ROTARY CLUB NAMES NEW OFFICERS

Election of officers was held this week and the club selected as leaders for the coming year the following Rotarians: President, Jesse Henshaw; Vice-Pres., Harry McAams; Secretary, Al Creigh; Treasurer, Jim Kerr; Directors, J. Calvin Stansell and Frank Harrell. The club pledges its support to our new officers and let this coming year be a successful happy era for the Rotary Club of Sanderson.

In response to a wire from the District Governor to consider the plight of the sufferers in the flood stricken area of the Mississippi, the Club subscribed $25 to the relief funds that are being raised thru-out the United States. This sum was augmented by the noble and splendid response of the citizens of Sanderson who subscribed a total of $130.00 last Sunday night for the relief of our benighted fellow citizens of the Mississippi Valley. This sum was given at a free movie given by the manager of the local theatre. The funds being turned over to the local Red Cross Chapter.

Train Kills Brakeman. Frank E. Carmichael, 26, S. P. brakeman, was instantly killed Sunday when he fell under the wheels of a string of three cars. The accident occurred near Afton. Carmichael was on three cars that had been "kicked off" the freight train to a spur. When fellow trainmen went to see why he had not come back to the train from the spur, they found him on the track. The three cars had passed over him. He left here Saturday night on the run. Carmichael had lived in El Paso nine years and made his home at Hotel D. R. Francis.

He is survived by two brothers, Henry C. Carmichael, 1127 E. Rio Grande, and Horace Carmichael of Prescott, Ariz., and a sister, Mrs. Stanley T. Switzer of Los Angeles. Mrs. Henry C. Carmichael (Georgia Buringham) is a Post writer. El Paso Masonic lodge No. 159 will conduct funeral services. The body is at the Peak-Hedgeon funeral home. — El Paso Post.

The above news was received in this city with much regret as Frank had spent his boyhood days here. The many friends of the family extend condolence in this, their hour of sadness.

The Mills-Howard Commission Company report the sale for the Big Canyon Ranch of 8,000 yearling muttons to Geth N. Patterson, a Kansas City buyer. The shipping of these sheep has just been completed and consisted of 32 carloads.

Judge G. J. Henshaw returned the latter part of last week from Austin, where he went to make another appeal to the State Highway Commission to complete State Highway No. 3 through Lezier Canyon. Two years ago the commission promised that the contracts would be let. This time they still make such promises. It is to be hoped that this road will soon be finished, for it is not until then will we get our share of the tourist travel and trade.

Mrs. C. F. Heas and daughter Miss Margaret, and son, Elmer, were week-end visitors in El Paso.

We are affiliated with the National Association of Cleaners and Dyers, thereby getting ideas direct from the nations' foremost cleaners, enabling us to do the best dry cleaning available. EMPIRE TAILORS.

CLEAN UP! PAINT UP!

Everything is in readiness to make Clean Up Week a big success. The town has been divided into zones so that a truckman will be sure to call at every home and take away the accumulated rubbish. This rubbish should be in a container of some kind to make it easily handled. You owe it to yourself, your neighbors, and your town to clean out all the junk, weeds and other refuse lying around so that sanitary conditions will be improved. This is very necessary with the hot weather coming on if disease is to be prevented. Besides it will make your own home more wholesome and attractive.

There will be no charge of any kind for carting your rubbish so please have it and let us have a cleaner town.

MARFA WINS IN 12th

Playing airtight baseball Sanderson lost one of the best games ever played on the local diamond to Marfa last Sunday. Up to the 5th inning neither side scored and Sanderson brought one in. Marfa brought one in the 7th. From then it was a pitchers battle up to 12th inning, when Lugan started for Marfa by hitting a single followed Bratcher who made several bases on errors scoring Lugan. The final score was 3-1 in favor of Marfa.

Smoky Woods pitched a good allowing but 7 hits, passed 1 and hit one. Sanderson got 11 hits off Howard.

The local team will go to Marfa Sunday to play a return game.

AS IT LOOKS TO ME

By JACK AINSLIE
"Going Up In the Air."

Among my acquaintances I number one young man who is a "flying ace." However, so far as I know, he has never been up in the air.

He does his flying by "going up in the air" in a flying rage upon little or no provocation. He has broken a number of altitude records during his flights. Meanwhile, he has wrecked a few delightful friendships and has seriously injured his business.

Temper, no doubt, has its proper functions in the life scheme of the human species. Circumstances or conditions may arise which ought to arouse the anger of any normal minded person. Obviously, there is such a thing as righteous indignation.

But the type of person who is equipped with an eight cylinder temper and runs about with the cut-off valve open is a common nuisance. His temperamental outbursts are a source of annoyance to his family, his friends and his business associates. Moreover, he is a serious obstacle to his own peace of mind and usefulness.

Going up in the air in a fit of temper is a poor way to climb the heights of success. Such flights usually end in a crash in which friendships are forfeited, social standing is injured and business or professional prestige is sacrificed.

The habitual inclination to honk off on a flight of temper calls for a reversal of mental gears and a pull on the lever of self control.

Otherwise, one is doomed to take a nose dive to failure.

About $1,000,000 was transferred from the general fund to the available state school fund May 1 because revenue from the three-cent gasoline tax was insufficient to care for the appropriations made to the school fund, State Treasurer W. Gregory Hatcher reports.

Approximately three square miles of territory were added to Houston's area last week when the city council passed the annexation ordinance extending the city limits to include Park Place, Golfcrest, Brookline and much land in the vicinity of the Ship Channel and of Hermann park.

Economic Problems That Can Be Solved by Application of Proper Principles

By WILLIAM T. FOSTER, Economic Research Official.

OVERPRODUCTION and unemployment are problems subject to human control without any radical change in government. A first step is to recognize a fact long ignored by economists, that producing goods does not automatically furnish buyers. Once we recognize the existence of the problem we are nine-tenths of the way toward a solution.

The last 12 months manufacturers turned over goods in excess of $6,000,000,000 to buyers who did not have the money to pay. Of this, $3,000,000,000 is not yet paid for. Yet the price level has steadily declined. The Simple Simons of our day do not have to face many Piemen who demand "first your penny." They say rather, "Take your goods and pay as you can." This situation is merely an indication that business faces overproduction. It forecasts business without a buyer. It is postponing a recession of business that it cannot postpone very long.

No nation has yet studied consumption. Every national system is organized to finance production on the principle that the people will have the money to buy what they have worked to manufacture.

We could leave all this as it is, allow every individual to act as he sees fit, make no changes in our monetary system and still solve the problem. We could do this by so ordering our vast government expenditures and receipts that they could serve as proper and adequate corrective measures to periods of too much production or not enough buying. This is all that is necessary for business to go forward with confidence.

"Catch Them Young" if Childish Emotions Are to Be Properly Trained

By DR. BIRD T. BALDWIN, University of Iowa.

The way to train children's emotions and build up desirable character traits is to "catch them young" and use modern psychological methods. Use modern methods of analyzing their temperamental differences and emotional trends, follow direct scientific methods of training desirable traits through daily activities, and provide abundant association with other children.

Undesirable emotions can be readily eliminated through the substitution of desirable emotional attitudes, interest and habits, integrated into the daily activities of the schoolroom or home. Nagging has no place in this program.

Illustrative character studies from the Iowa preschool laboratories, where children are admitted at the age of eighteen months and have been studied daily for nearly six years, demonstrate how the ordinary fears of childhood and adult life had been eliminated or avoided, how undue self-consciousness and timidity had been overcome, and self-confidence and self-control developed.

Pronounced egotism and selfishness have been thwarted. One study was used to a bright child's intelligence rating through a period of six years of daily observation and training.

Character, emotional, esthetic and social training should form an integral part of every modern elementary school curriculum.

Greater Sympathy Should Be Shown Toward Less Favored Nations by America

By REV. GEORGE CHALMERS RICHMOND, Detroit Religious Forum.

America's attitude toward China during the next four years will be an important factor in our industrial expansion and success. If we, as a nation, expect to do big business throughout the world ten years from now we must show a far greater sympathy for those nations which today are in the midst of political turmoil and industrial revolution. The old-time American leaders of industry showed greater sympathy and broader vision than those of today.

Big business should consider the needs of the smaller nations as well as the opportunity for commercial exploitation. The lack of effort to promote world peace and the failure of industrialists to recognize religion as a factor in promoting international good will are to be deplored.

The young men who spend their Saturdays nights gambling, in destructive orgies and in breaking laws, will never rise to leadership in the American business world, or in any other domain of life where character is of consequence.

Provision for Recreational Facilities Important in Any Community

By TOM H. WELCH, Detroit Building Authority.

Adequate recreational facilities for children are an important factor in a community program for the prevention of juvenile delinquency. We all are of the opinion that the pace of the city is too fast. Nothing else can be expected if home life is limited to the four walls of an apartment. The child seeks outside interests and in many cases becomes a victim of the wrong kind of associates.

Usually the home life is no higher than the level of the surrounding neighborhood. How necessary, then, it is to build in a community where every precaution has been taken to assure a high class of neighbors and recreational facilities that are clean and near the home. It is important that parents recognize the existence of behavior problems in the home, the school and in the community and that recreational developments must be planned to deal with the conduct disorders of its youthful members with special emphasis on preventive work.

Issues Between Fundamentalism and Modernism Are Vital and Clear

By REV. JOHN ROACH STRATON, New York.

Modernists, rationalists and so-called liberals do not concede any external religious authority, but say the final authority is in the individual consciousness. Every man, they say, is conscience-bound to obey only the inner voice. This conception, when logically followed out, leads inevitably to religious anarchy. It flows out of the evolutionary philosophy, which is the real foundation of modernism.

Modern educational principles flowing from the false teachings of Freud and others, which carry with them the exalting of the individual judgment as the real seat of authority are what are doing most of the mischief today. The foolish idea is given to our children that they can cut loose from the teachings and traditions, restraints and inspirations of the past and do as they please in their so-called "search for truth," "quest for reality," "self-expression," "personal right to happiness," etc. The motto today seems to be "Nothing old is true and nothing new is false."

U. S. ROAD AID FOR TEXAS IS AVAILABLE

Program for New Roads and for Reconstruction Approved By Chief of Bureau.

Austin, Tex.—Restoration of Federal road aid to the Texas highway system and approval of tentative allotments of Federal road money made by the new State Highway Commission has been announced by Thomas H. McDonald, chief of the National Government's Bureau of Roads.

Aid was withdrawn from the state during the last highway commission's term when the Federal bureau became dissatisfied with maintenance of Federal aided roads.

"The Highway Commission has satisfied the Bureau as to the future maintenance of those Federal aided roads previously built which have been inadequately maintained. A program for the use of Federal aid in Texas in the work of reconstruction and a new construction has been agreed upon generally, and those projects to which allotments of Federal aid have been tentatively made by the Highway Commission are in line with this program and will be approved at once," McDonald said.

About $6,500,000 in aid will be available to the state this year and about $4,000,000 for 1928, the discrepancy being caused by the fact that the state thus far this year has received no allotments.

Jeppson moved ponderously away to go, while Rodney, opening his big box in the hall, drew out the pincettes and chrysanthemums and proceeded to arrange them in a gorgeous armful. Bangs had unexpected taste in color and arrangement, as Epstein's stage-directors had discovered in the past. Laurie watched him with polite interest.

be long drawn out and perfect." Her manner changed.
"I have an idea that perhaps, after all, I'll be here when he gets back," she added more lightly. "Life still has its interests. But, if I happen not to be here, tell him why I didn't cable."

CHAPTER IX
An Invitation
That evening Laurie walked across the square to Doris' studio with a decision in his stride which definitely expressed his mental attitude. He had come to the conclusion that something must be done. What this something would be was still hazy in his mind, but the first step at least seemed clear. Doris must move.

"If I moved, how long do you think it would take him to find me?"
"Weeks, perhaps months,"
Again she shook her head.
"I moved here a few days ago. He appeared exactly forty-eight hours later. If I moved from here it would only mean going through the game of hare and hounds again."

Women Who Helped Win the West

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
SUNDAY, May 8, the heart of America will be quickened at the thought of one word—"Mother."
For that is Mother's day, an annual event which is generally observed, not by Presidential proclamation, legislative enactment or church dictum, but because sentiment decrees that the second Sunday in May of each year shall be the day upon which we honor the women who gave us birth.

The Pioneer Mother
She came to rock the cradle of a new empire. Adventure calls to men, but duty summons women. And so, when the time was ripe to break new stars for the flag, she set forth from Maine and Ohio and Killarney's loveliness and her Swedish village and her hard home to mother the wilderness.

Modern Babes
Bobby, age six, had been quite naughty, and had received a rather old-fashioned spanking. Jane, recently started to Sunday school, was glorified at Bobby's quick recovery from the affair, and, seeking to bring him to deeper repentance, asked him whether he were not sorry to have been so bad that he had to be spanked.

When the frontier was pushed back to the summit of the Appalachian mountains the pioneer mother stood beside her man and looked down into the fertile Ohio valley and saw with him the vision of their future home.

When the frontier was pushed back to the summit of the Appalachian mountains the pioneer mother stood beside her man and looked down into the fertile Ohio valley and saw with him the vision of their future home. She also faced the unknown terrors of the "Dark and Bloody Ground" of Kentucky and helped him hold it against the frenzied attempts of the Indians to eject the white man from his best-loved hunting ground.

IN DAYS OF OUR FOREFATHERS

Women Prepared Their Own Medicines

The wise pioneer women learned to gather, in woods and fields, the remedies the Indians used. From the rafters of colonial houses, hung great bunches of dried roots and herbs. From these, in times of sickness, the busy mother brewed simple and powerful remedies. From roots and herbs, Lydia E. Pinkham, a descendant of these sturdy pioneers, made her Vegetable Compound. The beneficial effects of this dependable medicine are vouched for by hundreds of women. Mrs. Wm. Kraft of 2838 Vinewood Ave., Detroit, Mich., saw a Pinkham advertisement in the "News" one day and made up her mind that she would give the Compound a trial. At that time she was very weak. "After the first bottle," she writes, "I began to feel better and like a new woman after taking six bottles. I recommend it to others and always keep a bottle in the house." Mrs. Gust Green of 401 Lincoln Park Boulevard, Rockford, Illinois, found herself in a condition similar to that of Mrs. Kraft. "I was weak and run-down," she writes, "but the Vegetable Compound has helped me and I feel better now. I recommend it to all women who need more strength."

Dallas Woman Praises Tanlac

"At a time when I was troubled with irregular bowel movements, I became very nervous and was down in weight," writes Mrs. J. A. Wakefield, of 1504 W. 12th St., Dallas, Texas, wife of an electrician for the Dallas Power & Light Co. "My husband, under even severer conditions of stomach pains, gas, bloating, etc., had been completely relieved by Tanlac. So I, too, took Tanlac, and likewise with splendid results. "I gained about 15 lbs., my nerves were strengthened, and now whenever a nervous spell threatens me, I take a bottle of Tanlac, and am all right again." Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE LESS FORTUNATE

"I think it would be a good idea," suggested Uncle John, "for you both to visit the blind children. You have seen so much and your eyes have been so busy that perhaps it would be a good thing for us all to realize how much we have to be thankful for—something even more than all the wonders—and you can both guess what I mean."

"I'd like to visit the blind children," said Dorothy.

"Let's read them some of our stories," said Douglas.

Off they went and when they were inside the large building to which Uncle John had taken them Dorothy said:

"I hear them reading aloud. Really I do!"

"They can't see to read," said Douglas. "How can they be reading aloud? You must be hearing others—or perhaps they're chatting."

"I'm sure they're reading," persisted Dorothy. "I can tell from the way they go straight on and on. When people talk, they stop and laugh and then talk some more."

To be sure when they went inside a big room where there were a great many children, several were reading aloud to little groups.

"And they have books before them!" explained Douglas.

"Yes," said Uncle John, "the stories are made on a queer kind of paper with raised letters. We shall talk to some of the children and see for ourselves—and feel for ourselves."

Douglas and Dorothy soon were talking to many of the blind children. They were shown the work that the blind children did—the things they could make and mend, the baskets and things they wove, and the beads they strung.

And the blind children seemed so happy! They were busy and enjoying everything they were doing. They had some plants which they showed to Douglas and Dorothy.

And though they couldn't see the green leaves and the bright little blossoms, still they felt them as though the cheerful, growing plants gave by their touch some of their brightness.

For a long time Douglas and Dorothy stayed and talked with the blind children. They had a jolly time, but when they came outside they were very quiet.

"Didn't you have a good time, children?" asked Uncle John.

"Don't you think the work they do is remarkable—without being able to see?"

"Yes," answered Dorothy slowly, "their work is wonderful, but to me what is more wonderful still is that the wonders of the city are all, all dark to them, and yet they are so happy and make those around them happy."

"And we often get so grumpy when we have everything—the wonders of the city and real eyes to see them with."

HEMLINES TAKE ON IMPORTANCE; SUITABLE FOR BOUDOIR OR BEACH

SEEING that the charm of the "sweetly feminine" is fashion's favorite theme, chiffons and kindred diaphanous fabrics have assumed a position of foremost importance for the making of afternoon and evening frocks. What a summer of airy fairy dresses, these lovely sheer materials promise! In regard to the exquisitely dainty gowns in prospect for the days to come here is a gentle hint—watch the hemlines! Indeed, hemlines are one of the surprising discoveries of this day and age in the realm of fashion. We are being educated to a point of appreciation in regard to hemlines—now in themselves they have the power to take away or give youth to the silhouette. So it is that the stylist is manipulating these delightful light-some sheer fabrics with every artifice, that their fluttering swaying hemlines may achieve enchanting grace.

Mildly especially delights to dine and dance in filmy black touched with a flattering shade of pink. From the studio of a leading member of the Fashion Art League of America comes the alluring evening dress of black chiffon here pictured. Its intriguing hemline is wide-edged with lovely rose-pink chiffon, embellished with an exquisite hand-embroidery done in silver, crystal and rhinestones.

As to the sleevelessness of this gown, both sleeved and unsleeved receive the endorsement of the mode for the sheer dress. If a distinction must be drawn, it is the frock of gay-print chiffon which achieves its smartness through snug-fitting-to-the-wrist sleeves, also the transparent black lace modes. When it comes to the monotone chiffons, especially black, sans sleeves is the general rule.

One cannot overstate the favor for lace-trimmed chiffons and georgettes. The lace may be cream, beige or black.

If too gorgeously gay, for Mistress Fashion dotes on bold patterning and daring color for both house and beach robes.

If you prefer to buy rather than to design your negligees then be sure to jot down on your shopping list one "gay-print pajama ensemble." See to it that the coat is styled after the model in this picture—that is, if you plan to let it also do duty for a beach robe, in which event it would be better to order a parasol made out of the identical printed silk, for matching sets of parasol and three-quarter length coats are very popular for the beach, if not in silk, then of cretonne.

In regard to negligees, some there are who prefer the fully feminine versions, and of these there are lovely styles being shown made of printed chiffon lined with chiffon in a solid tone.

A fascinating play on color is possible with tinted chiffon by placing one pastel color over another, suggesting a lovely rainbow effect. Quantities of filmy lace trims many of the chiffon negligees, with long wing-like sleeves, adding enchantment to their appearance.

Contrasting these aesthetic trailing tea-gown effects, are the sprightly youthful models now so much in vogue, which usually have a deep flounce. These are made either of printed chiffons or flowered voiles.

When They Became Engaged

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

SOMETIMES Tom sat tozely at the little writing table for an hour or more writing to his beloved Edith. Sometimes he just sprawled out in an easy chair before the fire idly dreaming—of Edith, who lived eight hundred miles away and whom he saw but seldom.

This keeping bachelor apartments with a man engaged was beginning to get on Tom's nerves. For weeks, even before Tom was engaged, he had been, as Jim thought, mentally unbalanced.

Perhaps the worst feature of Tom's malady was his apparent joyousness. He whistled like a canary bird when he dressed in the morning. He always thought the weather was fine and he always felt tip top. In a way Jim envied him. But then, thought Jim, Tom no doubt deserved what happiness he felt. Falling in love—loving a girl before he knew whether she cared for him, proposing—after these dreaded preliminaries he surely deserved a period of bliss.

Kate Fenwick had worked in the same office with Jim for two or three years. Nice girl, Kate—was what he thought about her if he thought anything. He saw her and talked with her every day. She usually took his dictation. Sometimes she showed him little things she had bought—wedding presents for girls who were getting married, little toys for her nephews and nieces.

Business was extremely brisk toward spring and it was apparent one Saturday that some special reports would have to be put through on Sunday. The president of the concern asked Jim to attend to them and incidentally suggested to Kate Fenwick that she meet Jim at the office to take dictation.

They began working that spring Sunday at nine o'clock and Jim was so interested in his work that he never once thought of Kate as anything more than an automaton until it was past twelve. That was one thing that made Kate such a good stenographer. She was never obtrusive—didn't use perfume or wear dangling bracelets or bright colors.

They finished their work at about the same time and for no reason in particular Jim asked Kate what she was going to do next. Kate looked up, blushing a little, and Jim felt that perhaps he had been abrupt with her. She had worked like a little steam engine and he had never thought of her as being even human. That is why he asked her to have luncheon with him. There were so few places open downtown on Sunday and she lived far uptown. After luncheon he asked her again what she was going to do, and again she blushed and said nothing. "I'm going to take a ferry across the river and then take a walk along the river bank on the other side," he told her. Kate said she envied him and so Jim asked her if she would care to go with him.

Spring in the air made the river bank very beautiful that afternoon, and as Jim and Kate climbed up and down the steep embankments Jim held Kate's round little arm to keep her from slipping. He made no effort to be agreeable or otherwise to this girl whom he saw every day but he began to realize that it was very good to have her with him.

Then they sat on an embedded boulder that looked out over the river below. Jim felt as if he were a thousand miles away from the city. He looked at the shapely hand stretched out on the rock beside him, and studied those fingers that had worked so efficiently for him that morning.

It seemed the most natural thing in the world to lift that hand up in his and as it felt very docile he lifted it to his lips to kiss it. Suddenly Jim felt awkward. He felt as if he had arrived somewhere without knowing how he had come. He began to wonder whether he could trace his steps back again. Then he wondered whether he really wanted to.

"You aren't angry with me, are you?" Kate? he asked.

"Of course not, Jim," she said, and he noticed that tears gleamed in her pretty brown eyes. "You know I have always liked you, Jim."

"And I have always thought you the best stenographer in the world," said Jim, feeling suddenly that perhaps he had better find his way back again. But Kate took her hand away from him and turned, trying in vain to hide a falling tear.

"I think much more than that," said Jim, feeling suddenly very forlorn without that little hand in his. He took it back again and kissed it.

"I'm so happy, Jim—dear," said Kate, and then without knowing how it happened Jim realized that his arms were around Kate and that her smooth little head was resting on his shoulder.

When Jim got back to the apartment at six that night he found Tom sprawling in an easy chair before the fireplace in which glowed a few fading embers. Jim took off his coat and hat and dropped down in a chair on the other side of the fireplace. For an hour the two men sat there—the same rafter foolish, contented expression written on both faces. Then when the last flicker of light died from the embers Tom roused himself. He suggested having something to eat.

"Something to eat—that's right—I'd forgotten," stammered Jim. "You see, old pal, I'm engaged."

Proposing an amendment of Sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 of Article V of the Constitution of Texas for the purpose of providing a more efficient judicial system.

Be it Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas:

Section 1: That Sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 of Article V of the Constitution of the State of Texas, be amended so as to read as follows:

Section 2 (of Article V): The Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and eight Associate Justices, five of whom shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of five Judges shall be necessary to the decision of a case. No person shall be eligible to the office of Chief Justice or Associate Justice of the Supreme Court unless he be, at the time of his election or appointment, a citizen of the United States and of this State, and unless he shall have attained the age of thirty years and shall have been a licensed lawyer for seven years and, during that time, shall have been a practicing lawyer or Judge of a court of record, or such practicing lawyer and judge

Said Chief Justice and Associate Justices shall be elected by the qualified voters of the State, at a general election, and shall hold their offices six years, or until their successors are elected and qualify, and shall receive such compensation as may be provided by law. In case of a vacancy in the office of Chief Justice or Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, the Governor shall fill the vacancy until the next general election for State officers, and at such general election the vacancy for the unexpired term shall be filled by election by the qualified voters of the State. The Judges of the Supreme Court who may be in office at the time this amendment takes effect shall continue in office until the expiration of their terms of office under the present Constitution and until their successors are elected and qualify. When this amendment takes effect the Governor shall immediately appoint six additional Associate Justices of the Supreme Court for terms of office so that the terms of two of such appointed Associate Justices shall expire with the term of office of each of the present members of the Supreme Court, and, upon the qualification of such new Justices, the Commission of Appeals of the State of Texas shall terminate.

Section 3 (of Article V): The Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction only, except as herein specified, which shall be co-extensive with the limits of the State. Its appellate jurisdiction shall extend to questions of law arising in the cases in the Courts of Civil Appeals in which the Judges of any Court of Civil Appeals may disagree or where the several courts of civil appeals may hold differently on the same question of law, or where a statute of the State is held void, and to questions of law arising in such other cases of which the Courts of Civil Appeals have appellate jurisdiction as may be prescribed by law; provided, that the Legislature may authorize direct appeals from the County and District Courts in any case where a statute of the State has been declared void. The Supreme Court and the Judges thereof shall have power to issue writs of habeas corpus as may be prescribed by law; and, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, the said Court and the Judges thereof may issue the writs of mandamus, procedendo, certiorari, and such other writs as may be necessary to enforce its jurisdiction. The Legislature may confer original jurisdiction on the Supreme Court to issue writs of quo warranto and mandamus in such cases as may be specified except as against the Governor of the State. The Supreme Court shall also have power, upon affidavit or otherwise, as by the Court may be determined, to ascertain such matters of fact as may be necessary to the proper exercise of its jurisdiction. The Supreme Court shall be open at all times and shall sit at the State Capital for the transaction of business at such times as may be designated by the Court. The present statutes defining the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court not in conflict herewith shall continue in effect until repealed or altered by the Legislature. The Supreme Court shall appoint a Clerk, who shall give bond in such manner as is now or may hereafter be provided by law, and he may hold his office for four years, and shall be subject to removal by said Court for good cause entered of record on the minutes of said Court, and who shall receive such compensation as the Legislature may provide.

Section 4 (of Article V): The Court of Criminal Appeals shall consist of three Judges, provided that the Legislature may increase the number to five, and a majority of the Judges shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of a majority of the Judges shall be necessary to the decision of any case. Said Judges shall have the same qualifications and receive the same salaries as the Judges of the Supreme Court. They shall be elected by the qualified voters of the State, at a general election, and shall hold their offices for a term of six years. The Judges of the Court of Criminal Appeals who may be in office at the time this amendment takes effect shall continue in office until the expiration of their terms of office under the present Constitution and laws.

Section 5 (of Article V): The Court of Criminal Appeals shall have appellate jurisdiction co-extensive with the limits of the State in all criminal cases of whatever grade, and such exceptions and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, and the Legislature may confer original jurisdiction upon it to issue writs of mandamus, procedendo and certiorari in criminal cases. The Court of Criminal Appeals shall have the power to issue the writ of habeas corpus and, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, issue such writs as may be necessary to enforce its own jurisdiction. The Court of Criminal Appeals shall have the power, upon affidavit or otherwise, to ascertain such matters of fact as may be necessary to the exercise of its jurisdiction. Said Court shall be open at all times and shall sit at the State Capital for the transaction of business at such time as may be designated by it. Said Court shall appoint a clerk, who shall give bond in such manner as is now or may hereafter be required by law, and he shall hold his office for four years, unless sooner removed by the Court for good cause entered of record on the minutes of said Court, and said Clerk shall receive such compensation as may be prescribed by law.

Section 6 (of Article V): The Legislature shall, from time to time, divide the State into such number of Supreme Judicial Districts as to it may seem necessary, not exceeding twelve at any one time, and shall have the power to re-district the State at any time, and shall establish a Court of Civil Appeals in each of said Districts, which Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and not less than two Associate Justices as the Legislature may provide, who shall have the qualifications as herein prescribed for Justices of the Supreme Court, provided that the aggregate number of Judges of all the Courts of Civil Appeals shall never at one time exceed thirty-six. Each of the existing Courts of Civil Appeals shall continue until otherwise provided by law. The Courts of Civil Appeals shall have appellate jurisdiction co-extensive with the limits of their respective districts, which shall extend to all civil cases of which the District Courts or County Courts have original or appellate jurisdiction, under such restrictions and regulations as may be prescribed by law; provided, that the decisions of said Courts shall be conclusive on all questions of fact brought before them on appeal or error. Such Courts of Civil Appeals shall hold their sessions at such places as may be designated by the Legislature and at such times as may be prescribed by law. Said Justices shall be elected by the qualified voters of their respective Districts, at a general election, for a term of six years, and shall receive such compensation as may be provided by law. Said Courts shall have such other jurisdiction, original and appellate, as may be prescribed by law. Each Court of Civil Appeals shall appoint a Clerk in the same manner as the Clerk of the Supreme Court, which Clerk shall receive such compensation as may be fixed by law. The Judges of the Courts of Civil Appeals who may be in office when this amendment takes effect shall hold their offices until their respective terms shall expire under their present election or appointment.

Section 7 (of Article V): The State shall be divided into as many Judicial Districts as may now or hereafter be provided by law, which may be increased or diminished by law. For each district there shall be elected by the qualified voters thereof, at a general election, a Judge, who shall be a citizen of the United States, and of this State, who shall have been a licensed lawyer for four years next preceding his election, and during that time shall have been a practicing lawyer or Judge of a Court of record or such practicing lawyer and Judge together, who shall have resided in the District in which he was elected for two years next preceding his election, who shall reside in his District during his term of office, who shall hold his office for the term of four years and shall receive for his services such compensation as may be prescribed by law. He shall hold the regular terms of his Court at the County seat of each County in his district at least twice in each year, in such manner as may be prescribed by law. The Legislature shall have power, by general or special laws, to authorize the holding of special terms of the court or the holding of more than two terms in any County for the dispatch of business. The Legislature shall also provide for the holding of District Court when the Judge thereof is absent or is, from any cause, disabled or disqualified from presiding. The Supreme Court of the State, in the absence of such regulations enacted by the Legislature, the District Judges who may be in office when this amendment takes effect shall hold their offices until their respective terms shall expire under their present election or appointment.

Section 8: Said proposed amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the electors of this State qualified to vote on constitutional amendments at an election to be held throughout the State on the first Monday in August, A. D. 1927, at which each voter opposing said amendment shall scratch off of the ballot with pen or pencil the following words printed thereon:

"For the amendment to the State Constitution amending Sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 of Article V of the Constitution of Texas for the purpose of providing a more efficient judicial system;" and each voter favoring said amendment shall scratch off of the ballot in the same manner, the following words printed thereon:

"Against the amendment to the State Constitution amending Sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 of Article V of the Constitution of Texas for the purpose of providing a more efficient judicial system."

If it shall appear from a return of said election that a majority of the votes cast have been cast in favor of said amendment, it shall become a part of the Constitution of the State of Texas.

Sec. 3: The Governor shall issue his proclamation calling said election and have the same published and said election held in accordance with this resolution and the Constitution and laws of this State; and return shall be made and the votes canvassed and counted as provided by law; and if said amendment is adopted by the required vote of the qualified electors of this State, the Governor shall issue his proclamation as required by law.

Sec. 4: The sum of twelve thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of the State Treasury to pay for publication of the proclamation calling said election and any expense of the State in submitting said amendment and holding said election.

Approved March 10, 1927.

Dinner Bridge Party.

A lovely affair of last week was the dinner bridge last Wednesday when Mrs. C. H. Mulkey entertained several friends honoring Mr. Mulkey's birthday anniversary. The guests were led to the dining room, where a large birthday cake was the central adornment of the table. The cake was cut and much merriment was caused by the birthday emblems found in it. The guests then found their places at the individual bridge tables where they were served a plate dinner, following which bridge was played. High score prizes went to Mrs. B. P. Franklin and L. H. Lemons, and Mrs. T. H. Butler and Ray Caldwell won low score prizes.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ray Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Buchanan, Mrs. D. A. Pollard, Mrs. B. P. Franklin, Mrs. T. H. Butler and Mrs. M. A. Boling and Messrs. L. H. Lemons, P. R. Gorman and C. I. White.

Mrs. E. P. Halley entertained the members of the L. A. to B. of R. T. with a 42 party at her home last Saturday. After several interesting games prizes were awarded to Mrs. C. Surratt and Mrs. Ida Bodkin for highest scores. The hostess, assisted by her sister, Mrs. Ed. Reeves served delicious sandwiches, cakes, and tea to ten ladies.
