966. In fact it has been a 74 per cent increase in the years since 1966. The rising rate of crime ought to be a matter of primary concern to all Americans. It should probably take priority over a lot of other national problems such as poverty and pollution.

It should be a national disgrace that this nation has to call out extra policemen, state troopers and national guardsmen to guard the delegates to a national political convention in Miami Beach.

It is a national disgrace that citizens cannot walk the streets of our nation's capitol after dark for fear of being mugged, robbed or murdered.

A total of 5,995,200 serious crimes were reported to law enforcement agencies in 1971. This includes 5,185,200 property crimes and 810,000 violent crimes. The year before there was a total of 5,581,200 serious crimes committed.

There were 385,910 robberies, 2,368,400 burglaries and 17,630 murders committed in these United States last year.

All of these statistics are dull reading because they concern only numbers of a printed page. When crime happens to a person is when statistics become quite personal.

Enjoying Work

Relief from the strains of modern life lies not in more leisure time but in taking on stress with enjoyment, says a doctor in Canada who has made a long study of the subject of stress in modern man.

Dr. Hans Selye says "People suffer as much from boredom and lack of activity as they do from concentrating energy on something from which they derive no satisfaction."

Dr. Selye is director of the University of Montreal's Institute of Medicine and Experimental Surgery.

"Man is made to work, to do something that makes demands upon him," Dr. Selye said. "With the decline of so many other values such as religion and nothing new to replace them, work is one of the few areas where man can find a sense of worth and enjoyment."

But too often work is a source of frustration and insecurity, just something else to put up with like traffic congestion, pollution and violence.

The source of much unhappiness in this world today is the fact that too many people are not happy with the work they do. There is no satisfaction out of it, no sense of pride in what is being done.

Part of this is the fault of the industrialized system. What satisfaction is there in turning a nut on an assembly line all day long, day after day?

Formerly a craftsman would make a table, from beginning to end and get a great deal of satisfaction out of it. Today one person makes the legs, another the top and another does the painting. Nobody feels that this is their table.

People who have found work that they like to do are generally good at it and find satisfaction in their work. Those who build, like carpenters and bricklayers, have a sense of accomplishment in their work.

Teachers also build and there is immense satisfaction in seeing children grow and develop under one's tutelage. There are a lot of jobs in which results can be seen, and this fills an inner need that too often goes unfulfilled.

It is not enough to make a good salary from one's work. It is necessary that one enjoy his work if he is to avoid ulcers and mental problems and other unhappiness.

The Canadian doctor hit the nail on the head when he said that the key to leading a happy life is finding work that you enjoy. At least if you have this, you have a start toward happiness.

Fair Opens September 5 In Lubbock

LUBBOCK - Tickets for Fair Park Coliseum attractions headlining the 55th annual Panhandle South Plains Fair, scheduled here Sept. 25-30, are on sale at the box office and four other locations, Steve L. Lewis, fair manager, disclosed today.

Lewis said that tickets would be on sale at the box office in Fair Park Coliseum on the fairgrounds from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The box office telephone number is 762-8349.

In addition, tickets also will be on sale at Sears' downtown store, TG&Y stores on Parkway Drive and Brownfield Road and at Luskey's Western Wear during regular hours at those locations.

The fair this year is returning Charley Pride, who smashed all attendance records during a two-day stint here in 1970. He'll be opening the weeklong fair run on Monday and Tuesday nights, appearing on stage with the Pridesmen, country and western singer Johnny Duncan, Alex Houston and Elmer and the North Door Singers.

On Wednesday night, a gospel music show has been scheduled featuring the Blackwood Brothers Quartet, J. D. Sumner and The Stamps Quartet, plus the Blackwood Singers, all renowned in the religious music field.

Thursday night, the fair is bringing in an all-new all-star Mexican variety show. Friday and Saturday, Roy Clark, The Sound Generation, Tom T. Hall and The Story Tellers close out the week. Clark also provided a top draw in his earlier appearance at the fair in 1969 when he appeared here with Jeannie C. Riley, Charley Pride and Buck Owens.

Pride holds the fair attendance record for a two-day engagement but Tennessee Ernie Ford, who has headlined the fair twice, is the record-holder.

Nursery Expresses Appreciation

The Floyd County Day Care board and staff wish to express their appreciation to everyone who donated and assisted during the past three weeks with the bake sales.

Since January, 1972, the nursery has provided service for 125 children. During the summer months about two thirds of the children enrolled pay less than 75¢ for the ten-hour-a-day service, and most of these pay less than 50¢. During the fall and spring the overall average is around $1.00 or slightly over.

The nursery is licensed for 20 children, and, on the average, takes in less than $100 a week.

The requirements are to employ at least three workers for the number the center is licensed for.

Considering the cost of food and paying the workers, one can see that if the nursery fee amounts to $100 a week, or $400 a month, it cannot sustain operation alone. Therefore, it is necessary for the nursery to continue to ask for financial support.

Each donation is tax deductible. The board and staff of the nursery appreciate the donations they are now receiving, but more is needed to continue the nursery program.

Remember the nursery this month by sending donations to secretary, Mrs. Ralph Johnston.

er for a weeklong engagement. Tickets for the Pride show are priced at $5, $4 and $3.

Tickets for the religious music show are set at $3 and $2, while tickets for the remaining three nights will be priced at $4.50, $3.50 and $2.50.

Lewis pointed out that the four-show format is a "first" for the fair and is in keeping with its "family fun for everyone" theme. Show times are 5:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. daily.

In addition to a number of old favorites such as the children's barnyard, three horse shows, women's, military, agricultural, fine arts, creative arts, industrial arts, rabbit, tropical fish and other exhibits and shows, the fair also is boasting two new free attractions.

Tony, the organ grinder and Chris, the wonder monkey, will entertain throughout the fairgrounds about six hours daily and "The Sensational Leighs," appearing on the giant space wheel, will thrill fairgoers each day.

A terminal barrow show, replacing the swine show and offering a top cash award of $1,000 - largest ever for the fair - also are on the card this year.

Floydada First Baptist Sets Revival

Jimmy Hodges, Music Evangelist from Lakeland, Florida, will direct the music in the Wayne Bristow Evangelistic Crusade at the First Baptist Church, September 10-17, according to pastor, Dr. Floyd C. Bradley.

A former jazz band leader and state winner as tenor soloist and drum demonstration artist, Hodges has presented assembly programs and drum exhibitions on high school and college campuses across the United States. "Youth Night" in the campaign will feature the musician in a drum exhibition during the special Youth fellowship after the services, which begin at 7:30 p.m.

Evangelist Hodges, a graduate of Oklahoma Baptist University and recording artist for Epistle Records, is a composer of gospel music, the most recent of which are the widely used crusade chorus, "Oh, What Grace", and "Jesus is the Melody", the title song of his recent album release.

Hodges, who has served three terms as Director of Music for the National Conference of Southern Baptist Evangelists, and his wife, Delorties, have three children.

The campaign in Floydada is a part of his fall itinerary which includes meetings in Oklahoma, Texas, Arizona, Virginia, Indiana, Maine, North Carolina, Missouri, Georgia, Florida and the Bahama Islands. "Music is a very reliable spiritual thermometer for a nation. Examine the music the people best love and to which they most listen, and one can pretty well gauge the spiritual temperature of the nation; America has deep need for concern!" says Hodges.

Progress Is From 1920 To 1972.....Floydada To Africa

FRED MARTIN demonstrating land leveller in Africa.

When Mark Martin started his farm implement business in Floydada, the year was 1920 and it took 24 hours to go 250 miles in the best passenger auto around.

Today that farm implement business has stretched 16,000 miles away to Africa as the Mark Martin's son, Fred is selling farm implements to a vastly different kind of people and unusual market.

And...just for the record that 16,000 miles can be made by jet in 23 hours! Fred has been selling farming implements in Africa, going on his third year and as he demonstrates his implements he's preety well tabbed "Texan" as Mark supplies him with Texas hats and boots.

Although Mark sells tractors and farming implements and Fred sells implements, they enjoy letters back and forth discussing the differences in their businesses....

Fred is selling to the retailer as wholesaler, Mark sells to the customer in retail business. Fred is distributor for Inco sprayers, shellers and wheel mounted tandem discs, stubble mulch equipment, Rome offset discs, Big Ox chisel plows, Eversman landlevelers, Hutchmaster Plows & Grain Dryers.

"The Farmer's Weekly" magazine in Africa recently did a feature on demonstration of land levellers and Texan Fred Martin was pictured in the demonstrations.

The picture shows Fred with a typical Texas hat... felt, since it was winter time over there. Mark buys the Texas hats right here in Floydada at Hale's Department Store and sends them to Africa.

A recent letter from Fred tells of the thousands of dollars worth of equipment sold each week... Africans are really going for mechanized farming. Fred also reported that his daughter, Kit, now Mrs. Rodney Reynolds and living at Transvaal, is getting along just fine. Kit met Rodney, when Rodney was visiting from Africa in the F. L. Montandon home at Aiken.

"Inventive" 4-H'ers Enjoy 4-H Electric

SPECIAL - Scientists like Edison and Marconi designed, built, tested and experimented with their inventions, before they became everyday realities. Young people enrolled in the national 4-H electric program have taken a clue from those two famous men and created their own inventions - computers, radio transmitters, teaching machines and other electrical devices.

electric program activities. Westinghouse provides handbooks and other materials to aid learning and also sponsors an annual workshop for leaders and power suppliers assisting with the 4-H electric program.

Over 130,000 4-H members are hard at work in the 4-H electric program, sponsored by the Westinghouse Electric Company, creating their own electrical hardware, more sophisticated perhaps than the early works of the Edisons, Marconis and others. And they are constantly seeking new and improved ways of using electric power. David Krivosik, of Elizabeth, N.J., was one of the national winners in the 4-H electric program, last year. David, who won a $700 scholarship, designed and built his own logic computer. Randy Roush, of Jeffersonville, Ohio, another 1971 national winner and scholarship recipient, designed and built an antenna switching and tuning network and a high powered transmitter. Young Roush estimates that his antenna system which cost him $200 to build, is equal in quality to a comparable system costing $1,000. Besides the $700 scholarships for national winners in the 4-H electric program, Westinghouse also provides incentives and recognition for winners at the state and county level. County winners receive gold plated medals of honor, and a winner from each state receives an all-expense paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Nov. 26-30. Groups are also eligible for recognition. In the 4-H electric program, an embossed plaque is offered to one county in each state reporting the most outstanding county 4-H
