

"For two years the four way stop light at the northeast corner of the square insured no accidents at that intersection. However, after changing the east-west traffic to caution light one and a half weeks ago, we have already had an accident there," was a statement made to the Hesperian Friday morning by Floydada mayor Parnell Powell.

Therefore, the light has been changed back to a four-way stop for all traffic. This means that the motorist reaching the intersection first continues first, after stopping for the red light.

"We just feel that the four-way stop light properly slows the traffic in this area of our city, as well as stopping accidents at this particular intersection," the mayor concluded.

218 Businesses In Floyd

NEW YORK, Apr. 19 - Floyd County appears to be a good place to have a business, judging from the number of them in operation in the local area.

According to the latest government figures, just released, there are more business establishments locally than in many communities of similar size.

The facts and figures are contained in a report issued by the U. S. Census Bureau covering every county in the country. It gives details on local industries, on the number of people they employ and on the size of their payrolls.

The data was compiled principally from tax reports submitted by employers last year to the Social Security Administration.

For Floyd County, the survey shows a total of 218 businesses that employ one or more people. This is exclusive of self-operated enterprises that have no employees.

Of this total, 137 have from 1 to 3 persons on their payrolls, 46 have from 4 to 7 and 26 from 8 to 19.

As in most sections of the nation, small and moderate-size firms predominate in the local area. For the most part, they have been holding their own despite the competition from big business.

Some 96 percent of them have fewer than 20 employees, the figures show. Elsewhere throughout the country, the average is 84 percent.

The report shows that Floyd County's commercial establishments provided gainful employment in the year for 1,157 men and women in jobs covered by Social Security.

Not included were self-employed people, farm workers, government employees, domestic workers and members of the armed forces.

Wages and salaries for the local work force have been rising steadily, bringing payrolls to a total of $6,092,000. Two years earlier, when a similar study was made, it was $5,556,000.

WHERE THERE'S a will, there's a way.

A VETERAN PLUMBER was trying to convince some vocational education students that plumbing in the old days was a lot tougher than it is today.

"You boys think you work hard?" he jeered. When I first started in this business they let us lay two lengths of pipe, and then they turned on the water. We had to keep ahead of it!"

IT WAS WITH REGRET that we accepted the resignation of Carolyn Fuqua. She has been our advertising manager and "composition ad gal" for some eight years. She was a dedicated employee...she was loyal, and a pleasant associate.

We wish her well in the new business endeavor.

NOW IF YOU ALL DON'T want your school taxes to suffer a tremendous increase, you better call Phil Cates and Ray Farabee and tell them you are against the Governor's plan of school financing. The least you could do is write them a letter...wouldn't hurt to let the Governor know also.

Of the four plans being considered, all give the teachers a salary raise...and this is okay.

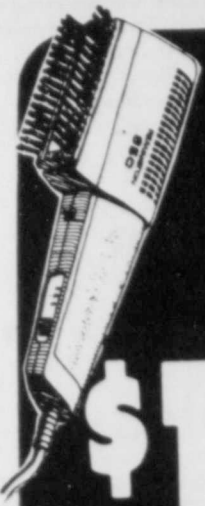

So, if the Governor's bill passes, and you start screaming...the first question we would ask, did you let the Governor, state senator and representative know how you felt on the issue.

It seems now, that the best plan would be for none of the plans to pass. If we continue with our present financial plan, the percentage of tax on the appraised property would only increase from 47% to 60%, according to Claude Estes' estimates.

President Vetoes Farm Bill

Budget Deficit Boost Warned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Thursday vetoed legislation to increase farm price supports on grounds that it would boost the federal budget deficit unnecessarily and dry up markets for farm products.

"Although the aim of this bill is laudable, its results would be costly not only to consumers and taxpayers but to American farmers in the long run," Ford said in a veto message to the House.

Ford said the bill "would not be in the public interest" and "is an example of increased non-essential spending" he has pledged to prevent if possible so that the federal budget deficit would not go beyond $60 billion in the 1976 fiscal year starting July 1.

Deficit Effect

The President said the farm bill could add as much as $1.8 billion to the federal deficit in fiscal 1976 and that it was representative of new spending programs under consideration by the Democratic-controlled Congress that together "could easily raise the federal deficit to an intolerable level of $100 billion."

"This must not happen," Ford said.

The President also said the bill "would undermine the successful market-oriented farm policy" pursued by the administration as well as Congress and that the legislation amounted to "a step backward toward previously discredited policies."

Raise Supports

Congress, after a five-month slide in farm prices from last October through March, passed the bill in an attempt to give farmers greater backstop assurance against a further price collapse. It would raise, for this year only, both crop support loans and "target" prices for wheat, feed grains and cotton. It also would raise soybean and dairy supports.

Under the target price system, growers get direct federal income subsidy payments if market prices slip below those targets. Crop support loans, which are set at lower levels, serve to undergird actual market prices.

Ford did not — as aides had indicated he might — move to soften the impact of his veto by permitting a smaller compromise increase in grain supports by administrative action.

But the President promised that "if unforeseen price deterioration requires action" in the future, he would order adjustments in price support loan rates for wheat, corn, soybeans and other feed grains.

"But it is our expectation that market prices for grains will remain well above loan rates and target prices in the coming year," he said.

In a second move to quiet farm critics of the veto, Ford promised "we are determined to do everything possible" to avoid any return to the export restraint programs the administration operated — despite bitter farm protests — twice in the past two years.

Access To Markets

"Our farm products must have unfettered access to world markets," he said. GOP congressional leaders had urged the free-export statement.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, at a news conference earlier at the White House, said the bill would lead in the long run to higher consumer food prices. Farm bloc leaders in Congress said the bill was needed to avert a possible rural depression and to help assure future heavy food production.

Chairman Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., of the House Agriculture Committee, said farm leaders probably would seek a House vote late next week to override the veto. He said the outcome would be close, and acknowledged "it's going to be a difficult uphill fight" to get the necessary two-thirds margin.

Prospects Dimmer

Ford, in his veto message, said "it is true" that the economic prospects for farmers "are not as bright this year as in the recent past," largely because farm production costs have gone up sharply while the recession has dampened demand for some products.

But he noted that the latest government report on Wednesday showed a reversal in a five-month decline in prices received by farmers and that the administration already had taken several steps designed to assist the farm community. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., noted, however, that even after the 4 per cent April increase reported Wednesday, farm prices still were 7 per cent below a year earlier while costs were 11 per cent higher.

"Hold Budget Line"

Ford said: "This administration is determined to act in support of the American farmer and his best interest. It will not act to distort his market. We must hold the budget line if we are all to enjoy the benefits of a prosperous, stable, non-inflationary economy."

Many farmers already "are well into their planting season," the President said, and they clearly made their plans without depending on the provisions of the farm bill.

Beyond that, "in the long haul, this bill would lead to constraints on production and result in loss of jobs in food-related industries," he said. "It would induce farmers to grow more cotton — already in surplus — and less soybeans needed for food."

Earlier Butz told reporters

Cotton Gets Nod For Alaska

NEW YORK—Contractors building the trans-Alaska pipeline rate 100 per cent cotton fabrics as the best protective covers in extreme arctic weather.

Spokesmen for the Alyeska Pipeline Service Company indicate that industrial cotton canvas is the most nearly perfect fabric for the rugged conditions facing men and machines in building work camps and roads and laying the pipeline.

J. Nicholas Hahn, vice president for sales-marketing at Cotton Incorporated, said some $50 million worth of fabric will go into the Alaskan pipeline project.

Cotton Incorporated is the fiber company of U.S. cotton producers, with marketing operations in New York City and a research center in Raleigh, N.C.

Hahn said project contractors need fabrics which are serviceable at temperatures lower than 50 degrees F below zero, but which can also withstand high temperatures that would cause nylon and polyester to shrink or melt.

"Plastic coated synthetic fabrics don't work," said Hahn. "They become stiff when cold-but will melt, or shrink, if a man leans against a hot tractor motor or stands too close to a space heater to warm his body."

"On the other hand, untreated 100 per cent cotton duck works very well. It remains flexible-and it can be made flame-retardant if needed for extra protection."

Hahn said cotton demonstrates inherently well-balanced properties. But synthetics are often designed to achieve a specific quality. When that one quality is achieved, they often suffer serious shortcomings in other properties.

"Synthetics accumulate high static electricity charges. They soil easily, and when subjected to extremes of temperature, they lose dimensional stability."

The potential market for cotton in the Alaskan pipeline project could total as many as 45,000 bales, Hahn said.

When completed, the trans-Alaska pipeline will move 1.2 million barrels of oil a day from Prudhoe Bay on the Alaskan North Slope to Valdez, a tanker terminal 800 miles south on the Gulf of Alaska.

Farm-facts

Production Up, Price Output Declines... Citrus Harvest Ends.

WHEAT HARVEST for 1975 is at hand. The crop will be the largest in 20 years. The 1975 forecast of 140 million bushels was made 20 per cent higher than the Dec. 1 1974 puny crop of only 115 million bushels.

The 1975 harvest usually occurs in South Texas. Elsewhere, wheat prospects are regarded as good to excellent. The 1976 national wheat allotment has been increased from 1.2 billion acres to 1.4 billion acres, up 8.1 million acres from 1974.

Wheat does not mean that that is the only crop to be planted to wheat. The allotment is for making payments to wheat producers. If wheat prices fall below the established price, growers qualify for disaster payments. Two programs, growers are eligible for an allotment of acres.

Wheat production is computed on the basis of a national yield of 33.1 bushels per acre and a national utilization (less imports) for the 1976-77 crop of 2.04 billion bushels. Domestic use is 1.4 billion bushels, exports at 1.2 billion bushels at one million bushels.

Wheat production increase in the 1976 allotment is a substantial improvement in the export 1975 allotment was established.

YOU WANT IT OFFICIAL, here are the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting 1974 livestock prices compared to 1973. Livestock prices for 1974 are below 1973.

Wheat production was up nine per cent for all meat and calf production was up 10 per cent; hog and sheep production were down six and 25 per cent respectively.

Wheat price for cattle in Texas in 1974 was $34.54 in 1973. Calf prices averaged $33.70 and $57.70 in 1973.

A message of hope was held out to High Plains cotton producers and others in the area cotton industry by Donald Johnson at the annual meeting of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. in Lubbock recently.

Johnson, PCG Executive Vice President, declining to dwell on the poor 1974 crop, today's low cotton prices and worsening chances for substantial improvement in government programs for 1975, concentrated his remarks on the benefits he believes will accrue to High Plains people "a little farther down the road" from PCG research and promotion of open-end spinning.

"Legislative work is vital for the near term," he said, "but as the years go by I become more and more convinced that our future in the High Plains cotton industry will be dependent on markets, not government programs."

Noting that PCG and other research continues to show that the open-end spinning system utilizes Plains-type cottons much more effectively and efficiently than does ring spinning, and that the consensus is that some 30% of the ring spinning machines in the world will be replaced by open-end machines as equipment becomes available, he said "I believe the open-end spinning system holds greater promise for bigger and better markets for High Plains cotton than anything ever to occur in the history of High Plains cotton production."

He continued, "I think I can safely speak for the Board of Directors in saying that PCG will continue to the forefront of the research and development efforts which will be necessary to full realization of that promise."

As an example of the added profit potential available to open-end spinners, Johnson said the system could make yarn suitable for such big market items as blue jeans, using one inch or shorter cottons in the low micronaire ranges, while yarn for the same end use on the ring spinning system would need 1-1/16 inch cotton with premium mike.

This translates into a saving of several cents per pound on raw material cost which, coupled with three to five times greater productivity on the open-end machines, gives the open-end mill a hands down advantage over the ring spinning mill in terms of profit potential, he said.

That profit potential is moving the textile world in the direction of open-end spinning, Johnson continued, "and it can be enhanced even more by locating mills in the High Plains area where the raw fiber is grown and in the State where more and more garment manufacturers are locating."

Texas now is the No. 2 state in garment manufacturing, exceeded only by New York.

While Johnson spoke in general terms of benefits to High Plains cotton from increased usage by open-end mills, another speaker at the meeting was more specific. Hal Brockmann, Cotton Incorporated's Vice President for Textile Research and Development, told the audience the day would come when low micronaire cotton will sell at a premium above the prices paid for the currently favored 3.5 to 4.9 micronaire range.

Soil Conservation Began April 27, 1935

Forty years ago, the country faced tremendous problems brought about by erosion, floods, land damage, and violent dust storms.

On April 27, 1935, a new agency, the Soil Conservation Service, was created to combat the forces that threatened to lay waste to millions of acres of cropland. The Soil Conservation Service began working with landowners by demonstrating means of erosion control, but it became apparent that really effective conservation work was done better when landowners led the job themselves.

In 1937, President Roosevelt recommended that each state legislature enact laws permitting landowners and land occupiers to form units to be called Soil Conservation Districts. Relying to the call, all the states, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, enacted laws permitting formation of districts.

Soil and Water Conservation Districts set out to focus attention on land and water problems on all privately-owned land, develop annual and long-range programs designed to solve the problems, and to enlist all the appropriate help available from public and private sources.

Now, over 3,000 conservation districts, covering 97 percent of all privately-owned lands, have formed in mutual concern to protect, conserve, and improve the world we live in.

The principal source of technical assistance to the districts is the Soil Conservation Service. SCS provides a district conservationist for each district to help carry out conservation programs.

The scope of the Soil Conservation Service program has expanded since establishment 40 years ago.

You Can Go To College In Floydada

College, vocational and hobby classes will be organized for Floydada area people by the staff of South Plains Junior College Regional Occupation Center.

Leon Harris, of the Center, met with the local steering committee recently. "Advanced education of the future will not be tied to huge, sprawling, expensive college campuses," he said. "The trend over the nation is to utilize a central administration office and send teachers out to communities on request. Instead of spending local tax money building Floydada a community college, why not let an existing college pay your school a fee for recycling your buildings at night and during summers?"

The Bicentennial Committee of the Floyd County Historical Museum initiated the interest survey to determine which courses are preferred. The Floydada High School Student Council distributed the questionnaire throughout the schools this week.

Vocational and college courses are open to anyone age seventeen years and older. Hobby courses may be taken by any age group and only twelve people are required to start a class. College credit course grades are transferable to other colleges, and work previously completed at other colleges will be accepted for class admission here. Two years of college work can be completed in the program.

College credit course fees will be: 3 hours - $58; 6 hours - $76; 9 hours - 105; and 12 hours - $140.

Hobby courses are lower priced, depending on the subject. These prices do not include books or fees, only tuition. Grants and loans are available to students of family income up to $15,000 adjusted income. Mr. Harris urges all students to apply for Basic Educational Opportunity Grants, as over $2 billion dollars in federal money for Texas students was turned back to the federal government last year because no one bothered to apply for it. Adults as well as teenagers may qualify for grants.

Copies of the subject survey may be acquired at the museum. Results of the survey will be tallied May 12. Prospective students should indicate whether they prefer high school, college, vocational or hobby classes and give their name and address before returning the paper to a school or the museum. Everyone in the Floydada area is invited to participate. Classes will begin this summer.

Interested people may call the museum at 983-2415 or the Community Center - 983-3134.

Kitty Castro Coming To Floydada First Baptist

Among the attractions at Floydada First Baptist Church on May 18th, which is "Double Day" at the church, will be Mrs. Kitty Castro and "Danny Jose." Mrs. Castro and "Danny Jose" will be leading the program for the children's division of the Sunday School. The children's division includes grades 1 through 6.

Kitty Castro is certainly no stranger to Floydada. She is the wife of singing evangelist Lee Castro of Wichita Falls. Both Lee and performed in this same capacity in last year's Double Day program.

Another repeat attraction that proved to be very popular last year will be a "baby animal fair" prepared especially for the preschoolers, although it will be impossible to eliminate the adults. This will be prepared in an area behind the church building by some of the men of the church. The men who will be preparing this display are E. D. Morgan, Larry Barbee, Jim Vickers, and Gene Lowrance. Other programs including a puppet program are being planned for the preschool group.

These attractions along with others in other departments are intended to add much to this great day of Christian fellowship and worship.

Come out for GOD

A MAN WHO IS NOT ALONE

Prayer has always been a mystery. But through the centuries millions have turned to it, believed in it, and been strengthened by it.

Prayer doesn't solve our problems . . . it helps us find right solutions. It doesn't make trouble go away . . . it gives us courage to face our trials. Prayer is never a "safe conduct" through the lines of danger . . . it simply gives a man the bold assurance that he is not alone in his crucial hour.

You don't have to go to church in order to pray. You do have to be with God.

Worship and Christian education have long been the mainstays of continuous communication with God. Families who build their home and happiness on a spiritual foundation find Sundays in church the natural expression of their faith and fervor.

A man who cherishes the bold assurance that he is not alone makes being with God a way of life—not a last resort.

THE CALENDAR needs to be reorganized, I have decided. It doesn't make much sense, and certainly the same old calendar setup we've used for years doesn't fit modern living very well.

First off, I'd do away with all this confusion about some months being 30 days, some 31 and one being whacked off at 28. All months would be exactly four weeks, but there would be just 11 months and each week should be eight days.

The eight days should be set up thusly: Sunday, Twoday, Threeday, Meeting Day, Fourday, Fiveday, Sixday and Saturday. This would be a nice eight-day week, renaming all except Sunday and Saturday, which I like too well to do away with. It does away with Monday, which is useless, and throws in that extra day for meetings. It would be unlawful to have any kind of meeting involving anything other than recreational activities on any day except Meeting Day. Those of us who look gloomily at our weekly appointment list and discover every night is taken up for the next two weeks have long realized the need for a day every week to just have meetings. Nobody would work that day; the whole day would be taken up by meetings, and no meeting would be permitted to go longer than an hour and a half.

The months would be Oneuary, Twouary, and so on, and 11 of them would mean 352 days per year. Then there would be a 13-day Nothing Period in which nobody would do anything (already we have people all around us training for this time). This would make the calendar come out right at 365 days. We possibly could have the New Year holiday at this time, along with all the football bowl games. We could even have a new one, called the Nothing Bowl.

Political activity also could be confined to the Nothing Period, and any mention of politics at any other time during the year would be punishable by death or by three hours of listening to Alice Cooper records, according to the choice of the guilty party.

BIG MOMMA on Murry St. says her 8-year-old daughter's birthday party was a tremendous success. "Twenty-seven out of a possible 18 showed up."

May Is Mental Health Month

"This bell shall ring out hope for the mentally ill and victory over mental illness." These words are inscribed on the Mental Health Bell, the symbol of the Mental Health Association.

During May, a neighbor will be ringing your doorbell to ask you to support mental health.

Mrs. W. S. Mangold of Lockney will lead the campaign in her town.

The bell symbol represents an actual bell, which was cast in 1953 from chains and handcuffs and other metal restraints formerly used to bind mental patients. Within the symbol, there is also a group of people standing with hands joined, forming an unbroken circle around the bell. The circle of people suggests the power of different individuals to change conditions. The people of Lockney will do just that when they unite in support on behalf of the mentally ill during May, Mental Health Month.

Hearings On Natural Gas For Irrigation Scheduled

LUBBOCK—Hearings to determine the future of natural gas for irrigation fuel will be held soon in three southwestern U.S. cities, although observers predict the issue will ultimately be decided by the Supreme Court.

The three sessions, each expected to last three days, will be held in Lubbock, Texas, Albuquerque, N.M. and Phoenix, Ariz.

There will be no curtailment of natural gas for irrigation until the hearings are over and the initial decision is reached by an administrative law judge, according to a spokesman in the Washington office of Sen. John Tower of Texas. The future of natural gas as a farm fuel has been in question since the Federal Power Commission issued a ruling last December which lowered the use of natural gas for agriculture from second to third priority.

Although that decision applied only to customers of El Paso Natural Gas Company, observers believe the action will eventually result in curtailment of natural gas as a farm fuel throughout the United States.

Spokesmen for agriculture feel such curtailment would have a devastating effect on production of food and fiber.

Officers and staff of Grain Sorghum Producers Association, headquartered in Lubbock, have worked full time since the December ruling to block the curtailment and have sought to move the hearings from Washington to the Southwest where farmers will be hardest hit by loss of natural gas.

Working with the High Plains Gas Users Association and Southwest Consumers Association, GSPA spokesmen have continually stressed the technical and economic impossibility of converting irrigation to alternate fuel sources.

GSPA vice president Mabry Foreman of Felt, Okla. and research director Jack King have met regularly with legislators in Washington, personnel of the FPC, representatives of the Federal Energy Agency and U.S. Department of Agriculture, attempting to demonstrate the impossibility of converting commonly used automotive irrigation engines from natural gas to gasoline or propane.

A study by Dr. James Osborn of Texas Tech University indicates conversion to gasoline would increase hourly fuel costs 320 percent for 150 h.p. engine. Conversion to propane, according to this study would increase hourly costs 282 percent.

The annual cost of a 3,000 hour irrigation season on the same 150 h.p. engine would jump from $3,570 for natural gas to $15,000 for gasoline and $13,650 for propane, according to the study.

Old-Timers With Interesting Stories

Sought For Bicentennial Project

As part of a bicentennial effort, the Governor's Committee on Aging is seeking elderly people who have interesting stories to tell about growing up in Texas. They might be persons who are knowledgeable in old-time skills or handicrafts—a blacksmith, a glassblower, a bootmaker, a cooper. Or they might be persons who were involved in building Texas' industries—lumber, oil, cotton, cattle, etc. The only requirements are that they are at least 60 years old and grew up in Texas.

We will select between 60 and 100 people to interview on tape. Feature stories will be written and released to local newspapers. The tapes will become part of an oral history collection. The stories and photographs will be included in a bicentennial booklet. From the interviews about a dozen to feature in a 30 minute program from all walks of life, and from as varied people all over the State. Do you know of people who might make good feature material? Attached is an information form that you can send.

Thank you for your help. We are looking for exciting bicentennial year.

FLOYD PHILOSOPHER

Talks About Science, Drinking Water
Helicopters And Lots Of Stuff

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm discusses drinking water this week, among other things.

Dear editor:

The trouble with scientists is that sometimes some of them don't have enough to do and consequently come up with things that are preposterous, even if they can prove them scientifically.

For example, government scientists have been examining the drinking water in the United States and have announced that in 79 major cities the water is highly questionable, if not possibly dangerous. At the same time, they don't recommend that the people stop drinking it.

This is what I call a scientific fact that goes nowhere. It reminds me of the graduate student who proved, after a nation-wide survey, and got his Ph.D degree for it, that there are 3 per cent more telephone poles on the left side of highways than the right side, thus proving scientifically that if you have to swerve to miss an on-coming car, your chances of hitting a telephone pole are 3 per cent less if you swerve to the right. Be sure to bear that in mind. Unless you're driving on a stretch of highway where all the poles are on the right side. In fact, come to think of it, the safest way would be to check all the telephone poles before you start out on a trip. There must be some bureau in Washington, or will be when the government hears of this need, that'll check this for you by helicopter. If you ask where we're going to get that many helicopters, I figure the South Vietnamese will return all those thousands we gave them and which they never did figure out any use for. (I can hear President Thieu saying now, "You double-crossed us. You gave us all those helicopters and airplanes but didn't keep any Americans over here to fly them for us.")

How'd I get off on all this when I started out talking about scientists and drinking water? There must be a connection there somewhere but I can't put my finger on it right now. Maybe it was to tell you again about a man I know who had his water well tested, a well he'd been drinking out of satisfactorily for 30 years. The Health Department scientifically tested the water and reported it was "Contaminated, un-fit for human consumption."

"That sure taught me a lesson," the man said, gulping down a glass of water to calm his nerves. "I'll never have that well tested again."

yours faithfully,
J.A.

CONSERVATION DISTRICT HAS FIVE SUPERVISORS

Typically, a conservation district has five supervisors, elected by local landowners. The supervisors work with the Soil Conservation Service District conservationist and other agencies in helping the landowner apply conservation measures on his land.

More than two million landowners are voluntarily planning and applying conservation measures in local soil and water conservation districts. They are helping to control erosion, improve water supplies, prevent floods, curtail pollution, and develop recreational areas.

The National Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts (NACD), organized by district leaders in 1946, is the means by which the districts make their cause known and voice heard.

George R. Bagley, cotton farmer and real estate developer of St. Joseph, Louisiana, is president of the NACD.

"This land is more than a place to live," Bagley said. "It holds our future. How well we treat it will ultimately determine how well we live."

"Conservation and wise development of our natural resources have never been more important. Soil, water, forests, fish and wildlife, open space, and natural beauty are threatened by misuse and waste. Our total environment is under pressure."

"But more than agriculture is involved. Many district programs are directed toward meeting problems of suburban expansion. Districts are cooperating in site location, sediment control, beautification, economic development, and land use planning," Bagley continued.

MAC Board Of Directors To Meet

Board of Directors of Massie Activity Center will meet Monday night, May 5, at 8 o'clock in the MAC Centers. All directors are urged to be present.

Ranching Heritage Center To Be Reopened On May 4

Texas Tech's Ranching Heritage Center — formerly the Ranch Headquarters — will be open for Sunday visitors beginning May 4. Visiting hours are from 2 to 4:30 p.m. The Sunday visiting hours will be in effect through October. For the first time this year, patrons will be taken on guided tours. A new program will serve weekday visitors. There will be two tours a day, each for 20 persons, served on a first-come, first-served basis. The first tour will start at 10 a.m. and the second at 1:30 p.m.

Organizations may make special arrangements for tours. The center authentically depicts the history of ranching in America's West, through the restoration and furnishing of notable ranch structures which have been moved to the site at The Museum of Texas Tech University at 4th Street and Indiana Avenue.

More than 15,000 toured the center last year.

This May, Mental Health Month, a neighbor will be coming to your door for a contribution for the mentally and emotionally disturbed.

Is the cause so important? Look at the facts, then you decide. One out of 10 people will need psychiatric help sometime in their life.

50 percent of all hospital beds in this country are occupied by people with mental or emotional complications.

Children are as likely to have emotional problems as adults.

Research is helping to solve the mysteries of mental illness, and you can help with your donation to the Mental Health Association.
