WATER COTTON

Forecast 110,000 Bales

By Wendell Tooley
The first official estimate of cotton production for the South Plains by Plains Cotton Growers came out Thursday and forecast 110,000 bales for Floyd County.

This is an average of less than a bale to the acre as the county has 135,000 acres of growing cotton according to the county ASCS office.

Although this is less than the 143,000 bales produced last year, it is good forecast considering the fact that Floyd is part of a 16 state drought area.

If the forecast is anywhere near correct Floyd would be in the top seven of the 25 county South Plains area.

Many dryland counties just won't have much cotton this year. A good (or bad) example is Dawson County with 315,000 bales in 1973. The forecast this year is 35,000.

Irrigation is the difference this year and although some Floyd County wells have weakened and some have gone dry, cotton doesn't require a lot of water.

Floyd farmers also were able to use some lake water from June rains.

Of course this early forecast depends on a lot of weather conditions the next two months and average first freeze date.

The season's first county-by-county production forecasts, estimates of standing acres, and comparisons with 73 crops follow:

President of the USA Gerald R. Ford

WASHINGTON — President Nixon resigned Thursday night, saying he did so to heal the wounds of Watergate and to give America "a full-time President" in Gerald R. Ford.

He urged Americans to rally behind Ford, who assumed the powers of presidency at 11 a.m. CDT Friday, the effective hour of Nixon's resignation.

Nixon said he would have preferred to fight the virtually certain impeachment that awaited him in Congress, "no matter the personal agony that would have been involved."

But he said the interests of the nation demanded that he step down, to end the diversions of scandal that preoccupied the White House, and the impeachment process that kept Congress from other duties.

Full-Time Congress Cited

"America needs a full-time president and a full-time Congress, particularly at this time with the problems we face at home and abroad," Nixon said in a nationally televised and broadcast address.

Ford watched on television at his suburban Alexandria, Va., home, then stepped outside and pledged his best efforts for "what's good for America and what's good for the world."

He announced Henry A. Kissinger would remain as secretary of state and said together they would work "in the pursuit of peace as we have achieved in the past."

Nixon said he hoped world peace would be a lasting monument to his 5 1/2 years in the White House.

Ford said Nixon "made one of the great personal sacrifices for the country and one of the finest personal decisions on behalf of all of us as Americans."

America has many problems, Ford added, but "they can be resolved and will be resolved by the cooperation of the Congress, with the President and those that work with him."

Acknowledges No Misdeeds

Nixon noted that Watergate was implicit in much of what he said, but he acknowledged no misdeeds, saying only that some of his judgments had been wrong — and that he made them "in what I believed at the time to be in the best interests of the nation."

Nor did he present in his farewell address any defense against the charges he faced in Congress.

In fact, Nixon made no specific reference to the three articles of impeachment sent to the House of Representatives 10 days earlier by the Judiciary Committee.

They charged Nixon with obstructing justice in the Watergate cover-up, abusing the powers of his office and refusing to obey congressional demands for impeachment evidence.

Nixon said that throughout the Watergate scandals, he had felt it his duty to persevere. But within the past few days — since he admitted withholding damaging evidence about his own role in the case — it became evident "that I no longer have a strong enough political base in the Congress to justify continuing that effort."

Nixon said that base has disappeared now, and with it, his reason for prolonging the struggle against impeachment.

Family Opposed Resignation

The President said his family opposed resignation, that it was abhorrent to him to quit, but that for the sake of the nation, it had to be done.

Nixon concluded with no good night, no farewell, but a prayer: "May God's grace be with you all in the days ahead."

Nixon declared of Ford: "The leadership of America will be in good hands."

Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss sent Ford a telegram wishing him well and adding: "May God grant you guidance and health in the difficult days and months ahead."

Nixon's future legal situation as a private citizen remained unclear. Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski said he has no agreement or understanding with the President about the resignation.

In Ford, America will have for the first time a president by appointment, not election.

Arts & Crafts Show Coming To Floydada

Area artists are reminded by the Floydada Lions Club that Saturday, August 24, has been set for the Club's Sidewalk Art and Crafts Show in Floydada. Art, Crafts and Hobbies will be shown through the day in downtown Floydada.

This week the club has been contacting county organizations to arrange for concessions on the art show day. An afternoon of informal music and entertainment on the concrete slab south of the courthouse is also being scheduled through local musicians and entertainers.

Artists who would like to bring their art and crafts display are asked to call Mrs. Bill Hendrix at 983-5331 or Mrs. Ray McDonald at 983-3532.

Floydada Owes Lubbock Blood Bank 75 Pit Pints Of Blood

Because Caprock Hospital in Floydada has been doing more operations than in the past over 100 pints of blood have been purchased from the Lubbock Blood Bank.

Some time ago the Floydada Kiwanis Club sponsored a blood donor drive and only 23 pints were donated. This means that the Floydada community owes the Lubbock Blood Bank over 75 pints of blood.

Because of the extreme need of blood the Kiwanis Club, the women's division of the Chamber of Commerce, and Caprock Hospital will sponsor a blood donor drive this Thursday from 2 to 7 p.m. in the Massie Activity Center.

Mrs. Walter Hollums

Yard Of The Week

This week's selection is that of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hollums at 228 W. Kentucky. They have made this place their home for about a year and a half. This place has been in the Hollums family for thirty or more years and had been a rent house several previous years before its latest owners. The Hollums have done so much already and are continually working to improve this yard and surroundings.

This yard on an early morning with dew, has special appeal.

On the front lawn you notice immediately the attractive "donkey-planter" filled with red and white petunias and geraniums. Red geraniums, snapdragons, and verbenas are blooming around the front porch. On the porch are several pot plants.

The long flower bed on the east side of the lawn has Red-hot Poker, petunias, verbenas, snapdragons and roses in full bloom. Iris are planted for early bloom and mums for later color.

There is a small vegetable garden in the back yard. A large pecan tree and fruitless mulberry provide a shady background area.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hollums work in this neat attractive yard.

Co-Chairmen for the 7th Annual Side-Walk Art Festival are Mrs. Dee Dee Davis (385-4774) and Mrs. Carol Wallace (385-5667) or (385-3888) in Littlefield.

Tyner M.D. Dean Of Tech Med School

LUBBOCK — The appointment of George S. Tyner, M.D., as dean of the Texas Tech University School of Medicine (TTUSM) was announced Saturday, Aug. 3 by Texas Tech President Grover E. Murray.

Dr. Murray said the appointment becomes effective Monday, August 5. Tyner succeeds Dean William W. Frye.

In making the announcement President Murray called attention to the depth of experience Tyner brings to the deanship. The new dean has been serving as associate dean for education and student affairs within the medical school which has outreach programs in numerous West Texas towns and cities.

As dean, Tyner will be the chief administrative officer and academic head of the school, working with associate deans in Lubbock, Amarillo and El Paso, where there are Regional Academic Health Centers, and with the policy boards of the various health institutions with which TTUSM has affiliation agreements.

Dr. Tyner has been a member of the TTUSM faculty since 1971, the year before the first students were admitted. His prior academic appointments were with the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Colorado medical schools.

"Dr. Tyner brings to his new assignment an unusual depth of experience," President Murray said, "and he has an intimate knowledge of the program within the Texas Tech University School of Medicine.

"Church Must Help Women's Freedom"

GLORIETA, N.M. — "Women are going to be free! God requires it; justice demands it; and our national constitution guarantees it," said Harry N. Hollis Jr., during the Christian Life Commission Conference on "Christian Liberation for Contemporary Women" held at Glorieta Baptist Conference Center.

"It is God's intention that all humans be free. The church can be a model for this kind of relationship for the rest of society," added Hollis, director of special moral concerns for the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission.

On the other hand, David R. Mace doesn't believe that women's liberation movement has recognized there can be no solution of the problems of the modern woman that does not involve the modern man. Mace is professor of family sociology at Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Winston-Salem, N.C.

"I have a great deal of sympathy with the predicament of women today," Mace explained. "Their problems are real. They have suffered, and still suffer, many injustices. But I don't think they are going to make significant progress by attacking men as though they were their natural enemies. The movement has often adopted an aggressive, belligerent strategy."

Mrs. Vera Mace, wife of David Mace and co-author of several books, suggested that "the true comradeship between men and women, which we seek, will not be fully achieved outside marriage until it is achieved in marriage. Once it is achieved extensively in marriage, its achievement outside marriage will be inevitable."

Mrs. Mace stated that what is holding back the cause of women's liberation is the stubborn opposition of men. Not all men, she added, but men who — unwilling to accept an equal comradeship with their wives at home — fear its implication in the wider life of the business world.

"The only thing that will change their minds," she concluded, "is the discovery in their marriage that a wife no longer discriminated against becomes a loyal partner and trusted friend, not a rampaging renegade."

The chairman of the sociology department at Louisiana College in Pineville, S.C., told the participants behind the scenes of the conference that the majority of women are not interested in the liberation movement. He said that the women who are interested in the movement are those who are not married or whose marriages are in trouble. MRS. DAVID CLIFFORD GARRETT

(Nee Donna Bertrand)

Wedding Vows Unite Donna Bertrand And David Garrett

Wedding vows were exchanged Saturday evening, August 10 by Miss Donna Jeanne Bertrand and David Clifford Garrett of Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio.

The vows were spoken at 7 o'clock in a double ring ceremony read by James O. Todd in the Lackland Baptist Church. The wedding scene was formed with candelabras and pink tapers entwined with ivy. Wooden baskets containing flowers in pink and white enhanced the setting.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold P. Bertrand, Route 2, Floydada and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Garrett, 3418 Amherst, Amarillo.

As the bride was being escorted by her father the groom sang their selection of "More." She was gowned in illusion silk bombazine and lace fashioned with a fitted bodice, scalloped neckline and long tapering sleeves caught with self buttons and ending in a point at her hands. The bouffant skirt, highlighted by lace appliques, fell into a three-tiered chapel train. The wedding gown was purchased by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. P.F. Bertrand of Floydada, for her granddaughters, and the bride is the fifth granddaughter to wear the ensemble.

She carried a cascade of white carnations with ivy leaves and baby's breath and for something old wore a pearl ring belonging to her maternal grandmother, Mrs. R.H. Stambaugh of Floydada. Something new was her bridal veil and she borrowed a handkerchief which had been carried in seven previous weddings, including those of her sisters, her mother and maternal grandmother. The bride also carried out the traditional blue and wore a six pence which was also worn by a cousin, Mrs. Randy Bertrand of Floydada at her wedding.

Mrs. Derrell Monday of Fort Worth was matron of honor and Miss Kim Bertrand of Floydada was maid of honor. Both are sisters of the bride, Miss Sherry Cozart of Lamesa was bridesmaid and Miss Deanna Murdock of San Antonio was junior bridesmaid.

Feminine attendants wore formal length gowns of seersucker, in two shades of pink. They carried bouquets of pink and white carnations with baby's breath and ivy leaves.

Ralph VanCleave of San Antonio was best man. Serving as groomsmen were Ronald Boney, Weatherford, brother-in-law of the groom and Al Owen of San Antonio. Jeffrey Davenport, San Antonio, was junior groomsmen. Ushers included Mark Johnston of Lackland AFB, and Mike Justice of San Antonio.

Mrs. Ronald Boney of Weatherford, sister of the groom, was pianist. Soloist was Jimmy Murdock, minister of music at Lackland Baptist Church. He presented the selections of "The Wedding Song," "The Lord's

Wedding Vows Unite Thelma Morales And Joe Martinez

The First United Methodist Church of Floydada was the setting for the wedding of Miss Thelma Morales and Joe Martinez, Saturday, August 3. The double ring ceremony was officiated by Father Casey, pastor of St. Mary Magdalen Church also officiating was the Rev. Arcadio Gonzales of the First Baptist Church and the Rev. James Tidwell pastor of the First United Methodist Church all of Floydada.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morales Sr., of Floydada. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Martinez of Floydada.

Vows were exchanged before the altar, flanked by brass candelabras with white mums, powder blue and pink satin streamers. Floral arrangements were on either side of the altar with large mums and pink and blue streamers.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Payne of Floydada sang "The Twelfth of Never" and Mrs. Payne sang "The Wedding Song," accompanied by Miss Penny Bertrand.

The bride was presented for marriage by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white organza fashioned with a high neckline of narrow bands of Venice lace and long bishop sleeves with a deep cuff trimmed with a ruffle at the wrist. The empire bodice covered with heavy Venice motifs. The empire waistline was covered with lace appliques. The softly gathered A-line skirt extended to a chapel length train.

Bands of lace formed the hemline of the skirt and train. The headpiece was a profile of Orange blossoms holding three tiers of illusion.

The bride carried a bouquet of white pearl and crystal-like flowers with streamers of ribbons. For something new the bride wore her wedding gown and headpiece. For something borrowed she wore a pair of pearl earrings borrowed from her sister, Mrs. Janie Flores, of Robstown. She wore the original blue garter for something blue and for good luck she carried the thirteen demas in a basket which was placed at the altar before the ceremony.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Mary Ann Morales. The matrons, bridesmaids, and groomsmen were: Mr. and Mrs. Genaro Gomez, Floydada, Mr. and Mrs. Marcelino Mendoza, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Soloz, Burlington, Colo.; Mr. and Mrs. Atilano Garcia, Arlington, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Tiofilo Juarez, Goodland, Kansas; Mr. and Mrs. Benny Martinez, Floydada.

These matrones wore formal length (neckline) gowns of powder blue with (mist of pink roses).

The bridesmaids were Misses Carmen Morales, Helda Castillo, Nina Hernandez, Sandra Rendon, Martha Rendon.

They all wore floor length gowns of powdered pink. They all had a see through yolk like the brides.

All of them carried bouquets of small mums accented with blue and pink streamers. Janie Barrera served her aunt as flower girl. She carried a small basket of pastel flowers.

Simon Martinez of Lockney served as Best Man.

Miss Yolanda Morales registered guests. She and the other assistants wore formal length gowns of pink and blue.

The mother of the bride chose a floor-length gown of pink knit and lace gown. The groom's mother selected a light green dress. Both wore mum corsages.

A reception in the St. Mary Magdalen Hall followed the wedding ceremony. Reception attendants were Mrs. Janie Flores, Mrs. Oscar Barrera and Mrs. Atilano Garcia, sisters of the bride.

A white knit cloth of white net overlay covered the table. The centerpiece was the couple's unity candle and the bride's bouquet.

The cake was topped with two doves, a ring connecting them. The five tier cake was divided with 4 columns.

Decorations of delicate powder blue and pink carried out the bride's chosen colors.

For travel, the bride selected an orchid floor-length gown with ruffles at the waistline.

The couple is making their home at 620 W. Mississippi in Floydada after a 4 day trip to Colorado Springs, Colo.

Growers Benefit From Pest Management

LUBBOCK — Some 68 Hale County grain sorghum producers farming 18,000 acres in 1973 got a bonus with last year's bumper crop. They reduced their insect control costs 39 percent while maintaining yields, as a result of their participation in the Texas

Sorghum Pest Management Program. Actually a large scale demonstration, the project is being conducted in the Edmonson community of Hale County, where growers are being exposed to the pest management philosophy and techniques of insect control. The philosophy of pest management is simple and straightforward, says Dr. Robert C. McIntyre, area entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service who is heading up the program.

"Based on sound ecological principles, it is a management approach that uses all suitable control techniques to either reduce or maintain pest population levels below those causing economic injury, yet minimizing the disruptive effect of such control practices on the agro-ecosystem," he explains.

In the Texas Sorghum Pest Management Program two basic approaches to insect control are being used. One is chemical and the other is natural control (predators and parasites).

Entomologists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock working closely with Extension specialists have successfully demonstrated that these two diverse and generally incompatible approaches to insect control can be successfully harmonized to effectively manage the key pest of sorghum, the greenbug. Their studies indicate that the major natural mortality factor affecting the greenbug was the braconid parasite with predators such as lady bird beetles contributed their share.

McIntyre says that in fields where greenbug populations were allowed to develop to their limit, parasites would usually completely eliminate the greenbug by late July or early August. But the major problem is that greenbugs generally reach levels causing economic injury before they are eliminated.

These observations led Texas Agricultural Extension Service researchers to determine how much injury sorghum plants could tolerate and the number of greenbugs associated with this injury. They found that medium-late maturity class sorghum could tolerate the loss of two mature leaves per plant, and this corresponded to approximately 1,000 to 1,300 greenbugs per plant.

Once having established the amount of injury the sorghum plants could tolerate and realizing the significant amount of natural control that was occurring, the scientists began to search for insecticides and rates which were selectively toxic. They found not only one but several insecticides which, if applied at very low rates, killed the vast majority of the greenbugs and spared as many as 50 to 60 percent of the beneficials.

The "what" and "how" of these research results are being demonstrated to producers participating in the Texas Sorghum Pest Management Program, McIntyre explains.

The education vehicle of the program is an insect scouting service, headed by county entomologist, Gene Latham. Under his super-

Bids of aerial applicators for multiple spraying of an estimated 200,000 acres of cotton in the 1974 High Plains Boll Weevil Control Program will be opened August 12 and the first planes should take the air on August 26.

These facts were revealed in Lubbock July 31 at a meeting of the program's Technical Advisory Committee.

Ed Dean, Field Service Director of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., gave the estimated base acreage figure and said the aggregate of acreage to be sprayed could come to around 650,000, requiring some 77,000 gallons of insecticide. PCG initiated the program in 1964 when it became apparent that without a control effort the cotton boll weevil within a few years would infest the entire High Plains and move on into New Mexico, greatly increasing cotton production costs and reducing both yield and quality of the crop. It has been described as one of the most successful pest management efforts ever developed in agriculture.

The massive spraying of technical malathion to decimate the number of weevils going into hibernation each fall is preceded by surveys to determine the areas that are infested and whether or not weevil populations are high enough to justify treatment.

The program "control zone" lies along the rim of the Caprock bordering the High Plains on the east. Fields in the zone are sprayed as often as necessary each year to prevent weevils from migrating and establishing themselves in the heavy cotton producing area to the west.

The program is financed on a dollar for dollar basis by cotton producers in PCG's 25 counties and the Federal Government, with some contribution from the Texas Department of Agriculture.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's South Plains Ginning Research Laboratory will have a Field Day August 9 to which all ginners and others in the cotton industry are invited. The program will begin at 10:00 a.m. in the gin building located just east of the Texas A&M Research & Extension Center 4 miles north of Lubbock on the Amarillo Highway.

Attracting area gin people will be demonstrations of cleaning machine-stripped cotton, green boll and stick removal, compliance with Occupational Safety and Health Act safety regulations, and modifying gin presses to produce 24-inch bales which can be compressed to universal density. In addition there will be a special presentation on motivation of gin employees.

Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, says, "These topics relate to every ginner's day-to-day operations and the field day activities should be of considerable value." PCG was among several organizations and individuals responsible for USDA establishing a ginning laboratory on the Plains to study problems peculiar to the ginning of stripper-harvested cottons and develop the technology to cope with those problems.

Gin Laboratory Director Roy Baker will report on work in conditioning and cleaning of stripped cottons, and Research Engineer Weldon Laird will discuss investigations in stick and green boll removal. Roy Childers, USDA Cotton Mechanization Specialist, will talk about methods, materials, costs and operational aspects of modifying gin press boxes to produce the narrower bale required for universal density compression.

The final presentation of the program will concern OSHA machinery guarding requirements which take effect with the 1975 season. Ken Chaffe, Cornwall and Stevens safety engineer, will conduct a walk-through inspection of the gin plant, pointing out machinery components on which OSHA will require safety equipment and areas not included in the proposed OSHA standards.

At noon during the all-day program, Dallas-based Texas Cotton Ginners Association will host a fried chicken and barbecue lunch.

vision 10 scouts are checking participating producers' fields for greenbugs, other pests, parasites, predators, and plant injury.

Each producer receives a written weekly report on the insect situation in each of his fields, says McIntyre. If survey records indicate that a field is approaching the economic injury level and the parasites are not sufficient to control the greenbug, then Latham consults with growers and recommends appropriate action.

"In general," McIntyre reports, "we have recommended the use of low rates which spare beneficial insects. Through the use of the insect scouting service we have successfully harmonized the use of chemical and natural controls to the immediate economic benefit of the grower."

In the long run, he suggests, the pest management approach yields further benefits in the prevention of resurgence of key pests such as the greenbug, fewer problems with secondary pests such as the banks grass mite, and the prevention of the development of insecticide resistant pest strains.

"This year's grower participation indicates that last year's program was a success," McIntyre concludes. Over 85 growers farming some 25,000 acres are participating in this year's program, a 25 percent increase in number of growers and a 30 percent increase in acreage.

Historic Anthrax ... Agricultural Miracles ... Maize Harvest Continuing ... Milk Production Down

THE OUTBREAK of anthrax in Falls County—which appears to be under control at this time—stimulated a little digging to find out about the disease. The Texas Department of Health, in one of its bulletins, speculated that Moses might have had anthrax in mind when he told Pharaoh that a "grievous murrain" would come on all cattle, horses, oxen and sheep in Egypt if Egyptians didn't stop oppressing the Israelites. It is known that anthrax has appeared world wide, that it will attack almost all animals, including man, but that it appears to prefer cattle and horses. Man and swine appear to have greater resistance to anthrax infection. Anthrax externally may appear to be sores or carbuncles. Internally, it may be mistaken for pneumonia or bloating in cattle. It is usually fatal to infected cattle in a very short time, and its germs may live for many months and be a source of danger in previously infested areas for years. The authorities say that anthrax should be suspected when animals die suddenly, especially in areas where the disease has been a problem previously. The great Louis Pasteur is responsible for developing a vaccine that can protect animals from anthrax.

AMONG THE miracles of agriculture are the increased yields made possible by new varieties developed in such crops as grain sorghums, rice, soybeans, etc. One of the most dramatic has been in sorghums (maize). Before 1956, yields of maize were seldom more than 1,000 pounds an acre. Then came the hybrids and yields rose to more than 2,000 pounds an acre; and eight or ten years ago, yields went to 3,000 pounds or more per acre. Now Texas experiment stations are working on twin-seed hybrids that may increase yields 10-20 per cent more. Work is being done to develop strains that are more resistant to drought, to disease, and to insects. Production had already made grain sorghums the Number 2 crop (behind cotton) in Texas, and sorghums played a prominent part in the development of feedlots, another development in agriculture during the second half of this Century.

HARVESTING of maize is underway, or complete, all the way from the Coast through the Blacklands, as hot, dry weather allows in most places. Drought on the High Plains delayed or prevented planting, and it appears that Texas' yields of maize this year may be below 1973. The estimate is that 6,600,000 acres were planted this year, compared to 8,100,000 last year. Acres in corn this year in Texas, however, is estimated at 980,000 acres, compared to 750,000 acres last year. Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says this is the largest acreage planted to corn in Texas since 1962.

Gardeners Get New Insight About Insects

Home gardeners who didn't emerge victorious in their battle with insects this year probably gained new insight into some of the problems faced by farmers. Even long-time gardeners and farmers are sometimes puzzled over insect behavior patterns. One frequently asked question is why a certain insect turns up in great numbers one year when it was hardly seen at all the previous year. A simple explanation is offered by New Mexico State University scientists as to insect dynamics:

No dinner at the captain's table

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 49, a wonderful man in all respects, and I love him dearly.

I am 43, but I'm told I look a lot younger. Not to brag, but I'm also attractive. Living in our apartment building is a handsome, 40-year-old Army captain. (He's a bachelor.) My husband travels a lot, and this bachelor told me if I ever got bored or lonely when my husband is away, I should call him and he will invite me over for a gourmet dinner. (He belongs to a gourmet club and loves to cook.)

So far I haven't taken him up on it, but I've thought about it. I've been a faithful wife all these years and have no intentions of being otherwise. I told my husband about this captain's invitation, and he said: "I don't like the idea. It's not that I don't trust you, but I wouldn't trust any man alone with a beautiful woman. Also, I don't want to give the neighbors anything to gossip about."

Abby, shouldn't a woman my age be allowed to do what she wants to do?

ON THE FENCE

DEAR ON: A woman of any age should be allowed to do what she wants to do. However, even though the captain's "gourmet dinner" is 100 per cent kosher, and he has a good conduct medal to match yours, if your husband doesn't like the idea, don't pursue it. If you're lonely in your husband's absence, get off the fence and go with a group. There's safety in numbers.

DEAR ABBY: I've often considered writing to you about this, but then I would think: "It's too silly!" Now, I've had it.

We share a duplex house with two of the warmest, kindest people in the world. They are always so nice. That's the trouble, they are TOO nice!

When the mister cuts his grass, he cuts ours, too. I know this is silly, but it bugs me. I LIKE to cut my own grass! I've told him not to bother, that I would do it in the evening, but then he says: "That's all right. I already have my lawn mower out."

Abby, I've gone out and started mowing my lawn, and he has the nerve to come over, shut my mower off and say: "Now, you go tend your baby, and let me do this." (They have no children and are quite a bit older than we are.)

Abby, I truly like this sweet old neighbor, but he is carrying a good deed too far. How can I tell him?

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

DEAR KEEP: Tell him that you WANT to cut your own grass because you NEED the exercise. Now what warm, kind, sweet old neighbor would deprive you of your exercise?

DEAR ABBY: A reader signed "Angry" asks: "Do I have a right to complain?"

Her question caused me to recall what the late William Ernest Hocking wrote in his Types of Philosophy:

"Anyone can complain, but to see precisely what is wrong is a gift; accurate diagnosis comes from a unique power of vision and indicates the likelihood of an equally unique capacity to remedy the fault."

Abby, you have both!

ARTHUR H. PRINCE

DEAR MR. PRINCE: I liked the quote, but jeepsers, what an extravagant compliment! Isn't there enough inflation in the world without adding another swelled head?
