Raises $1,000 For Massie Center

High School chapters door fund for the center, as a service for the Thursday the group had collected $944, with another $60 in equipment promised.

Single cash contributions totaled $848, and bank draft contributions at $8 per month, projected for 12 months, added another $96. Cash contributions ranged from 10 cents to $100.

Other citizens have given goods or services, and several additional contributions are being planned. Two hundred two families and individuals contributed.

The Massie board is working to arrange for the MAC to be open two or three nights a week for the youth. Plans are also being made for music and recreation facilities in the center. Part of the money raised by the DECA youth will be used to open the facility to youth and provide equipment and activities.

If you did not have the opportunity to share in this worthwhile community project, it is not too late. Contributions are tax deductible and may be made to Clay

Henry at the Floydada First National Bank or to Mrs. Bill Hale, chairman of the fund drive.

Another $1000 is needed to buy caretaking equipment and have a reserve fund to pay Jerry Neeley, the MAC coordinator and custodian. Henry, vice president of the MAC board, said off-street parking for the center is needed.

Commissioners Approve Salary Increases

Floyd County Commissioners approved salary increases, entered into contract with the Soil Conservation District, and voted to buy a used scraper at their regular monthly session.

Salary increases for Kirby Pierce and J. W. Campbell were approved, as were increases for Jacqueline Walls and Marjorie Martin, clerks in the Tax Assessor-Collectors office. Commissioners also approved the hiring of Mrs. Donna Fyffe for the County and Home Demonstration Extension offices.

The contract entered with Soil Conservation was to extend or lease the same quarter as before for the year July 1, 1973 to June 30, 1975. The road scraper is being purchased from Yellowhouse Machinery Co. at a cost of $9,500. The used John Deere scraper is complete with an enclosed cab and with teeth for cutting edge.

Commissioners also approved that the county pay to the Floyd County Soil Conservation District $500 for their use in operating the district.

24 Percent Of Local Income From Government Sources

NEW YORK — To what extent do government dollars — Federal, state and local — figure in the financial affairs of Floyd County residents?

What proportion of the local population receives some or all of its income from such sources? With public payrolls on the rise and social security and other benefits expanding, government funds have become increasingly important.

Based upon a state-by-state analysis of data released by the U.S. Office of Business Economics, about 24.0 percent of each dollar of personal income locally is from public funds. It amounts to approximately $9,415,000 a year, after taxes.

Taken into account in the analysis, which was made by the Tax Foundation, a non-profit organization here, were payments of wages and salaries to people on government payrolls, the amounts going to those who are receiving social security benefits and the outlays for unemployment compensation, pensions, interest and public assistance.

In the case of Floyd County, applying the state average locally, the 24.0 cents of the income dollar consists of 15.4 cents received from the Federal government and 8.6 cents from state and local agencies.

Throughout the United States as a whole, 24.3 cents of every dollar of personal income comes in the form of government checks, the Tax Foundation finds. In the West

South Central States the average is 25.2 cents. Nationally, the total amount paid out to individuals during the year by governmental bodies, via payrolls, pensions and the like, came to $209 billion.

Of this sum, nearly $122 billion was from Washington and the other $87 billion from state and local governments. Considerable differences are noted between various sections of the country in the extent to which government funds contribute to personal income.

It runs high in areas that have heavy concentrations of civil employees and in areas with large proportions of retired people receiving pensions.

In the District of Columbia, consequently, because of the large number of Federal workers there, no less than 51.8 percent of income is from public funds. Connecticut, with 18.3 percent, is at the other extreme.

FLOYD PHILOSOPHER

Finds One Aspect Of Watergate That Thus Far Has Been Overlooked

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm, like nearly everybody else, talks about Watergate this week, in his own way.

Dear editor: Everybody's talking about the far-flung effects of Watergate on the political scene, but there's one aspect of it in another area I haven't seen mentioned anywhere.

somebody was re-locating the state capitals every two or three weeks, the the Texas capital say moved to Idaho and the Idaho capital moved to maybe Floydada, and so forth?

To change the subject, I read in a newspaper last night that the telephone company people in some places have raised the price of a call in a pay phone from a dime to fifteen cents.

Arthur B. Duncan, First Settler In Floyd County

As the time draws near for the annual Old Settlers Day this newspaper is happy to present some historical essays written by Laura McCulley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Andrew McCulley and placed second in the state essay contest in Fort Worth.

ARTHUR B. DUNCAN: FIRST SETTLER IN FLOYD COUNTY

Laura McCulley
Floydada Junior High School

On June 1, 1884, a date all Floyd County historians should remember, the first settler arrived. This man was Arthur B. Duncan. Arriving with him was his 19 year old wife, Sarah, their 4 month old son, Silas, and a 14 year old orphan boy named Robert A. Prince.

McCormick, Ronnie Thornton, Jerry Ford, Jack Whittington, Tom Taylor and Bill Bigham. The club was honored to have a guest, Mrs. Wayne Cooper.

wagon pulled by two horses. The trip down the old McKenzie Trail took two months.

When Mr. Duncan first started on his journey to Floyd County, he had intended to buy some watered school land for his new homestead in Blanco Canyon. At that time, the School Land Act of April 12, 1883 was in effect.

By the time he arrived in Clarendon, he discovered that it was a struggling village far away from the nearest railroad point. After he had taken care of his business and was on his way home, a dust storm came up, slowing him down considerably.

When Mr. Duncan came back, he employed C.U. Connellee to run out his claim. However, he came to know that Connellee wasn't a qualified surveyor, so he employed T.S. McClelland as his official surveyor in July, 1895.

For six and one half years, Mr. Duncan and his family lived in the canyon. Their home was a two room dugout. The front wall was made of sod. The earth floor was uncovered and the roof was made of logs and dirt.

It was in this dugout that Maud Eudora Duncan was born in 1886. She was the first white girl born in Floyd County. At that time, Mr. Duncan was in El Paso where he had been subpoenaed as a witness in Federal Court.

This frail flower spent her life on the plains. She married, reared a family, and worked with her father for twenty years in the A. B. Duncan Abstract Company which he established the year Floyd County was organized.

The Duncans tried to make the best of what they had and often had to improvise for their needs. Mrs. Duncan used to take the big flour and sugar sacks and make garments of them.

The Duncan's dugout was an ideal home for them on the wind-swept plains. It was cool in the summer and warm in the winter. It did have its drawbacks, however.

In the year 1886, many settlers moved from the canyon and at the same time newcomers began coming in large numbers. The severely cold winter of 1887-1888 was extremely difficult for the Duncans and the other settlers.

About the greatest menace of the early settlers was the fear of prairie fires. Everyone knew how deadly prairie fires could be, and perhaps the most unlucky settler was the one who lost his entire herd of three thousand sheep on Crawfish Draw near the Crosby County line.

Letter To Editor

THEREFORE, I, as Governor of Texas do hereby designate the week of May 27-June 3, 1973, as SOIL STEWARDSHIP WEEK in Texas.

Memorial Books Given To Lockney Library

ingenuities of wilderness housekeeping. It is filled with practical details about making do, building and rebuilding, gardening for fun and for food, and even has advice about getting away from it all.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Carthel have given two books, one honoring the memory of Jewel Dean Davis, The Years of the Forest by Helen Hoover; the other book The American Cowboy in Life and Legend is a tribute to Rayford Martin.

The American Cowboy in Life and Legend is published by the National Geographic Society. It traces the colorful, sometimes violent, history of the cattle industry from its beginnings in Mexico to the present.

Another gift to the library is a framed reprint of a street scene in Lockney during 1906. The scene is of the crowd surrounding the Mollie Barley tent show. The print was secured from the public library in San Antonio, and is a gift of the 1922 Study Club of Floydada which is disbanding.

Once a can of evaporated or condensed milk is open, cover it tightly and keep refrigerated, notes Mrs. Gwendolyn Cyatt, consumer marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

each of their problems was eventually learned better to adapt themselves, and their lessened with hard labor.

Floyd County was organized in 1890. In the first county officers, Arthur B. Duncan was elected county judge, an office which he held for terms. After retiring for a number of years, he died in 1912.

After Mr. Duncan was elected county judge, he moved into the forming settlement which was town of Floydada.

Arthur B. and Sarah K. Duncan's children were E. Emma L., Edith E., Arthur B., Jr., Hope V., and Mark W. Duncan.

"Judge Arthur B. Duncan, whose death in 1912, half-century of service to Floyd County, was citizen of the county, but was also its first family built the first home in the county for purposes, he was appointed by the commission as Crosby County, Justice of the Peace for position he filled until his election as County in 1890."

Arthur B. Duncan surely deserved all the honor received. He helped considerably to build a shall never be forgotten by the citizens of Floyd County, particularly the children who through the Arthur B. Duncan Elementary School in Floydada named in honor of this great man in 1967.

Mrs. Hise To Serve Athena As Vice President

MRS. BOBBY HISE

The laws of conscience, though we ascribe them to nature, actually come from custom.

Conscience is but the pulse of reason.

Mrs. Bobby Hise (Jennean) will serve the Athena Junior Study Club as first vice-president during the club year of 1973-74. She held the position of second vice-president last year and was responsible for the club's yearbook. Mrs. Warren Mathis was first vice-president last year and will assume the duties of second vice-president this coming year. This method of alternating duties under the direction of the continuing presidency of Mrs. Jerry Williams provides leadership development to both positions.

Mrs. Hise was active in community affairs before moving to Lockney in 1970. While at Sunray she belonged to the Futuristic Study Club and held the position of Historian and International Affairs Chairman then later went to state competition in the Fashion for Fun Contest.

Jennean is married to Bobby Hise and they have four children. Vernon, an 11 year old, loves science fiction and Little League. Rachael, who is eight, likes action and people, Michelle, is six and is enjoying kindergarten and playing with dolls. Their four year old, Paul is an all-around boy liking guns, balls and horses. Mr. and Mrs. Hise both graduated from Abilene Christian College. Jennean worked her way through college by holding various jobs such as ironing, clerking, being switchboard operator, librarian, secretary and room checker. She also served as Dorm Counselor for three years and was secretary-treasurer for the Pickwickian Club, a creative writing organization. Mrs. Hise taught home economics one year in Venison, Oklahoma.

Jennean was active in 4-H work when she was in high school at Moriarty, New Mexico. She was a member of the Washington National Geographic Society and attended the National Convention at the National Geographic Society in 1967.

Besides her mother and Mrs. Hise's also enjoys history, reading and baby-sitting. She has kept the family from the years 1950 to Ju each one being a blessing to the family.

Mrs. Hise's church home is reflected in her life. She has been a member of the "Happiness" church since she was a child. She has been a member of the church since she was a child. She has been a member of the church since she was a child.

month with the Longhorns was too much for some. We lost Torin House, Mary Amador, Irma DeLeon, Rosalinda Gonzales, Debbie Lee, Sheri Marcus, Pattie Phillips, Maryland Riddle, Mary Ruiz, Nancy Weathers, Sharon Wenzel, Gordan Bales, Frank Muniz, Tim Washington, and Greg Raissez.

The next two months flew by with many activities involved. The tenth month brought Masten and Coleman as trail masters with new members: Joe Burchfield, Tommie Nance, and Selma Villarreal. We lost Perry Cox, Rosa Gallegos, Gloria Martinez, Gloria G. Martinez, and Selma Villarreal. In the eleventh month we retained Masten as a trail master and gained Marr as the other master. We gained Josefina and Juanita Tambunga, Ben McCarty, Joel Saucedo, Blane Simpson and Larry Byrd.

The last month was one of great fun. The only trouble we had was with one of the strongest helpers we had ever met: Applewhite!!!!!! We entered this last month of our journey with a fear of her never letting us leave Longhorn Country, but she was not as bad as we expected. We kept Marr and Masten as our trail masters because we had become accustomed to each other. We gained Gayle Hill, but lost Vickie Emert and Randy Martin. We lost many that were unaccounted for during this journey so now with a group of 55 Longhorns, we are leaving Longhorn Country. We will always remember this long journey: all the thrills, the fun, the troubles, and the sadness.

To all our trail masters, their helpers, our 4 foremen, and our 3 Ranch owners who have done so much in shaping our lives, the Lockney High School Class of 1973 extends its deepest gratitude!

The eighth month brought almost all the freedom we could wish for. Now we were the oldest herd in the group and had the excitement of moving into an even larger herd: the LONGHORNS! This excitement brought Sheri Marcus, Jessie Rodriguez, and Larry Collis into our midst. Our new trail masters Baccus, Fry, Saul, and Griffin were very patient with us. They knew how excited we were. Even with the prospect of the coming month we lost Melody Owen, Randy Campbell, Dora Ruis, and Maria Solis.

In the ninth month we joined the famous Longhorn Herd. We had heard about them since we were very young. Here again, we were the youngest bunch among the herd. We weren't quite sure how to act so we stuck together for courage and acted pretty silly. Our new trail masters Margaret Blanco, Sharon Wenzel, Gordan Bales, Gary Boedeker, Perry Cox, Mary Ruiz, Torin House, Roger Perez, David Titus, Willie McGee, and Greg Raissez joined us. That first

Lockney Senior Class History

By Reeda Cay Lawson

In September of 1961 the dust stirred skyward as 186 young, frisky bulls and heifers began the long 12-month journey into the homeland of the famed hustling horns. This was the goal of these young purebreds: to eventually roam the pastures of Longhorn country.

Yolanda Solis. Moving into the fourth month with new trail masters English, Wilson, Rhoderick and Lyon, we faced many a harsh word and many a whip. We balked and tried to slow down, but they wouldn't let us. They knew we would never make the journey in 12 months if we didn't keep moving. We picked up many wild breeds, and some strays such as, Gwen Howard, Nicky Barr, Paul Scott, Pete Gomez, Martha Luna, Mary Ann Hawkins, Ruth Ann Powell, and Kay McCarter. Although we had hard times, we lost only six: Kay McCarter (seems she couldn't take it), Martha Luna, Rene Gomez, Gilbert Vasquez, Adam Cisneros, and Ruth Ann Powell.

The first month of the journey was one of tremendous strain. It was difficult for our trail masters Watson, Muncy, Aston, Clarke and Brown to keep us moving. Many times a day harsh words were yelled at us and whips cracked over our heads and other areas. Oh, but the going was rough! Too rough for some. We lost such onery critters as Randy Ward, Nicky Barr, Ricardo Garcia, Augustin Perez, Gabriel Capetillo, Alberto Perez, Oralia Raquel, Maria Rendon, Maria Rodriguez, Clyde Cannon, Severo Peres, Gloria Saldana, James Troquille, Joseph Wisdom and Cynthia Cogdell. These must have wandered away from us into the herds of other creatures moving toward their set goals. However, this loss of leg-power didn't slow us down; we moved westward again.

The fifth month of our journey was the worst that we had encountered. We were about to merge into a larger herd that had started out one to two months ahead of us and our new trail masters Wood, Knox, Grier, and Washington didn't think we were ready. They really tried to teach us what we needed to know. Some members of other herds learned of our plight and came to help us. Our helpers, Zenda Cummings, Kay McCarter, Jimmie Fellers, Mark Sheeley, John Treveno, Rosa Alaniz, Robert Woods, Jacky Jordan and Greg Corpus eventually joined with our herd. Every one was so excited about joining the larger herd that we only lost Greg Corpus, and Daniel Perez.

The second month began as usual. Just as the old sun was beginning to warm up the prairie it hit: the biggest East Wind any of us had ever heard of. That old wind blew in four of the almost meanest, onery trail masters in the West: Tiner, Mercer, Myers and Nicholas. Boy, did the wind howl. The young breeds were trying hard to follow the trail.

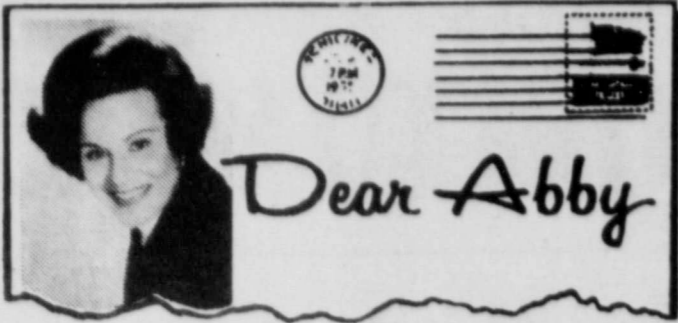

The sixth month was the beginning of our emergence with the larger herd. We were now a little older and had learned some new tricks and picked up some bad habits. The older herds looked down on us so we tried to stifle reinforcements: Randy Capbell, Gloria Martinez, Rosa Ruiz, Greg Corpus, Fankie Graves, Clevon Baldwin Morris Riddle, Eddie Sterling, Betty Green, Jerline Mathis, Jannie Sterling, Dorothy Walton, Patti Phillips, and Joyce Phillips. We got new trail masters to: Gilbert, Abbott, Dutton Carthel, Williams and Kin. It seems all the excitement caused us to leave a few behind or transfer them to other herds: Paul Scott, Vicente Guzman and Mary Flores.

A few stragglers, Leslie Chambers, Steve Shannon, Sandra Salinas, Shirley Moore, Sharon Sapp, Jimmy Jimenez, Evangelina Reyes, Sarah Rivas, Rosa Ybarra, Helen Rocha, Mary Teafatiller, Jose Rios, Jose Alcator, Arjelio Trevino, Jose Benavidez, Johnny Arenas, Hilario Salazar, Dale Chester, Cheryl Pruitt, Teena Guerrero, Kathy Pope, Theresa Robinson, Gloria Saldra, Andy Johnson, Joe McClendon, Ricky Babitzke, Arturo Gonzales, Rosalinda Gonzales, Jessie Reyna, Randy Ward, Linda Young, Billy Griffin, Willie Rodriguez, and Derrell Morgan soon wandered into the midst of our herd. They were a mangy bunch, but they were soon whipped into shape by our trail masters. We had a bit of trouble with rustlers. We lost Patricia Bennett, Joe Alaniz, Bobby Brewer, Leslie Chambers, Pedro Perales, David Tyler, Maria Rodriguez, Aurora Amador, Hilda Pena, Reynaldo Guerrero, Margarito DeLeon, Patricia Rodgers, Jimmy Teafatiller, Pasque Diaz, Sylvia Perez, Erlina Mendez, Gloria Saldra, Arturo Gregory, Guadalupe Rios, Canilo Valenzuela, Paul Norris and Austin Pool. With the trail drive just beginning, there was not enough time to round up all the rustled stock.

The third month didn't carry much excitement because we had become accustomed to being moved along at a fast pace. We were given four new trailmasters: Gonzales, Wood, Ayers, and Copeland. It was a cold month and we gained many additions from other herds such as David Lee, Bernabe Trevino, Yolanda Gomez, Aurelia Jimenez, Felipe Rodriguez, Pedro Nunez, Armando Garza, Matias Rosales, Irene Vitela, Raul Olivarez, Ernesto Rodriguez, Guadalupe Najera, Manuel Sbarra, Johnny Contreres, Angelita Cantu, Bobby Brewer (rustlers returned him) Gudalupe Sanchez, Edilio Casas, Rudy Paderez, Elena Morado, Yolanda Solis, Dwight Hughes, Janie Guzman, Michael Litz, Debbie Austin, Gwendolyn Windecker, Aurora Amador, Nicky Barr, Shirley Powell, Wanda Powell, Paula Cummings, Tommy Nance, Blane Simpson, Jane Ocanas, Carolyn Adams, Mark Conner, Alfred Bunting, Jim Teafatiller (rustlers returned him) Rex Minshew, Greg Martinez, Ellen Brown, Rosa Gallegas, and Arie Lee Holloway. We lost only a few to the cold month: Nicky Barr (seems we just can't keep him) Daniel Perez, Mary Teafatiller and

Dear Abby

Wedding should be what bride chooses

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our 22-year-old college graduate daughter is being married soon, and I wonder how far to let her go with the wedding arrangements.

She wants to get married in a public park. [How can you ask people to stand in a park? What if it rains?]

She doesn't plan on having ushers or bridesmaids. She says since there will be no aisle to walk down it would be pointless. She wants a justice of the peace instead of a minister. My husband's people are Catholic, and mine are Episcopalians. Our daughter was brought up Episcopalian, but she doesn't believe in anything. The young man she's marrying is not committed to any religion either. Wouldn't relatives who believe in something criticize us for having a wedding without a minister?

We agreed to foot the bill for this wedding and don't want to appear ridiculous, which we probably will if we go along with what she wants. Or shouldn't we worry about what people will think? OLD SCHOOL MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: It's your daughter's wedding, and she should have the kind of wedding she and her fiancé want. If it rains, those without umbrellas will get wet. If relatives who "believe in something" criticize you for having a justice of the peace, tell them it was your daughter's choice. [At least she'll be legally wed, and lots of parents would settle for that.] Paying for the wedding doesn't give you the right to do it your way. And if you worry about what people will think, you'll waste a lot of energy.

DEAR ABBY: Why would a man check up on his wife to be sure he knows exactly where she is every minute? Do you think he suspects that she's playing around? CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Not necessarily. Maybe he just wants to know where SHE is while HE'S playing around.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to that lady who said, "A strong wife and mother is the source of a strong husband, children, and country."

I am a 14-year-old girl, and I take that to mean that if a woman stays home and mops the floors and scrubs the toilet bowls she is doing the most for her husband, children, and country.

Sorry, but I don't agree with that at all. Some people will say: "But what will happen to the children if the mother works outside the home?"

Well, let me answer that. My mother works outside the home. She doesn't have to because my father makes a good living. She works because she wants to, and I'm not suffering because of it. She fixes a good breakfast in the morning for us, and a good supper at night. She helps me with my problems, and she still has time to go shopping with me on

Floydada In The Twenties... Meat

By ARTHUR E. GUMBLE

In the 20's Floydada was a meat eating town as well as the Southwest. Mother said that when she married that all he would eat was meat, potatoes, gravy, and bread. I took years of re-education to get him on the balanced diet he so thoroughly enjoys today. Mother once estimated that during the first 20 years of her marriage she had prepared and served over 3,500 gallons of gravy. So with that much gravy, meat had to be important in our lives.

I don't remember there ever being but one store that could be classified as purely a meat market in town - that was the one run by Edgar Jones. Most meat markets were a part of the local grocery stores and a good butcher could often guarantee the success of the whole grocery.

Until the advent of the old monitor top refrigerator by GE, we had only the ice box with its cake of ice to preserve our fresh foods so no long term purchases could be made. Meat markets usually slaughtered and dressed their own beef and fresh pork. Cudahy, Swift, and Armour were names in our local markets for ham, bacon, lard and luncheon meats. Most bacon was sold in slabs or the local butcher would slice the slab to your order. None of these packages with little windows showing some lean streaks with huge amounts of fat concealed below - no, sir, you saw what you got.

Sandwich meats such as bologna, salami, pickle loaf, pimiento loaf, and certain eating cheeses came in large portions of from 5 to 10 lbs. shaped so as to slice into sandwich-sized squares. It has always seemed to me that this sandwich meat was much tastier than that we get from the little sanitary packages today. Boiled ham was by far the most expensive item in the butcher case and when we could afford it, it was very popular.

Each market made its own sausage which was sold by the pound - and each butcher had his own secret spices that he was sure made his sausage the best in the country. These old time butchers amazed me with how they could take a big round of longhorn cheese and come up with half an ounce of cutting just what the customer ordered.

In order to keep down wastage, meat markets took the slow selling beef ribs, roast, and occasional left-over steak and would make what they called barbecue. It was nothing like our hickory smoked barbecue today but was really a stewed beef spiced heavily with black pepper. It was tasty and to this day I can make a meal of this meat with just "light" bread and some dill pickles.

This meat was one of the few ready-to-eat foods available in the market being the forerunner of today's convenience foods and found favor with the housewife who was hard-pressed for time to fix a meal. If you had a container with you, the butcher would weigh the meat, put it in your container and give you a generous helping of the rich beef broth for gravy stock.

The story was widely told in Floydada about the wife of a well-to-do citizen who was known for her careful handling of her money, sending her little girl down to the meat market with a gallon bucket. The child went in and told the butcher, "Mother wants a nickle's worth of meat and lots of gravy!" (Note - I know who it was but the name will NOT be supplied on request or even threat.)

It seems to me like there was one building in the east part of town that was used as a slaughter house by some of the markets. Our beef was grass-fed yearling or calf. Fed or finished beef was unknown in our local markets. Most steak was for chicken frying so round steak was a popular item. Soup bones were free as were bones for the dog. Liver was practically given away as most people turned their noses up at it as "cat food." Pork spare ribs and backbone were cheap when they could be sold at all.

Hog killing time and butchering time was whenever the first cold spell hit that ended the hot weather that might spoil the meat. I have helped butcher beef and hogs. Recently when I said something like "I sure got a good scald on that one" about some job, I received blank looks which told me I am living in a dream.

A prime hog today is around 225 lbs., but back then, a prime hog was nearer to 450 pounds. Today, we are interested in the pork for eating. Then we were interested in the lean portion for its fat which was in demand. As soon as the hog had been killed and prepared for butchering, the first order of the day was to get the bristles off the hider. This required that the carcass be plunged into water that was almost at the boiling point. A good scald as to get an even "scald" removed, placed on the sideboard the bristles scraped off with knives. Then you had a "good scald." If the water was too cold, the hog not in it long enough, the bristles were practically impossible to remove. If you had the water too hot or the carcass in too long, the hide would slip with the bristles and make it harder to remove. When done right, the knives worked like razors, the bristles came off easily and you had a carcass that looked neat, clean, and ready to butcher. (Remember this was done with a hog weighing nearly 500 lbs.)

Saturdays, and we have all day Sunday together. I would like to get married and raise a family and work outside my home, too. I do not plan on just staying home and mopping floors and scrubbing toilet bowls. Peace! LITTLE LIBBER IN ARIZONA

Bob Whittle has been planting Pioneer brand 846 for seven years. Last year his yield was 7000 pounds. "The yields are usually 6500 on 3 irrigations, it is a consistently good yielder," according to C.C. Whittle, Rt. 1, Floydada, Texas.

Because we were the first company to commercially produce hybrid corn and with 17 years of work on sorghum, we know a lot more about hybrids and how to make crosses that really yield. We've had longer to test and re-test our varieties. We've stuck with some of our early crosses, and we keep developing new ones to fit every growing condition imaginable.

For the Southern Panhandle and Plains area we recommend these sorghum, corn and forage hybrids...

Fred Carthal Believe Foreign Market Good For Soybeans

W. L. NORMAN
WINS SHOOT

W. L. NORMAN of Daugherty won the high overall honors Sunday at the Pheasant Ridge Gun Club's registered shoot. He broke 284 of a possible 300 targets. Norman also won Class A with a perfect score of 100 and also was a doubles winner by breaking 88. Buddy Dodson won a shoot-off over Gene Rogers of Amarillo as they both broke 57 of 100 targets in regulation activity. Greg Green was Hi-Junior with Foreign market development for soybeans pays off in extra dollars for U. S. farmers, Fred Carthal, Lockney, Texas 1972 soybean yield champion believes.

"There's no doubt we need our overseas markets. More than 60 percent of the 1972 record crop is expected to go to foreign buyers this year."

Carthal recently returned from the Treflan Champions Tour of soybean markets in Denmark, Norway, Hungary and France.

"Long-term market development helps to guarantee an optimistic profit picture, but it's not a magical process done with overnight promotions and expensive dinners. Soybeans still face competition from other oilseeds and artificial protein sources. Once competitive crops are planted, they will go to market at some price. One of the major efforts is to convince potential customers that soybeans are the finest oilseeds available."

Farmer-supported market development programs are tailored to individual countries by American Soybean Assn. representatives. Carthal said the national group represents farmers in 24 states.

Foreign market development increased the Japanese market to 114 million bushels in 1972 compared to 20 million bushels in 1956. Taiwan has more than doubled soybean imports to 25 million bushels since projects started in 1968.

"A pound increase in per capita soy oil consumption by the Japanese requires another nine million bushels of U. S. soybeans. If market development increases per capita Mexican poultry consumption by one pound annually, the additional 12 million birds would need 249,000 bushels of soybeans."

At the turn of this decade, 10 of every 100 married men and 30 of every 100 women were left without mates due to death, divorce or separation, according to Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

High Plains is well on its way to planting what is the highest acreage seeded to cotton in the last 20 years. Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., which covers 25 states, estimates of total acres planted to cotton for 1973 amount to 2.7 million to as high as 3 million, "and expected to reach the 90 percent completion mark by May 20."

High Plains put a whopping 3.9 million acres in cotton. The acreage was seen last year with an estimated 2.6 million acres planted. The huge acreage of 1952 resulted in a little over 1.5 million bales, and the production of Plains was set in 1961 with 2,443,900 bales and 2,593,440 planted acres.

High Plains is almost a cinch to be above any crop since figures, "and with our good underground water and a little bit of luck there is reason to speculate on all-time production record for the Plains." According to the most recent report on cotton compiled by the National Cotton Council after extension service and USDA personnel, only California, Arizona and North Carolina are equal or exceed last year's plantings.

High Plains, both for acreage and production, are still the rain and flood plagued states of Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee — states which in 1972 for 4.8 million of the nation's 13.99 million acres almost 38 percent of the total crop.

High Plains, according to the NCC, is not expected to be above 3.5 million and could be even with continued good weather. Another year so will be dropped by the Carolinas, Georgia, and New Mexico.

High Plains figures from NCC's survey indicate 1973 acreage from 12,388,000 to 13,070,000 acres, down 6.6 to 10.3 percent from last year.

High Plains acreage be down for 1973," Johnson adds, "but unfortunate sections of the belt will be from two to three weeks getting planted, greatly reducing chances for a worthwhile item related to fiber supply and demand in the textile trade publication "Daily News Record," May 3 that "The yarn shortage is worldwide and the board in polyesters, nylons, acrylics and other synthetic fibers which means knitters frequently will be unable to meet yarn requirements."

Studies Alfalfa Grazing

Plains Research Foundation, recently reported that "A alfalfa is one of the best forage crops we have available and if we can graze it, it could really be a boost to High Plains beef industry," he said.

Previous attempts to graze alfalfa have not been successful because of cattle losses due to bloat. A recently developed chemical that helps prevent bloat in cattle may be an answer," Dr. Longnecker said.

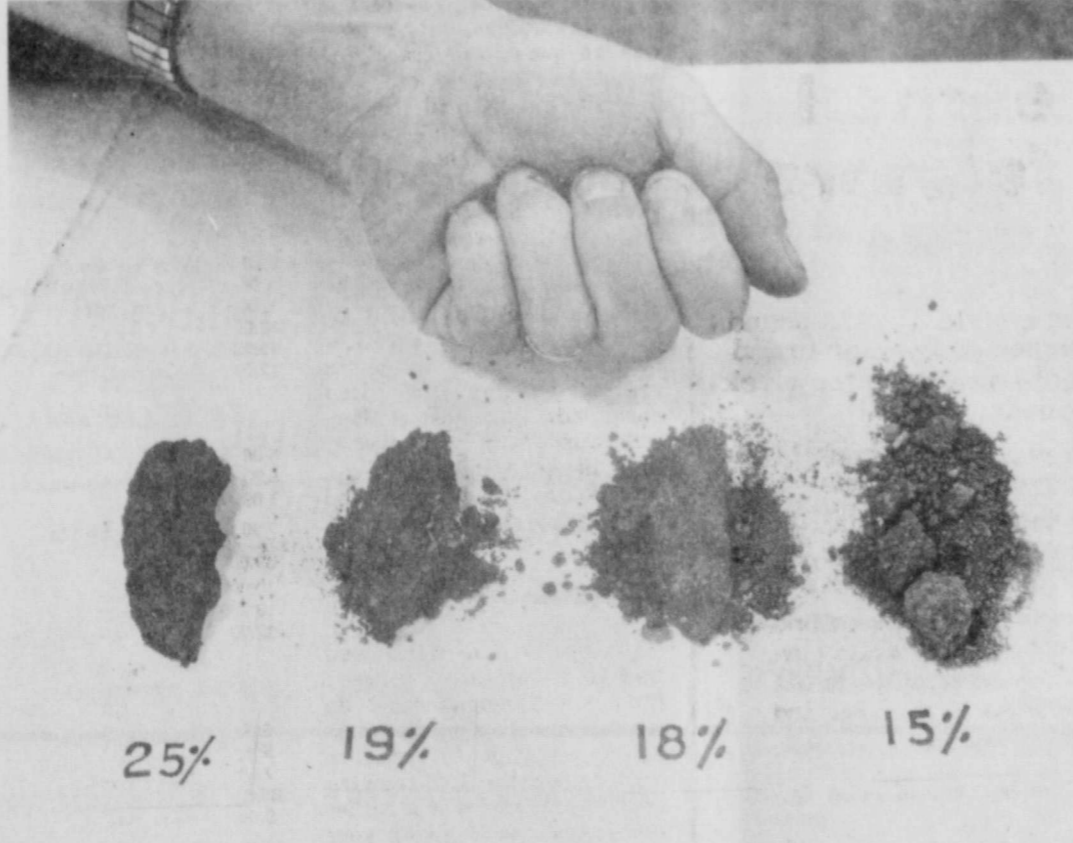

To study effects of the bloat guard on cattle grazing alfalfa, the research foundation in cooperation with HCK Cattle Company this week established an alfalfa grazing program on its Hamby Research Farm, south of Plainview.

Dr. Longnecker said a 1-acre alfalfa plot is divided into three five-acre pastures for a rotation grazing test. Thirty head of cattle, a stocking rate of six 450-pound steers per acre, were introduced onto the pasture.

Liquid bloat guard is available for the cattle near watering troughs for consumption daily throughout the grazing test. "In past tests, researchers have let the cattle graze alfalfa pastures too long before moving them onto a RUSTON LOAMY FINE SAND TEST — The soil "balls" differently at different soil moisture levels. Note that 9 percent ball cracks, indicating soil moisture is right for good stand. Balls of 6 percent and 5 percent moisture crumble. Soil with 4 percent moisture will not ball.

CECIL CLAY SOIL TEST — Proper soil moisture levels for cotton planting are higher and cover a range. Ball of soil with 25 percent and ball with 19 percent are okay. Balls labeled 18 percent and 15 percent indicate soils is probably too dry.

Simple Soil Moisture Predicts Good Cotton Stand

RALEIGH — A cotton grower can "ball the soil" and determine if the moisture content favors quick emergence and a uniform stand. "It is the simplest field test known, but it can be used to make an on-the-spot decision about cotton planting," said J. K. "Farmer" Jones, associate director of agricultural research for mechanization at the Cotton Incorporated Research Center here.

Cotton Incorporated is the research, sales and marketing company sponsored by America's cotton growers through their dollar-per-bale program. Conclusions supporting the new use of the age-old test were drawn from a cooperative research project between Cotton Incorporated and North Carolina State University at Raleigh under Dr. H. D. Bowen.

"It is impossible to tell critical differences in soil moisture just by looking," said Farmer Jones. "Ruston loamy fine sand looks the same at 5 percent moisture as at 9 percent. But that 4 percent difference can spell the difference between proper germination and total crop failure — allowing for conditions of temperature and humidity and prospects for rain."

The ability to make the right on-the-spot decision about soil moisture can stack the odds in favor of getting a good stand. "The way to do it is by feel," Jones said. "You squeeze a ball of dirt in your hand. If it balls easily, it is right. You can tell by the way the ball crumbles or cracks. If it crumbles, it is too dry. If it just cracks, its moisture content is near its moisture-holding capacity, and it is right."

Jones said the "balling" technique works with any soil. "And now, the balling test has been validated by scientific research." In Ruston loamy fine sand, for example, the critical moisture level is 8-9 percent. For Cecil clay soil, it is anywhere in the range of 19-25 percent.

A grower with Ruston soil can plant at a depth of 1 inch in soil with moisture content of 8-9 percent and get a good stand, without any rain. But planting at the same depth in soil with moisture content of 6 percent or less means he probably will not get a stand unless it rains. "Seed depth is an important factor," said Jones. "The grower should ball soil taken from the furrow at seed depth." The grower has the option of planting deeper — up to a 2 inch depth — if soil moisture content that deep checks out right in the balling test.

With the clay soil the numbers are different but the principle is the same.

Planting at a depth of one inch with moisture content of 19-25 percent will give a good stand without rain. But planting in soil with 15-18 percent moisture will give slow emergence and a variable stand unless there is rain at planting.

"The research findings are explicit and detailed, and they note exceptions for varying conditions of temperature and humidity and different planting depths," said Jones.

"But the significant point now is that cotton growers can use the ball test as a reliable guide for planting at correct soil moisture levels." In his preliminary research afterwards. Then it was all washed off and meat hung to smoke in the smoke house. My grandfather had an old smoke house at one time but most of us did not have one. So there were some "liquid smokes" available that could be rubbed in to give that hickory smoked flavor. After the meat was thoroughly cured this way, it could be wrapped in brown paper and cloth so nothing could get to it, hung from a rafter in the garage or barn away from all harm and the winter's meat was assured.

Dad tells me that when they first came to the Plains back in 1901, they could butcher a beef and hang it from the windmill tower even in summer and that it would cure out like jerky. He said there was almost a total absence of flies back in those days.

When we butchered, or bought a quarter of beef, the hind quarter was preferred because that was where you got the round steak for chicken frying. We usually hung our quarter of beef in a cook dark place like the garage and believe it or not, we could cut steak off a good quarter for report, Dr. Bowen says five basic guidelines can lead a grower along the right road to getting a good stand of cotton: (1) Soil moisture is right if soil at seed depth will ball easily when squeezed in the hand. If it does not ball easily, it is probably too dry. (2) In general, planting depth should be one inch to 1 1/4 inches.

(3) High temperatures and high humidities at planting favor quick, uniform emergence. Low temperatures and low humidities lead to slow, variable stands.

(4) Doubling the planting depth doubles the time that moisture conditions can be favorable. When chances of rain are slight and the weather is warm, planting depth should be as much as two inches.

(5) Under marginal conditions of soil moisture, planting with 20 gallons of water per acre, applied directly on seed in the furrow, should push soil moisture into the safe zone.

Farmer Jones said Cotton Incorporated will release further information on soil moisture research as it is developed.

months. As it dried, a crust would form on the outside, the inner part would turn to a bluish black without spoiling and was as tasty, tender beef as you could ever eat. I don't know whether I could eat that beef or not today if I knew about it, but back then I could eat my weight in it - and then sop up the gravy.

The community frozen food lockers brought about a change in our eating habits since, now, the entire animal could be frozen in packages to fit the family's needs. The old attempts to "can" sausage, backbone and ribs were unnecessary and a balanced diet was possible all year round. No longer did you have to fear fresh pork in the summer. Winter beef and pork in the summer and summer's vegetables in the winter. What an improvement.

Looking back - maybe that blue-black semi-dried beef wasn't as good as I seem to remember it - because in all fairness, I must admit that was when Mother used to buy catsup in gallon cans and I acquired my lifelong fondness for spicy sauces.
