P. T. A. MAKES PLANS FOR THE YEAR'S WORK

The first meeting for the year of the Parent-Teachers' Association was held last Thursday afternoon at the high school auditorium with Mrs. H. D. Williams, the president, in the chair. The afternoon was devoted to business.

The following committees were appointed: Program Committee—Mrs. W. H. Savage, first vice-president, chairman, and two others will be put on before the next meeting.

Membership Committee—Mrs. M. A. Boling, second vice-president, chairman; Mrs. Roy Harrell and Mrs. Dixie Schuppach.

Ways and Means Committee—Mrs. James Kerr, third vice-president, chairman; Mrs. J. W. McKee and Mrs. D. A. Pollard. Playground Committee—Miss Louise Williams, chairman; Mrs. T. R. Arrington and Mrs. A. D. Brown.

Sanitation Committee—Prof. T. L. Williams, chairman; and Mrs. Harry Newton.

Mrs. H. D. Williams is president; Mrs. W. R. Holland, secretary; Mrs. J. C. Green, treasurer; Mrs. H. S. Wilkinson, musician, and Mrs. M. A. Boling, reporter.

The president made the announcement to the teachers that the P. T. A. would give certificates for perfect attendance again this year.

There is no bar to membership in this association and a campaign is now on to secure new members. Mothers, you are missing something vital and important if you fail to attend these meetings. You are needed, come out and do your part.

FORTY-SECOND SEMI-ANNUAL REUNION

Carlton Clark Homan, KCCH. Smiling eyed, free handed West Texas Masons from all quarters of the far flung stretches of this section of the State that is in itself an empire will gather in El Paso for the 42nd Semi-Annual Reunion of the El Paso Scottish Rite Bodies, October 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 1926.

The Scottish Rite Cathedral will be the meeting place for those from the North Plains, the South Plains, Southwest Texas and El Paso where all may join in with fraternal spirit for the Fall Reunion of the West Texas Scottish Rite family.

Our growth has been steady and will continue. The El Paso Bodies welcome Master Masons into this "winnowed body of Masonic manhood," an opportunity extraordinary.

Those in charge of conferring the degrees are rehearsing to make their portrayal more effective. The stage is manned by a crew of faithful workers who serve for the love of the Rite. They have been installing scenery and thus the background for the degrees will be attractive. The entertainment committee is on the job. In short, nothing will be left undone to provide for the edification and entertainment of the candidates. Everything points to a successful reunion. More men in Scottish Masonry on whom its sublime truths will "take" are needed. You are therefore urged to get a petition and see that the petitioner is here October 18-22, 1926.—El Paso Bulletin.

RATTLE OF THE RAIL

The board of examiners on Book of Rules were here several days this week.

A special train of three cars passed through Sanderson Tuesday containing Mr. Dodge, of the board of directors, in his private car "Cacarozzi" and Mr. Lull, chief engineer of the Atlantic System, in his private car "Sabine." Superintendent Morrill of the El Paso division also was in the party in his private car "El Paso."

Fireman S. T. Campbell of El Paso is now working on the switch engine here.

Engineer W. E. Cotermarsh is now working out of Del Rio.

Engineer G. A. Avant has returned to El Paso.

Engineer W. C. Barksdale is now working on the night switch engine.

Fireman H. A. Helming has gone to Del Rio to work on the

SERVICE ASSOCIATION HOLDS MEETING

Wilbur Keith, secretary of the Masonic Service Association, and speaker, J. W. Howerth of Dallas, gave a splendid program at the Presbyterian Church last Saturday night.

These two men in forceful addresses and by means of moving pictures showed the achievements of the Masonic fraternity in Texas and pointed out the need for further relief measures in the name of Masonry. They also presented to the audience a higher standard of citizenship and education among Masons.

Moving pictures were shown of the Masonic Home and School at Fort Worth, also other buildings at Arlington and the "Gavel Club" at Kerrville.

The Association has been putting on these programs all over the State the past few years. A number of Masons from Alpine were also in attendance.

Talbot-Lester.

Fred H. Talbot of Sanderson and Miss Lillian Lester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Lester of this city, were married at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the home of the bride. The Rev. M. K. Fred of the Methodist Church performed the ceremony which the members and a few close friends attended.

The bride was attired in a most beautiful gray satin black crepe dress with attractive harmonizing accessories. Her going-away costume was a wine colored flat crepe dress with accessories.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Talbot motored to Corpus Christi where they left on the train for Sanderson after which they will spend their honeymoon in El Paso and other points before being at home to their friends at Sanderson.—Robstown Record.

The young couple came in last Friday night and are at home in Sanderson to their many friends.

Straw hats and summer clothes are quite out of place, so get your Fall and Winter suit now. We've got the new blues, n' everything.

EMPIRE TAILORS.

Shakespeare Recital.

Tilstone Bryce, formerly with the Robert E. Mantell Company, gave a Shakespeare recital last Friday afternoon at the high school auditorium to the school children and the public. Mr. Bryce opened his recital taken from Act 4 of "As You Like It." Each and every interpretation from the works of Shakespeare showed credit to Mr. Bryce as a reader. Especially the children enjoyed the conclusion number, a comedy reading entitled "Aunt Gloucester's Return." Following the recital a free will offering was taken and a neat sum given Mr. Bryce for his afternoon entertainment.

Miscellaneous Shower

Sanderson Review No. 72 W. B. A. was hostess to the members of the Review and friends at a miscellaneous shower last Friday evening in the reception room of the Masonic Hall, naming as the honoree, Miss Nelberta Lea, whose marriage to Monte H. Goode Jr. occurred last night (Friday). Forty-two was the diversion of the evening. Tally cards were symbols of a bride. After several games had been played, the winner of high score was found to be the honoree and as a prize she was showered with many beautiful as well as useful gifts from her friends. At the close of the evening ice-cream punch and cake were served.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Bodkin returned the first of the week from El Paso, where they spent several days while Mrs. Bodkin had some dental work done.

Mrs. S. S. Daggett returned from San Antonio last Saturday, where she was the guest of her sister, Mrs. C. V. Locklin and niece, who are leaving for Richmond, Va., to make their home.

Mrs. N. H. Corder.

It was with deep regret that friends here learned of the death last Thursday of Mrs. N. H. Corder, 70 years old, which occurred in San Antonio that morning. Mrs. Corder was a native of Atascosa County, but had made her home here on a ranch for years. To know Mary C. Corder was to like her. She was a kind, faithful and Christian mother, devoted to her family and home.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Josephine Arvin, and Mrs. Mary Mitchell, both of Sanderson; four sons, Eugene Corder of Sabin; E. T. of Marfa; J. M. and R. E. of this city; two sisters, Mrs. W. B. Miller of Uvalde, and Mrs. Ben C. Corder of Rocksprings, and two brothers, T. M. Schrier of Johnson City, and J. P. Schrier of Junction City.

Funeral services were held last Saturday in San Antonio.

Notice!

Private instruction given in mathematics to school children in the sixth and seventh grade and in high school algebra. For arrangements in either classes call or phone Mrs. John Ogle.

Mr. and Mrs. Wickliffe Edwards and children left last Friday for Laguna, near which place they have bought a ranch. Sanderson regrets to lose this splendid family, but wish them well in their new home.

NOW I IMPROVED MY HEALTH

Did It in Less Than One Month

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for, according to her letters, she was subjected to no small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong, do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine, and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. LAWRENCE WEAVER, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you knew that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial? In some families, the fourth generation is learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Excess Uric Acid Gives Rise to Many Unpleasant Troubles.

Authorities agree that an excess of uric acid is primarily due to faulty kidney action. Retention of this toxic material often makes its presence felt by sore, painful joints, a tired, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backache and headache. That the kidneys are not functioning right is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Thousands assist their kidneys at such times by the use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Doan's are recommended by many local people. Ask your neighbor!

American Flag Retired to Stud

American Flag of the Glenn Riddle farm, champion three-year-old of last year, has gone lame with a bowed tendon. He will be shipped later to the Riddle farm in Kentucky, Faraway farms, to enter stud service alongside of his illustrious sire, Man o' War. American Flag broke down after a fast trial when he negotiated a mile and an eighth in 1:53 in company with Crusader as the latter's final preparation for the Travers stakes.

BASEBALL SQUIBS

Bobby Barrett, Memphis infielder, has been sold to the Brooklyn Nationals.

It costs the major leagues about $200,000 a year to maintain its staff of umpires.

The Toledo baseball club has decided to admit boys under sixteen free on Wednesdays.

Outfielder Heath has been sold by the Laurel club of the Cotton States league to the Jackson club.

The Tigers have sent Catcher Ray Hayworth to the Columbus club of the American association on option.

Horace Milton Lisenbee, young right-handed pitching star of the Memphis club, has been sold to Washington.

Low Owen, star pitcher of the Hartford club of the Eastern league, has been purchased by the New Haven club.

The major league record for the largest score was established when Chicago beat Philadelphia, 26 to 23, in 1922.

Only 14 teams have finished the season with 100 or more victories in the 26 years' existence of the major leagues.

The Cincinnati Nationals have purchased from the Portland (Ore.) club Pitcher Roy Meeker and Third Baseman Doc Prothro.

Bob Fothergill may belong to the heavyweight class, but he steps around the left field pasture with the grace and ease of a lightweight.

Pat Duncan, former National leaguer, now with Minneapolis, is showing the way to the home-run hitters in the American association.

Last spring the Philadelphia Nationals sold infielder Fonseca to Newark for $4,000. Now they'd like him back, but Newark demands $40,000.

The Philadelphia Nationals have purchased Dennis Sothorn, outfielder, who is leading the Middle Atlantic league with a batting average of .367.

The Washington champions look like champions only in hitting this year. And in that particular phase of the game they are right up with the best.

Paul Florence, the New York Giants' young catcher, was a football end, outfielder and catcher, basket ball player and track athlete at Georgetown university.

Purchase of Jim Hakesley, outfielder, from Omaha of the Western league, has been announced by the Rochester International league baseball club.

Empire Clarence Rowland of the American league doesn't have to pull his watch from his pocket to chasten an angry athlete. He has it fastened around his wrist.

Dennis Gearin, left-handed pitcher of the Milwaukee American association, won a no-hit, no-run game from Columbus in the first tilt of a double-header at Milwaukee.

Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn National league club, announces the purchase of Third Baseman Bobby Barrett of the Memphis Southern association club.

In Blades, Hornsby, Southworth, Douthitt, Bottomley, Bell, O'Farrell and Thevenow the St. Louis Cardinals have as imposing an array of hitters as can be found in the major leagues today.

Cubs' Owner Is "Sore" as He Lets Shulte Slip

Bill Veeck, president of the Cubs, has a large peeve, writes Manning Vaughan in the Milwaukee Journal. We don't blame him. If we were in his boots our peeve would be even larger than the one Nick Allen developed the day Jim Murray was returned to the A. A. guessing department. To make it short and snappy, Veeck had a chance to get Fritz Shulte, the playing masterpiece of the season, but he let the opportunity slip, and the youngster will probably be an American league attraction next season instead of a National league drawing card.

No doubt the Cub boss has his side of the story, but according to Otto Borchert, the Cubs lost all claim to Shulte some weeks back. The master of the famous trick case also has documentary evidence to back up his statement. Be that as it may, Veeck is so sore because he lost out on the Heist-dere beauty that he has recalled Clyde Beck and Jack Lovitt will have to stumble along with a makeshift infield until help arrives.

Maranville Playing on Third Club in 3 Years

"Rabbit" Maranville, veteran infielder, is playing on his third major league club in as many years this season.

In 1924 Maranville was with the Pirates. Last year he cavorted for the Cubs, being manager of the club for a brief period. This campaign finds him holding down a job with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Maranville made his big-time debut with the Boston Braves in 1912. He was a member of the famous miracle team of 1914 that copped the pennant after being in eighth place in mid July, then went on to whip the Athletics four straight in the world series.

Holds Team Hitless, but Loses Game on Errors

For the Coast league's prize exhibition of tough luck pitching the palm must be awarded to Frank Arellanes, former Sacramento slabster. Against the Vernon Tigers on October 10, 1930, Arellanes did not allow a hit but lost the game, 2 to 0, errors by his mates and his own wit-ness costing him a chance to enter into the slowly filling baseball hall of fame.

Last year George Boehler held Sacramento to no hits in nine innings, but Frank Shellenback, on the mound for the Sions, pitched shutout ball against the Oaks, and Boehler finally lost out in the tenth, 1 to 0.

Henry Sandberg, fullback on the Lombard university football team, Galeburg, Ill., does his summer training at the sesquicentennial international exposition mostly in shoveling sand as shown in the photograph.

Business Conditions Today Call for Increased Specialization in Education

By M. M. PROFITT, U. S. Bureau of Education.

GREATER specialization in education is necessary to meet increasing specialization in business and industry. To meet this necessity, leading industries are seeking more and more to cooperate with colleges and universities in working out courses of studies to meet the practical requirements demanded of graduates, in preparing up-to-date textbooks dealing with proven practices, not theories, and in otherwise stimulating specialized interest among students. The result is a steadily higher rating of efficiency among students taking their place in the business world.

This movement for greater co-operation between industries and institutions of learning is a necessary step in our economic evolutions. The two vital factors in modern business are men and machines. Our machines have been perfected to a high degree of efficiency. The problem now is to bring up the general efficiency of our man power.

To the greatest extent possible, it is desirable that colleges co-operate in providing the specialized instruction modern business needs and demands. It is a necessary step to meet the demand for men who know specific and exact facts, methods and processes about the specialized and exacting businesses of today.

Properly Planned Budget Has Much to Do With Family Happiness

By MARTHA KNOX, Associated Charities Expert.

A well-planned budget contains a whole philosophy of life. It shows the relations of husband and wife toward each other, toward their children, and of the whole family toward the community.

The greater number of families have no idea of how much money they spend for food or clothing each week. Food is often sacrificed to clothing and rent, or perhaps the family starves the week the gas bill is due.

The minimum food allowance for a man is $2.60 a week, for a woman $2.15, for a boy fifteen to eighteen years old $3.35, and for a girl the same age $2.70. There are food costs figured for all ages down to twelve months. Clothing costs allow $1 as the minimum for a man, 65 cents for a woman at home or working, $1.70 for a working girl and $1.60 for a working boy, if the housewife watches for sales and mends clothes to the last stitch.

All the relief work done by the Associated Charities is based on our scientific budget. We go over the family expenses and find out how much money is absolutely necessary in addition to the regular income. If there is a large family the budget may come to $45 a week when the salary is $18.

Modern Schools Need to Go Back to Day of Hickory Switch

By JOHN J. TIGERT, Commissioner of Education.

The disappearance of the old hickory switch and lack of old-fashioned discipline is accountable for some of the flabbiness of modern living.

Responsibility as well as freedom must characterize the work of teachers and school boards. Otherwise liberty is likely to be superseded by license.

I remember well a school I attended which was built of timbers and clapboards. Bunches of beech rods hung on the walls in the morning but were scattered on the floor at night.

No one would like to see these medieval institutions of yesterday brought into modern life, yet I must relate that four of the first forty-three Rhodes scholars chosen for Oxford from the United States came from that barbaric school where I studied.

The doctrine of discipline must apply also to the teacher, who must be free but also responsible. In this connection I see a lurking peril in the growing disposition of teachers to participate in the administrative policies of the school. These belong to the school boards and the administrative officers.

Force of Immense Value for Good, in International Advertising

By DR. JULIUS KLEIN, Bureau of Commerce.

International advertising has come to mean not simply placards, pamphlets and miscellaneous verbiage, but a real force for sound constructive development in a new world of international business.

The fever of nationalism with its embittered reactions against international commerce, transportation and finance is gradually subsiding, and any program for the betterment of international advertising must include first the furtherance of long-view sales programs and the discouragement of overambitious selling for the sake of temporary returns.

A survey by the Commerce department has shown that world trade has just reached its prewar volume, the grand total for 1925 having a valuation of $57,608,000,000, which, with proper deductions for price inflation, represented about the same level as that for 1913, when the value was $38,710,000,000.

The trade outlook is particularly promising across the Pacific and in South America and advertisers should bring their facilities to bear the development of these new fields.

Wage Must Be Sufficient to Allow Development of Intellect

By OWEN D. YOUNG, President General Electric Company.

A living wage is not enough to maintain our industrial self-respect. Industry must pay a cultural wage, and by cultural wage I mean a wage that will enable a man to develop his intellect, thereby giving him a fair chance to take advantage of the many opportunities that are offered in this free country of ours.

That must ever remain the object of a high order of industrial society, a society that gives to those participating in it adequate opportunities to aspire and achieve the very highest and noblest in our common life.

Business of course must be permitted the right to make a reasonable and just profit. Profits mean service, and the industry that renders service to the community is entitled to, and should receive, a profit. Why must we suffer criticism of this particular feature of our economic development? Profits are the motive power of our economic system, so why condemn that which furnishes the initiative and the energy for our industrial livelihood?

FIRST to adopt DUCO

THE General Motors Research Laboratories cooperated with E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company, Inc., in the development of Duco—an achievement ranking in importance with the invention of the self-starter. DUCO is not only far more lasting than paint and varnish; it is finer, more beautiful and more economical to apply in factory production. DUCO was first adopted by Oakland, and immediately thereafter by the rest of the General Motors cars. BUYERS of General Motors cars have profited by the development of this finer, more enduring finish. Their cars wear well longer.

Mother Finds Lost Health

Tanlac Rescues Woman From Egg and Milk Diet. Indigestion and Nervousness Relieved. Gains 20 Pounds.

Mrs. Oscar Hanson, mother of 3 wonderful children, 3947 Hemphill St., Fort Worth, Texas, recently said: "My condition was so bad that I dreaded to sit down to the table. Food caused me intense suffering, formed gas in my stomach and bloated me. With my husband I was running a grocery business. And my condition was so bad it looked as though I would have to quit work. I tried an egg and milk diet. But I only became weaker. My nerves were so jumpy that I would be bothered by the slightest noise in the store. I began taking Tanlac. It calmed my nerves, put my stomach in good shape and gave me an appetite. I put on weight. In fact, gained 20 pounds. And the customers who come into the store comment upon the improvement in my appearance. I can certainly recommend Tanlac for nerves and stomach."

THE STORY SO FAR

On their way to the new Cottonwood gold diggings in Colorado in the early seventies, Robert Gilson, easterner, and his partner, Buck Hayden, a veteran miner, witness the hold-up of a stage coach, from which the express box is stolen before the bandits are scared off. Among the hold-up victims are Mrs. Constance Deane, and Mrs. Barnaby, who intends to open a restaurant in Cottonwood. Gilson meets Marcus Handy, editor, on his way to start the Cottonwood Courier. Arriving in town, Gilson and Hayden together purchase a mining claim. A threatened lynching is averted by the bravery of Chris McGrath, town marshal. Gilson becomes disgusted with gold digging, what with its unending labor and small rewards, and so the sudden appearance of Shorty Creely, and the claim to Buck, is not altogether disconcerting to him. Gilson takes a job on the Courier and arranges to sell his share in the claim to Shorty. His acquaintanceship with Mrs. Deane ripens.

"Got us robbed," said Mrs. Barnaby, addressing the miners, "held up and robbed—that stage company!" Forthwith, addressing not me but them, Mrs. Barnaby launched forth into her narrative of that adventure, beginning with her mortal certainty, when she took the stage at Piestes's, that something was going to happen. Meantime, I seated myself in a spare place at the other end of the table in the attitude of one who expects to be served. Mrs. Barnaby, whirling on a gesture as she described the killing of the horse, beheld me there, broke the narrative off short, and turned her guns from the stage company to me.

"Well, who asked you to sit down?" she asked.

"I wanted board," I replied, feeling somehow de trop.

Mrs. Barnaby regarded me with small, brown, deep-set eyes, and her expression seemed to brand my simple business proposal as an insult.

"Regular, or transient?" she inquired.

"Regular," I faltered. Mrs. Barnaby was looking at me so sharply that I wondered uncomfortably if she had guessed why I chose her establishment.

"Got a job?"

"Oh, yes!"

"At what?"

"Reporter on the Courier."

"Editor, huh? Well, I know editors. You pay in advance!" said Mrs. Barnaby.

"How much?"

"Ten a week—for you!"

Meekly, I reached into my pocket, humbly I produced a gold eagle, apologetically I gave it to Mrs. Barnaby. She rang it on the pine table before she lifted her skirt to an indiscreet height for those days, revealing a pair of men's cowhide top boots. Into the leg of the nearest, she dropped my coin.

"And you'll get no ham with your eggs, neither," said Mrs. Barnaby, frowning into the kitchen. "Last to be had in camp was eat by those hogs." Whereupon the nearest of the three miners turned upon the others and dropped a solemn wink. And I began to perceive that Mrs. Barnaby's bark was worse than her bite.

In fact, when she returned with my smoking hot eggs and my steaming coffee, she seemed to have accepted me as a regular boarder. Her manner became almost confidential. She spoke of the difficulty in getting decent provisions—"The last barrel of flour I bought was great stuff for hanging paper, and that's the best you can say of it"—and the rivalry of Jim Huffaker—"that thieving squatter!"

"Where's your tent?" I inquired.

"Out back," replied Mrs. Barnaby. Then she saved me the embarrassment of asking further questions by adding: "I live there with another lady—the one that was with me when they got us robbed."

"Mrs. Deane?" I asked, my eagerness betraying me into a bold question.

"How'd you know her name?" responded Mrs. Barnaby sharply, and then: "Oh, yes, you was gallivantin' round with her by the dead horse. Everybody gallivants with her, or tries to."

"And Mr. Deane?"

"Ain't no Mr. Deane, 's far as is visible to the eye," replied Mrs. Barnaby. Then she seemed to pull back, as though already she had gone too far. She gathered up a pile of soiled dishes and sped back to the kitchen. When she returned, it was only to slam down another plate of hot cakes, remarking that if those didn't fill me up, I wasn't going to get filled. She did not reappear, even though I dawdled over my eating. Nor did any other feminine figure part the flap of the front door. Evidently Mrs. Deane breakfasted early.

So at last I finished, wiped my fingers on my handkerchief, and strolled out of doors. Astonishingly, as though no longer governed by my conscious mind, I turned not toward camp but up the hill. Behind the walled tent above everything. Something you can count on."

Somewhat, I had taken it for granted that Mrs. Deane was older than I, having yet to learn that any woman is infinitely older in wisdom of the spirit than any man. I turned and looked at her with new eyes. Not the shadow of the tiniest ridge or wrinkle broke the smooth contour of her skin, now tanned to a delicate golden cream color. This woman, speaking so soberly of deep things—she was only a young girl after all—as I watched her looking with absent eyes toward the panorama of the peaks, I felt that the air about her quivered with an intangible tension, as though ghostly armies were arrayed for battle. Up from the cluster of tents and cabins rose the sound of voices singing to the accompaniment of a melodeon: "Alas and Did My Savior Bleed." Services were beginning in the gospel tent. It seemed that her reminiscent mood had broken. She changed the subject abruptly to personalities of the camp. None of them did I recognize until she asked:

"Do you know the sheriff or marshal or whatever they call him—the one with the wide hat and the impressive imperial—Mr. McGrath?"

"I've met him; he registered my claim," I replied. "Seems like a good fellow." I added, my sense of justice struggling with a less generous emotion.

"He comes in sometimes for meals," volunteered Mrs. Deane. "Everyone compliments his shooting! It's odd, isn't it, living in a world where skill at killing men is the quality everyone most admires? But I suppose war is that way, too. I suppose men are that way when they are left alone. I've heard my father say—"Was she trying to tantalize me, that she drew up always just short of a revelation? For she stopped and, as though to change the subject, glanced down at the Cottonwood Courier, lying wind-blown at her feet."

"I see by your paper we had another robbery yesterday," she said.

"Yes, I wrote the account. Mr. Handy says it's all the work of one gang. He thinks they may have accomplished in camp." The moment I came out with this, I wished it unsaid. It seemed like betraying the confidence of my paper. Mrs. Deane responded with a casual, balanced "In ing out editorial policy, soliciting advertisements, making up forms, collecting from advertisers, or planning what he called his "expansion." For in the period Marcus had laid his hands on Mannie Leavenritt, a young and ambitious but impetuous newcomer, had set him to soliciting subscriptions on commission. A week later, Mannie was with us permanently as circulation manager, his staff our two brightest newboys, transformed to carriers. As we expanded and grew, we added an aged clerk to write business letters and keep books. Then Marcus, as he expressed it himself, "snagged a pressman" one morning from the stage, put him to work on the footpower job press which had all this time stood idle in a corner of the lean-to. Thereafter Mannie added to his activities that of soliciting job printing on commission.

By now I was lodging with Marcus in his cabin behind Siegel's, sharing an eight-by-ten room, where I slept on a rough wooden cot without sheets, and with a sack of waste paper for a pillow. Whenever the cold west wind blew, the unclinked walls peppered us with jets of shrill air. Marcus boarded, however, not with Mrs. Barnaby but with Jim Huffaker. I was glad of that; I shrank a little from contemplation of the moment when that shrewd intelligence would perceive my reason for boarding with Mrs. Barnaby.

As I began to think on the subject, the law had government of our camp seemed to me at times only a part of its picturesque and at others just ridiculous. These young commonwealths of the West, I have since found, varied greatly in the speed and efficiency with which they organized for law. All depended, I suppose, on what element first arrived. With us the gamblers, the saloon keepers, the purveyors of illicit pleasures, the actual criminals had outnumbered at first the forces of sobriety. And by virtue of this majority, we still ordered our society by gun law.

Municipal government, really, there was none. When, the year before, placer gold was discovered along a creek, the early arrivals had formed a miner's court which administered own justice in its own rude way. In the autumn Judge Cowan had arrived to establish formal justice. Taking account of public opinion, he appointed as his sole executive official Chris McGrath, the outstanding pistol artist of Cottonwood. Of McGrath's antecedents no one knew anything at all; in that stage of mining camp society, personal inquiry was a serious breach of etiquette. He had come into camp with a bunch of cowboys and gained admiration by pinking in the center of the forehead a footpad who actually had the drop on him at the time. His rough personal charm did the rest. The title of town marshal went by courtesy only. Doc Evans, whom I now suspect of having left the East for the East's health, and morality, was deputy county coroner. He served without pay, getting his profit from the practice which his office attracted.

I visited Judge Cowan's courtroom during his spring term. A relic of an earlier and even rougher day, he had "read law" in some backwoods Ohio office before he stamped west for gold. Having failed at mining, he picked up a living, during the brief prosperity of Grizzly, a mining camp now abandoned, by practice of his profession. Then production of the part of Grizzly, in default of any other settlement large enough to be called a town, it remained the county seat. Lawyer Cowan remained; became, in default of a better, Judge Cowan; still in default of a better, held on when the territory attained statehood. His reading in law appeared to me as slight as his knowledge of grammar. Of the bench, spite of his egotisms, he had a kind of natural good-fellowship; and his penchant for stale, racy anecdote did his popularity no harm with the element which fringed his courtroom.

He had a full docket, which he ran with a speed mimicking efficiency. It included six murder cases—all the gun episodes that Chris McGrath and Doc Evans had seen fit to bring to the attention of justice. Arthur Collier, a smart, lean Kentuckian, already a marked figure in camp for his reckless gambling and his dashing appearance when he drove out with "the fancy," represented five of the defendants. In every case he introduced the same plea—"self-defense." The procedure was monotonously invariable. Chris McGrath presented a panel of jurors. The ignorant and weak-voiced prosecuting attorney accompanied Judge Cowan from Grizzly seldom interposed a challenge; the process of seating lasted only half an hour. The attorneys raced through the business of taking testimony; the stage was set for the great moment of the summing-up.

In the Entrance Sat Mrs. Deane—Her Eyes Were Searching the Far Distances.

CHAPTER VI

Somewhat in spite of my will, the next fortnight gave me my bearings in Cottonwood camp. Like any young journalist, I was at first far more interested in what I would have called "life" than in the business of life. My knowledge of camp politics and camp finance—I took in unconsciously through my pores, while consciously absorbed in the thrilling details of four or five murders, three suicides, innumerable holdups, the miner who had fallen down a prospect hole, the prospector who had fought off a grizzly bear with a crowbar.

Marcus himself attended to mining and political news, gathering his items and writing them—or in an emergency setting them up without the intervention of paper and pencil—during the spare moments when he was not laying

Writes in Defense of Lucretia Borgia

Anatole France in a charitable mood could not resist the temptation to whitewash even Judas Iscariot, and now comes the celebrated historian, Doctor Cabanes, to tell us that Lucretia Borgia was not the unscrupulous, licentious woman that common tradition has made her out to be. At worst, she was only a slightly damaged saint. It appears, if her lovers and husbands were poisoned or stabbed, it was not Lucretia's fault. She really felt the greatest devotion toward them. These little matters were accomplished only in the interest of the state. Lucretia knew how to separate business and pleasure. What if she was present at bacchanalia, the like of which would make the present-day orgies of the bazaars of Calro look innocent. "It was merely the custom of the day to amuse oneself in that manner," the doctor tells

The assistant treasurer of the United States informs us that in the spring of 1862 Mr. F. E. Spinner, treasurer of the United States, prevailed upon Secretary Chase to permit him to appoint a woman to cut and trim United States currency. This work was then done with shears in the hands of men. He appointed Miss Jennie Douglas, and as he afterward expressed it, "her first day's work settled the matter in her and in woman's favor." On October 9, 1862, the following woman employees were appointed: Miss Fannie L. Hainstead, Miss Annie York, Miss Belle S. Tracy, Miss Elizabeth Stoner and Miss Mary Burke. These women were the first for whom Congress regularly made an appropriation.

FAVORS FINE SILK WEAVES; HATS FOR COLLEGE GIRLS

THE smartly frocked Parisienne still adheres to the one-piece dress for daytime wear, that is, the sort in which bodice and skirt are seamed at the waistline. As to just where that waistline should be is a subject much under discussion among the dress creators of France. Rumor has it, that the waistline is moving up, even unto normal is the forecast. Be that as it may, many of the most stylish frocks snapped at the Grand Prix races expressed sentiment for the moderately low waist. There were interesting versions and varied, for in some instances the waistline curved up at the front, drooping perfectly yet very effective daytime frock. At this particular time of the year when thoughts turn mostly to outfitting daughters of the household for "going away to school," it seems peculiarly fortunate that the new felts and sports velvet hats should be so apropos of the occasion—so typically collegiate in appearance. For that is just what the new draped crown and ripple brim felt and velvet hats are—the sort the college girl adores.

TWO DAYTIME FROCKS

ceptibly at the back, and often the simple straight-around type was stressed. Both models in this picture illustrate the latter.

Seamed-at-the-waistline modes necessarily involve the question of skirt fullness, a problem which the Paris stylist adroitly solves either by means of a circular cut or by plaiting, smocking and what is considered of vast importance at this moment, shirring. It is a fact that everything that will admit of shirring is being shirred.

No fabric yields more gracefully to the seamed-at-the-waistline treatment than does a handsome silk weave, placed in the center of this group. Not only is the soft felt draped to the queen's taste, but it has the trickiest narrow belt and buckle about its shapely crown, and that illustrates an outstanding fact about today's felt shapes, they simply revel in clever straps and belts of self material as the hat itself.

Rolling brims, eye! there's a favorite tople with the college girl. Well, the rolling brim is here in all its becomingness this season. See the romantic roll of the brim in the felt hat shown at the top of the picture and notice the crease crown and the ribbon binding on the brim edge, and that is why so many of the Paris frocks for autumn are of crepe, crepe-back satin or some other equally as choice texture.

HATS OF STITCHED VELVET OR FELT

Interesting in regard to the favored silks is their coloring, the choicest of which is any one of the beautiful wine shades. Whether satin, crepe, it matters not what the silken weave if it be in one of the deep red tones. The crepe-fallie dress to the left in the picture is a deep wine tone with an inset bordering of beige crepe.

Field for everything, be it woolen coats or ribbon frocks, is fashion's mandate. Hence the plaid silk skirt portion in the modish frock pictured to the left. The girlish round turnover collar and tie are distinctive style details in the designing of this and the wide grosgrain ribbon band. You can get such a hat in any of the new browns or beige, and it is perfectly stunning in either jungle green or burgundy shade.

The crown of the aristocratic looking felt to the right is its special attraction. Notice how jauntily it is draped. It's wee brim answers to the call of the mode.

Of velvet are the hats shown below in this collection, because velvet has been acclaimed a most popular and stylish medium for the sports hat. Stitched velvet especially is the rage and you make no mistake in selecting this, if you are looking for something other than felt or velours.

The fact that the model pictured as a finale to this modish group is of two colors of velvet gives it prestige as a most fashionable example of the sort of hat outstanding among advance fall models.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by Mary Graham Bonner

LEOPARD AND LIONESS

Mrs. Leopard was having a chat with Mrs. Lioness. They were in neighboring cages in the zoo.

"When my first littles ones came into this great world," said Mrs. Leopard to Mrs. Lioness, as she looked at her neighbor, "I could hardly wait for them to open their eyes."

"I just longed to see their eyes and to see if they looked good and angry and wild, as little leopards' eyes should look."

"It took three or four days for my babies to open their eyes," said Mrs. Lioness.

"They always take about that long."

"Poor, ordinary, tame cats," she continued, "have to wait ten or eleven days for their babies to open their eyes."

"We are very superior, we lions and our children."

"Well," said Mrs. Leopard, "I don't like to hurry the little ones."

"I like them to take their time, but I don't want them to take too long about it."

"I think leopards open their eyes just about the right time," she added.

"Every mother thinks the same of her young," said Mrs. Lioness.

"Perhaps," said Mrs. Leopard, "but I know I am right."

"Now, my children take from six to seven days to open their eyes; yes, just about a week they take."

"That is just right."

"When they're a week old they look about them and see what is going on, and whether they like the world and generally they are satisfied with it!"

"Oh, I was so excited, as I have said, the first time I waited for the little ones to open their eyes."

"A day passed, and then another, then a third, and a fourth, and a fifth. And, oh, I was getting more excited every moment."

"Then a sixth day went by, and on the seventh their eyes were open, and they looked at me and looked about them."

"But, oh, how glad and happy I was, for their eyes showed that they were going to be good, wild, leopards later on!"

Billie Brownie was listening to this conversation but then the two wild ladies went to sleep, and Billie went and visited his friend, the Coypu Rat, who always amused him.

"It's not all creatures who can boast as I can," said the Coypu Rat.

"So far, so good," said one of Coypu Rat's relatives.

"You see," said the Coypu Rat, with a smart whisk of his tail, "in the first place I'm of the family which is known as the largest rat family in the world. Just as an ordinary rat is about the size of a kitten, so am I, an extraordinary rat, about the size of a cat!"

"I don't mean to say that there are more rats in our family than in any other, but we're the largest-sized rats. Yes, we're big, generous rats. I don't mean we're generous with presents or anything foolish like that, but we're generous to ourselves in growing to be so big."

"Humph!" squealed his relative who was listening, "you don't express yourself particularly well."

"I don't need to," said the Coypu Rat. "I come from South America and here I am in North America! That in itself is interesting, and we all like to welcome the little rats to the zoo, for we know they will be happy rat children."

"The weather in the winter doesn't bother us, for we have enough fur to keep us warm and we believe in fresh air the whole year around."

"But I will not talk about the winter when it is only fall, and not quite that. No, a rat knows too much about the seasons for that and a big rat, one of the biggest rats ever seen, isn't going to let creatures think that he was so busy growing in size that his brain didn't get a chance!"

"I won't think that," laughed Billie Brownie.

Canada Institutes Bird Sanctuaries

With the progress of settlement the Canadian prairies are losing those special characteristics generally associated with them. Their isolation, their treelessness, their lack of social amenities, are becoming things of the past.

Yet certain developments need to be regulated. For example, the Department of the Interior has just set aside a number of public shooting grounds, and has added eleven bird sanctuaries to those already established. These regions contain the most important breeding grounds on the American continent for wild fowl, which, from time immemorial, have found in marsh and reedy lake food and security. The advent of civilization, with its attendant draining of swamps, tends to reduce the size of the breeding grounds, and this, together with increased facilities for sport, has reduced the number of birds to an alarming extent, some species, indeed, being threatened with extinction.

Convenient for Autoists

With every car sold a Paris automobile dealer supplies a pot of special paint and a sprayer, about the size of a fountain pen, so that scratches and nicks can be touched up at once to keep the body looking new. Pressure for applying the paint is obtained by blowing through a tube connected with the sprayer. While the preparation is specially adapted to covering metals, it also may be used on fabrics and leather.

There are 534 at the institution, but very few have been placed in the striped class.

The Most Wonderful Book in the World

MORE than thirty million Bibles or Books of the Bible were sold or distributed in 1925.

Would you not love to have companion volumes to help you discover the treasures in that Wonderful Book?

SWEDENBORG

explained the Bible's practical application to daily life; how it describes the life hereafter, what the Bible parables mean when spiritually interpreted.

His theological works—as issued by himself—have been published by the Houghton Mifflin Co. in most modern translation from the original Latin, in the Rotch Edition of 32 volumes.
The first twenty give the spiritual sense of Genesis and Exodus as understood in Heaven; and volumes 26, 27, 28 give likewise the spiritual sense of the Book of Revelation.

Volume 29, Marriage Love, views from the union of the Divine Love and the Divine Wisdom the Law of Sex throughout all creation. It shows the crown and jewel of the Christian Religion, the union of one with one only. Price $2.00.

Volumes 30, 31, 32, contain a full statement of the True
Christian Religion as revealed from Heaven. $3.00 the set.

The whole 32 volumes in half-morocco at $125; in buckram, $40.

The following are the best introductory books to the Revelations of SWEDENBORG. They are in large print, bound in buckram, and contain from 250 to 485 pages.

TITLES PRICE
HEAVEN AND HELL from things heard and seen $1.25

Angelic Wisdom Concerning—
THE DIVINE PROVIDENCE, which governs the Universe and the Heavens and the Hells, and the least as well as the greatest of all things in creation; and in the everyday life of man. $1.25

THE DIVINE LOVE AND WISDOM, the profoundest book and revelation concerning God and His Creation ever written, first published in Latin at Amsterdam 1763; along with this is the "Intercourse Between the Soul and the Body" first published in Latin at London 1769. $1.25

Price of all three at one time, including postage $2.75

Who Was Swedenborg?

Emmanuel Swedenborg, the son of a bishop, was the great Swedish scientist, philosopher and theologian, whose vast range caused Emerson to term him the "maximilian of scholars." Dr. Parker Calvein recently named him the Universal Genius.
Officially connected, by appointment of the King, with the great mining industry of Sweden, he mastered all the sciences of his time, and wrote the most useful books on metallurgy, minerals, geology, astronomy, and the human brain.
"His life search was for the human soul. How his spiritual senses were opened, after he was 30 years of age, that he might reveal the human soul, the life after death, and the Bible itself, may be read in the above named, uplifting, useful books.
