His early life was spent in the county of his birth where he was united in marriage to Miss Sallie Bean. Of this union 9 children were born, 7 of whom now survive him, Mrs. F. L. Wise of Alpine, Texas, J. M. Turner of Alpine, Texas, R. J. Turner Jr., of this county, Robert and J. C. Turner of Sheffield, Texas, Lee Turner of Tuscon, Arizona, and Mrs. Viola Wall of Sonora, Texas. He is also survived by 16 grandchildren and 6 great grandchildren.

Mr. Turner had been a resident of Terrell county for many years and was known to youngsters and grownups as "Uncle Dick." His disposition was sunny and cheerful and he always had a smile and hearty greeting for every one he met.

The body was laid to rest last Tuesday in the cemetery at Sheffield, Texas, where his wife and two children are buried. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Mathews of the Iraan Baptist church. A large crowd was at the funeral.

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. FLASH

The Lead Dog

SYNOPSIS

Up the wild waters of the unknown Yellow-Leg, on a winter's hunt, Journey Brock McCain and Gaspard Lecroix, his French-Cree comrade, with Flash, Brock's puppy and their dog team. After several battles with the stormy waters they arrive at a fork in the Yellow-Leg. Brock is severely injured in making a portage and Flash leads Gaspard to the unconscious youth. Gaspard tells Brock of his determination to find out who killed his father. Tracks are discovered and the two boys separate for scouting purposes. Brock is jumped by two Indians and a white man and knocked unconscious. He is held prisoner. Gaspard rescues him while his captors sleep. While out alone Gaspard is shot from ambush by an Indian and kills his would-be-slayer. While out on his trap lines Brock is caught in a heavy snow storm. Gaspard finds him and the two start out on Brock's trap line. They find an Indian who had been stalking them caught in a trap, dead. On him was knife that belonged to Gaspard's father. They decide to camp until spring and then continue their journey.

Taking his glasses from the pack, Brock searched the glittering shell of the big lake which, molded by recent wind, rippled from the north in endless drifts, like a white sea.

"I can't make out any signs of a trail down there," he said and handed the binoculars to Gaspard.

For a space the halfbreed studied the shores of the lake, then Brock saw the taut muscles of the mouth of his friend relax in a gesture of surprise.

"What is it?"

"Dere ees a trail down de east shore 'bout tree mile. Eet ees long thin line—a sled trail."

Then Brock looked through the glasses. "Yes, you're right! I see it now, by that long point of black spruce," he agreed. "I'll bet they've got a line of fox traps along that shore. What shall we do?"

"We work down dat shore back een de bush."

Both boys drew their rifles, slung on their packs, from the skin cases which protected them from the snow, and carried them in their mittened hands. They had left no man's land and reached the enemy's country. Any one crossing their trail would follow them up. Their lives now might hang on the slightest mistake.

So, on eaching the black timber of the eastern shore of the lake, they separated and traveled abreast, a hundred yards apart; near enough to support each other, immediately, in case of trouble, but too far apart to be caught in the same ambush. The warning which should mean danger or a discovery of importance, was to be the "eek-eek" of the willow ptarmigan; the rallying call for help, the squawk of the horned owl.

So, with cocked rifles in the hollow of the left arm, ready for swift use, eyes roving in a circle, the two stole noiselessly through the cover of the spruce down the lake shore, stopping by agreement, every quarter mile, to listen.

Where the point they had seen from the ridge began to make out into the lake, Brock, a little in the rear, owing to the thickness of the scrub spruce, heard a faint "eek-eek!"

"He sees something!" muttered the excited boy, turning and making his way noiselessly toward the lake shore.

There, waiting in a clump of small spruce, he found Gaspard.

"Look!" said the halfbreed.

Fifty feet away, a well-beaten trail, over which a sled and dogs had recently passed, as evidenced by the condition of the last light fall of snow, ran to the lake.

"They're hunting east of here for sure; what'll we do?" whispered Brock.

"Keep on nord, today."

"Why not wait here, and pick him up?" demanded Brock.

The black eyes of Gaspard twinkled. "Because he pass here dis morning."

Gaspard pointed to a young spruce leaning over the sled path. "See dat twig! Eet ees pushed and broke toward de lak'. Eef he pass east, de las' tam be push de odder way."

"By golly, you're right!" muttered the white boy, convinced by his partner's word-draft. "He had to go that way, and it had to be this morning for it snowed an inch here last night, and the sled's packed down the snow."

So, through the morning, the scouts worked down the lake. At noon, through an opening in the timber, Gaspard looked long at the north, then said with a nod of his hood, "Snow—soon!"

In an hour the northern sky was the , but there was no wind, in the lake shore Brock heard the low squawk of the horned owl.

Danger!

Swiftly on noiseless shoes he moved out of the shadows to the rim of the timber, eyes and ears strained, right mitten swinging from his neck by its thong, right hand fingering the trigger of his cocked rifle.

A low "Eek-eek!" drifted to his ears from a clump of scrub. "Ah, he's not in trouble!" thought the boy.

In the scrub he joined Gaspard.

"Look!"

Following the pointing mitten, Brock saw, miles away, a dark spot on the lake trail.

"Dog-team!" said Gaspard.

From the cover of the shadowy spruce, the two watched the spot far down the white-surfaced lake.

"He's coming this way, Gaspard!" said Brock, holding his glasses. "He's passed that point!"

"Yes, he travel up-lak' We wait. He weel turn into de timber, soon."

Two miles away, the dog-team moved at a walk toward the watchers in the spruce. Then, like a curtain, the snow swept up the lake, wiping the approaching team from sight as water swallows a duck stone.

"By gar! Dat man ees craze!" stormed Gaspard. In his disappointment, "We go out on de trail an' get heem dere! We lose heem eet we don't."

In the pitch-like gloom which now blanketed the lake, the dog team might pass them in silence. It was the only way. So, walking out over the packed surface until they found the trail by the feet of their shoes, they cautiously started down the lake in the dusk, separated by a hundred feet, the trail between them.

For a half hour, the moving ambush stole through the softly falling snow, for there was no wind. Then, meeting, held a council of war.

"He's gone ashore or we'd have struck him," whispered Brock to the blurred shape of Gaspard, whom he could touch, but see only because of his sheathing of snow.

"Yes, he went ashore w'en de snow come. We keep on and find hees trail."

Slowly, in single file, the hunters continued on the shore side of the lake trail. Then, after a short space, Brock stumbled into the crouched figure of his partner.

"Eet ees here!" said Gaspard.

With his mittens Brock felt the gouge of the swing toboggan sled in the wind-packed snow, where it turned shoreward.

"We'll see his fire before the dogs smell us; then we'd better rush him before he has a chance to get at his gun."

"No!" came the sharp objection. "Een dis snow de huskle not smell us until we are ver' close. We have a look, first, upwind."

They were passing through some young fir when Gaspard suddenly seized Brock's arm.

"De fire! By gar! Good ting we miss dem! Dere are four Cree at dat fire—mebbe more."

"Four Indians? By the great horned owl!" gasped Brock, craning his head for a clear view of the distant camp.

"Ab-hah!" muttered the disgusted Gaspard. "Dat ees why he travel so late on de lak'. He head for dat camp."

For a space Lecroix was silent; then he thrust his face close to the crusted hood of his friend.

"We go close to dem; we can shoot all but one and tak' neem wid us," he said, late in his tones. "Some day—dey shoot us."

The mighty grip of Brock's steel fingers shut on Gaspard's arm. "I'll sneak up with you and have a look—but I won't stand ambushing them, I can't do it—even if they're hunting us."

"But dey keel my fader, lak dis—'at bees fire!" protested the other, desperately.

"Partner, we're crazy to do it, with those dogs there, but I'll go in, closer with you," replied Brock. "I'm with you, heart and soul—but no shooting unless they catch us!"

"All right!" And a sigh of bitterness escaped Gaspard as, with rifle crooked in his left arm, and his knife loose in its sheath, he started to approach the camp-fire.

Noiselessly the boys worked their way into what slight movement of air there was, to avoid betrayal by the sleeping dogs. And they knew as well, that the falling snow, would greatly dilute their scent.

At last, side by side, they crouched in the thick timber, with a good view of the fire. The brush windbreak, roofed with snow, faced them. One man was cooking the supper while the others occasionally rose from where they sat on the bed of spruce boughs to turr their drying foot-clothes and duffle socks, hung on sticks near the fire.

Gradation of Heavens

To be in the seventh heaven means to be supremely happy. According to Mohammed, there are seven heavens. The seventh, says the Koran, is formed of divine light beyond the power of description. Each inhabitant is bigger than the entire earth, and has 70,000 heads, each head 70,000 mouths, each mouth 70,000 tongues, and each tongue speaks 70,000 languages, and all of them are continually engaged in chanting the praises of the Most High. It was in the seventh heaven that Mohammed met Abraham. The Cabalists also believe in seven heavens, each rising in happiness above the other, the seventh being the abode of God and the highest class of angels.

Fliers Say Courage Varies with the Way they Feel

AEROPLANE pilots tell us that their courage, their whole attitude toward flying, varies from day to day, with the way they feel. If they feel full of pep, healthy, they can try anything—nothing frightens them. Their nerve is unshakable; their skill keen; their flying is machine-like in its perfection.

It is an entirely different story, however, if they wake up in the morning feeling sick, down in the mouth. Then flying becomes a real danger.

What is the matter with these brave people when they are not up to par? The natural poisons in their bodies have not been swept away. They are allowing their brains to be clouded and dulled by poisons which should not be permitted to remain in the body.

Providing for Patty

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

JIM GRANGER had more silver dollars than he knew what to do with, a ranch that numbered hundreds of acres and the finest lot of short horns in Selby county. But he had only one daughter and he valued her more than all the rest of his possessions.

He placed her worth so high, in fact, that he could not imagine any man good enough to be her husband. Yet, paradoxically, he had brought himself to believe she ought to marry.

Unfortunately, he could not live forever and he was old-fashioned enough to think that a woman was better off in this vale of tears and fortune hunters than a decent man at her side.

A slight touch of indigestion threw him into a panic and brought him to a sudden weird determination. Calling Patty one morning, he drew her to him tenderly.

"I'm off to Chicago on one of my semi-annual jaunts to talk matters over with the cattle men. Be a good girl while I'm gone and if I wire any instructions, no matter what they are, obey them to the letter!"

Patty, flinging her arms about his neck in a farewell hug, paid no attention to his somewhat unusual admonition, but she recalled it several days later when a telegram was telephoned to her from Blue Butte, the town nearest the ranch.

"Am sending down a guest. See that he is made comfortable but snub him at every opportunity. Dad."

"Kill a couple of fatted calves, Aunt Judy," she told the housekeeper who had been almost a mother to the girl since her own mother's death.

He arrived in due time on the train and seemed to be a pleasant enough young man with level gray eyes and a firm chin.

Patty, bound by promise to obey her father, left most of the entertaining to Aunt Judy but she couldn't for the life of her see what there was about the young man that required snubbing.

Incidentally, she was wildly curious as to the reason for the young man's visit. She wondered if she had found a dew when he said quietly after dinner, "Your father said you would be good enough to show me over the ranch, but I hate to trouble you and wonder if I couldn't just go over it by myself."

Then came the morning when, without any previous hint of such a thing, she found young Trevors with his suitcase beside him.

Derek looked tenderly at Patty. "I'm sorry, sir. Because you were a friend of dad's I agreed to do this favor for you. To come down and, without mentioning it to your daughter, see if—may I go on?"

At the nod of the other man, he continued. "To see if this would be a good place to start a writers' colony, although why on earth anybody should want to—but, in spite of your telling me your daughter was secretly engaged to a cowpuncher in Cheyenne—"

"Daddy, you didn't!" The explosion came from the elder man's shoulder.

"I proceeded to fall in love with her. So there is nothing for me to do but leave."

It seemed to Jim Granger as if a soft voice whispered in his ear, "Make Jim stay, daddy." At any rate, still hanging Patty, he threw his other arm around Derek's shoulder and drew them both towards the dining room.

"Let's talk it over," he said, "after good meal. I am sure one hungry man. And—" but this he added to himself, "a darn clever one."

POLICE HELPED AS DRUG CHEATS DEATH

Holdup Suspect, Wounded in Fight, Dies Twice.

Detroit, Mich.—John Jones, a negro, twenty-two years old, suspected of being a holdup man, was shot as he dived out of an alley in a running battle with the police, and died twice.

He was removed to the receiving hospital, where he died before the police could question him and secure information regarding holdups which they were sure he could furnish.

Death had cheated the law, for dead men tell no tales. Science then stepped in and cheated death. Dr. Courtney Fremont, a member of the hospital staff, injected a charge of adrenalin into the heart muscle of the man who had been dead about half an hour and he came back to life.

Bringing persons back from the grave to live again is no longer a novelty. It has been done scores of times. When the miracle was first performed it received little publicity. It seemed as if there must be some fake about it and, of course, newspapers could not be victimized by fakers, so the stories were published with numerous qualifications hedged about all statements.

Now that it has become well established as a bona fide miracle of science it does not possess quite the novelty it did at first, and even spectacular events such as the Detroit incident pass almost unnoticed.

Baby Brought to Life.

The first case on record in which a baby born dead was brought back to life occurred in a Brooklyn hospital. Mrs. Bertha Isaacson gave birth to twins, a boy and a girl, at the Boro Park Maternity hospital. The boy, weighing three pounds, was born dead.

Both infants were fed with a medicine dropper and were raised in an incubator until they had attained sufficient growth. The boy who was brought back to life is still alive, but his sister died before reaching her fourth birthday. They were born on Lincoln's birthday, 1923. Since then the miracle has been repeated scores of times in Brooklyn as well as elsewhere throughout the country.

In Philadelphia a few years ago a man of forty who had suffered from tuberculosis half his life died. Twelve doctors gathered around his bed and for an hour applied every known test for a sign of life, without finding any.

At the end of two hours rigor mortis had set in. A small amount of adrenalin was then injected into the heart. At the end of two minutes the skin assumed a pink tinge which gradually changed to a flesh color. Ten minutes later the man was breathing faintly. His eyelids fluttered and he sighed as though awakening from sleep.

"How do you feel?" the man was asked.

"All right," he answered in a tired but very ordinary tone.

"Did you have any dreams?"

"No, I slept." His tired eyes closed.

"No unusual sensation?"

"No."

Shortly afterward he returned to an unending dreamless sleep.

His attorneys have tried in vain to save him. When Sabo was "dressed in" two years ago he could neither read nor speak English. Now he speaks fluently.

His tutors were companions in "Death row"—13 of them—who have paid society's capital penalty. Sabo can read well, too, and he spends most of his time poring through the Bible and other religious books.

Crawfordsville, Ind.—Prof. C. H. Oldfather, formerly of the Wabash college faculty here, now with the University of Nebraska, has been commissioned to translate the "Diodorus of Sicily," which will run about 13 volumes, a total of 6,175 pages. The commission was given by the Loeb classical library. Diodorus has never been translated into English, Professor Oldfather says. He is an original writer but also is an important authority for several periods in ancient history.

Texas Now Building Roads for Traffic

NEARLY SEVEN TIMES AS MANY MOTOR VEHICLES IN STATE TODAY AS IN 1917

State Now Constructing Twice As Much Concrete As All Other Kinds

More than sixty-five per cent of the mileage of State highways for which contracts were let by the State Highway Commission during the past year, was for concrete highways, or nearly twice as much mileage of concrete as of all other types of roads put together, according to an article on "The Biggest Highway Job in History," by P. J. R. MacIntosh, which appears in the December number of The Texas Monthly.

This was more mileage of concrete than was built in Texas during a period of eight years prior to the time the present State Highway Commission went into office three years ago. Not more than ten per cent of the State highways built during those eight years was of concrete.

According to this writer, the reversal of policy which the present highway commission has made represents a recognition that the enormous traffic of Texas requires the highest type of roads of the most durable material, and that such roads are the only economical kind to build.

BIG INCREASE IN TRAFFIC

There are nearly seven times as many motor vehicles in Texas today as there were in 1917, the year of the first State registration, and probably ten or twelve times as much traffic. Both the number of vehicles and the traffic are increasing, the writer points out, and the State Highway Commission has adopted a policy of building for the traffic.

During the past three years contracts have been awarded for more than twice as much mileage of concrete highways as was built in the State during the previous eight years.

Approximately 57 per cent of the mileage of new construction contracted for since the present commission took office has been for concrete roads, or fully thirty per cent more than the mileage of all other types.

The contracts for concrete highways awarded during the past three years involve the investment of nearly four times as much money as that spent for all other types. And during the past eleven months the amount authorized to be spent for concrete roads was practically five times as much as that to be spent on all other types.

ENORMOUS MAINTENANCE COST

As the chief reason for this new policy, the writer cites the increased traffic, and points out that during the three years ending September 1, 1929, the State was compelled to spend $34,400,000 in maintenance and betterment of inadequate roads and bridges. He estimates also that an enormous mileage of the State highways is costing the motor vehicle owners of the State a great deal more in increased operating expense than it would cost to pave that mileage with the highest class paving.

The article, which is the first of a series which will constitute a complete survey of the State highways, gives a graphic account of how the highway problem arose in Texas, and of the great sums of money that were spent in building inadequate roads before the present policy was adopted. In the three or four years immediately following the World War, the writer estimates that more than $100,000,000 was spent by Texas counties and in State and Federal aid in building roads which have since been destroyed by the increased traffic. In the single year of 1919 a total of more than $80,000,000 of highway bonds was voted by 110 counties, and most of the mileage built with this money has since been destroyed. For this, the writer contends, nobody is to be blamed, because nobody could have foreseen the enormous increase in traffic.

NOBODY TO BLAME

"In criticizing the men who directed the spending of that money," he says, "it must be remembered that within four years, by 1923, there were twice as many motor vehicles as there were in 1919, and that since 1923 the number has doubled again. It would have been a miracle of foresight if 110 different local groups, made up of county commissioners, engineers, local advisory committees, and what not, had decided to build for such a future as that, and then had carried out that decision in a way that would be above criticism today."

The writer describes in detail the organization of the present highway department, and points out that it has reached a high degree of efficiency and that politics and other undesirable influences have been banished in relation to the awarding and execution of contracts.

"In adopting this policy and in building up an organization capable of applying it efficiently," he writes, "the commission has effected a revolution in highway building in Texas. But this was absolutely essential if it expected to make any progress in doing the big job it had undertaken. And it will be essential that the same standards be maintained and applied with the same rigor during the years ahead, if Texas is to complete this biggest of all highway jobs."

The detailed figures quoted in the article show that 2,253 miles of highways were contracted for during the past three years, of which 1,292 miles were of concrete. The cost of this concrete mileage, about half of which was contracted for during the past year, totals $34,201,152. A total of 624 miles of concrete at a cost of $16,195,976, was contracted for during the first eleven months of 1929.

"In the face of the past," the writer concludes, "this is an amazing record, and more than justifies the statement that Texas at last has come to grips with its big job of providing an adequate highway system for its growing motor traffic."

Jane Fair, the Stenographer

By LEETE STONE

(Copyright.)

JANE FAIR possessed three priceless qualities: imagination, sense of perspective, and tact. The daughter of parents comfortably stationed in life, she had deliberately chosen an excellent business school as a preface to life rather than allowing her alert faculties to trickle over four years of liberal arts at some women's university of note.

She had charm of manner, smart appearance and no lack of men friends; but marriage and men were not her goals. Responsibility, and executive post, possibly a partnership—these embroidered the rosy pattern of her dreams.

The first rung of the ladder was stenography. That she knew. Her gently protesting father said:

"But, my child, there are millions of stenographers. What future can you possibly hope for in that way?"

Jane replied on the eve of her employment by a large importing office.

"Of course, there are millions of ordinary stenographers, dad. They'll always be stenographers; but I'm different. You'll see!"

So Jane Fair launched out on the sea of business with high hope and the conviction that Fate and her own qualifications would ultimately win distinction for her.

She found it a choppy and a surly sea. Had she not possessed her mother's grit and her father's intelligence she would have fled many times during those first three years afloat back to the comfortable haven of her parents' home.

The design of those years traced seven positions for her; not one of which could by any conceivable range of thought be said to embody a future. Rubber stamp work entirely, offering no scope for her real abilities.

One September evening Jane climbed atop a Fifth avenue bus, bound for an open-air concert uptown. She felt the need of music, or something soothing and inspiring, because she had that day been fired for daring in her transcription of a letter, to improve some faulty grammar and sentence construction. That was that! Jane's starry lane to fame was developing into a never-ending, tortuous trail.

The fresh air of autumn fanned her cheeks as the bus sped uptown; but Jane was too depressed to more than faintly note the caress of the breeze. Tomorrow—the agencies again and another sterile placement with an exorbitant commission to pay.

Suddenly she became alive to a conversation carried on by two young men, seated together in front of her.

"A small business with excellent prospects . . . I'm getting nervous and ragged with burden of responsibility . . . losing business by my curt, lifeless letter . . . what to do . . . can't afford a $50 secretary with sense to handle 'em . . . feel down about the whole business . . ."

Hunch is a rude but descriptive word for the glowing sense of golden opportunity that flowed through Jane Fair as those words registered. They inspired the flash of decision. Here was her initial chance to prove her claim that she ranked over a million of others.

"Excuse me," Jane leaned forward and spoke almost into the young man's ear, "but I couldn't help hearing you. I know I can help with the letters. If you'll just give me figures, terms and ideas I'll do the rest . . . and you can pay me anything you like until I demonstrate. Please, won't you try me?"

Never were there more astonished expressions than those of the two young men who both turned, wide-eyed, and met Jane's friendly smile. A moment so; then the weary, haggard face of the one who had spoken beamed with pleasure.

"What a break for me!" Joy in his tones. "If you can do what you say, and will work awhile for twenty-five a week—well, I'll give you the job tomorrow morning, surest thing you know. Here's my card. I'm John Dixon."

"And I'm Jane Fair. I'll be there!" Thus Jane Fair commenced to demonstrate that she was different. Many evidences of it, small and large, caused John Dixon to thank Fortune for his luck that night on the bus top; but at Christmas time she won a victory for her young employer that caused him to know he must take no chance of ever losing her.

It had been a tough nut to crack all year, and now John was in danger of losing his best customer. He himself had written and written, unavailingly.

"Let me write him entirely on my own," Jane said. An answer arrived in the form of a generous order, a box of cigars for John and candy for Jane. There was more than gratitude in his heart as he rushed into Jane's little cubby office waving the order.

"You've won out, Miss Fair," John cried, bright glints in his eyes. Jane was at his side instantly and they eagerly read the order together, pleasure flushing her face into warm color.

"Miss Fair—er—I say—Jane, I want you for a partner."

"You mean—in business, Mr. Dixon?"

"Why—well—surely, in business—and—" Their eyes met just then and a mute message flashed its way from heart to heart.

Yearning for Red Hat Gets Boy in Trouble

La Plata, Mo.—A "whoopie" hat led Leon Garlock, eleven-year-old schoolboy, into trouble here.

He longed for one of the new collegiate red hats. In fact, he told of fliers that he couldn't think of anything else. Finally his desire got the best of him. He broke into a local meat market, taking $25 from the cash register.

The boy was in such a hurry for his hat that he asked the proprietor of a clothing store to open up after closing hour in order that he might get one. The owner of the store became suspicious of Leon and called police. The boy confessed.

Britain Wastes Millions Carelessly Each Year

London.—Great Britain throws away $750,000,000 in petty waste every year. That's the computation of an unnamed authority quoted by the Sunday Express. One important item of waste he lists is $15,000,000 worth of mustard left on the edges of plates. He also lists soap, match ends, candle ends, cigarette butts, tickets, pins and clips, gns, electricity and fuel, bones, town refuse, tin cans and waste paper.

Elizabeth Popular as Name for Babies

Berkeley, Calif.—A baby girl born now has an exceptionally strong chance of being named Elizabeth. This name has replaced Mary as the favorite for girls. Grace is increasing in popularity. Mabel, Ann, and Emily are on a decline.

These facts are pointed out by Prof. George R. Stewart, Jr., of the English department of the University of California, who has found that the popularity of given names will be plotted in cycles. His data were collected chiefly from records of officers and students at the university.

Predicting what names will be fashionable is difficult, he states, but it is likely that Frances, and various forms of Ann and Emily are destined to grow in popularity until they become too numerous, when they will lose favor again.

Professor Stewart's researches show that 12 conservative names have been used in every generation in the past fifty years. These, in order of popularity in 1925, are: Elizabeth, Marie, Helen, Dorothy, Margaret, Marie, Katherine, Louise, Ruth, Eleanor, Lucille and Evelyn.

Egg Under Tombstone 12 Years Still Fresh

Fayette City, Pa.—Why an egg buried twelve years ago should have remained fresh until it was dug up is the question interesting chemists here.

The egg was unearthed in Mt. Auburn cemetery by Frank Lowers and N. E. Murphy while they were replacing the headstone over the grave of Pierce Kendall. Knowing it must have lain under the headstone since Kendall was buried, twelve years ago, they brought it to this city for examination. Both the yolk and the albumen were fresh.

Woman's Two Weddings Just Two Too Many

Oklahoma City, Okla.—A modern version of the tale of Enoch Arden but without the climax of love and sacrifice, is being re-enacted in Oklahoma City.

Ella Mae McMullen, who is divorcing one husband because "she already had a husband," seems likely to have both men. Her other mate, also No. 1, threatens to sue her also.

Now all she asks is that her twenty-eight year old daughter be returned to her. Ella Mae married E. W. McGruder twenty-eight years ago in Norman, Okla. After being happily married three years she left him to visit her father. Returning she found her husband had gone to South America. This was in 1920.

He was later reported killed in an airplane crash there. The "widow" married Earl McMullen. Before her first husband died, she filed for divorce him.

Recently McGruder, now operating filling station at the municipal airport here, appeared. Learning of his second husband, he has threatened to sue her for divorce.

Gold in Soil Under Busy Halifax Street

Montreal, Que.—A gold lead containing particles of pure gold and traces of galena and sulphides of iron, was discovered in downtown Halifax by workmen excavating under a filling station on Barrington street for the installation of a gas tank. The ore will be analyzed and the lead investigated to determine whether metal is present in a workable quantity.

Mrs. Green Cooke and child came in from Sonora last week.

BOYS ENJOY ADVENTURES

What glorious adventures boys between the ages of 10 and 20 have reading The American Boy—Youth's Companion! As if by magic, this well known magazine carries boys to distant parts of the world, introduces them to strange people, lets them experience queer customs and revel in the adventures of foreign lands.

In a single issue, a boy will battle the frozen Northland with sled and dog team, cross Indian-haunted plains in a prairie schooner, zoom over war torn lands in an army plane or on dangerous routes with a U. S. mail pilot, hunt wild animals in Africa atop the swaying back of an elephant, go cruising in a battle ship, fight Arab raiders with the Foreign Legion and participate in many other thrilling experiences that come to readers of The American Boy—Youth's Companion.

It is such experiences as these that sharpen a boy's wits, kindle his imagination, strengthen his character, develop his understanding of the world in which he lives and of the people that inhabit it.

That boy in whom you are interested—that son, nephew, cousin, neighbor, or perhaps the son of a business associate, would greatly enjoy The American Boy—Youth's Companion. An attractive gift card bearing your name will be sent to the boy if you request it with your order. Then every time the mailman brings the magazine to his door he will think of you gratefully.

Subscription prices are only $2 for one year and $3 for three years. Your order can be entered at the office of the Sanderson Times, or sent direct to the publishers, THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION 550 W. Lafayette Blvd., Detroit, Michigan. Service on your subscription will start with whichever issue you specify.

Notice of Reward Offered.
A reward of $250 is hereby offered for information leading to the arrest, conviction and sentencing of any person found stealing sheep or goats from the ranch properties of the undersigned. A suspended sentence of a court will not entitle any informant of the benefits of this reward.

ANALYZE THE ALLOWANCE ON YOUR USED CAR

If a dealer pays you more than the true worth of the car he must make up the difference by extra charges on the new car or re-sell it to some one else at too high a price

PERMANENT value is always better than a temporary bargain in the purchase of an automobile. It pays to look ahead and consider reliability and ultimate up-keep costs, as well as comfort, safety, speed, and beauty of line and color.

Since most automobiles are bought for replacement, the value set on your used car is a factor in almost every purchase. Frequently it is given an importance beyond its true worth.

Used cars have a definite market value and you are justly entitled to an allowance based on that value. It is not fair that you receive less. It is not to your best interests to receive more.

IF a dealer pays you more than the true worth of the car he must either re-sell it to some one else at too high a price or make up the difference on the new car. This he cannot do unless he is allowed an excessive profit on the car or on financing, extra equipment and other charges. In either case, you pay the bill, for no way has yet been found to give something for nothing. The money must come from somewhere.

Who repairs in 22 years," says home owner

Visitors are delighted with the spotless appearance of the new operation of my doors," says a home owner of Monongah, Virginia. "The locks and hinges have been in active service for 22 years, and during this time I have never used anything but 3-In-One Oil."

Many housewives who pride themselves on the spotless appearance of their homes are careless about the operation of hinges and locks. Try a few drops of 3-In-One Oil today and see how quickly it brings out the dirt and squeaks. For 3-In-One Oil, of animal, mineral and vegetable oils, is distinctly different from any oil: it cleans and protects machinery as lubricates.

For 25 years 3-In-One has been recognized as the best oil for sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, lawn mowers, hinges and general household lubrication. Insist on 3-In-One Oil. At good stores everywhere, in 15c and 30c sizes. For your protection insist for the trade mark "3-In-One" and in Red on every package.

Drink Water to Help Wash Out Kidney Poison

Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and need to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt which helps to remove the body's wastes and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. 24 hours they strain from it 5000 tons of acid and waste, so we can really understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any amount about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also neutralize the acids in the system they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent mineral-water drink, which everyone would take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try it; also keep up the water drinking. You'd no doubt you will wonder what some of your kidney trouble and backache.

THE PARABLE OF THE SOWER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:1-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Hearers and Doers.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Hearers and Doers.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Giving Heed to Jesus' Teaching.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Take Heed How Ye Hear.

In this thirteenth chapter of Matthew the "mysteries" of the kingdom are unfolded. By "mystery" in the Scriptures is meant truth undiscoverable by human reason, made known by revelation. The seven parables of this chapter set forth in a most graphic manner the admixture of moral and spiritual affairs in the world between Christ's ascension and return to the earth.

I. The Sower (v. 3).

The sower is not named in this parable. In the parable of the wheat and tares, the sower is the Son of Man (v. 37). It is evident that the sower in this case is the Lord Jesus Christ. Through the centuries He has been sowing the seed of divine truth by means of prophets, apostles and ministers.

II. The Kind of Soil (vv. 4-8; 10-23).

The soil is the human heart (v. 19). The seed sown is the Word of God (v. 19). The difference of results lies in the condition of the soil, which in turn is the state of the human heart. Notwithstanding the faithfulness of the sower and the purity of the seed, the results of preaching God's Word depend upon the condition of the human heart. This parable reveals four kinds of soil or hearers.

1. The wayside, or hard-hearted hearer (v. 4, cf. v. 19).

The wayside means the track beaten down by the hoofs of animals and the feet of men. Because the soil was unbroken and uncultivated the seed could not get beneath the surface, therefore was devoured by the fowls. The great truth taught is that the heart unbroken and hard is not favorable soil for the gospel.

2. The stony places, or superficial hearers (v. 5, cf. vv. 20, 21).

This means stones with a thin layer of soil upon them. Under such conditions the seed springs up quickly, but likewise scorches quickly. Hearts superficially impressed receive God's Word with joy, but when persecution and trials come they are not able to endure.

3. The thorny ground, or pre-occupied hearers (v. 7, cf. v. 22).

In this case the ground is good, mellow enough and of sufficient depth, but has thorns in it. Such really bear the Word of God, but the cares of this world and the deceitfulness of riches and the lusts of other things, entering in choke the Word and it becomes unfruitful (Mark 4:19).

Many are the "thorny ground" hearers of this age. The good seed cannot mature because (1) of worldliness. Men and women are completely absorbed in the things of business and are burdened with care. (2) The deceitfulness of riches. Anxious care in business brings riches to many. The effect of riches is to blunt the spiritual perception of men. (3) Lusts of other things entering in. This means the pleasures of life. All these things choke the Word of God. Many of the enjoyments of the world may be innocent in themselves, but they attract so much attention and consume so much energy and time that one has no time for Bible reading, meditation and prayer.

4. The good ground, or fruitful hearers (v. 8, cf. v. 23).

"But other fell into good ground and brought forth fruit." This ground differed from all the rest. It was mellow, deep and moist, therefore it was capable of bringing forth fruit, a hundred, some sixty and some thirty fold. In the measure that the heart is kept free from worldliness, riches and pleasures, the good seed matures.

III. The Purpose of Teaching in Parables (vv. 10-17).

There is much misapprehension concerning teaching in parables. The parabolic method of teaching makes clear the truth to those that love it, but conceals it from those who have a distaste for it. Jesus did not teach by parables till the rulers had set their hearts against Him. When in the light of His miracles and wonderful works they turned against him and attributed His works to the devil, He denounced them in the most scathing terms and began to teach in parables. In fulfillment of the prophecy of Isaiah (Matt. 13:14, 15; cf. Isa. 6:9, 10)

What Love Is

Love is the simple desire for the highest good of another or of others, and is the expression of a spirit of self-surrender.—Bishop Westcott.

Tuberculosis Claim Probed

Because of the great demand for the medicine which he claims to have discovered and to have used in the cure of scores of cases of tuberculosis, Rev. Edward Ward, vicar of a suburban church in Auckland, New Zealand, has promised Minister of Health Stillworthy to discuss with an expert the formula for his treatment. He declares the many requests for the medicine include a large order from England. The compound is reported to contain mineral salts extensively used by a certain European medical school, together with a herb which grows extensively in many parts of New Zealand.

This Mother Had Problem

As a rule, milk is about the best food for children, but there are times when they are much better off without it. It should always be left off when children show by feverish, fretful or cross spells, by bad breath, coated tongue, yellow skin, indigestion, biliousness, etc., that their stomach and bowels are out of order.

In cases like this, California Fig Syrup never fails to work wonders, by the quick and gentle way it removes all the souring waste which is causing the trouble, regulates the stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally of their own accord. Children love its rich, fruity flavor and it's purely vegetable and harmless, even for babies.

Millions of mothers have proved its merit and reliability in over 50 years of steadily increasing use. A Western mother, Mrs. May Snavey, Montrose, California, says: "My little girl, Edna's, tendency to constipation was a problem to me until I began giving her California Fig Syrup. It helped her right away and soon her stomach and bowels were acting perfectly. Since then I've never had to have any advice about her bowels. I have also used California Fig Syrup with my little boy, with equal success."

To be sure of getting the genuine, which physicians endorse, always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name.

Miserable with Backache?

It May Warn of Disordered Kidneys.

DOES every day find you lame and aching—suffering nagging backache, headache and dizzy spells? Are kidney excretions too frequent, scanty or burning in passage? These are often signs of sluggish kidneys and shouldn't be neglected.

To promote normal kidney action and assist your kidneys in cleansing your blood of poisonous wastes, use Doan's Pills. Endorsed the world over.

50,000 Users Endorse Doan's:

J. F. Parker, 115 Mansion St., Pittsburgh, Pa., says: "I gladly recommend Doan's Pills. My kidneys were not acting normally. The secretions were very irregular and burned in passing. I would get up in the morning tired and stiff all over. I had a constant backache and headaches annoyed me. Since using Doan's Pills I have been in good shape."

Discovery

It had been an exciting game, a tie in the twelfth inning, but the home team finally had won. A group of home-bound commuters on the 6:25 were discussing the game heatedly, when suddenly one sprang to his feet with the exclamation, "Great Scott!"

"What's up?" somebody asked. "Lost your watch?"

"Watch be hanged!" cried the passenger. "I've left my wife asleep in the grandstand, and she's got my return ticket!"

Nickname for Stone

The word holystone denotes a piece of soft stone used in scrubbing decks. The term is supposed to be derived from the fact that decks were usually scrubbed on Saturday as a preparation for Sunday inspection, church, etc.; hence, the phrase, holystone and holystoning.

Many a woman who wants her husband to be honest is sorry that his honesty keeps him poor.

In a dog fight, you might sympathize with the under-dog if he wouldn't yell so.

Way to Get At a Cold Is Through the Bowels

As soon as you catch cold, the pores close; perspiration is checked. Gases and waste can't escape through the skin. That's why your doctor's first advice in case of colds is a mild laxative like cascara. Medical authorities agree it actually strengthens bowel muscles. You get cascara in its most pleasant form in candy Cascarets.

Remember this when you catch cold; whenever breath is bad; tongue coated; or you're headachy, bilious, constipated.

Why resort to harsher things when Cascarets activate the bowels so quickly, so harmlessly and pleasantly—and cost only a dime?

Virtues are natural to man—if he isn't tempted.

BILIOUSNESS

"MY people had used Black-Draught and found it satisfactory, and I have not found anything that could take its place," writes Mr. H. C. Hendrix, of Homer-ville, Ga.

"I take Black-Draught for biliousness. When I get bilious, I have a nervous headache and a nervous, trembling feeling that unfits me for my work. After I take a few doses of Black-Draught I get all right. When I begin to get bilious, I feel so tired and run-down, and then the headache and trembling. But Black-Draught relieves all this.

"Changing water (I travel some in my work) seems to be hard on my digestion, but an occasional dose of Black-Draught makes me feel full of pep and equal to my work."

CHEVROLET HAS MANY REFINEMENTS

Evidence of the manner in which the automobile manufacturer is furthering the cause of safety by eliminating the hazard of mechanical mishaps is shown by the many safety features incorporated in the new 1930 Chevrolet.

Notable among the safety devices in the car are the Chevrolet-designed internal brakes which are new in their field. Many a motorist has had the unnerving experience of descending a long mountain grade to find his brakes becoming less effective the farther he descends—a failure known technically as "fadeout" and due to heat generated between the brake shoe and drum which warps the shoe and lessens the contact of the brake lining with the drum. The hotter the brakes get, the less efficient they become.

Tests on the General Motors Proving Ground show that fade-out has been eliminated in the new Chevrolet by a method of construction known as the "articulated shoe type," which compensates for heat distortion, and assures uniform braking facilities under all conditions of temperature. The wear on the brake lining also is uniform, and assures far greater service out of a set of linings than the old type brakes.

Test Chevrolets on the proving ground have obtained as high as 28,000 miles on a set of linings. It is pointed out that the average motorist will obtain considerably greater mileage in view of the severe driving to which test cars are put. Further tests show the brake will stop a car traveling thirty miles per hour in two and two-tenths seconds within a distance of 48 feet.

The brakes are internal expanding all around, operating with equal efficiency on all four wheels. The parking brake is separate and operates on the rear drum. Adjustments are easily accessible without the removal of any plates.
