Know Your School

(That patrons may have better opportunity of really knowing their school this column will each week be given over to school news. It is the desire of the school executives that the patrons become better acquainted with the faculty, school methods and school aims.)

Ministers of all denominations throughout the United States will address their audiences on the higher values of education and on the work of the schools, Sunday, Nov. 17, the last day of American Education week.

All of the local churches will combine to make one big community service at 7:30 p. m., Sunday, Nov. 17, at the First Baptist church, when the Rev. R. E. Griffith, Church of Christ, will deliver the main address. The Rev. I. E. Owen, Loyalty Baptist Church, will give the invocation, the Rev. J. A. Mac Millan, First Presbyterian Church, the Scripture reading, and the Rev. W. M. Justice, First Methodist Church, the benediction. In addition, there will be special musical numbers.

Beginning with Monday, Nov. 11, the Sanderson Schools will observe every day of American Education Week with a program in the high school auditorium. All parents are to feel free to attend as many of the programs as they can, and for the convenience of the citizens a detailed program will be published in the school paper and the local paper.

The purpose of the observance of Education Week is to acquaint the public with the aims, achievements, and needs of the schools. Therefore, the public should take especial interest in Know Your School Day, Wednesday, Nov. 13, which is known as "at home" day for teachers and pupils. On this day the school will hold "open house" for parents and friends. The Parent-Teachers Association plans to serve tea and cakes to all visitors.

That a child who is 10 per cent or more underweight cannot be expected to progress as rapidly and successfully in school as a child who is up to normal is the fact upon which the Sanderson School authorities based their argument for milk service in the public schools.

This declaration of war upon undernourishment in Sanderson school children has brought favorable results. When the milk supply to the nutrition classes was first undertaken, 75 half-pints were distributed daily. Now the count has reached 100 half pints. Recognition of the fact that a whole morning at school utilizes every bit of physical and mental vigor of the child, some parents authorized their children to take the mid-morning lunch in order to get a fresh supply of strength.

Children of the nutrition classes who are drinking milk to put on weight should be in bed by 8:30 o'clock and should give up the drinking of tea and coffee.

Mrs. Joe Kerr Hostess at Bridge

The lovely home of Mrs. Joe Kerr was the scene of a very enjoyable party on the 16th when she entertained the Wednesday Bridge Club, naming Mrs. Jno. Robinson and Mrs. L. A. Lowe honor guests. Halloween decorations and golden cosmos were featured elaborately throughout this charming home. Bridge tables were attractively appointed in black covers, score pads and talleys were in the form of pumpkins. At the conclusion of a delightful series of spirited games high score trophy, an attractive floral designed cake cover was awarded Mrs. Sims Wilkinson; second high, a beautiful bath mat, went to Mrs. D. A. Pollard. Unique candleabras in hallowe'en design were the table prizes and awards made to Mesdames Savage, de Landes, Daggett, Bodkin, and McKee. The honorees were presented with lovely hand embroidered crepe de chene petticoats. A refreshment plate consisting of shrimp cocktail, turkey sandwiches, cranberry jelly, pumpkin pie and coffee was served to the following guests: Mesdames John Robinson, L. A. Lowe, John Stovell, Ed Downie, S. S. Daggett, J. C. Green, Jim Kerr, D. A. Pollard, H. R. Laurence, S. C. Bodkin, Annie Ware, F. B. Carter, Max Bogusch, W. H. Savage, J. W. McKee, Guy Nations, Thos. de Landes, C. V. McKnight, Lewis Lemons, Sims Wilkinson, F. L. Burnside, J. W. Happle, and the hostess. Much fun was had in exploding the torpedo plate favor which revealed a wish for each guest from the "Goblin."

Mrs. Jim Kerr assisted Mrs. Kerr in entertaining.

Sanderson Wins Football Game From Iraan

Eagles Uphold School Honors in Hard Fought Game

The Sanderson Eagles showed their old fighting spirit Saturday evening by handing a 13 to 12 whipping to the much heavier Iraan team.

Iraan scored two touchdowns in the first two periods by the aerial route, but were unable to break through the Eagle line. Twice during the second quarter Iraan placed the ball on the five yard line and it was at this time that the Sanderson line moulded into a solid wall which the heavy pipe-liners couldn't move.

It was in the second half that the Eagles dug their claws deep into Iraan's skin. You could see the big pipe-liners wilt in their second play which was a long pass that fell into the hands of the X Eagle half back who raced 35 yards for Sanderson's first counter.

The Sanderson line worked like old timers throughout the game and showed that they had been well coached, and the backs kept the fans guessing how much would they make on the next play.

But can you imagine a fourteen year old boy about 5½ feet tall plowing through that heavy line for 5 to 12 yards almost at will? That is just what Jack Hayre did. And Green could have the name "Galloping Ghost" if his hair was red. Two of the prettiest plays of the game was when Smith the Sanderson full back returned a pipe-liner's punt 31 yards, and ran the big Iraan left half down in open field to stop a touchdown which would have meant defeat to the Eagles.

Motorcade a Success

(By Cecil D. Brown, Del Rio Evening News)

The U. S. Highway No. 90 motorcade arrived in Sanderson on scheduled time Tuesday noon and were given a free luncheon at the Kerr Hotel. Joe Kerr welcomed the motorcade visitors to this town, and the meeting was then turned over to Alfred Creigh who in turn introduced the Sanderson High School glee club.

CHAPTER I
What the Goose Hunters Saw

"What's that, Gaspard, off shore there?"
The black eyes of Gaspard Lecroix shifted from the incoming flock of snowy geese...

"Ah-hah! Eat ces queer."
"Must be tree traders! They can't get through Hudson's straits now; they've got to winter on the bay, I wis my father knew about this, I regretted he white boy, but 't's too late to turn back now."

"Eef w, going to trap de Yellow Leg heads after dis long snow we got no lam to lose."

"Right you are, old partner! But I'd like to know what these people are doing on this coast. You don't suppose we'll run into them on the Yellow Leg?"

The smart face of Gaspard Lecroix went darker. The small eyes glittered as he said: "My fader die on de Yellow Leg! I dese peop' hunt dat countree, last spreeng, dey—"

"But that was two hundred miles inland, Gaspard," objected Brock.
"Those people would not leave the coast."

"Ah-hah, mebbe not," sighed the half-breed, saddened by the thought of the father he had lost.

Over the marsh which reached from the black spruce guarding the muskeg inland, to the wet flats where myriad shore birds fed behind the ebbing tide, the flock of "snowies" which the boys were watching, drifted lazily in from the sea.

Then, in quick succession two shots ranged beneath them and before the beating pinions of the bewildered geese lifted and swept them out of range, again two guns exploded in the "hide." Falling vertically, two birds struck the grass flats stone dead; two angled down from the retreating "knowies," wings moving mechanically, to hit the marsh with a thud a hundred yards from the alders.

"Four more," said Brock, rising to stretch his stiff legs. "That makes twenty this morning, Gaspard."

"We eat all we can try. I wish we had bigger game."

"Oh, we'll find caribou on the Yellow Leg, and if we make he lakes in time, we'll net plenty of whitetail and trout. I don't see why you worry about grub," demurred Brock.

Gaspard shook his head good-naturedly at the optimism of his friend.
"De caribou ces here today; tomorrow gone. We mus, get feesh or we have hard tam to feed de dog in de winter," he replied. "We got wan month to de freeze-up, Brock. We must hurry."

Then, each with a back load of birds suspended by a leather tump-line passing over the head, the boys started for their camp a mile across the marsh.

At the camp, a chorus of husky yelps hailed them.

"Hello, Flash, old pup!" called Brock, tossing his geese to the platform cache high above the reach of the dogs. As his master went to the stake where he was tied, the big Eskimo puppy wriggled in ecstasy, alternately growling and yelping his delight.

At neighboring stakes three grown dogs fretted and yelped, jealously demanding recognition. Brock left his puppy and with a pat on the head and pull at the ears, spoke to each.

"Well Kona, old girl!" he said to a snow-white female who greeted him no less eagerly than the slate-gray and white Flash. Hello Silt-Ear, you rascal!" he cried, to a black and white dog with an ear which had been ripped by the razor-like claws of a lynx. The fourth, a hulking yellow and white husky, the red lower lids of whose oblique, amber colored eyes marked a near strain of the wolf, crouched at his stake.

"Yellow Eye! You've been chewing at that wire again!" And the youth seized the gaping lower jaw of the dog and looked into the laxy eyes raised to his. "You're king-dog of this team, now, old boy, but some day that pup Flash'll make your old bones crack."

By the time they had finished their dinner of boiled geese, corn bread and wild cranberries, the returning tide had backed up the water in the stream to a depth sufficient to float the loaded canoe out through the channel. Ther with their freight of geese, flour and provisions; traps and camp outfit, on top of which was lashed a toboggan sled, they started for the mouth of the unknown and mysterious Yellow-Leg, forty miles up the coast. Following along shore, talls up, and in full cry, as they re-veled in their freedom after days of tethered idleness, the dogs drove frightened flocks of shore-birds, duck and geese into the air, as they traveled.

"You're a big, able lad, Brock, for your age," Angus Mc'ain, factor of Hungry House on the Starving river, had replied in July to the pleading of his son to be allowed to winter on the Yellow-Leg with Gaspard; "but you're too young to trap strange country."

Somewhere far to the north, in the unexplored lake country of the interior, from which flowed the great Winnick and the Carcajou, the Yellow-Leg was thought to have its sources.
But no Indian trading at Hungry House had ever ascended the river, from the bay and of the hunters who wintered in the Starving river country but one had the hardihood to cross the divide and enter the unknown and, therefore, mysterious land to the north —and he had not returned. That man was Pierre Lecroix, father of Gaspard.

With his dog team he had started on the March crust to explore the nameless valleys beyond the last blue hills for signs of fur; and until the trails went soft in the April thaws Gaspard and his brother had followed his father's trap-lines, confident of his safe return. But when the days of sied travel had passed, they knew that somewhere beyond the grim hills to the north, tragedy had overtaken the best bushman and hunter on the Starving—that a fate, unimagined, mysterious, had stricken the veteran who would not starve where caribou roamed the muskegs.

"But Pierre was alone," objected Brock. "That was the trouble, I believe. He got sick or hurt, and couldn't hunt."

"But don't forget, lad, that one winter, twenty years ago, the rabbit plague and the disappearance of the caribou gave this river its name. Many of the 'C'es starved out, so the Company men set to build this post the next summer called it Hungry House.
You might get caught in a northeralone, on your trap-lines—"

"And get lost, you think?" broke in Brock, the blood showing in his brown face, as his frank eyes met his father's doubtful look.

"Yes, and get lost—snowed up in a big blow, far from your camp, with out grub," answered Angus Mc'ain, dryly. "Many a good man, older, stronger and wiser than you, my lad, has starved out after a big snow-lost."

For a space Brock frowned down at his moccasins, then his pride spurred him to answer. "Of course, I've got plenty to learn from Gaspard. He's part Cree and it's uncanny all he knows about the bush. He'd be boss on this trip, and we're like brothers. It's time, too, I made something for myself, father."

Slowly the grey eyes of the elder Mc'ain softened as his son begged for the chance to risk his life in the hinterlands of the Yellow Leg. At last he said, reluctantly: "If you'll promise to take the dogs and make for the coast and home when your grub gets low instead of trying to stick it out I'll consent."

"Good old dad!" Brock impulsively wrung his father's hand.

So it was that early September found the two boys on their way to the wilderness of the Yellow-Leg.

Fine Art of Living
Is Greatest of All

A Texas woman, Mrs. Nettie Miller, says some interesting things about the finest art of all—the art of living. "To live finely," she says, "is to choose between things of passing interest and those of lasting value; to be glad to work because it is making a life rather than a living. . . . We have it within us to make life rich, if while facing our difficulties we can see the beauty there is in the world. The Texas woman expressed this idea when she said, 'Whatever of beauty the heart is feeling, whatever of beauty the mind is thinking, whatever of beauty the hand is doing—this is art—and to live in conscious co-operation with the music of a living and joyous universe, is to make life itself the finest of all fine arts.'—Cappera Weekly.

Would Sell Something
"Now, ladies and gentlemen," said the auctioneer at a sale of old musters, "what am I offered for this superb Velazquez, probably the best Velazquez that ever came from the master's hand?"

"There were no bids, so the auctioneer took up another picture.

"Very well, ladies and gentlemen," he went on, "I now offer you a Titian by the same artist!"

WILL PROBABLY SUCCEED

"Say, Jerry, are you really serious about taking up the saxophone?"
"Sure! I'm tryin' to run the family out of our upstairs apartment."

Bringing the Bad News
The ticker tape comes rolling fast and brings me deep regret.
It always lets me know, at last,
I have misplaced my bet.

Essentiality of Words
"Have you ever felt that you had talked too much?"
" Frequently," answered Senator Sorghum. "But what is a man going to do? You can't remain in responsible silence. You got to say something in order to let the folks know you are alive."—Washington Star.

Loss of a Sacrifice Mother (after relating a pathetic story)—Now, Reggie, wouldn't you like to give your bunny to that poor little boy you saw today who hasn't any father?"
Reggie (clutching a rabbit)—Couldn't we give him father, just?—Churchman.

AFTER THE FAST GIRLS

"So you don't think much of the handsome motor cop?"
"No—he's always chasing after these fast girls."

Too Bad
Grandpa in a speedy car, Fished the throttle down, too far,
Twinkle, twinkle, little star,
Music by the G. A. R.

Before and After Mr. Pester—Cleaning house just because a few women are going to drop in this afternoon? You never make such elaborate preparations when I entertain my friends.

His Wife—No, but I clean up five times as much after they leave.

Superior to Influence
" Do you play golf?"
" I claim to do so," said Senator Sorghum. "But the voice of the proletariat is against me. The caddie thinks differently."—Washington Star.

For the Laboratory
"Five hundred dollars for that old worn-out liver of yours! Impossible! Who'd ever pay that?"
"The auto school. They wanted it for the students to practice on, and it certainly had everything that could be wrong with a car."

The Only Difficulty
She—Darling, do you think there can be people in the moon?
He—How could there be? Where would they go when there is no moon?

Program for the Busy Girl

THERE are two little lines of worry in the rather pretty forehead of one Amelia and they're growing deeper, day by day. She's a nice kid with a pretty good face on the whole and the two aforementioned lines aren't doing anything for her chances of an external schoolgirl complexion.

But she can't help them. She is in a state of rush, of nervous activity which produces the little frown, and produces with it a certain shortness of temper, and acidity of disposition which are not endearing.

She's actually a busy girl. She works, she has a certain amount to do with taking care of her own clothes —she goes out in the evenings quite a lot, she dances, plays bridge, writes letters to an ever-increasing circle of friends—in short she lives the full busy life of a normal girl.

But she has no pleasure in it. The needless tasks which are part of everyday life pile up in front of her into a big black shadow from which she cannot escape.

Her's is not an easy-going temperament. She does not meet each minute with a serene confidence. She worries in advance of a situation, worries all the way through it about something still further ahead—and wonders why she isn't getting enough out of life.

There's only one cure for the nervous fidgety type who have a certain amount of work to do every day which cannot be avoided—that is to form a program and to stick to it.

The girl who calmly and efficiently does each day what must be done is never faced with gigantic problems all of a sudden. It's the nervous hurried Amelia type which is constantly having nervous breakdowns from overwork.

Amelia rushes through one task, only to pause for a good hard worry over what she's going to do to the old black dress when she gets home.
She sits puzzling over this problem and bewailing her lack of money until some precious time has speeded past and she's horrified to discover that she has not even completed the work before her, let alone solved the problem yet waiting for her.

That causes more worry and the work she thereupon proceeds to do is faint and inaccurate because her mind is too crowded with doubt and worry to permit its working clearly.

You see what I mean. That kind of frail little thing must have a program of some sort if she's to keep out of sanitariums the rest of her life.

Otherwise she will spend her days in worrying over what she has to do —and the time will slip past and she will find at the end of the day she has twice as much to do.

Luxury of Cattiness BREATHE there a dame! with soul so dead who has never murmured to a bosom gossip. "Now for a really good low-down on our friends," and therewith plunged into a nice catty discussion of acquaintances, intimate and distant?

There are very few girls in the world who won't own up, under pressure, to a perfectly natural human desire, ever so often, to criticize what in their friends they find unpleasant—and to do it thoroughly.

It doesn't seem exactly a vicious practice—this little pastime of raking all one's neighbors over the coals, but honestly it's the most costly luxury any little maiden can afford.

The girl who settles herself down comfortably to tell an interested audience exactly why Dorothy isn't as nice as she's supposed to be—is indulging herself—and at what an expense.

For the sake of a few precious moments of tongue-wagging over a delectable piece of gossip—she's endangering her own good reputation and friendship with her hearers.

Oh, yes, she is! Not that they're all silently despising her for gossiping—as they eagerly listen and press for more details. Not that at all.

But somewhere inside them they're making a mental note: "This girl Anne CAN be darned cat! if she chooses. I wonder what she'd say about me if she got half a chance."

Of course, that isn't a really conscious thought with them at all. But the impression sticks, all the same, and it breeds distrust of Anne.

There aren't many high-minded young things in the crowd today who will actually refuse to listen to the low-down on somebody else. So that Anne will never receive open and violent rebuff for her story-telling proclivities. She will always be listened to with flattering interest.

But she will not be trusted as a loyal friend and confidante, no matter how well her gossip is received.

Even the Dumbest Dora is bound to get wise to the fact that if Anne tells such interesting and dirty details about Dorothy, Anne will be able to furnish just the same amount of interesting data, on any girl to whom she takes a sudden dislike.

Therefore even the Dumbest Dora is careful not to give Anne food for conversation. She doesn't exactly avoid the little story teller, but she avoids being conspicuously friendly or unfriendly.

Norway Celebrates in 1930

In 1820 Norway will celebrate the ninth centenary of the coming of Christianity, together with the anniversary of the death of King Olav II, who died in the struggle against the opponents of the new faith. Celebrations will take place in all parts of the country but the principal ceremony will be held at Trondheim, an old royal residence and the seat of an archbishopric before the Lutheran reformation. The work of restoring the cathedral has been proceeding for a long time. It was built on Olav's tomb. The completion of the work will coincide with the celebration of nine centuries of Christianity in Norway.—Translated for the Kansas City almost constant pain in my side. I had rheumatic pains in my limbs and it seemed like every joint in my body ached. It got so bad, I could hardly walk. My liver wasn't active and my whole system seemed full of poisons. My husband was taking Sargon and I saw it was doing him worlds of good so I decided to try it.

"I can eat anything I want now and my stomach never bothers me. That terrible aching in my side is gone and there isn't a rheumatic pain in my body. A Cipher and a Trained Mind

By H. IRVING KING

ARTHUR CAMPBELL was a star reporter on a big New York daily, and he was in love with Ethel Crosby—who was in love with him. But Ethel's father was a rich financier who had no use for newspaper men. Although he had been a friend of Arthur's father in the days when the two had "broken into" Wall street together, he had no idea of letting his daughter marry his old friend's son.

"Oh, Arthur," Ethel was saying as the two sat alone in the back parlor of the old-fashioned Crosby mansion, "I am really afraid we shall have to elope—for I won't give you up, let father say what he will. "He was talking to me today about you," she went on, "and even went so far as almost to order me to forbid you the house. But I told him frankly that I should do no such thing. He called me an ungrateful and rebellious child and I cried, and he went off in a rage to the library. He's there now. He's got some business matter on his mind, I can see, and that makes him very unreasonable."

"I don't see why your father should be so down on me," said Arthur. "I have a little money of my own and—I've a good mind to go upstairs and have it out with him."

"Do!" cried Ethel. "Matters can't be any worse than they are now."

"All right," replied Arthur, "here goes for the Rubicon!" Arthur went upstairs, knocked on the library door, which stood partly open, and entered. Mr. Crosby looked up surprised and angry from the paper on the table before him which he had been contemplating with a puzzled frown. "Excuse my intrusion, Mr. Crosby," said Arthur, "but I gathered from Ethel that you might like to have a talk with me concerning my relations to your daughter. We are deeply in love. I have a small competence and have just been appointed Washington correspondent for my paper. My prospects are good, my character will bear investigation and, in short, I ask the hand of your daughter in marriage."

"You—you!" spluttered Crosby. "You penny-a-liner, you pauper! If you had gone into Wall street as your father did!"

"I might have been squeezed by old Collingwood as my father was," interrupted Arthur. At the name of Collingwood Crosby paused reflectively and glanced at the paper on the table. His whole manner changed. "Yes," said he, "Collingwood did ruin your father and there (tapping the paper on the table) is the same hand reached out for me."

Arthur glanced at the document. "Cipher, sir?" he asked. "Yes," replied Crosby, "and I'd give something to read it."

On the piece of paper Arthur saw the following: (568.3.78)85: He gazed at it thoughtfully, then seemed to be struck with a sudden idea. "I think I can decode it for you, sir," said he. "You can? Go ahead and try, then. If you succeed—well, then we will talk of other matters." Arthur looked along the book shelves, took down a volume, drew a chair up to the table, selected a pencil and a piece of blank paper, and set to work. Finally he handed the cipher message back to Crosby with letters written under the cryptic characters. The message now appeared as

(568.3.78)85: raldpgtuesday

"Rald Peninular and Galveston Tuesday, will he?" cried Crosby. "The old villain. Well, we'll see about that. I have you on the hip, William! Checkmate to Collingwood." By reading Collingwood's cipher Arthur had changed Crosby's despair into exultation.

"How did you do it?" asked Crosby when he had calmed down a little. "Why, you see, sir," replied Arthur, "a newspaper man has a trained mind (Crosby sniffed), accustomed to deductive reasoning. Your connecting the cipher message with Collingwood caused me rapidly to turn over in my mind everything connected with the occasion upon which I was sent to interview that eminent financier, and I recalled that on that occasion he was reading a volume of Poe's stories. Then I recollected that in Poe's story of 'The Gold Bug' there is a cryptogram containing the same characters which appear in the cipher message. This gave me a clue. I found on your book shelves a copy of Poe's works, turned to 'The Gold Bug,' applied the cryptogram contained and explained therein to Collingwood's message—and you see the result. Very careless of Collingwood to appropriate a cipher instead of inventing one; but unless one has a trained mind he is apt to fall to detect it."

"Quite so," interrupted Crosby, "and your trained mind, I understand, is bent on having my daughter. Well, you have rendered me such an immense service today that all I can say is—take her."

Better Woe Than Nothing It is not so much the being exempt from faults as the having overcome them, that is an advantage to us; it being with the follies of the mind as with the weeds of a field, which, if destroyed and consumed upon the place where they grow, enrich and improve it more than if one had ever sprung there.—Dean Swift.

MacDonald's Work Lesson for Farmers The Brain's White Tea Mr. Mellon Stays

Ramsay MacDonald's work in Scotland is well done. The United States and Britain have solemnly themselves against war and in favor of peace by all proper means.

What the future will bring for the British government is a matter of speculation. The present labor government is a very real danger to the American public opinion in the future, no one can say.

It took human beings thousands of years to abandon cannibalism. Often, undoubtedly, they were driven to it by hunger. And over the years the resolution was broken, and cannibalism has disappeared.

AND WAR WILL DISAPPEAR. Nevertheless, in days when the civilized men were giving up cannibalism, they kept themselves from those that might come to them.

The United States and Great Britain, denouncing and abandoning as between Britain and America should keep ready and able to others that might seek to exploit upon them.

Farmers, crying for "relief" from New York's striking drivers that real relief can be found in organization.

The drivers haul farmers' produce and wanted an increase in pay for their services. It was not difficult to make an agreement that any produce hauled into New York would be unloaded from the farm truck into a truck operated by a member of the Market Trucking association before it could be taken to a commission house.

Who pays for that reloading, the second truck and the services of another truckman, all unnecessary? THE FARMER PAYS, OF COURSE.

Manufacturers of safes, cooperating with electricians, have made a gigantic steel box, so delicately balanced that it sounds an alarm if a burglar so much as lays his hand on it.

The slightest touch, even the falling of a hat on top of the safe, is felt, reported and brings police.

Such things amaze us, but we are used to just such a safe. A system of nerves covering the whole body sounds the alarm when anything is punctured or touched. And the brain always knows what is going on in the outside world. Lying gray and cold inside its "ivory temple," it sees, hears, feels, tastes and smells, and doesn't know how.

There's a really wonderful safe. President Hoover's announcement that Secretary Mellon has promised to remain in office until 1933 is good news. The public appreciates the wisdom of Mr. Mellon, one of the three richest men in the world, to neglect his own business for the public business.

It requires not much intelligence to realize to what extent Mr. Mellon's work has contributed to national prosperity. Himself a heavy taxpayer, directly or through corporation ownership, Mr. Mellon has paid off already many billions of the national debt. He continues the "pay as you go" policy, not shouldering war debts on future generations that may be less able to pay than today's prosperous generation.

Senator Sheppard of Texas, as dry as the deepest spot in Death Valley, suggests amending the Volstead act to make purchasers of liquor as guilty and criminal as bootleggers.

Such an amendment, of course, would strengthen prohibition enormously. Respectable prosperity would refuse to buy, fearing jail and blackmail after buying.

But Senator Sheppard's amendment probably will not pass; many legislators are themselves bootleg customers and don't believe in taking prohibition too seriously.

Thomas E. Mitten, recently drowned, had reorganized Philadelphia's street car system, establishing good relations with labor.

His will leaves millions for "the promotion and advancement of the cause of co-operation between capital and labor."

Rather a difficult program, even with several millions back of it. Labor wants from capital a fair share of what both produce, and doesn't always get it. Capital wants from labor earnest co-operation, a real day's work, and doesn't always get it. Peace between capital and labor is an issue even more important than peace among nations, since it refers to a war that is always on.

WASHABLE WEAVES POPULAR; STORY OF THE MODERN SCARF

Practical and Modish Fall Frock.

THANKS to the advent of rayon into the textile field, that which women have long since hoped for has come to pass—fabrics which, while they do not look as if they are washable, are nevertheless just that. We have available materials which present in appearance the formality and fineness of higher priced woolsens or silks yet they tub just as satisfactorily as cottons or linens. What greater boon, we ask, could come to women who seek suits and frocks for smart utilitarian wear?

Talk about "blissings in disguise," well, these new washable weaves, some of which look like handsome tweed suitings, others like wool etamine and still others which give the impression of sheer wool georgette, are certainly blessings to womankind. As to their "disguise," perhaps to speak of them thus scarcely does them sufficient honor, for after all there's no attempt to conceal the identity of rayon, rather do the fabric-wise hale with enthusiasm this comparatively new medium into the realm of fabrics.

For street wear, for wear in school room or office, frocks of these washable, yet smart, and apropos materials are proving a boon to womankind. Whether you make your own clothes, or whether you employ a by-the-day or-week dressmaker, or whether you buy the finished ready-to-wear models, this matter of weaves which look like the more expensive woolsens and silks yet launder perfectly should be kept in mind.

The practical and modish early fall street frock in the upper picture is made of a sheer wool-and-rayon close-ly woven, washable fabric in one of the newest deep brown shades. The closely fitted blipline is as important listed among suitings which yield admirably to various tailored treatments.

Bicolor, tricolor, in startling contrast—thus runs the story of the modern scarf. It is an easy matter to make one's scarf this season for many of the very smartest ones are fashioned by simply seaming materials of sharply contrasting colors together, usually on the diagonal like the one in the lower picture.

Another clever idea is the twin kerchief scarf which is nothing more or less than two squares of silk sewed together, a corner of the one overlapping a corner of the other. Take this to the hemstitcher and have it picot edged and presto! there you are with one of the smartest scarfs of the season.

You will like the way this twin-scarf ties about the neck, for the one square falls folded over one shoulder, and the other over the other shoulder, and when they are brought together and tied to the front in a loose knot the colors intermingle most effectively.

Seeing that so much importance is being attached to black-and-white this season, here's a suggestion: Make a twin scarf, joining as first described, one eighteen-inch square of white, the other of black sheerest of sheer transparent velvet.

The tricolor, bicolor theory in regard to the scarf is quite well worth

as are the low dropped plaits in the skirt. The "classy" collar and cuffs are very youthful and bespeak a popular vogue.

One of the very smartest materials for the coat dress or street ensemble is a coarse tweedlike fabric of wool either flecked with bouclé or of rayon or interwoven with a distinct rayon thread. In these bold handsome effects the rayon remains white and silvery against the color of the wool. For their handsome models the couture of Paris often trim these rayon-flecked woolsens with white or eggshell flat, curly fur.

Covert cloth which has a considerable interweaving of rayon also is recalling when one is plunged into a sea of doubt as to just how to finish the neckline of this frock or that when your by-the-day dressmaker runs out of "ideas." A scarf which will happily solve the problem and which may be made to complement the color trend of the costume is easily fashioned by combining materials of the same kind as that of the dress—only in, let us say, three different colors. For example, a brown flat crepe frock, collared with a scarf which seams orange cream an-matching brown crepe together would achieve a very effective necklin-treatment. JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School 'Lesson'

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, 165 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.)

Lesson for October 27

THE CHRISTIAN'S VIEW OF RECREATION

LESSON TEXT—Jer. 31:12, 13. Zech. 8:15. Mark 2:18-28. Mark 6:20-32. John 2:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Right Way to Play.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Right Way to Play.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Play Does for Us.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Recreation in Community Life.

In the last lesson we saw that work was God's primal law for man in work there is a certain breaking down of cells which needs constant repair; therefore, in order that work may continue there must be recreation. Recreation means re-creation. Failure to discern this truth has made of recreation dissipation. In this light let us view the salient points in the scripture selected.

I. The Coming Golden Age (Jer. 31:12, 13).

Though Jeremiah was the weeping prophet, and presented dark pictures of Israel's condition, God gave him a view of Israel's golden age. He made known how that through the mighty hand of God the chosen nation should be delivered from bondage and brought into their own land where peace, prosperity and gladness should prevail. The source of all real recreation is right relationship with God. God is the source of all joy. Nothing so powerfully affects the physical organism in its renewal as joy in God. In this coming age the streets of the city will be safe for old people and children (Zech. 8:4, 5).

II. The Christian's Relation to Fasting (Mark 2:18-23).

1. A question asked (v. 18).

The very joyfulness of the disciples of Christ in contrast with the disciples of John and the Pharisees, moved an inquiry as to the reason. The law of Moses only required fasting on the Day of Atonement. John the Baptist was in prison, therefore it is clear as to why his disciples were fasting.

2. Christ's answer (vv. 19, 20).

He declared that the children of the bride chamber could not fast as long as they had the bridegroom with them. The joy of present companionship with Christ prevented their fasting. This shows that Christ is the real source of joy. He recognized that when the bridegroom was absent, there was occasion for fasting. Christ is now away, therefore fasting is permissible. In times of great need the early church fasted. Before sending out the first missionaries they fasted and prayed (Acts 13:1, 2). More fasting and less feasting would be helpful today in the ordination of Christian workers.

III. The Christian's Relation to the Sabbath (Mark 2:24-28).

The disciples were charged with lawlessness because they plucked ears of corn as they walked through the fields on the Sabbath day. In Christ's defense against this charge, He

1. Cites a precedent (v. 26).

It was the case of David, their great king, who in time of need ate the shewbread which was only lawful for the priests. The principle set forth is that the higher law of human need warranted David in doing this which was out of the regular line of duty.

2. Showed the nature of the Sabbath law (v. 27).

The Sabbath was made for man, therefore its right use is determined by what it contributes to man's good. The Sabbath should not be man's cruel master, but his helpful servant.

3. Jesus is Lord of the Sabbath (v. 28).

It was He who instituted it when creation was finished; therefore He had the right to use it as it pleased Him for man's good.

IV. The Need of a Vacation (Mark 6:30-32).

The tragic death of John the Baptist had just occurred, and the disciples had just returned from a strenuous missionary tour. Christ, perceiving their need, invited them to come apart with Him for rest.

V. Jesus Attending a Wedding (John 2:1-11).

This is a striking sidelight on the spirit of Christ. A marriage feast was graced by His presence. In this act He set a mark of honor upon marriage, which is the most joyous of earth's occasions. In this act man's holy Redeemer lifted the holy ordinance of marriage into its dignity and beauty. In the course of the feast when the wine was exhausted, He wrought His first miracle rather than have its festivities marred.

Glorious

Earth has not a spectacle more glorious or more fair to show than this—love, tolerating intolerance; charity covering as with a veil even the sin of the lack of charity.—F. W. Robertson.

Overcoming Obstacles

An easy life is not likely to be a very valuable life to itself or to others. Strength comes by overcoming obstacles, and it is the strong life that can best help those about it.

The Mark of Genuine Aspirin..

BAYER ASPIRIN is like an old friend, tried and true. There can never be a satisfactory substitute for either one. Bayer Aspirin is genuine. It is the accepted antidote for pain. Its relief may always be relied on, whether used for the occasional headache, to head-off a cold, or for the more serious aches and pains from neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or other ailments. It's easy to identify Bayer Aspirin by the Bayer Cross on every tablet, by the name Bayer on the box and the word "genuine" always printed in red.

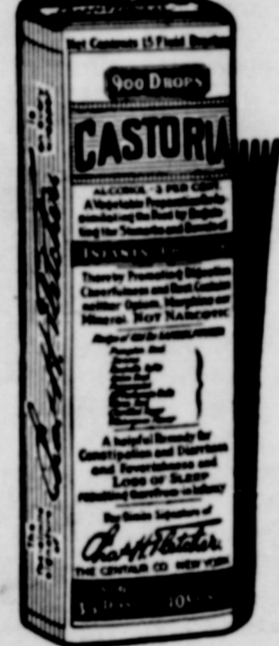

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monachweidach, Germany.

When BABIES are upset

Baby ills and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

When a White Collar Man "Goes Army"

Perhaps he doesn't learn a few things!

DON'T envy a man who "only has to work a typewriter." So we were told by Mr. Solon S. Bloom of 3503 Woodbrook Avenue, Baltimore, Md., whose health began to give way because his work gave him no bodily exercise.

"I decided to get away to a military training camp," says Mr. Bloom, "thinking the rough and tumble with the army would do me good for a month. I asked the doctor what to do about my condition. 'I've seen men, I've known men,' he said. 'I know what they eat, drink, and how they live. I know cathartics, physics, and all the ways men try to keep themselves regular—and the only two that go together well are men and Nujol. Nujol soothes and heals the membranes and expels bodily poisons normally, naturally, easily, so that you are regular as clock-work.'" into the army. If you are like most other people, you too will find that Nujol will make all the difference in the world in the way you feel.

Remember Nujol is not a medicine, for it contains no drugs of any kind. It is simply bodily lubrication that everybody needs.

You can get a bottle of Nujol at any good drug store, in a sealed package, for the price of a couple of good cigars. If you will start today and try it for two weeks you will agree that Nujol is the easy normal way to keep well and make a success out of your life. You will be astonished at the results!

Every mother realizes how important it is to teach children good habits of conduct but many of them fail to realize the importance of teaching their children good bowel habits. The toxins held too long in the system begin to affect the child's health.

With your child and at the first signs of constipation, give him a little Calumet Fig Syrup. Children love its fresh, fruity taste and it quickly gets away those distressing ailments such as headaches, bad breath, red tongue, biliousness, feverishness, etc. It gives them a healthy appetite, regulates their stomachs and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. For over fifty years, leading physicians have prescribed it for sick, bilious, constipated children. More than 4 million bottles of a year shows how mothers depend on it.

Dr. C. G. Wilcox, 3855 1/2 Wolf St., Denver, Colorado, says: "My son, who is a prize winner for health, but we had a lot of trouble with him before we found his trouble was constipation and began giving him Calumet Fig Syrup. It fixed him quick, gave him a good appetite, made him sleep fine and he's been gaining in weight right along since the first few days, taking it."

To avoid inferior imitations of Calumet Fig Syrup, always look for the word "California" on the carton.

The Correct Way to Remove Wrinkles

There is one way—a simple, pleasant, sure method that thousands use to drive wrinkles away. That way is to get two ounces of aptol from the drug store, mix with half pint of water, adding a tablespoon of glycerine. This makes a delightful rich cream, which you spread thinly over forehead, temples, cheeks, around eyes and rub in until absorbed. Instantly the pores tighten, dead outer skin sloughs off and new, smooth, plump, youthful skin appears. With this action, away go wrinkles, lines and crow's-feet.

Gertrude Restoule, sixteen, of Sturgeon Falls, Ontario, has gone to a Toronto hospital to get thin, being perhaps the heaviest young woman in Canada. She weighs 450 pounds. A sister who weighs 375 pounds also will be taken to the hospital for treatment. The parents of the children are normal in weight.

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

Sanderson Wins From Iran

Every man in the line deserves credit for fighting their best even though it was a losing fight during the first half.

The second quarter for Sanderson came in the third quarter when Captain Lattimore went over center for 5 yards, and then made extra point. The Eagles should be proud of their captain; not just because he scored the winning counter but because he backs his team and is a fighter to the last. Could a team play without a center? I should say not, and Bobby Howard is the one center that can look at a man twice his size and say "come on big boy, I am ready for more." Ellis and Robey showed up splendid at guard. Time after time they stopped those line bucks and on their off tackle plays formed good interference. Jansa and Lattimore at tackle played a very rough game and many times broke through and through the Iran lines for losses.

Daniels, Stavley and Farley played their best game at end. They never failed to turn their man in. They would convert Iran's long end runs into off tackle plays.

How about our little quarter back? Does he know his business? If he didn't, then why did he run his speedy half backs off tackle so much. That's where we made our gains. And why did he call on Lattimore to make the remaining 5 yards for a touchdown. Just because he knew who to run and when to run him.

In the 4th period we needed a toe that could kick; it was then that Henry came in and punted his way to the 10 yard line where the ball stayed during the last several moments of play.

The next word is—BEAT ALPINE!
