Lockney Hospital District To Be Discussed At Meeting Tuesday

Anyone in the community who is interested in the Lockney Hospital District is urged to be present at a meeting Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Lockney Elementary School Cafeteria for an important meeting concerning ways to keep Lockney General Hospital in Lockney, Texas.

Dr. W. J. Mangold, owner and operator of Lockney General Hospital for the past 21 years, has offered to give Lockney

General Hospital to such a district. It is very important that everyone turn out for this meeting. Lockney General Hospital is a big asset to the community of Lockney, and to lose it would be great loss for the people of Lockney and other surrounding cities.

Bids Taken Through Wednesday

Wednesday will be the last day to bid on the 20 small oil and watercolor paintings donated to the March of Dimes fund drive. Windmills are featured in many of the paintings, which were donated by Felicia Louise Applewhite. They are on display at Brown's Department Store in Lockney. Persons wishing to buy a painting may leave a written bid at Brown's. Highest bidders will be sold the art work after Wednesday.

The latest bale count exceeds by nearly 36,000 the total of 44,974 bales ginned in the county a year ago. The latest count is not final, and some estimates put the total Floyd County crop at over 100,000 bales.

FLOYD COUNTY INDUSTRY

Bird House Business Going Well At Lockney

There's a thriving little industry going in downtown Lockney, called "For The Birds... Art Originals".

What started as a hobby for Art and Barry Barker has now developed into an industry and business that employs some eight persons. Since December of 1969 over 16,000 bird houses have been made and shipped out of Lockney to gift shops all over the United States.

Over 5,000 were made and sold last year and the Barkers have recently designed a bird house that looks like the Alamo and a bird feeder house. The Alamo is selling very good in the San Antonio area.

Building contractor Robert McDonald builds everything from big houses (you know like people live in) to the small bird houses, and his crew takes care of the production of the houses.

Down on the corner in the Barker building, Art and Barry take care of the business of taking orders and shipping.

"We have made many friends all over the United States through the years as we have established customers," Art said.

Many of the houses do not go into trees, but are used for patio or den displays inside the home.

"We have a banker customer in Lubbock that buys a lot of our houses and sends them to friends and customers as gifts," Art continued.

Chuck Wilson of Lockney took colored photos of the houses and the cards are sent to prospective customers, on the reverse side of the card, the houses are described as follows:

EACH ONE A SIGNATURE BY "ART"

For The Birds "Art Originals"

Of Cedar Wood, Stained or Antique, this little house for your Bird Friends. Each one distinctively individual, because they are hand crafted just for your yard.

Employed in this Floyd County industry are:

Patty Adams, Margie Stansell, Carolyn Sue, Dany Bowman and Lee Taylor.

LIONS YOUTH BASKETBALL NEEDS COACHES

Signup for a youth basketball program in Floydada is tentatively scheduled for the latter part of this week. Exact time will be announced later. The basketball program is for sixth-grade boys and will be sponsored by the Floydada Lions Club. Play will probably begin later this year.

Approximately 50 Floydada sixth graders have indicated interest in the program.

Anyone interested in coaching a team in the Lions Youth Basketball program should contact Clarence Denton or Coach Curtis Chatham.

More Wives At Work In Floyd County

(Special to the Hesperian) NEW YORK. — In Floyd County, more married women than ever before are leading double lives — as home makers and as job holders.

In stores, factories, business offices, the professional fields and elsewhere, women at work is the order of the day.

Managing the double life takes a bit of doing. Making it possible is the array of labor-saving devices and equipment that has cut down the time needed for household chores.

In addition, there is the great variety of prepared and semi-prepared foods that enable them to turn out a meal in jig time.

The latest figures indicate that no less than 29.5 percent of the married women in Floyd County are now employed outside the home or are looking for such employment. In 1960 the ratio was 23.4 percent.

Nationally, there are nearly 19 million married women who go to work each day. Some of them have full-time jobs and some part-time. They outnumber their single sisters by about 50 percent.

The facts and figures are from the Department of Commerce, the Labor Department and others.

They show that married women have drastically altered the job market in the past decade. They accounted for 43 percent of the total number of new job opportunities and about 75 percent of the female employment gains.

Much of the increase has been due to middle-age women, who have more time on their hands, now that their children are growing up.

However, the major advance in the past five years has been among younger married women, those in the 20 to 24 age bracket, working to supplement their husbands' incomes. There are 40 percent more of them at work now than there were in 1966, says the Department of Labor.

The figures for Floyd County show a rising proportion of women — married and unmarried — holding down jobs.

The 1960 census listed a total of 1,042 in the labor force, equal to 25.2 percent of the local female population of working age.

According to the latest census, it has now reached 28.4 percent.

Pedestrian Struck By Pickup, Killed

A 56-year-old Floydada man, Jesus Cantu Balderas, was killed in a traffic accident inside the Floydada city limits Wednesday.

Police reported that Balderas was struck by a 1973 Chevrolet pickup near the intersection of 12th Street (the Silverton highway) and East Lee in northeast Floydada. The approximate time of the accident was listed as 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Balderas was pronounced dead at the scene by Floyd County Justice of Peace H. E. Porter.

Floydada police reported the accident "unavoidable." The pickup driver, a 43-year old Silverton man, was traveling north on 12th Street, slower than the speed limit, which is 50 miles per hour there, police said.

Balderas was apparently crossing 12th street on foot, heading east, when he was struck by the pickup.

The body was taken to San Antonio by Roy Akres Funeral Home where services were held.

Among survivors are five daughters, two sons, a stepson and a number of nieces and nephews and other relatives of the Floydada area including a brother-in-law, Pedro Vallejo of Floydada, where Balderas was making his home.

Caprock Chat

BY WENDELL TOOLEY

I INVESTIGATE possibilities for this canning plant in Floydada more, it seems that one of the first requirements will be for the workers. I visited with a man from Western in Dimmitt last week, and he says that is one of the stages Dimmitt and Plainview have... good furnished plants for workers.

Our Chamber of Commerce should make plans on this with the Farmers Home Administration.

WUL HARVEY MAY have stumbled onto something in the past, when he stated last week, "with the shortage gradually coming upon us... we may be day, reverting back to the windcharger."

Most of us country people know that a windcharger is a sort of bladed windmill that generated electricity into a battery was used to run radios and lights before REA came to arm.

When Natural Gas has cut its supply of gas to our city plant two or three times this winter... and our users have had to run the big engines on diesel fuel when it happens. Diesel is probably three times as expensive as natural gas, and I understand there's not just a big supply of oil around.

The city of Tulia also has its own electricity plant and they had these facts about diesel supply according to last week's Herald:

A statement from Texaco's New York Office, a company spokesman said that it was allocating supplies of middle distillate to customers in various areas east of the Rocky Mountains. Available supplies were allocated to handle the overall problem "in the most equitable manner possible," the spokesman said.

When Southwestern Public Service switched some of its power to diesel, they experienced difficulties hauling the oil over snow-packed highways to the facilities.

Texaco said the allocation program results from a general age of middle distillate fuels and is necessary to cope with increased demand in the face of dwindling domestic crude production, import restrictions on major refiners, and other factors beyond their control.

Texaco blamed "inequitable oil import regulations, by restrictive environmental restrictions and by restricted price policy on heating oils, natural gas and crude oil. Texaco has repeatedly advised the appropriate federal agencies of its growing inability to meet distillate fuel requirements under current governmental restrictions, and what remedial actions in the company's judgement are necessary to improve the supply of distillate fuels.

While these matters have been dealt with on a more effective basis in the past, the nation will continue to be plagued by fuel shortages of one kind or another."

Ability is now considered one of our inalienable rights. However, it is not free, and sometimes it can be exercised beyond the limits of practicality.

Would you ever drive 50 to 100 miles or more to take advantage of a super-duper special that was advertised somewhere? A local item 50 miles away would have to sell for $34.50 in order for you to break even. The American Automobile Association lists that 15.5 cents is what it costs to drive your car one mile. You've driven 100 miles round trip to pick up that special. I have to add $15.50 to that buy. That sweet purchase only turns quite sour."

Floydada merchants, whether it is groceries, clothing, drugs, ware, appliances or whatever, feature top lines, nationally priced products. And they are also at comparative prices. They also support your local schools, churches and organizations. They also help to pay for improvements to make Floydada a better place to live. And they'll be here tomorrow to serve you faithfully.

So, think. Floydada merchants are the only people in the area that give a darn about Floydada people.

EDITORIAL POLICY has always been do your best to keep the news in Floydada, if you can't find it here... try to keep the news in the county by shopping in Lockney.

Children wanted a ping-pong table for Christmas. There was a ping-pong table in Floyd County for sale. I walked a half mile to the Sears store, they ordered it for me and our family was enjoying ping-pong ever since.

What's that for a happy shop at home story?

MEMORABLE QUOTES: "Let us endeavor so to live that when we die, even the undertaker will be sorry." — Mark Twain. "I know what you possess in the world will be found at the end of your death to belong to others, but what you are will be forever." — Henry Van Dyke.

There is a thing called knowledge of the world which people do not have until they are middle-aged. It is something which is taught to younger people because it is not logical and not obey laws which are constant. It has no rules." — T. H.

When listening to stories told by drivers brought before him on charges, a judge said he had come to the conclusion that a crash is a head-on collision between two stationary cars, parked on its own side of the road.

IT HAPPEN TO HAVE plenty of tickets to the Chamber of Commerce banquet... February 15. So, if one of the board of directors fails to see you, come by The Hesperian and I'll be glad to sell you all you want.

Law Enforcement Needs Study Organized

The South Plains Association of Governments has organized a criminal justice law enforcement training committee to determine the training needs of the law enforcement agencies in the 15-county area which SPAG serves. Approximately 16 regional law enforcement officers in supervisory positions will serve on the committee and will meet monthly.

The purpose of the committee is to study the needs for intermediate and advanced training courses for law enforcement officers. In the past, attendance has been less than satisfactory in many courses.

Every law enforcement agency in the region is encouraged to send at least one staff member to these meetings to present specific local needs. With area-wide participation, future training courses can be planned which will benefit a substantial number of departments.

A Legacy Of H

Have you made out your will? No? Surprisingly, 70 per cent of all Americans die without a will. If you die and do not have a will, one, part of your estate will be used to pay the necessary court costs. Your guarantee that your loved ones will provide for the love.

After you have provided for your family, you should leave part of your estate to a trust for the legacy of hope against cancer.

The American Cancer Society with its research, education, and public service, hopes to find a cure for cancer and ways to live with it.

The Society's research of 1,300 scientists in 10 centers.

The education seeks to curb cancer by educating the nation's seven million.

The American Cancer Society provides cancer patients with a disposable dressing, rehabilitation, sickroom equipment, and the American Society will help cover the cost of supporting programs.

There are several ways to name a beneficiary. One is the simple money or property.

Another is a trust, which leaves an organization all or a remainder of an asset. Specific provisions and friends have been provided for.

Also, a trust provides for medical family or other lifetimes, may be used for later use by a beneficiary.

A person or organization may be named the trustee of all or part of a trust.

Because of funds already been given, progress has been made.

• 38 per cent of those who have cancer are still alive a few years ago only 17 per cent were saved.

• More than 1,500 Americans are alive today because of cancer.

• The uterine cancer rate has been reduced 50 per cent.

• Twenty useful drugs have been produced with effects on cancer.

• In treatment of leukemia, the average time has increased from months to four years.

• Outright cures are projected for the near future.

• Hodgkin's disease is considered hopelessly fatal. Today, 50 per cent are reported to be cured.

The American Cancer Society accepts restrictions supporting a program or purpose. Legacies are preferred, however, because, as made in research, they change.

A will, a trust fund, insurance policy on your loved ones, financial security.

After these provisions made, any consideration of the American Cancer Society could be a gift of life.

The American Cancer Society has several ways that can aid you in wording of your will. You are considering a gift for cancer research, call your attorney or the American Cancer Society.

Research is the final phase of the ACS activity which enhances the possibility of finding those answers that will be useful to humanity for control of cancer. During 1972, grants in Texas included: 17 National fellowships, 26 research grants and eight Texas Division fellowships. The total of these grants exceeded $1,300,000. For every dollar raised in Texas, 36 cents goes for research. "One further fact here," stated the local president, "for every dollar raised in the State of Texas, the Cancer Society spends $1.04. Handicapped Hiring Award is Presented

Jeno's, Inc., a foods processor, has received the Employer of the Year award of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

Jeno F. Paulucci, chairman of the board of the Duluth, Minn. company, accepted the award at the National Association of Manufacturers' Congress of American Industry luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City. The plaque was presented by Harold Russell, chairman of the President's Committee.

Texas Provides Over Three Million To ACS

Mrs. Gene Arwine, president of the Floydada Unit announced today that the American Cancer Society nationally produced eighty million dollars this past fiscal year with Texas providing over three million of the amount.

"This money is one way of showing the emphasis now being placed on cancer control. New programs are continuously emerging to help save over half the lives we are now losing from cancer," the president said.

According to the 1972 annual report of the American Cancer Society, Texas Division, now available to the public, the Cancer Society has four main program areas: Professional Education, Public Education, Service-Rehabilitation and Research.

Professional Education provides up-to-date information on cancer diagnosis and treatment to the medical and allied health professions. The past fiscal year, these programs reached over 58,000 physicians, dentists and nurses. Also 19 clinics and 21 conferences were supported by the American Cancer Society in Texas.

Public Education helps save lives by increasing public awareness and knowledge about cancer prompting early diagnosis and treatment of the disease. This year, an audience of 1,575,731 individuals viewed ACS educational films and heard physician and lay speakers speak on cancer education.

The Service-Rehabilitation programs seeks to save lives, to ease the pains and lighten the many burdens the disease places on its victims and their families. This year, the total number receiving ACS Service in Texas was 16,216 Texans.

The average cost per patient serviced was $180. For example, "The Reach to Recovery" program for mastectomy patients served 595 mastectomies. This is a new program which is now being organized in this area. Another example, 230 laryngectomies were given free esophageal speech lessons by the Society.

Research is the final phase of the ACS activity which enhances the possibility of finding those answers that will be useful to humanity for control of cancer. During 1972, grants in Texas included: 17 National fellowships, 26 research grants and eight Texas Division fellowships. The total of these grants exceeded $1,300,000. For every dollar raised in Texas, 36 cents goes for research. "One further fact here," stated the local president, "for every dollar raised in the State of Texas, the Cancer Society spends $1.04. The additional four cents comes to Texas from research grants made by the National Society."

Mrs. Arwine concluded, "Fighting cancer is a responsibility and a challenge. Every man, woman and child in our community has a stake in the outcome and each has a responsibility to participate in it. The American Cancer Society provides the opportunity."

HISTORY OF DRUGS III

In the Middle Ages in Europe, whole villages occasionally were subject to mass epidemics of a disease called "St. Anthony's Fire." Symptoms included pain, abortion, gangrene, and psychosis. In 1670, the cause was traced to ergot, a fungus found on rotting rye and now known to be a natural source of a hallucinogen similar to LSD.

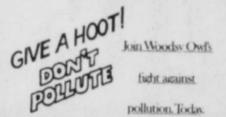

During the 1650s, members of the colonial garrison at Jamestown, Virginia, ate a dish of boiled greens and "turned natural fools upon it for several days." One of the greens was a strong hallucinogen, Datura stramonium. Jimsonweed is now the common name for this plant.

Cocoa, the source of chocolate, was found in Mexico by Hernando Cortez, when he conquered the Aztec Empire in 1528. Not to be confused with coca, cocoa contains theobromine, a compound related to caffeine. The Emperor Montezuma daily ate chocolate out of golden dishes, and cocoa beans were small coin in his land.

In 1532, at the time of Pizarro's conquest of the Incan Empire, the coca leaf, a stimulant and source of the drug cocaine, was worshipped as a divine plant. Its use was controlled by the ruler himself.

The Spaniards at first banned the use of coca, but later allowed it for miners and other laborers because it enabled them to work longer. Coca leaves are still chewed by millions of Andean Indians.

In the 18th century, Captain James Cook and other early travelers in the South Pacific found many islanders drinking kava. A mildly soporific root, kava is mashed and made into a beverage. The kava ceremony is still an important social institution throughout the South Pacific.

MRS. JIMMY FRANKLIN HARRIS

Saturday Vows Read In Primitive Church For Miss Baird, Jimmy Franklin Harris

Double ring vows for Miss Dixie A. Baird and Jimmy Franklin Harris were read at 6 o'clock p.m. Saturday, January 27, in the Primitive Baptist Church in Floydada with Elder Joe Jackson, minister, performing the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Baird of Ross, Floydada. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harris of Cone.

Small brass tiered candelabra holding a decorative candle and arrangements of white glads and white pom poms with blue accent, flanked by palms formed the wedding scene. At either side were brass candelabra bearing hurricane lights.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of champagne beige bridal satin, fashioned princess style and accented with Chantilly lace. The long Bishop sleeves were of Chantilly lace which also complemented the bodice. She wore a chapel length veil descended from a raised crown encircled with lace, and carried a cascade type bouquet of small white sweetheart roses centered with a white orchid.

Brenda Watson of Floydada was maid of honor and Mrs. Carl Bailey of Floydada, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Bridal attendants wore gowns of peacock blue styled with empire waists with lace trim. Their headpieces were dark blue daisies with ribbon bows and they carried colorful bouquets of mixed white and yellow daisy type pom poms, accented by blue satin trim.

Clinton Fawver, a brother-in-law, was best man and ushers were Jackie Duke, uncle of the bride and Leonard Baird of Alamogordo, N.M., cousin of the bride. George Harris, brother of the groom, was groomsmen.

Miss Penny Bertrand was organist and accompanied Brenda Watson as she sang "Always" and "Prayer." Following the reception honoring was held in the church. The bride's table was a blue lace cloth centerpiece of blue flowers.

For traveling to the bride changing blue dress fastened with lace sleeves, the couple will be doing home in Cone where "Ed" is engaged in immediately.

GARY JONES

Love That Seatbelt Is New Ad Theme

Songs and sonnets have lauded it, peaceniks adopted it, advertising acclaims it and now safety experts have found it.

Yes, the Advertising Council's new campaign challenges the American motorist with the theme, "Safety Belts—when you think about it, it's a nice way to say I love you."

"Fastening safety belts is a reminder of the life and death risk that people take in a moving automobile," explains Dr. Paul Fine. "Every car trip is dangerous, but since people can't live their lives in fear, they unconsciously deny the threat of danger by not using their safety belts."

The problem in creating the new campaign was how to get around this denial mechanism, he said. The Advertising Council decided that an appeal to emotion would be more effective than an appeal to reason and, after testing several different approaches with consumer groups, the campaign selected was one that appeals to the strongest positive emotion—love.

...and the magnitude of the r problem requires national coordination of research support of hundreds of scientists in many institutions as well as nationally planned programs of public and professional education. However, ACS does approve joint in-plant solicitation in industry and government.

Thus, the Society is involved in all sorts of programs. It advertises in magazines (donated); dispenses information in all news media; sponsors professional conferences on a national and local level for physicians, dentists and surgeons; finances clinical fellowship programs for young physicians; sponsors research; offers services such as counseling, loan closets, surgical dressings, patient transportation, etc.; provides statistical research and information through massive surveys and studies; works with the American Medical Association and other organizations as well as the United States Public Health Service and state and local health departments; and encourages international cooperation in the fight against cancer.

ACS provides overall planning and coordination and technical help and materials for local Units. It also administers research, medical grants and clinical fellowships, and carries out public and professional education throughout the nation.

There are 64,840 community volunteer leaders who direct the ACS programs locally. The basic strength of the Society lies in these community volunteers. They, in turn, appoint, direct and recruit the other two million volunteers who implement the Society's programs.

The Society's long-range objective is to eliminate cancer entirely as a disease of mankind by the control of cancer through research. Its immediate goal is to save as many lives and diminish suffering as much as possible through education of the public and medical profession and direct service to the cancer patient and his family.

As It Looks From Here

Omar Burleson, M.C. 17th district, Texas

depletion allowance and other tax incentives.

Now it has come to pass that we are dependent more and more on the tender mercies of foreign potentates to dictate our future by controlling, through imports, our energy supplies.

Last week the White House wiped out import quotas on heating oils for the next four months and raised crude oil import quotas for the rest of the year by 65 percent. There is no question that supplies and distribution are needed at the present time but the fact remains we should not have slipped into the "crisis" which, undeniably exists in some areas. It is even possible that under present conditions a shortage of gasoline could occur this summer.

We need to decide our fate as energy suppliers and not merely as energy consumers. In addition, we must also face up to the serious problem of our balance of payments, in which oil imports play an important part.

It is continuously repeated that the day of cheap energy is gone. That may be true, but even so, it would be better for our increased costs to go into our own domestic channels, making it possible for thousands of small domestic suppliers to again become the prosperous and dependable backbone of our oil and gas business. Otherwise, it plays into the hands of overseas government to supply our needs. A real crisis could occur should a world situation develop that our supplies would be cut off at the whim of a Middle Eastern ruler.

Before a dependable source of energy fuels is assured it may be necessary to do many things, in many ways. Certainly, in any total program we should not ignore the development of domestic supplies. Business and economic policy, like charity, should begin at home but more important, dependable sources of these supplies should be under our own control for every conceivable reason.

Youth Volunteers Rank High In March of Dimes Projects

By JANET DE JULIO

"They never told me I would be a bigger person." This is the last line of a poem written by Debi Hegi, active in the Future Homemakers of America. Debi, a high school senior from Monett, Mo., is one of the thousands of young people around the country who are working to make their generation aware of our nation's most serious child health problem.

Members of the March of Dimes Teen Action Program (TAP) and the College Action

Program (CAP), give time and energy on behalf of educational, service and fund-raising programs aimed at prevention and treatment of birth defects. Some quarter of a million infants are born every year in the United States with congenital damage.

TAP and CAP volunteers often join with youth service organizations to maximize their impact. They test and evaluate such groups as the Girl Scouts, Y Teen, Future Homemakers of America and Future Teachers of America. They plan and suggest projects which encourage youth to become more active in their communities. Other projects include fund-raising, educational, and health projects.

As parents of the nation's children, these young people are common denominators in their fight to prevent birth defects. Operation Birth Defects, with the Camp Fire Girls, has a projective is to give birth defects dignity and meaning. The immediate goal is to prevent babies from being born with disabilities. Activities range from local fund-raising to full-scale national service projects. The local unit is painting and decorating a mural in the local school. Make Church - Going a Habit Strutting across the ice, penguins make a comically pompous picture. They are at once dignified and ridiculous, and if we look at them very long they remind us uncomfortably of ourselves!

We, too, are apt to mass together on occasion and to be, perhaps, a little ludicrous in our efforts to be "part of the scene." Sometimes following the leader may, indeed, be the best thing to do. But it can also be the easy way out.

Today, especially, we need the courage of our convictions. We need to stand up for what we truly believe in. We need to do the important things.

Like going to church.

FARM REVIEW

Butz Reverses Stand, Backs Nixon Rural Aid Cutbacks

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz who vowed a year ago to "fight like a wounded steer" on behalf of farmers, is supporting Nixon administration budget cuts in rural programs.

The budget trimming, aimed at holding the federal budget to a White House goal of $250 billion for the fiscal year ending June 30, has resulted in many Agriculture Department programs being sliced severely, shifted to other goals or eliminated entirely.

Further, the cutbacks herald continuing economy in USDA programs for the 1973-74 fiscal year beginning next July 1. Details of those changes will not be apparent until the White House releases its new budget proposals later this month.

was motivated by an apparent need to boost grain production this year to help rebuild stockpiles depleted by heavy export movements, losses from severe weather last fall and to give a shot in the arm to livestock production and the nation's food output generally.

The budget austerity for USDA now, however, is a far cry from the situation confronting the administration when Butz took over as secretary of agriculture in early December 1971. At that time grain prices were depressed, and there was grumbling across the farm belt.

Butz, in a letter to Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., during his Senate confirmation proceedings noted the grain price dilemma and promised aid.

Promises Recalled

"Please know that I intend to fight the battle of the farmer, not only through the halls of Congress but also through the Office of Management and Budget to get released the funds appropriated by Congress for soil conservation, rural electrification, the Rural Environmental Assistance Program, and other functions so vital to your state," Butz said to Curtis.

Much of what was promised Curtis was done in the following months as the Nixon presidential campaign unfolded. But now, after the sharp cutbacks, Butz is defending the economy moves ordered by President Nixon.

"I think he is absolutely right in trying to bring the budget under control," Butz told a recent news conference. "Sometimes I ask, 'Why me?' I am like the guy at the football game who looked up and said, 'Out of 40,000 people, why did that pigeon pick me?'"

"It is not me," Butz added.

REAP Halted

Perhaps most staggering was the announcement that the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) has been stopped completely this year. That action wipes out $225.5 million Congress had authorized for the conservation aid plan. The administration, before it announced the full cancellation, agreed to spend only $140 million of what Congress had specified for REAP in 1973.

Other recent moves include a shift from government financing of Rural Electrification Administration loans to private financing and a boost in interest rates to 5 per cent from the long-standing 2 per cent for REA borrowers.

The Farmers Home Administration has been hard-hit, with orders to field offices to quit making emergency loans to farmers in disaster areas, and to cut back on housing loans bearing interest subsidies to help low-income people buy homes.

Other moves include a cutback beginning next fiscal year in the loans made to farmers by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service for grain storage and drying facilities.

The general belt-tightening also will pinch farm crop "set-aside" programs, with reduced payments in view for 1973 for producers of cotton and feed grains, particularly.

Part of the adjustment in the set-aside program, of course,

Wheat Soybean Rotation Problems Studied

The problem of wheat straw management in a wheat-soybean rotation is being studied by scientists at the High Plains Research Foundation. This is a growing problem as grain yields, enhanced by improved technology, are accompanied by increasing straw yields.

Under the program of study, wheat stubble is managed in three methods — no-tillage, where soybeans are planted in wheat stubble shredded to a two-inch height; conventional tillage, where wheat stubble is plowed under and re-listed before planting and a third method in which soybeans were planted in old beds following burning of wheat stubble.

Jim Schrib, associate agronomist, pointed out that burning of wheat stubble is highly controversial and is receiving considerable attention from both agricultural and nonagricultural segments of our population, from standpoints of soil conservation and air pollution. "One of the objectives of this study is to determine the effects of each of the management systems upon following soybean yields," Schrib noted.

This year, results at the Foundation showed that soybean yields were reduced 14.3 bushels per acre in the no-tillage method and 16.1 bushels in the conventional method when compared to soybean yields in the burned stubble method which produced 29.2 bushels per acre.

Schrib said it is believed that yield reductions were due to stunting of soybeans from the application of a post-emergence herbicide, heavy wheat straw preventing mechanical weed control and volunteer wheat competing for water and nutrients.

Schrib also pointed out that there could have been some nitrogen deficiency during early stages of soybean growth. "The two to three tons of wheat straw per acre is very low in nitrogen and the resulting bacterial use of all available soil nitrogen during early stages of soybean growth could have caused nitrogen deficiency," he said.

On a two year average the burning method of wheat straw management outyielded the conventional method of 8.2 bushels per acre and the no-tillage by 9.0 bushels per acre.

The results of this study will be included in the 1972 Annual Research Report to be released early in 1973.

major factor was generally favorable weather conditions for most areas of the state, coupled with fairly stable prices.

However, the director cautioned that unfavorable harvesting weather in the western cotton producing areas of the state may still reduce income estimates—but these estimates have recognized that considerable cotton and other crops were still in the field.

While recognizing the substantial increase in gross agricultural income, Hutchison emphasized that net income in terms of returns on investments in production agriculture still lagged behind comparable returns for non-agricultural industry.

"Production agriculture remains one of the most competitive industries in America, and the need to improve net returns on investments in farming and ranching is still critical—especially for the family farmer," he said.

On the assumption that 1972 cash receipts from agriculture will exceed the $3.76 billion goal, Hutchison issued a challenge to try for $4.76 billion by the end of crop year 1976. He said he planned to meet with state agricultural leaders to determine whether they considered the new objective feasible.

Focusing other remarks on the future role of the extension service in Texas, the director pointed out that the 70-year-old principles of extension education which have evolved since extension had its beginning with a boll weevil control demonstration in Kaufman County in 1903 have been so adequately tested that they can be put forward with confidence as a guide to effective programs today.

"Extension education has become a well-defined discipline and the extension service is recognized as an effective education delivery system for teaching and motivating people."

Hutchison said he expects extension to be asked to undertake expanded efforts to achieve specific goals established at the national, state and local levels.

"It is my conviction that the extension service, which reaches into each county and each community of the state, should be willing to undertake any program which has the potential for improving the economic and social welfare of the people of the state—so long as adequate resources are provided to support the additional activities without diminishing in any way the essential services for farm, ranch and rural people," he concluded.

Gross Farm Income Goal Met Texans Four Years Early

COLLEGE STATION—Dr. John E. Hutchison, director of Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said last week preliminary estimates indicate that gross agricultural income in Texas for 1972 will exceed the $3.76 billion goal set in 1968 to be reached by 1976.

The record agricultural income of 1972 is the result of a number of "favorable factors," Hutchison said.

One item was the establishment of a specific income goal for Texas agriculture by the Extension Service in cooperation with other agricultural agencies, organizations and individual leaders which permitted independent action directed to achieve the objective by all interested groups.

Hutchison said another major factor was generally favorable weather conditions for most areas of the state, coupled with fairly stable prices.

Texas Still Cotton King... Weather and Agriculture... Milk Production Is Down But Also Shows Gain... Planting Dates Set.

Texas will produce almost one-third of the total cotton grown in the nation during 1972. The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service notes that upland cotton production in the state during 1972 is now estimated at 1,050,000 bales. Nationwide, the total for 1972 is now estimated at 13,472,500 bales.

For Texas, production in 1972 is almost double that of 1971. Yield per acre for 1972 is set at 377 pounds per acre compared with 263 pounds in 1971. Harvested acres are expected to total 5,150,000 compared with 4,700,000 acres in 1971.

The southern High Plains-crop reporting district is expected to produce 1,700,000 bales for 1972, or almost 400,000 more bales than the previous season. The Blacklands-district four-is in second place with an

Scouting Leaders Recognized South Plains Council Banquet

Silver Beaver and Silver Fawn awards to six adult Boy Scout leaders highlighted the annual Recognition Banquet of the South Plains Council of Boy Scouts, conducted Saturday night at Red Raider Inn in Lubbock.

Several hundred Scouting supporters from the 20-county Council heard speaker Kirk Henry, director of support services for the South Central Region of Boy Scouts, and recognized other award recipients.

The Silver Beaver and Silver Fawn awards are the highest honor which can be given an adult Scouter by the Council.

Receiving the Silver Beaver were Robert D. Nicholson, Champ Rainwater and Steve

B. Meinecke, all of Lubbock; C. T. McCormick, Ropesville; and Wayne Willis, Plainview. The Silver Fawn award went to Mrs. Emmabelle Gaston of Lubbock.

New officers of the South Plains Council also were installed at the fete.

Taking the post of Council president was John Whitcomb of Lubbock. Five vice presidents include J. C. Chambers, Lubbock; W. A. Leigon, Brownfield; Tom Hilburn, Littlefield; Dr. Ernest James, Plainview; and Jim Word, Floydada. Treasurer is Preston Johnston of Lubbock, and council commissioner is John E. (Jack) Baker, Lubbock. The installation was conducted by Glenn A. Fowler of Albuquerque, president of Area IV of BSA.

Six districts within the Council received the Spencer Award, a national recognition for districts which have met or exceeded their current portion of goals for enrolling boys in Scouting. The award-winning districts for 1972, with district chairman and district commissioner respectively, include:

Haynes District — (Plainview, Tulia, Dimmitt, Lockney, Silverton area) — Dr. Ernest James, Wendall Brown, both of Plainview.

Comanche Trails District — (Ralls, Floydada, Matador, Post, Dickens, Jayton area) — Ed Wester, Floydada; Dean Taylor, Ralls.

Arrowhead District — (North and northeast Lubbock, New Deal, Abernathy) — Robert D. Nicholson, Gene Lake, both of Lubbock.

George White District — (Levelland, Morton, Muleshoe, Littlefield, Earth area) — Earl Gerstenberger, Levelland; Warren Dayton, Littlefield; Quannah Parker District —

(Brownfield, Plains, Tahoka, Lamesa, Seagraves, Seminole area) — George Hansard, John Hegl, both of Lamesa.

Exploring District — (Lubbock County) — Bob Brummal, Lubbock.

The South Plains Council of Boy Scouts encompasses 20 West Texas counties. Towns served by the Council range from Tulia to Ackerly and from Jayton to Plains.

The South Plains Council is headquartered in Lubbock. Council activities include provision of programs, training, materials, and other support to all Scouting units in the Council boundaries.

Floyd County Joined Council In 1936

The Council was organized in 1922 in Lubbock. In 1925, the Council enlarged to Dickens, Lubbock, Cochran, Gaines, Lynn, Crosby, Garza, Terry, Hockley and Yoakum counties. In 1927, Borden and Dawson counties were added, and in 1933 Bailey County joined the Council. In 1936 came the addition of Briscoe, Castro, Floyd, Hale, Lamb, Motley and Swisher counties. These 20 counties today constitute the South Plains Council.

The Exploring District, which includes only Lubbock County, achieved an all time high of 977 Explorers in 56 units. Girls also are eligible to join Exploring units, which provide specialized study and experience in a variety of fields such as architecture, communications, law enforcement and fire fighting. (Only four examples of the wide variety of Exploring interests.)

In 1972, a total of 1362 boys representing 92 troops of Scouts participated in long term camping experiences at Camp Post and at Tres Ritos, New Mexico.

In addition, a complete training cycle was completed by a total of 201 Scoutmasters, Cubmasters and Explorer advisors. This training is vital to the administration and operation of Scout units.

Financially, the Council ended 1972 with a surplus of $3,911 after starting the year with a $10,000 deficit.

Floydada in the 20's... Milk Business

By Arthur E. Gamble

Back in the 1920's, refrigeration was rudimentary, roads were rough, trucks were slow — so milk was usually a local affair. Ice cream could be shipped some distance if done so quickly via railway express but even at that certain risks were involved.

Floydada had one small dairy at the time with a limited clientele but most of us had cows out in the lot behind the house. A corrugated iron drinking tub holding 250 to 300 gallons of water was filled from time to time and a rack to hold pummies, cotton burrs or cane bundles provided roughage that would keep a cow going pretty well. Most families fed a supplemental feeding of bran, shorts, cottonseed meal and sometimes cottonseed hulls and milking time. In the summer these cows were staked on a long chain on the vacant lots to graze but care had to be exercised to be sure they didn't reach blue weeds since these weeds would give a flavor to the milk that was called "blueweedy" and made the milk unfit for human consumption.

To become acquainted with the mammals of God's earth, each boy in this world should start his study with milking a cow. One of the first facts you learn is that a cow does not "give" milk — you have to take it away from her. Sometimes this is an unequal battle but persistence pays off and in time the milker even comes to take a pride in his prowess — showing that it doesn't take much to make some people proud.

Jersey and Guernsey cows were usual with Holsteins being left to the dairies who were more interested in quantity than in quality. The choice of a cow was a matter for considerable discussion and different people had different ideas about how to choose. My dad favored the smooth, pretty Jersey whereas Uncle Jake favored the big, ugly, rough looking crossbreeds. Often Uncle Jake's cows gave more milk which was a matter for considerable "hurrahing" between the brothers.

John Hollums was a local real estate trader who had a cow that he traded to his father-in-law, Judge Duncan. He told the old Judge that the cow gave so much milk they didn't know what to do with it. That night when he milked the cow, Judge got about a half a cup. Upon calling John's hand on it, he was told — "that's what I said, she gives so much we don't know what to do with it — it's too much for the coffee but not enough for the cereal!" (Incidentally, this story was told to me by the son and grandson of the two principals involved).

Milking was one chore that was more or less considered "men's work" which meant that it usually fell on the boys of the family — but the women did help out at times. I always considered myself sort of sanitary because I usually dusted off the area around the bag and tits before I started milking. I didn't take much stock in the story that the dairies washed off the bag and tits (don't try to confuse me with something about teats — don't know what those are) because any boy would know that in cold weather the cow would freeze.

Being a sanitary type milker, I always dipped out falling items that I could see with the naked eye. You learned quite early that lowering your head and butting it into the flank of the cow provided a measure of security because you could feel her muscles tighten if she started to raise her right hind leg to kick. You could often block her raising the leg but once it was raised to kicking position your only hope was to dodge. Two rules you learned early — you milk a cow from the right side — you mount a horse from the left.

All homes had "milk strainers" consisting of a tin can with a piece of brass screening across the smaller open end. Since we were somewhat sanitation minded, mother usually doubled a "cup towel" and lined the strainer with it, thereby getting more of the foreign matter. A good milk cow "gave" from 3 1/2 to 4 gallons per day of rich Jersey milk but the average was probably closer to 2 - 2 1/2 gallons. Less than 1 1/2 gallons per day wasn't worth messing with and the cow was dried up and turned to pasture to await the arrival of the next calf.

The milk was strained into gallon crocks and let "set overnight" so the cream could rise to the top. This cream was used for cooking, ice cream, cereal and butter. Oleo was a white looking stuff (by law, no color could be added) that no right thinking housewife would serve her family — real

World War II Vets To Get Dividend On G.I. Insurance

A bill was passed in Congress which gave all World War II veterans a dividend of 50 cents per thousand of their G.I. Insurance for each month of service. This is regardless of whether they still carry the insurance.

Many veterans have not received this dividend and will not unless they ask for it. The Veterans Administration urges the veterans to apply, regardless of whether they had insurance. They will check the address to Veterans Administration, Fort Snelling, Minnesota 55111. The following information should be enclosed: branch address; branch number; date of enlistment and discharge; and insurance amount number (if known).
