PROF. J. E. MacCALMONT

Born, December 5, 1889.
Died, November 2, 1923.

Last Friday morning, November 2nd, at the home of Mrs. MacCalmont's parents in Chester, West Virginia, Professor J. E. MacCalmont passed away. For the past several months he had been a sufferer with cancer of the stomach.

At the time of his death Mr. MacCalmont was 33 years, 11 months and 3 days of age, having been born in Reynoldsville, Pa., December 5th, 1889. On October 29, 1918 he was united in marriage to Miss Buelah May Weaver of Champagne, Ill.

Mr. MacCalmont was superintendent of the Sanderson Public Schools from 1920 to the Spring of 1923. He was a broad minded, well educated man. Although never in good health, yet he carried forward his work in Education, being very progressive and up-building of the School. He was superintendent schools at Seguin the term of 1919-20, also held a similar position at Scott, Arkansas in 1918-19. In his passing the schools will lose an enthusiastic friend and educator.

He was a member of the local Masonic Lodge. Surviving Mr. MacCalmont is his widow, Mrs. J. E. MacCalmont, a daughter, Marjorie, and a son, Bruce, who were with him when the end came. He is also survived by two sisters in East Liverpool, Ohio and an uncle in New Orleans.

The Times was unable to learn time or place of interment.

A very large circle of friends here extend their sympathy to the bereaved ones. The Times joins in with his many friends to extend condolence and sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

Geo. Newberry and T. I. Taylor of Barnhart were in the city for several days the past week visiting friends and relatives and also trying their luck at the foot-logged deer, in which they returned home with a good sized buck.

WEDNESDAY BRIDGE CLUB

Mrs. Hy R. Laurence was hostess to the Wednesday Bridge Club on October 31st. Chrysanthemums, roses and various pot flowers and ferns were carried out as a mode of decoration.

Four tables were played, Mrs. Sims Wilkinson received high score and Mrs. Max Bogusch second high. A delicious plate lunch consisting of cream chicken en patto, stuffed celery, potato chips, pickles, bread and butter sandwiches, stuffed dates, mints and coffee was served. The plate favors were small Japanese ladies with parasols.

The following Club members were present: Mesdames J. C. Green, Max Bogusch, J. W. Happle, Sims Wilkinson, John Stowell and Miss Sybil McKee; the invited guests were: Mrs. B. P. Franklin and Miss Mierle McKee.

MRS. A. R. LONG ACCIDENTLY SHOT BY GUN PROVING FATAL

Sunday evening about 7:30, Mrs. Alfred Long was shot just below the knee with a single barrel shot gun. Mr. Long had been cleaning the gun and put a shell in it and had forgotten about it when he pulled the trigger just as Mrs. Long started from the kitchen to the dining room with dishes in her hand.

Dr. Robertson was called and made an examination and he thought best to rush her to Del Rio to the hospital. They left Dryden at 11:00 o'clock on a freight train but Mrs. Long died at Comstock from the loss of blood. Her remains were sent to her home in Ohio Monday No. 110.

NEW TEST FOR OIL TO BE MADE IN TERRELL CO.

Mr. Sam Kitts, tool dresser; Mr. Harry Nutter, drilling superintendent, and Mr. S. H. Cobb, Vice-President, of the Southwest Texas Oil & Gas Co., have severed their active connections with that Company, as they contemplate going into oil development work themselves.

These gentlemen are given credit for removing the greatest mechanical difficulty the Southwest Texas Oil & Gas Co., ever had by clearing their well of 2 strings of tools which had been lost by a former driller some time ago.

These gentlemen will not give out at this time the location of their first well.

Mr. and Mrs. Vance McLymont returned last Saturday from a month's tour of New Mexico and Arizona. They report having had a wonderful time and meeting many old friends and acquaintances.

Seems as tho Dan Cupid is on the job again as one wedding was solemnized the past week and another one has been scheduled to take place in the very near future.

Mr. S. C. Holland is acting agent at the depot during Mr. Stansell's absence.

MIRIAM'S JOURNEY

Miriam was a little girl with a low voice and soft gray eyes and dark-brown hair. She had just come home from a country far away where the people dearly loved their land but where they had suffered through poverty and trouble. She had seen such lovely peasant people who had been so kind and so hospitable, people who had talked to her of their patriotism and their love of country as she had talked of hers.

They showed her their farms and showed her how they hoped that this year surely the crops would be good for ruined crops were so sad, they told her, and Miriam knew that, too.

And she met little girls, such nice little girls, and she saw so much beautiful scenery. Then she traveled home on a big boat and so after she got home every one gathered about her to hear of her travels and what she had seen.

She told of beautiful country places and cunning little farm homes and of people she had seen in different countries and of their different customs and different ways and looks and manner of dressing. But mostly she told of the place she had gone to last of all, a place far, far North where seldom the natives were visited by people from the outside. Here the children had kittens for pets and here, too, they had two little old dolls among a whole village full of children.

For when some children had visited there some time ago they had given the children of the village two little dolls. One of the dolls now had no arms and the other had a crack in the head, but they were the dolls of the little hamlet and they were loved and owned by all.

They had two little beds made of old boxes and they had coverings on their beds which had been made by their mothers from old raggs. And they had a few American pennies which had been given to them by Miriam's daddy and these they saved as very curious and interesting things.

"I couldn't understand them and they couldn't understand me," Miriam explained, "but they knew I wanted to be friendly and I knew they wanted to be friendly so we got along well that way."

"I Gave All These Away."

"But, oh dear, how I did wish I had taken more toys along with me. I had only taken a very few and only a few dolls—but I gave all these away except my dear rag doll which I've had since I was a baby."

"I asked Daddy if it was selfish to keep my rag doll and he said it wasn't for my rag doll was just like a part of my real, alive family as I'd loved her so long and so devotedly."

"But I gave the rag doll to these children. And sometimes now I think of them, way off and in such a little bit of a place and so funny and old and quaint and I think of them playing with a few more toys and dolls than they had before."

And it did mean a great deal to Miriam to think that she had helped other children to have a good time, children who had so very little.

Once a year, of course, Santa Claus went to visit them, but they never got any other toys or gifts as their mothers and daddies had little to give them. And mostly they asked Santa Claus for things to wear, for the winters were long and hard and most of the clothes they had their mothers made.

Somehow, too, it made Miriam think of how dreadful it would be to have so little and yet she had often thought she had had very little. She had thought that she didn't have as many toys as lots of other children had, and she had thought that she didn't have as many dresses as other girls had. But now she knew there were children in places so far away that it was all they could do to keep warm and get enough to eat during the long, hard, shut-in winters! And she was glad she had taken the wonderful journey and trip, not only because she had enjoyed all the gorgeous scenery and all the interesting things she had seen, but because she would always remember that good luck had often come to a person and had stayed with a person so long that they had forgotten even to be grateful and to appreciate and be polite to good luck.

Now she would never forget in the future to appreciate her good luck.
