'Winds, Wildcats Go At It Here Friday

LITTLEFIELD 'BEST WE'LL FACE'

GAME STARTS AT 7:30

The Littlefield Wildcats are "...definitely the best ball club we'll face this year," Whirlwind head coach L. G. Wilson said this week. And the 'Winds face 'em Friday evening, in the first of Floydada's 7:30-p.m. games, at Wester Field.

The Wildcats are one of the most explosive offensive teams in the area. They beat triple-A Muleshoe 53-13 last week after leading 32-7 at the half. They can score from anywhere on the field, according to Wilson, passing or running — and they have a good kicking game and a good defense.

An outstanding backfield makes the Wildcats a formidable offensive opponent. Terry Bryson is one of the top quarterbacks in the state, a fine passer and runner, Wilson said.

The 'Cats have moved their last year's All-South-Plains lineman Randy Cook to fullback, where the 205-pounder furnishes some good blocking to lead tailback Kenny Owens and Pat Henderson at wingback. Henderson, a starter since he was a sophomore, has speed and deception and carried for 177 yards on just five attempts against the Mules last week. "We'll have to keep him (Henderson) from getting into the open," Wilson warned.

Bryson is adept at hitting his favorite passing targets Bill Turner, a sophomore split end with good speed, tight end Chris Pope, and Henderson.

Defensively, linebackers Owens and Cook are two of the best around, and all the Wildcat linemen are about the same — "pretty good" — according to Wilson.

It will be a tough game for the 'Winds, who are hungry for a victory after losing two straight, last week 22-18 to Olton and the week before 14-7 to Post.

The Wildcats have scored just three points on the 'Winds in four games in the current series dating back to the 1970 season. Floydada won 21-3 in '70.

Littlefield won the 1971 scoreless tie by the margin of four first downs, and the Whirlwinds beat the 'Cats 3-0 last year in a non-conference game and 7-0 in the bi-district playoff contest.

Floydada will be trying to regain some consistency and eliminate some petty mistakes — like lining up offside — and some major mistakes — like fumbles and drive-killing 15-yard penalties — that cost them two early-season victories.

Even in losing last week, the 'Winds showed a spark of jelling into a pretty good ball club, Coach Wilson said Monday, after viewing the game film. The offense showed that they can move the ball, and exhibited some of their own explosiveness last week when they scored two touchdowns with less than a minute left in the game.

The 'Winds "got started" last year in the Olton game and, even though they lost, Wilson thinks maybe his team showed some signs of doing it this year.

"We hope to play a good football game Friday," Wilson said. "We believe the boys have faith that we're going to 'get after it' — but it will take a super effort to win."

Inside linebacker Mike Reves will be back in the lineup for the Whirlwinds after missing two games, which should help out in a problem area in the defense, but Kelvin Ratliff, who started at defensive halfback last week and was one of the top players, has a painful bruised back and may not see much action. Steve Moore is still a doubtful participant in the Littlefield contest.

Don Warren Wins Football Contest

All the winners in last week's Hesperian football contest missed six games, but Don Warren, Rt. 3, Floydada, won the $7.50 first prize by guessing 31, closest to the actual total score of 40, in the Floydada-Olton tie-breaker. All the winners (and all the contestants, except a Lockney woman, missed the winner on the tie breaker.

Joy Allen, Box 282, Floydada, missed first place by a single point on the tie-breaker, guessing the total Floydada-Olton score at 30. She wins $5 for second place.

Greg Pruitt, Rt. 3, Floydada, wins third prize, $2.50, for a six-miss entry with 23 entered in the tie-breaker box.

Warren's misses were on these games (actual winner listed first): Frenship-Morton, Wellington-Childress, Dumas-Borger, Crosbyton-Cooper, Amherst-Happy, and Oklahoma-Southern Cal (a tie game).

Mrs. Allen guessed wrong on Frenship-Morton, Dumas-Borger, Crosbyton-Cooper, Amherst-Happy, OU-USC, and Plainview-Amarillo.

Pruitt missed the Wellington-Childress, Crosbyton-Cooper, Rotan-Spur, Amherst-Happy, OU-USC, and Plainview-Amarillo games.

Missing seven games and gaining honorable mention in the contest were Belle Vinson, W. O. Newberry, Tommy Cathey, Mrs. Tommy Cathey, Dwayne Wilson, and Ruth Hammonds of Floydada, Bill Sanders and Jim Curtisinger of Canyon, Juanita Thompson of Electra, Alton Fields of Lockney, John Vega of Plainview, and Andy Hale of Weatherford, Oklahoma.

FHS To Issue First 'Progress Reports'

SCHOOL GOES TO QUARTER SYSTEM

Parents of Floydada High School students will be receiving the first progress reports under the new quarter system this week or next week. The progress reports, which are not report cards and may or may not include the students' grade average, will be sent home with students and do not need to be returned.

The reports tell parents whether the students' work for a six-weeks' period is satisfactory or unsatisfactory. Regular report cards with grade averages, will be issued at the end of each quarter (12 weeks) of study.

Semester tests are eliminated under this system. Students are tested, in regular classroom time, at the end of each quarter. Six weeks tests are given at the teacher's option but are not required.

FHS is among several area schools which have switched this year from the

City Sales Tax Collection Up

The City of Floydada has received its sales tax check from the state comptroller for the second quarter of 1973. The check is for $11,597.44, an increase over the same period last year, when the amount was $10,164.67. The City's share (one percent of most retail sales in Floydada) was $10,364.13 in the first quarter of 1973.

City Secretary Jimmie Lou Stewart could not give a reason for the larger sales tax collection, which represents an increase of over $140,000 in retail sales in the city over the same three-month period in 1972, a 14-percent rise.

MR. AND MRS. LEE TRICE

Mr. And Mrs. Lee Trice Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Trice were honored Sunday with a reception in observance of their Golden Wedding anniversary. Open house was held at the family home two and a half miles west of Floydada where the couple have resided since moving to Floyd County in 1924.

Hosting the reception were the couple's children,

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McClure of Kress and Mr. and Mrs. Loy Lee Trice of Shelby, North Carolina. The nine grandchildren assisted with hospitalities.

Granddaughters, Mrs. Richard McClure of Kress, Mrs. Paul Cruce of Amarillo and Miss Darla Trice of Shelby, N.C. registered guests and presided at the serving table.

A crystal vase holding yellow roses and baby's breath accented the serving table which was laid with a white linen cloth trimmed with lace. Gold colored candles, crystal appointments and a decorated cake completed the setting.

Guests attended from Oklahoma City, Edmond, Okla., Clayton, N.M., Amarillo, Kress, Harrold, Texas; Tulsa, Iowa Park, Eldorado, Plainview, Levelland, Dumas, Lubbock, Clarendon, O'Donnell and Floydada.

Among those attending were sisters of Mr. Trice, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Taylor of Groves, Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Kownslar of Snyder and a brother of Mrs. Trice, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Brewer of Broken Arrow, Okla.

The former Ethel Brewer and Robert Lee Trice were married October 2, 1923 in Electra. The couple moved to Floyd County a year later. Trice is engaged in farming and is a Mason. Both Mr. and Mrs. Trice attend Church of Christ. Her interests are sewing and gardening.

When sorting laundry, separate "lint-givers" from "lint-holders." Turning "lint holders" inside out also helps. Launder heavy linters alone, suggests Lynn Bourland, home management specialist.

Sally McIntosh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McIntosh of Floydada, and Lowry Allen, son of Mrs. Emily Allen and the late Dr. M. Lowry Allen of Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania, were united in marriage in Abilene Saturday, September 29.

These are major claims, perhaps not yet finally proven. But if it can help toward solving the air pollution problem, the rotary engine could be the

Museum Board Review Gifts

A review of gifts for the past year to the Floyd County Historical Museum was made at the regular quarterly meeting of the Board of Directors Monday night.

The nominating committee presented names which were accepted for incoming directors: Choise Smith, Mrs. Ed Wester, Mrs. Billy D. Colston, J. D. Copeland, Ted Bell and Duncan Hollums. New officers will be elected at the next regular meeting.

Continuing their policy of accepting authentically historical items, the board voted to accept a two-row go devil plow from Mr. and Mrs. John L. Riley of Lockney. The plow is circa 1918.

Mrs. Don Marble reported the need for trained volunteer guides to assist Mrs. Porter Finley, museum hostess, with the large groups of school children from the area when they come to tour. The board voted to contact all clubs in Floyd County so they could send their museum representative to a meeting

October 29, at 8 p.m., in the museum. At that time a calendar will be set up giving the dates club members will come to the museum to assist as tour guides. Mrs. Finley will train the guides as she did Girl Scouts who served during the summer months.

Reservations for Christmas programs are already being received, according to Mrs. Marble. The museum does not charge for group gatherings but donations are accepted and appreciated.

The board discussed equipment needed for educational historical programs for student and adult groups, including a slide projector to record still available historic sites and copy photographs of long ago scenes (approx. $100); a tape recorder to tape interviews with old timers (approx. $100); a large lettered typewriter (approx. $200); a glass covered multiplex to hold hundreds of historic photographs ($400); record player ($100); rent a photo copier ($500); and several dozen folding chairs ($5).

Floyd County In Running For Multi-Million Dollar Industry

Floydada Industrial Foundation Continues Work On Project

A multi-million dollar industry that would double the size of Floydada and Lockney in five years is still a possibility as the chairman of the Floydada Development Company Bill Hale continues to receive correspondence from a Japanese company that says it will locate in West Texas.

The industry that would employ some 500 people would use about half the annual Floyd County cotton crop.

Bill Hale's committee has been working on the project some four or five months and interest really got high two or three weeks ago when the Japanese visited Floydada to look over the community and possible building sites.

This newspaper has not been able to publish details of the industry until now, since the Lubbock paper broke with the story Tuesday morning. Although it could not be publicized, a committee headed by Wayne Russell in Floydada and J. D. Copeland in Lockney have been working on money commitments to bring the industry to Floyd County.

The Lubbock paper gives the following details:

Area Textile Plant Prospects Boosted

By DUANE HOWELL

Avalanche-Journal Farm Editor

A TEXTILE complex costing $22-$25 million, to be built in a three-way Japanese venture and to employ 300 to 500 persons, "definitely" is on the drawing boards for the Lubbock area, reliable sources confirmed Monday.

The confirmation followed a report Sunday that "two new spinning mills are going to be built in the Lubbock area, one by a huge Japanese firm and the other by a company from the Netherlands."

Carl Cox of Dallas, executive director of the Natural Fibers and Food Protein Committee of Texas, who could not be reached Monday afternoon, was quoted as saying the venture may be only the beginning.

It was reported the Japanese spinning mill "will be just the start of what is ultimately planned as a totally integrated plant that will take Texas cotton from the spinning of yarn to the weaving of fabric and ultimately to the cutting and production of the finished garments."

Sources, who requested their names not be used, saying they did not want to be associated with any premature announcement of the plant, told The Avalanche-Journal Monday the Japanese "definitely have a number of sites in the Lubbock area under serious consideration."

"The deal is thought to be 98 per cent nailed down for the High Plains," one informed source said, "but it still could fall through, especially if there is a lot of premature publicity about it."

The Dallas report said the plant will use open-end spinning machines produced by the Toyoda Automatic Loom Works Ltd. Open-end spinning is a relatively new technique which makes efficient utilization of High Plains-type cottons.

It was reported the plant will be a three-way venture of Daiwa Spinning Co., a member of the big Daiwa group of Japanese companies; Marubeni, one of the big three Japanese trading companies; and Toyoda, which was in the spinning and weaving machinery business long before it started making automobiles.

Show-Place Planned

Cox was quoted as saying Toyoda plans to make the new Texas plant a show-place of its products.

While several High Plains points have offered 30-acre plant sites, the Japanese reportedly plan to buy an additional 70 acres where the plant is located to provide themselves with a 100-acre operation.

Cox said the spinning and weaving plants would use 720,000 gallons of water a day and the finishing plant would consume 2 1/2 million gallons, but he said water is assured.

He said a recently completed textile feasibility study showed a plant in West Texas of the type planned by the Japanese could project a 19 per cent annual return, or about a five-year payout.

By coincidence, he noted, the study assumed a $21 million investment, very close to what the Japanese are said to be planning.

It was reported the Japanese plant is scheduled to be in operation in early 1975, with the rest of the development opened step by step after that.

Sources said the projected payroll is at least $2 million annually.

The other plant mentioned in the Dallas report actually will be a joint venture of the Lubbock-based Textile Investment Group of Texas, Inc., (TIGOT) and Nijverdal-Ten Cate of Almelo, Holland, the largest and one of the oldest integrated textile firms in the Netherlands.

Plans for a $3.5 million investment in a Lubbock cotton yarn spinning operation, with textile machinery valued at about $2 million, were announced by TIGOT and the Dutch company in August. This joint venture, known as Feather Fabrics, Inc. (FFI) will begin producing yarn from Plains-grown cotton in the fall of 1974.

The FFI plant also will utilize the open-end spinning technique, but its spindles will be imported from Czechoslovakia. This system produces yarn three to four times as fast as the conventional ring-spinning process, say TIGOT officials.

The open-end process is rated most efficient in the formation of coarser yarns for which shorter, lower micronaire cottons normally are used, whatever the spinning system. But of prime importance is that studies at the Textile Research Center at Texas Tech University and elsewhere have shown that the spinning of these cottons on open-end frames is far more economical than on the ring system.

Studies at Tech and elsewhere also have indicated yarns produced from low micronaire cottons on the open-end system actually have greater strength and better uniformity than like yarns from the same system using higher, premium-price cottons. Micronaire, a measurement of fiber fineness or maturity, can be a quality problem in this area's short growing season under present utility standards.

Cotton Is Lure

A lure for textile plants is the tremendous volume of cotton produced on the Plains, which annually harvests more of the fleecy fiber than any state except, of course, the one of which it is a part.

Latest crop estimates place the expected production in the 25-county Lubbock area at 2,339,500 bales, compared with projections of 1,870,000 bales in California and 1,785,000 in Mississippi, the states which rank just behind Texas in total cotton output. The overall Texas crop is estimated at 4,650,000 bales.

Sources said sites that have been under consideration for the Daiwa-Marubeni-Toyoda plant have included Floydada, Crosbyton, Slaton, Lubbock, La Mesa, Plainview and Levelland. A study team was expected to return to the Plains later this year to make a final site selection.

Capture the 'Bill Bugs'

It's no fun to admit, "I can't afford that." For that very reason, people often spend first and think later.

Not knowing where the money goes is a major reason families have problems managing money. Too often the money just seems to "disappear" before all the important items have been paid.

To get the "bugs" out of the family budget, make a "keeping can" — such as a three pound coffee can. Decorated or not, it must be in sight. Put in every sales slip, cash register receipt and bill. If the date and item purchased are not listed on these, make a note on the slip. Other expenses like babysitting, school lunches and any item that doesn't have a receipt can be recorded by writing a note and putting it in the keeping can.

At the end of the month, make a list of dates, what the purchase was, and the price. Some expenses will be seasonal, but they will be replaced by other seasonal expenses next month, so do not cross them out on that account. Take a look at any items not really needed or that could have been purchased for less during sales time.

If there is a consistently high expenditure in some unnecessary area — such as too many meals out or too many pairs of shoes — then perhaps you have caught the "bill bug." Once you catch a "bill bug", do something about it — and get control of your money.

Make a plan for spending your money. This plan will help you stretch your dollar to pay for the items that have to be paid for and allow some money for items you would like to have. Learning where your money goes each month makes it easier to make a plan for spending.

Huntsville Newsman Writes Book About Electric Chair

A veteran Texas newspaperman who saw 189 men die in the electric chair at Huntsville prison has written a book about his experiences which his publishers hail as "the definitive work on crime and punishment."

Appropriately, the book is titled "Eyewitness." The author is Don Reid, who "covered" the Texas prison system for 35 years for the Huntsville Item and the Associated Press. Reid successively was reporter, editor and publisher of the Item. Last month, at 66, he became publisher-emeritus. Reid did more than witness the 189 executions.

He spent long hours with most of the men he saw electrocuted. He listened to their stories, studied their cases, read their last wills and testaments — and stood beside them when they died. He haunted courtrooms and police stations where some of the cases had their beginnings. He pored over records few men are privileged to examine.

"No law enforcement officer, no district attorney, no Supreme Court justice, no prison official has Reid's first-hand knowledge of capital crimes and the people who commit them," said Jack Donahue, editor of Cordovan Press of Houston, Reid's publisher.

Taxable Property Values Rise In Floyd County

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 — How much have property values in Floyd County changed in the last five years? What effect has it had on the local tax situation?

According to a government survey, just released, the assessed value of realty and other holdings subject to local property taxes has increased appreciably in the period. It has climbed 106 percent.

This compares with a 43 percent rise in the United States and with 53 percent in the Southern States.

The survey, which covered every section of the country, was conducted by the Census Bureau in connection with its 1972 Census of Governments. It was the first such study since 1967.

As a result, data is now available on more than 80 million pieces of real and personal property that are carried on local tax assessment rolls throughout the nation.

They are valued for local tax purposes at $641 billion, after deduction for those that are legally exempt. This compares with a net of $442 billion five years ago.

In Floyd County, the figures show, the assessed value of locally taxable property came to $33,794,000, as against the total in 1967, $16,431,000.

In general, throughout the country, the assessed value is the base against which tax rates are applied. But it is not necessarily the true market value of the property. More often than not, property is assessed for tax purposes at well below the actual value.

Related to population, the tax base in Floyd County was equivalent to $3,072 for every man, woman and child in the local area.

Elsewhere in the United States, the average was $3,061 per capita and, in the Southern States $2,772.

The report states that "for local governments, property taxes remain their preeminent revenue source. Collections exceed anything in the past, even though property taxes now constitute a smaller percentage of total revenue than they did 10 years ago."

Currently, it shows, local governments are getting $36.7 from property taxes, equal to 84.6 percent for their total revenue.

Back in 1961, on the other hand, when property taxes were providing them with 87.7 percent of their total, they amounted to only $17.4 billion.

Game Blackout!

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm must have been riding in somebody's new car, his letter this week indicates.

Dear editor:

It's not a world-shaking problem but as you know, Congress has now passed a law allowing the televising of home games in professional football if the game is a sell-out 72 hours before it starts, and as I understand it the owners of the teams aren't happy about it.

They say that even if all the tickets are sold, if the day turns off wet and cold a lot of fans will stay warm and dry at home and watch the game on television, thus cutting down on parking lot fees, hotdog sales, etc., not to mention the dispiriting effect a half-empty stadium has on the players.

There's a remedy for this. Put seat belts in all the seats in the stadium. Rig them up somewhat like the new fasteners, your television start, it just emits a sound. The stadium then by the ticket holders are to sit in for them, and make to the players if it or booted by somebody was hired?

successful in the bullish Wall Street market of the 1920s. But the more money he made, the more he drank. His wife expressed concern. He told her: "Men of genius conceive their best projects when drunk."

When the market collapsed, Bill Wilson sought consolation in the bottle. His wife worked to support him. He joined a church, but soon resumed drinking.

Alone, in a hospital, Wilson prayed. He said later that he had a profound spiritual experience that changed his life. Bill Wilson never drank again.

In 1935, in Akron, Ohio, he met a surgeon named Robert H. Smith who couldn't stop drinking. Wilson helped "Doctor Bob," as he was later to be known, to get sober. Both men worked with several others, who also achieved sobriety. That was the beginning of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Wilson had big plans. He foresaw "chains of A.A. hospitals and tons of free literature for suffering alks." Approached for funds, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., turned him down. "I think money will spoil this," he said. Ever since then, A.A. has been supported entirely by its own membership.

Today Alcoholics Anonymous claims half a million members in 16,000 groups in the U.S. and 90 foreign countries. It promotes the idea that alcoholism is a disease that can be arrested by abstinence from alcohol. A.A. continues to offer help, without charge, to anyone who has "a desire to stop drinking." That is the only requirement for membership.

Bill Wilson turned personal tragedy into a triumph that has helped hundreds of thousands. Next time you're tempted to give up, think of this drunken Wall Street analyst who got sober. It might change your mind.

CLEAN ENERGY FOR TODAY AND TOMORROW

A Natural Energy Home uses gas for heating, cooling, water cooking and clothes drying. It saves money and helps conserve our natural energy resource.

That's because electricity in Texas is generated by burning gas, and in the process of generating electricity, a lot of the gas energy is lost.

So, by using gas directly in your home for the jobs it can do, you're conserving it and you're getting energy for your money.

Weed Map A Good Idea
Harvest season is a good time to evaluate the success of weed control practices used during the year. Weeds that escaped control by herbicides and cultivation are obvious during the harvesting operations.

A little time spent in making some notes on the location and identity of weeds present and the herbicides used in a particular field will be well worth the effort next spring. Make a map of each field showing where problem weeds appeared. This will be an asset next planting season when crop rotations are planned and herbicides are selected.

If a particular weed was not controlled by a given herbicide, it may be advisable to rotate to another crop so that other herbicides may be used. Certain weeds which are resistant to a given herbicide tend to build up when the herbicide is applied year after year. Johnson grass control in grain sorghum is usually a losing battle, but by rotating to cotton, a preplant incorporated herbicide coupled with directed postemergence sprays can keep johnson grass under control.

If weeds are building up which are resistant to presently used preemergence herbicides and rotation to another crop is impractical, the answer may be to use postemergence directed sprays which will kill the weeds after they emerge.

A record of herbicides used in various fields is also of value in determining possible causes of damage to later crops. If an accurate record of herbicides and rates applied is kept on each field, it is easy to trace possible carryover or residue problems that may occur in fall planted crops or those planted the next spring.

A weed map and a field of field record of herbicide usage are valuable aids in planning next year's weed control program.

The prospects for using cotton defoliation look better all of the time. There will be a meeting on cotton defoliation and harvesting of quality cotton and rickets. The meeting will be at King's Restaurant at 9 a.m. Wednesday, October 10, 1973. Anyone interested is invited to attend the meeting. There are also several other meetings scheduled, one in particular is October 5 sponsored by Davis Farm Supply. You should contact them for further information. As It Looks From Here

Omar Burleson, M.C. 17th District, Texas WASHINGTON, D.C. — When the experts differ on expert opinions, it sort of shakes you up. They differ widely on the state of the U.S. economy. This has always been the case but varying opinions on the present situation are about as broad as ever observed.

The pessimists on the economy see a recession, rising unemployment, continued inflation, and sky-high interest rates — all just around the corner.

The optimists demure, arguing that the economy is about to come out of the woods. The best choice appears to be somewhere in between these two views.

Three years ago it was fashionable to portray the doom of America. Torn apart by a divisible war, many were ready to throw in the towel, concluding that this Nation could never again aspire to the great hopes which formed its foundation.

The war is over and, in spite of reported scandals in government, there remains pride in American achievements and its spirit is certainly still alive.

Social doomsayers of the late 1960's have been largely replaced by economic doomsayers. These pessimists paint a gloomy picture of both the short and long run in the U.S. economy. They say recession is imminent, inflation will gallop at the rate of at least 5% a year, with interest rates remaining sky-high. They predict the continued rise in consumer prices will cause a wage explosion and a series of disruptive strikes. They see the dollar as a sort of a Mickey Mouse currency repudiated abroad and discredited at home. They see foreign demands for our food and fiber so great that we shall either have to seal off these markets or experience greater surges of costs in our domestic markets. They see the stock market in a permanent slump, reflecting fear of inflation and tight money. On the other hand, the optimists see the economy as cooling and, if a recession occurs, it will likely be both mild and short-lived. They see business outlays for new plants and equipment as a promising prospect for a "soft landing" as business comes out of boom proportions.

They see the economy as cresting and short-term interest rates leveling out and then declining.

The optimists view the world-wide boom partly responsible for inflation, but that the prospects are for diminishing intensity.

The optimists view favorably recent settlements of wage disputes, pointing out that no wage explosion nor rash of strikes have yet occurred.

Foreign trade has increased to the U.S. advantage and the dollar has snapped back from its lows of last spring and summer to improve the balance of payments outlook.

These experts see the surging demand for U.S. agricultural products on the plus side for our economy which benefits both farmers and consumers.

It is likely that the scenario of the pessimists draws too dark a picture and that of the optimists too glowing.

Probably things will neither be so bad nor so good. Looking back over the last quarter century, the "middle-of-the-roads" in the business community have been more often right than those taking the extreme position.
