Know Your School

That patrons may have better opportunity of really knowing their school this column will each week be given over to school news. It is the desire of the school executives that the patrons become better acquainted with the faculty, school methods and school aims.

For the first time the Sanderson Schools will send an all-school exhibit to the State Teachers Association convention, which meets in Dallas, Nov. 28-30. The Sanderson exhibit will be prepared under the supervision of Mrs. J. A. MacMillan, Miss Yula Mighell, and Mrs. S. Nelson, teachers of the grammar school.

Several pieces of exhibit work are now under construction in the various departments of the school activities. The cloakroom which adjoins Room 2 in the high school has been made into an art room with supply shelves and tables, where much of the exhibit work will be done.

All the schools of Texas are cordially invited to send exhibits to the Dallas meeting. It is the desire of the committee to make this the finest and most comprehensive educational exhibit so far sponsored by the Texas State Teachers Association.

Ample space has been provided in the Automobile and Manufacturers' Building in Fair Park. All exhibits will be on one floor. There will be lounge facilities and arrangements also for dining, thus making it possible for one to spend the entire day comfortably in the exhibits building.

The school administration of the Terrell County system takes this opportunity to express appreciation to the voters of the county for their successful carrying of the school bond election which was voted last Friday in the two precincts, Dryden and Sanderson.

Of the 139 votes that were cast in the election there were only 3 votes against the issue. The faith that was manifested at that time in the development of a first-rate system of schools in this county gives a substantial basis for the operations of the teachers and school board. With such wholehearted cooperation on the part of the community Sanderson can look forward to a public school system that is successful because of the initiative and self reliance of its citizenship.

THE ELECTION

The election here last Friday was very quiet, only 128 votes being cast in Sanderson. Hardly any interest was shown at Dryden where only 11 voters went to the polls.

Two issues were up before the voters in the election—one to levy a road tax of 15c on the $100 valuation of all taxable property in Terrell county; the other was to issue bonds for the building of a new school house. Both proposals received the endorsement of those who went to the polls.

The official returns of the election are as follows:

Precinct One: For the School Bonds 125; against the School Bonds 3. For the Road Tax 121; against the Road Tax 6.

Precinct Two: For the School Bonds 11; against the School Bonds 0. For the Road Tax 9; against the Road Tax 2.

A total of 139 votes were cast in the county. Precincts 3 and 4 did not hold an election.

HOWARD JOHNSON KILLED

Funeral services were held in Lytle, Texas, Wednesday afternoon for Howard Johnson, who died in Dallas Tuesday after he was seriously injured when a truck struck his motorcycle.

Howard was a senior at the North Texas A. & M., and had been to Dallas on his motorcycle and was on his way back to school when the accident occurred. He was rushed to a Dallas hospital but died shortly after of a fractured skull.

Howard was well known here having for a year or more worked for his uncle, W.J. Ferguson of the Ferguson Motor Co. Mr. Ferguson left Tuesday for Lytle to attend the funeral.

He is survived by his parents Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Johnson of Lytle, two sisters, Mrs. Henry Reams of Orange, and Miss Ruth Johnson of Lytle and a brother, Prof. Arthur Johnson of Houston.

The many friends here of Howard regret to learn of his death and extend sympathy to the bereaved ones.

NOTICE!

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist church will meet for Bible Study at the church next Tuesday, Oct. 22. The social meeting has been postponed until the following Tuesday.

SAN ANTONIO TO EL PASO MOTORCADE

Over U. S. Highway No. 90

Much enthusiasm is evidenced in the coming event, beginning at San Antonio on Oct. 21, and reaching El Paso on Oct. 23.

President Hal A. Hamilton and Sec. H. Wren of Del Rio have just completed a trip over the Border-Way making personal calls on each director, and the citizens in the towns and cities on the line, and find the heartiest support of the program being planned.

Highway No. 90 was found to be in splendid condition and construction work in progress or contracted for on every unfinished section, and can be justly called one of the best and most dependable highways through the southwest, stretching out over 600 miles. Along this way some of the most interesting points will be found: The Alamo, Old Spanish Missions, old Government forts at Ft. Clark, Fort Hancock and others; beautiful Devil's River; the Pecos River spanned by the highest bridge in the world; the former home of Judge Roy Bean the "Law West of the Pecos." These and many other attractions add much to the pleasure of travel of U. S. Highway 90.

This motorcade will be one of the best opportunities to make this trip, you can hardly afford to miss it. Make your arrangements to join this body on the day it passes thru your city and report to the one in charge of the motorcade the number of your party at your earliest convenience.

History of Delphian Chapters

For the benefit of those who have asked about the work and to further the interest of the Chapter at Sanderson, we are glad to give this information: The first Delphian chapter was organized in California 25 years ago. There are now 3000 chapters with a membership of 300,000. Seventeen of these chapters are in Texas.

The Delphian curriculum consists of a well defined course of study in history, literature, art, poetry, and music, of all periods. The course is outlined and prepared by a group of internationally known educators.

The recitation plan is for short talks and discussions developing the art of conversation and giving poise and confidence to the individual.

The Alpha Delphian Chapter of Sanderson was organized in August, 1927, with 20 charter members. We have completed the first two years work and have started on the third, an instructive and thorough course on the drama.

Our meetings are on the 2nd and 4th Wednesdays of each month. We extend an invitation to any present or prospective member.

Revival at First Baptist Church

A revival will begin Sunday morning, Oct. 20, at the First Baptist church. Frank Frazier, of Lake Arthur, New Mexico, will lead the singing; Mrs. Harrison will play the piano and the pastor will preach. We invite the people of the community and urge our membership to put their best into these services.

Be present at the first service. Ira Harrison, Pastor.

Makes Life Sweeter

Children's stomachs sour, and need an anti-acid. Keep their systems sweet with Phillips Milk of Magnesia! When tongue or breath tells of acid condition—correct it with a spoonful of Phillips. Most men and women have been comforted by this universal sweetener—more mothers should invoke its aid for their children. It is a pleasant thing to take, yet neutralizes more acid than the harsher things too often employed for the purpose. No household should be without it.

Phillips is the genuine, prescriptional product physicians endorse for general use; the name is important. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Only tomorrow knows what horrors the "next war" will bring. Hardly a week passes without announcement of some new device or combination of devices for the destruction of human beings and property, says the Pathfinder Magazine.

The latest important announcement of this kind comes from London. The British have developed a submarine from which a battle airplane can be launched within a few minutes after it comes to the surface. The large turret usually used for the accommodation of a powerful gun has been converted into a plane carrier. Such a combination of undersea and air-plane craft was first designed by an Italian. France took it up and now Britain claims to have improved it to perfection.

Thoughts of past unhappiness prevent some people from enjoying present happiness.

Before and After Childbirth

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my first baby was born and I am taking it now for my weakened condition after the birth of my second boy. Although I never have put on any flesh I am feeling good now and the Vegetable Compound has helped me in every way. It is surely a wonderful medicine and I will be glad to answer letters for I recommend it highly."—Mrs. Fred W. Davey, Madison, Kansas.

"Could we, perhaps, detain them sufficiently long to permit us to get away?" inquired my uncle.

"With the treasure? Hardly! I say, do you realize the sheer physical job in removing that stuff? Why, there must be tons of it! It would have to be boxed and crated. And where would you take it to? How would you take it anywhere? To arrange for its removal would require—oh, I'd hate to say how long! In the meantime, we might hold Mrs. Hillyer without causing any comment, but Mahkuf is a well-known person. He isn't called the 'Grand Vizier's Jackal' for nothing."

Wasso Mikail appeared in the doorway at the foot of the stairs that led up to the large chamber on the courtyard level. His face was grim and the tone in which he addressed Nikka so savage as to attract the attention of all of us. Kara eyed him with approval, and ventured a confirmatory nod.

"He says," Nikka translated, "that the only thing for us to do is to kill Tokalji and the rest of the prisoners, stow their bodies in the drain that I have told him about, and then deny to Mahkuf that there ever was a fight or that there is any treasure here. He insists it was a great mistake for us to take any prisoners, but that we can yet remedy it in time."

"He's dead wrong," said Hugh abruptly. "I think I can use Tokalji to work out of this mess."

"How?" asked Nikka.

"By making it worth his while. He'd do anything for money, wouldn't he?"

"Yes."

"Well, we have the money in limitless quantities. I want to say a word to you lads and Professor King that has been on my chest ever since I saw that treasure vault. I never thought of this before, because I didn't take the story any too seriously. But now it's beyond cavil. My point is this: there's too much wealth down there for any one man. Professor King says there may be $125,000,000. Nobody needs that much just to lead his own life in affluence.

"I'm going to divide it equally between you, Nikka, Jack, Professor King, Watty and myself, subject to whatever disbursements Nikka thinks Wasso Mikail should have and a price necessary to attach Tokalji's allegiance to us."

"Your idea of purchasing Tokalji's aid, supposing he can aid us, is a good one," said my uncle. "But I have more money now than I can use. I must absolutely refuse your offer so far as it concerns myself, Hugh."

"Me, too, your lordship," spoke up Watkins. "What would I do with millions of pounds? All the other servants would be jealous of me, and the newspaper gentlemen would be 'aving their fun with me every day most like. No, no, sir. I'm an old man, and with all due respect, I'm sure I'd much rather stay on with you at Chesby, your lordship, and valet you properly. It ain't so easy to find a good valet nowadays, sir. Really, sir, I'd rather not."

"Well," said Hugh, "we won't fight about that, Watty. If you stay with me you—Why, hang it all, you're one of the best friends I've got! You must stay. But I'm going to insist on splitting with Jack and Nikka. Then Jack can build houses to suit himself, and Nikka can play his fiddle to poor boys and girls."

"I knew you'd make an offer like that, Hugh," said Nikka simply. "It's like you. And don't you worry about Wasso Mikail. I'll take care of him and his tribe with my share. It wouldn't do them any good to make them grossly rich. They'd leave their old ways of life, contract tuberculosis or dissipate themselves to death. Let them be. They live an idyllic life, a life good enough for me, anyway. But I'm not going to protest against the corruption of Tokalji. If you believe you can make anything out of it. What is your idea?"

"Have him in," answered Hugh. "I'll show you."

Wasso Mikail brought in the brigand chief, his broken arm in a sling, a sour glint of hatred in his eyes.

"Now," said Hugh, "ask him, Nikka, if he'd like to be so rich he wouldn't need to steal again, except to indulge his sportin' tastes?"

Tokalji evidently considered he was being spoofed, and he drew himself haughtily erect.

"He says any man would answer that one way," replied Nikka. "But that you seek to annoy him."

"Tell him," returned Hugh, "that I'll give him £100,000 Turkish if he'll come over to our side, and back us up against Mahkuf Pasha. Explain to him about Mahkuf Pasha."

The change in Tokalji's manner was ridiculous.

"He says," translated Nikka, "that he will kill the sultan for you for £100,000 Turkish. But he wants to see the money."

"Watty," said Hugh, "go down into the sewer-treasury and collect a sack of jewels—anything will do. Tell Tokalji I'm sending for an earnest of our good faith, Nikka."

Avarice glowed in the brigand's face. Wasso Mikail looked disgusted. He nursed some secret grudge of his own against Tokalji, and had wanted to cut his throat from the minute he discovered the scoundrel was our prisoner. But Hugh's hunch was a good one. None could doubt that, as Tokalji gradually thawed under the influence of his stimulated acquisitive instincts.

And when Watty tramped in fifteen minutes afterward and plumped a bulging sack into the old thief's lap, a miracle was wrought. Sweat beaded on his forehead; his hands clawed the lovely stones; his eyes shone; he cackled to himself and crooned like a mother over her baby.

"Tell him they are his, and that we will add gold to them, if he plays fair with us," continued Hugh when he judged he had made his effect. "But he will have to remain our prisoner until we leave."

"He awaits your orders," Nikka translated the reply, as Tokalji regretfully tore his attention from the treasure on his knees. "Wait a minute."

This last as Tokalji burst into a tumult of excited speech. "He says for you not to worry about Mahkuf Pasha. He knows all about the pasha. He, the pasha, has been smuggling arms from Rumania to Kemal Pasha at Angora, and Tokalji has played a part in the business."

Hugh just grinned, and the rest of us grinned back at him.

"We are indeed fortunate," remarked King.

"Fortunate your eye!" returned Hugh with jubilant disrespect. "I knew such precious scoundrels would sell each other out. Now, Nikka, you tell Tokalji he is to inform Mahkuf Pasha that he regards us as his friends, inasmuch as we relieved him last night from the oppression of a band of thieves. And we'll have Mahkuf in here, and give him an earful. I suppose we'll have to drag in that poor Hillyer woman, too. I hate that. But she'll have to be made to understand her position."

The interview that followed was absurd and sordid. Mahkuf Pasha, after an attempt at bectoring defiance, collapsed completely and begged to be let alone. Nikka, who handled him, squelched him to putty, and told Wasso Mikail to see him to the street.

"And remember," Nikka concluded, "if you dare to breathe a word against us, you Levantine dog, we will show you up for what you are to the Allied High Commissioners, to your master the Grand Vizier and to the Nationalists at Angora. You have played all three of these, one against the others, and all three will be glad to hang you. Go, before I kick you!"

Wasso Mikail positively chuckled as he jerked the ashenfaced mongrel to his feet and steered him up the stairs.

Maude Hillyer was not so easy. She began by a walling tirade that degenerated into a filthy baraque. I learned afterward that she had risen in life from a position which had made her engagement for the Gayety theater chorus an epochal event for her. We sent Betty from the room for a few moments, and Hugh gently quieted her.

"See here, Mrs. Hillyer," he said. "We don't enjoy this any more than you do. For what happened to your husband—perhaps anything I say will be in bad taste. But the fact remains that we had nothing against him. It was he who went after us. And I notice that although that demon La-fille tortured and attempted to abuse several of us, including a woman, you never raised your hand to restrain him."

"But, I'm not appealing to you on grounds of decency, but of self-interest. If nothing comes out about Hillyer's end, you can go home and hold up your head. On the other hand, if you want to air what happened, I shall see to it that the whole story of my uncle's death becomes known. Do you think that then you will be received anywhere at home? I leave it to you."

The queer social vanity that was the mainspring of the woman's life responded to the argument. She dried her tears and restrained her tongue; and for a moment I felt sorry for her. But she showed her character at the last, even as she rose to go.

"It's all very well what you say, Lord Chesby," she whimpered. "But what am I going to do now? Hillyer's dead, Little Depping is loaded with mortgages. His cousin George will inherit what's left of it, anyway. And I—"

She hesitated artistically.

"I am not going to pay you blackmail," returned Hugh coldly, "but you may call or my solicitors this day two months. What we do for you will depend upon your conduct."

And that was the last any of us saw of Maude Hillyer. But I may as well say here that she did call on Mr. Belovos in London, and that by Hugh's direction he arranged to pay her a small income conditioned on good behavior. Hugh, with his usual generosity, insisted, too, upon making substantial presents—booby prizes, he called them—to our two Russian prisoners. They were not released, however, until we left Constantinople, as their vindictive attitude assured us of their desire to wreck our fortunes, if they could discover an opportunity. What happened to the strange pair after Wasso Mikail freed them I do not know. But I should hazard a guess that while Mrs. Hillyer will be content to live respectably in a cheap Brighton hotel, eking out her means with the practice of bridge of an un-commonly sharp variety, Serge Vassilievich and Sandra Vassilievna—whether brother and sister, in truth, I never found out—will fleece their way through the smart watering places and resorts of the continent so long as the police permit them at large.

"Are we downhearted?" demanded Hugh, as the door closed behind Mrs. Hillyer.

"We are not," returned King. "It is amazing to reflect upon the apparent hopelessness of our position a couple of hours ago, while now we seem to have no reason to anticipate any insurmountable difficulties."

"We'll find a way," Nikka declared. "I feel more hopeful than I did. Hugh has given us a lesson in practical strategy. It was a master stroke to buy in Tokalji. Now we have some time to spare."

"And with submission, sir, Mister Nikka," said Watkins, gently closing the door behind him. "Miss Betty is dead asleep on some rugs upstairs. Ave you gentlemen forgot it's past eight o'clock? Come, now, a bite of supper, and you'd best sleep a while."

"He's right," assented Hugh. "We're overdoing it. A night's sleep will set us all up."

We slept royally, leaving the guard duty to Wasso Mikail's men; and the next day we awoke with confidence in our united ability to overcome all remaining obstacles. At Nikka's suggestion we called upon Wasso Mikail for his advice. He pondered for five minutes or so then spoke like a judge on the bench.

"A great treasure like this cannot be trusted in many men's hands," he said. "Otherwise I would offer to transport it by mule trains to the dwelling place of my tribe. Jakka knows how secure that is. But even if we succeeded in carrying it there, what should we do with it? To make use of it, you must carry it to the lands where you live."

"So, friends of my sister's son, I say that you must put the treasure on a boat, and you must go on that boat, yourselves, and you must be sure you can trust the captain."

"But how can we find such a boat and captain?" asked Hugh.

"Leave that to me," answered Wasso Mikail promptly. "I know certain men of my race in this city who can furnish me with information about the vessels that come to the Golden Horn. And in the meantime, you must make boxes to hold the treasure."

We heard no more from him for a week. He went and came, sometimes by day and sometimes by night; and we in the house in Sokaki Masyeri, prisoners as well as captors, labored with saw and hatchet, hammer and nails. As fast as we shaped the boxes, we carried them down to the drain and packed them, wrapping gold and gems in whatever fabrics we could find around the house, and in this way we used up all the loose lumber, cloth and bedding in Tokalji's storerooms.

Then, one night as we sat in the atrium, very sore as to hands and fingers from the unaccustomed carpentry work, there was a knock on the courtyard door, and Wasso Mikail ushered in a tall, lean man in a blue sea-officer's cap. He left this man in the courtyard, and came down to us.

"I Am Not Going to Pay You Black-mail," Returned Hugh Coldly.

Ways that are not our ways always seem funny. "Civilized" visitors to Papua, New Guinea, says the New Orleans Times-Picayune, are quite moved to laughter at the fact that in that "benighted land" dogs' teeth are used as money. If used to be the same when our own folks here in America found the "absurd" Indians carrying strings of shells (wampum) as a medium of exchange. In both these exotic cases the money tokens also were regarded as things of beauty and worn as such by the females of the species and sometimes by the more esthetic of the males.

But, after all, is it any more laughable to regard dogs' teeth as beautiful than it is to find charm in elephant or walrus tusks? Yet ivory, especially carved ivory, has been a civilized treasure perhaps since civilization began; not only ivory, but even plain bone. And how about our civilized admiration for turtle carapaces and the esteem in which we hold the shells of the pearl oyster and the esthetic vogue of the conch shell cut up and worked into cameos? After all, is not "clean as a hound's tooth" one of the popular metaphors?

Bird Made Much Trouble

When telephone service suddenly stopped between Melbourne and Albany, Australia, says the Pathfinder Magazine, a long, careful search revealed that the cause of the trouble was a magpie. This busy bird had built a nest on the top of a pole—a nest 14 inches across and about 8 inches deep. The size of the nest would not have mattered, but evidently intent on making the new home durable and solid, the magpie had used several pieces of wire which had been snipped off and left on the ground by repair men. One of the pieces of wire was in contact with two wires of the line, which naturally caused a short circuit and stopped the service.

"I have brought you a sea captain who does not fear to dodge the law," said the old gypsy without preface. "He loves a Circassian girl who lives in a street near the Khan of the Georgians, and I have made it plain to him that if we do business with him the girl stays in my custody for surety of his honesty. He is a Russian, and his ship is his own—or so he says."

"You did not tell him what we wanted him for?" questioned Hugh.

"Tell him only what you must," counseled Wasso Mikail. "I think I have a hold on this man, but I would not trust him more than I could help."

"Why can't we tell him that we have made a remarkable find of ancient statuary, mosaics and that sort of thing?" I suggested. "He will look us up, and the story will sound credible for King. We'll tell him about that the government wouldn't like to see such a valuable collection go to foreigners, and so we have to smuggle it."

"That will do," Nikka approved. "And that will explain why we must send the boxes aboard secretly."

We made the deal with the Russian captain that night. He was not a bad chap, but a bit put to it to earn the keep of himself, his crew and his vessel by reason of the anomalous situation in which they found themselves, the Slava still running under the old imperial registry. She was a tidy tramp of 5,000 tons odd, and Captain Malakovich made no objection to turning over the necessary cabins for our use.

The transfer of the treasure occupied a week, for we could only work at night, carrying the heavy boxes down the drain and utilizing the limited stowage room of the Curlew. We set Watkins aboard the Slava to watch the boxes, and the rest of us either mounted guard on our prisoners or else made more boxes and packed. It was a hectic time. The only real excitement that marked it, however, was a visit we received from two of Tokalji's men from the camp of the tribe in the forest of Belgrade. Kara took care of them, sending them back with imaginary instructions from her father.

The last day, after the treasure boxes, now duly stenciled "Antiques, Statuary, Chgs. P.L. With Care," were stowed away in a secret compartment of the Slava's hold, we all found time to go to the British embassy to see Hugh and Betty married. Kara, strangely subdued in a costume furnished by Betty, hung to Nikka's arm and watched the ceremony with amazement.

"Do the Franks have to do all that to be married?" she commented. "I am more than ever glad I am a Tzigane."

"What are you going to do with her, Nikka?" asked Betty. "Send her to school or let me look after her? I'd love to."

Nikka laughed.

"You wouldn't very long. No, I'm not going to curb my wild hawk so drastically. She shall taste of civilization sip by sip, until it savors sweetly on her tongue."

"And you?" cried Hugh. "Aren't you coming with us?"

"No, I must tame her. And in taming her I shall indulge the craving that has grown in me to sample again the joys of the open road that I have not known since I was a lad. We are going to wander, Kara and I. We will go up into the Rhodopes with Wasso Mikail for a while, and then we will take the Tzigane's train through the Balkans and over the Danube and the Carpathians, on, on, wherever we choose."

So, when the Slava steamed out of the Golden Horn that afternoon, Hugh and Betty, Vernon King, Watkins and I waved good-bye to our comrade, Nikka and Kara stood on the pier and as long as we could see them; and after they had dwindled out of sight we turned our gaze on the matchless skyline of Stamboul, with its lofty domes and slender minarets and close-packed buildings tumbling down the hillsides to the great cordon of the old Byzantine sea wall.

And on the very edge of the wall was poised the squat bulk of Tokalji's weird establishment. We could see it clearly, the fine lines of the House of the Married, the plumpy tip of a cedar waving from its mysterious hidden courtyard, and the L-shaped mass of the bachelor's quarters opposite. They bulked smaller at this distance than when seen from the bobbing cockpit of the Curlew. Already it began to seem difficult to believe that within their walls we had witnessed so much of tragedy and devotion.

Widely Varying Ideas of Things of Beauty

Ways that are not our ways always seem funny. "Civilized" visitors to Papua, New Guinea, says the New Orleans Times-Picayune, are quite moved to laughter at the fact that in that "benighted land" dogs' teeth are used as money. If used to be the same when our own folks here in America found the "absurd" Indians carrying strings of shells (wampum) as a medium of exchange. In both these exotic cases the money tokens also were regarded as things of beauty and worn as such by the females of the species and sometimes by the more esthetic of the males.

But, after all, is it any more laughable to regard dogs' teeth as beautiful than it is to find charm in elephant or walrus tusks? Yet ivory, especially carved ivory, has been a civilized treasure perhaps since civilization began; not only ivory, but even plain bone. And how about our civilized admiration for turtle carapaces and the esteem in which we hold the shells of the pearl oyster and the esthetic vogue of the conch shell cut up and worked into cameos? After all, is not "clean as a hound's tooth" one of the popular metaphors?

Bird Made Much Trouble

When telephone service suddenly stopped between Melbourne and Albany, Australia, says the Pathfinder Magazine, a long, careful search revealed that the cause of the trouble was a magpie. This busy bird had built a nest on the top of a pole—a nest 14 inches across and about 8 inches deep. The size of the nest would not have mattered, but evidently intent on making the new home durable and solid, the magpie had used several pieces of wire which had been snipped off and left on the ground by repair men. One of the pieces of wire was in contact with two wires of the line, which naturally caused a short circuit and stopped the service.

"I have brought you a sea captain who does not fear to dodge the law," said the old gypsy without preface. "He loves a Circassian girl who lives in a street near the Khan of the Georgians, and I have made it plain to him that if we do business with him the girl stays in my custody for surety of his honesty. He is a Russian, and his ship is his own—or so he says."

"You did not tell him what we wanted him for?" questioned Hugh.

"Tell him only what you must," counseled Wasso Mikail. "I think I have a hold on this man, but I would not trust him more than I could help."

"Why can't we tell him that we have made a remarkable find of ancient statuary, mosaics and that sort of thing?" I suggested. "He will look us up, and the story will sound credible for King. We'll tell him about that the government wouldn't like to see such a valuable collection go to foreigners, and so we have to smuggle it."

"That will do," Nikka approved. "And that will explain why we must send the boxes aboard secretly."

We made the deal with the Russian captain that night. He was not a bad chap, but a bit put to it to earn the keep of himself, his crew and his vessel by reason of the anomalous situation in which they found themselves, the Slava still running under the old imperial registry. She was a tidy tramp of 5,000 tons odd, and Captain Malakovich made no objection to turning over the necessary cabins for our use.

The transfer of the treasure occupied a week, for we could only work at night, carrying the heavy boxes down the drain and utilizing the limited stowage room of the Curlew. We set Watkins aboard the Slava to watch the boxes, and the rest of us either mounted guard on our prisoners or else made more boxes and packed. It was a hectic time. The only real excitement that marked it, however, was a visit we received from two of Tokalji's men from the camp of the tribe in the forest of Belgrade. Kara took care of them, sending them back with imaginary instructions from her father.

The last day, after the treasure boxes, now duly stenciled "Antiques, Statuary, Chgs. P.L. With Care," were stowed away in a secret compartment of the Slava's hold, we all found time to go to the British embassy to see Hugh and Betty married. Kara, strangely subdued in a costume furnished by Betty, hung to Nikka's arm and watched the ceremony with amazement.

"Do the Franks have to do all that to be married?" she commented. "I am more than ever glad I am a Tzigane."

"What are you going to do with her, Nikka?" asked Betty. "Send her to school or let me look after her? I'd love to."

Nikka laughed.

"You wouldn't very long. No, I'm not going to curb my wild hawk so drastically. She shall taste of civilization sip by sip, until it savors sweetly on her tongue."

"And you?" cried Hugh. "Aren't you coming with us?"

San Antonio Man's Appetite Like a Boy's

"At one time in my life I thought I had the worst luck of any man in Texas," says Sam Smith, now one of San Antonio's heaviest taxpayers. "I had to be careful what I ate or I would almost choke from the gas on my stomach. That was many years ago. In fact, until I started taking Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), I never since then I eat what I want and let NR take care of the rest."

That's because those little Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) soothe, sweeten and stimulate the stomach and bowels. Then the starch and sugar wastes can't remain in your system to form those acids which sour your stomach, bind your bowels and rob the blood of the red corpuscles it must have plenty of to keep you from suffering pain, biliousness, sick headaches, indigestion and rheumatism. More than 3 million NR Tablets are used a day. Get the 25c box at any drug store.

Big Paintings Puzzle Heirs
What to do with the collection of huge paintings of the late Tivadar Csontvary, the Hungarian artist, has been puzzling his heirs. Each picture is as large as the front of a good-sized house. A plan was tried of selling them by the yard, but so formidable was even the task of unrolling them that when an attempt to photograph them was made the fire department was called in to help spread them out in the great courtyard of the city hall. This plan of disposing of them did not succeed, so a relative has bought the lot and is storing them in his garage for the present.

Safe Study of Hornets
A freak hornet's nest has been reported from Trap Corner, Oxford county, Maine. The nest was found at the home of Harry Silver. The insects have built the nest against a pane of glass in something resembling the usual conical shape. However, the interior may be seen through the glass, providing a very good observation specimen for any one interested in the domesticity of hornets.

$11.50 For Yearling Ewes

Lee Drago of Marathon has purchased 1,280 head of yearling ewes from Hal Ramsey of Marathon. The price paid was $11.50 per head. This is, so far as we know, the top price of the season. And it looks mighty good, especially when wool has taken a slight decline. Evidently there are lots of sheep men who have unbounded faith in the future of the industry.

Range in Good Condition

Willard Moser who ranches on the old Blackstone & Slaughter ranch, formerly under the lease of Mitchell & Arvin, says that he has had repeated rains and that his range is in ideal condition. He says that almost everyone is shearing sheep around Sheffield but no sales of wool are reported.

Half of Mr. Moser's ranch has fine rang while the other half is slightly dry. He is lightly stocked, having sold his lambs and he will ship his fat muttons.

We Salute the Conqueror
 of darkness

On the 21st night of October, 1879, Edison threw the crude switch that sent the first beams of electric light into a world of tall low candles and wick lamps... beams of light that were prophetic of the greatest era of progress the world has ever known. Someone has said the throwing of that switch gave civilization its greatest impetus since the invention of the printing press and movable type.

Electricity has lengthened the days of man... given him more time for leisure, for thinking. It has given industry a tool by which it has lightened the burdens of all Mankind. It is the means by which the common burdens of Womanhood have been lifted from her shoulders.

On the 21st day of October we will celebrate the Golden Jubilee of the incandescent lamp. Thomas A. Edison will be feted at a great Birthday Party at Dearborn, Michigan, and all the nation will do him honor.

Universal tribute will be paid to Edison, who has lifted innumerable burdens from the shoulders of Mankind with the invention of electric light and the perfection of ways and means of applying electric energy to domestic and industrial uses. We salute the Conqueror of Darkness!

License Plates For Year 1930

Texas will change the color combinations on auto license plates for 1930. The plates will be blue letters on a yellow background. The 1930 plates will have the words "front" and "rear" same as heretofore; but on the 1931 license plates the words "front" and "rear" will be omitted. The last called session of the legislature passed a law doing away with these words. Texas is the only state in the Union that has "front" and "rear" printed on its auto license plates.

HE WANTS TO TELL ALL HIS FRIENDS OF SARGON

WILLIAM D. VAUGHN

"My stomach was out of order for a long time" Although I ate very little, I was often in misery after meals and smothering spells would frequently wake me at night. I was constipated, my blood was thin and my color was as yellow as gold. I had severe pains in my back and sides and my kidneys would get me up all during the night.

"Since taking Sargon, I'm in better health than for years. I eat like a hungry school boy and can digest anything. There's not a pain in my body and I sleep good all night. Sargon Pills toned up my liver and ended my constipation. Now my skin has a good healthy color and I feel like a new man." Wm. D. Vaughn, 1910 S. Akard street, Dallas.

"The Heart Specialist," is the subject for the 11 o'clock sermon next Sunday. This will be a vital sermon on a vital topic. It will do your heart good to hear it.

Next Sunday, the evening service will begin at 7:30 instead of 8:00 as heretofore. The sermon will have as its theme "Our Household Enemies."

Miss Louise Noble will sing at the 11 o'clock service.

Run-Down, Weak, Nervous?

To have plenty of firm flesh and the ability to do a big day's work and feel "like a two-year old" at night, you must eat three good meals a day, relish your food and properly digest it. If you can't eat, can't sleep, can't work, just give Tanlac the chance to do for you what it has done for millions.

Mr. Joseph A. Culver, of 812 S. Main St., Muskogee, Okla., says: "I was a nervous wreck and forced myself to work and eat. I felt like quitting work before the day was up. On taking Tanlac, my appetite picked up so I could eat anything, soon slept well and gained 10 lbs."

Tanlac is wonderful for indigestion and constipation—gas, pains, nausea, dizziness and headaches. It brings back food, and gain strength and weight. It contains no mineral drugs; it is made of roots, barks and herbs, nature's own medicines for the sick. The cost is less than 2 cents a dose. Get a bottle from your druggist. Your money back if it doesn't help.

Restless Children

Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child. Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as its taste. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is any need. In cases of colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. But it has everyday uses all mothers should understand.

A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed to set everything to rights. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

Unnecessary Pain!

Nowadays, people take Bayer Aspirin for many little aches and pains, and as often as they encounter any pain.

Why not? It is a proven antidote for pain. It works!

And Bayer Aspirin tablets are utterly harmless. You have the medical profession's word for that; they do not depress the heart.

So, don't let a cold "run its course." Don't wait for a headache to "wear off." Or regard neuralgia, neuritis, or even rheumatism as something you must endure. Only a physician can cope with the cause of such pain, but you can always turn to Bayer Aspirin for relief.

Bayer Aspirin is always available, and it always helps. Familiarize yourself with its many uses, and avoid a lot of needless suffering.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Doctor Gives Hint to Lucky Salesman

IT'S a wise man that knows when he is slipping. Mr. R.F. Myers of 711 Rosedale Street, Baltimore, had the good fortune to get his tip straight from one of his doctor customers (he was selling for a pharmaceutical house) and since that lucky visit he has increased his business 50 per cent.

For two years he had been driving from town to town, and naturally this threw his elimination out of shape. He felt himself slipping. Cathartics only made him worse. Then one day he was calling on a wise old physician, and asked his advice. "What you need, my boy," said the doctor, "is a simple, easy, normal way to clean the poisons out of your system—we all have them—and with your kind of work they certainly cut down efficiency. Why don't you try Nujol?"

"Well, believe it or not," says Mr. Myers, "in a few days I felt like a new man. 'What's got into you?'

asked the home office, 'your business has increased 50 per cent!'

That's the great thing about Nujol. As soon as it begins to clean the poisons out of your system it makes you feel so well that you can almost always do a much better job.

Nujol is not a medicine and contains no drugs. It is perfectly harmless, forms no habit. It is simply bodily lubrication, which everybody needs. You, like everybody else!

Why put off good health any longer? Go into any good drug store and get a bottle of Nujol in a sealed package. Costs so little and means so much! Maybe you can increase your efficiency 50 per cent too!

Try this treatment for pimples!

Her Husband—Keeping domestic animals in it, I reckon. According to the neighbors he's a jackass, his wife's a cat, his son's a puppy, and his daughter's a bird.

WAY TO SUCCEED

Friend—If you want something from your husband and don't succeed, try, try again.

Wife—I can beat that, my dear—cry, cry again is the way to succeed.

Things Missed

We cannot make bargain with blisses. Or catch them like fishes in nets; But sometimes the things that life misses, Help more than the things that it gets.

What's the Use

Traffic Cop—Hey, you can't make a turn to the right.

Lady Motorist—Why not?

A Receipt Needed

Jean—Have you heard that Donald's lost his memory altogether?

Sandy—Well, well, he's unfortunate! And to think I just gave him back the $5 I borrowed from him last week.

How It Happened

After years away a New Yorker tried to locate an old friend and finally found him far out in the suburbs.

"How did you happen to move away out here?"

"Oh, it was gradual. I moved five blocks before I got away out here."

His Choice

Father—Which would you rather have, a little brother or a little sister?

Little Jakey—If it's all the same to you, papa, I'd rather have a white rabbit with red eyes.

"Lucile is the Happiest Girl"

So many mothers nowadays talk about giving their children fruit juices, as if this were a new discovery. As a matter of fact, for over fifty years, mothers have been accomplishing results far surpassing anything you can secure from home prepared fruit juices, by using pure, wholesome California Fig Syrup, which is prepared under the most exacting laboratory supervision from ripe California Figs, richest of all fruits in laxative and nourishing properties.

It's marvelous to see how bilious, weak, feverish, sallow, constipated, under-nourished children respond to its gentle influence; how their breath clears up, color flames in their cheeks, and they become sturdy, playful, energetic again. A Western mother, Mrs. H. J. Stoll, Valley P. O., Nebraska, says: "My little daughter, Roma Lucile, was constipated from babyhood. I became worried about her and decided to give her some California Fig Syrup. It stopped her constipation quick; and the way it improved her color and made her pick up made me realize how run-down she had been. She is so sturdy and well now, and always in such good humor that neighbors say she's the happiest girl in the West."

Like all good things, California Fig Syrup is imitated, but you can always get the genuine by looking for the name "California" on the carton.

Things We Don't See

So many of us go through the day and hardly notice the sparkle of sunlight on a lake or goblet, the majestic angles cast by a skyscraper or a picket fence, the grace of a cobweb swaying in the breeze, of a dandelion turned white and fluffy, of a gray road winding over a hill.—Woman's Home Companion.

HAS THE LAXATIVE IN YOUR HOME A DOCTOR'S APPROVAL?

Some things people do to help the bowels whenever any bad breath, feverishness, biliousness, or a lack of appetite warn of constipation, really weaken these organs. Only a doctor knows what will cleanse the system without harm. That is why the laxative in your home should have the approval of a family doctor.

The wonderful product, known to millions as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a family doctor's prescription for sluggish bowels. It never varies from the original prescription which Dr. Caldwell wrote thousands of times in many years of practice, and proved safe and reliable for men, women and children. It is made from herbs and other pure ingredients, so it is pleasant-tasting, and can form no habit. You can buy this popular laxative from all drugstores.

Red Rain Explained

A torrential fall of "red rain" in Manchuria almost destroyed the village of Fuyu, not far from Mukden, Chinese newspapers report. Pools of blood-red water formed in the streets, and the rain discolored houses. The Chinese inhabitants explained the red rain by saying that some superhuman huntsman had shot a dragon in the sky.
