M. H. Goode Has Eye Hurt.

M. H. Goode Sr., prominent ranchman, had the misfortune to have a piece of wood that was being cut, to fly up and hit him in the eye. He was first carried to San Angelo for treatment but the injured eye did not seem to respond to treatment. He was brought to town Saturday and was carried to El Paso, where it is to be hoped that the injured member will respond to treatment, and that he will not lose his sight.

Mrs. W. H. Savage visited her sister, Mrs. T. Maxey Hart in San Antonio this week.

J. C. STANSELL PASSES SUDDENLY AT HIS HOME

Sixty-five years of busy, useful life came to an end for J. C. Stansell, well known and respected citizen of Sanderson, last Saturday night, at his home here. He was found dead in his bed Sunday morning by his son, J. Calvin Stansell, who was called to the home when repeated knocks upon his bedroom door failed to receive an answer from Mr. Stansell.

J. C. Stansell had been a resident of Sanderson for many years, serving here as agent for the Southern Pacific Railway. He was a quiet, unassuming, industrious man of sterling integrity and many splendid traits of character. His death is a distinct loss to the city and community, where, as a public servant, he so long and faithfully served the interests of transportation.

The deceased was born in Acworth, Ga., June 20, 1832. On March 12, 1855, he was married to Clementine R. Watson, at Bentonville, Ark. Of this marriage were born nine children, Kyle, Ivy, May, Olline, Calvin, Caroline, Walter, Paul and Charles, all of whom survive with the exception of Charles. Mrs. Stansell passed away on December 21, 1922.

Mr. Stansell was for many years a member of the Presbyterian Church, being an elder in the Presbyterian Church at Sanderson and actively identified with the activities of the local church. He was also a Mason of long standing and a member of O. E. S. and of the Sanderson Rotary Club.

The remains were sent to San Antonio Monday morning, where burial took place Tuesday afternoon. Services were conducted at the home here Sunday evening by members of the Sanderson Masonic Lodge. By special request of the deceased some time previous to his death, funeral services were conducted by the Rev. J. A. McMILLAN, pastor of the Sanderson Presbyterian Church, the rites being held in San Antonio.

A delightful plate lunch of sandwiches, potato chips, olives, stuffed celery, cake and coffee was served.

Culture Club Meets.

The regular meeting of the Sanderson Culture Club was held last Friday at the home of Mrs. Clyde Mills with Mrs. Mills and Mrs. R. B. Dyer as hostesses.

The leader for the afternoon was Mrs. John Stovell, who was assisted on the program by Mrs. E. J. Chastain and Mrs. D. A. Pollard. Mrs. A. D. Brown gave an interesting resume of the previous lesson.

Following the business meeting a social hour was held. The hostesses served cherry pie with whipped cream and coffee. Plate favors were miniature hatchets containing candy.

SUNBEAMS HAVE A DELIGHTFUL MEETING

The little band of Sunbeams held a very interesting social meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the Masonic Hall. Having as their guest their mothers and fathers and several friends the little Sunbeams gave a very interesting and entertaining program with Florence Hurst as program leader. Following is the program:

Song No. 403; Scripture reading, St. Mark 10:13-16, by leader; solo, Royetta Knox; reading, Lavern Halley; reading, "February," Howard Black; violin solo, Melvin Pollard, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. J. A. White; reading, Harry Lewellen; reading, Lillian Halley; reading, "The Bible," Evelyn Owen; reading, "God Bless Our Country," Tom Stovell; reading by John Fisher Charlton; song, "Jesus Loves Me," Mary Mansfield, Dorothy Lewellen and Dorothy Owen.

This is a splendid work that these little Sunbeams are doing and it was very gratifying to see so many mothers and fathers out at this meeting. Our community should be very proud of this little band of workers as they have not only the largest number of workers but are very interested in the work of our Lord.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cookies and cocoa were served.

A DOCTOR'S ADVICE GO LIGHT ON LAXATIVES!

Everyone needs a laxative AT TIMES. But there's no need for making it a HABIT. If you have the habit, you can be rid of it in thirty days. Or less! And this is how:

The next time you go to take any strong cathartic—DON'T. Instead, take a little cascara. That's not a vicious drug, but the bark of a tree. The laxative made with cascara couldn't harm a child. It is, in fact, the one cathartic many physicians will approve for children. Gentle as it is, cascaring is just as thorough in cleansing the colon as the more powerful purges that actually sap a person's strength.

Proof that there's no habit from cascara begins the very day after taking.

Instead of being clogged worse than ever, the bowels are more inclined to move OF THEIR OWN ACCORD. You may have to take cascara several times to establish regularity. But the times you need this gentle stimulant grow further apart. And you NEVER find you must increase the amount.
Cascara's ideal form is the candy cascarol that pleases any palate, and you'll find them at the first drugstore you ask.

5,800 AMERICANS STUDY IN FRANCE

Most of Them Working in Arts or Liberal Arts.

Paris.—Though college youths are missing and university grid tennis unknown, American students are flocking to France by the thousands to round out their education, statistics revealed by the American University union in Paris show.
Exactly 5,870 Yankee students are enrolled in French universities, and the vast majority are working in the arts or the liberal arts, the report divulges.

The University of Paris, of course, leads all other institutions, with 1,000 Americans enrolled. Of this number, 1,031 are in the school of letters, 742 taking the special course de civilisation, which was specially designed by the rector of the university to give the American student a general and broad view of European and especially French culture.

Forty-eight are in the Sorbonne preparatory school and the other 241 are scattered through the other departments of the Sorbonne. Sixteen Americans are law students in France's greatest law school, sixteen in the medical college, and six in the science medical college, and six in the sciences.

The charm of Grenoble, lying in the snow-capped Alps, attracts 80 Americans to the University of Grenoble, with 263 more attending the summer school there. Several hundred other students are scattered about such provincial cities as Poitiers, Tour, Dijon, Toulouse, Nancy, Bordeaux, Rennes and Lyons, this number preferring student life in the provinces, where they have greater opportunity to come directly in touch with French people and where their progress in the language is accordingly more rapid.

The Alliance Francaise, a school devoted exclusively to instruction of foreigners in the French language, has more Americans than all other nationalities put together. Seven hundred and fifty-six are enrolled there.

Rat Killing Profession of Two College Girls

New York.—Overcoming the feminine aversion to rodents, two college girls, Miss Helen Caldwell, graduate of the University of West Virginia and Miss Evelyn Wagar, graduate of the University of Minnesota, have adopted rat killing as a profession. "We have already exterminated rats in important cities in 29 of the United States, two provinces in Canada, Hawaii, Alaska and many Mexican border cities," Miss Caldwell said. "As we travel in our own automobile we have had much sightseeing and pleasure as well as profit out of our profession, and we can recommend it to other college girls."

Miss Caldwell got her original idea from a community rat drive in Virginia, during which she learned the use of barium carbonate, the most effective rat poison known, from her study of chemistry in college.

Job of Headman Is Attraction to Many

Paris.—A deaf and dumb hairdresser is among many candidates for the job of executioner of France. The job, to their disappointment, isn't open, for Anatole Diebler, who inherited it, doesn't intend to resign. Besides the coiffeur, a boxer, a lawyer, three engineers, and a bridge builder have asked for the appointment as headman, a mechanical trade now, since the guillotine does the work.

Diebler, believing in heredity in office, but having no son, is meantime training his nephew to set up the "widow," as the machine is called, and to press the button that drops the triangular blade. He hopes thus to offer a well-trained man as his successor when the time comes for him to retire to the country and "plant his cabbage," the ambition of the French bourgeoisie.

Toss Away Your Hammer and Read of This Old Boy

Yosemite National Park, Calif.—"Old Horn," the freak Yosemite deer, has again sprouted the extra horn growing out from his snout which caused his being named the rhino buck or unicorn deer.

When he first grew this extra spike, and shed it with his regular antlers, there was much speculation as to whether it would come back when the new antlers grew out. It has—this time a two-pointed one in place of the spike of last year.

Old Horn is a well-developed specimen of the mule deer, apparently normal except for his twisted, irregularly branched antlers and the rhinoceroslike spiked snout.

"A neighbor advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which she said had helped her so much. So I bought a few bottles and tried it out. It sure helped me wonderfully. I felt much better. My work was no longer a dread to me. If I hear of any one who is troubled the way I was, I will gladly recommend the Vegetable Compound to them and I will answer any letters in regard to the same."—Mrs. BERTHA MEACHAM, 1124 N. Penn. Ave., Lansing, Mich.

"I had been sickly ever since I was fifteen years old. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I got so I could do all my housework and I am in good health."—Mrs. MARY K. WILLIAMS, Ketchikan, Alaska.

From Michigan to Alaska, from Maine to Oregon and from Connecticut to California letters are continually being written by grateful women recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The Compound is made from roots and herbs and for more than fifty years has been helping to restore run-down, over-worked women to health.

ANIMAL LIFE SPAN IS 7 TIMES GROWTH

Horse Should Live to 28, Man to 147.

Newark, N. J.—In the animal kingdom, the biological engineers have it the span of life usually is seven times the period of growth. For instance, the life of a horse is 28 years, seven times the period of growth; and the span of the chick is 49 months, seven times the span of the young.

Man matures in 21 years, and seven times that is just short of 150. We should live that long, but don't. Why? Disease, explained Dr. Roy Schaffer, a lecturer, before the Woman's club of Glen Ridge.

"If you go back in history, we find that the average life of the Romans was 18 years. This meant some neglect from the time of birth to death. The average life in America in 1800 was 32 years, in 1900, 45 years, and 57 1/2 years in 1920. In a little more than a century we have almost doubled the expectation of life by taking proper care of our children," he said.

"New York doctors have determined to eradicate diphtheria by 1930, and you can help to do this by using the Schick and other tests. Take an interest in the reports from your school medical inspectors; analyze them and do not pass snap judgment on them. In these ways your organization can make great progress in furthering civilization. A stronger spark of life will be passed on to our children and our boys and girls may live 150 happy years."

Italian Marble Now Is Mined in Colorado

Denver, Colo.—Travertine, a rare building stone, found heretofore only in Italian quarries near Tivoli, has been discovered and is now being produced in a marketable quantity from a quarry near Salda, 75 miles southwest of Denver.

J. J. Kerr, former owner of the estate upon which the stone was found, recognized the material after he had made a trip to Italy to inspect the product of the Tivoli quarries. Immediately he began advancing his newly found enterprise. The quarry on his property has been in operation periodically since 1880, but the product has been used only for its lime deposit. A local storage building was the first to be constructed with it. Shortly after its completion, however, Kerr died.

His estate was bought by Eastern capitalists who began marketing the stone on a nation-wide scale. Several of the leading buildings on both coasts, as well as through the Middle West, have been built with the Colorado product.

According to an official of the producing company, the deposit, composed of crystallized lime or marble coming from hot springs carrying lime solution, is sufficient to last 200 years.

Hot Springs Minerals Are Laid Down Rapidly

Yellowstone Park, Wyo.—The deposits of hot springs limestone, more properly known as "sinter," are laid down very rapidly, according to Margaret Lindsey of the Yellowstone ranger staff, who has been making a study of the phenomena in the park for the geophysical laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

She writes of one of her observations:

"A little wooden cylinder made expressly for measuring the rate of deposition was wired in place near the foot of Jupiter terrace. This point is easily 300 feet from the hot spring at the top and only about five feet above the main highway. The water in tumbling down over the terrace is well aerated and cooled to a little above body temperature. The block and the wire which held it in place were removed 21 days later, covered with a deposit of chalklike travertine to a thickness of from one-half to three-fourths of an inch.

"One might think that the water would lose most of its burden of mineral by the time it was at so great a distance from the point of emergence, but the experiment proves that such is not the case."

Marines on Guard Under Soviet Flag

Peking.—American marines in Peking are the only ones stationed in any important capital of the world to serve under the scarlet and gold banner of Soviet Russia.

Following the raid on the Russian legation last April by armed forces of Marshal Chang Tso-lin, North China's dictator, and subsequent departure of the Russian diplomatic staff and guards, the United States marines were chosen to police the Russian legation quarter.

Every morning a subordinate soviet official goes to a corner of the Russian quarter and raises the soviet flag. Shortly afterward an American marine walking his post, passes underneath the Russian emblem.

All sections of the legation quarter are guarded by the military police of the powers.

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1802, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for youth, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you a prepaid FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

The Green Cloak

By YORKE DAVIS

His first questions were about the book; where she had bought it, and whether, so far as she knew, there were a good many others like it. The girl's whole interest, as shown by her replies, appeared to be to perfect her identification of it. She admitted, reluctantly, that hundreds of them had been sold in the city that fall; admitted that she herself had seen dozens on the street, the counterpart of it in cut and in color. But this particular cloak, she protested, she knew without a doubt to be her own. It was badly rumpled and had been exposed to the weather, was hardly fit to wear any more, but, notwithstanding these facts, she knew that it was hers.

"Oh, no; likely not, sir. She looks a little pale, but I fancy that is no more than because the room is somewhat close."

"Well, it struck me so, sir. And I think, if you'll allow me, it might be well to have that ventilator cleaned. It is really very foul, sir. If you like, I'll speak to them in the office and have them send up a man tomorrow to do it."

"Did we tell you," he asked, "that Phelps and I discovered one map which your detectives had evidently overlooked, an odd sort of map, from a geographer's point of view, drawn on a very large scale? And the queer thing about it was, that it showed neither latitude nor longitude. There was nothing about it to indicate what part of the world it represented. I brought it away with me this morning. I'll show it to you presently if you care to look at it. It's there on the table in that big manila envelope."

"I beg your pardon, sir"—it was Wilkins who spoke—"I wonder if you could spare me now, sir. I'm supposed to be in the dining room at this hour."

"The capacity of a trained servant like Wilkins for eliminating himself, transforming himself into a mere piece of furniture, is something extraordinary. He had sat through the whole examination with a countenance of the same wooden imperturbability that he always wore on duty in the dining room."

"I hope we haven't kept you too long, Wilkins," he said. "It was very good of you to come."

"Not at all, sir. Don't mention it, sir. Sorry I have to leave now."

"Well," said the doctor slowly, "I think we're about through, anyway. Jane here has been ill, and we mustn't keep her too long. I don't think of anything else I want to question you about, Jane. Thank you very much for helping us."

"I removed the little telephone that hung before the girl's lips, and slipped a dollar bill into her hand as he spoke. Then he turned to Wilkins, who had risen, still in his harness, and was scrutinizing, with amused curiosity, the portentously named instrument to which he had been attached."

"The doctor, with a smile, was unstrapping the small recording instruments that were attached to his chest and wrists. "We're very much obliged," he said. "You've really helped us materially. His tone was low and confidential, not intended for the girl's ears. "I don't think she's any the worse for her examination, Wilkins," he concluded.

"Wellington, New Zealand, sir. But how did you know?"

"The answer had come instantly, but the next moment, with eyes perplexed, and with a vague gesture of her hands across them, she said:

"It's queer. It seems as if I had dreamed of talking to you about that."

"You knew, didn't you, Jane, that this Morgan who was murdered was a New Zealander? Oh, New Zealand has produced some great men. You're young, and I suppose you don't remember, perhaps have never even heard of Bully Franklin and Josiah Haines. Old Morgan knew about them, though, I'll wager. He stood for a minute in silence, like one who tastes, in reminiscence, the flavor of an old story."

"Then he pulled himself together and began asking the girl a series of rapid and, to me, rather meaningless questions. They were chiefly about Will Harvey, her acquaintance with him, how long ago it had begun and, in a general way, to what length of intimacy it had gone. The girl answered all these questions freely enough and with no appearance of hesitation.

"He turned away there rather sharply, his back to all of us; tossed his head back once or twice, with a gesture very familiar to me as characteristic of his periods of intense thought. Then, turning back, he spoke to Ashton.

"The doctor fed him also, and liberally, and the next moment the head waiter and the chambermaid were out in the corridor and the door was closed behind them.

"At the sound of that closing door, Ashton exploded, not with impatient anger, as I half expected he would, but with pure amusement. He laughed loud and long, and without the slightest effort to suppress his mirth. Doctor McAlister paid no attention, but let him enjoy his laugh undisturbed.

"Well," said the district attorney when he had got his breath, "I'm really very much obliged. After hearing so much about these psychological examinations, it's interesting to have been present at one."

"The doctor nodded rather grimly. "It's not half as interesting as it will be in about five minutes," he said.

"Come—" said Ashton; "you don't really believe, do you, that you have found out anything, by some subtle, scientific process of yours, about that girl?"

"I know all about the girl already," said my chief. "But come, were you really taken in by the trick?"

"What trick?"

"Did you think, all the while, that it was the girl I was examining?"

"A great light suddenly burst upon me, but Ashton was not so quick. His face went perfectly blank.

"Did I think it was the girl you were examining? What else could you have been doing? Who else was there to examine?"

"Wilkins!" said the doctor with a blow of his fist upon the table. "Wilkins! And, by thunder, I believe I have got him."

"Wilkins!" repeated Ashton. "What sort of farce is this?"

"If it turns out to be a farce," said the doctor, "it will be of your making. If I were clothed in your authority and knew only what I know at this moment, I would go to that telephone and call in some trusty man to watch him; and if my guess survives the test to which I am about to put it, I should, within the next half hour, order his arrest."

He turned away too quickly to see the shrug of tolerant contempt which was all the answer Ashton vouchsafed to this suggestion. He uncrowded the megaphone which had been attached to the instrument to which Wilkins had been harnessed, and attached to it a pair of ear tubes to listen through, a glass tube which looked like a thermometer and another tube which terminated in a glass bulb, half full of a red liquid. He put the listening tubes to his ears and started the machine.

"Give Ashton a cigar, and don't let him talk," was his injunction to me. For nearly a quarter of an hour after that there was silence in the room; but at last he stopped the cylinder which was revolving in the instrument, took the tubes from his ears and laid them on the table. Then he turned to us.

"I was right, Ashton," he said. "I know you want an explanation, and I'm going to give it; but if Wilkins is to be at large during the time it will take me to tell the story, I want the responsibility to be upon you, and not upon me. If I were in your place, I should order his arrest."

Boy Is Caught in Large School Vault

New York.—It's a certainty that Albert Altwater, thirteen, of Hackensack, N. J., hereafter will pay more heed to his parents' warning that "curiosity killed a cat."

Albert's curiosity led him into a vault in the new State street school, Hackensack, and caused a lot of excitement for police and firemen when his playmate, Arnold Bruppaker, eleven, accidentally closed the door and imprisoned him.

The boy's predicament turned Hackensack upside down for an hour before an official of the board of education was called from his home and opened the huge vault, which reaches from floor to ceiling. Albert was imprisoned without fresh air five minutes before firemen cut a hole in the side. Then they bade Albert be calm and prepared to pump oxygen into the vault.

RICH MAN ATTEMPTS LIFE TO END PAIN

Saw No Chance of Recovery, So Shot Himself.

Cincinnati.—An incurable malady which caused him much pain was believed to have prompted Henry Stein, seventy, believed to be from Miles City, Mont., and St. Paul, Minn., to attempt suicide in a hotel room here. Stein shot himself in the temple and his condition was pronounced critical at the hospital.

Stein is believed to be very wealthy and his papers and receipts indicated that he held stocks and bonds in large quantities and did business with several large banking institutions throughout the country.

It was reported that he closed a $1,000,000 real estate transaction in St. Paul, Minn., recently.

Notes found on his table and conversations he had with Mrs. Mary Parker, a hotel employee, indicated that he planned to take his life, police say. He told Mrs. Parker that he was disgusted with life.

A note he left, read: "Suffering constant excruciating pain with absolutely no possible chance of recovery. Bury me anywhere. Prefer Jewish cemetery, Cincinnati."

Shoots Seven on Dice; Wins Freedom in Court

Birmingham, Ala.—Haled before Judge H. B. Abernathy, in the Birmingham court of misdemeanors, a negro miscreant charged with shooting dice was offered the chance to "pass" his way to freedom.

Onto his knees went the defendant with a pair of dice. From his perch on the bench Judge "Ab" peered down at the ivory clicking over the courtroom floor. A dozen wide-eyed spectators leaned forward to watch the outcome.

"Seven it is!" exclaimed the prisoner.

And the jurist who meets residents of Birmingham's negro quarter on grounds with which they are familiar pointed a finger at the kneeling man and gave his decision: "Not guilty."

Several times the Judge has cut cards with prisoners of whose guilt he had some doubt. His colleagues recognize him as an authority on the psychology of the negroes with whom he often deals.

Once, when a prisoner pleaded guilty to a minor offense, Judge "Ab" directed him to get down on his knees and pray for forgiveness. A feeble voice came up.

"Louder!" directed the court. The low tone went into a sturdy bass for five minutes, and the prisoner was discharged.

Mother's Long Sleep Is Broken by Son's Violin

Long Beach, Calif.—A music treatment given by her son and his friend was accredited by the physician of Mrs. Ethel Baldwin, for her recovery of consciousness after lying in a coma for 180 hours.

Mrs. Baldwin lapsed into a coma, following the death of her husband. Discovery by Durant Baldwin, her son, who is a violinist, that his mother was a violinist, led to the music which broke her long sleep.

The music was continued for about 40 hours with the exception of periods when the radio was used. Mrs. Baldwin finally regained consciousness. She needs only rest to assure recovery.

Seattle, Wash.—It is four months since the death of master Jerry, a two-year-old bird dog, but the faithful friend has not yet given up an almost daily twenty-two mile trip to the grave of C. A. Moodle.

LEAP YEAR, GIRLS!—GET YOUR MAN!

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Thirty days hath November, April, June, and September, February hath xxviii alone, And all the rest have xxxi.

Fourth, eleventh, ninth and sixth, Thirty days to each affix; Every other thirty-one, Except the second month alone.

A more complete statement, and one nearer the present-day version, was given in "The Return From Farnasus" (London, 1000) as follows:

Thirty days hath September, April, June and November, February has twenty-eight alone, Excepting leap year—that's the time When February's days are twenty-nine.

And the New Englanders have made it a little better verse by phrasing it thus:

Thirty days hath September, April, June and November; All the rest have thirty-one, Which hath but twenty-eight in five, Till leap year gives it twenty-nine.

All of which serves to remind us that February 23 is approaching and the appearance of that date on our calendars means that this is a leap year. As for what a leap year is and why it is called that, let Mr. Webster explain as follows: "Every fourth year in which any fixed date after February LEAPS over a day of the week and falls on the next week day but one to that on which it fell the year before, Centennial years which are exactly divisible by 400, as 2,000, and others exactly divisible by 4, as 1808, are leap years."

Mr. Webster's dictionary does not explain how February happened to become the month which would be affected by leap years, but Mr. Chambers' "Book of Days" does. Here is what he says:

February was one of the two months (January being the other) introduced into the Roman calendar by Numa Pompilius, when he extended the year to twelve of those periods. It has been on the whole an ill-used month, perhaps in consequence of its noted want (in the northern hemisphere) of what is pleasant and agreeable to the human senses. Numa let fall on it the doom which was unavoidable for some one of the months, of having, three out of four times a day less than even those which were to consist of thirty days. That is to say, he arranged that it should have only twenty-nine days, excepting in leap years, when, by the intercalation of a day between the 23rd and the 24th, it was to have thirty. No great occasion here for complaint. But when Augustus chose to add a thirty-first day to August, that the month named from him should not lack in the dignity enjoyed by six other months of the year, he took it from February, which could least spare it, thus reducing it to twenty-eight in all ordinary years. In our own parliamentary arrangement for the reformation of the calendar, it being necessary to drop a day out of each century excepting those of which the ordinal number could be divided by four, it again fell to the lot of February to be the sufferer. It was deprived of its 29th day for all such years and so it fell in the year 1800, and will in 1900, 2100, 2300, etc.

Since 1928 is divisible by four, it is a leap year and that may be a cause for rejoicing by some of us, not because the much-abused February gets back its 29th day this year, but because girls and women who have had to wait in vain for a proposal of marriage need wait no longer. They can take matters into their own capable hands and be perfectly justified by custom, tradition or what-not in doing a bit of proposing themselves.

Just when the privilege originated giving women the right to do the proposing during a leap year is unknown. It may date from 1288 when a law

Admitted

Mr. Martin was talking at the Christmas dinner table in his usual manner about the inconsistency of women.

"These girls who protest they are never going to marry!" he broke out. "Everybody knows they will helle their own words at the first opportunity."

He paused, and evidently hoped that Mrs. Martin would come to the rescue of her sex. But that discreet woman held her tongue.

"Why, Mary," he continued, "you remember how it was with yourself. I have heard you say more than once that you wouldn't marry the best man alive."

"Well, I didn't," said Mrs. Martin.—Los Angeles Times.

Vegetables Transplanted

The carrot once grew wild in Greece, where it was used only as fodder for was enacted in Scotland which read as follows:

It is statut and ordnat that during the rein of hir maist blisist Megeste, for ilk year knowne as lepe year, ilk maiden layde of bothe hiegh and lowe estate shall have liberte to bespeke ye man she likes. Albeit he refuses to talk he to be his lawful wyfe, he shall be mulcted in ye sum ane pundis or less, as his estate may be; except and a wis gif he can make it appear that he is betrothit ane ither woman he then shall be free.

Perhaps the custom goes back even further than that, but whatever its origin it has become a fixed part of our social tradition, even though it is probably more of a popular joke than an actual custom, limited to regular four-year periods. For the men who are bold enough to say that they know all about women will tell you that

First, then, a woman will or won't depend on't, if she will do't, she will; and there's a and on't. But if she won't, since safe and sound your trust is, Fear is affront, and jealousy injustice.

Which, in the case of "popping the question," can be translated into the statement that if she decides to propose, she will whether it's leap year or not, and if she doesn't so decide it wouldn't make any difference to her if every year were leap year.

Fiction furnishes several examples in support of the above statement, as for instance in William Dean Howells' story, "Dr. Breen's Practice," where a real proposal comes at last for the heroine herself, the lover being too slow in coming to the point so she helped him along.

Frank Steekton, in "The Late Mrs. Null," takes a humorous view, placing his hero and heroine outdoors in an advantageous place. Being sure of this desired catch, she said: "Mr. Croft, I am going to give you your choice. Would you prefer being refused under a cherry tree or a sycamore?" There was a smile on her lips which he did not quite interpret, but he said, "I decline being refused under any tree." "Well, I preferred the cherry tree, and there is just the one nearby."

And if we believe what we "see in the papers," leap year proposing this year is neither a popular joke nor fiction, but a very live fact. Here is the news story that came from Emporia, Kan., recently:

Emporia's bachelors, at least 100 of them, are rallying to parry a thrust made at them this week when Probate Judge Wilford Riegle published in an Emporia newspaper a list of men whom he declared were the most eligible bachelors in the city. Judge Riegle presented the names with the suggestion that, this being leap year, the men would be available for marriage, and he recommended each one on his list.

The news of the publication of the list spread rapidly. Telephone began to ring and the bachelors were fairly swamped with calls from women. As a result the men have organized a protective alliance.

"Millions for defense, but not one cent for matrimony," was the motto adopted.

If women needs historical precedent for taking advantage of the leap year tradition and proposing, such precedents are plentiful enough. There is, for instance, the case of Fricilla, the Puritan maiden, who didn't put the question direct, although young Alden would have been a dillard indeed if he didn't know what she meant when she said "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?" Somewhat similar is the case of the late Adeline Patti, who is said to have remarked to the man who later became her husband, when he told her that all Paris was saying that they were engaged, "Well, why not? I am sure I will be happy."

Another instance is the late Queen Victoria who invited a young man to be her escort and made him her Prince Albert. She was a bit slow in popping the question, so the gossips say, and nearly lost him.

Which brings to mind that her great grandson, Edward Albert, prince of Wales, despite the anxiety of the whole British Empire over the question of when he is ever going to marry and make sure that the House of Windsor will have a future line of princes of Wales, still seems very much content to remain a bachelor. He is, therefore, one of the most eligible men in the world for some leap year proposing. Of course, it simply "can't be done" in the case of Edward Albert David Windsor, but judging from all the fuss that was made over him when he visited this country a year or so ago and the way in which he was sought after by matron and maid alike, even he would not be safe from leap year proposals if he came to America again in 1928.

If some fairy should promise the average girl that one of her leap year proposals should be accepted by any one of three eligibles she might name, it is doubtful, however, if the prince of Wales would be the first on her list. For Miss America seeking a husband that might-be has a new hero who holds first place in her affections. In the United States army he is known as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, but to the whole world who has thrilled over his exploits in the air, he is "Lindy." And what American girl would not place "Lindy" ahead of even the prince of Wales in her list of three?

Going on the assumption that they would be two of the three, who would the third man be? That might be the most difficult selection of all, for there is a great variety in the opportunity offered to the girl who wishes to exercise the prerogative of "woman proposes" this year. This year's crop of desirable "catches" among the world-famous single men include not only an internationally known aviator and a prince of royal blood, but among others, a world's champion prize fighter, a President's son, a famous scientist and explorer, a Presidential possibility, a United States senator, and a famous actor and author. Who are they? Why, Gene Tunney, John Collidge, Lincoln Ellsworth, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., of Wisconsin, and Henry L. Mencken, editor of the American Mercury.

There's a list for you! "Leap year, girls—Get your man!"

cattle and food for bees. Gradually its use as a vegetable became known in Greece, and at a later date in Britain.

Farnsips were similarly despised until a short while ago, and shallots brought over by the Crusaders were grown merely as a useful and effective antidote for snake bites.

Travelers from Asia introduced the onion. The best imported onions come from Brittany, Tripoli and Madeira, being of more delicate flavor and texture than the Spanish variety.

VET'S NAME ON LIST OF DEAD; HE'S ALIVE

Southern Boy Surprised at Finding Mistake.

Charlotte, N. C.—James W. Pegram, young Guilford county man, has proved to the satisfaction of the World War veterans and the Red Cross that he did not die while enlisted for that memorable conflict.

Pegram has been on the list of Guilford county's war dead since shortly after the armistice. His name is third from the top on one of the two bronze plates flanking the entrance of the stadium which has been erected at Greensboro in honor of the slain soldiers.

These facts didn't prevent Pegram from walking into the office of the Red Cross and explaining that the reason his parents had not applied for adjusted compensation was because he was not a dead man and could apply for himself.

December 31 was the final date on which applications for adjusted compensation could be made, and as a part of the government's aid to the ex-soldier and his family, the Red Cross and the American Legion had been trying for a year to get Pegram's father and mother to apply for the benefit to which they would have been entitled if their son had been dead.

Pegram said his father and mother had been receiving letters from Miss Marion Crawford of the Red Cross, but that they considered it either a joke or a mistake, and had not taken the trouble to correct it.

Pegram has been employed for some years at a factory in Greensboro. He said a fellow workman told him last spring that his name was on the tablet, but Pegram thought the man was joking.

Helped Work on Stadium. He himself helped to haul the steel reinforcement for the stadium, but he did not chance to attend the dedication exercises when the names of the World War dead were read, and did not notice the appearance of his name in the newspapers carrying the story of the dedication.

Pegram's name was placed on the war dead roll as the result of information furnished by some person whose identity is not now remembered. McDaniel Lewis compiled the list for the stadium tablets on information compiled by the Greensboro public library.

Pegram's will be taken from the tablet, and the name of another Guilford soldier who died in the war, and news of whose death did not reach the veterans' organization until after the stadium was built, will be inserted in its place.

British Company After $60,000,000 Treasure

London.—A romantic story of £12,000,000 (about $20,000,000) in supposed buried treasure consisting of gold, silver and diamonds is behind the Sacambaya Exploration company, which has been floated in London to operate in Inquisit province, Bolivia.

The treasure is said to have been buried in 1775 by Jesuits, who were not permitted by the Spanish to take it from the country. It is supposed to be guarded by a threat of "a dolorous death" for those who disturb it. Its reputed location is based on a parchment map.

Flesh Pink Rules for Spring Lingerie

New York.—Spring styles in lingerie have been displayed at the Hotel Astor under the auspices of the United Women's Wear League of America. Most of the models featured a waistline, a close-fitting bodice and a full flaring silhouette.

Flesh pink was the outstanding hue, while there was also a noticeable array of printed silks in underwear and pajamas. The bridal lingerie set comprised four pieces, with ivory satin for the negligee and nightgown and cream satin for the slip and combination.

Novelties in the pajama line included vagabond trousers and an affair consisting of a seven-eighths length coat of gold lace with shirred peach-colored satin sleeves, a surplice, satin bodice and satin trousers.

Big Organizations Seen Controlling U. S. Trade

London.—Presiding at the annual meeting of Barclays bank, one of the largest in England, Frederick C. Goodenough said that trade returns of the United States showed that although the total exports were increasing, yet over the period there had been a gradual decline in proportion in agricultural produce and raw material exported except in certain commodities, including oil, which continued to increase.

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

RED CROWN

"Last summer," said Red Crown, the rooster, "I had a narrow escape. I was crossing the road when one of these horrible dust throwers came along.

"By a dust thrower I mean a motor car or an automobile or whatever it is they are called.

"This one had the usual horrid horn attached to it and how that horn did toot.

"I hurried out of the way and I was almost nearly run over. Dear me, but it was a narrow escape. I might have lost my life.

"True, they did warn me they were coming. But what uppish creatures motorists are. The very idea of telling a fellow to get out of the way in such a rude manner. And think of it!

"I hurried out of the way."

"I am against all things modern. I'm for the good old days when a crowing rooster was thought to be a creature worth while.

"It may be all right for Miss Fidgety Fashionable Hen to live in these modern days and to be scarce with her eggs, but they are sad days for the rooster.

"Still I feel a little better than I did. Maybe the automobile will go out of date and the motor birds of the air, the airplanes, will take their places.

"Then they'll toot their horns for creatures to get off the clouds and the good old roosters of the barnyard will rule as they used to rule.

"In that case I'll be more modern and hope for the days to come.

"But I do dread next summer, for this last one was hard, very hard," he ended.

Charlie Chaplin told a New York reporter the other day a girl story. "Girls are more beautiful and more practical than ever," he began.

"Miss Montmorency—Augusta, if I may call you so—I am not rich in this world's goods, but —"

"With a slight wave of her cigarette she silenced him.

"That will do, Mr. Fetherstonhaugh," she said. "No!"

Pigeon Liquidated Debt

Pigeons were welcome visitors at the window of the Cincinnati (Ohio) apartment of Mrs. Amoretta Fitch, always receiving a few morsels of food until their hostess discovered they had begun to eat her cherished window plants. Then she put up a screen to shut out her feathered callers. A few mornings later a single pigeon came to the window and hovered about on the sill as if to attract her attention. She shoed it away, but it came right back and dropped a shiny, new dime on the sill and flew away, not to return.

SCOUTS: IT'S HIKING TIME IN SOUTHWEST TEXAS!

Lads, don't you feel the call of the woods, out of doors, and all Nature? We hope to have the record in the Scout office of every patrol of Boy Scouts in Southwest Texas Council having gone on an overnight hike between now and May first, and a great number of day hikes. Let's make Scouting 75 per cent "Outing," as was intended by those who founded it.

A number of our schools have been closed due to local epidemics. Every Scout should make the best of conditions like that and improve himself in Scouting, as this program was designed for the idle hours of the boys. Speaking of epidemics, the Scout Executive has had one in his home, as four little Palmers have had febrile cases of measles, and he himself has been vaccinated against smallpox.

We are glad to report activity in several troops in fixing some wonderful window displays which have caused much comment and attracted a great deal of attention. The competition between the patrols in Scoutmaster Tate's troop at Uvalde has been very noticeable. Write into Scout headquarters and tell us of your plans and how we can help you.

Lads, have you talked with your dad about the out-of-doors and its attractions? If you haven't, break the ice by reading him the following poem by Douglas Malloch. If he will play the game, he is the best pal any boy ever had.

To Be a Dad,
Go out and spend a day with him
And stray with him
Some woodland path where birds and things
Are flying by on happy wings.
There are so many things to see:
The grass, the rocks, the brook, the tree;
So answer every "What?" and "Why?"

And if you can, O mighty man,
Then you're a smarter man than I
Go out awhile and face with him
And share with him
The busy world of wonders found
By anyone who looks around.
There are so many things a lad
Would really like to ask his dad.
There are so many days of joy
In meadow sweet or city street
Just waiting for a man and boy
Go out and take a sail with him
And talk with him

Of wonders on the avenue;
The things they build; the things they do;
There are so many matters great
For comrades to investigate.
So tell him why and tell him what,
And figure out what they're about,
And both of you will learn a lot.
His dad is very dear to him.

Get near to him
And share his work and share his play,
And help him all along the way.
There are so many ways for one

To be a father of a son;
And yet I'm sure the very best
Is just to be his pal; you see—
You needn't fret about the rest.

IN MEMORIAM

O. E. S. No. 135, Sanderson Chapter.

Whereas Almighty God in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to take from our midst to His blessed Lodge above our beloved brother, J. C. Stansell,

Resolved that while we bow our heads in humble submission we feel the loss in the death of this Brother.

Resolved that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family and a copy be spread on our minutes in memory of our departed Brother.

"Like weary and worn out children
That sigh for daylight's close,
He knows that they oft are longing
For home and sweet repose,
So He calls them in from their labors,
Ere the shadows around them creep,
And silently watching o'er them,
He giveth His loved ones sleep."
