"It makes one appreciate mids, museums, and rode in the U.S. even more" was the the "Fal Fullacs", a sailboat, omment given by Frances Mitchell, Floydada school teacher, after her return this month from a tour of Egypt. Her main purpose in going was to visit a cousin in Cairo, but it also gave her an opportunity to see many sights she otherwise wouldn't have. Miss Mitchell joined the Linblad Tour out of Lubbock, leaving here June 24. She toured upper Egypt to Luxor, aboard the ship "Iris" for five days, seeing famous old temples, including the Temple of Luxor where, across the Nile, she visited the Valley of the Kings, Valley of the Queens and the Valley of the Kings and Nobles. This is the burial place of all noblemen and at present the Valley of the Queens is the largest preserved palace. This is where Queen Hatshepsut is buried, said to be one of the richest in her times. All tombs are underground but most have been robbed many years ago. Addis Ababa was a spot of beauty, Miss Mitchell commented. She toured there three days, then to Bar Hadar, source of the Blue Nile; to Lalibella, where old Coptic Christian churches date back to 1500 B.C. They are hewed out of solid rock and are below ground. Here she saw her first leprosy, the very poor and underprivileged and said it made one feel how very lucky we in the U.S. are. The homes there are round, two story straw. In Axum, known for its Biblical history, she saw the ruins of the Queen of Sheba and Solomon and heard of its ruler, known out of respect to him, as "Lion of Judah. Old market places where herbs, camels, and such can be purchased, lined the streets, like before Christ, Miss Mitchell said. The tourist found Asmara more French and Italian, than Egyptian. It was more modern, and also here she saw her first Egyptian funeral.

After Miss Mitchell's return to Cairo, her cousin, who she had not seen since the 1940's, escorted her in many sightseeing adventures. He is with the Ford Foundation and has been in Cairo for the past five years, with plans of retiring soon. They visited many pyraMitchell said "The Nile is a gift to Egypt and Egypt is a gift of the Nile, for without either, the people could not exist," The last weekend there, Miss Mitchell accompanied her cousin to Alexandria on the Mediterranean Sea where enroute they saw pictures of the "old and new side by side". They saw fields where the land was being worked by oxen and nearby, by modern machinery. Some people there live as before Christ, Miss Mitchell said. She was struck by the very old things and to her said it was unbelievable, but proved there is nothing new under the sun. She said there is an upper Egypt and a lower Egypt, both quite different. She was impressed by Egyptian art, and found there much unrest in the country. It was not allowed to take pictures from a bridge, and if the camera was pointed in such a direction, it would be confiscated.

Miss Mitchell returned home August 8, with many relics from places she visited, some of which are shown in accompanying picture of this article.

A new book received at the library recently is Phantoms of the Prairies by Tanner Laine of Lubbock. This is Laine's fourth book. He writes western-flavored feature stories for the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. Phantoms of the Prairies contains short stories about animals and birds in earlier days of the High Plains.

The book was given in memory of Mrs. C. L. Mooney by Mr. and Mrs. Gene Collins, Jr.

By Wendell Tooley Several interesting farming projects were viewed Thursday and a delicious barbecue dinner was enjoyed by several farmers and agri-businessmen on the annual Floyd County farm tour.

The first stop was at the Jay S. Hale Jr. farm about five miles south of Floydada on the Ralls highway. There the group learned about a Bio Chem system that drips into irrigation water causing the water to soak in more thoroughly as it runs down sloping rows. The Bio Chem fluid that is stored in a 2500 gallon tank near the irrigation well also creates algae and mellows the ground. Hale told the group he was using nine Bio Chem units on 1300 irrigated acres and felt the system was making him money. The group also inspected four varieties of Texas Triumph grain sorghum and six varieties of cotton on the Hale farm VEGETABLE CROPS caravan traveled to the Chuck Holmes vegetable crops near Sandhill. There the group saw cabbage and carrots growing and county agent Doyle Warren explained the advantages and the hazards of vegetable farming. Warren said that Holmes also was growing some cantaloupes

WATER CONSERVATION

Next stop was east of Muncy where Roy Tinsley and Kenneth Broseh were terracing some 200 acres for water conservation. SCS head Jon LaBaume explained that although the land was not very sloping, terracing on the dryland would conserve the water. He said the cost was around $25.00 per acre and the government conservation program paid for about 60% of the cost.

"Nineteen area counties get more rainfall each year than what we could import from the Mississippi, yet so much of it runs off. . . . therefore we must conserve it," LaBaume told the group. GRASS AND CATTLE

The Johnny Lee farm north of Aiken was next stop where the group saw some 35 acres of Kentucky 31 Fescue grass. Lee said he had baled over 600 bales and he was grazing 112 head of cattle on the 35 acres. He said it was necessary to put 250 pounds of balanced fertilizer on the land before sowing the grass, and has since added anhydrous ammonia, after first cutting. BARBECUE AT ACCO

At noon a good sized crowd gathered at ACCO Seed for a barbecue dinner and introductions by manager Frank Dickson. Former Floyd County AGent Bob Gibson showed the group several fields of ACCO grain sorgum and Davis Soybeans.

Dr. Delbert Hess showed the tour group some cotton varieties including Paymaster Dwarf. Jack Link gave the group some pointers on raising grain sorghum for-

Last stop on the tour was the Herman King farm where 30 varieties of cotton were viewed.
