Letters To The Editor

November 17, 1972

Dear Wendell,

Enclosed are a couple of clippings out of today's local papers, both of which are on the same subject. We thought you might be interested in reading these comments by some other Americans who have visited South Africa.

Babe and I are very pleased with this country, which is so much like the United States in so many ways. We cannot understand the adverse publicity which is often printed about South Africa by the politicians. This is a land which you have to live in for a while before you can make any statements about it. We have not met any "foreigner" like ourselves who has not been very thrilled with what they have found upon visiting this country.

May we extend our best wishes to you and your staff. And we would like to say "Congratulations" to the Whirlwind Team for their performance this year, which we keep up with.

Yours sincerely,
/s/ Babe and Fred

S.A. race approach 'sanest'

PRETORIA -- South Africa's race situation was the "sanest approach to the particular problem in this country," the Rev. Dr. K. S. Armstrong, a visiting American churchman, said here yesterday.

Dr. Armstrong is one of four American churchmen who have been touring South Africa for the past three weeks as guests of the Minister of Information. Three of the churchmen yesterday visited the Chaplain-General of the Defence Force, Brigadier J. A. van Zyl.

"You cannot try to apply American standards for the race problem in South Africa," said Dr. Armstrong. "It is a local problem, and therefore must have a local solution." South Africa, he said, was making a distinct contribution to the world in the close recognition of the church and religion by the Government. "This recognition is one of the highest in the world."

HIGH MORALS

It was because of this that South Africa's national moral standards were high, he said, adding that the American Press did not give its readers anything like an accurate picture of the real position in South Africa.

Dr. Armstrong is president of the John Wesley College in Michigan, and holds two doctorates and a master's degree.

The Rev. E. Thompson, a leading churchman in Indiana, said he was impressed with the South African economy and also found the educational programmes for Whites and the other race groups in South Africa impressive.

The Rev. H. A. Kirchbauer, a leading American Methodist minister, said certain South African churches were quite similar to American churches.

The group had visited all over South Africa, and had found the country "fantastic."

The fourth member of the group, who left for America yesterday, was the Rev. Dr. G. W. Robertson.—(Sapa.)

FLOYD PHILOSOPHER Reviews A Recent Decision Of The Supreme Court

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm reviews a recent decision of the Supreme Court this week, in his own way.

Dear editor:

It has been the custom over the past few years to berate the U.S. Supreme Court, some people saying the judges have made some haywire decisions, especially involving the rights of criminals and other odd decisions the Founding Fathers never thought of when they wrote the Constitution. Some have even said that the calibre of the Judges has been lowered, that, as with other inflationary situations, while it cost as much as it ever did to operate the court you just don't get nearly the quality of decisions.

Well, that's mostly out of my province, but the Court did act the other day in a way that makes you believe it still has some smart guys on it.

Here's the situation: some parents, displeased because a school teacher had paddled their son, sued the school on the grounds it was unconstitutional, I which part of the Constitution they declined to rule on the case. Wash and said no thanks.

Say what you please about those other decisions, but in this demonstrated absolutely superior Nobody was about to catch the messed up in a local school affair.

To this day we don't know what was paddled unconstitutionally or were a kid I believe I'd watch my son to avoid whatever it was that brought whipping.

Emergency Loan Benefits Farmers

Texas farmers and ranchers who have suffered crop, livestock, or property losses from a natural disaster since June 30, 1971, may be eligible for benefits from Public Law 92-385, J. Lynn Futch, State Director of Farmers Home Administration - Texas announced.

Provisions of this law, signed by President Nixon on August 16, 1972, are now fully operative, Futch said.

Benefits are divided into two time frames:

1. Farmers and ranchers who received loans from Farmers Home Administration as the result of losses due to a natural disaster that occurred between June 30 and December 31, 1971, may be eligible for a cancellation of up to $5,000 of the principal of the loan. Interest on the remaining loan would be three percent.

2. Those who received loans as the result of losses from natural disaster that occurred after December 31, 1971, are also eligible for a cancellation of up to $5,000. Interest on the outstanding balance would be charged at one percent.

Futch emphasized that it is not necessary for those who are entitled to benefits to contact the local FHA office. These are blanket provisions applicable to all who have received loans, and each will be contacted and told of the action he should take.

Futch also advises that any farmer or rancher who receives an Emergency Loan from Farmers Home Administration between now and June 30, 1973, may have up to the first $5,000 of the loan cancelled, with the balance at a one percent interest rate. The amount of cancellation is limited to the loss or damage not compensated by insurance or otherwise.

Quannah Judge And Sheriff To Be In Floydada

Tell About Central Law Enforcement Plan

Law enforcement officials from the state and other states have had their first meeting in the city of Quannah, Hardeman County, to see how their "centralized law enforcement" is working. The plan is favorable for the system that puts city law officials under the enforcement head-ship of the sheriff chief officer. The sheriff and judge will be in Floydada at the activity center Tuesday, December 12 at 7:30 p.m.

to explain the new system to the general public and municipal and law officials of surrounding towns. Under the central law enforcement plan the sheriff is still an elected official and has the power to hire law enforcement officers for all areas of the county, including the men who would enforce laws in the city limits.

Reports indicate that the new plan gives rural people better law protection also. Quannah's "law enforcement headquarters" includes radio system that covers entire county, fire protection, jail or "detention center" and ambulance service. The general public is urged to attend this meeting.

FLOYDDATA

Mrs. D. W. Burke underwent major surgery Friday morning in Lubbock Methodist Hospital. She was reported to be still in the intensive care unit Friday afternoon.

Vases of white gladiola, chrysanthemums and pom-poms graced the altar. In front of the vases was a memory candle flanked by white candles lit during the ceremony. Candle trees with white tapers on the lower floor were decorated with tropical greenery and votive lights. Palms of tropical foliage completed the altar setting. Bridal aisles were marked by white standards garlanded with gypsophylla and votive lights. The setting was completed with a satin covered kneeling bench.

Pam Brandes, soloist, sang "First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," "A Song For You," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white silk organza over white satin. The lace bodice was fashioned with a square neckline and sleeves edged with scalloped lace. The lace formed a cap over the sheer sleeves that were bonded by lace above the elbow. The lace was repeated on deep cuffs by tiny self fabric buttons. A sheer veil extended to a chapel length train, which was outlined in wide lace and attached to a coil of satin flowers accented with seed pearls. The bride designed her wedding ensemble.

She carried a white satin covered Bible topped with roses, gardenias, baby's breath, and lavender pixey carnations, showered with satin love knots. Entwined were her parents' wedding bands. The Bible was a gift from the Queen of Ireland to the bride's great-great-grandmother and carried by five other generations of brides.

Before approaching the altar, the bride's brother, Martin Stoerner, placed white carpet for the aisle, and as the bride descended, paused to present a long-stemmed rose to her mother. Upon leaving the church a rose was given to her mother-in-law.

The bride carried the Bible for something old; a sixpence sent from Ireland to the bride was carried in her shoe; borrowed was her mother's pearl necklace and earrings; blue was a garter with an attached miniature bridal ring set identical to that of the bride's.

Maid of honor was Miss Cynthia Stoerner, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Diana Goedrich of Lubbock, Rhea Williams of Lubbock, Debra Greer of Lubbock, Pam Brandes of Lubbock, and Mrs. Danny Stroope, cousin of the groom, also of Lubbock. They wore orchid merri-mist gowns over taffeta, fashioned with high necklines. Wide ruffles formed square yokes and long sleeves were accented with double ruffles at the wrist. Double ruffles also complemented the hems of the floor-length dresses. Attendants carried colonial bouquets of gypsophylla, sweetheart roses, and lavender carnations, tied with velvet ribbon, centered with candles.

Flower girls were Lisa Stroope and Janet Shimpaugh, of Lubbock and both cousins of the groom. They wore dresses identical to those of the bridesmaids.

Ronnie Myatt of Abernathy was best man. Groomsmen were Mark Stroope, brother of the groom; Ron Stroope, Danny Stroope, and Carl Shimpaugh, cousins of the groom; and Stanley Stoerner, brother of the bride. Ushers were Wayne Stoerner of Hereford, cousin of the bride; Rusty Hazley of Lubbock, and Johnny Quebe of Lockney.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. The bride's table was set with a net over satin cloth, nosegays. The table was centered with an arrangement of white and orchid silver tapers, a cake, and crystal glassware. The groom's table was set with a gold vase holding a centerpiece of a silver and a silver and hurricane lamp. A cake was served on trays. A bride party was situated on a table the bride and groom Houseparty met Mrs. Royce Carl Quebe, Donnie Carl Fitzgerald, Cecil B. Brandes, L. E. Gene Morris, Nita O. A. Mauldin, Quebe, and Miss Maudie.

The bride's trip was a purple silk couple departed on trip to Carlsbad, returning they will home at Route 2, Lubbock.

Stoerner Honors Miss

Stoerner honoring Miss and her attendants Sunday. Mrs.

Hershel Blankenship and her daughter, Debra Greer were hostesses in their home east of Plainview.

Miss Stoerner presented gifts to members of the wedding party.

Luncheon was served buffet style from a circular table, laid with a white linen cloth. A runner of purple crushed velvet accented the table. Food was served from silver dishes.

Places on the dining table were marked with miniature white baskets filled with purple flowers with guests' names written on purple ribbons.

Present besides the bride and the hostesses were Pam Brandes, Mrs. Danny Stroope, Rhea Williams, Cynthia Stoerner, Mrs. Dan Teuton, Mrs. Wilfred Stoerner, and Mrs. Marvin Stroope.

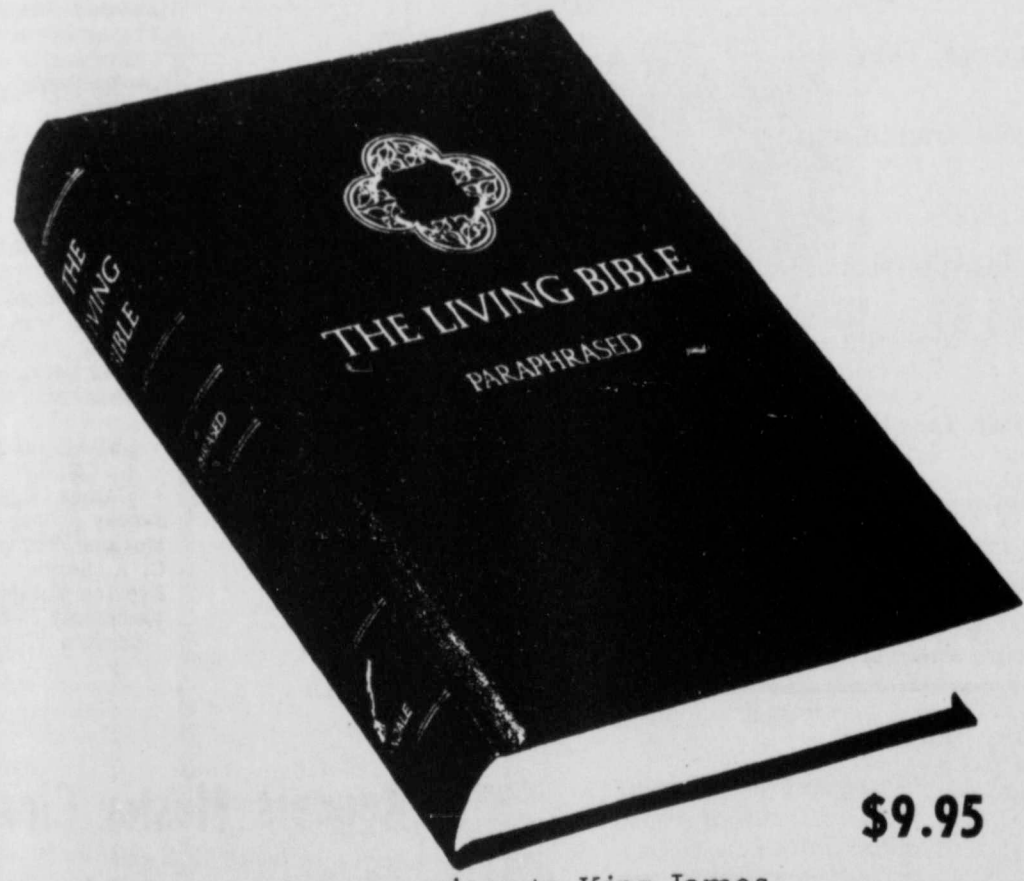

The rehearsal dinner was held Friday night in the Alcove Restaurant at Plainview. Hosts were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Stroope.

Guests were the betrothed couple and their attendants.

In comparison to King James version, we quote one passage from Heb. 11:1:

The Living Bible — "What is faith? It is the confident assurance that something we want is going to happen. It is the certainty that what we hope for is waiting for us, even though we cannot see it up ahead."

King James — "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

Make Church - Going a Habit

visiting foreigners

That's what the Wisemen were—foreigners! They came from distant countries. They were not Christ's own countrymen.

And yet they knelt before the manger. They offered precious gifts—gold, frankincense and myrrh.

The world had found its Center—a Life and a Love to bring men together.

The visit of the Wisemen is the first step in the universal mission of the Church — to bring the whole of humanity into the Kingdom.

But man has been a long time accepting the lesson of the Wisemen. We are still suspicious of strangers, of foreigners, of our new neighbors.

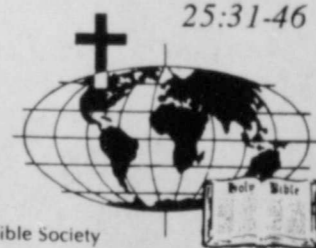

Before our day, the peoples of the earth lived in many mansions. Now we are all under one roof—drawn together by modern communication and travel.

With the transformation of today's world the decision over the Wisemen can no longer be postponed. All of us, human beings from every corner of the globe, must realize our need for one another, our need for love and understanding. Together we must kneel down before the manger.

Clarence Foster Reminisces About Early Floydada Businesses

more sod. It was too early to plant, and we needed something for a planter, so here is what dad came up with, a hand planter. It fell my lot to use the hand planter. It had a sharp bottom. You stuck the thing in the ground and pushed the handles together and that would cause the plate to turn. I did all right with it but I didn't suit my dad so well. I got my hills too far apart.

It had rained some, and the Matadors had moved some cattle to the plains pasture. The water was getting low now so the cowboys were after the cattle to move them back to the brakes. I got in a hurry to get the planting finished, so I could ride with the cowboys that evening, and I did.

It was Saturday, and dad went to town as usual on Saturday.

I want to tell you about our meat club. In the summer we would get at least as many as eight families to join the club. The days set to kill would be Saturday evening.

Meat, Milk and Butter
Most of the time half a quarter would be more than a family could handle. Didn't anybody have any way to keep fresh meat in the summer time.

We could take care of milk and butter just fine. We had our water barrel that the windmill pumped into and then it went from the barrel through the milk trough on out to the stock tank. This was fine and dandy if the wind was high enough to turn the mill. We had a lot of days without wind, so we would be without fresh water for that day.

In the winter months it was easy for us to handle fresh meat. We would kill a cow and hang the four quarters up in the windmill tower, and it would hang there all winter, would crust over and the meat would stay fresh and good. It didn't make any difference about the cow being old if she was fat, the freezing weather would make the meat tender and good.

It was spring again and I don't remember which year, 1904 or 1905, that was so dry. We planted our crop as usual, and it didn't get over knee high. The wind almost quit blowing. We were soon out of stock water. By this time we had quite a bunch of cattle, and no water.

Mrs. Fannie Montague had a hired hand on her place to look after her stock and do a little farming. She had quite a bunch of cattle. Her hired hand was her brother-in-law, Sam Montague, so it was up to Sam and I to get the cattle to water. We drove about three hundred head every other day down in the brakes to Beggy Creek, and returned them to the plains. This was no easy job, for two boys.

This was the hardest time for us on the plains, no crop that year, nothing you might say for our stock through the winter.

It was not so dry but what pie melons did all right. Pie melons and just a little grain is all we had for our meat hogs. Just as soon as they would do to kill that is what we did. We had several head of hogs to freeze that winter. We left quite a lot of pie melons in the field, and after the cold weather started in, I took ox and cart and cut up the melons so the cattle could eat them.

Neighbors Were Far Apart
We didn't have any close neighbors. There were only three houses in the Matador pasture. One of them was ours and the others were Lee Montague's and Mrs. Montague, and he was there only part of the time. During the busy part of the year he worked for the Matadors.

The next close neighbor was three miles from us, and this is where we got our mail, Hillcrest Post Office. It was brought out from Floydada by Mr. Edwards, Horse Edwards was what he was called. Twice a week in a two wheel cart, we always looked forward for the next mail day.

I did a lot of riding and was a fair rider, and I was good with a rope on the ground or on a horse. I had good times. There were not many places to go. We didn't have much money if we did have there was nothing to spend it for.

It was about this time, 1905,

I thought I was quite a young man, as all boys do. I traded a little mule to Gule Snodgrass for a buggy. This was one of the smallest buggies I ever saw. The seat was at least six inches narrower than the regular size seats. I enjoyed this buggy very much, as I could go so many places and take some girl with me. I kept this buggy about two years, and traded it to a young man southwest of town Dooley

Pelphrey for two ponies.

I want to tell you about some of the freighters. The one that came by our place was a Mr. Rice. He used six or seven horses. The six would be strung out, and he would ride the left hand wheel horse, using only one line to drive them with.

This was a rope. It was called a jerk line. This was to the left lead horse bits. How the other lead horse was not allowed to crowd against the horse with the line to his bits. He was held apart with a light rod, fastened to the right horse bits and then back to the other horse hames. He would use two wagons to load with freight.

He would have a dog house on behind the back wagon. He would take the back wheels of an old wagon, and build a small house on them. This is where he could cook and sleep. It was quite a sight to see him coming down the road. I doubt if he ever traveled over three and a half miles an hour.

Hard Winter On Cattle
I had shop-made boots. We would take our measurements, and send them to C. H. Higher, Olathe, Kansas. These were used when we rode or went to church and other places. I then had a pair of boots I used to work in.

The winter of 1904 and 1905 was bad. We had a lot of snow. It was this winter that Mr. Will Sparks lost one hundred and forty-nine head of cattle in one bunch. They froze to death. He did quite a lot of ranching out on the east plains and brakes. There is one of the Sparks girls still here, Mrs. Carr Surginer.

I mentioned that I rode quite a lot. When the Matador hands would come to the plains or nearby I would go with them during the branding season, spend the night in their camp. We got up early, had breakfast and were ready to ride by sun up.

So many of their horses that early in the morning when saddled up would pitch. Then the fifteen or more boys would be on their way to round up the cattle and bring them to a certain place where they would mark and brand the calves.

Catching A Baby Antelope
I haven't told you anything about the antelope. We often would see forty or more in one bunch, and then some time only just a few. I was out early one morning after the horses, did not take time to saddle my horse as the horses would not be over a mile or two from home. I rode up on four or five antelope and there was a little one in the bunch. I took after it and soon I ran over it, slid off the back of the pony, and was there to pick it up, took it home, and we kept it quite a while.

I had heard the mother antelope could cause the little one to lie down, and they can get so flat and close to the ground you can hardly see them. Then the mother will run away from that place. You can ride up fairly close to the little one, get down off your horse, circle around it twice, and then walk up to it, reach down and pick it up.

We had antelope meat several times to eat. Mr. Dave Sparks, who lived four miles from us was the best person with gun I was ever out with. He had a little dun horse and he was fast. We would get after the antelopes and they would not run too far until they would start to circle you. Mrs. Sparks would be riding full speed, stop at once, hit the ground, drop to one knee and he was sure to get an antelope.

I think I have pretty well covered everything. This is 1906. Dad is planning on moving to Floydada. He had a round 150 head of cattle, and I had sixteen head and three

Stalk Destruction Deadline Nears... Boll Weevil Suppression Program Popular and Successful... 4.5 Million Market News Bulletins... Turkey Promotion Year Round

Cotton producers in 44 north central and east Texas counties are reminded that Nov. 30 is the deadline for cotton stalk destruction. No area extensions are expected to be made. Individual extensions may be granted, but requests for those will have to be made by contacting Texas Department of Agriculture at Austin.

Cotton stalk destruction reduces the number of pink bollworms that enter hibernation next year as well as reducing infestations of other cotton insects.

THE STATE'S boll weevil suppression program for this year has been as popular as it was successful. A total of $300,000 was allocated for the program this year which is matched on a half-and-half basis by producers. About 450,000 acres were included in the program which is aimed at reducing next year's weevil populations.

Records show there was a greater infestation of weevils this year than in any season since the program began in 1965. Farmers in 11 counties participated in the diapause program for the 1972 season.

Funds for the program are limited although it is expected that more requests for assistance will be forthcoming from cotton producers in 1973.

ABOUT 4.5 million market news bulletins will have been mailed to Texas agricultural producers by the end of this year from the Texas Department of Agriculture's market news service.

They will be mailed to about 85,000 Texans. The market news service contacts about 1,200 people each week in collecting its market news reports.

Items ranging from daisies to ornamental crops to molasses to livestock and crop reports are covered in the market news reports.

The livestock market news apparently is the most popular. It is an eight-page publication and includes 16 state livestock markets plus grain markets from five areas. It goes to 77,000 people each week.

The poultry and egg report is also popular. It is mailed to 1,800 egg producers and egg industry people.

One of the most popular reports right now is the pecan market. Other market reports include watermelons, rice, ornamental crops, and vegetable and fruit market reports from Hereford, Dallas, and Weslaco.

You can also get instant market news by calling these numbers:

- Austin--pecans, poultry and eggs: 1-512-475-3845.
- Amarillo--livestock: 1-806-372-3494.
- San Antonio--livestock: 1-512-223-4100.
- McAllen (after 5 p.m.)-- fruits, vegetables: 1-512-682-3351

PROMOTION of turkeys will continue through the year through the cooperation of the state's turkey producers and the Texas Agricultural Products program. Texas is the fifth leading state in the nation in total turkey production. Turkeys grown in the state totaled more than 8 million head.

The Central Texas area is the state's major turkey producing region. Bell County is the top turkey producing county in the state. Hill, McLennan, Falls, and Robertson counties are also in the top 10. Total production of those counties accounts for almost 40 percent of all turkeys produced in Texas.

As discussions of a cotton program for 1974 begin to proceed on the High Plains and across the belt, two things are in conversation.

First, growers prefer an extension of the present payment, set-aside program to an alternative yet provided it can be continued with a payment rate and a limitation high enough to make it a workable program. A proviso there is full recognition of the difficulties involved in an urban-minded Congress. But there is no inclination to attempt. The Administration continues to profess its support for the set-aside approach, and literally no one believes the program can be passed without Administration support.

Second, there is an increasing realization in the industry, especially in the producer segment, that the current management system is working poorly and will continue to be poorly until revised or replaced. And it is thought that the true whether the new program follows the set-aside approach or in some other direction.

Under the present system when cotton production of annual domestic and export demand the excess is acquired controlled by Commodity Credit Corporation, an agency of the Federal Government.

"This leaves inventory management policies subject to pressures that often take precedence over economic reality," says Donald Johnson, executive vice president of Plains Growers, Inc., "and so long as this is the case there is no reason to believe that a slight oversupply, or even an adequate supply will not exert an unwarranted amount of downward pressure on producer prices in the future as it has in the past."

Johnson pointed to events of the past 17 months as evidence that the present system is not working for the benefit of the industry. During this period there has been only about a 1 percent change in the cotton supply situation, he noted, but a small change has resulted in a 58 percent increase in price.

Recently an editorial in a national farm magazine stated that a profit in any business under our private enterprise system, you must manage the supply. And it went on to say, "Eventually growers of a commodity must manage its supply to be managed."

More and more cotton producers are recognizing the need for these thoughts, and a greater-than-ever-before effort is being made in 1973 to discover some mechanism whereby management of cotton inventories can be moved from government hands to the hands of an entity designed to accomplish industry objectives.

The two principal objectives, both of which are urgent, neither of which can be achieved without the other, are (1) greater and more consistent returns for growers in the marketplace and (2) continuously adequate and balanced supply of cotton fiber for mill customers.

A number of suggestions for a means to producer or grower control of cotton inventories are being explored. Unfortunately, to date, appears to be the ultimate answer.

But there is full recognition of the need. And that is encouraging.

PIONEER NATURAL GAS PURCHASES MORE GAS ACREAGE

AMARILLO, TEXAS... November 29, 1972... Pioneer Natural Gas Company announced today that the company had acquired the right of purchase of over $80 million worth of natural gas from 60,000 highly prospective acres in Ward, Reeves, Loving, Winkler, Crane and Pecos counties in the Delaware Basin of Texas.

In making the announcement, Burton P. Smith, president of Pioneer, said, "Pioneer is confident that the acreage will contain more than the 200 billion cubic feet dedicated to this purchase." Smith pointed out that, in addition, the company has contracts with a producer to provide for the purchase of an additional million cubic feet per year of existing production. The contracts, together with previously dedicated acreage in the general area, will cost major addition of reserves to the gas supply. "Pioneer," Smith said.

TGSPB Seeks Answer How Is Stubble Of Most Value?

The Texas High Plains produces about 2 million tons of dry matter annually from grain sorghum stubble. TGSPB has awarded Texas Tech University Research Center at Pantech, Texas, a grant to seek the most profitable uses of this stubble. Pantech's research group is trying to answer questions as to the worth of the stubble and the most valuable way to use it.

This 2 million tons of roughage, if properly utilized, could support over 1 million cows annually. However, we must first find the most economical way to handle the stubble for maximum utilization with the lowest cost.

Grazing the stubble is the most common practice right now. However, animals will waste over 50 percent of the stubble, and the time the producer can leave his cattle in the field is limited. Land preparation, which starts in January or February, forces the farmer to remove his cattle from the field before all the stubble has been consumed.

Baling, also a common practice, is expensive and requires more labor during feeding. It does offer the advantage of removing the stubble from the field, and animals can be fed a dry roughage as they graze wheat. The nutritional value of baled stubble is generally better, since it is baled right after harvest before the plants deteriorate.

Ensiling is not a standard practice, but is being used more. Primarily grain sorghum stubble silage is used to supplement corn silage in large feedlots. This practice is dependent of the availability of equipment and labor.

Stacking is a new technique which offers opportunities not present in the other three systems of utilizing stubble. It is new and many questions are unanswered. If practical from a cost standpoint, it could be the most efficient way to harvest grain sorghum stubble.

saddle horses. So we had to sell our stock. I think we got sixteen dollars for grown cows. I can remember when grown cows sold for eight dollars. I came to town and went to school the winter of 1906 and 1907. I stayed with Dr. R. C. Andrews, and helped him with his milk cows and buggy horse. This was the old Dr. Andrews. Dr. Varn Andrews did not live in Floydada at that time, but moved here later. The folks moved to town in 1907, and I was back at home with them.

Achievement ABC's Make 4-H'ers Better Citizens

When a person joins 4-H, he takes a giant step toward becoming an achiever," says Ed H. Anderson, assistant director of the National Service Committee.

Every project and activity a 4-H member undertakes is bound to earn a measure of success — to some degree. It may be learning a skill, being of service to the community, or achieving a much desired goal. After the goal is reached, the 4-H member's spokesman says.

Anderson also noted that the 1972 National 4-H Conclave, scheduled in Chicago, Oct. 26-30, will bring together 1,600 of the nation's best 4-H achievers. All will be recognized for their state through awards in specially designed programs supervised by Cooperative Extension

Guest Editorials

EDWARD DECOURCY in The Newport (N. H.) Argus-Champion: Television commercials are, for the most part, silly, illiterate, insipid, ridiculous, ludicrous, dense, crass, benighted, exaggerated, bombastic, fanfaronading, degrading, insulting.

The visitor from outer space, or the historian of the future looking back at us through repeat broadcasts of these commercials, must conclude that we are a beer-guzzling gang of dim-witted hypochondriacs suffering from halitosis, headaches, gassy stomachs, constipation, arthritis, psoriasis, cavities, dandruff, loose dentures, dirty false teeth, falling hair, athlete's foot, wet diapers, body odor, iritis, clogged sinuses, sunburn, laryngitis, head colds, postnasal drip, iron deficiency, neuralgia and rough hands.

This column is in praise of television commercials. These creations of ingenious wizards in the elevated think tanks on Madison Ave. are one of the greatest blessings of our age, contributing to our health, happiness and prosperity.

Without the television commercial, life around us could well collapse. We might not even finish supper.

Regardless of Spiro Agnew's lament, all television commentators must pass a rigid training course in saying, "We'll be back in a minute with more news." The commentator who can't say that in a convincing, eloquent fetching manner is Kaput, because he must be prepared to say it no less than 10 times during every half-hour broadcast. A band of high-powered accountants is preparing an analysis of the number of man hours devoted to "We'll be back in a minute with more news", both on the part of the speakers and on the part of the viewers.

Actually, "We'll be back in a minute with more news", spoken with all the erudition of a Howard K. Smith or Walter Cronkite or John Chancellor or John Lumpkin, is the cue on which life around us revolves.

That's when millions of housewives, with pay-lonian obedience, arise from their seats to go to the kitchen to get dessert. It's the signal to turn off the oven or to turn up the thermostat.

That nine-word slogan triggers some to clear the table, and others to feed the dog, who, like his master, has been watching television so long he won't eat cereal any more, must less the table scraps on which his ancestors thrived.

The television commercial is the reprieve during which we turn on the toaster, or turn it off. Or it may provide the recess during which we gather the materials and tools and other equipment for balancing a check book.

Here and there among us is a Speedy Gonzalez who takes the commercial period for a quick shave, or a change of clothes.

Some men have even been known to shine their shoes during a commercial, and there are some babies who have swapped damp for dry garments in this period.

Insurance salesmen and church canvassers have found it possible, once in a while, to explain their mission to their hosts during the commercials. It is surprising how much one can say in the time devoted by broadcasters to their inanities.

Researchers in the Institute of Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness are convinced that without the television commercial 94.3 per cent of human muscles will have atrophied by 1984, for it is only the periodic stretching of leg muscles required to lift our bodies from a chair that gives us muscle tone enough to get to the car.

All this has corralled the Administration down in Washington in an agonizing dilemma. On the one hand it supports the position of cutting back on funds for public broadcasting. After all, public broadcasting programs are not interrupted by commercials and thus can have a dangerous effect on our health, to say nothing of stopping all life-supporting activity. But on the other hand there are those pronouncements from the Oval Room. Nobody has figured out just how to inject the commercials there.

On balance we are going to continue the commercials, totally abandoning concern for our image in the eyes of outer space observers to future historians.

Not only do they trigger us to chores and necessary activities. There have even been instances where members of a family have been known to talk to each other during a commercial.

Magnetic Fiber Aids Processing

Magnetism may lead to a new way of processing raw cotton fibers, the National Cotton Council notes.

Scientists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service have succeeded in making small amounts of cotton responsive to magnetic forces. This makes it possible to move fibers about freely from the bale into yarn in one continuous operation.

first down on the first play around end, then a long pass for 39 yards. Two more Childress passes went incomplete and they punted.

The ball was on the Wind 16 yard line and Vinson broke loose with about the same play that worked so well earlier... this time he made 26 yards.

Again the Bobcat defense held and Vinson punted.

Childress took the ball on their own 24 and marched down the field with four consecutive first downs... all rushing except ten yards on a short pass play.

The Bobcats were on the Wind 18 yard line. At this point they brought in Wood who booted the 33 yarder field goal. The score was 3-0 Childress in the lead and 3:11 left in the first half.

Neither team made another first down and ball was on the 45 yard line at half time.

Bands Parade

Both bands put on outstanding shows at halftime.

Second Half

Childress took the kickoff, made a couple of first downs, then Larry Johnson broke right through the middle of the Wind line and ran on to paydirt without being touched. Childress led 9-0 with 6:57 left in the third quarter. Wood made the extra point and it was 10-0.

KNEE SURGERY FOR MIKE BURK

Mike Burk underwent surgery on a knee at Hendricks Memorial Hospital in Abilene Thursday and is reported to be recovering nicely. He had the same knee operated on when he was a junior at Floydada High School. He now plays halfback for ACC and is a sophomore there. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Newell Burk.

The Winds took the kickoff back to the 34... couldn't make a first down and Vinson punted a fine 50 yarder. Childress had the ball on their own 14.

They couldn't go against a strong Floydada defense and punted.

Cagle hit Vinson for a six yard pass, then Cagle kept for another four and the first down. Vinson and Cagle gained eight and four. Cagle lost eight; then Cagle hit Young for eight on an aerial. A blitz on Cagle by the Bobcats and he lost another 13.

Vinson punted and the Bobcats had the ball on their three.

Childress brought it out to the six, then David Marricle knocked the Bobcat runner loose from the ball and Jay Jones recovered for the Winds.

On the third try for touchdown Vinson swung around to the right side, was almost pulled down, but shook loose and plunged over for the first Wind TD. Young's try for extra point was blocked and Childress still led 10-6 with 8:04 left in the game.

Childress took the kickoff on their 20, broke loose for a 22 yard end run, then bogged down and had to punt. It was a short 16 yard punt.

Floydada took the ball on the 36 and began to roll. Cagle hit Hale for 12. Vinson made four, and then four more. Cagle lost three, then lost ten more as the Childress front line closed in on him.

The ball was on the 47 yard line, there were only 37 seconds left in the game, it was fourth down and about 16 needed. Cagle eased back and tossed a beautiful pass to Hale, good for 34 yards. Floydada fans were screaming.

After one running play, Cagle threw just about the same pass to Hale in the end zone, from 13 yards out and Floydada led 13-10 after Young kicked the extra point right through the middle of the uprights.

There were only 18 seconds left. Young kicked off a long one into the end zone and Childress took it on the 20. With 12 seconds left Vinson intercepted a Bobcat pass... and it was all over for Childress.
