LIEUT. FRANK CAVENDER

Word reached our little city last Saturday to the effect that Lieutenant Frank Cavender had died, after a three day illness of pneumonia. Lieut. The remains passed through our city Monday evening on 102, in charge of a fellow Officer from the camp, Mr. Cavender taking the train here. The remains were carried to the old home at Shiloh, Texas, where interment took place. Lieut. Cavender was the youngest of the four boys, being 26 years of age when the end came. He is survived by his father, I. H. Cavender, Sabinal and three brothers, Dr. J. M. Cavender of Sabinal; W. T. Cavender, Miami, Arizona, and M. A. Cavender of this city. ## THE WILD BORDER

We have been under the impression that people of the United States were educated to the fact that the Border between United States and Mexico was very much civilized and not as wild as some movies and stories are made to make the people believe we are wild and hard-boiled. We can show some of the finest buildings and 20th Century improvements that can equal any town in the country. Every now and then we run across someone that has the idea we are wild and are still governed by "Judge 45" and we came across an article from a paper right in the State of Texas that probably the writer has never been south of Waco nor any farther west than Fort Worth. Below is the article relating the country the new Methodist Preacher for Sanderson is coming to, taken from the Bynum Weekly News.

"We are about to lose brother Bell the Methodist preacher, according to the conversation that we heard in front of the Green Fly restaurant Tuesday. They say he is going over in Terrell county to mingle with the caballeros and señoritas on the border of Mexico. We wish you plenty of luck in that wild country, brother Bell."

J. E. MacAlmont left Thursday evening for New Orleans to his uncle. Due to Mr. MacAlmont's physical condition W. A. Cochran went with him as far as New Orleans. Mrs. MacAlmont and children will join him the first of next week and they will go to Chester, West Virginia to visit relatives.

The words "Merry Christmas 1923" appear at the top and the double barred cross, the emblem of the nation-wide fight against tuberculosis, is at the sides.

BUSINESS IS GOOD THROUGHOUT STATE

Farmers Continue to Market Their Cotton as Rapidly As Picked.

Houston, Tex.—Cotton picking has progressed rapidly throughout the last week, the third consecutive one of uninterrupted fair weather in most parts of the state. The majority of the crop is reported gathered in all sections except West Texas, and receipts are rapidly increasing there. Farmers continue to market their cotton almost as rapidly as it is picked and ginned because of the satisfactory prices paid. Cotton seed is selling around $40 a ton.

Gins which have been running day and night in many sections of Texas for the last month are reported slackening up, most of the crop has been ginned. Receipts at all points are far in advance of last year, due to cotton opening earlier this season because of the hot dry summer. Most sections report a heavier crop than last year.

Continued improvement in business conditions is reported throughout Texas. The cotton crop, much larger than first anticipated and raised perhaps at less cost than for many years, is being marketed at prices which bring a profit for the farmer and prosperity for all.

Merchants report a steady increase in sales and many in the smaller towns are doing a larger volume of business in a week than they formerly did in a month. Banks show a large increase in deposits and a corresponding decrease in outstanding loans. Increased building activity is also reported.

Farmers are sowing grain in many parts of the state and the acreage promises to be good this year. Recent rains throughout the state have provided excellent season for fall sowing.

Increasing optimism is evident throughout Texas, and the consensus of opinion is that business this fall will be the best since 1919.

Walton Lifts Martial Law in Proclamation

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Martial law, in effect throughout Oklahoma since September 15, was lifted by Governor J. C. Walton in a proclamation made public Thursday.

The proclamation returns full authority to all civil officers. The text of the order follows: "1. The further operation of martial law throughout the State of Oklahoma, established by the proclamation issued by J. C. Walton, governor of the State of Oklahoma, on September 15, 1923, is hereby finally suspended.

"2. The civil authorities throughout the state are by this order advised that all military courts have been closed and all troops returned to their home stations and the military regulations made and promulgated in pursuance of the martial law proclamation and its provisions are hereby withdrawn and abrogated, and the civil authorities throughout the state are charged as formerly with the full and complete enforcement of civil and criminal laws of the commonwealth."

Walton Removes Two Officers.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Aldrich Blake, the executive counselor, and Dr. E. T. Bynum, State bank commissioner, were removed from office Friday by Governor J. C. Walton. Dr. Bynum's administration has been "entirely unsatisfactory," the executive declared in a communication to the bank commissioner. No explanation was given of Blake's removal.

Trust Companies Exempt.

Austin, Tex.—Trust companies may be organized in Texas without complying with general banking laws or obtaining bank charters, the attorney general's department ruled Friday in an opinion delivered to Bank Commissioner J. L. Chaumman. The question had been raised in connection with certain proposed corporations.

El Paso Gets Labor Convention.

Portland, Ore.—Samuel Gompers, re-elected unanimously as president of the American Federation of Labor just before adjournment of the 43rd annual convention Friday. The convention came to an exciting close in a sharp contest for the next convention, in which El Paso, Tex., won over Detroit, Mich., 14,588 to 12,584.

Five Bond Issues Carry.

Marshall, Tex.—Marshall voted for the bond issue of $410,000 by a light vote of over two to one as follows: Schools, for $49, against 276; streets, for $61, against 256; water, for $71, against 249; sewerage, for $64, against 256; sidewalks, for $59, against 276.

Looney Named Legal Examiner.

Austin, Tex.—Ben F. Looney of Greenville, former state attorney general, Thursday was named by the supreme court a member of the state board of legal examiners, succeeding A. N. Corrigan of Wichita Falls, who has resigned.

Cotton Ginnings at Center.

Center, Tex.—There were 6936 bales of cotton ginned in Shelby County up until September 35 as compared to 7224 for the same period of last year.

Texas News

Practically all of the sulphur produced in Texas comes from Freeport and Hoskins Mound, Brazoria County, in the sulphur country. An expenditure of more than $10,000,000 is represented in the mining of sulphur at those places.

Matagorda County claims to be the largest cattle county in the nation. Government statistics give to the county this honor with a grand total of 138,509, 34,800 of the total being Indian Brahmas, whose value is easily double that of native stock.

The highways which have been built in Texas up to the present time cover a wide variety of types, beginning with the graded earth roads, and include sand clay, caliche, gravel, iron ore, shell, bituminous surface treated, asphalt-topped, concrete and brick roads.

According to the tax rolls for 1923, the values of Houston County increased $263,953 over last year. The values for 1923 are $5,035,920, as against $4,769,937 for 1922.

Cotton picking in Lampasas County is in the last stages, and no top crop will mature in time. So far the public weigher reports 2850 bales weighed, not including round bales, of which 2310 bales were ginned.

Some of the largest and prettiest nurseries to be found in the state are located in and around Dickinson, between Houston and Galveston. Virtually every variety of fruit, shade and ornamental tree is propagated, and flowers and ornamental plants without end.

Two issues of Wilson County road bonds, one for $214,000 road district No. 1 and the other for $100,000 road district No. 3, bearing 5 1/2 per cent and maturing serially, have been approved by the attorney general's department and registered in the comptroller's department.

Rosenberg is now expecting to produce a million-dollar cotton crop this year. The gins have already turned out over 5000 bales, and while it is thought that the larger part of the crop has been picked, the gins are still running full time and are handling over 100 bales per day.

An additional allotment of $121,800 state and federal aid has been granted to Hidalgo county. This additional aid is for the purpose of bettering the type of surfacing on federal aid project No. 367, which begins at Marmie and extends westward to the Starr county line.

"Furthering the cause of education, and especially inculcating the truths of Southern history, will feature the program of the United Daughters of the Confederacy at their twenty-seventh annual state convention, which will be held at Belton, October 23-25," announces Mrs. Annie Grace Drake, state director of publicity, from Rockdale.

That the new fire escape law enacted by the thirty-eighth legislature is to be enforced rigidly and impartially, is the announcement of State Fire Marshal George T. Tilley, in whose hands administration of this law has been placed. There was a fire escape law on the statute books several years ago, but this law was held inoperative by the court of criminal appeals.

Lumbering outranks agriculture in importance in Jasper County, but farmers are improving their lands and their methods so that farm products are increasing in value yearly. With the clearing of land of valuable timber, more farmers are needed to make use of all available and tillable acreage in the county. County Agent S. W. Monroe reports. Farms are being terraced to preserve the richness of the soil and crop rotation is practiced to add to its fertility.

September broke all records for the port of Houston, a total tonnage of 251,368 going through the port. The freight was valued at more than $30,000,000. The month's record brings the year's total to 2,944,679 tons, valued at $121,612,419, for nine months. This is an increase of 65 per cent over the first nine months of last year and 137 per cent increase over the first nine months of 1921.

Although Liberty County has one of the richest oil fields on the Gulf coast at Hull, agriculture is retaining its importance and farmers are receiving sufficient revenue above their expenses to put them in good shape. Cotton will average from one-third to two-thirds of a bale to the acre this year on an average 50 per cent greater than that of last year. Corn will yield about twenty-five bushels to the acre and sweet potatoes about 200 bushels to the acre. The rice yield is estimated at about ten sacks to the acre. The Hull oil field was brought in first in 1919. Its production since that time has been several million barrels each year.

Farmers in Grimes County, of which Navasota is the county seat, will reap the benefit of crops which are the best in years, and their condition will be improved considerably. They have been hard hit for several years with crop failures, flood, poor prices, etc., but last year's crop, while fair, put them on their feet. This year's crop will give many a surplus for improvement in farm buildings and equipment and additions to live stock. Cotton is the leading crop of the county and receipts to date are nearly double what they were last year.

MAYOR THOMASON PRAISES TANLAC

Judge George Washington Thomason, Mayor of Tallant City, Ala., and one of the most highly respected citizens of the state, is still another man of prominence and unimpeachable integrity to give his unqualified endorsement to Tanlac.

"Chronic indigestion brought me to the verge of a general breakdown three years ago and nothing seemed to afford much relief," said Judge Thomason. "I could hardly eat enough to keep going, and became so weak and nervous I could hardly attend to my duties.

"Finally I started on Tanlac and six bottles fixed me up so fine that I felt ten years younger, and my good health still remains with me."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

In a small town righteousness prevails, largely because the neighbors' eagle eye prevails.

Easy Way to Make Home Improvements.

Almost every man likes to do little jobs of building, particularly when by doing them he can make permanent, labor-saving improvements around his home.

If you have been wishing for a sidewalk that will keep the house clean and the feet dry—non-rub steps and porch floors, ornamental gateposts—any one of dozens of improvements, you will be interested to know that you can now obtain complete directions free of cost.

The best concrete construction experience has been drawn upon to provide these directions. You will find everything you need to know about small jobs—how much cement to use, how to mix the concrete, what tools to use, and all the rest.

A request to the Portland Cement Association, 111 West Washington Street, Chicago, will bring this free booklet, "Concrete Around the Home," by return mail.—Advertisement.

Unpaid Revenue State Warrants Total $3,370,515

Austin, Tex.—Outstanding unpaid revenue warrants of the State of Texas as on October 1, 1923, amounted to $3,370,515, according to a tabulation made this week by the comptroller's department. This clearly indicates that the deficit in the state treasury will reach $5,000,000 by the first of next January.

From that time, however, the deficit will begin to decrease because of tax collections and by the first of next March sufficient tax remittances will have been received to wipe out the deficit and once more place the state on a cash basis, it is said. The state is not expected, however to remain on a cash basis for more than three months when it will again begin operating on a deficit.

Tax collections from January 1 to March 1, is estimated in the treasury department to reach $16,000,000, all of which goes to the credit of general revenue. This will be more than sufficient to clear all outstanding debts of the state at that time.

Want Institutions Clothed By Prisoners

Austin, Tex.—A survey of the house-keeping needs of state institutions in an effort to find suitable and profitable employment for all the inmates of our penal institutions, is what is taking place through the work of the Texas committee on prisons and prisoners.

The preliminary report of the industrial survey staff presented by this committee indicates, according to Mrs. Elizabeth M. Speer, the executive secretary, that Texas, through a more thorough and systematic use of prison labor, could produce a much larger proportion of the needed supplies for all of the state-supported institutions. Mrs. Speer further states that a study of the purchase records of the state of Texas for the year 1922 reveals some interesting facts.

One of the necessities for all the wards of the state is shoes. Already the penitentiary is supplying its own needs. Why not enlarge this industry so as to teach a useful trade and give employment to additional men and supply all the state institutions? Mrs. Speer asks. Virginia has strikingly demonstrated the practicability of this plan, and not only supplies her own institutions with shoes, but this year sold a substantial surplus of her product to the state of New Jersey for her state institutions.

Sewing is primarily a woman's work and men should not be employed in this industry, except in branches for which women are physically unfit. Mrs. Speer said. Women prisoners at Goree farm are already making some of the clothing for the penal institutions, and it is not unreasonable to believe that with instruction, training and modern equipment they could practically supply not only the prison, but the entire institutional population of the state with clothing. This would not only effect a substantial saving to the state, but would release the prisoners with a useful trade and vocation at their command.

Colonel Gives Remarkable Denouement to His Story That Was Interrupted by The Chief.

The colonel had only two types of stories, one concerning his amorous adventures, the other his adventures while tiger shooting. It was night in the mess and the colonel, as was his wont, began to tell an exciting story of an encounter with a wounded tigress which sprang at him before he could reload and bore him to the ground. At the critical moment an orderly entered to report that the G. O. C. wished to speak to the colonel on the telephone, and the colonel was compelled to break off abruptly.

He was absent for ten minutes and on his return had forgotten which of his favorite stories he had been telling.

New York—Cast permanently. It would seem, in heroic mood, Casey Stengel, "Casey the Immortal," smashed the New York Giants to victory with a home run drive Friday for the second time in three days of record-breaking world series strife with the Yankees. Lashed into the right field bleachers of the Yankee Stadium in the seventh inning, Stengel's blow broke up a tense, thrilling hurling duel between Art Nehf, southpaw star of the Giants, and Sad Sam Jones of the Yankees, and gave the world champions their solitary but sufficient margin in a brilliant 1 to 0 triumph.

Yanks Win Second Game.

New York—Ibabe Ruth crossed with mighty tread Thursday the threshold of world series glory that has been barred to him for two years. Driving out two thundering home run thrusters in successive innings, a feat unparalleled in world series baseball history, Ruth was the dynamo in the powerful attack that enabled the New York Yankees to turn the tables on the Giants, capture the second game of the series by a score of 4 to 2 and square the count with the world's titleholders in the 1923 struggle for diamond supremacy.

Giants Win Opener.

New York—Swinging his bat in that fabled setting of the diamond—the ninth inning, with the score tied, two out and the count "two and three"—Casey Stengel blasted his way into baseball's hall of fame Wednesday with a home run drive that gave the New York Giants a spectacular victory over the Yankees, 5 to 4, in the opening clash of the 1923 world series.

Essential to Profitable Farming

The Utility Express Truck $550 Chassis Only f. o. b. Flint, Mich. Fits any Standard Truck Body

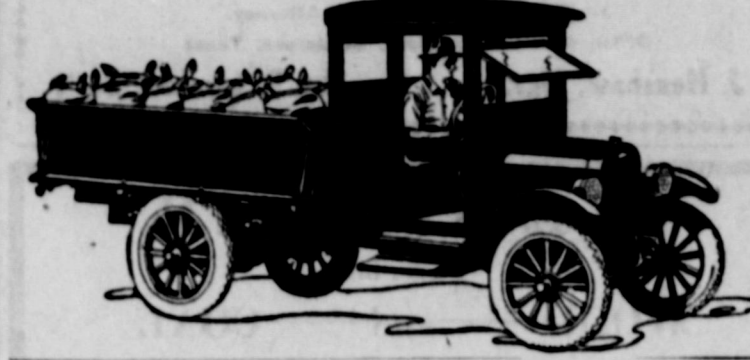

No business can succeed unless its product is profitably sold. Most farms have a fine production department but no sales department. They grow crops and stock bought by buyers who set the price.

One of the chief reasons for this unprofitable situation is the average farmer's poor facilities for moving his crops or stock to the place where he can sell or ship to the best advantage. Because of the time and expense of horse delivery millions of dollars worth of produce spoils annually on American farms. The saving of this waste would, in many cases, change a losing farm to a money-maker.

This low-priced, high-grade, reliable truck was designed as a money-saver and money-maker for farmers and business houses needing fast low-cost haulage of heavy or bulky goods. It fits any standard type of truck body. Ask any Chevrolet dealer for price of the style of body you require.

Why the Doctor asks: "Do you drink coffee?"

If you are troubled with headaches, insomnia, indigestion, or sluggishness of the liver or bowels, probably one of the first questions your doctor asks is, "Do you drink coffee?"

He knows, better than anyone else, that the drug, caffeine, present in coffee, tends to irritate the nervous system and is a frequent cause of disturbance to health.

If coffee causes trouble, and you value health, stop coffee and drink Postum.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage—absolutely free from caffeine or any other drug. It has a delicious flavor, that many people prefer to coffee.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

CHAPTER XV—Continued.

Together they descended the stairs and passed out to the waiting car. The Russian was shaking with rage. The hotel servants surrounded them. A cry hovered on his lips, but at the last minute his nerve failed him. The American was a man of his word.

When they reached the car, Julius breathed a sigh of relief. The danger zone was passed. Fear had successfully hypnotized the man by his side. "Get in," he ordered. "George!" The chauffeur turned his head. "I want to go to Gatehouse in Kent. Know the road at all?" "Yes, sir; it will be about an hour and a half's run."

"Make it an hour. I'm in a hurry." "I'll do my best, sir." The car shot forward through the traffic.

Julius descended himself comfortably by the side of his victim. He kept his hand in the pocket of his coat, but his manner was urbane to the last degree.

Slowing down, the chauffeur called over his shoulder that they were just coming into Gatehouse. Julius hated the Russian driver then. His plan was to drive straight up to the house. There Kramenin was to ask for the two girls. Julius explained to him that Little Willie would not be tolerant of failure. Kramenin, by this time, was as putty in the other's hands.

The car swept up the drive, and stopped before the porch. The chauffeur looked round for orders.

"Turn the car first, George. Then ring the bell, and get back to your place. Keep the engine going, and be ready to scoot like h—l when I give the word."

"Very good, sir." The front door was opened by the butler. Kramenin felt the muzzle of the revolver against his ribs.

"Now," hissed Julius. "And be careful." The Russian beckoned. His lips were white, and his voice was not very steady.

"It is I—Kramenin! Bring down the girl at once! There is no time to lose!" Whittington had come down the steps. He uttered an exclamation of astonishment at seeing the other.

"We have been betrayed! Plans must be abandoned. We must save our own skins. The girl! And at once! It's our only chance."

Whittington hesitated, but for hardly a moment. "You have orders—from him?" "Naturally! Should I be here otherwise? Hurry! There is no time to be lost. The other little fool had better come too."

Whittington turned and ran back into the house. The agonizing minutes went by. Then—two figures hastily huddled in cloaks appeared on the steps and were hustled into the car. The smaller of the two was inclined to resist and Whittington shoved her in unceremoniously. Julius leaned forward, and in doing so the light from the open door lit up his face. Another man on the steps behind Whittington gave a startled exclamation. Concealment was at an end.

"Get a move on, George," shouted Julius. The chauffeur slipped in his clutch, and with a bound the car started.

The man on the steps uttered an oath. His hand went into his pocket. There was a flash and a report. The bullet just missed the taller girl by an inch.

"Get down, Jane," cried Julius. "Flat on the bottom of the car. Are you all right, Tuppence?" "Of course I am. Where's Tommy? What made them let us go?" demanded Tuppence.

"I reckon Monsieur Kramenin here asked them so prettily they just couldn't refuse!" This was too much for the Russian. He burst out vehemently: "Curse you—curse you! They know now that I betrayed them. My life won't be safe for an hour in this country."

"That's so," assented Julius. "I'd advise you to make tracks for Russia right away." "Let me go, then," cried the other. "I have done what you asked."

"Sure thing. Pull up, George. The gentleman's not making the return trip. If I ever come to Russia, Monsieur Kramenin, I shall expect a rousing welcome, and—"

But before Julius had finished his speech, and before the car had finally halted, the Russian had swung himself out and disappeared into the night.

"Annette and I didn't know what was going to happen to us," said Tuppence. "Old Whittington hurried us off. We thought it was lambs to the slaughter."

"Annette," said Julius. "Is that what you call her?" His mind seemed to be trying to adjust itself to a new idea.

"It's her name," said Tuppence, opening her eyes very wide. "Shucks!" retorted Julius. "She may think it's her name, because her mommy's gone, poor kid. But it's the one real and original Jane Finn we've got here."

"What—?" cried Tuppence. But she was interrupted. With an angry spurt, a bullet embedded itself in the upholstery of the car just behind her head.

"Down with you," cried Julius. "It's an ambush. Push her a bit, George." The car fairly leapt forward. Three more shots rang out, but went happily wide. Julius raised his hand to his cheek.

"You are hurt?" said Annette quickly. "Only a scratch."

The girl sprang to her feet. "Let me out! Let me out, I say! Stop the car. It is me they are after. I'm the one they want. You shall lose your lives because of me. Let me go!" She was rumbling with the fastenings of the door.

Julius took her by both arms, and looked at her. She had spoken with no trace of foreign accent. "Sit down, kid," he said gently. "I guess there's nothing wrong with your memory. Been fooling them all the time, eh?"

The girl looked at him, nodded, and then suddenly burst into tears. Julius patted her on the shoulder.

"There, there—just you sit tight. We're not going to let you quit." Through her sobs the girl said indistinctly: "You're frazz home. I can tell by your voice. It makes me homesick."

"Sure I'm from home. I'm your cousin—Julius Hershestimmer. I came over to Europe on purpose to find you—and a pretty dance you've led me."

The car slackened speed. George spoke over his shoulder: "Cross-roads here, sir. I'm not sure of the way."

The car slowed down till it hardly moved. As it did so a figure climbed suddenly over the back, and plunged head first into the midst of them.

"Sorry," said Tommy, extricating himself. "Was in the bushes by the drive. Hung on behind. Couldn't let you know before at the pace you were going. It was all I could do to hang on. Now then, you girls, get out! There's a station just up that road. Train due in three minutes. You'll catch it if you hurry."

"What the devil are you driving at?" demanded Julius. "Do you think you can fool them by leaving the car?" "You and I aren't going to leave the car. Only the girls."

Tommy turned to Tuppence. "Get out at once, Tuppence. Take her with you, and do just as I say. Take the train to London. Go straight to Sir James Peel Edgerton. Mr. Carter lives out of town, but you'll be safe with him."

"Dare you?" cried Julius. "You're mad. Jane, you stay where you are!" With a sudden swift movement, Tommy snatched the revolver from Julius' hand, and leveled it at him.

"Now will you believe I'm in earnest? Get out, both of you, and do as I say—or I'll shoot!" Tuppence sprang out, dragging the unwilling Jane after her.

"Come on, it's all right. If Tommy's sure—he's sure. Be quick. We'll miss the train."

They started running. Julius' pent-up rage burst forth. "What the h—l—!" Tommy interrupted him. "Dry up! I want a few words with you, Mr. Julius Hershestimmer."

CHAPTER XVI

Jane's Story. Her arm through Jane's, dragging her along, Tuppence reached the station. They arrived on the platform just as the train came to a standstill. Tuppence opened the door of an empty first-class compartment, and the two girls sank down breathless on the padded seats.

If they once reached Sir James Peel Edgerton in safety, all would be well. But would they reach him? Would not the silent forces of Mr. Brown already be assembling against them? Tuppence mapped out her plan of campaign.

As the train at length drew slowly into Charing Cross, Jane Finn sat up with a start.

"Have we arrived? I never thought we should!"

"Oh, I thought we'd get to London all right. If there's going to be any fun, now is when it will begin. Quick, get out. We'll nip into a taxi."

In another minute they were stepping into a taxi. "King's Cross," directed Tuppence. Then she gave a jump. A man looked in at the window, just as they started. She was almost certain it was the same man who had got into the carriage next to them. She had a horrible feeling of being slowly hemmed in on every side.

"You see," she explained to Jane, "if they think we're going to Sir James, this will put them off the scent. Now they'll imagine we're going to Mr. Carter. His country place is north of London somewhere."

Crossing Holborn there was a block, and the taxi was held up. This was what Tuppence had been waiting for.

"Quick," she whispered. "Open the right-hand door!"

The two girls stepped out into the pavement. A policeman was approaching. Before he arrived Tuppence had handed the driver five shillings, and she and Jane had merged themselves in the crowd.

"There," said Tuppence, with great satisfaction. "This ought to do them. I can't help thinking that I'm really rather clever! What's this thing swerving—Oh!"

There was a grinding noise and a bump. Another taxi had collided with them.

In a flash Tuppence was out on the pavement. A policeman was approaching. Before he arrived Tuppence had handed the driver five shillings, and she and Jane had merged themselves in the crowd.

"It's only a step or two now," said Tuppence breathlessly. Hand-in-hand, the two girls hurried along.

"It may be my fancy," said Tuppence suddenly. "but I feel as though there was some one behind us."

Tuppence and Jane took to their heels. The house they sought was some way down. Footsteps echoed behind them. Their breath was coming in choking gasps as they reached Sir James' door. Tuppence seized the bell and Jane the knocker.

A man reached the foot of the steps. For a moment he hesitated, and as he did so the door opened. They fell into the hall together. Sir James came forward from the library door. "Hallo! What's this?"

He stepped forward, and put his arm round Jane as she swayed uncertainly. He half carried her into the library, and laid her on the leather couch. From a tumbler on the table he poured out a few drops of brandy, and forced her to drink them. With a sigh she sat up, her eyes still wild and frightened.

"It's all right. Don't be afraid, my child. You're quite safe." Her breath came more normally, and the color was returning to her cheeks. Sir James looked at Tuppence quizzically.

"Am I right in thinking that the joint venture has ended in success, and that this"—he turned to the girl on the couch—"Miss Jane Finn?"

Jane sat up. "Yes," she said quietly. "I'm Jane Finn. I have a lot to tell you."

"When you are stronger—"

"No—now!" In a low voice Jane began her story.

"I came over on the Lusitania to take up a post in Paris. When the ship was torpedoed, a man came up to me. He asked me if I was a patriotic American, and told me he was carrying papers which were just life or death to the Allies. He asked me to take charge of them. I was to watch for an advertisement in the Times. If it didn't appear, I was to take them to the American ambassador."

"Most of what followed seems like a nightmare still. I see it in my dreams sometimes. I'll hurry over that part. Mr. Danvers had told me to watch out. He might have been shadowed from New York, but he didn't think so. At first I had no suspicions, but on the boat to Holyhead I began to get uneasy. There was one woman who had been very keen to look after me, and whom I had met generally—a Mrs. Vandemeyer. I remembered that she'd been quite near me on the Lusitania when Mr. Danvers gave me the packet, and before that she'd tried to talk to him once or twice. I began to get scared, but I didn't quite see what to do."

"One thing I'd done already as a precaution—ripped open the oilskin packet and substituted blank paper, and then sewn it up again. So, if anyone did manage to rob me of it, it wouldn't matter."

"What to do with the real thing worried me no end. Finally I opened it out flat—there were only two sheets—and laid it between two of the advertisement pages of a magazine. I stuck the two pages together round the edge with some gum off an envelope I carried the magazine carefully into the pocket of my ulster."

"At Holyhead I found myself in a carriage with Mrs. Vandemeyer after all. I consulted myself with the thought that there were other people in the carriage—there was quite a nice-looking man and his wife sitting just opposite. So I felt almost happy about it until just outside London. I had leaned back and closed my eyes. I guess they thought I was asleep, but my eyes weren't quite shut, and suddenly I saw the nice-looking man get something out of his bag and hand it to Mrs. Vandemeyer, and as he did so he winked."

"I can't tell you how that wink sort of froze me through and through. My only thought was to get out in the corridor as quick as ever I could. I got up, trying to look natural and easy. Perhaps they saw something—I don't know—but suddenly Mrs. Vandemeyer said 'Now,' and flung something over my nose and mouth as I tried to scream. At the same moment I felt a terrific blow on the back of my head."

She shuddered. Sir James murmured

something sympathetically. In a minute she resumed:

"I don't know how long it was before I came back to consciousness. I felt very ill and sick. I was lying on a dirty bed. There was a screen round it, but I could hear two people talking in the room. Mrs. Vandemeyer was one of them. I tried to listen, but at first I couldn't take much in. When at last I did begin to grasp what was going on—I was just terrified! I wonder I didn't scream right out there and then."

"They hadn't found the papers. They'd got the oilskin packet with the blanks, and they were just changing the papers, or whether Danvers had been carrying a dummy message, while the real one was sent another way. They spoke of"—she closed her eyes—"tormenting me to find out!"

"I began thinking madly. What could I do? I knew I wouldn't be able to stand up against torture very long. Suddenly something put the thought of loss of memory into my head. The subject had always interested me, and I'd read an awful lot about it. I had the whole thing at my finger-tips. If only I could succeed in carrying the bluff through, it might save me. I said a prayer, and drew a long breath. Then I opened my eyes and started babbling in French."

"Mrs. Vandemeyer came round the screen at once. Her face was so wicked I nearly died, but I smiled up at her doubtfully, and asked her in French where I was."

"It puzzled her, I could see. She called the man she had been talking to. He stood by the screen with his face in shadow. He spoke to me in French. He asked me my name. I said I didn't know—that I couldn't remember anything at all."

"Suddenly he caught my wrist, and began twisting it. The pain was awful. I screamed. He went on and screamed and screamed, but I managed to shriek out things in French. I don't know how long I could have gone on, but luckily I fainted. The last thing I heard was his voice saying: 'That's not bluff! Anyway, a kid of her age wouldn't know enough!'"

"When I came to, Mrs. Vandemeyer was sweet as honey to me. She'd had her orders, I guess."

"By and by she went out of the room altogether. I was suspicious still, and lay quite quiet for some time. In the end, however, I got up and walked round the room, examining it. I thought that even if anyone was watching me from somewhere, it would seem natural enough under the circumstances. It was a squalid, dirty place. There were no windows, which seemed queer. I guessed the door would be locked, but I didn't try it. There were some battered old pictures on the walls, representing scenes from Faust."

Jane's two listeners gave a simultaneous "Ah!" The girl nodded.

"Yes—it was the place in Soho where Mr. Beresford was imprisoned. Of course, at the time I didn't even know if I was in London. One thing was worrying me dreadfully, but my heart gave a great throb of relief when I saw my ulster lying carelessly over the back of the chair. And the magazine was still rolled up in the pocket!"

"I lay down on the bed again, and by and by Mrs. Vandemeyer brought me some supper."

"That was an awful night. I'd made my plan whilst I was waiting for her. The papers were safe so far, but I couldn't take the risk of leaving them there any longer. They might throw that magazine away any minute. I lay awake waiting until I judged it must be about two o'clock in the morning. Then I got up as softly as I could, and felt in the dark along the left-hand wall. Very gently, I unhooked one of the pictures from its nails—Marguerite with her basket of jewels. I crept over to my coat and took out the magazine, and an odd envelope or two that I had shoved in. Then I went to the washstand, and dampened the brown paper at the back of the picture all round. Presently I was able to pull it away. I had already torn out the two stuck-together pages from the magazine, and now I slipped them with their precious inclosure between the picture and its brown paper backing. A little gum from the envelope helped me to stick the latter up again. No one would dream the picture had ever been tampered with. I rehung it on the wall, put the magazine back in my coat pocket, and crept back to bed."

"They watched me constantly for weeks. Sometimes they'd ask me questions by the hour—I guess there was nothing they didn't know about the third degree—but somehow I managed to hold my own. The strain of it was awful, though. . . . I felt that the horrors in store for me would be too awful, since they knew I'd been off-shooting in my being sent to a sanatorium at Bournemouth. I couldn't make up my mind at first whether it was a sham affair or genuine. I think I almost hypnotized myself."

"One night I was whisked off to London at a moment's notice. They took me back to the house in Soho."

"They sent me in to wait on Mr. Beresford. (Of course I didn't know his name then.) I was suspicious—I thought it was another trap. But of course so honest, I could hardly believe it. However, I was careful in all I said, for I knew we could be overheard. There's a small note, high up in the wall."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MOOSWA THE GREAT

"Greatest of all the members of the deer family," said Duddy, "is the moose. He is the most splendid of all the deer in the great wide world and he is splendid in looks and in strength and in brains."

"The moose is called Mooswa in Indian talk, which means wood eater. For the moose love strange things to eat, you see."

"Sometimes the timber wolves fight this mighty monarch, but oh, the moose is brave and few can win a victory over him."

"As you know, he loves the great northern parts of the country and he loves the woods and the quiet streams away from people."

"If he has been taught from a baby moose to be with people he is not afraid."

"But he is not anxious to take any chances if he has not been used to people. For to him people are creatures with guns and guns cannot be fought against."

"The moose is very tall when he is full grown. He is brownish gray in color and he runs very quickly. The baby moose is only seventy-five pounds in weight when born, which isn't much considering that later on a moose becomes so enormous."

"A mother moose keeps her little calf with her for some time, and he follows her about, walking everywhere after her, though once in a while she leaves him covered up in the thick woods while she goes off marketing by herself."

"If the baby moose is a boy she is very careful that his father shall not see him, for a father moose is very jealous of a little boy in the family, fearing the boy may become a greater moose than he is."

"It is when the boy is but a baby too that the father is so jealous, and so the mother keeps them separated so that her darling baby moose will not be killed by its father."

"But the moose I am going to tell you about was named Mooswa the Great."

"He had lived and roamed the woods where it was cold and wild, but still where people came, more and more every year, with great guns to hunt the moose family."

"Many members of his family had been moving farther and farther north. They were brave, but they did not want to take any chances and they did not consider guns fair enemies somehow."

"So they had left and Mooswa the Great had few companions or even few relatives in his neighborhood."

"Mooswa lived in a low swamp near a wooded river and there the willow twigs, which Mooswa loved so dearly, were delicious. These were fine in the winter time and in the autumn, too."

"In the summer the water reeds in those parts were especially good."

"But it was autumn now and Mooswa was thinking of many things. Mostly, though, he was thinking of one thing, and that one thing was love."

"Into the heart of the great king of animals had come love, and he wondered if the beautiful Miss Moose, whom he had seen and admired would become his mate."

"He was modest for all his greatness and splendor and majesty—perhaps it was his modesty that helped to make him so great, for he never went backwards by being conceited."

"So he went, his great heart beating foolishly, to see Miss Moose and he told her of his love."

"It so wish you would do me the great honor to become my mate," he said.

"It would make me so happy to wander with you through this winter which is now approaching. We could travel so far, we could see so much. Perhaps we could go farther north, where the guns are fewer and yet where still there are willow swamps."

"We could see so much of the great forest world and of the deep underbrush lands."

"Miss Moose had for some time admired Mooswa the Great. She had admired every bit of his splendid strength and beauty and when she heard his splendid voice making love to her it was all she could do to keep from crying—so happy was she."

"So off went Mooswa the Great with his bride. He shed his shovellike antlers in the early winter and began growing new ones, but all the time they wandered through the snow, farther north where guns would not put an end to their happiness."

MRS. HINGKLEY NERVOUS WRECK

Tells How She Was Restored to Perfect Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Memphis, Tenn.—"Two years ago I was completely run-down and my nerves were a wreck. I could not sweep a room without resting. I could not do my work except a little at a time, and the doctor's medicine did not help me. One day some one gave me a little book on your porch, and in it I read several testimonials of women who had been like myself."

I went right out and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and before I had taken the whole of that bottle I knew it was helping me. I took six bottles, and then in about three months I took two more. Now I am in perfect health. I do all of my own work and could do more. I can truly say that I know Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound gave me my health."—Mrs. O. J. HINGKLEY, 316 Union Ave., Memphis, Tenn.

A pipe-smoker's challenge to other smokers

Is there a smoker in the audience who can answer this one?

Nearly every smoker is particular about the kind of tobacco that goes into his pipe. While he may smoke a pipeful from a friend's pouch for the sake of companionship, for day-in-and-day-out smoking he prefers his own brand.

And yet if you ask the average smoker what it is he likes about his tobacco, he may have difficulty in answering you immediately.

Mr. Joe Rivers, whose letter follows, is a confirmed Edgeworth smoker. In attempting to describe what he likes about Edgeworth, he coins the word "tasty-smellfulness." But as this does not entirely satisfy him, he puts the question up to other Edgeworth smokers.

Larus & Brother Company, Richmond, Va.
Gentlemen:
Being a pipe smoker of no mean experience (having tried most pipes and pipe tobacco) I've watched your smokers' letters in the magazines for some explanation of a taste that for me applies only to Edgeworth.
It is extremely difficult to describe this, because it seems to come as the smoke flows through the mouth and nostrils at the end of a draw from the pipe—a sort of combined "tasty-smellfulness" that most satisfies the smokes' appetite.
Why don't you get some of your smokers who can write, to describe this?
Sincerely yours,
(Signed) Joe Rivers

Probably there are any number of reasons why men smoke Edgeworth. One friend actually admitted he smoked it because his wife liked the shape of the Edgeworth glass jars to fit on her pantry shelf. However, the one outstanding feature of Edgeworth, as seen by most smokers, is its uniformity. Year after year, smokers can be sure of getting the same high-grade quality of tobacco.
There are no changes in the blend—no variations in the flavor or fragrance. It is always a good smoke.
If you have not tried Edgeworth send your name and address to Larus & Brother Company, 67 South 21st Street, Richmond, Va.
They will be glad to mail to you some free samples, generous helpings of both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed. Then you can smoke a few pipefuls and see if Edgeworth agrees with your smoking temperament.
If you will also include the name and address of your regular tobacco dealer, your courtesy will be appreciated.
To Retail Tobacco Merchants: If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-dozen carton of any size of Edgeworth Plug Slice or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

Faith and Works.

Health Brings Beauty

Girls, Read This!

Pueblo, Colo.—"When my daughter, now Mrs. Eva Tidmarsh, was sixteen she suffered terribly at times as many girls do, and did not feel real good at any time. She had pimples all over her body. A friend told me to get her a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as her daughter had taken it and had derived wonderful relief from it. My daughter took three bottles and now she is perfectly well—never has a headache or backache. We both never forget to recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."—Mrs. Lula Davis, 106 E. TEXAS LEADS IN GOOD ROADS AID

State Has Received Nearly Sixteen Million From Federal Government.

Austin, Tex.—Texas, which leads all other states in the nation in the amount of road aid allotted by the federal government, has received the greatest amount of funds on projects wholly or partly completed and has the greatest balance available for new contracts from the national government, according to estimates prepared by the American Association of Highway Officials.

This state has actually received nearly $16,000,000 from the government for road construction work, the report shows. The amount already received by Texas is over $800,000 more than its closest competitor, Pennsylvania. The report covers status of federal aid to states as existing August 1.

Moreover, the Lone Star state on August 1 had available in federal funds more than $2,000,000 more than any other state. The amount of funds available to the state for new contracts on that date was $7,715,485.69. Illinois, the second ranking state in this particular, was due $5,598,828.28.

Agreements between state and federal highway officials on the value of completed road contracts in this state place the amount at $3,228,646.54. Texas ranks third among the states in this respect, New York standing first and Missouri second.

Additional amounts of federal aid earned by Texas, but not received on August 1, totaled $491,920. However, since that time, the state highway commission has allotted all additional funds and will not have more available until early next year.

LLOYD GEORGE FAVORS SECY. HUGHES' PROPOSAL

Montreal—Secretary Hughes' proposal, made nearly a year ago, for the appointment of a commission of experts to determine Germany's capacity to pay reparations, was declared by David Lloyd George Wednesday to be "absolutely the best hope of the settlement of reparations."

The former British premier made this assertion when shown press dispatches from Washington which stated that high American administration officials believed it was not too late for acceptance of the plan. His statement came after he had delivered his first public address in Canada, in which he expressed his gratitude for the resolute and unhesitating part which the Dominion played in the world war.

Commenting on Secretary Hughes' plan, Mr. Lloyd George said:
"In my opinion, this plan is not too late for consideration, and it is absolutely the best hope of the settlement of reparations. Of course, since the plan was first broached the ability of Germany to pay is much less. The greater the delay, the closer the situation approaches chaos. I hope that serious consideration of Mr. Hughes' plan may be taken up, even at this late date, and I repeat that it is the best hope of a successful settlement."

LARGE TRACTS OF LAND TO BE GIVEN FARMERS

San Antonio, Tex.—In accordance with a proclamation issued by President Obregon, Mexicans wishing to devote their time to farming will be given from 250 to 500 acres of land in Mexico without charge.

According to local Consul Ismael Magana, the recent decree issued by the chief executive is for the express purpose of establishing a firm government on the agricultural possibilities of the country. The measure taken by President Obregon is expected to relieve the exodus to the United States and make it possible for the poor class of Mexico to make an easy living from the natural resources and wealth of their country.

Lands which will be given to the people are for irrigated and dry farming. Of the irrigated lands 250 acres will be the allotment made to each farmer of Mexican citizenship, while where rains are to be depended upon will be given an allotment of 500 acres to each family.

Mexico's Wheat Crop.

Laredo, Tex.—Late reports from Mexico indicate that the wheat crop of that republic exceeds 161,386,629 kilograms, or 59,741,764 bushels, of which the greatest part was raised in the state of Michoacan. The state of Sonora ranked second with 23,942,385 kilograms and the state of Guanajuato third with 668,467 kilograms. The states of Guerrero and Morelos were the least productive. The value of the crop is estimated at approximately $21,240,271.

Railroad to Finance Purchases.

Youth Exhibits Champion Steer

Lloyd Taube of Marion, Iowa, Wins First Prize With His Calf.

Lloyd Taube, a seventeen-year-old boy from Marion, Linn county, Iowa, had the proud distinction of exhibiting the grand champion baby beef at the Iowa state fair, held at Des Moines, in what was probably the largest show of this character ever held. The boys and girls whose animals had won at the various county fairs were entitled to compete for state honors at Des Moines, and a total of 446 head were lined up before the judges when the state contest was called.

The steer with which Lloyd won the highest honor against this strong field was a pure bred Aberdeen Angus calf named "Tiney". He was a February calf, sired by Erin Boy II of Lone Ash. Lloyd bought him in September and fed him largely on a home-grown ration of shelled corn and clover hay. The calf did so well that his owner entered him in the Baby Beef club in his county, and at the local fair was awarded the championship over 32 entries. This award carried with it a free trip to the International Live Stock exposition, which will be held in Chicago the first week in December.

Took His Pet to Fair.
Spurred on by this success, Lloyd took his pet steer to the Iowa state fair. This animal and one other were the only entries from Linn county, which made his subsequent triumph all the more noteworthy. After the large classes of well-fitted heaves had been sifted down by the breed judges, Prof. H. H. Kildee was called upon to tie the ribbon on the grand champion of the show, and he selected Tiney for this high honor. Lloyd accepted the congratulations of the ringside crowd with becoming modesty and attributed his success to plenty of good feed and constant attention.

Tiney weighed 925 pounds when records were started on April 1, and at the close of the contest balanced the beam at 1,150 pounds. He was allowed about eighteen pounds of shelled corn a day and all the clover hay he would eat. At Des Moines he presented such a highly finished appearance that he could not be denied the victory, in spite of very strong competition.

Has Won Three Times.

Lloyd has been in club work for six years and has won at a county show three times, always with an Angus calf. Three years ago he was awarded a trip to the international, and it was the inspiration received while at Chicago that later proved a big factor in achieving his crowning triumph. While he will again attend that premier exhibition of the live stock world this year, he will not exhibit Tiney there himself, as he had promised a well-known Angus exhibitor living in his home town to let him have the calf at the close of the Iowa state fair. This breeder will continue to grow out the steer and will enter him at Chicago in the open classes against the highest fitted heaves of the most skilled and experienced exhibitors. It will be interesting to watch how this highest type of boys' club endeavor will rank when pitted against the finest products of the noted veterans of the industry.

Corn for Silage Should Be Practically Matured

Silage corn should be allowed to grow as late as the season permits, or until the corn is practically matured, i. e., the kernel has become hard and dented. The stalk is usually somewhat green as late as this stage. Many experiments have been conducted which show that a greater amount of feed of a better quality and that will keep more easily can be obtained from silage which is made from corn cut at this stage of maturity.

Take Pains to Prepare Good Alfalfa Seed Bed

In sowing alfalfa, take pains to prepare a good seed bed. Have it well tilled and fine on top. Then sow 15 to 18 pounds of seed per acre, but be sure to have it inoculated. Don't sow alfalfa on sour land. If your land is not sweet defer seeding until next spring and in the meantime give it a dressing of two to three tons of ground limestone.

Hydrocyanic Acid as Fumigant for Pests

Absorbed in Quantities Sufficient to Be Harmful

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Because hydrocyanic acid, in the gaseous form, is used extensively in the United States as a fumigant for the destruction of insects and rodents, it often comes in contact with fruits, vegetables and other foods, and thus may be absorbed in sufficient quantity to be dangerous to man. In recent investigations the bureau of chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture has determined the quantity of the fumigant which is absorbed and retained by various foodstuffs, all products examined being found to absorb the acid to some extent.

Those interested in the subject may secure a copy of the bulletin from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, as long as the supply lasts.

Entirely Dry Fodder Will Make Good Silage

Farmers who do not get their silage made before frost may have good silage if they will utilize the dry fodder for this purpose, according to the live stock men at the New York State College of Agriculture.

Fodder silage not only makes better feed than dry fodder, but it is also more convenient to feed. Even though the corn fodder appears dry and wilted, the stalk will be found to contain considerable moisture. If there is not enough moisture in the corn to pack the corn well in the silo, additional water should be added. By adding this to the fanbox the fan thoroughly distributes the additional water.

Even entirely dry fodder will make good silage, providing the water is added in equal weight to the fodder. In any case, the fodder should be tramped down thoroughly. Silage made in this manner will keep well. The quality is not quite as good as that made from corn cut while still green and no extra water added, but it makes excellent feed. Silage made from corn fodder, further, is not nearly as sour. It has a pleasant sweet smell and the cows not only like it, but thrive on it as well.

Rye Is Recommended as Economical Swine Feed

The feeding of rye as a substitute for corn in fattening pigs is held by Minnesota experiment station and agricultural extension men to be good economical practice in view of the prevailing market prices for the two cereals.

"As about 102 pounds of rye have given the same results as 100 pounds of corn," says H. G. Zavoral, live stock specialist, "rye at present prices would be the most economical feed. According to Henry & Morrison's 'Feeds and Feeding,' ground rye is worth 94 per cent as much per ton as ground corn for hog feeding.

"Rye is not as palatable as corn and hogs will not consume it as freely. Neither is it as good a feed for horses or cattle as it is for fattening hogs, but by mixing it with more palatable feed, such as corn and oats, it may be satisfactorily fed. It is harder to masticate than some other grains and should be ground or rolled for best results."

Winter Cover Crop Will Afford Soil Protection

A winter cover crop protects the land from washing during the winter months, and at the same time conserves the plant food materials made available during this period. Soil which remains bare during the winter loses much valuable plant food by leaching. A cover crop would make use of this plant food and release it the next spring in time for the crop of cotton or corn to obtain it.

Whenever possible the winter cover crop should be a legume, for legumes are able—by reason of their well-known ability to obtain nitrogen from the air—to increase greatly the store of this element in the soil.

Storing Vegetables for Home Use During Winter

It is to the interest of every family to grow each season a supply of those vegetables suitable for storage, and to see that they are properly stored for use during the winter months when prices are high and vegetables often hard to get. Less work and less expense are involved in storing vegetables than in keeping them by other methods, as canning, drying, and preserving, and the product retains its characteristic flavor much better.

Careful Handling Is of Importance With Apples

Care in handling is of great importance in storing apples. Rough handling results in stem bruises, broken skin and bruised spots. A broken skin gives entrance to blue mold, which develops slowly at a low temperature, but causes considerable deterioration in the fruit.

Robs Calomel of Nausea and Danger

Medicinal Virtues Retained and Improved—Dangerous and Sickening Qualities Removed. Perfected Tablet Called "Calotabs."

The latest triumph of modern science is a "de-nauseated" calomel tablet known to the drug trade as "Calotabs." Calomel, the most generally useful of all medicines thus enters upon a wider field of popularity,—purified and refined from those objectionable qualities which have heretofore limited its use.

In biliousness, constipation, headaches and indigestion, and in a great variety of liver, stomach and kidney troubles calomel was the most successful remedy, but its use was often neglected on account of its sickening qualities. Now it is the easiest and most pleasant of medicines to take. One Calotab at bedtime with a swallow of water,—that's all. No taste, no griping, no nausea, no salts. Home and State Missions, Schools, Orphanages, Hospitals and Relief Report Marked Advances Under Forward Movement

DR. B. D. GRAY, 3rd Baptist Convention Secretary Home Mission Board South.

Suggesting the growth which the Baptist 75 Million Campaign has brought to the general work of Southern Baptists, it is reported by the general headquarters of the movement that during the four years that have intervened since the Campaign was inaugurated in 1919, the denomination has gained 57 district associations, 881 active ministers, 2,068 local churches, 2,287 Sunday schools with 659,222 pupils, 5,688 Young People's Unions with 233,917 members, and 1,094 Woman's Missionary Union organizations, and baptized 762,860 persons. At the same time the churches have given $28,776,937 more to missions, Christian education and benevolences than they did during the corresponding period prior to the Campaign, and have increased their investment in local church property by $45,405,113.

The larger resources made possible for missions and benevolences through the campaign of the Campaign have been responsible for great advances in every form of denominational work, both at home and abroad.

Complete Church Building Fund

Among the outstanding achievements of the Home Mission Board, operating throughout the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention, are noted the completion of its million dollar church building loan fund, the baptism of 173,692 persons, reception into the churches of 277,968 persons, enrollment of 11,772 young people in the dedication of their lives to some definite form of Christian service, building or improvement of 1,872 church houses and organization of 935 Baptist churches and 2,898 new Sunday schools.

Practically twice the state mission results have been accomplished in many of the states since the Campaign began as were had for any corresponding period of time prior to that movement.

Southern Baptists own 118 Baptist schools, colleges and seminaries, where nearly 40,000 young people are studying to fit themselves for larger usefulness. The number of students has been greatly increased through the Campaign making possible the larger equipment of the schools, and the investment which that movement has made possible in the schools is equal to about 45 per cent of their total value at the time the Campaign was inaugurated.

4,000 Orphans Cared For

Nearly 4,000 orphan boys and girls are cared for in the 19 Baptist orphanages of the South. Two new orphanages have been provided by the Campaign and practically all of the older ones have been given better equipment by this movement. The equipment is not large enough yet, as 2,000 boys and girls had to be turned away last year because the institutions had no more room.

When the Campaign was launched Southern Baptists had only 12 hospitals. Today that number has been increased to 21. Last year over 47,000 patients were treated in these hospitals, a large number of these being charity patients who could not have had an opportunity to get except through some assistance.

The Relief and Annuity Board, serving aged ministers, is now aiding more than 325 beneficiaries and has expended in direct relief since the Campaign began the sum of $414,892.46.

It will require $21,000,000 additional cash to complete the Campaign by the end of the period in 1924, and every effort is being made to enlist all Southern Baptists in having a share in this task.
